60,247. What took place next to that?—He said the party were not going to give so much money as was anticipated at first.

60,248. Did you understand which party he meant would not give so much money?—Yes.

60,249. The blues?—Yes.

60,250. When was it he said that?—It would be a week perhaps before the election.

60,251. Did he say how much they would give?—£2

60,252. What did you say to that?—I told him if he had got my name down to take it off any paper list or book on which he had put it down, for I never intended to vote for the blues if they gave me 5*l.* I never had done it. I did it in a joke.

60,253. You did not mean to vote for the blues?—No.

60,254. You said something about 5*l.*?—I did not want to vote for the blues, but he said he could get me 5*l.*; he said I was to have the money previous to my voting if I had a mind to do so.

60,255. He said you might have the money before voting?—He said he would not have to go with me to the poll to vote, but that I should have the money before voting if I had a mind to it.

60,256. What did you say then?—I said I did not intend to vote for the blues. I never did, and I never intended to do so at present.

60,257. Did he tell you where the money was to be paid?—No; he was going to get it himself, and pay the lot that he had on his book.

60,258. Who was he to get the money from did he say?—I do not know; from the blue side.

60,259. What did he say?—He did not name any particular parties.

60,260. Was Mr. Croft's name mentioned?—He was not named to me by Nicholson.

60,261. Who was he named by?—Mr. Croft came to our house with Moore and Butler.

60,262. Did he say anything about money?—No; nothing about money.

60,263. Did he mention to you any of the names of the parties he had got together?—No; he named my brother that was going to vote for Mr. Bramley Moore, and he hoped I should do the same; Mr. Croft said that when Mr. Bramley Moore was there.

60,264. What is your brother's name?—William. I understand he voted for Moore and Clay.

60,265. What further took place between you and Nicholson?—Nothing more than that.

60,266. Did you not see him again before the elections?—I might see him, but I did not speak to him upon the subject.

60,267. Nor on the nomination night?—No, Sir, I think not.

60,268. Did you not see him on the night of the nomination?—I think not; I do not remember.

60,269. Did you see him on the morning of the polling day?—If I did see him I never spoke to him, nor he to me, about money matters nor about the election.

60,270. Did you happen to go to the Pilot Boy?—Not during the election.

60,271. During the election week?—No.

60,272. Were you ever at the Pilot Boy during the election week?—No.

60,273. Did you learn from Nicholson where his party met?—No.

60,274. Do you know from any other source where his party used to meet?—I think I saw in the paper about Mr. Croft and the party at the Pilot Boy.

60,275. Do you know where Croft, Nicholson, and his party used to meet?—Through the newspapers I understood it was at the Pilot Boy or Hall's in English Street.

60,276. Did you hear there when they were to meet?—No; not at the time.

60,277. Did he mention having been to any committee room?—Yes, he did name something to me about going to a committee room.

60,278. What committee room did he tell you he was to go to?—It was the committee room Mr. Davis was at.

60,279. He said he had been to the committee room where Mr. Davis was?—I understood him so.

60,280. Tell us anything more about it?—I think he said that Mr. Davis said he was not going to give so much money as was anticipated before that time.

60,281. Did you understand from Nicholson that Mr. Davis had fixed the price at 2*l.*?—Something similar to that, I think.

60,282. Did you have any more talk with the party?—No.

60,283. With anybody at all connected with the blue party?—No.

60,284. Are you sure of that?—No; I do not remember anybody said anything.

60,285. Can you tell us anything about the orange cases?—No.

C. Popplewell.

26th July 1853.

60,286. Were you not with them?—I was at the Cross Keys once or twice during the election. I did not take any part.

60,287. You found eating and drinking going on?—I understand I never got any.

60,288. Plenty of eating and drinking going on at the Cross Keys on the polling day?—I understood there was.

60,289. If you had nothing to eat there was nothing to prevent it?—Nothing.

60,290. Everybody might have had as much as they cared for?—There was a dinner or luncheon provided at about three o'clock. We were in a small room on the left-hand side of the Cross Keys; we never went out to have anything to eat or drink but what we paid for.

60,291. Was there anything to prevent you at three o'clock going in to have as much to eat and drink as you could without paying for it?—There was a special luncheon provided.

60,292. About three o'clock?—Before the poll closed.

60,293. Any voter might eat and drink as much as he liked?—It was understood so.

60,294. Did you see voters going in and out there?—No, I did not.

60,295. You did not see any yourself, you are sure of it?—Yes.

60,296. Do you mean to pledge you oath that you did not see people going in and out eating and drinking there?—No; I did not see them. We were in the smoke room, and there was a large room for the dinner or the lunch. I did not see any eating and drinking.

60,297. Were you out on the nomination night about the town?—Yes, I was.

60,298. Seeing what was going on?—Yes.

60,299. All night?—No.

60,300. Pretty late, were you not?—I went to see the fun of the election; I should be at home by eleven o'clock.

60,301. What time were you out again in the morning?—About eight o'clock.

60,302. Not before?—No.

60,303. We have heard, and you have heard, probably, a good many of the blue party's runners went over to the orange in the course of that night?—I do not know that I have heard of it.

60,304. You never heard it till now?—No.

60,305. You never heard it till I mentioned it now?—No, I think not.

Henry Rosindale

HENRY ROSINDALE sworn, and examined.

60,306. What is your business?—A law accountant.

60,307. Where do you carry on business?—In the Land of Green Ginger.

60,308. What rent do you pay?—I pay 10*l.*

60,309. How long have you been qualified as a householder?—About seven years.

60,310. Are you also a freeman?—No.

60,311. Did you vote in the year 1847?—I did.

60,312. Who for?—Baines and Brown.

60,313. Were you a member of any committee for either of those candidates?—I was engaged in the election.

60,314. In what capacity?—Along with Mr. Fowler, at the Bull and Sun.

60,315. One of the clerks at the central committee room?—No; at the Bull and Sun, where the clerks were engaged.

60,316. Who was the chairman of that district?—I was superintending the clerks; there was no chairman.

60,317. For Mr. Brown?—For Mr. Brown. It was a private room in the inn assigned for the clerks to do their work in.

60.318. Did you take down the names of the parties who applied to be set down?—No; I had nothing at all to do with that; there was a committee room in another portion of the house.

60,319. Had you anything to do beyond that of preparing the sheet lists?—I was one of the agents on the election day, that is all.

60,320. A booth agent?—A booth agent.

60,321. When were you made a booth agent?—A day or two before I got the appointment, and the instructions on the night before.

60,322. How came you to be appointed a clerk?—Because I had been acquainted with electioneering matters previously, and with registration.

60,323. Did you assist Mr. Fowler?—We worked together.

60,324. Were you present when Mr. Fowler was examined?—I was.

60,325. Can you give any further information than that which Mr. Fowler has stated?—I think not. We generally worked together in the same room, and alongside each other almost.

60,326. Did you know the proceedings that were taken to secure Mr. Brown's election?—I do not.

60,327. Nothing but what you have heard since?—Nothing.

60,328. You say you are an experienced man in elections?—I have had to do with the register.

Henry Rosindale.

26th July 1853.

60,329. You had nothing to do with the election? What was the use of your experience? —As a clerk. I had the management of the arrangement of the canvassing books, and the necessary matters of that kind; so far as an acquaintance with the register, I mean.

60,330. You had not a vote in 1841?—I did not vote in the 1841 election.

60,331. What was the use of knowing anything about the register in that room?—Making out the canvassing books.

60,332. Did you do anything more than copy names from one paper to another?—I scarcely did that; I superintended the clerks that did it.

60,333. What was the use of your experience? A person who had never been in Hull might do that?—Probably he might.

60,334. How did you make use of your experience? Perhaps your experience will enable you to know who were the persons most amenable to influence?—In some respects.

60,335. Did you use your experience in that room?—No; not in that room.

60,336. Anywhere?—No.

60,337. Then you had experience, but did not use it?—I had experience in so far as this,—I am a man that have been accustomed to that kind of employment at elections.

60,338. I suggested to you that probably your experience as a person knowing the corrupt from the pure voters might be brought to bear on that occasion. You say you had experience, but you did not make use of it?—It was very little I should know about that, because I had not been experienced in that way. I was experienced in the mode in which canvassing books were made out, and things of that kind.

60,339. In 1852, were you employed on behalf of Moore and Butler?—I was.

60,340. And voted for them?—I did.

60,341. When were you first employed?—About the 11th or 12th of June, or something like that.

60,342. How came you to be selected? Was it for the same reason?—I suppose so.

60,343. Did you apply for the appointment?—Mr. Wells sent for me.

60,344. You were employed in the same way?—Yes.

60,345. Assisting Mr. Fowler?—A kind of secretary at the central committee room.

60,346. Did you assist Mr. Wells in his project for employing a considerable number of persons?—I cannot say that I did.

60,347. Did you make out the lists?—I made out some lists.

60,348. Mr. Wells stated that you prepared the lists for the clearing houses?—I do not remember that I did. I can tell, if I saw the list, whether it was in my writing or not.

60,349. You were also employed in setting names down?—How do you mean; setting names of parties down that came to the room?

60,350. Yes?—I set the names of a few down as applicants only, either to be clerks or runners, I do not know which.

60,351. What was your duty on this occasion at the central committee room?—To attend generally to the matters in the committee room; supplying the wants of the district committees, and answering their notes, and so on.

60,352. Had you to make out a list of the persons who applied for employment?—No.

60,353. Who did?—I do not know that any list was made. I put a few names down in the minute book of applicants, I think.

60,354. How early did you set them down?—It would be about the commencement.

60,355. Just tell us, as well as your memory helps you, what was the common form?—There is a page of the minute book headed, "Applications for runners," "Applications for clerks." I should enter the names under one or either of those heads.

60,356. Did you set down also people who applied to have their rooms taken?—I forget whether I put any of those names down or not; I can tell my writing if I see it.

60,357. Just look at that (handing book A. C.)?—Yes, I have.

60,358. Some of those are in your handwriting?—They are.

60,359. I dare say you will see, with the assistance of that book, that you set down the names of runners?—As applicants, I think; only applications for clerk.

60,360. I see you make a distinction, by using the word "only." I should like to know what you mean by using the word "only?" Why do you use the word "only?"—Merely to make it apply to the question.

60,361. I said, "applicants as runners;" you used the words "applicants only?"—I misunderstood your question. I thought you spoke generally.

60,362. So I did, and you seem to restrict it. I want to know whether you mean to restrict the answer?—No.

60,363. You set down everybody that came and wanted to be set down?—Not everybody.

60,364. Why not?—For instance, with the clerks, I should use my own discretion as to whether they were capable persons.

60,365. Whether you wanted a person of a better education? In the case of a common runner?—I should do the same probably.

60,366. You would set them down, and use them at your pleasure?—In the majority of cases I should send them to the district.

60,367. You did not refuse to set them down from any incapacity to do the work?—Certainly not.

60,368. What was done with the names of the persons who were set down at the central committee?—I believe some were employed at the central committee.

60,369. Some were employed, and some not?—Some not.

60,370. Do you know that the practice was resorted to of changing the employment, in order to employ a greater number?—That employment was distributed.

60,371. Have you heard that it was so?—I heard it spoken of.

60,372. You have heard, for instance, Pelch, who was examined before you?—Yes; I have heard it spoken of.

60,373. Did it prevail to some extent at the central committee?—I believe not.

60,374. It was not resorted to?—I think not.

60,375. Those were the names of persons who were first appointed runners?—There is one here; the first name in the list of applications.

60,376. As the applications were granted, were their names transferred from the application book into some other book, which will show the date of the employment, and the nature of the service?—They were not.

60,377. Is there any means that you are aware of by which we can ascertain the dates of each person's employment at the central committee?—The weekly pay sheets would show it.

60,378. Those are just the things we have not got?—The weekly pay sheets will show. I do not know anything else that will show it.

60,379. What was done with the runners who were not employed at the central committee room, who were set down at the central committee room,—not employed?—They would either go through their own district, or they would not be put down at all.

60,380. But those who were down?—They were not put down as runners unless they they were actually engaged; they were merely put down as applicants.

60,381. I understand you to say put down as applicants only?—Yes; and you will find, at the end of the names of those that were employed, something like this word, "engaged as doorkeeper," "engaged at central committee room."

60,382. What was done with those not set down?—They either went to the other side, or went elsewhere, or were not employed at all.

60,383. And were paid?—I do not know. One or two went to the other side. I do not know what became of the others.

60,384. The other witnesses have said, when a man's name was set down it was a distinct pledge, on the one side, for the vote, and, on the other, for giving employment?—Certainly.

60,385. Just see whether that is a general list of runners prepared by yourself (handing D. C. book to the witness)?—In part.

60,386. What is that book?—It professes to be an alphabetical list of names of persons who were employed as runners by the different districts, and intended to be transferred from the district lists into this book.

60,387. That is, made up from the district returns?—It is.

60,388. For what purpose?—In the first instance, it was for the purpose of ascertaining whether we had got the names more than once over, so as to check them.

60,389. Was not it again for the purpose of checking it against the poll book?—No; I think the principal object was to see that we were not paying parties twice over; I think that was the main object.

60,390. And also that nobody was to be paid unless he voted Moore and Butler?—Certainly.

60,391. You see there are some notes and observations in it. Look at the different marks; about five or six marks of a different character?—Yes, there are.

60,392. Can you explain those marks?—I can explain the initials, M. B., and C. G., and so on.

60,393. Those were put for the purpose; was not it part of the intention to compare it with the poll book?—It was in some respects compared with the check sheets.

60,394. For the purpose of showing they should not be paid unless they voted Moore and Butler?—Certainly.

60,395. Look at the list, and you will see "Bamford's list?"—"Humber dock basin" is on one side.

60,396. You will see the words "Bamford's list;" can you explain that? That is your handwriting?—Yes.

60,397. What does it mean?—I suppose it means a list of names furnished by some one in connexion with Mr. Bamford or by him.

60,398. Do you remember seeing any such list?—I have no doubt I must, as I have got these names from it.

60,399. Do you remember how many names were contained in the list?—I do not, unless this book will show it.

60,400. Do you remember yourself receiving it?—This calls it to my mind. There must have been one.

60,401. Refreshing your memory with that, you have no doubt such documents exist?—There must have been that document.

60,402. Do you remember what it was prepared for?—It was merely a list of names.

Henry Rosindale.

26th July 1853.

60,403. Do you remember anything relating to the object or purport of the list at this moment?—I do not know; I have only my supposition about it.

60,404. Finding those names in the list, you have no doubt they are persons down there as runners?—Yes; intending to be paid.

60,405. Now the words "Humber dock basin;" can you explain that?—Yes; it was the room at which, I believe, Lidgard was employed.

60,406. Minerva Terrace?—Yes.

60,407. Were those runners at the Humber dock basin to be treated just the same as all the rest?—I suppose so.

60,408. You have no doubt about it?—I have no doubt at all.

60,409. Do you know what became of the list of the Humber dock basin?—I do not.

60,410. Were the original lists returned to the different districts?—No, I believe not.

60,411. The lists from which this book is made; these are evidently made at the central room?—Yes; and partly at Mr. Wells's office.

60,412. What became of the papers from which it was made?—I do not know.

60,413. What is your memory upon the subject?—After the book had been made, there would be these left along with the other papers in the committee room. What became of them I know not.

60,414. We have understood they were returned back again to the different districts, in order to pay from?—Yes; but I am not aware of it. I suppose it would be so.

60,415. Who would know?—I do not know. Perhaps Mr. Wells would be the most likely.

60,416. Would there have been every day a report to you from the district committees?—No; it was made up after the election.

60,417. But they did send a report every day?—No.

60,418. After the election, from the documents furnished, when the election was over, by the different district committees?—Yes.

60,419. Made up for the purpose of payment?—I suppose so.

60,420. Was it not your duty to see it made up?—Yes.

60,421. What were the instructions? What was the book made for?—I was to make out a list from the various lists handed to me.

60,422. What lists were those?—The lists from the different committees.

60,423. Were they pay sheets?—Merely lists.

60,424. Payments to be made?—I suspect they were.

60,425. Furnished after they had voted?—After they had voted; furnished after the election; but they were to be compared with the other lists and with the check sheets.

60,426. For the purpose of having one confirmed register of all the persons, with all outstanding claims after the election was over?—Yes.

60,427. If the payments had not been stopped by matters that intervened, would they have been paid pretty much from that book?—No; they would not be paid at all from that book. There were several names struck through..

60,428. Then that book does not contain the names of persons who were employed during the election, does it?—Not exactly.

60,429. All the persons who were employed during the election were paid during the election, were they not?—They were, week by week.

60,430. These are the persons who were to be paid the week after the election; that is for the last week; a list of runners for the last week; applicants?—No; a list of runners.

60,431. The heading is, "Runners employed in the district"?—Yes.

60,432. But the book by no means contains the names of all the persons employed during the election?—It may not.

60,433. Where they employed for a short time, and paid off and discharged?—It would, because if they had been employed in the early part they would put on the latter part; that is only the latter part.

60,434. That would not embrace the names of any persons employed in the early part and discharged those names would not appear?—It would not.

60,435. Had you any book of that sort to keep during the election?—No.

60,436. From the pay sheets that were sent in from the central committee room did you enter up the names of the persons employed into any book?—No.

60,437. There were none at the central committee room at all?—I believe not.

60,438. What are these crosses opposite some of the names?—I do not remember.

60,439. The black cross?—I do not remember.

60,440. There is a cross against every name who voted for Clay and Goderich?—Probably that is the object of it; to draw attention to it.

60,441. Also some double entries?—That was the object; to draw attention to it. The crosses are my own. I fancy that is the object, but I do not remember these marks accurately. I think the crosses are my own; the ticks are not.

60,442. There is a cross, "not voted"?—That is in order to draw attention to it.

60,443. Nobody that has got a cross seems to have voted for Moore and Butler?—That would be it. The crosses opposite the names are "double entries," or "did not vote," or "voted orange."

60,444. Or "did not vote wholly blue"?—Half and half.

Henry Rosindale.

26th July 1853.

60,445. There is a cross opposite to one man; Moore and Clay?—Yes; it would be to draw attention to those particular names.

60,446. And one a man "not voted" has got some mark?—Yes; there is an asterisk or a star opposite to some of the names; that would be something to refer to the same names in another portion of the book—"see above," or something of that kind.

60,447. Just look at the book (handing it back)?—You observe here, on this page, under the letter E, "Everingham, William." This is for the same purpose as the crosses. If you observe, there is a number of the register; the name of Everingham, William; and then next him, under the letter E, is the same number and the same name, and an asterisk, which is to draw attention from one to the other.

60,448. They are references only?—References to show that it is in two lists.

60,449. Did you see Steeple at the central committee room?—Yes.

60,450. What did he do?—He attended principally to the flag department.

60,451. Something real, or not?—I cannot say much more, except that he sat there, and scribbled on paper.

60,452. More of a nominal employment?—Yes.

60,453. He is a good electioneerer?—He assisted generally.

60,454. Was not it this: he was considered a man of great experience in election matters, whom it was advisable to give a retainer to?—Probably it might; I should fancy it was.

60,455. It means that he is not to be on the other side?—Yes, I know.

T. Williamson.

THOMAS WILLIAMSON sworn, and examined.

60,456. What business are you?—A ropemaker.

60,457. Where do you live in this borough?—Near the North Bridge, at the sign of the Greenland Fishery.

60,458. Do you pay rent for a house?—No; I am a lodger.

60,459. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

60,460. How long have you been free?—Thirty-five years back.

60,461. How old are you?—Fifty-six, the 29th of next month.

60,462. Before the Reform Act, used you to get four guineas, and the two guineas?—Yes, you are right; that is correct; but it is all done away with.

60,463. That is a pleasing recollection, rather?—Oh yes, it is, rather.

60,464. Who did you vote for in 1841, when Hanmer and James, and Clay and Thompson were the candidates?—I voted for Sir Walter James and Sir John Hanmer.

60,465. How much did you get then?—£1 then.

60,466. After you voted?—After I voted. Yes.

60,467. Do you know who paid it?—Yes.

60,468. Who was it?—That puts me a little about.

60,469. Where was it paid?—Down Wincolmlee. I was paid at Mr. Foster's.

60,470. Who did you then vote for in 1847?—I got to the booth, but I never polled at all; there was such a disturbance in the booth that I could not poll.

60,471. Did you get any money?—I got two days pay; I got half a sovereign, and when I got there, I found such a disturbance that I could not vote.

60,472. You got the 10s. to vote for Brown?—No; I earned it before, and partook of it.

60,473. Did you get it to vote for Brown?—No, I did not, I earned the money.

60,474. Who was it paid by?—By Mr. Yeall.

60,475. Was your name set down as a runner for Brown?—It was set down as a messenger.

60,476. For Brown?—For Brown.

60,477. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

60,478. What did you get this last time?—£1.

60,479. After you voted?—It was at the time; but I did not get the money before I earned it. I was set on as a messenger. I earned my money before I partook of it. A man is worthy of his hire.

60,480. Where were you paid?—I was paid in Lowgate Conservative News-room.

60,481. Who paid it?—Mr. Pulleyn.

60,482. Was it paid before or after you had voted?—I do not know when it was paid. I earned the money before I got it.

60,483. Was it paid before you voted or after?—After.

60,484. You had been a messenger?—Yes.

60,485. And had your name set down?—Oh yes, as a messenger.

60,486. At what election was it they put you into a bottle?—You do not smell the smoke.

60,487. What election was it; 1841?—I have been a voter for thirty-five years, and I think I know a little about it.

60,488. Was it at the 1841 election they put you into a bottle?—I never went into a bottle yet.

60,489. You say you voted James and Hanmer at that election?—Yes. I hope there is no harm in it.

Thomas Fenwick.

26th July 1853.

THOMAS FENWICK sworn, and examined.

60,490. Where do you live?—44, Roper Street.
60,491. What is your business?—A tailor.
60,492. What rent do you pay for your house?—£4 10*s.*
60,493. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
60,494. When were you made a freeman?—In 1839.
60,495. At whose expense?—My father paid for me.
60,496. What is your father's name?—Thomas.
60,497. In 1841, did you vote for Hanmer and James?—Yes.
60,498. Did you get any money for your vote?—Yes.
60,499. How much?—One sovereign.
60,500. Before or after voting?—After the election.
60,501. Who paid you?—I do not know the gentleman's name who paid me.
60,502. Where were you paid?—I was paid in Church Lane, to the best of my recollection; there was a committee room there.
60,503. In 1847, did you vote?—No, I did not vote at all then.
60,504. Why not?—I was not on the register.
60,505. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Bramley Moore and Mr. Butler.
60,506. I believe you got 30*s.*?—31*s.*
60,507. Was that before, or after the election?—I had 10*s.* before the election, and 21*s.* after.
60,508. Where was that paid you?—At Legitt's committee room.
60,509. The 10*s.*?—Yes.
60,510. And 21*s.* after?—And 21*s.* after, at the same committee room.
60,511. By the same person?—No; I do not think it was by the same person. It was at Legitt's committee room.
60,512. Were you set down as a runner?—I was set down as a runner.

E. W. Foster.

EDWARD WILSON FOSTER sworn, and examined.

60,513. Where do you live?—In Coltman Street.
60,514. What is your business?—I have dropped it. I have coiled my rope.
60,515. What rent do you pay for your house?—I was a soapmaker, but I have done with it at present.
60,516. I ask you what rent do you pay for your house?—Why I pay no rent; I live on my own property.
60,517. What are you rated at to the poor?—£10.
60,518. Are you a freeman?—Yes, a freeman as well.
60,519. When were you made a freeman?—My first election was Wrightson's.
60,520. Did you vote in 1841?—I have voted at every election right away since. I do not know I have missed one.
60,521. In 1841, Clay and Thompson, and Hanmer and James, were the candidates?—I voted for Mr Hutt when he was here.
60,522. In 1841, Clay and Thompson, Hanmer and James, were the candidates; who did you vote for then?—I voted for Colonel Thompson.
60,523. Did you get anything for that vote?—Not that I know of; not a farthing. There were open houses, and I got a little beer. I was then a working man.
60,524. I see you voted for Clay and Thompson?—I never voted for Clay yet.
60,525. They have set down your name?—I never voted for Clay; I voted for Thompson.
60,526. For Thompson only, you say?—I never voted for Clay, because he was opposed to my thoughts. Mr. Hutt was a man of my thoughts.
60,527. In 1847, who did you vote for; Clay, Baines, and Brown?—I voted for Brown and Baines.
60,528. At that election I think you were a runner?—No; I never was set down.
60,529. What did you get then?—I got 15*s.*, paid into my hand. They put me into a cab, and away I went to poll. I do not know who it was; however, I got the 15*s.*
60,530. And you voted for Mr. Brown?—I voted for Mr. Brown and Mr. Baines.
60,531. Did you get anything afterwards?—No.
60,532. That was all you got?—That was all I got.
60,533. Now in 1852, who did you vote for?—Bramley Moore and Butler.
60,534. I believe you got 4*l.*, did you not?—No.
60,535. How much did you get?—No; they put me down at that time. I had only a very moderate salary, and I was set down as a runner by George Hare, at Anthony Bannister's committee room.
60,536. At the Minerva Terrace?—Yes.
60,537. How much money did you get?—I was paid 3*s.* 6*d.* a day for the time I was there.
60,538. How much did you get altogether?—Two weeks and three days.

60,539. That was at the Market Place ward?—No; I do not know that. It was by the Hull Dock basin. E. W. Foster.

60,540. You were set down also in Market Place?—No, I was not. 26th July 1853.

60,541. I am told you got 4*l.*?—I never got, but I received weekly. I got 14*s.* knocked off, if you mean that.

60,542. No, I do not mean that; I am told that you got 4*l.* altogether?—No, I did not.

JOSEPH FILLINGHAM sworn, and examined. J. Fillingham.

60,543. Where do you live?—Green Lane.

60,544. What is your business?—A shipwright.

60,547. When were you made a freeman?—Between thirty and forty years ago.

60,548. At your own expense?—No.

60,549. Which party paid for it?—The blue party.

60,550. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Perhaps I might; I do not recollect whether I voted or not.

60,551. Did you get any money at that election?—I do not remember it.

60,552. I see you voted for Hanmer and James?—I have always voted for the blue party.

60,553. Did you get any money then?—I cannot tell you.

60,554. Did you not get 1*l.* at that time?—I cannot recollect.

60,555. After the election?—I cannot recollect it.

60,556. Did you get any money at that election, or after it? Did you not get a sovereign after the election was over?—I do not remember.

60,557. How much did you get?—I do not remember getting anything.

60,558. Was there ever a time that you did not get any money?—This last time I got a sovereign.

60,559. Was there ever a time you did not get any money?—I think there was.

60,560. When?—I cannot bring it to my mind.

60,561. Who did you vote for in 1847; Clay, Baines, or Brown?—Baines and Brown.

60,562. You got some money then?—I got 10*s.*

60,563. When was it paid you?—After the election.

60,564. Who paid it you, do you remember?—Brown's party paid me.

50,565. Do you remember where they paid you?—It was in Witham.

60,566. Now, in 1852, at the last election, you voted for Moore and Butler?—Yes, I did.

60,567. How much money did you then get?—A pound.

60,568. Where were you paid?—At a public house next Drypool Church.

60,569. What was the sign of it?—I think they called it the Hunt.

60,570. Was it after you had voted?—Yes.

60,571. Near the Victoria Dock?—It is very near it.

60,572. Who paid you there?—Mr. Walker and two or three more.

WILLIAM FINLAY sworn, and examined. William Finlay.

60,573. Where do you live?—I live at Drypool.

60,574. What is your business?—Master mariner.

60,575. What rent do you pay for a house?—£10 a year.

60,577. When were you made a freeman?—In 1806.

60,578. At whose expense?—At my own.

60,579. In 1841 who did you vote for; Clay and Thompson, or Hanmer and James?—I am sure I do not recollect; I cannot bring it to mind. I do not not know. Perhaps I might be at tea at the time.

60,580. Where do you live?—At Drypool.

60,581. In Prospect Street?—Prospect Place.

60,582. Then I see you voted blue?—Did I?

60,583. The poll book says so. Do you agree with it?—Yes.

60,584. Did you get some money for your vote?—I do not know that I got anything.

60,585. What do you think about it?—I do not believe I got anything.

60,586. You got some at the last election?—Which one do you mean?

60,587. The last, in 1852?—No, I did not.

60,588. Did you not get something in 1841?—No, I did not.

60,589. After the election was over, did you not get something in 1841, after you had voted for Hanmer and James? Did you not get a sovereign after the election?—No; I do not recollect that I got a farthing.

William Finlay.

26th July 1853.

60,590. In 1847, Clay ; Baines, and Brown; who did you vote for then ?—I think I was at sea at the time.

60,591. Now, in 1852, did you vote for Moore and Butler ?—Yes.

60,592. You got some money then after you had voted, did you not, at the last election ?—At the last election I did not get any money at all.

60,593. I am told you got 30*s.* ?—No, I did not.

60,594. I have it here, William Findlay, Drypool, was paid 30*s.* ?—Nothing of the sort.

60,595. Were you not paid anything ?—I was paid a sovereign for my assistance.

60,596. Is that all you got ?—That is all I got.

60,597. Where were you paid ?—I was paid at Drypool.

60,598. When ?—After the election was over.

60,599. Who paid you ?—I think it was Mr. Walker. I do not know exactly the sum.

60,600. Were you a runner ?—Yes.

60,601. In Holderness ?—Yes.

60,602. How many days were you down for ?—I ran the whole time of the election ; I was a running the whole of the election.

60,603. That does not tell me how long ?—I got paid very badly. I had a pound for all my time. I actually did run the whole of the election.

60,604. You tried to get more ?—I tried to get as much as I could.

60,605. Did they not pay you by the week ?—No ; I got paid a sovereign.

60,606. Afterwards ?—Afterwards.

60,607. Which Mr. Walker was it ?—Mr. Walker the druggist.

60,608. Why did they not pay you by the week ?—I am sure I do not know.

60,609. Did you ask them ?—No ; I did not ask them for anything.

60,610. A good many got paid by the week, we hear ?—I wish I had been, I am sure.

Robert Graham.

ROBERT GRAHAM sworn, and examined.

60,611. What is your business ?—Shoemaker.

60,612. Where do you live ?—In Waterworks Street.

60,613. What rent do you pay ?—£4 10*s.*

60,616. At whose expense ?—My father's.

60,617. You used to get the four guineas and the two before the Reform Act ?—Yes ; and I should like to have it now.

60,618. In 1841 did you vote ?—Yes, I did.

60,619. Who for ?—For Clay and Thompson.

60,620. Did you get any money for that ?—No, I did not.

60,621. Nothing ?—Well, I will say not a penny.

60,622. Neither before nor after the election ?—Neither before or after the election.

60,623. Who did you vote for in 1847 ?—I polled for Baines and Brown.

60,624. What did you get for that ?—10*s.*

60,625. Who was it for ?—Mr. Brown ; I got nothing from Mr. Baines.

60,626. When was it paid you ?—I got 5*s.* before the election, and 5*s.* after.

60,627. Who paid it you ?—Mr. Bannister.

60,628. Both sums ?—Yes.

60,629. Now, at the last election in 1852, who did you vote for ?—I polled for Moore and Butler.

60,630. Did you get some money then ?—Yes, I ; did not for voting ; I got it for labour.

60,631. How much did you get for your labour ?—£1 14*s.* altogether.

60,632. What was your labour ?—Running errands for them.

60,633. How long were you employed in errand going ?—I was a week and four days.

60,634. Were you paid by the week ?—I got 14*s.* the first four days, and then I got the sovereign after the election was over.

60,635. Where was the last money paid you ?—In the committee room.

60,636. There were several committse rooms ?—In Saville Street, where our committee room was.

60,637. You had been to that room before ?—Yes, I had been to that room before.

60,638. You asked for 2*l.* or two guineas there, did you not ?—No, I did not ; I asked for nothing.

60,639. Did you go to the other house in Saville Street, where Mr. Wilde was ?—No.

60,640. You are sure of that ?—Yes, I am sure of it. I never was in an orange committee room during all the time.

60,641. Did you not go there, and say you never hadbeen a Liberal, and you wanted to be one then ?—Never.

60,642. And you wished for 2*l.* or two guineas ?—Never.

60,643. You never had been a Liberal ?—No ; only when I was for Clay and Thompson.

60,644. You had forgot that before ?—No ; I had not forgotten it.

60,645. Did you ask to be set down as a messenger by the blues ?—No ; I did not ask particularly to be set down as a messenger. I asked if they had any employment for me; and they said yes.

Robert Graham.

26th July 1853.

60,646. In Saville Street?—Yes; for the blues.

60,647. Do you know Mr. Empson?—I do not know him; I have seen him, and have had him several times at my house.

60,648. You have seen him very often, and he has been very often to your house; that is what I call knowing a person?—Yes; but I do not know him still.

60,649. Perhaps he knows you?—He wanted to know me, but I did not want to know him.

60,650. Did you not tell him you wanted 2*l.* or two guineas from the Liberals?—No; I never did.

60,651. What did you say to Mr. Empson?—I will tell you what I said to him. He asked if I would poll for the Liberal party, and he said if I would he would give me a note to go down to Mr. Galloway's; and I said I neither wanted him or his note.

60,652. Were you not a runner for the blue party?—Yes.

60,653. Did you not see him before that?—I did see him before that, once, and I told him the same then.

Thomas Glover.

THOMAS GLOVER sworn, and examined.

60,654. Where do you live?—Drypool.

60,655. What is your business?—Keelman or slipman.

60,657. How much rent do you pay?—£16 rent.

60,658. How long have you voted as a householder?—Ten years.

60,659. Then you did not vote in 1841 for Clay and Thompson?—No.

60,660. In 1847 did you vote; Clay, Baines, and Brown?—I voted once for Clay.

60,661. What do you mean by once in 1847; who did you vote for?—I never voted for anybody but Clay. Jalland was mayor, I believe.

60,662. Did you get any money for that?—Yes; I got a pound.

60,663. Who paid you?—That I do not know.

60,664. Where were you paid?—I do not know, I am sure.

60,665. Come, you know?—I left my vessel to come down here to vote. It cost me all the money.

60,666. Where did you get the money is what I ask you?—I am sure I cannot say.

60,667. You did not pick it up in the street?—No.

60,668. Where did you get it from?—I am sure I cannot say.

60,669. When did you get it?—That I cannot answer.

60,670. You cannot say when or where?—No, I cannot.

60,671. Who paid it you?—I am sure I do not know.

60,672. Where did you come from to vote in 1847?—From a place they call Beale.

60,673. How far is that?—It is betwixt Wakefield and Selby. I left my vessel there, and came over on purpose to vote.

60,674. How did you come?—I walked eight or ten miles to Selby, and then took the packet to Hull.

60,675. How much did you pay for it, 5*s.*?—No; not so much.

60,676. How much did you pay?—I think it would be somewhere about 3*s.*; then I paid a man 12*s.* for coming down to my vessel, and his allowance.

60,677. You made a bad business of it?—I had better stayed on board my vessel.

60,678. In 1852, at the last election, did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes, I did.

60,679. And they had a room of yours, had they not?—Yes.

60,680. Where was your room?—It was in Raikes Street, Drypool.

60,681. How much did you get for that room?—I got two guineas altogether.

60,682. When was it paid you?—A few days after the election.

60,683. Did Steeple pay it you?—I do not know who paid it me. I never got the money myself. I was not at home. My wife got it for me. She did not know the man.

60,684. When did they engage your room?—I believe just before the election took place.

60,685. Did any committee meet there?—No.

60,686. They gave you no list of anybody who would come there?—No, not at all.

60,687. Do you know Henry Whytal Walker, the druggist—Yes.

60,688. What he at your room?—No; I do not recollect seeing him in our room. It was his proposal about having a committee room. He mentioned it to me, and I had no objection to it.

John Gibson.

JOHN GIBSON sworn, and examined.

26th July 1853.

60,693. When were you made a freeman?—After Hanmer's election.
60,694. Who took it up for you?—Hanmer.
60,695. The blue party?—Yes.
60,696. Did you vote for them at the next election in consequence of that?—Yes.
60,697. Who for?—For Mr. Brown.
60,698. Only?—Only.
60,699. What did you get for your vote?—10*s*.
60,700. When were you paid?—After the election.
60,701. By whom?—I do not know the party.
60,702. Where?—At Sowerby's.
60,703. Where was that?—In Witham.
60,704. Was that a committee room?—Yes.
60,705. What is Sowerby's Christian name? Does he keep a public house?—He keeps a public house; the Noah's Ark.
60,706. Is he the publican?—Yes.
60,707. The landlord of the house?—Yes; that is where I was paid.
60,708. Were there a good many more paid with you?—Yes.
60,709. He had the money to pay you with?—No; he had not got the money altogether; there was a committee room there.
60,710. In 1852, did you vote for Moore and Butler; at the last election?—Yes.
60,711. Did you get anything?—I got nothing before hand.
60,712. After?—Yes, after.
60,713. How much?—I got 17*s*. for five days running.
60,714. Are you sure you did not get it beforehand?—No, not a farthing.
60,715. Did you not say you would not vote unless you were paid?—No.
60,716. You are not the man?—It is not me, I am sure.
60,717. Where did you receive it?—I received it at Mrs. Jubb's.
60,718. Where is that?—At the Brunswick Hotel.
60,719. In Holderness?—Just at the Victoria Dock.
60,720. When did they pay you?—It would be three weeks after the election.
60,721. Was that a committee room, do you know?—I do not know, I am sure.

William Headon.

WILLIAM HEADON sworn, and examined.

60,722. Where do you live?—31, Dock Street.
60,723. What is your business?—I am a shipwright.
60,724. What rent do you pay for your house?—£5 10*s*.
60,725. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
60,726. When were you made a freeman?—About eight years ago.
60,727. At your own expense?—Yes.
60,728. Did you vote at the election of 1847?—Yes.
60,729. Clay, Baines, or Brown?—Yes.
60,730. Which did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.
60,731. Did you get any money?—Yes; I got 10*s*. from Mr. Brown.
60,732. When was it paid you?—Before the election.
60,733. At what place?—In Wincolmlee, at a public house; I do not know the sign of it.
60,734. Do you know the persons who paid you?—Yes, I know one of them; Fred. Peterson was one.
60,735. How soon were you paid anything for Mr. Baines after the election?—Half a crown I got about four or five months after the election.
60,736. Were did you get that?—In Parliament Street.
60,737. Who was it paid it you?—A lawyer; I do not know what they call him.
60,738. How came you to have the 2*s*. 6*d*.?—I was told by a fellow workman that they were going to pay for Mr. Baines, and I thought I had as much right as anybody else, and I went after it, and I got half a crown.
60,739. Did you run as much for Mr. Baines as for Mr. Brown?—A good deal more.
60,740. Who was the man who paid it you?—I do not know.
60,741. Do you not know the number of the place?—I know it was on the right hand as you go from Friar Gate, at some lawyer's office there.
60,742. How many were there there?—Very many.
60,743. But how many?—I should say fifty or sixty at the time I was in the passage.
60,744. Would you know the place again?—Yes, well.
60,745. Could you show it to anybody?—Yes, I could.
60,746. Will you show it to our messenger?—Yes. I do not know that I can show you the very door.
60,747. Was it Mr. Wells' office?—No.
60,748. Was it Mr. Sidebottom's?—That was the name. I do not go to say it was Mr. Sidebottom's or Mr. Well's; I really do not remember.

60,749. You say there was some fifty or sixty, as far as you know, there. Did they all get the same sum?—No; some of them got more; I do not know if any got less; they could not very well get less.

60,750. What is the highest you know any of them got?—I heard one of them say that he had got a sovereign.

60,751. What was the general sum?—I am sure I do not know. I did not make a very great deal of inquiry. I knew there was some allowance, and I went to see what my allowance was.

60,752. Did you not try for more?—I think I did.

60,753. Had the gentleman got a list before him with names upon it?—Yes, I think so, as far as I can remember; it is a long time ago. I do not rightly remember what was passing.

60,754. How many gentlemen were in the room where the payment was made?—I do not remember seeing more than one.

60,755. Did you go in one at a time?—Yes, one at a time, I believe.

60,756. You waited some time?—Yes; we had to wait our turns.

60,757. Can you tell me a little nearer how long it was after the election?—Well, I am sure I cannot say.

60,758. Was it in the same year?—Yes; it was in the same year, I think.

60,759. If not in that year, would it have been not later than the next year?—Yes.

60,760. That you are sure of?—Yes; but I do not remember well; I do not indeed.

60,761. Do you know how long those payments went on? Was it finished in a day?—I do not remember it. I know nothing of it, further than the day I got the half-crown.

60,762. How did you happen to hear of it?—A painter told me they were going to pay; accordingly, I went on the day he named, and I got my half-crown on the same day.

60,763. Do you think you can point out the place?—I really think I can show pretty near, as far as my memory would let me.

60,764. You have been in the habit of passing it, I suppose?—Yes; I have been past it two or three times.

60,765. Now, in 1852, did you vote for Moore and Butler?—I did.

60,766. Did you get some money for that vote; 15*s.*?—No; I got more than that.

60,767. How much did you get?—I got 17*s.*, in the shape of running money, and I got 3*s.* to pay travelling expenses from Barton to Hull.

60,768. Did you come over from Barton?—Yes.

60,769. On the morning of the election?—No; I came over four days prior to the election, at my own expense.

60,770. You got it paid for your vote?—I got 17*s.* for the four days' running, and 3*s.* expenses from Barton to Hull.

60,771. Which four days were you paid for running?—The four days before the election.

60,772. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday?—I do not know what day the election took place.

60,773. Did you come on your own business?—I came on the electioneering business altogether. When I came there was parties soliciting us at Barton, and, thinks I to myself, I will have nothing to do with the humbugs; I will go upon my own bottom.

60,774. You did not think Mr. Wilde was, who was paying 2*l.* apiece?—Yes; he was offering 2*l.*; he offered it me.

60,775. That was not humbug?—Yes, it was, in my eyes.

60,776. When you say he was offering you 2*l.*, you do not mean that he offered you the two sovereigns?—Indeed he did, in Saville Street.

60,777. He offered to pay you the money down?—He wanted to convey me into a house opposite the committee, where the colour was out in Saville Street on the other side of the way.

60,778. 21, Saville Street?—I do not know the number.

60,779. What time was that?—About three or four days before the election; I do not know to the day. There was a friend of mine came from Boston, one of the trade, and he says to me, you had better by half be of this party, the orange party. If you go to Mr. Wilde you will enjoy the same benefits that I have. That was at a house at the corner of Wilberforce Street; I do not know what they call it.

60,780. The Wilberforce Rooms?—I think that is the name of it. He says to me, if you will go to Mr. Wilde's he will pay you in the same way. Thinks I to myself, it is a decent put out, but it is against principle; and as I was going down Saville Street, he says, here is a voter, and accordingly Mr. Wilde came up to me and offered very fair. Thinks I to myself, I do not like it. I will not go against principle; I will go on my own way, and accordingly I did.

60,781. And you went on your own bottom?—I refused him.

60,782. How much did you get? You have not told us that?—When?

62,783. At the last election?—20*s.*; 17*s.* in the shape of a runner, and 3*s.* for travelling expenses from Barton to Hull and back.

62,784. When were you paid that money?—On the Saturday after the election.

60,785. At what place?—Abreast Christ Church, in Jarrett Street.

William Headon.
26th July 1853.

60,786. In Worship Street you mean?—Yes; that is the street; that is right.
60,787. That was after the election?—Yes.
60,788. Do you know John Walker?—No, I do not. I know Mr. Wilde, because I have seen him. I am not a stranger to him.
60,789. There seems to be some mistake about this. You say Mr. Wilde offered you 2*l.* He says he did not?—Mr. Wilde told me I should share the same as the man who took me.
60,790. Was he a Barton voter?—No, he is not a Barton voter; he was a Boston voter.
60,791. What is his name?—Robert Hill.

Mr. T. Wilde.

Mr. THOMAS WILDE recalled, and examined.

60,792. What do you say to this statement?—All I have to say is, that I did nothing of the sort; I never offered any money to any body.
60,793. What the last witness seems to say is that you wanted to take him into a house in Saville Street, and to set his name down?—I am sure I did not.

Thomas Hall.

THOMAS HALL sworn, and examined.

60,794. Where do you live?—In Sykes Street, Clappison Square, No. 1.
60,795. What is your business?—I am a sailmaker.
60,796. What rent do you pay?—£8.
60,797. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
60,798. When were you made a freeman?—In 1825; I took my freedom up.
60,799. At your own expense?—At my own expense.
60,800. Did you vote at the election in 1841?—Yes.
60,801. Who for?—I think it was for Hanmer and James.
60,802. Did you get some money for that vote?—I do not remember it.
60,803. What do you think about it?—I do not remember getting anything; I do not.
60,804. You think you did not get anything?—I fancy not; I do not know that I did.
60,805. Did you not get 1*l.*?—I do not know that I did; I might; but I do not know that I did, at present.
60,806. After the election?—After the election? I cannot bring it to remembrance; not just at at present; I may.
60,807. If you remember it, come and tell us?—I will. I am not afraid of that; not a bit.
60,808. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I voted for Mr. Brown.
60,809. What did you get then?—I got a sovereign.
60,810. Where were you paid that?—I got a half of a sovereign before the election, and a half sovereign after the election, and they paid me at a public house at Scott Street corner.
60,811. Both the sums?—No.
60,812. Where was the other paid, then?—There was a man brought it; I forget his name exactly just now; a man brought me half a sovereign, and I got half a sovereign before that.
60,813. Brought it to your house?—No, he did not.
60,814. Where did he bring it to?—He brought it to the shop to me; he came to the shop, and gave it me, in a house in Dock Street.
60,815. Do you remember his name?—I really do not.
60,816. You will tell us that next time?—I will tell you all about it.
60,817. In 1852, Moore and Butler's election; who did you vote for then?—Moore and Butler.
60,818. Did you get paid for that?—Yes, I did.
60,819. How much?—Why I think I got somewhere about 30*s.*
60,820. Who paid you?—Well, I do not know; I got 12*s.* 6*d.* one time, and 17*s.* 6*d.* the other; that made about 30*s.*, I think.
60,821. Where were you paid?—The second time I was paid at the committee room.
60,822. There were several committee rooms. Which committee room?—At South End.
60,823. And where was the other paid to you?—Well; it was brought to me.
60,824. Who by?—By my partner.
60,825. Who is your partner?—He is here.
60,826. What is his name?—Mitchell; he brought it to me, because I happened to be out at work that day.
60,827. He will tell us where he got it, then? Perhaps he told you?—Well; it came from the same place, I expect.

THOMAS MITCHELL sworn, and examined.

Thomas Mitchell.

26th July 1853.

60,828. Where do you live?—In Clappison Square.
60,829. What is your business?—Sail maker.
60,830. What rent do you pay for a house?—I pay 8*l.* for the house.
60,831. When were you made a freeman?—In 1822.
60,832. At whose expense?—At my own. I paid 29*s.* for it.
60,833. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Yes.
60,834. Who for did you vote?—For Hanmer and James.
60,835. Did you get some money for that vote?—I believe I did not get a penny.
60,836. Not at any time?—No.
60,837. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I voted for Mr. Brown and Mr. Baines.
60,838. Did you get some money then?—Yes; I got 25*s.*
60,839. When?—After the election.
60,840. Who paid it you?—Well, I got 15*s.* for Mr. Brown in Bowl Alley Lane at Stephenson's; and I got 10*s.* for Mr. Baines.
60,841. Where was that paid you?—I do not remember.
60,842. Do you not know what part of the town it was in?—Well, I am sure I cannot say exactly.
60,843. Who gave it you?—I am not able to say; but I got it, I know
60,844. In 1852, did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes.
60,845. At the last election?—Yes.
60,846. And you got some money?—Yes, I did.
60,847. Did you give some to your friend?—Yes; I gave him, I think, 7*s.* and 12*s.* 6*d.*, or 10*s.*; I do not know which.
60,848. How much did you get yourself?—7*s.*, 12*s.* 6*d.*, and 10*s.*
60,849. Where were you paid?—It was at the committee room next Mr. Bannister's office.
60,850. At Legitt's?—Yes.
60,851. Were they paid you before the election, some of those sums?—He paid me 7*s.* and 12*s.* 6*d.* before the election, and 10*s.* after.
60,852. When did he pay you for the other man?—That was the Saturday night before the election.

JAMES HALLETT sworn, and examined.

James Hallett.

60,853. Where do you live?—Caroline Place.
60,854. What is your business?—A shipbuilder.
60,855. What rent do you pay?—£16.
60,856. You are not a freeman, I believe?—Yes, I am.
60,857. When were you made a freeman?—It would be in 1837, I think; but I am not certain of the year.
60,858. I suppose you took it up yourself?—No, I did not.
60,859. Which party took it up for you?—The blue party took it up?
60,860. In 1837?—Yes; there was a committee for that purpose, and I, among the rest, got mine without anything being paid for my burgess oath.
60,861. Did you vote for the blue party in 1841; Hanmer and James?—I believe I did; I am not quite certain of that; it would be Hanmer and James.
60,862. Is your name Mr. Hallett of High Street?—It would be then.
60,863. You voted blue, I see?—Perhaps so.
60,864. Did you receive anything at that election?—No.
60,865. From Hanmer and James?—No.
60,866. Were you paid nothing on account of any of the candidates?—No.
60,867. You allowed those people to take up your freedom, I understand.—Yes.
60,868. And did you not vote for them in consequence?—No; not in consequence of that.
60,869. Why did they take it up?—It is very likely I should have taken it up myself, if they had not, and voted as I did vote.
60,870. Do you mean that you did not know they took it up for you?—I did not say any such thing.
60,871. Do you know why they took it up?—No; I do not know.
60,872. What reason do you suppose had they to take up your freedom?—I do not know what was his reason.
60,873. It was to secure your vote?—In all probability that was the view.
60,874. You understood that that was the object of taking up your freedom; it was to add another vote to their party?—There was no negociation of the kind.
60,875. But you understood at the time both parties were taking up freedoms, to increase their voters?—No doubt it was the object; but I say there was no negociation of the kind.
60,876. And they paid for you?—Certainly.
60,877. With that understanding?—No; not with that understanding.

James Hallett.

26th July 1853.

60,878. You understood it so?—I understood that was the view that all parties had.

60,879. You knew they would not have paid for you if you had told them that you would vote against them.—Probably they would not.

60,880. Did you vote at the election of 1837; that was Hutt, James, Wood. and Wilberforce—I do not know whether I did or not; I do not know whether I was at home then.

60,881 That was the year that your freedom was taken up. Did you vote at that election at which your freedom was taken up? Do not you think that it was 1839? Your name appears upon the list which I have in my hand of the freedoms taken up by the blue party in 1837; do you not think that was the year?—There is no doubt that is correct.

60,882. In 1847 did you vote?—Yes; I believe I voted for Baines and Brown.

60,883. Did you receive anything at that election?—Well, I should not like to say. I once received a sovereign, but whether it was then, or whether it was at the previous election, I am not quite certain. I once received a sovereign, I know.

60,884. I have been asking you about 1841?—I begin to think whether it would be that year, or the election following. I once received a sovereign.

60,885. At Brown's election the money passed about pretty freely?—I do not know when it was.

60,886. Where were you paid?—In High Street.

60,887. Who by?—A man of the name of Peterson; it was paid to me there, and paid by him, but at which of the elections I could not say.

60,888. In 1852 did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes.

60,889. Did you take any part in that election?—Yes, I took a little interest in it.

60,890. Tell us what you did?—Well, I went canvassing.

60,891. Tell us shortly what you did?—I do not care how short it is.

60,892. Did you set down names?—No.

60,893. Did you send people to get their names set down?—No.

60,894. When you went canvassing, on whose account did you canvass?—I canvassed on account of the blues.

60,895. Did you belong to any committee?—I belonged to the Holderness ward committee.

60,896. Did you make a list of those that promised you?—Yes; I carried a book for that purpose.

60,897. Have you got that book?—No; I have never seen it since the day of the election.

60,898. Did you not send any people to get their names set down at the committee room?—No.

60,899. You put them down yourself?—In what sense do you mean?

60,900. Putting them down as runners, so as to get money?—No; I never put any one down.

60,901. Some of them asked you?—It is very probable.

60,902. And what did you do?—I sent them to the chairman.

60,903. I asked you if you sent any to the chairman?—I did not understand you in that sense.

60,904. Did you not send them, in order that their names might be set down?—I did not send any distinctly. There might be an individual or two ask me such a question; and if they did I would refer them to the committee.

60,905. What did you say; "Go to the committee"?—"Go to the chairman."

60,906. Which chairman was that?—Mr. West.

60,907. Did you take any rooms?—No.

60,908. Do you remember seeing a man in Lowgate that you gave some money to?—No.

60,909. Are you quite sure you did not pay a man some money?—I am quite certain of it.

60,910. Pay him with your own hand?—No.

60,911. Did you not say to him "Come with us, and we will stand staunch"?—No, I did not.

60,912. Do you remember that?—Nothing of the kind.

60,913. Can you tell us anything more?—No. If I knew anything, I would.

60,914. You have not been paid this time?—No, I think not.

60,915. I thought you would have known it. If you had got a pound before, perhaps you might have got something this time?—No, I did not.

Thomas Harvey.

THOMAS HARVEY sworn, and examined.

60,916. Where do you live?—I live at the Royal Hotel.

60,917. Did you keep the Boy and Barrel?—I did.

60,918. What is your situation now?—I am servant to Mr. Quilter at the Royal Hotel.

60,919. Do you pay any rent yourself for a house?—Yes; I pay six guineas.

Thomas Harvey.

26th July 1853.

60,920. Are you a freeman?—I was only free for the house I kept in Dagger Lane.

60,921. You are not a voter now?—I was a voter at that time, paying the rent that I paid.

60,922. At which election was that?—Moore and Butler's election.

60,924. Is that the only election at which you ever voted?—No.

60,925. At what election did you vote?—I voted at the last election. That was the first time I had a chance of voting.

60,926. You just now told us the other thing; the last election was the first time you voted?—Yes.

60,927. That was for Moore and Butler?—Yes.

60,928. Did you at that time keep the Boy and Barrel?—Yes.

60,929. In Dagger Lane.—Yes.

60,930. You received some money for the use of a room there?—I did.

60,931. How much did you get?—£2.

60,932. Did Mr. Davis give it you?—He did.

60,933. Did he pay you that money?—He did.

60,934. What was done at that room?—Well, there were three runners there.

60,935. Was there any committee?—Yes; there was writing going on. I do not know what was done; I had my business to attend to down below.

60,936. There were runners there, but nothing for them to do?—I do not know that.

60,937. Was there a list of any committee given to you?—They were sent out with messages to the committee room at the Shakespeare.

66,938. Did you ever see anybody there besides the three messengers?—Yes; there was one party that came as a book-keeper, or something of that sort. Of course I had my business to attend to down below.

60,939. When you had this room taken, had you any list of gentlemen of the committee given to you who would occupy the room?—No, I had not. I would not tell any story about it. The room was engaged by Mr. Davis, and he told me he would give me 2*l.* for it as a committee room.

60,940. Besides that 2*l.* for the committee room, did you get some money for voting?—Not a farthing.

60,941. Mr. Davis says that he paid you some?—That is all I got, upon my oath.

60,942. You were doorkeeper and runner yourself?—No; nothing of the sort. I had my business to attend to down below.

60,943. Were you paid as a runner?—No. I only got that 2*l.*; that is all I got.

60,944. Are you sure of that?—I am quite certain.

60,945. Were you paid for the room after you voted?—I should think it would be a week after.

60,946. Were you a clerk in that committee room?—No.

60,947. And are you quite sure that you were paid nothing for being the clerk?—Nothing more than the 2*l.*

James Harrison.

JAMES HARRISON sworn, and examined.

60,948. Where do you live?—In High Street.

60,949. What is your business?—A licensed victualler and broker.

60,950. What rent do you pay?—20*l.*; rather under.

60,951. Are you a freeman?—No; I am only a voter by being a householder.

60,952. Which election did you vote at first?—In 1847.

60,953. Were you qualified to vote at the election in 1841?—No. I have been there about nine years last January.

60,954. Who did you vote for in 1847?—Clay and Brown, I believe.

60,955. Did you get anything for your vote?—No, not a farthing.

60,956. Not from Mr. Brown?—Not from Mr. Brown, nor Mr. Clay neither.

60,957. In 1852, who did you vote for?—I voted for Moore and Butler.

60,958. Had you promised to vote for Clay and Goderich?—No. I had no one to ask me but Mr. Malcolm, and I never gave him a promise.

60,959. That is the man I mean; you promised him?—I never saw any one but Mr. Malcolm, and I only saw him once.

60,960. What did you tell him?—I told him I would not promise him or any one else.

50,961. Did he ask you to put your name down as a runner?—Yes. I told him that he need not, as I was not confident which side I should vote for.

60,962. Then the blues took your committee room?—There were two men came, and asked me if I had a room to let which they could make a committee room of. I told them I had a room which was quite at liberty. They said, "Would I let it to them?" I said, "Yes." They said, "What do you want a day?" I said, "What they paid other people." They then said a sovereign a day, and I told them they should have mine at that, and they engaged it for two days.

James Harrison.

26th July 1853.

60,963. What days were those?—I do not remember the days; I take so little interest in electioneering.

60,964. Was your room used at all?—I do not believe it was.

60,965. Did you tell them that you would vote for the blues?—No; I never told any one till I went to the poll.

60,966. Did they ask you?—No; they never asked me the question; and I did not know the parties that engaged it.

60,967. Was your room used at all?—Not to my knowledge.

68,968. There was no list of any committee who were to attend at your house given to you?—No.

60,969. You had been canvassed by the blues before they took your room, and you refused to promise?—Yes; I refused to promise any one till the day of polling.

60,970. Where were you paid?—At my own house.

60,971. Who brought it to you?—A gentleman brought it.

60,972. Was it Mr. Steeple?—I do not not know the name.

60,973. It was some little time after the election?—Yes.

Edward Hart.

EDWARD HART sworn, and examined.

60,974. Where do you live?—No, 2, Leadenhall Square.

60,975. What is your business?—A shoemaker.

60,976. What rent do you pay?—A shilling a week.

60,977. Are you a lodger?—No; I have a room to myself.

60,978. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

60,980. At whose expense?—Mr. Graham's.

60,981. At the 1841 election, did you vote?—Yes; for James and Hanmer.

60,982. Did you get some money for your vote?—Yes; I got a sovereign after the election.

60,983. Who paid it you?—I was paid in High Street; I do not know the name.

60,984. At a public house?—No; at a private house.

60,985. At a room?—Yes.

60,988. Through a hole?—No; I got it out of a window.

60,987. Did you see the person?—No.

60,988. Now, in 1847, who did you vote for?—I polled for Baines and Brown.

60,989. How much did you get at that time?—10s.

60,990. Who for?—For Mr. Brown.

60,991. Who paid it you?—It was paid in Bishop Lane.

60,992. After the election?—Yes.

60,993. Now, in 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

60,994. Did the others canvass you?—Yes.

60,995. Did you tell them you should vote for those who paid best?—No; I did not promise any one at that election.

60,996. Did you not say that you would vote for those who paid you best?—No, I did not.

60,997. How much money did you get?—Nothing.

60,998. Nothing at all?—No; not at that election.

60,999. Are you sure that you got nothing?—I am sure not.

61,000. Did either of them offer you anything?—No; I never got anything. I was was not set down by any one.

61,001. You would not be set down?—No.

61,002. Did each party wish to set you down?—I would not be set down.

61,003. Why not?—I went of my own will to the poll.

61,004. But you got some money before?—No; I got nothing before.

61,005. In 1841 and 1847 you got paid?—Yes, I did; a sovereign.

61,006. You said that you would not have anything in 1852?—I got nothing.

61,007. What did they pay you before the Reform Act?—Four guineas and two guineas.

Robert Howard.

ROBERT HOWARD sworn, and examined.

61,008. Where do you live?—Prospect Place, Prospect Street.

61,009. What is your business?—A ship chandler.

61,011. Are you a freeman?—And a freeman likewise.

61,012. When were you made a freeman?—In 1812.

61,013. At whose expense?—At my own expense.

61,014. Did you use to get the four guineas and the two guineas?—It has been got.

61,015. A great many did get it?—I do not know that I got it.

61,016. Did you vote in 1841 for Clay and Thompson, or Hanmer and James?—Hanmer and James I polled for.

61,017. Did you get some money for your vote then?—I got a sovereign.

Robert Howard.

26th July 1853.

61,018. Who for?—Hanmer and James.
61,019. Who paid you?—Mr. Hammond.
61,020. Where were you paid?—I think in the public street.
61,021. After the election?—After the election.
61,022. Now, in 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.
61,023. How much did you get at that time?—15*s.*
61,024. Who for?—For Mr. Brown.
61,025. Where were you paid?—In the Market Place.
61,026. After the election?—After the election I got it.
61,027. At the last election, 1852, did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes.
61,028. How much did you get at that time?—A sovereign.
61,029. Where was it paid you?—Mr. Walker paid it me.
61,030. Mr. Whytal Walker?—Mr. Walker the druggist.
61,031. Where did he pay you?—He paid me by the Victoria Dock; I do not know what they call the place.
61,032. How long after the election?—About three weeks or better after; probably a month after; I cannot say.

Robert Headley.

ROBERT HEADLEY sworn, and examined.

61,033. What is your business?—A shipwright.
61,034. Where do you live?—Blackfriargate.
61,035. What rent do you pay?—No rent at all; I am a lodger.
61,036. You lodge with somebody, I suppose?—Yes.
61,037. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
61,038. When were you made a freeman?—In 1818.
61,039. Who paid for that?—Mr. Stamfirth; the same as for all the rest.
61,040. The blue party?—Yes.
61,041. Now, in 1841, who did you vote for?—Sir Walter James and Hanmer.
61,042. How much did you get for your vote at that time?—£4.
61,043. Where were you paid?—Mr. Yeall paid me.
61,044. All at once?—Yes.
61,045. When?—The election day.
61,046. After you had voted?—Yes.
61,047. Where did he pay you?—In the committee room in Wincolmlee.
61,048. In 1847, who did you vote for?—For Mr. Brown.
61,049. How much did you get then?—10*s.*
61,050. When were you paid?—Mr. Mitchell paid me after the election.
61,051. At what house?—At Mr. Stamp's house, where they paid, in the Market Place.
61,052. In 1852, did you vote for Moore and Butler?—For Bramley Moore.
61,053. And Butler?—No.
61,054. I believe you got some money at the Shakespeare?—Yes.
61,055. How much did you get there?—27*s.* 6*d.*, I believe.
61,056. What was that for?—For running messages; whatever they call it; the same as the rest.
61,057. Did they pay you for a week?—Part of two weeks.
61,058. Did John Atkin pay you?—Yes; part.
61,059. John Atkin of Mytongate?—Yes.
61,060, How much did he pay you?—17*s.* 6*d.*
61,061. On the day of polling?—No; after polling.
61,062. Not upon the same day?—Upon the Saturday night after.
61,063. Who paid you the 10*s.*?—Mr. Davis.
61,064. I am told that you got something on the polling day?—No; I got no money, only what I got after the polling was over on the Saturday.

Andrew Hare.

ANDREW HALL sworn, and examined.

61,065. Where do you live?—In Witham, by the North Bridge.
61,066. You are a licensed victualler?—I keep a public house.
61,067. What rent do you pay?—£30. a year.
61,068. Are you a freeman?—No.
61,069. You never were a freeman?—No.
61,070. How long have you been entitled to vote?—I am sure I cannot tell you.
61,071. Did you vote at the election of 1841; Clay, Thompson, Hanmer, and James?—I voted for Hanmer and James.
61,072. Did you get anything at that election?—No; I never received a farthing in my life from none of them.
61,073. Was any room occupied of yours at that election?—Yes.
61,074. You let a room at that election?—Yes, I believe I did.

Andrew Hare.

26th July 1853.

61,075. Who had your room at that election?—Hanmer and James.

61,076. Where was that?—It was at my house.

61,077. Where did you live then?—Where I do now; at the North Bridge.

61,078. At the same place as you are living at now?—Yes.

61,079. What is the sign of your house?—The Holderness Inn. There is no sign particular.

61,080. How much money did you get for that room at that election?—I am sure I cannot tell.

61,081. £20?—I do not know what I got; I have never found that yet.

61,082. £10? Tell us something?—I cannot tell because, I do not know.

61,083. I do not ask for the exact sum?—I do not know it.

61,084. What was the room used for? Was it used at all?—Yes; for a week, I should think.

61,085. What for was it used?—The men were writing upon the table. I do not know what they call themselves; clerks I suppose.

61,086. Did they pay the voters any money there?—I got paid for the room no doubt.

61,087. How much did you get?—I do not know how much.

61,088. Did they pay other people there?—I never saw a penny paid in my house in my life to any voter or to anybody else. There has been some paid, no doubt, but I have never seen it.

61,089. Who was the head man at your house at that time?—I am sure I cannot tell. I do not know anything about them. I never bothered my head with it.

61,090. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I voted for Mr. Baines.

61,091. And Brown too?—No.

61,092. They have put you down for him?—I did not vote for him.

61,093. Did you let a room at that time?—Yes; I believe they had a room.

61,094 How much did you get that time?—I got 2*l.* I know for the room at that time.

61,095. Who paid you that?—Mr. Baines.

61,096. Did he pay you himself?—I do not know; I got it from him.

61,097. I want to know a little more. You must tell me all that you know. Do you mean to say that Mr. Baines paid you the money?—I got it from Mr. Baines somehow; I do not know how it came.

61,098. Did the person who paid you tell you that it was his money?—Yes.

61,099. When was it paid you?—Ah! I can tell you now who paid it me; it was Mr. Jubb of Drypool; that was the very man.

61,100. How long was that after the election?—The next day, I believe.

61,101. Was the room used at that time at all?—Yes, it was.

61,102. What did they do there?—I do not know. What they took it for, I suppose. I cannot tell what they did. I never came into the room much. There were papers and books upon the table; but I do not know what they were doing.

61,103. How long before the election? It was quick work then?—I dare say three or four days altogether.

61,104. At the next election, in 1852, the last one, did you vote for Moore and Butler?—I did.

91,105. And your room was used again, I believe?—Yes; it was used for about nine days.

61,106. How much were you paid?—I was paid 6*l.* for it.

61,107. Who paid you that?—George Steeple.

61,108. Was that a few days after the election?—Yes, a very few.

61,109. Did he come to your house?—He did.

61,110. Besides that had you a bill for refreshments?—I believe there was. There were no refreshments but for the clerks, as they called them, that were there writing; they got some bread and cheese and a few bottles of porter.

61,111. How much did it come to?—I do not know.

61,112. Did George Steeple pay it?—Yes, he did.

61,113. And you do not remember what it was?—No, I do not.

61,114. Did he pay it at the same time as the room?—He paid it at the same time. I know the price of the room they had agreed for was 4*l.* for four days, and I think they occupied it nine days. I said that they were making bad work of it; all sorts came into the room; and I said I was badly paid, and they gave me the two sovereigns more.

61,115. Did you pay any people yourself?—No; I never paid a penny, and I never got a penny at an election in my life.

61,116. Do you know a man of the name of Peacock?—Ben? Yes; very well. He is an old hand, Ben.

61,117. You know Ben well?—Yes.

61,118. Did you never pay him any money?—No, never a farthing. I would not come and tell you or anybody else a story.

61,119. Is that the man they call Blue Peacock?—Yes, I believe he is.

61,120. Did you ever see him pay any money?—No.

61,121. You never paid any yourself?—No, not a penny.

Andrew Hare.

26th July 1853.

61,122. Who came to your room this last time when you got the 6*l.* ?—Many scores of people; I cannot tell who.

61,123. Who was the active man ?—I am sure I forget now who it was; I think it was Stephen West; that is the man.

61,124. Is not yours the Holderness ward ?—Yes, it is.

61,125. Was Mr. West there himself ?—He was once; I never saw him there but once.

William Hunt.

WILLIAM HUNT sworn, and examined.

61,126. Where do you live ?—Drypool.

61,127. What is your business ?—A mariner.

61,128. What rent do you pay ?—£28.

61,129. You are also a freeman ?—No.

61,130. When were you first entitled to vote; at which election, do you remember ?—It would be 1847.

61,131. That was Clay, Brown and Baines ?—Yes.

61,132. And who did you vote for ?—Clay and Brown.

61,133. What is the sign of your house ?—The Victoria Tavern.

61,134. Did you receive any money at that election, in 1847, for your vote ?—No.

61,135. Did you receive any money at all ?—Yes.

61,136. How much did you receive ?—Well, it was something about 2*l.* for a committee room.

61,137. For Clay or Brown; which was it ?—For Brown.

61,138. Was there any committee appointed to meet there, do you know ?—I do not think there was anybody but the party who engaged the room.

61,139. How long before the polling day was it engaged ?—Most of a week.

61,140. And whoever attended there was there only three days ?—It might be two or three days. Mr. Brodrick attended for one.

61,141. Was he there more than once, or every day ?—I only saw him there once.

61,142. What did he come to do; to take the room ?—Yes.

61,143. And that was the only time you saw him there ?—Yes.

61,144. Who paid you for the room ?—I think it was sent to the house. I sent in a bill after the election, and it was sent to the house.

61,145. How long after the election ?—It would be three months after, I should think, as near as I could tell.

61,146. Were people paid at your house after that election ?—I do not recollect any.

61,147. I do not ask if you paid any yourself, but whether they were paid there ?—I do not recollect any being paid there; there might be.

61,148. In 1852, did you vote for Moore and Butler ?—Yes.

61,149. Was there any committee ever met at your house in 1847 ?—They only used it at the time they came to take it.

61,150. That which you first said was six days. You had better tell us the truth; it is much the best way. Mr. Brown was only invited three days before the election. In 1852, did you vote for Moore and Butler ?—Yes; it might have been that it was a week before, and still he was not invited for three days.

61,151. That is not at all likely. In 1852, did they have your room then ?—Yes.

61,152. How much did you get then ?—£2 6*s.*

61,153. Who took it ?—Mr. Walker and Mr. Todd.

61,154. It was taken by the blues ?—Yes.

61,155. And did they pay you ?—No. I cannot tell exactly who is the party, unless it was Steeple.

61,156. Was the room used as much in 1852 as it was in 1847 ?—No.

61,157. You voted for Moore and Butler, however ?—Yes.

61,158. Was the room used at all ?—I do not think it was used at all.

Benjamin Ingram.

BENJAMIN INGRAM sworn, and examined.

61,159. Where do you live ?—Drypool.

61,160. What is your business ?—A smith.

61,161. What rent do you pay ?—£10 for my house, and 8*l.* for the shop.

61,162. Are you a freeman ?—No.

61,163. When were you first entitled to vote as a housekeeper ?—About three years ago.

61,164. Then you first voted in 1852, at the last election ?—Yes.

61,165. And for Moore and Butler ?—No; Moore and Goderich.

61,166. Did you get any money from either party ?—No.

61,167. Did you get any from both ?—No; I never received a farthing from any person.

61,168. I am told that you received money from the blues; is that a mistake ?—Yes, it is a mistake; I never received a farthing from any of them.

Benjamin Ingram.

26th July 1853.

61,169. Nor from anybody after the election?—No.
61,170. Did you receive any payment for your vote?—No.
61,171. Or any promise of any kind?—Not one.
61,172. Was a room taken at your place?—No.

John Lee Moses.

JOHN LEE MOSES sworn, and examined.

61,173. Where do you live?—No. 9, Thomas Street.
61,174. What is your business?—A shipwright.
61,175. What rent do you pay?—£12.
61,176. Are you also a freeman?—Yes.
61,177. When were you made a freeman?—In 1841.
61,178. 1839, perhaps, you mean?—No; January 1841.
61,179. At whose expense?—My own.
61,180. Did you vote at that election?—No; I was at sea.
61,181. In 1847, who did you vote for then?—For Baines and Brown.
61,182. Did you get some money for that vote?—Yes.
61,183. How much?—10*s.*
61,184. From which of the gentlemen?—Mr. Brown.
61,185. Where were you paid?—In Prospect Street, at Wright's, the Blue Bell.
61,186. After the election?—No; before.
61,187. In 1852, did you vote for Moore and Butler?—No; Goderich and Bramley Moore.
61,188. Did you get any money then?—No.
61,189. Were you canvassed by the parties before you voted?—Yes.
61,190. Did you say that you would not vote unless you were paid?—No.
61,191. You did not tell anybody so?—No.
61,192. And you got nothing?—I got nothing.
61,193. Did you not let a room?—No.
61,194. Was your name put down anywhere?—I believe it was.
61,195. As a runner?—Yes.
61,196. Where was that?—At Andrew Hares, by Todd.
61,197. That was for the blues?—Yes.
61,198. Did you not go and ask for some money after the election?—No.
61,199. Why not?—Because I never acted as a runner.
61,200. Did they ask you to let them put your name down?—Yes, I believe Todd did.
61,201. Was not the reason that you did not go to get the money because you had split your vote?—I never went nigh Andrew Hares'.
61,202. Was not that the reason, in consequence of your splitting your vote; is not that the reason you did not go?—Yes, I dare say that was the reason.
61,203. What made you split your vote?—Because I kept a small grocer's shop, and I had my customers to suit.

Benjamin Ingram.

BENJAMIN INGRAM recalled, and examined.

61,204. You split your vote?—Yes.
61,205. Was that the reason you did not go and ask for anything?—No, I never intended to ask. I never promised either party; they wanted me.
61,206. Was your name set down?—Not to my knowledge. I would not promise either party, either the orange or the blues.

Leonard Martin.

LEONARD MARTIN sworn, and examined.

61,207. Where do you live?—No. 2, Carr Lane.
61,208. What is your business?—Plumber and glazier.
61,209. What rent do you pay?—£19.
61,210. Are you also a freeman?—Yes.
61,211. When were you made a freeman?—In 1848, I think.
61,212. At whose expense?—My own.
61,213. Were you on the list as a householder before that?—I think not.
61,214. Is the last the only election at which you voted?—That is all.
61,215. Did you promise Clay to vote for him?—No.
61,216. Did he canvass you?—Not himself; he did not.
61,217. His friends came to you?—Yes.
61,218. Was Mr. Empson one of the parties?—He never came to my house. I was at Southend when Clay and Goderich came over, and I went over to meet them.
61,219. If you went to meet them, it looks as if you intended to vote for them?—No; I was among the people who wanted to see what they were like.
61,220. You voted blue?—I did.

Leonard Martin.

26th July 1853.

61,221. Had you never promised the orange party?—Never.

61,222. You voted for Moore and Butler?—I did.

61,223. Were you employed as a clerk or a messenger?—I was employed as a check clerk on the day of the election.

61,224. How much were you paid?—They gave me half a guinea for it. I did not know what I was to receive when I went.

61,225. Where was that?—At a beershop at the corner of Castle Street.

61,226. Was that on the polling day?—Yes. There were about two dozen of us copying the whole day.

61,227. What became of what you copied; what was done with them?—They were delivered to Mr. Saxelby and the lawyer; he was one party.

61,228. What were you doing?—I was there from 8 to 3 o'clock copying as fast as I could.

61,229. How did you get an opportunity to go and vote?—I voted before I went there; I voted at eight o'clock in the morning.

61,230. Before you went to that place?—Yes.

61,231. Before you were engaged at this work, had you been set down the day before?—I have a brother in Mr. Ash's employ, and they said they should be stuck fast for the want of some one to help them, and I said I had no objection.

61,232. We understand the people engaged in this grand scheme were taken out of those lists set down before?—No.

61,233. Was not your name set down for employment?—Not that I am aware of.

61,234. Did you ask to have it set down?—No, never.

61,235. Were you at the Cross Keys with Lord Goderich and Mr. Clay?—Yes; the day they arrived.

61,236. How did you get in?—I was carried in with the crowd.

61,237. Against your will?—I went to hear them speak. If I had been against them I could not have helped it.

61,238. You did hear them speak?—I did.

61,239. And after they had spoken did you promise them?—I did not.

61,240. Did you not promise them in that room?—Lord Goderich asked me, I believe, and I told him I would not promise him.

61,241. Not after you had heard his speech?—No; and there were some refreshments, too; there was a regular refreshment set out in the room.

61,242. Then did you hear Mr. Clay speak?—I did.

61,243. What did you do then?—I went to all the meetings that I could get to, to get upon the right side if I could.

61,244. Then you went to hear the others speak?—Yes; I went to every meeting that I could get to.

William Mortimer.

WILLIAM MORTIMER sworn, and examined.

61,245. Where do you live?—Portland Street.

61,246. What is your business?—I am a licensed shoe hawker.

61,247. What rent do you pay?—I pay no rent.

61,248. Do you lodge with some one?—No; I live in a house of my own.

61,249. What is your rate?—My rate is 11*l.*

61,250. Are you also a freeman?—No.

61,251. When were you first entitled to vote at an election?—At Baines' and Brown's.

61,252. That was in 1847?—Yes.

61,253. Who did you vote for?—For Baines and Brown.

61,254. Did you get some money for that vote?—I got 5*s.* as a runner.

61,255. After you had voted?—Just at the time.

61,256. Not while you were voting?—No. I do not know whether it was after the vote or not; I think it was.

61,257. Who paid you?—I was paid at the committee room in Prospect Street.

61,258. Is that all the money you got at that election?—Yes, it is.

61,259. In 1852 did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes, I did.

61,260. And I believe you were paid some money at Stephenson's committee room?—No.

61,261. What were you paid for that?—I told the gentleman that the orange party had come and asked me formy vote. I told them I did not wish to promise any one, as I was a travelling man, and I might be from Hull some miles. However, the orange men pressed me very much, and said they would pay my expenses. The orange party was not my party. Then the blue party came. They asked me, and I told them I would give them my vote; and as I was at the trouble of coming home from a few miles off, and took the train and the packet home, I think it was about three or four weeks afterwards that I got a sovereign for my expenses.

61,262. What were your expenses of travelling?—I came down by the railroad. I cannot say. I broke into two or three days through it, and I neglected my business.

William Mortimer.

26th July 1853.

61,263. It did not cost you as much as 20*s.*?—There were two or three days that I broke into; there was my loss of time.

61,264. How much did it cost you?—I cannot say; I know that I did not get much by it.

61,265. What is the fare?—I am sure I cannot tell you.

61,266. Where did you come from?—I came about twenty miles on the other side of the water; somewhere in Lincolnshire.

61,267. How did they know where to find you?—I got to know when the election day was. I promised them to come home, and I came according to my promise.

61,268. You kept your word?—Yes, I did.

61,269. And it cost you about 5*s.*, I suppose?—

61,270. Where were you paid?—I was paid at Steeple's, about three weeks after the election. I did not ask them. They said I was to leave the expenses to them; that I was not to say anything about it.

61,271. All this time you had got your house in Hull?—Yes; but I am always away every week, on my business.

Thomas Maw.

THOMAS MAW sworn, and examined.

61,272. Where do you live?—No. 6, west end of Dock Street; at the Old Dock end.

61,273. And what is your business?—Discharging and loading ships.

61,274. What is it called?—Vulgarly speaking, it is a lumper.

61,275. What rent do you pay?—£20.

61,276. Are you also a freeman?—No.

61,277. When were you first entitled to vote as a householder? at what election?—I cannot tell to a year or two,—eighteen or nineteen years ago.

61,278. Used you to get paid in the good old days?—No; I never did.

61,279. In 1841 you voted?—Yes, I did; that would be the first time.

61,280. You voted for Hanmer and James?—Yes.

61,281. Did you not keep a beerhouse then?—I did.

61,282. Was that house taken, or a room in it, for a committee?—It was.

61,283. How much did you get paid for it?—£2 or two guineas; it is a long time since, and I have forgotten it.

61,284. Had you also a bill for refreshments for the voters?—Yes.

61,285. How much was that?—That I cannot say, I am sure.

61,286. Who paid it you?—That I cannot tell you, I am sure. The 2*l.* I got, some how or other, through the architect, Mr. Lockwood.

61,287. Did he not pay you the other bill?—What I did get paid I got paid in the street adjoining.

61,288. What use did they make of your room; was there any committee there?—There was too much use made of it. When I saw that they had had plenty, I turned them out.

61,289. It was to let them in there to drink?—To drink; not much to eat; I would not let them.

61,290. There was a room kept for them?—There were two opposite parties met; and I would not let them meet at my house. I told them they had better go somewhere else. They were men from the orange party, and I was a blue, and I would not let them have any drink.

61,291. Both parties drank in your room?—Yes. My men were there ready to get paid. I used to pay them every night.

61,292. You voted for the blues, and you paid the men?—Yes; they were my men waiting to be paid.

61,293. What men?—My men that were working for me; I had the money ready for them.

61,294. The men working for you at the election?—No; on board ship, by the sweat of their brow.

61,295. Now, in 1847, who did you vote for?—I voted for Brown.

61,296. Did you get anything for that at that election?—No; I gave him a bullet. There was nobody to fight for him, and I gave him all that I had. That was about three o'clock in the afternoon.

61,297. Did he not give you something?—No, not a farthing.

61,298. Did they not have your room?—No. You cannot get any more out of me; you cannot indeed; you may sift me as you like.

61,299. Now, in 1852, who did you vote for?—Bramley Moore and Butler, but I got nothing there.

61,300. Did you not get 2*l.*?—No, I did not; I wished I could. If anybody had offered it to me I would not have denied it.

61,301. Were you not paid by the blue party for a room?—Yes.

61,302. Was not that so at the last election?—Yes; at the last election.

61,303. They had not any room at the last?—No; I am sorry to say that I could not keep one.

GEORGE NORMAN sworn, and examined.

George Norman.

26th July 1853.

61,304. Where do you live?—No. 2, Cross Street.
61,305. What is your business?—I keep a shoe shop.
61,306. What rent do you pay?—I do not pay any rent; the shop is our own.
61,307. What are you rated at?—I do not know exactly.
61,308. You pay the poor rates?—Yes; we pay all rates.
61,309. What does the poor rates come to?—Well, I never took any notice.
61,310. What do you think the house is worth?—Somewhere about 6*l.* or 8*l.*; I do not know which it is.
61,311. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
61,312. When were you made a freeman?—In 1841.
61,313. In 1839, was it not?—I believe it was in 1841.
61,314. At whose expense?—The blue party.
61,315. Was it not in 1839?—No; 1841.
61,316. Did you vote in 1841?—No; it was a day after.
61,317. Who did you vote for at the next election, in 1847?—Mr. Brown.
61,318. Did you get some money for that?—I was put down as a runner, and I got a sovereign.
61,319. Did Mr. Baines pay you?—No; I did not vote for Mr. Baines; for Brown only.
61,320. Who was it paid you for Brown?—Mr. Bannister.
61,321. Where did he pay you?—In Prospect Street, at the Blue Bell.
61,322. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Bramley Moore and Butler.
61,323. How much were you paid then?—For being a messenger?
61,324. Yes; but how much were you paid?—A sovereign.
61,325. Where were you a messenger?—At the committee room in Prospect Street.
61,326. Who was it paid by; George Steeple?—Yes; about a fortnight or three weeks after the election.
61,327. And that was at the committee room in Prospect Street?—Yes.
61,328. Was your name put down there?—Yes.
61,329. You meant to vote for them?—Yes; I did a good deal more work than I got paid for.
61,330. How much money did you get?—A sovereign.
61,331. Were you not paid on the Saturday before the election?—No; not a half-penny.
61,332. How came that?—I do not know.
61,333. Were you working for them then?—Yes; I was working for them then.
61,334. When were you working for them?—From the first commencement.
61,335. How were you working for them? Where did you have your name set down?—At the committee room, Steeple's, at the Blue Bell; at Mr. Stephen's; that was the committee room.
61,336. Do you think it would have been paid if you had voted for Clay and Goderich?—No, I never tried; I did not want to vote for them.
61,337. The gentleman has got your name down in this book here, to be paid for your vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes; I was to be paid.
61,338. Would you have been paid if you had voted for Clay and Goderich?—I expect so.
61,339. Did you ever hear of their paying anybody who had voted for Clay and Goderich?—I did not.
61,340. Can you tell us the name of any one?—I do not know one.
61,341. Can you tell us anybody who was so paid?—It was not for my vote; it was for my time.
61,342. I ask you, upon your oath, do you think you would have been paid for your time if you had voted for Clay and Goderich?—They ought to have done so.
61,343. I ask you if you believe that they would?—Well, I should think so.
61,344. If you think so, tell me anybody else that they did pay?—I did not inquire.
61,345. Did you ever hear of such a thing?—I cannot say I did.
61,346. You believe you would have been paid after you had voted for Clay and Goderich?—Well, I do not know that.
61,347. You do know perfectly well. Do you believe that you would have got a farthing?—If they had not paid me it would not have been right. It was not paid for my vote, but for my time.
61,348. I ask you, upon your oath, do you believe that they would have paid you if you had voted for Clay and Goderich?—Perhaps they would not.
61,349. They say so themselves; I do not know what more you would have. Did you ask them to be set down?—Yes.

George Noble.

26th July 1853.

GEORGE NOBLE sworn, and examined.

61,350. Where do you live?—Osborne Street.

61,351. What is your business?—I am manager and clerk at the saw mills at present.

61,352. What rent do you pay?—I have no rent to pay. I have two rooms in my situation, and am waited upon.

61,353. Are you a freeman?—I am.

61,354. When were you made a freeman?—Better than forty years ago.

61,355. At your own cost?—At my own cost.

61,356. Do you remember the good days?—I do.

61,357. Did you get the four guineas, and the two?—No.

61,358. You only heard of those things?—I have only heard of those things.

61,359. In 1841, who did you vote for?—Clay and Thompson.

61,360. Did you receive anything then?—No.

61,361. Was your room engaged?—No; I have nothing of the sort to let.

61,362. In 1847, who did you vote for?—For Mr. Clay.

61,363. Did you receive anything, in any way, at that election?—No.

61,364. You voted for Mr. Clay only?—For Mr. Clay only.

61,365. In 1852 did you vote for Moore and Butler?—No.

61,366. Who for?—Clay and Goderich.

61,367. Then you are not likely to have had 20*s.* from George Steeple?—No; him and I are quite two opposite men.

61,368. It is some namesake of yours, I suppose?—I suppose so. We were both in the same trade once.

61,369. In what trade?—Plumbers.

61,370. There is another George Noble, I see?—He did not vote at the last election.

Ralph Oliver.

RALPH OLIVER sworn, and examined.

61,371. Where do you live?—Wilson Street, Drypool.

61,372. What is your business?—A tailor.

61,373. What rent do you pay?—£7.

61,374. And are you a freeman?—Yes.

61,375. When were you made a freeman?—In 1841.

61,376. By the blues?—Yes.

61,377. Did you vote at that election?—No.

61,378. Did you vote for the blues at the next election?—There were none.

61,379. Did you vote for Mr. Brown?—Mr. Brown and Mr. Baines.

61,380. Did you receive anything?—A sovereign.

61,381. Where were you paid?—The Noah's Ark.

61,382. Did you receive anything for Mr. Baines?—Fifteen shillings.

61,383. Who paid you that?—Mr. Jubb.

61,384. After the election?—After the election.

61,385. Where did Jubb make his payments?—At his own house.

61,386. To the runners?—Yes.

61,387. How long after the election was it?—It was on the Saturday after the election.

61,388. Who was in the room with Jubb; do you remember?—Mr. Monkman was one, the national schoolmaster at Drypool.

61,389. Did you go in one by one?—Yes.

61,390. Were you there late, or pretty early?—He sent for me about three o'clock in the afternoon. Some one had been applying for some money in my name. He did not know the party. That was the reason that I got my money that day.

61,391. Was it finished on that day?—No. He had not begun with any one; he was waiting till I got there.

61,392. How many do you think were waiting?—I should think not a dozen. They were not paid. It was not a proper paying day; it was only somebody had been applying for my money.

61,393. What was the other dozen there for?—I told them. I met them on the road there. That was the reason they went, and, I believe, they did get paid.

61,394. Was the general pay day after or before?—It would be after, then.

61,395. Where does he live now?—I believe he lives in Pennington Street, Sutton Bank.

61,396. On your way to the room, did you happen to meet as many as eleven or twelve persons?—Several lived close to me.

61,397. And you called on them?—Yes.

61,398. Do you remember their names, or some of them?—William Laing was one of them.

61,399. Are there any others that you remember?—Beedle. Those two are dead.

61,400. I would rather, if you can, that you would remember those who are alive?—I do not remember the other names. I know the men, but I do not know their names particularly.

Ralph Oliver.

26th July 1853.

61,401. At the last election, in 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
61,402. Were you a runner?—Yes.
61,403. When were you set down?—I was told I was set down on the Monday morning before the election. I never saw my name put down.
61,404. When you voted, did you understand it was done there?—Yes. Told told me before that my name was down.
61,405. Were you paid?—I was paid 17*s.*, for four days.
61,406. After the election?—Yes.
61,407. Who by?—Todd, the clerk of the committee.
61,408. In the Holderness ward?—In the Holderness ward.
61,409. Did you get something for making some flags?—My wife made some flags.
61,410. How many flags did your wife make?—I am sure I do not know.
61,411. Five or ten?—There would be that quantity.
61,412. Would there be fifty?—No.
61,413. Twenty?—No; there would not be twenty.
61,414. Then fifteen? I would rather you give me a number?—I cannot give you the number; they were made on different days.
61,415. How much did you get for them?—3*s.* each.
61,416. Were they made for the blue party?—Yes.
61,417. Who paid you that money?—Mr. Steeple.
61,418. When did he pay you that?—He took it to our house. I was out at the time.
61,419. It was your wife that had it?—Yes.
61,420. It was paid after the election, by Steeple, to your wife?—Yes, it was.

George Omer.

GEORGE OMER sworn, and examined.

61,421. Where do you live?—In Drypool.
61,422. What is your business?—A master cartman.
61,423. What rent do you pay?—£14 a year taxes for property that I have.
64,424. You are rated at that, you mean?—Yes.
61,425. Are you a freeman?—No.
61,426. At what election were you first entitled to vote?—At this last.
61,427. Who did you choose to vote for?—Bramley Moore and Butler.
61,428. Were you a runner?—Yes.
61,429. Were you set down?—Yes.
61,430. At Holderness?—Yes.
61,431. When were you set down at Holderness?—Most likely eight days before the election.
61,432. Did you go and apply to be set down?—Yes.
61,433. And how much did you get?—A sovereign.
61,434. When were you paid?—I was pad about three weeks after the election.
61,435. Who by?—Mr. Walker, the druggist.
61,436. At his place?—No; at Mrs. Jubb's.

Henry Pepper.

HENRY PEPPER sworn, and examined.

61,437. What is your business?—A licensed victualler.
61,438. Where do you carry it on?—In High Street.
61,439. What rent do you pay?—£19.
61,440. Are you a freeman?—No.
61,441. At which election were you entitled to vote first?—In 1847.
61,442. And who did you vote for then?—Mr. Brown.
61,443. Did you get some money for that vote?—10*s.*
61,644. When were you paid?—I got 5*s.* when I voted, and my wife had 5*s.* after, from Mitchell. I was away in the steamboat. I belong to the Lynn steamboat.
61,445. Is that all you got at that election?—Yes.
61,446. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Bramley Moore.
61,447. Alone?—Yes.
61,448. What did you get for that?—10*s.*
61,449. Who paid you?—Mr. Davies.
61,450. Was that after the election?—Yes.
61,451. You had promised some time before?—No.
61,452. Did you get your name set down?—Yes, I did; on the polling day.
61,453. You wanted 3*l.*?—Yes, I did, if I could have got hold of it. I dare say I could have managed with it.
61,454. You said you would not vote unless you got 3*l.*?—No; I do not know that I did.
61,455. You were set down very late; it looks as if you had been standing off?—I was not alone.

Henry Pepper.

26th July 1853.

61,456. How many were with you that wanted a little more?—I do not know; there were a good many.

61,457. What were they; seafaring men?—The chief part of them, and carpenters, I think.

61,458. About how many of you?—I do not know how many there were; I think about a score, where I was.

61,459. Where were you at?—At the Pilot Boy.

61,660. You were one of Nicholson's lot?—No; I had nothing to do with Nicholson.

61,461. Who tried to make the bargain for you?—Thistleton.

61,462. When Thistleton could not make much of it, did you all go and get your names put down together?—No. I went alone to the Shakespeare.

61,463. Do you know a man of the name of Barker or Barkworth? Did you tell him that you should not vote unless you got 3*l.*?—No.

61,464. How did the rest of you vote?—I do not know whether they voted or no. A good many did not vote.

61,465. Where used you to meet together to talk about it?—Thistleton sent me to the Pilot Boy, and when I got there I could not fall in with the party I wanted, and I went back to the Shakespeare.

61,466. What became of the other twenty?—I left them all at the Pilot Boy when I came away.

61,467. Was that on the polling day?—Yes, it was.

61,468. What time of the day was it?—It would be about one o'clock when I went.

61,469. Who was there?—Well, I do not know. They were all strangers to me.

61,470. How came you to be of their party?—Thistleton sent me where they were, and when I got there they were all waiting.

61,471. Waiting for what?—To see this Nicholson; that was their term.

61,472. Did he come while you were there?—No, I never saw him. I do not know this Nicholson.

61,473. Did you not know some of those parties?—No, I did not know any of them; they were all strangers to me.

61,474. Did any of them go up to the poll with you?—No, they did not.

61,475. Did you see any of them being paid?—No.

Thomas Page.

THOMAS PAGE sworn, and examined.

61,476. Where do you live?—Nelson Street, James Place, No. 7.

61,477. What is your business?—I am like one of the old hulks that lie in the river, I am done with now. I was a shipwright.

61,478. What rent do you pay?—£7.

61,479. Are you a freeman?—I am a freeman.

61,480. When were you made a freeman?—In 1825, I believe.

61,481. Did you take it up yourself?—I did. I paid 30*s.*, and I never asked them to give me the money for it.

61,482. Did you vote at the 1841 election?—No, I believe not. I went away to sea.

61,483. Clay and Thompson and Hanmer and James were candidates?—I dare say I did then.

61,484. That is in 1841; who did you vote for then?—I am sure I cannot tell you. If you will ask me the question I will tell you.

61,485. I have asked you the question. I believe you were away then by the poll book. In 1847 for whom did you vote?—For nobody.

61,486. You did not vote at all then?—No.

61,487. In 1852 did you vote for Moore and Butler; at the last election?—Yes, I did.

61,488. Did you get some money?—I had need, and I worked for it too.

61,489. How much did you get?—£5 and above.

61,490. What does that mean; 5*l.* 10*s.*?—I was there from nine in the morning until ten o'clock in the evening for five weeks.

61,491. Where was that?—In the Worship Street committee; among real gentlemen. I never saw any bribery or anything going on there. I will take my oath of it, and swear to it. You said we were to bring all the papers. I never see them deviate from that (producing a paper), I swear before God and man. I had the charge of all.

61,492. Did they pay you every week?—They did.

61,493. Did you apply to be employed, or did they come to you?—I am sure I cannot tell.

61,494. Yes, you can?—I cannot tell. I was at Beverley races.

61,495. How came you to go to Worship Street?—Because I am a man that knows how to take care of another man's goods, and I had the charge of the keys from the beginning to the end of the election.

61,496. The keys of the room?—Yes; and I was in the first and the last every day.

61,497. How much did they pay you every week?—At first, I believe they gave me 20*s.*, and I had the room to keep clean, and everything to keep in respectable order; and it was kept respectable.

Thomas Page.

26th July 1853.

61,498. That was what they paid you at first. How much did they pay you at last?—I never received any more; and Mr. Purden was the man that paid the last. I was never asked for my vote among the blue gentlemen; and for the orange, I was asked some scores of times.

61,499. The blue party knew you would vote for them?—I never voted under an orange colour yet, and I never will. I was born an Englishman. I was brought up under the ten commandments. I am a real protestant.

61,500. When were you paid for the last week?—24*s.* or 25*s.*

61,501. That is the amount; but when?—I am sure I cannot tell you; I have no recollection.

61,502. Was the last week paid after the election?—Yes; after the election.

61,503. Did it go up to the following Saturday?—Yes.

61,504. Did you receive any more money on the polling day or the nomination day?—Not one farthing, that I will take my oath of; not even as much as some refreshment, nor yet a glass of ale, did I see in that place.

61,505. Was any part of your wages kept back in some of those weeks that you were employed?—Yes; mine was one of them; and that made us receive 24*s.* or 25*s.* at the last week, to make it up, and then we had to sign our name.

61,506. Why did they keep it back?—What does a rogue do? An honest man will keep nothing back; there was no bargain.

61,507. I do not know who you are calling rogues. Do you mean your friends who paid you? I want to know why they kept back part of your pay. Those people who kept your money back have told us that they did it in order to secure your vote?—Never. Every election that ever I polled at I was always free and independent of any one, and where my fancy led I went. I never was bought by anybody, and never will be; I am that independent.

61,508. When they kept your money back, what did you say to them?—I always thought a man, if he was a man, would act the part of a man; and if a man does his duty, and another man does not pay him for what he has done, he is no man.

61,509. Did you tell them all that?—I had no occasion; they were too big gentlemen for that.

61,510. I want to know what you had when they kept your money back?—I did not want anything; from the first I objected to it.

61,511. You objected to being paid, did you tell them that?—I did; and I can bring the man that will tell you so. I would not take it up.

61,512. You objected to being paid till after the election? Before you voted you objected to being paid. Did you want to work for nothing?—Work for nothing! I am only a poor man.

61,513. Did you object to being paid?—I never objected to being paid.

61,514. You said so just now, that you objected to being paid?—How do you make that out? I said if they had given me nothing I should have been content.

61,515. You said more; you said that you objected to be paid?—I objected! I would not take the money off the table that was laid down for me; that was not objecting to it.

61,516. Did you think it was too little?—No.

61,517. Why would you not take the money up when it was laid on the table?—Because that paper told me I was not to do so.

61,518. You did take it at last; you stomached the paper?—It was left for me.

61,519. You left the paper at home on the Saturday you took the money?—I tell you I got 5*l.* 3*s.*, and I am not ashamed to tell anybody that.

61,520. What was the name of the person who was present when you got paid?—It was Cuttle.

Robert Fenwick.

ROBERT FENWICK sworn, and examined.

61,521. Where do you live?—In Salthouse Lane.

61,522. What is your business?—A shipwright.

61,523. What rent do you pay?—£5.

61,524. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

61,525. When were you made a freeman?—In 1820.

61,526. At whose cost?—My own.

61,527. Used you to get the four guineas and the two?—No; I never was at home in those times.

61,528. In 1841 did you vote for any of those gentlemen; Clay and Thompson, or Hanmer and James?—Yes.

61,529. Who for?—I voted for Hanmer and James.

61,530. Did you get some money for that?—Yes.

61,531. How much did you get for that vote?—Three sovereigns.

61,532. Who from?—Well, I cannot tell who it was from.

61,533. Who was it for?—For James and Hanmer.

Robert Fenwick.

26th July 1853.

61,534. Were you paid afterwards?—No; I got 2*l.* before the election, and a sovereign after.

61,535. That is a good deal of money?—A good deal.

61,536. How came you to get 3*l.*?—I do not know; I had it given to me.

61,537. Where did you get it?—I got got two sovereigns in Saville Street.

61,538. Where in Saville Street?—I do not know.

61,539. Through a window?—It was through a door.

61,540. A hole in the door?—A hole in the door.

61,541. Where did you get the 1*l.* from?—In Wincolmlee.

61,542. Was that through a door?—No; I do not know the gentleman who paid me that.

61,543. In 1847, were you set down as a runner at the next election for Brown?—No. I voted for Baines and Brown, and I got a sovereign for Mr. Brown.

61,544. Where were you paid?—I got 10*s.* at Mr. Mitchell's office, and 10*s.* in Scale Lane, I think.

61,545. Who paid you?—Mitchell paid me 10*s.*

61,546. Who paid the other?—The other I do not know who it was.

61,547. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Bramley Moore and Butler.

61,548. And you received some money then?—I was doorkeeper three weeks and four days.

61,549. What door did you keep?—The Conservative Rooms in Lowgate.

61,550. Is that where Mr. Brodrick was?—Yes.

61,551. How long were you there?—Three weeks and four days.

61,552. What did you do at the door?—Any letters or anything that came, I carried them into the chamber, and then be turned out again.

61,553. Did you apply to be set down?—No, I did not; I was sent for.

61,554. How much did you get altogether?—I received a guinea a week.

61,555. How many weeks?—Three weeks and four days.

61,556. How much did you get for the last four days?—I had four days first. I was on the whole of the last week. I never got any more than the guinea a week.

61,557. What day was it made up to?—To the Saturday after the election.

61,558. I believe you were out of business at that time, were you not?—Yes; I was out of employment.

61,559. You are a carpenter?—I was out of employment at that time.

61,560. How came they to find you out?—I had been in Mr. Brodrick's employ, and he was acquainted with me.

61,561. He knew you you were out of business, and he sent for you?—I do not know that he knew that; I was out of employment.

61,562. At that time you wanted something to do?—Yes; I wanted something to do.

61,563. Were you paid the last week after the election?—Yes; on the Saturday night.

61,564. Was any part of your pay kept back?—No, never.

Adjourned until to-morrow at ten o'clock.

FORTY-THIRD DAY.—Wednesday, 27th July 1853.

Mr. A. B. Pease.

27th July 1853.

MR. ARTHUR BURTON PEASE sworn, and examined.

61,565. You are not a voter for this borough, I believe?—No.

61,566. Do you now occupy yourself any premises within the borough?—No.

61,567. You took some interest in the last election, I believe, on behalf of Moore and Butler?—I was interested in it, but I took no active part in it.

61,568. Canvassing, I believe?—I might have canvassed three or four people, not more.

61,569. Did you frequent any of the committees?—No; I went into the committee room to see how they were going on, being interested in it, but I attended no meetings.

61,570. Are you a brother of Mr. Joseph Walker Pease?—Yes, I am.

61,571. I believe you, in company with Captain Cammell, went to a person of the name of Robert Dannatt?—No.

61,572. Did you see Robert Dannatt?—No.

61,573. Do you know the person?—No, I do not.

61,574. Then you may have seen him without knowing his name; Robert Dannatt, a greengrocer in New George Street?—I do not know him.

61,575. Did you see any greengrocer in New George Street?—No.

61,576. Did you go into any shop in New George Street?—No.

61,577. Do you mean to say that you did not do it, or that you do not remember it?—I mean to say I did not do it. I do not know Mr. Cammell.

61,578. Then leave out Mr. Cammell.—I think it is a mistake; I know nothing about it at all.

61,579. Do you know any person who did canvass with Captain Cammell?—Well, that I cannot say.

61,580. Have you heard?—I think it may be my brother James you have got hold of. I think he did canvass with Captain Cammell.

61,581. It has been stated to us to be a gentleman named Pease?—There are more of that name than myself.

61,582. The witness described him as Mr. Arthur Pease; said to have canvassed Robert Dannatt. You say it is an error?—It may be my brother

61,583. But you say it is an error as far as regards yourself?—Yes.

61,584. Did you canvass Joseph Acum?—No.

61,585. Do you know Joseph Acum?—No.

61,586. Did you canvass New George Street at all?—No, not a person there.

61,587. Is your brother in Hull?—He is in America; he went over a fortnight ago. There is a mistake, I think.

61,588. The witnesses have said positively that they were canvassed by Mr. Pease?—There are four Mr. Peases.

61,589. Did you send any of the persons you canvassed to have their names set down?—No.

61,590. Did you engage any committee rooms?—No.

61,591. Did you negotiate at all for any committee rooms?—No.

61,592. Have you any papers or letters referring to any matters of the last election?—The only papers I have are these; a canvassing book.

61,593. Will it show that any money transactions took place?—No, none at all.

61,594. What election do they relate to?—This last.

61,595. I see one is said to be a person of the name of Roberts?—I do not think I canvassed any of those. That book does not belong to myself; it belongs to my brother James, and he gave it over to me. It is merely relating to a few voters living in Anlaby and Swanland, and the neighbourhood in which I live, and Hessle. They are my brother's remarks.

61,596. Is there anything you can tell us about it?—No, I cannot tell you anything.

61,597. Did you canvass at all with Messrs. Moore and Butler, after they had come down?—No.

61,598. Did you see them?—Yes.

61,599. Had you many interviews with them?—No.

61,600. Where did you see them?—Mr. Bramley Moore was staying at my father's house.

61,601. At Hessle?—Yes; and Mr. Butler was there too. They came over and dined, and so on.

61,602. Are those the occasions on which you saw them?—I may have seen them in the streets in Hull. I may have met them; nothing more. Nothing to have any conversation about the management of the election in any way.

61,603. Was the course of proceeding at Hull elections at all adverted to in these conversations?—Only generally, in the course of conversation. The conversation would naturally turn about the election, if you had the candidates in your own house, but nothing further than that.

61,604. Have you said that certain parts of the freemen were solely open to bribes, or anything of that sort?—No.

61,605. Do you think the subject of a certain number of voters being influenced by money was alluded to before those gentlemen?—It was not; not that I know of.

61,606. Whether the word runner, for instance, was ever used?—No, not in the presence of the candidates.

61,607. You took good care to avoid that?—Yes.

61,608. Do you think that there would be rather an intention to avoid those subjects with those gentlemen?—There was certainly nothing connected with the management for the return of the members talked about; merely the conversation in ordinary society.

61,609. I can easily understand, in conversations in ordinary society, the pending election would be the prominent topic?—Not very much so, because I think they were all very tired of it.

61,610. That was before it took place?—Yes.

61,611. When the progress and prospects must have been a matter of general conversation frequently?—Of course, occasionally; but I think they were very glad, when they got out in the country, to have done with it.

61,612. I wish to ask whether, in the course of those conversations, any allusion was made to the class of people about whom we have been inquiring?—None, that I know of.

61,613. Do you think an allusion to that class of persons would be rather avoided?—No.

61,614. Was Mr. Bramley Moore staying at your father's, or did he merely go over to dine?—I think he stayed a day or two.

61,615. Before the election?—Yes, before the election. I do not know; but I think he stayed one or two nights; not more than that.

61,616. Do you think, although there were a thousand runners set down on the two sides, that the word "runner" was never used; a class comprising 1,000 persons?—Yes, I do. It may have been used; I will not swear it was not; but I do not know that it was. I should say not.

Mr. A. B. Pease.
27th July 1853.

61,617. Can you give us any general information with regard to this election?—No.

61,618. You need not confine yourself to colours?—No.

61,619. You cannot?—No; I purposely abstained from taking an active part in it.

61,620. Or any previous election?—No; I was abroad at the last election.

61,621. I do not only mean any part you may have taken yourself, but as to others?—No.

W. Dunwell.

WILLIAM DUNWELL sworn, and examined.

61,622. Where do you live?—Bishop Lane.

61,623. What is your business?—A licensed victualler.

61,624. What rent do you pay for a house?—£12.

61,625. Are you also a freeman?—No.

61,626. When were you first entitled to vote as a householder?—About twenty years ago.

61,627. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Yes.

61,628. Who for?—Hanmer and James,

61,629. Did you receive any money for that vote?—No.

61,630. Did you receive any money at all?—No.

61,631. Neither before nor after?—No.

61,632. Did you have a room at that election?—No.

61,633. Were you employed at all?—No, not in any way.

61,634. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.

61,635. A plumper?—Yes.

61,636. Did you get any money at that election?—No, not anything.

61,637. We have got a little paper about you. They say your name is down in the list of Mr. Brown's runners?—I never was a runner for any election.

61,638. At the 1847 election were you not a runner for Mr. Brown?—No; I never was a runner at all for any election whatever.

61,639. I do not mean that you did run?—I never applied for such a berth, and never was put on, to my knowledge.

61,640. Did you receive any money for that vote from Mr. Brown?—No; I never received anything whatever. I never had anything promised, and never applied for any.

61,641. At the last election in 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

61,642. Did you receive any money then?—No; none for my vote whatever.

61,643. Had you any room let?—I was inquired of if I had a room large enough for a committee room.

61,644. What did you say?—I said yes, I had.

61,645. Did they take it?—Yes; they said they should want it.

62,646. When did they engage it?—When I applied for a colour at one of the committee rooms.

61,647. Which room did you go to for a colour?—To the Lowgate.

61,648. And who asked you about your room?—I do not know what person it was.

61,649. Was he the chairman?—I do not know.

61,650. Was he sitting at the table?—I do not know. He was a person standing up in the room.

61,651. What did he say to you?—Inquired if I had a room large enough for a committee room. I told him, as near as I could, about the size, and he said it would do.

61,652. How long before the election was that?—I do not suppose it wanted over a day or two to the election then.

61,653. How much did you agree to let them have it for?—No agreement whatever.

61,654. Were they to have it for nothing?—We had no agreement.

61,655. Did you understand you were to have any money for it?—They never made any agreement about it. They said they should want it, and it would do.

61,656. When you applied for the colour?—Yes; that was the question put to me at the time I was in the room.

61,657. Of course they knew which way you would vote?—Yes, I expect so.

61,658. How much did you receive for the room?—I do not know that it was for the room.

61,659. How much did you receive?—£2 afterwards was sent to my house, after the election. It was not stated what it was for.

61,660. Do you think they still owe you for the room?—No, I do not, because we had no agreement about the room.

61,661. You say you do not know whether the 2*l.* was for the room?—I do not know what it was for. I expect it was for the room.

61,662. You did not ask?—No.

61,663. Though there was no agreement for the room you took the 2*l.*?—Yes.

W. Dunwell.

27th July 1853.

61,664. How did you get the money; who brought it?—A person brought it, but I do not know the person.

61,665. Do you know who it was?—No.

61,666. Do you not know the name of the committee room, or the man who paid you?—No.

61,667. What did he say when he brought it?—He left the money, and he had several more places to call at.

61,668. I ask what he said?—I cannot remember just now what was said.

61,669. Tell us some part of what was said?—He said, "Here is the 2*l.* that is due to you." That was what was said. I do not remember anything more.

61,670. He said, "Here is the 2*l.* that is due to you?"—Yes.

61,671. The man came in and said, "Here is the 2*l.* ?"—Yes.

61,672. And you took it?—I do not remember anything more about it.

WILLIAM RUSTON sworn, and examined.

William Ruston.

61,673. Where do you live?—47, New King Street.

61,674. What is your business?—A potato dealer.

61,675. What rent do you pay for a house?—£11.

61,676. Are you a freeman?—No.

61,677. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—Only this last.

61,678. Who did you vote for?—For Bramley Moore and Butler.

61,679. Did you get any money for that vote?—Yes.

61,680. How much did you get?—10*s.*

61,681. Who paid you?—Mr. Cattley, I believe.

61,682. Where did he pay you?—At his office in High Street.

61,683. Before or after the election?—After.

61,684. And then you had a supper too afterwards, did you not?—No.

61,685. I am told you finished off with a tripe supper?—No; I should have liked it very well, because I am very fond of tripe.

61,686. But you were not there?—I never heard anything of the kind; I was never at any supper.

JAMES ROBSON sworn, and examined.

James Robson

61,687. Where do you live?—In the Beverley Road.

61,688. What is your business?—Gardener.

61,689. You are put down as living in the Holderness Road?—I did live in the Holderness Road a year or two ago.

61,690. What rent do you pay?—£41.

61,692. At which election were you first entitled to vote; 1841?—No; only two elections.

61,693. 1847?—Yes.

61,694. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines.

61,695. Did you get any money at that election for your vote?—No.

61,696. Were you promised any?—No; never asked such a question.

61,697. Were you asked it?—No; nor I either.

61,698. Did you let any room?—No.

61,699. Got nothing at all?—No.

61,700. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

61,701. Did you get any money?—No.

61,702. I am told you would not vote without being paid?—No.

61,703. Did you say so?—No.

61,704. Was your name set down by the blues?—No; I never promised one.

61,705. They all asked you?—Both parties asked me; I never promised any one.

61,706. What did they say?—I told them I never did promise, and I should vote for who I thought proper.

61,707. Did you ever get anything afterwards?—No; never.

EDWARD STEPHENSON sworn, and examined.

E. Stephenson.

61,708. Where do you live?—Lime Street.

61,709. What is your business?—Licensed victualler.

61,710. What rent do you pay for a house?—£14.

61,711. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

61,712. When were you made free?—In 1846.

E. Stephenson.

27th July 1853.

61,713. At whose expense?—My own.
61,714. Did you vote at the election of 1847?—Yes.
61,715. Who for?—Mr. Brown.
61,716. Did you get any money at that election?—Yes.
61,717. How much?—10*s.*
61,718. Where were you paid?—Noah's Ark.
61,719. When?—I think it was the day after the election.
61,720. By whom?—I do not know.
61,721. Was it in a committee room?—Yes.
61,722. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
61,723. How much money did you get?—Nothing.
61,724. I am told you had 3*l.*?—You are told wrong.
61,725. Were you not a runner for the blues?—No.
61,726. Or a messenger, or whatever else you call it?—No.
61,727. Do you know Mr. Sawyer, Mr. Blundell's foreman?—No.
61,728. Did you let a room at the last election?—Yes.
61,729. Where was that room?—In Lime Street, at my house.
61,730. How did they take it? Tell us all about it? What took place?—Nothing took place. I let the room; that is all.
61,731. How came you to let it? Who did you let it to, and what was said?—They applied for a room; if I could let them have a room.
61,732. Who ar e they?—I am sure I do not know who they were. Mr. Otoxby and a brother of mine, and several more of them.
61,733. Canvassers?—Yes.
61,734. Did they come to your house?—Yes.
61,735. What is your brother's name?—Samuel Stephenson.
61,736. We want you to tell us all that took place?—I have told you all.
61,737. You have not told us a word yet. What did Oxtoby say, and what did you say in answer to it?—He asked me if I could let them have a room, and of course I let them have it.
61,738. Did you say "Yes," or did you say "I will think of it"?—Yes; I said they could have the room if they wanted it.
61,739. Did they tell you what committee men would come to it?—No.
61,740. Did any committee ever come?—Yes; there were several of them there.
61,741. Who?—I do not know who there were; there were several.
61,742. We want you to tell us who they were?—I do not know them.
61,743. How did you know they were committee men?—They said they were; they were writing in the place, and I expect they were committe men; I do not know.
61,744. Was your name set down by that party?—No; not that I know of.
61,745. Was your name put down anywhere?—No.
61,746. How much did you receive for your room?—£2.
61,747. Who paid you?—I am sure I do not know; it was a man that came after the election; three weeks or a month after.
61,748. Mr. Steeple, perhaps?—It was a stout man.
61,749. You knew the man?—No; I do not know the man; I should not know the man if I saw him. It was about three weeks or a month after.
61,750. I ask you again if you did not receive some money besides that; upon your oath?—No.
61,751. You state that upon your oath?—Yes.
61,752. That you only received the payment for the room?—That is all.
61,753. I ask you again if you know a man of the name of Sawyer?—No; I do not know any person of that name.
61,754. The foreman of Mr. Blundell?—No.
61,755. Do you know Mr. Blundell's foreman?—No.
61,756. This man paid you, you say, after the election for your room? Were parties paid at your room besides?—Yes.
61,757. When did they pay people at your room?—It was after the election.
61,758. When?—I am sure I cannot tell; I think it was something like a week after.
61,759. Who made the payments there?—There were three or four of them in the room; I never went into the room.
61,760. How many came there to be paid, do you think?—I am sure I cannot tell.
61,761. You can tell whether twenty or fifty?—I could not tell; I never was in the room.
61,762. They would come into the room?—No. There were some never came into the house, only into the room; out of the street into the room.
61,763. How long were the gentlemen there?—About an hour or an hour and a half.
61,764. Did you get any money for them; any change for them, or anything of that sort?—No. They had all the change with them.
61,765. Do you know who were paid there?—No.
61,766. Is yours a public house?—Yes.
61,767. Did they not have a little refreshment, some of them?—There were several that got something to drink, I did not take any notice of.

61,768. It was not the first time you had seen them in your life?—No; there was some I had seen before.

61,769. What were their names; tell us what you remember?—I know one or two that live in the Groves.

61,770. What were their names?—Mr. Lusby was one. I do not know what he got. He was in that night.

61,771. Who else?—I am sure I do not know.

61,772. What Mr. Lusby was that?—He was a block maker. I do not know any more of the names.

61,773. Where does he live?—He lives in the Groves.

61,774. Who else?—I do not know any more of the names; I know them when I see them.

61,775. What street in the Groves?—Jennings Street.

61,776. Who else?—I do not know any more of the names.

61,777. You must know some more?—No; there were several that I did not know; that I had never seen before, that I know of.

61,778. They stayed in your house; neighbours, you said?—No; I do not know any more of the names at present.

61,779. Tell us who you did know? You said before they were your neighbours?—They are my neighbours, but there are some of them that I do not know the names of.

61,780. Not the neighbours?—I do not know the names.

61,781. You said there were three or four that lived in the Groves?—Yes, there is. I know them when I see them, but I do not know the names. I know them when I meet them.

61,782. Do you know they live in the Groves?—Yes.

61,783. And you know them when you see them?—Yes.

61,784. Perhaps you will be kind enough to get us those names?—Yes. I can get you two or three.

61,785. Where does Samuel Stephenson live?—He lives in the Groves.

61,786. Where is the Groves? We understand that is a large place?—I think his back way is in Hood Street; I do not know where the front of his house is. I do not know the name of the front street.

61,787. You can get us the other names?—Yes; I think I can get you two or three, when they come to my memory.

61,788. We must expect more than two or three?—You cannot expect more than I know.

61,789. This room that you say you let before the election, was that the same room that people were paid in after the election?—Yes.

61,790. Is that the parlour of your public house?—No; it is a private room.

61,791. Up stairs?—No; it is down stairs.

61,792. Is not that the room that most people go into when they want some refreshment by themselves?—No.

61,793. Did any people go in besides these committee men, backwards and forwards, before the election?—No; only at times when we had anything to do extra they went into that room.

61,794. Always when people have anything extra to do they go into that room?—We do not let any body go into that room.

61,795. You mean you do not let every body go in?—Not every body.

61,796. You had let some people go in without?—Yes.

61,797. And always have done?—Yes.

61,798. Were you ever paid 2*l.* before for the use of that room?—I never had it before.

61,799. Were you ever before paid for the use of that room?—Yes.

61,800. When?—I have been paid for it at several meetings they have had in it.

61,801. How long ago were you paid for any meeting in that room?—It would be about a twelvemonth since.

61,802. What meeting was that?—A meeting of some club men.

61,803. How much did they pay you for it?—They paid me 5*s.*

61,804. Is that the most you ever had for it before?—That is all; that is the only time.

61,805. That is the only time before you were paid for your room?—Yes; that is the only time.

61,806. Is that the only time the room was ever used? Has not the room ever been used for the last twelve months?—No; we have had sometimes a dinner party in it, and a tea party, and such like; that is the only time that ever I let it.

61,807. If persons came to ask for a private room in your house, that is the room you let them have, is it not?—Yes.

61,808. You used that room in that way during the election, just as well as any other time?—No, I did not. I could not let any one go in but those parties. They took it and they had it all the election, and no one else went in but them.

Mr. John Tall.

27th July 1853.

Mr. JOHN TALL sworn, and examined.

61,809. Where do you live?—No. 4, George Street.

61,810. What is your business?—A merchant.

61,811. What rent do you pay for your premises?—I pay no rent, but I am rated for premises of my own.

61,812. At how much?—I am rated for my house and premises about 200*l.* a year.

61,814. Did you vote at the old elections before the Reform Bill?—No; except for the county.

61,815. I see you voted in 1837, and had your name struck off the poll on a scrutiny?—Yes; I remember there was a scrutiny in London, and some man swore that I had bribed him.

61,816. I merely want to know the fact, if you are the John Tall who was struck off?—I am. The man swore I had bribed him, and I was not allowed to contradict him. The man came home, and after a time he either cut his throat or hung himself; he certainly did one of the two. He swore a falsehood, and I suppose his conscience was too strong for him.

61,817. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Yes; I voted for Hanmer and James.

61,818. Did you take any part at that election, or were you on any committee?—I was the chairman of the East Sculcoates committee.

61,819. I believe, at that election, as at the former elections, applications were made for employment in the shape of runners?—Yes, I expect so.

61,820. And names put down in the usual way, I suppose?—I have known no election without it. I could only speak up to 1841. I have taken no part since 1841, except voting.

61,821. We are asking about 1841?—Yes, I voted then.

61,822. Do you recollect the fact of applications being made for these places, and names being set down at that election?—Upon my word, I cannot charge my memory with the fact, but I have no doubt of it.

61,823. Do you know whether another source of employment, in the shape of committee rooms, was resorted to at that election?—I never heard of anything of the kind until I heard it in this room, on this investigation.

61,824. Never until the last election?—I am not aware that such a thing was done previous to the election of 1841 and in 1841.

61,825. At the election of 1841, do you know of any payment being made, or who were the principal paymasters?—I never had to do with any money; I did not belong to the principal committee, except ex officio; I had nothing to do with it; I never touched a farthing in any shape; I do not know who provided the money or paid the money. I may have certified some accounts, and sent the parties to the central committee room, but I never interfered at any committee.

61,826. Were the payments principally made at the general committee that election?—I expect so; I really do not know.

61,827. The man you say cut his throat was examined two days ago?—Then I have been misinformed. I should doubt whether it is the same man, without there is documentary proof of it.

61,828. His name is Charles Fox?—Perhaps there were several; one man destroyed himself, certainly. Perhaps I could save you some trouble by telling you I never bribed in my life. If you can mention any names, I will state whether it is the truth or not.

61,829. At which committee did you act?—The East Sculcoates committee room.

61,830. Where was the room?—In Wincolmlee.

61,831. Do you know what were the general expenses of Hanmer and James at that election?—I do not.

61,832. By report, I mean;—I do not know by report; I do not indeed. I have no conception. It is very likely I should know at that time, or hear something of the amount, but I have no recollection whatever about it; not a sixpence passed through my hands.

61,833. I am not ssking about its passing through your hands, or your paying it?—No; but if I knew anything about the sum I would say so; but I do not indeed.

61,834. At the next election of 1847?—I had nothing to do with it except voting. I do not know how I voted until you tell me; I have not taken the trouble to look; I should think, in all probability, I should vote for Mr. Baines. I do not know.

61,835. Were you on any committee?—No, none since 1841.

61,836. You voted for Baines and Brown?—Yes.

61,837. Did you object to the mode of Hull elections? or why were you not a little more active?—It did not suit my convenience, neither should I again, if two of the most eligible gentlemen in the kingdom came as candidates.

61,838. I should have thought, from your position, you would be a probable person to have been on a committee?—I have been solicited, but I have declined. When men get old they get tired of such things.

61,839. At the election of 1852 you were on no committee?—No; I had nothing whatever to do with it, but in voting.

Mr. John Tall.

27th July 1853.

61,840. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Clay.

61,841. Were you one of the persons who objected to a contest, or who desired that there should be no contest?—Not that I am aware of, except in private conversation. I should say it was very desirable; that would be my feeling. I joined with no party, and conferred with no party, except by chance.

61,842. And made no payment whatever?—No.

61,843. Nor attended any committee?—No.

61,844. Nor canvassed any voters?—Nor canvassed any voters.

61,845. Have you any information you can give us on any of the elections I have asked you about?—I have none.

61,846. We ask gentlemen in your position to make disclosures?—If I knew anything I would state it, but I do not know anything. The system of runners, since I have known elections, has been adopted. The payment of freemen, previous to the Reform Bill, that you know without my telling you, and I do not think I have any information to give you.

61,847. And since the Reform Bill, as well as before?—I have no doubt of it.

61,848. Who was the deputy chairman of your committee in 1841?—Mr. Yeall. I think he has got promoted since; I think he is the chairman now.

61,849. Who else was active on your committee?—Upon my word I scarcely recollect. If the names were read over to me I could say, but I really do not recollect.

61,850. Do you recollect who was the clerk?—I do not know whether Mr. Flint was. He was on one occasion, but I scarcely think so recently as that.

61,851. Would not the clerk be the person through whose hands the money would go?—No money would go through the hands of any of the sub-committee.

61,852. All the parties were paid on that occasion, either at the central committee or at some place appointed?—I believe so, but I had nothing to do with it.

61,853. You knew at the time names were actually being set down?—I had no doubt of it.

61,854. You knew at the time names were actually being set down at your committee?—Upon my word I do not know that; I do not recollect there being any setting down. I think the system would be, that a communication would be sent to the principal committee to put parties names down.

61,855. When parties applied in the district, do you think they would be sent from your committee to the central committee to be set down?—I have not any doubt about it.

61,856. Have you any doubt you knew it was going on during the election?—I do not doubt it at all. I have no doubt it was going on during the whole election. I know the system was observed, but I do not know the extent.

61,857. As the chairman of the East Sculcoates, you took on yourself the responsibility of that being done from your committee as well as the others?—I do not know that I should take on myself any responsibility, except this: that I should make some communication, either through the deputy chairman or the clerk, to the principal committee room, that it was desirable to set such persons down.

61,858. You have no doubt?—I do not know that I did, but I have no doubt about it.

61,859. Would you do that for individuals, or only give a general order?—I should think no general order would be given; not by me at all events.

61,860. It would be in individual cases that you would have done that?—No doubt about it.

61,861. You very well understood what was meant by setting them down at that time?—No doubt about it.

61,862. Do you generally understand that the persons who apply to be employed as runners mean, "If you will employ me I will vote for you; if you do not, I will not?—It is understood, as a matter of course, they are to vote.

61,863. You think the system of runners is perfectly understood by all parties? You do not confine your answer to any one side, blue or orange?—Oh dear no.

Capt. T. Whitaker.

Captain THOMAS WHITAKER sworn, and examined.

61,864. Are you a captain in the Royal Navy?—I am a commander in the Royal Navy.

61,865. Where do you live?—No. 4, Albion Street.

61,866. You have retired from the service, I suppose?—I am on half pay.

61,867. What rent do you pay for a house?—£70.

61,868. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

61,870. Who for?—Hanmer and James.

61,871. Were you on any committee at that election?—I believe not.

61,872. Did you take any part, as a canvasser or otherwise, at that election?—I did.

61,873. For what committee or on what account did you canvass?—On no committee, I believe.

Capt. T. Whitaker.

27th July 1853.

61,874. To whom did you report the result of your canvass?—I think the chief of my canvassing was not more than once or twice, with one of the members.

61,875. Are you aware that at that election in 1841 names were set down of persons who applied to be employed as runners?—I knew nothing whatever of it; I have no knowledge of anything that ever occurred in any committee; nothing ever passed through my hands in any way.

61,876. In the course of your canvass, did persons make any applications to yourself of that nature?—I am not aware that ever any one did.

61,877. In canvassing with the members, did you take any particular district?—No; sometimes one place and sometimes another; but it was very little that I did.

61,878. Do you remember, in the course of the canvass with the candidates, persons making applications to them for employment of the nature I have mentioned?—I cannot say that I ever heard any one.

61,879. To be set down as runners?—I do not know that ever I heard anything of the kind.

61,880. Or to be employed?—Or to be employed.

61,881. Do you know anything of any money payments at that election?—Nothing whatever.

61,882. Did you make any promise at all to any person whom you canvassed?—None whatever.

61,883. Were you present at any committee room after the election?—None.

61,884. In 1847, did you vote?—Yes.

61,885. Who for?—Baines and Brown.

61,886. That was a hasty election; did you take any part in it?—I do not think I took the least part in it; I might have asked a casual person or two, but nothing more.

61,887. Did you attend any committee?—None.

61,888. Did you canvass either with Mr. Baines or Mr. Brown personally?—No.

61,889. Do you know some persons who are voters connected with the Trinity House in this town?—I know there are some, but I do not know that I am connected with them in any way.

61,890. You know the persons who are voters?—I know there are such, but I do not know them personally.

61,891. What is the number of persons upon that establishment, do you know; pensioners?—Do you mean pensioners in the almhouses?

61,892. Yes?—I think there are upwards of 200 rooms; I do not know the amount; but then there are quarterly pensioners to the extent, I should think, of 700*l.* or 800*l.*

61,893. Are they resident in the town?—Not all; a portion of them are.

61,894. Are those alms upon the Trinity House?—Those that are in the almshouses are paid a pension from the Trinity House.

61,895. Are they in the nature of decayed seamen?—Yes; decayed seamen and their widows.

61,896. And they get their lodgings free, and an allowance?—Each individual has so much per week, with a room, coals, and turves.

61,897. And some of them, no doubt, are freemen?—No doubt of it.

61,898. Did you canvass any of those people at the election of 1847?—I am not aware that ever I did.

61,899. Who has the management of that establishment?—The elder brethren of the Trinity House.

61,900. Who is the resident manager?—There is no resident manager.

61,901. Have they a porter?—It is managed by the brothers. There are eighteen of us; twelve elder brethren and six assistants.

61,902. You are a brother of the Trinity House?—Yes, I am an elder brother.

61,903. Do you know anything of any payments at all made at the election of 1847?—Not a penny.

61,904. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

61,905. Did you canvass with them?—I scarcely was out of the house during the whole time they were here.

61,906. Were you on any committee?—I never was out of the house, scarcely.

61,907. But you might have been nominally upon some committee?—I was upon no committee; none whatever. I was asked to be, but I told them I was so ill that I could not.

61,908. Did you canvass anybody at all?—I never canvassed but one man.

61,909. Where was that?—In Story Street.

61,910. Did he promise you to vote?—No; he was doubtful. I only asked him for one; I knew he was engaged for one half, and I tried to persuade him over for the other, but he did not; he voted for the other side. It was a Mr. Harbron, a painter; that is the only person I asked.

61,911. Is he a person in a situation to have his name set down as a runner?—Oh dear no.

61,912. You did not apply that argument?—No; not for a moment.

61,913. Did you canvass any of these pensioners?—I never canvassed one. The only one that I ever canvassed was that man.

61,914. Do you know who canvassed in the Trinity House?—I know nothing about them. Capt. T. Whitaker.

61,915. Do you know of any payments at the last election, or connected with it?—None whatever. 27th July 1853.

61,916. Not personally, but by report?—No, not at all.

Mr. WILLIAM THOMAS sworn, and examined. Mr. W. Thomas.

61,917. I believe you are a merchant in this town?—Yes.

61,918. Where do you reside?—At Willerby.

61,919. What rent do you pay?—£50 a year my house is rated at; and 200*l.* a year besides my house.

61,920. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

61,921. Did you vote at the election in 1841?—I think I did.

61,922. Who for?—Hanmer and James, I think.

61,923. Were you on any committee?—No.

61,924. Did you canvass for those gentlemen?—I do not remember whether I did, but most likely I should.

61,925. Did you send any people who wanted employment to the committee rooms?—No, I think not.

61,926. Suppose a man told you he wanted to be a runner, what should you say to him?—Tell him to go to the committee room, most likely.

61,927. Do you remember whether you told any at that election to go to the committee room?—I do not recollect any such thing.

61,928. Do you not recollect any particular instance?—No.

61,929. You do not recollect one person?—I know of no particular instance.

61,930. Which committee should you send them to?—I do not know; my recollection is bad. I used to be very active at elections, but since I have got to be nearly four score I have given it up.

61,931. In 1847, did you vote?—Yes, I think so.

61,932. When Clay, Baines, and Brown were candidates?—Brown and Baines, I think, but I am not certain.

61,933. Were you upon any committee then?—I do not know whether I was or not, I am sure.

61,934. For neither Clay, Baines, or Brown?—I frequently used to go into a committee room; I do not know that I was exactly fixed upon a committee; I used to see how they were coming on.

61,935. Do you know anything of any payments at that election?—I know nothing about it.

61,936. Can you give us any information as to that election?—No, I cannot, in particular, I am sure.

61,937. In 1852, the last election, did you vote?—Yes.

61,938. For Moore and Butler?—Yes, I think that was the case.

61,939. You do not seem a gentleman likely to change?—No, I never change; I have always been for the conservative party.

61,940. Did you take some people to the supper?—No, I did not take any one there.

61,941. I am told you took William Purdon to a supper at Wincolmlee?—Who is William Purdon?

61,942. I do not know?—Then I do not recollect him.

61,943. Did you take a man of the name of Smith, or did you take some other parties?—I never took any of them. When the supper was going on, it was three parts over when I got there, and there was a room full of them.

61,944. Did you take some of them with you as your friends?—I might do such a thing, but I do not recollect.

61,945. Had you some tickets for the supper?—Very probably I might, but I do not recollect.

61,946. It is a very little while ago; it is only last year?—Then I had nothing to do with it; I did not go to any supper.

61,947. The blue supper in Wincolmlee, I am speaking of?—I think I did go into the room, but I cannot say anything about it.

61,948. Were you there?—I went in when the supper was half over; I saw many gentlemen there, and I think I had a glass of gin and water.

61,949. Did you give your tickets away, if you had any?—Yes, I should, most likely.

61,950. Do you know if you did?—I have not the least recollection.

61,951. How long was the supper before the election?—I cannot say, I am sure, whether it was before the election or after it; I do not recollect, indeed.

61,952. Do not you remember when it was?—No, I do not. There was one, but whether before or after I cannot say; I fancy it was after.

61,953. Do you know a man of the name of Benjamin Clarkson?—Yes.

61,954. I believe they call him Ben?—Yes; I believe he is one of my workmen.

Mr. W. Thomas.

27th July 1853.

61,955. Did you take him up to a room in Wincolmlee?—I really cannot say.

61,956. To get paid?—No, I am sure I never did; I never took any one up to get paid at any time.

61,957. You must excuse me putting it in this way, but did you take Clarkson in to a room in Wincolmlee, and say he wanted payment?—I do not recollect it.

61,958. Can you say that you did not?—I cannot say so; I might; it is very likely; there were a great many, I think, who wanted pay.

61,959. You think a good many wanted pay?—Oh yes; I am an old electioneerer these fifty years.

61,960. I suppose you think if they did not want paying this time it would be something very singular?—No, I do not think it was.

61,961. You would have thought if they did not want paying this time, it would be something singular?—Yes.

61,962. An exception?—Yes; an exception to the old rule.

61,963. Do you remember whether you took Clarkson up to get any money?—I cannnt remember; upon my word I do not know. I do not say I did not do it, but I do not remember, I am sure.

61,964. To be paid, I say distinctly?—No, I think not.

61,965. But you would not go beyond that?—No, I would not go beyond that.

61,966. Did you take any other workman?—No.

61,967. How many have you?—Between eighty and ninety.

61,968. I did not ask you what your business was?—A manufacturer of Roman cement, paints, colours, and a brush maker.

61,969. Did most of your men vote blue, do you know?—I believe not.

61,970. Most of them orange?—Yes.

61,971. What was the proportion? Can you give us?—I am sure I do not know. I think there was one or two of them split their votes, and others voted orange.

61,972. That is not many out of eighty?—I have not eighty voters; not a quarter part of that; fourteen or fifteen, I think there were; I am not sure. I never pressed a man for his vote at any time, except to say to them, "You know what party I am for, and if you vote for me I will thank you." I believe I have some of the oldest workmen in England. I have had some for thirty or forty years in my employment.

61,973. Did you take Clarkson up to the committee room, and say he wanted pay for his loss of time?—Now you mention it, I took him to the committee room when canvassing, and I said, "Here is a man who wants putting on as a runner."

61,974. When about do you think it was?—A few days before the election, or two days before the election.

61,975. Did they say they would put him down?—Yes, I think so; I suppose they did. He was a very active fellow.

61,976. Do you remember that you put down any other?—No, not any.

61,977. Why did you take Clarkson?—He fell in with me in the street; I said, "Are you not at work?" He said, "No; you cannot work at election times. I should like to be put on as a runner;" and I said, "Well, come along with me."

61,978. Is that the reason you took him, because he asked you?—Yes, that is the reason. I thought he was too respectable a man to wish it, but he had a large family of seven or eight children, and I thought he might as well have a few shillings as anybody else.

61,979. Did any of the others ask you to help them in the same way?—No.

61,980. Not any of them?—No; none that I recollect.

61,981. Did you see whether they set his name down?—No, I did not.

61,982. When you asked them to do it, what did they say? that they would or would not?—I cannot say. Most likely they would. There were many of them in the room; Mr. Cattley and others.

61,983. Did you take him up with you?—Yes, very likely.

61,984. Did you say, "Here is Ben, who is an active man"?—I most likely said, "Here is a man who wants to be put down as a runner;" most probably.

61,985. Did you leave him there?—Yes, I think I did.

61,986. Can you give us any general information?—No, I cannot.

61,987. Have you anything to tell us about the orange?—No; I know nothing at all about them.

61,988. Nor about the blues?—Nor about the blues

61,989. Do not you think you can tell us something?—No, I cannot, indeed.

61,990. Have you a person in your employ of the name of James Booth?—No, I think not.

61,991. Henry Prior?—Yes.

61,992. And a person of the name of Cooper?—I do not know a quarter part of their names. I do not pay them their wages myself, or anything of that sort.

61,993. Thomas Smith?—Yes. John Morrison too; he is my foreman; his father was my foreman fifty years ago; the son is my foreman now. You had him here, and examined him.

61,994. Did you give Clarkson a note?—I do not think I did; I went with him.

61,995. You went with him to Saville Street?—Yes.

61,996. To the blue committee there?—Yes; I met with him in Saville Street.

Mr. JAMES TALL sworn, and examined.

Mr. James Tall.

27th July 1853.

61,997. Where do you live?—Church Street, Wincolmlee.

61,998. What is your business?—A merchant.

61,999. What rent do you pay for a house?—£15.

62,000. Are you a freeman also?—Yes.

62,001. When were you made a freeman?—It would be just before O'Neil's election; I forget the year just now.

62,002. At your own expense?—Yes.

62,003. In the year 1841, did you vote for Hanmer and James?—Yes.

62,004. Were you on any committee?—Yes, I believe I was.

62,005. Were did you act then?—In East Sculcoates.

62,006. Were you chairman or deputy chairman?—Neither chairman or deputy chairman; simply a committee man.

62,007. Who is your chairman?—John Tall.

62,008. Your brother?—Yes.

62,009. And the deputy?—Mr. Charles Yeall.

62,010. Did you set any names down at the committee that election?—I canvassed several voters; I never set any down myself.

62,011. When they wanted running or employment, did you send them to your committee room?—Yes.

62,012. That was your general course?—Yes.

62,013. You could not particlarize names?—No, that I could not.

62,014. How many do you suppose you sent?—I sent all I could get hold of; I do not know how many.

62,015. You mean you sent them to have their names set down as runners?—Yes; or doorkeepers, or messengers; whatever they were called.

62,016. When were the payments made to the people at that election?—I do not know anything at all about the payments.

62,017. When were they paid?—I do not know when or who paid them.

62,018. Were they not paid at Mr. Linwood's?—They might be, but I do not know; I had nothing to do with the payments.

62,019. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Brown and Baines.

62,020. Did you act for them as a committee man?—Yes, I believe so.

62,021. At which room?—At the East Sculcoates.

62,022. You acted for both?—Yes, for both.

62,023. Who was the chairman at your room?—Mr. Charles Yeall.

62,024. And the vice?—I believe I was nominally the vice, but I did not take any active part in the room.

62,025. Which committee are you speaking of?—Brown or Baines's committee?—We acted for both at one committee room.

62,026. There was but little time to arrange the election? What was the general course taken, as far as your knowledge goes, for securing the voters of that class I have mentioned, the runners and messengers, at that election?—The old course; different parties went round to canvass the districts in the usual way.

62,027. Was there time to set names down?—Yes; there was a day or two; time enough; but it was done in a hurry.

62,028. Was that course adopted at that election at your committee room, of putting people down as runners and messengers for payment?—Yes, I believe it was.

62,029. Did you send them to be set down again?—I should send them, I have no doubt of it.

62,030. Do you know anything of the payments at that election?—No; I never had anything to do with the payments at all.

62,031. Your chairman has shown us sums to the amount of 100*l.* and odd; do you know anything of it personally?—No.

62,032. We think you are mistaken in saying there was a joint committee for Baines and Brown; we understood the committees were separate?—To the best of my recollection, it was not so.

62,033. Was not Mr. Baines in the field long before Mr. Brown was thought of, or his committee organized?—Yes; he was long in the field before, but I think we acted in concert for both,

62,034. How could you be acting in concert?—I took very little part in it; there was nobody of my colour, and I did not care anything about it.

62,035. Did you act on any committee until after Mr. Brown came?—I could not answer that question.

62,036. We have a list of the committee rooms of Mr. Brown, and you are put down as the deputy chairman for Mr. Brown only?—I cannot say, but I expect we acted for both Baines and Brown.

62,037. There would not be much doing until Mr. Brown was announced as a candidate?—No, very little; until there was an opposition in the field there would be nothing wanted.

62,038. Do you know if you attended any committee before the Monday in the election week?—I am sure I cannot remember.

Mr. James Tall.

27th July 1853.

62,039. Can you tell how many days the committee room was open?—I could not say whether it was a week or a fortnight.

62,040. You would not say; it might have been a separate room for Mr. Brown?—I am not quite eure; but I think they would be together.

62,041. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

62,042. I think you were then deputy chairman of Mr. Yeall?—Yes.

62,043. At which room was that?—East Sculcoates.

62,044. Were you in attendance pretty often at the committee room?—Very seldom.

62,045. Did you canvass out of doors?—Out of doors was my department.

62,046. Did you send people to be set down who applied to you as you have mentioned?—Yes.

62,047. How many do you think you might have sent of that kind of applicants at that election?—I really could not say.

62,048. How long were you canvassing; a few days or weeks?—A fortnight, perhaps, before the election; I cannot tell exactly.

62,049. Should you say that you sent forty or fifty?—It is very likely that I did, I should think.

62,050. To be set down as runners?—To be set down as runners.

62,051. And who would expect to be paid?—Yes; they would expect so too.

62,052. I suppose they understood you, and you understood them?—Yes; it was always perfectly understood.

62,053. Do you recollect paying a man of the name of Edward Ellerker?—I never paid a penny in my life.

62,054. We are told that you paid him 10*s.*, and lent him 7*s.* afterwards?—No, I never did.

62,055. Do you know the man?—Yes. A friend came and said he was very badly off; if we could put him on as a doorkeeper. We had him a fortnight; but he got better pay somewhere else, and walked off the day of the election.

62,056. Did you not lend him 7*s.*?—No, I never lent him a penny.

62,057. Are you sure of that?—Yes, quite sure; never a penny passed through my fingers.

63,058. Not in the nature of a payment, but whether you lent him 7*s.*?—Not that I recollect that I did; in fact I feel convinced that I did not.

62,059. Do you know a man of the name of William Watson, a freeman, of Church Lane?—I know some Watson; but I cannot call to mind. There are two or three of them.

62,060. This relates to the 1841 election; do you remember whether you paid William Watson, a freeman, of Church Lane, in 1841, 20*s.*, for James and Hanmer, at a public house in Machell Street?—No, I do not remember it.

62,061. You say Ellerker went away?—Yes.

62,062. And carried his vote in his pocket?—Yes.

62,063. And gave it to the other party?—Yes.

62,064. When he left you, I dare say you did not think he would vote for you?—I did not know that he had left us until the morning of the election.

62,065. Do you know how he came to leave you?—I never spoke to him afterwards upon the subject.

62,066. Have you heard about the means?—I have no doubt about the means.

62,067. Can you give us any information about the means?—I cannot.

62,068. When you say you have no doubt, that is the impression of your mind?—That is my impression.

62,069. And not beyond that?—Not beyond that.

62,070. We hear a good many of the blue parties were defaulters the morning of the election?—A very great many.

62,071. Can you give us any information as to how that came about?—I cannot, indeed.

62,072. Have you not become acquainted with the means employed since the election?—Nothing that I could speak from, but from report, or from what I have seen in the examinations here.

62,073. As to how it was done, and where the people were met with, do not you know anything of that?—No.

62,074. We understand they had duties appointed for them, and the next morning they were absentees; why was that?—I do not know at all how it was brought about.

62,075. You were active at the committee?—Yes; I was active canvassing the morning of the election.

62,076. You do not know how your men came to be deserters?—I feel no doubt how it was, but I cannot speak further.

62,077. Supposing Ellerker was employed by the orange, would it not be in the usual course of things that the man took his vote to where his employment went?—Yes.

62,078. The vote is considered as an appendage to the employment?—Yes.

62,079. If he had remained with you you would have expected him to vote blue?—Yes.

62,080. And if he was employed elsewhere you would expect him to vote elsewhere?—Yes.

Captain SAMUEL STANDIDGE WALTON sworn, and examined.

Captain S. S. Walton.

27th July 1853.

62,081. Where do you live?—No. 11, Worship Street.

62,082. What are you?—A captain in the army.

62,083. Are you on half pay?—No; I am on full pay.

62,084. In what regiment are you?—In the East Yorkshire Militia.

62,085. Have you been a voter for the blues for some time?—Above forty years.

62,086. Are you a freeman?—I am a freeman.

62,087. When did you take up your freedom?—In 1815.

62,088. At your own expense, I suppose?—Yes; at my own expense.

62,089. What rent do you pay?—It is my own property.

63,090. What are you rated at?—I am rated for the house and other premises at about from 40*l.* to 50*l.* a year.

62,091. In the year 1841, did you vote?—I did.

62.092. Whom did you vote for?—Clay and Thompson.

62,093. Were you on a committee for those gentlemen?—I was on Colonel Thompson's committee.

62,094. Where did the committee you acted upon meet?—At the Kingston Hotel.

62,095. Were you the chairman?—No.

63,096. Who acted as chairman for Colonel Thompson?—I think Mr. John Peck, but I cannot speak positively.

62,097. The general committee sat there?—Yes.

62,098. Do you know whether, at that committee, the course we have been adverting to of setting down names was at all in use?—I do not know that it was in use particularly at that time. I was employed with Colonel Thompson in going round to canvass the outside of the town, and I interfered very little with it.

62,099. You went round with the colonel to canvass?—Yes.

62,100. Do you recollect if they made applications to you to be put down as runners or messengers?—There were very few put down at that election; we had scarcely sufficient for the general committee room.

62,101. Did they make applications to you?—The applications would be made to Mr. John Peck.

62,102. Supposing they made applications to the colonel and, you what would you do?—Send them to Mr. Peck.

62,103. Do you recollect if you did send any of them?—Probably there might be a few.

62,104. Mr. Peck was the chairman?—He was the principal active man upon the committee.

62,105. To be set down for employment as runners?—As runners, doorkeepers, and messengers.

62,106. I suppose you canvassed principally among the voters?—Yes; principally amongst the voters.

62,107. You had some means of directing your attention to those who were voters?—Yes.

62,108. You had a canvass book?—I had canvassed several elections before, and I knew the town very well; living all my life in it, I was nearly acquainted with everybody, and everybody with me.

62,109. Your application was amongst the voters?—Among the freemen at that time.

62,110. They are the class, we have generally understood, who have been largely engaged as runners at elections?—Principally so.

62,111. If a voter of that kind, a freeman, said he wanted employment as a runner or a messenger, you would send him to Mr. Peck?—I should.

62,112. Who else went round with you?—I am sure I forget just now.

62,113. Did those people make application of the colonel?—No; they would most likely speak to myself, and I should hand them over to Mr. Peck.

62,114. In the colonel's presence?—Yes.

62,115. The colonel would not be personally applied to?—The colonel never interfered in anything; he left it entirely to Mr. Peck.

62,116. Did he hear what was going on?—No, I should think not; they would generally pull me on one side and say, "Put me on as a runner," and I said, "Go to Mr. Peck."

62,117. And I suppose the colonel said, "What secret did that man have with you?"—No; he never inquired into that at all.

62,118. He did not inquire into your secrets?—No.

62,119. But you told him probably what they were?—No; I never told the colonel, for he never made any inquiry.

62,120. Did those sort of takings aside happen often?—No; I suppose we should not have above twenty or thirty runners at the time of that election, for all the time.

62,121. Do you know whether the course was to send them all to Mr. Peck?—I invariably did so myself.

Captain S. S. Walton.

27th July 1853.

62,122. Wherever they might be found?—Wherever I met them, if they spoke to me, I said, "Go to Mr. Peck, and make use of my name."

62,123. We understand sometimes they were sent to the different districts?—There were none of that kind. The general committee was at the Kingston Hotel; we all concentrated there from our canvass. We had no district committee rooms at that time.

62,124. In your judgment, you think the total number of runners and messengers would be somewhere about thirty?—I should think not more; not in the colonel's department. It was a very easy moderate election; he employed a very few persons.

62,125. His canvass commenced very early?—Very early.

62,126. And you had time to do it quietly?—Yes; I should think the most expensive part the old colonel had was his dinners; he used to give us good dinners.

62,127. And people partook of his hospitality in that way?—Sometimes they would sit down twenty or thirty, sometimes ten, and sometimes sixteen, according as the canvassers came in.

62,128. Do you know whether the persons that you sent were employed as runners? That I could not say; very few of them were.

62,129. Were there more sent than could be employed; more than you wanted?—No, I should think not. They all knew the colonel's principles; he objected very much to putting on runners, and we did with as few as we possibly could; in fact, we had not sufficient to take care of the committee room doors when there was a great pressure from without.

62,130. Were some of the freemen employed as runners?—They were principally freemen.

62,131. Should you say entirely?—I should think they were nearly.

62,132. Could you mention any persom employed as a runner to the best of your memory that was not a freeman?—No; it is so far back that I cannot recollect the names If I had anything to assist my memory I could tell you several of them.

62,133. They were all voters?—Principally; those about the committee rooms were all voters.

62,134. Do you remember a man of the name of John Burn, a doorkeeper?—Yes; there was a man of that name.

62,135. What do you think would enable you to furnish us with a list? Could you do it by any book that we have?—There was a stout man,—I do not recollect his name just now,—he was a general doorkeeper at almost all elections.

62,136. Was it Mr. Steeple?—No; this was a man in a lower grade of society.

62,137. Can you remember any others?—Yes; I recollect one very well now,—an old trump of a man, as I used to call him,—William Altass, he has been upon my staff for the last forty years; but, poor fellow, he is dead and gone now.

62,138. At the 1841 election, did you make some few payments?—Not any; I had nothing to do with payments.

62,139. Do you remember if you gave a man of the name of Jefferson anything for a room?—No. What election would that be for?

62,140. Colonel Thompson's—the same I am speaking of,—the election of 1841. I am told there was a room had of him?—William Jefferson got paid this last election for the room; it was the election prior to the last that he got paid for. You have my papers and you will see it there.

62,141. He has said that the room was taken in 1841, and he was paid for it at the last election?—He was paid for it prior to the last election.

62,142. He has said that the room was engaged in 1841, and I understand you to say he was paid at the last election for that room?—I knew nothing about what was done at the last election in the paying department. This room that he was paid for was for the election prior to 1852.

62,143. In 1847, you think?—In 1847.

62,144. He says it was for 1841?—That I could not speak positively to. He got paid for it prior to the election of 1852; he applied to me several times about it.

62,145. Did you send some people with notes to Mr. Atkinson for payment?—Yes, I did; I should think probably six or eight, and he was one among the rest.

62,146. What election had those notes reference to?—Not to this unseated election, but to the election prior to the last.

62,147. The notes that you sent had reference to the 1847 election?—Yes; which election I had nothing to do with; that is the election that they got paid for.

62,148. My last question is this: whether you sent some notes to Mr. Atkinson for persons to get payment with reference to a back election?—It was for the back election.

62,149. Which was it?—That I cannot speak positively to now.

62,150. You say you had nothing to do with the 1847 election?—I had nothing to do with Brown's election, nothing in the world.

62,151. Then the election with which you had to do with was this 1841 election?—Yes; I voted for Baines and Clay in 1847.

62,152. When you sent persons with tickets in 1852, must not those tickets have had reference to the election of 1841, in which you were engaged?—No; the parties came to me, and said they wanted it for the last election.

62,153. You think it had reference to the last election; that is what they said?—Yes.

62,154. Where did William Altass live?—He lodged at my back door where I live; he was an old freeman.

62,155. Was he a voter?—Yes.

62,156. There are two William Altass in 1841?—Yes; that was either the son or nephew.

62,157. And both of them were runners for Hanmer and James?—William Altass was upon our committee in East Sculcoates; we had him there employed as a runner.

62,158. Then he was a non-voter?—No; he was an old freeman.

62,159. There was no William Altass a freeman who voted in 1841 at all for Colonel Thompson?—Then I have made a mistake in the year. He was a man who was in the habit of going to sea sometimes, and he might have been away at that time.

62,160. At this election of Colonel Thompson's, did you make any payments?—Not any at Colonel Thompson's election.

62,161. I hear you are very accurate with regard to keeping your accounts of payments, memorandums, and so on?—I never had anything to do with them.

62,162. Did you make any payments at that election in 1841?—Not any. I was merely a canvasser.

62,163. In 1847 did you vote?—I voted for Clay and Baines; but I had nothing to do either as a canvasser or anything else; in fact, I was disgusted with some proceedings at that time, and I never took any active part whatever,—I merely went and voted.

62,164. Did you not look up a few?—No; I never asked a single friend or foe.

62,165. Did you pay any money at that election?—None whatever.

62,166. Had the disgust that seems to have acted upon you any connexion, or anything at all to do with election matters?—No, nothing whatever; it was merely a little private matter.

62,167. In 1852 you voted for Clay and Goderich?—I did.

62,168. I believe you canvassed for them?—Yes.

62,169. Were you upon the committee?—I was on the East Sculcoates' committee.

62,170. Were you chairman, or deputy chairman?—No; no more than canvassing.

62,171. Out-of-door canvassing?—I went out canvassing frequently in the evening with Mr. Jebson, a plumber and glazier.

62,172. Did you give notes to these people I have been alluding to, to take to Mr. Atkinson for back payment?—This was prior to the commencement of forming the committees. These parties came to me somewhere about the time when the writ was going to be issued, and said they wished to be settled with for the last election. I said, "I do not know how you can get it, but if a note will be of any service to you, you may use my name, and you may take it to Mr. Galloway;" and I really wrote these little notes saying "Please pay the bearer,"—knowing they had been runners.

62,173. And knowing they were in your interest?—Yes.

62,174. And you did it partly to secure their votes for the coming election?—No doubt that is so.

62,175. Do you think they also understood it in that sense?—No doubt they did.

62,176. They were to have the benefit of the payment, and you were to have the benefit of the vote at the coming election?—Yes.

62,177. How many do you think you sent?—I do not know whether I should have got beyond eight, I cannot positively say, but I think it would not exceed ten.

62,178. You recommended some rather highly; "William Clayburn voted a plumper, a good trump"?—Yes; and some I called "a good brick." Those are men that had been in our interest before.

62,179. You rather gathered from those people that they would not vote for you unless the back money was actually paid?—Of course they would tell me so.

62,180. And you did not scrutinize the claims very closely?—I knew the men to be runners, and I have seen them in my own district.

52,181. But they seem not to have run fast enough in this respect; a day of payment had been appointed for those people before?—Yes; but I do not know what was the reason they did not get paid.

62,182. Do you think they got it twice over, some of them?—I am not aware of it; none of those parties that I signed for, to my knowledge.

62,183. They might have got it before and not have told you?—No; because there was one or two of them brought a message from Mr. Atkinson, to say if I would give a note to say that they were entitled to it, they should have it.

62,184. There seems to have been a proclamation or announcement that people were to come in and get paid after the 1847 election; but some seem to have been omitted in some way?—There were several, I understood, who were omitted,—I do not know on what ground. I had nothing to do with the money department. The only transaction I had was that of signing those papers which you have seen.

62,185. You had no means of ascertaining the validity of their claims, inasmuch as you yourself had no personal knowledge of the fact?—I had no personal knowledge of the fact.

Captain S. S. Walton.

27th July 1853.

62,186. You relied on their statements?—Yes; only I knew the men,—they were all men in my own immediate neighbourhood, and who belonged to my own immediate district.

62,187. Had you personal knowledge of the fact?—They were men I had confidence in.

62,188. You relied on their statements?—They had not been paid before, except in two instances. I had a message or note from Mr. Atkinson to say, if I would send a note with the bearer he would settle it, if I would state it was correct.

62,189. In other words, you in no case relied upon your own knowledge?—Exactly.

62,190. I ask, whether your note which you sent amounted to an absolute authority to pay, or whether it was a mere recommendation, or amounted to an inquiry and an investigation by them; did it amount to any authority to pay?—No; I merely certified that these parties were runners upon that occasion.

62,191. And they were to investigate?—Yes; they would investigate when they got to the committee room.

62,192. In 1852, did you make any payments yourself?—None whatever.

62,193. Did you canvass personally with Lord Goderich and Mr. Clay?—I used to take the East Sculcoates' district of an evening from six to nine, or six to ten o'clock, as we could catch the parties at home; and in the daytime occasionally go with Lord Goderich and Mr. Clay.

62,194. In the course of your canvassing with those gentlemen did these people take you aside in the same way?—I used generally to go out with them in districts where I was not so well known; I have gone down to Witham district,—that is a part I do not interfere with.

62,195. They knew Captain Walton?—Yes; my family name is known there, and my family property lies there,—that is the reason.

62,196. At this time the borough had been pretty well canvassed?—Yes.

62,197. And you had a return of those who had promised and those who were doubtful?—Yes; we should probably go round among some of the doubtful.

62,198. When you got among the doubtful people, did they not press a little for employment in the running way?—Some of them would.

62,199. What was said to them then?—Mr. Clay was a most excellent electioneerer, and he would generally get them off with fair words.

62,200. How would he get them off?—He would say something very pleasant, and probably say he would see if anything could be done for them.

62,201. If a person applied to be set down for a runner, what would he say?—He would evade it for the moment, and very likely turn them over to the general committee.

62,202. Who would report such things to the committee?—Probably myself, or the others out with them canvassing.

62,203. He did not himself personally entertain it?—No; he never did.

62,204. Not beyond the extent of saying he would speak to the committee?—Not beyond that extent.

62,205. Did you take down the names of those?—Some few. The parties who had canvassed the district would put down the names doubtful, and transfer them over to the committee.

62,206. And when you were with the candidates, you would most likely direct your attention to those people?—Yes.

62,207. There would not be so much occasion to go to those who had actually promised?—Of course.

62,208. I suppose, when the applications and canvassing were going on, the running and employment must have been refered to?—Most likely it would.

62,209. It seems to have been one of the oldest customs, if I may so call it?—Yes; it is nothing in the present day,—when I first knew electioneering in O'Neil's time, I think I had not less than 700 runners, to whom I paid 7*s.* a day.

62,210. For how many days?—I think that election cost 12,000*l.*

62,211. How many times do you suppose you canvassed upon this last occasion with the candidates?—I should think four or five times, not more.

62,212. And principally among the doubtful people?—Yes.

62,213. Mr. Clay you say had had some experience in Hull?—Yes.

62,214. And was clever in putting them by?—Yes.

62,215. Did Lord Goderich seem clever in putting them by?—Yes.

62,216. Did Lord Goderich seem green?—Not so clever as Mr. Clay.

62,217. Green in electioneering I mean?—He was much more so than Mr. Clay; if there were any difficult cases he would generally turn them over to Mr. Clay.

62,218. What do you call a difficult case?—If a man was pressing for more than he would like.

62,219. Pressing for what?—If he wanted a situation as a runner, and saying, "I hope if you are returned you probably will not forget a situation in the customs," and Mr. Clay was a man who could evade the thing better than Lord Goderich could.

62,220. Did some one press for money to build a house, of his lordship?—I do not remember

92,221 You were not present?—No.

62,222. You say if they pressed Lord Goderich too much, Mr. Clay took them in hand?—He was better able to take them in hand; he was a better fencer.

62,223. What committee room would they be principally directed to, these applications?—I think Mr. Galloway's; they would be sent to Bishop Lane; in fact, all applications that we had at the Sculcoates committee room we generally sent down to the central committee room, in Bishop Lane.

62,224. Of that kind?—Yes; the chairmen of the district committees never interfered with them.

62,225. And then they got on to Mr. Wilde's?—I do not know how they managed that.

62,226. Did you send them over to Wilde's?—No; I had nothing to do with Wilde, neither directly nor indirectly. I never heard of it till I saw it in the paper.

62,227. It was only a setting down place, not a pay place?—I never went into the place, or put my head in it.

62,228. You did not direct anybody to go there?—No.

62,229. Do you know anything of the money matters of Lord Goderich and Mr. Clay?—No; I had nothing to do with it; I merely assisted in canvassing.

62,230. When canvassing with his Lordship and Mr. Clay, did persons press also for committee rooms?—There have been instances of that kind, but they were generally referred to the central committee room.

62,231. That would be the course?—Yes.

62,232. You remember such instances?—Yes; several parties applied to have committee rooms.

62,233. Among the doubtful persons whom you canvassed?—Yes.

62,234. What was the nature of the application? what was the mode in which it was proffered?—We generally sent them over to the central committee room.

62,235. What was the nature of the application?—I do not recollect above one instance, and that was Haller, of New George Street.

62,236. My question to you was, whether, when you were canvassing any person or persons, they made application to you to have a committee room taken, or a room used as a committee room?—No; not in our canvass; we never met with anything of that kind. There were parties that used to come to our committee room, that I have mentioned now.

62,237. What did you do with them, when they made applications of that sort?—The chairman sent a note with them to the central committee room, and left them in the hands of the chairman there; we had not the power of appointing these additional committee rooms.

62,238. I have asked you, or intended to ask you, whether, when you were canvassing—I confine myself to that distinctly—when canvassing with Lord Goderich and Mr. Clay, did these persons make applications to be set down as runners occasionally?—They did not do it to the candidates; they would very likely do it. Mr. Jalland was with us once or twice.

62,239. I understood you to say that they did it personally to the members?—Not to the members.

62,240. But when you were canvassing with them, you said, on a former occasion, they used to draw you a little aside?—That was in Colonel Thompson's time.

62,241. Did they do the same on this occasion?—No.

62,242. How was it done?—The town was divided into committees, and we only took our own district, and in Colonel Thompson's time it was a general canvass.

62,243. I understood you to tell me, when applications were made of this kind, for messengers or runners, Mr. Clay sometimes said, "We will see about it"?—Probably we might meet with a man in the street, who might say, "I should like to be put on as a runner;" and he might say, "Well, my boy, you can go on to the committee room, and see what they can do for you."

62,244. Then application would be made to the candidates themselves?—They might be.

62,245. You said just now it would not be to the candidates?—I could not speak positively.

62,246. You also said—I do not know whether you intended it—that when persons were more pressing than you thought they should be to Lord Goderich, that he handed them over to Mr. Clay?—There were instances when they were making applications which they should not do; a man would say, "I wish you, gentlemen, when you get into the House of Commons, will get me a situation as a Custom House officer, or get me into some Government employment;" and Mr. Clay was a man who could fence with them better than Lord Goderich, upon those points.

62,247. They would make these sort of applications from time to time to the candidates personally?—They might do it occasionally.

62,248. Are you speaking of what passed in your own presence, and of your own knowledge?—I am speaking, of course, of what passed in my own presence.

62,249. Mr. Clay fenced better, I think was your expression, than Lord Goderich, and therefore you turned them over to Mr. Clay?—Yes.

62,250. Applications for situations?—Yes; they were principally for Government situations.

Captain S. S. Walton.

27th July 1853.

62,251. Do you remember whether you mentioned at all to Lord Goderich or Mr. Clay that there were persons pressing for back money, at any time?—No, I never named it to them.

62,252. You are sure?—No; I do not think any one knew anything at all about it, except those who formed the committee in King Street.

62,253. As to the notes?—I never mentioned it to any one.

62,254. You have had a good deal of knowledge of elections?—I am sorry to say too much.

62,255. Was the last election of 1852, in your judgment, more expensive than the one of 1847, or 1841?—I interfered very little in it, except what I have told you about canvassing. I interfered in it very little indeed.

62,256. I want to understand what your answer is about the runners. Do you recollect any instances in which men applied to either of the candidates, for employment as messengers?—I do not think they did; they had no occasion; they always did go to the committee rooms; they came there.

62,257. Can you say there was never any applications of that sort?—The only application made in my hearing direct, was with respect to Government situations; that was the only thing that I know of.

62,258. Allow me to ask you what you mean by the answer you gave me. You told me distinctly, more than once, that when applications were made for runners or employment, that they were directed to go to the committee rooms—when canvassing with the candidates?—The applications were generally made to myself, or to Mr. Jalland, if out in that district, or to the others when we had some other members of the committee, but there was nothing of this sort done in the presence of the candidates.

62,259. Not done in their presence?—No.

62,260. You said on one or two occasions it was a personal application made, and Mr. Clay said, "We will see about it," or sent them to the committee?—What I was alluding to was with respect to Government situations.

62,261. Not as to runners or messengers?—Not as to runners or messengers, that was all left entirely to the committees; they never interfered with those minor matters.

62,262. Do you believe that in the election of 1841 you had any deficiency of runners, so as to create any loss in the ultimate result of the election?—No; we had not sufficient.

62,263. Can you point out in any way how the defeat of Colonel Thompson in 1841 was to be attributed to the lack of runners unless it was that there was not a sufficient number of persons paid?—At that election, as at all other elections, I believe there was a great deal of money given away upon the other side.

62,264. Throw out of consideration anything upon the other side, and listen to the number of votes: Colonel Thompson polled 1,645 votes?—Yes.

62,265. I can understand, if he had employed 500 more runners, he would have got 499 more voters probably?—He would, most likely.

62,266. But that would be by means of the influence created by the runners?—Certainly.

62,267. Independent of that influence, can you say this in any way; was Colonel Thompson's position upon the poll influenced by the non-employment of runners?—It was; for want of having those additional runners.

62,268. Take one thing at a time. He would have got 499 more voters if he employed 499 more runners?—Yes.

62,269. In that way, therefore, the non-employment may be said to have lost his election. Take now the non-employment of runners in any other way; did it interfere with his success?—I cannot say.

62,270. Should you say it had any effect upon the general result?—The colonel did not take the same steps that the other parties did.

62,271. I am talking for the legitimate transactions of the election. Did he lose his election for want of messages being carried?—No.

62,272. Do you think he in any way lost a single vote, for the want of having a person to go a message?—No.

62,273. Then I ask, in point of fact, if he had used an additional number of messengers, would he have had an additional number of voters?—Certainly.

E. Stephenson.

EDWARD STEPHENSON recalled, and examined.

62,274. Have you got the names?—Yes; there are five. (The witness hands in a paper.)

62,275. Are there not some more?—Not that I know of; there were some more, but I do not know any of them.

62,276. You do not know any more at all?—No.

62,277. They were paid at your house?—Yes; I think they were; they were in the room, and they were paying the money there, and I believe some of them were paid. I do not know what they got, or anything about it, but they paid in the room.

JOHNSON WATKINSON sworn, and examined.

J. Watkinson.

27th July 1853.

62,278. Where do you live?—64, Humber Street.

62,279. Is that the Shakespeare Tavern?—The Shakespeare Hotel it is called.

62,280. What rent do you pay?—£75, I believe, is the standing rent.

62,281. Are you a freeman?—No.

62,282. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—Ever since the Reform Bill.

62,283. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Yes.

62,284. Who for?—Hanmer and James.

62,285. Were you on any committee at that election?—No.

62,286. Was any room engaged at your house?—No; I was in private business; I was not in the public line then.

62,287. Did you canvass any people at that election?—No.

62,288. Did you make any communication?—No.

62,289. Can you give us any information as to that election?—No; it was only as a private committee man I went to vote.

62,290. Nothing else?—Nothing else.

62,291. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

62,292. Were you then on any committee?—No.

62,293. Are you a publican?—Yes.

62,294. Was your room engaged?—I believe it was for a few days. I do not remember exactly how long it was.

62,295. Which party engaged your room?—Baines and Brown.

62,296. Baines or Brown?—I think it was both; both the names were put on the wall. I do not remember which it was that put them, the placards,

62,297. Who was the chairman of the committee there, was there any one?—I am sure I do not remember. I did not take any active part in it; they only used one of my rooms.

62,298. What did you get for your room?—I forget what they paid me.

62,299. Ten pounds?—Oh dear no; nothing of the kind.

62,300. You have some money?—I think about 2*l.*; it was only for a few days. They used only one of the rooms.

62,301. Did any of the people meet there?—The committee and several of the friends came backwards and forwards.

62,302. Who were the the committee?—I cannot remember.

62,303. Cannot you give us any names?—I could not, indeed.

62,304. What did they do in the room?—Merely the writing department, and took names down; it was just the close of the election.

62,305. Who paid you for it?—I cannot remember that, I am sure. I think it was sent to the central committee, and I forget who was the chairman there.

62,306. You remember where you were sent to, do you not?—I believe I was in Bowl Alley Lane.

62,307. Were you paid after the election?—Yes.

62,308. And you think it was 2*l.*?—I think it was, as near as I can remember; it was only a short time they used it.

62,309. Did you get any list of the committee?—No; I never took any active part in it.

62,310. Had you a list of the committee to meet at your house?—No.

62,311. Anybody might come in?—There was one gentleman there and a doorkeeper. They would not pass anybody but what was proper.

62,312. Had you any committee or not on that occasion?—I believe it was considered a committee.

62,313. You cannot tell who they were?—I do not remember.

62,314. Had you no list of them?—I had no list. I was not much at home.

62,315. You said you were paid at Bowl Alley Lane?—Yes.

62,316. Who engaged the room, or took it of you?—I do not remember.

62,317. Where was it done?—Done at my own house. Some persons came, and said could I let them have a room, as they wanted one in that district. They only used one room in my house. My house is large.

62,318. Was it on the nomination day?—Yes; I think it would be.

62,319. They knew you would vote for them?—Yes.

62,320. Did you have a flag and a poll?—I had a poll of my own, and they put a flag on it.

62,321. When they took it they sent you a flag?—Yes; and one of the men put it up.

62,322. In 1852, who did you vote for at the last election?—Moore and Butler.

62,323. You had a room then, had you not, engaged?—There are two rooms thrown into one, a commercial room and a traveller's room both thrown into one, to accommodate them.

62,324. Who engaged it?—Mr. Edwin Davis.

62,325. On what terms?—When he first came to me he told me it would be 15*s.*, and I understood him it would be 15*s.* a day. When he came again he was telling me something about 15*s.* a week; I said, "I shall not let you have it; I can make better of my rooms; I shall be obliged to deprive some of my travellers of accommodation." Then he said, "We will give you the same as the others." I said, "What is that?" he said, "7*s.* 6*d.* a day for six days in the week."

J. Walkinson.

27th July 1853.

62,326. That was the arrangement?—That I agreed to.

62,327. When did Mr. Davis engage it?—I should say a fortnight or three weeks before the election.

62,328. I thought you said the engagement was, you were to have 7*s.* 6*d.* a day for the last six days?—No; six days in the week as long as it was wanted.

62,329. Did he send you a list of the committee men?—He did not send it to me.

62,330. Did he send it to your house?—I saw them at different times in the committee room.

62,331. Who were the committee that met there?—I could not say all the names. I could mention a few names that met there.

62,332. I believe the committee met and some gentlemen or other every day?—Every day, from nine o'clock in the morning till sometimes ten or eleven at night.

62,333. And did some of them go out canvassing?—Yes.

62,334. And did some parties come there to get their names set down?—I believe they did, but I was not present in the room; I had my own business to attend to.

62,335. You were not in the room much?—Not much; only on two or three occasions I was in.

62,336. Who was the principal chairman there?—Mr. Davis.

62,337. Was there a man of the name of Robert Headley, a ship carpenter, there a good deal?—There was a ship carpenter there, but I did not know his name. There were two ships' carpenters, I believe, one of the name of Watson.

62,338. They have called your room frequently a setting-down room for the blues?—Probably they might.

62,339. Did the people come there for that purpose?—I believe they did.

62,340. You were not in the room?—Not much.

62,341. Did the voters also have refreshments at your house?—No.

62,342. Had you a bill for refreshments?—No.

62,343. Did you get any money besides the 7*s.* 6*d.* a day for your room?—No.

62,344. When was that paid?—About a week after the close of the election. I had it perhaps a fortnight after the close of the election.

62,345. Did you canvass yourself?—A little. I was two afternoons out.

62,346. Did you get some people, or send them to have their names set down?—No; I never sent any one to have their names set down; we only went to ask them which way they intended to vote.

62,347. You took them down yourself?—I had a list of names in a book.

62,348. They gave you some particular people to apply to?—Yes; I took one particular district, Mytongate and Blackfriargate.

62,349. Among those you canvassed did some apply to you to have their names set down?—They might; a Mr. Calvert, of High Street, a merchant.

62,350. Was he a committee man?—I think he was vice-chairman sometimes.

62,351. At this room?—Yes; I think at my room. I think he was vice-chairman sometimes. We had not Mr. Davis always, and they changed about.

62,352. On the two occasions you canvassed did he go with you?—He went on one occasion.

62,353. And who went with you the other time?—Mr. Hillden, a painter.

62,354. Did you canvass before or after they took your room?—It was some time after they had taken the room; they had many meetings before the election took place; in fact, they were every day there, more or less; a greater quantity or a less quantity.

62,355. Was it a little before the election that you canvassed, or a few days before the election?—Yes; it was only about two days.

62,356. The first time?—The first time perhaps might be three days before the election; the second time the day before the election.

62,357. Did persons apply to you for rooms also?—There was no person applied to me.

62,358. For sham committee rooms when you were about canvassing?—No.

62,359. Or to Mr. Calvert?—No.

62,360. Or to the other gentlemen in your presence?—No.

62,361. Do you remember any application of that kind being made at the Shakspeare?—No; I do not remember any such one being made.

62,362. Before your room was taken had you been canvassed for your vote?—No; I never was canvassed for my vote; the gentlemen knew my principles entirely; they never asked me for my vote at all.

62,363. Were you a member of the committee before your own room was engaged?—No.

62,364. You joined the committee on their taking your room?—They requested me, after they had been sitting for some few days, to join them, if I had a little spare time.

62,365. Your name is on the original list of the committee; how is that?—

J. Watkinson.

27th July 1853.

Probably they would put it down so, but I did not take any very active part. I had not an opportunity; I was on my own business.

62,366. They would not put you down without your consent?—Certainly not; but there were a many set down who did not attend.

62,367. You joined a committee as soon as it was formed, but did not begin to act until a few days afterwards?—That is so. I believe the committee was formed at the commencement.

62,368. You have given a very accurate description of the committee in 1852, was it the same in 1847?—I could not say. I did not take any part in it, therefore I saw nothing of the parties.

62,369. You cannot give us the names of any of the committee men?—I cannot say. I was not in the room, and I have forgotten who was the chairman, I am sure, positively.

Rev. H. Ward.

The Reverend HENRY WARD sworn, and examined.

62,370. I believe you are a clergyman in Hull?—Yes.

62,371. Which is your incumbency?—St. Mark's.

62,372. You have been the incumbent for some time?—Ten years.

62,373. Were you entitled to vote at the election of 1841?—No; I was not here.

62,374. You are not a freeman, I presume?—No.

62,375. At the election of 1847, did you vote?—I voted for Baines and Brown, I believe.

62,376. Did you take any part upon the committee at that election?—Never.

62,377. Did you canvass at all for Mr. Baines or Mr. Brown?—Never.

62,378. Did you do anything at that election except vote?—No, nothing.

62,379. In the interest of those gentlemen?—Nothing.

62,380. Did you make any payments to any person?—No; I felt in the first place that I had no very great interest in the election; I did not take any interest in the election; I did nothing of the kind.

62,381. At that election did you canvass any person at all?—Most assuredly not.

62,382. Can you give us any information about that election? as to what was going on at the election of 1847?—I should be glad to do so; in the first place, I have a bad memory about such things. I really do not know; your question is so large that I scarcely know to what it refers.

62,383. Can you give us any general information as to the election, as to any names set down, or rooms taken?—You could not ask a more unlikely person; I know nothing whatever about it.

62,384. At the last election, of 1852, did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes.

62,385. I did not ask you whether you paid any rent for your house?—Yes, I pay a rent of forty guineas.

62,386. We are told you were at a blue supper at the last election—Oh no, never.

62,387. Were you not there?—Never.

62,388. At the Delapole Tavern I was wrong in saying it was at; but before the last election?—Certainly not.

62,389. You were not present?—Not at any blue supper, certainly not.

62,390. A supper at the Delapole Tavern?—Yes, I was at a supper at the Delapole Tavern; but it was distinctly a supper of loyal orangemen; I believe it was three or four weeks before the election.

62,391. Do you mean orange in its blue sense?—In its Irish sense.

62,392. How long before the election?—I am sure I cannot tell; that supper has been the subject of so much animadversion, either correct or incorrect, I will not say.

62,393. The subject of frequent mention?—Yes.

62,394. Were you the chairman, or the vice-chairman?—No, I was neither.

62,395. Who were the people who were present?—Mr. Henry Barkworth.

62,396. I mean of what class; were they voters, or had it anything to do with their being voters?—Not as far as I was concerned, most positively. I consider those that have given it that colour have said what is absolutely untrue, and in many instances most culpably false.

62,397. The facts will hardly give it?—Yes; the chairman has designated it as a supper of loyal Irishmen.

62,398. Was it a thing that had taken place before in previous years?—No; there had never been, as far as I know, any attempt to give publicity to the principles of the Irish orange lodges before that time.

62,399. Do you know whether it was confined, or at all well selected, who were present at it, with reference to their blue politics in this town?—I had no means of knowing; I did not know anything at all about it at the time; but it would not be correct for me to say, that I have not since ascertained that it might have an ulterior reference to the politics of some of the people who were there; but I went there, I can declare most certainly and most emphatically, entirely as to a gathering of the members and friends of the loyal Irish lodge, or some such title as that.

Rev. H. Ward.

27th July 1853.

62,400. I believe persons were invited to it by means of tickets?—I think they were; but I had nothing to do with the management of it whatever. I refused to go; I did not go till a very intimate friend of mine, who was the manager of it, pressed me very much to go; at length I consented.

62,401. Did you have any tickets given you?—I should think not; I really do not remember.

62,402. Did they give you tickets, and you distribute them?—Not at all that I can remember. I had nothing to do with it at all.

62,403. We have understood several gentlemen had tickets sent to them, and that they had liberty to distribute them amongst their friends?—I do not remember; I think if I had any tickets sent I should most likely have given them to Mr. Harris. It would have been returning them to the source from whence they came. It was through him I went. Mr. Harris is a friend of mine.

62,404. A gentleman that came from Nottingham?—Yes.

62,405. Can you say you did not yourself give any tickets to any blue voters or orange men?—I really do not remember anything about the tickets at all. I cannot say I remember so much as seeing the tickets. It is possible I might have them, but I have no recollection of it at all.

62,406. When did you hear that the supper might have some bearing upon the election? I cannot tell at all when I heard that.

62,407. You said you became acquainted with it since, I think?—Yes; I cannot tell at all when I heard that. I went there, as I have already said, and fully believed entirely that it was got up with reference to the members and friends of the orange lodge.

62,408. I understand amongst the toasts was, "Success to the blue cause, and the blue candidates"?—I should think not; it is not at all impossible. I have no recollection of it.

62,409. Would that not have drawn your attention to the character of the meeting?—It would not have altered my impression of the character of the meeting, because I believe that most of the men who were there were orange men themselves.

62,410. Would be of that party?—Would be of that party; desiring to maintain those principles that would be in accordance with their professions, and those would be best represented by the blue party in Hull.

62,411. Do you remember such a toast being given amongst the convivialities of the evening?—No; they were of a very harmless and correct nature as long as I stayed. I never saw a better conducted or more respectable concern of mixed classes as long as I stayed.

62,412. I did not mean to convey that there would be anything objectionable in drinking, "Success to the blue candidates." I am asking as to the feed?—I do not remember it at all. I think it was highly probable that it was so.

62,413. This party of orangemen to whom you referred, is it a numerous body in Hull?—I have lost sight of it from that time. I think it received a considerable accession last spring.

62,414. In Hull?—In Hull; a very considerable accession. There were several lodge meetings, and a great many people admitted orangemen.

62,415. Who should you say was the leading orangemen about the time of the supper?—I suppose Mr. Henry Barkworth and Mr. Harris were.

62,416. They were orangemen?—I think so.

62,417. And they were both at the supper I think?—Yes.

62,418. Are there orangemen who are not voters as well as some who are, as far as you know?—Oh yes; I should think some orangemen would be found there, and I should think those names would have been enough to weigh the others down.

62,419. Was the supper given to the voters and non-voters equally if they were orangemen?—I should think so. I had nothing to do with it beyond being present, as far as I know.

62,420. How many were there?—I have heard since, ninety-five.

62,421. Can you state as a fact, or from knowledge you have gained since, whether all the persons there were voters or not, or some not voters?—I have not the least idea. My strong impression is that a great many were there who were not voters.

62,422. Who supped there?—Yes.

62,423. That is your strong impression?—Yes.

62,424. Amongst the orangemen, do you know at all who were voters?—No, I do not at all.

62,425. Amongst the smaller ones, the freemen?—I have not the least idea; perhaps you would allow me to say that.

62,426. Are you a member of the orange society yourself?—No, I am not.

62,427. Do you know how many it consists of?—No; I have no idea. In Hull do you mean?

62,428. Yes, in Hull.—No; I have no idea.

62,429. Have they a lodge in Hull?—I really do not know. I have not seen anything of them from that day to this. I saw several orangemen before that time; since that time I have not had any conversation with any one of them.

62,430. Can you give me the names of any orangemen who were present except those you have mentioned?—Not one. Yes; I remember, I know a man of the name of Payne, a watchmaker.

62,431. Do you know where he lives?—Yes; in Dock Office Row.

62,432. He is one of the orangemen?—Yes; I believe he told me he was an orangeman.

62,433. And he was of the party?—Yes, he was.

62,434. Passing from the supper, did you take some interest generally in the last election, for the gentlemen whom you supported?—A little.

62,435. Were you on a committee?—No.

62,436. Did you canvass at all with those two candidates?—I perhaps should save you some trouble if I make a general statement; it is my desire to save you time; never since I have been a clergyman have I either directly or indirectly asked a man for a vote, or used any influence whatever on any election occasion, not that I think it wrong to do so, but it so happened I never did.

62,437. You did not canvass at all with the candidates?—I never canvassed one man since I was a clergyman.

62,438. Did you make any payments?—No.

62,439. To anybody?—No.

62,440. I mean as distinct from canvassing; any payments afterwards for any purpose?—Oh dear no, never. I can only attribute it to the lively invention of some parties.

62,441. I merely put these names to you; did you make any payment to a man named William Cross, of Jennens Street?—I have made him payments very often.

62,442. Was it a person you deal with?—Yes; he is my sexton.

62,443. Did you influence his vote in any way; did you pay him any money, or have any dealing with him at all in connexion with his vote?—Oh dear no, never.

62,444. Or with William Wise; do you know him?—I know him very well; I never paid him one farthing.

62,445. Or promised him any?—No, never.

62,446. Thomas Petch?—No, never.

62,447. Thomas M'Marron?—I do not know him personally; I know the name of M'Morren, but I do not know him personnlly. I should not know him if he sat here.

62,448. You never made him any payment or promise?—No, never.

62,449. How came you at the supper?—I went with Mr. Harris, because he pressed me to go, I may say.

62,450. Did you know at the time that Mr. Harris was a member of the central committee for Moore and Butler?—I have no doubt I should know it if the committee was in being then.

62,451. Can you give us the date of the supper?—No, I am sure I cannot.

62,452. How long do you think it was before the election; a fortnight?—Oh, I should think six weeks; but I do not know at all.

62,453. Can you tell us what month it was?—My idea was it was early in the summer.

62,454. Can you tell us what month it was in?—No.

62,455. Can you tell whether it was in June?—I should think it was, but I am not at all positive; my impression is it was in June.

62,456. Did you know at the time that Mr. Moore was a candidate for the representation?—Yes.

62,457. Mr. Harris has said the supper was in the month of May?—Very likely it would be right; that will not militate against my supposition, that it was in the early summer.

62,458. Mr. Harris expressed no strong opinion, merely his belief about it; he said he could not tell?—I really have no recollection for dates. I have no special faculty that way. I cannot remember when it was, except my impression was, in the early summer, light evenings.

62,459. Did you know at the time that an election of members to serve in Parliament was intended?—Yes.

62,460. Did you know that the orange men belonged to a great extent to the same political party, to the people who were called blues?—Yes; I was persuaded of that.

62,461. Persuaded at the time?—Yes.

62,462. Do you know how long the society has existed; the orange society?—In Hull.

62,463. Yes?—No, I do not; it has existed, I believe, several years, but has been almost in abeyance until——

62,464. Shortly before the last election?—Shortly before the last election; it was revived last spring, and there were a good many meetings.

62,465. It was revived at the time you supped with them?—I mean last spring twelvemonth; the spring of 1852.

62,466. Have you ever heard of a supper given by the orange people before that?—No, never.

62,467. About how long before the supper was given was it revived?—I am sure I cannot tell; several weeks, I should think.

Rev. H. Ward.

27th July 1853.

62,468. What do you call several weeks; what should you think, three weeks or a month?—I should think my impression is six weeks or two months; and then several orange men called upon me, to ask me, as a clergyman, to take part with the orange.

62,469. As a clergyman?—Yes; they said several clergymen were orangemen, and that their principles were entirely in accordance with what ought to to be the principles of a single minded protestant clergyman, and, therefore, they desired such to take part with them, and be members of their society.

John Smith.

27th July 1853.

JOHN SMITH sworn, and examined.

62,470. Where do you live?—13, Edward Street.

62,471. What is your business?—A coachmaker.

62,472. Are you also a freeman?—No.

62,473. What rent do you pay?—£5.

62,474. You are a burgess, perhaps?—I am not; I am not a voter, and never was.

62,475. Did you take part in the election of 1841?—No; only canvassing with a few of my friends, working men like myself, advising them to vote for such men as Colonel Thompson and James Clay, Esq.

62,476. Did you advise them to get their names set down as runners?—No. I had a son, a voter; it was the first time of his voting; I said, "If you do not vote for Colonel Thompson and James Clay, Esq. you are no longer worthy to be called my son."

62,477. What else did you do; did you do anything at the 1841 election; did you get any rooms engaged?—No; no active part; never, except persuading some working men, and those that I had a little influence with, to vote for a good cause; such men as I thought would get us cheap bread.

62,478. Did you pay any money at that election?—Never a farthing in my life.

62,479. Have you not received any?—Never a farthing in my days. I remember every election since Sir Charles Turner and Stanniforth.

62,480. In 1847, did you take any part in the election?—Not at all, only taking care that my son voted a plumper for Mr. Clay.

62,481. You took care of that?—I did.

62,482. Did you get his name set down somewhere?—No.

62,483. What did you mean by taking care?—I told him, that if he wished to oblige his father he would vote for James Clay, as I thought he was the best man in the lot.

62,484. Do you know if his name was set down—your son?—I dare say it was; I never saw it; I am not positive; I dare say it was.

62,485. Set down as a runner?—No, I think not.

62,486. What is your son by business?—A house painter.

62,487. Where does he live?—Appleyard's Buildings, Osborn Street.

62,488. Is his name William Smith?—Yes.

62,489. At the last election you did know a little about the money, and had a little, had you not?—Not anything from my own knowledge, only what I heard pass.

62,490. What was that?—Why, a friend of mine was taking a glass of grog on the forenoon of the polling day, at the Mansion House Tavern, at about half-past ten, or eleven o'clock, when several more came into the room, and a man came in, a perfect stranger to me, and he says to my friend, "I hear there is money astir this morning." My friend says, "is there?" he says, "yes."

62,491. Who was your friend?—Mr. Ware, a retired tradesman, formerly a fishmonger; he lives in the Hessle Road.

62,492. Who was the man that came in?—I did not know him; he was a bigger stranger to me than he was to you. I listened to the conversation.

62,493. You have learned since who he was?—Yes, I have.

62,494. Who was he?—His name is Mell. I have heard he was a working man.

62,495. What did he say?—He says to Mr. Ware, "there is money astir this morning." Mr. Ware says, "Is there?" "Yes, I have been at a friend's house; my friend had gone "into the yard, and a rap comes to the door, and I went to the door, and some person "handed in a note, the time my friend was absent; I opened the note, and there were "four sovereigns in it," I understood him to say, "to vote for the blues." Then my friend came in out of the yard.

62,496. Where was it that the note had come to with the four sovereigns?—I do not know.

62,497. Did he not say that?—He said it was a friend's house. I do not know who his friend was, nor his name, nor did I know the man then.

62,498. I hear it was at your house where this note came?—At my house?

62,499. So I am told.—Then they have told you a falsehood.

62,500. It was not your house then?—No, it was not.

62,501. That you are sure of?—I am positive of that.

62,502. Did you see the note?—No, I did not; I was not there. This is what this man was telling my friend in the Mansion House Tavern.

62,503. Did you see the note at any time?—No, never.

John Smith.

27th July 1853

62,504. Did you not see it afterwards?—I did not; I took no further notice. Perhaps there were twenty more in the room.

62,505. Was this the polling day?—On the polling day.

62,506. Have you since found out who that man was?—I have.

62,507. Who had the note; what was his name?—His name his Mell, I found out three weeks last Saturday. I was working at my business, over the bridge, and I saw the man pass; I went up to him, and I says, "Friend, I have not seen you lately; me and my friend, "Mr. Ware, have had some confab about you; closely, I said, to the election, being at "the Mansion House Tavern." He says, "Yes."

62,508. You said that Mell was the man who came and told you this; is he the man that had the note?—No.

52,509. I want to ask you who the other man was?—I do not know; he did not mention his name.

62,510. You found out since what this man's name was?—No, I have not; I never made any further inquiries, only I inquired who the man, Mell, was, who gave us the information.

62,511. Did you hear about any more money that day?—No, I did not.

62,512. Did any come to you at all?—No.

62,513. You have given us this little piece of information, can you give us anything else, that you would like to tell us, about the election?—I do not know that I can, particularly. There was a case of a man who came to buy a pair of old wheels. I was working at a smith's; he was above half drunk; he is a man that sells pots, at the corner of Blanket Row; he says, I was standing with my store, and one of the Tories came and popped 17*s.* into my hand; he thought I was going to vote for Goderich and Clay; and he said he would have a good drink with it: but he was about half drunk when he told me this.

62,514. Did he say how he had voted?—I think he voted for Clay and Goderich. I never examined the poll book ,to know how it was.

62,515. What is his name?—I believe it is Peter Jaques; he was a little bit fresh when he told it to me at the workshop.

W. Binks, jun.

William Binks, junior, sworn, and examined.

62,516. What is your business?—A house painter.

62,517. What rent do you pay?—It is my own property.

62,518. At what rate do you stand?—I am rated at between 70*l.* and 80*l.*

62,519. You are also a freeman?—Yes.

62,520. When were you made a freeman?—About 1839.

52,521. Did you take up your freedom yourself?—Yes.

62,522. At the election of 1841, did you vote?—I believe I voted at that election.

62,523. For Hanmer and James?—I am not quite certain.

62,524. At the election of 1841 were you on any committee?—No.

64,525. Did you canvass for those gentlemen at all?—No.

62,526. We have heard a good deal of sums being paid after the election in your shop, and through a hole in a door. What do you know about that?—I remember some little about the circumstance, but very little.

62,527. Tell us what you know?—I know there was some money paid through a window from the sitting room. Do you mean the house?

63,528. From the window of the house?—Yes.

62,529. Were you in the house at the time?—My father occupied it.

62,530. When were the payments made?—I do not remember.

62,531. Before or after the election?—I should say after the election.

62,532. Just describe to us a little more what it was? There was a window?—I expected that was what you wanted to inquire of me, and I prepared a ground plan of the premises (handing in a drawing).

62,533. Is there a window at the back?—A window connecting the sitting room with the shop.

62,534. Did the shop front to the High Street?—Yes.

62,535. Then the front shop is on the same level with the dwelling house?—Yes.

62,536. There is a hole in the wall?—That is the window we had to see out of the sitting room into the shop.

62,537. They came in one way, passed the window, and went out another way?—They came in at the private entrance, passed into the shop, received the money, and went out at the shop entrance.

62,538. Who made those payments?—I do not know.

62,539. You came to your father's house that morning for the purpose?—I cannot say. I took no interest in the election.

62,540. Did you ever hear who paid?—I never heard.

62,541. How many were there in the room where the money was?—I cannot say; I believe my father was in the room, for one; who the others were I cannot say.

W. Binks, jun.

27th July 1853.

62,542. How many do you think came to the window?—I am sure I cannot say; there might be twenty, there might be fifty.

62,543. Did you not know anybody in the room except your father?—I did not.

62,544. How old were you about that time?—About twenty-two.

62,545. At that time?—Yes.

62,546. There was no committee at your house?—No.

62,547. This was a place appointed for this purpose?—Yes; afterwards I suppose.

62,548. Did you take any of the money there?—No; I had nothing to do with the election at all; my father was very active in the election.

62,549. Still you might have carried some of the money to the house?—I had no connexion with the money or the transaction you are speaking of.

52,550. Did any of it pass through your hands?—Not a farthing.

52,551. Do you know where the money came from?—No.

61,552. Who brought it?—I am sure I cannot say; my father lived in the house; I did not live in the house myself.

62,553. Do you know where he went, and got the money?—I am sure I cannot say.

62,554. You must have heard the matter talked of with your father and the family?—It might have been with my father, and some other branches of the family; I had a house independent of my father.

62,555. Is there any of the family that can tell you now who was there?—No; I do not think there is. I have inquired these particulars, and have ascertained what I have told you.

62,556. You were not able to learn who was there to pay the money?—No, not one.

62,557. Have you any papers belonging to your father on which the names were?—No.

62,558. Was this window a hole made for the purpose?—No; it was for the convenience of seeing from the sitting room into the shop.

62,559. Was there another place near Mr. Freebody's where something of the kind went on?—I do not know; I have no knowledge.

62,560. Was there a man of the name of Freebody next door to you at that time?—Yes, there was.

62,561. Did you not hear that something of the kind went on there also?—I never heard of it. I never heard there was any payment made there.

62,562. Was there a committee room at the time, do you remember?—I believe there was.

62,563. Were the payments you have spoken of at your house connected with a committee room, or was it a general one?—I cannot say; I knew nothing about it.

62,564. Has Mr. Freebody left that house?—Yes.

62,565. Do you know his address?—No; I am sure I do not.

62,566. What was his business?—He was proprietor of the Hull Packet newspaper at that time.

62,567. Do you know where he is now?—No, I do not.

62,568. You say you remember your father being one of the party that was present at this time?—I believe he was in the room at the time the payments were made, but I am not certain quite.

62,569. You do not know anybody else?—I do not know one. One gentleman I thought was there I have inquired of since, and I find he was not there.

62,570. Who was that?—I have inquired, and find he was not there at the time. I thought Mr. Yeall was one, I find he is not.

62,571. Can you give any further information about it?—No.

62,572. They have made so many allusions to your shop?—Yes; I have heard of it.

62,573. It was after the election?—Yes.

62,564. How long did it continue?—One night.

62,575. Late at night or in the evening?—It was in the evening.

62,676. About how long after the election should you say?—I cannot say, I am sure. I think it was after the eleetion; I am not quite sure about it.

62,577. Are you right in saying that it only lasted one evening? we have been told that it lasted a good deal longer than that?—I am certain almost it was no more than one evening.

62,578. You were not living there I think you said?—I was not living there at the time, though I was in the house in the evening. If I had not heard of the circumstance through this inquiry, I should have forgotten all about it.

62,579. Is your mother alive?—She is not.

62,580. Any member of the family who were living in the house at the time?—I have brothers who would know more about it than myself, but they are a long way off.

62,581. Not dead?—No.

62,582. They are both away?—I hope they are in Australia by this time.

62,583. Did they leave any electioneering papers with you before they went?—No.

62,584. Have you heard from them who were the parties at all?—No, I have not. I do not think any one of the family knew who the parties were at the time.

62,585. You were not one of the parties present?—No; not one of the parties present.

62,586. Which ward would this be in?—The north ward.

W. Binks, jun.

27th July 1853.

62,587. Who was chairman of the ward, do you recollect?—I cannot say; I took no part whatever in the election; my father took the electioneering business, and I had to take the management of his business during the time; I was very much engaged with my own business.

62,588. At the election of 1841 did you yourself make any payments?—No.

62,589. Did you get any of the money?—No.

62,590. In 1847 did you pay a man of the name of George Hare any money?—I never paid a farthing; no money passed through my hands.

62,591. This evening you were there minding your father's business in consequence of his not attending to it?—During the time my father was electioneering I was attending to the business, and I was in the house the evening that the payments were made.

62,592. Was it because you were attending to your father's business?—I went in promiscuously, and it was after business hours.

62,593. Were either of your brothers there?—I do not remember particularly.

62,594. Was William Stafford there? I understand he was the editor of the Hull Packet at that time?—No; that is not the name.

62,595. Do you remember that he was there?—That is not the name of the editor.

62,596. Who was the editor? Was the editor there, whatever his name is?—I do not remember that he was.

62,597. Somebody connected with the paper if he was not the editor?—No; he was the proprietor.

62,598. Now in 1847 did you vote?—Yes; Baines and Brown.

62,599. Were you on any committee?—No.

62,600. Did you canvass for them?—Yes; I think I took a little part.

62,601. For Mr. Brown?—For Mr. Brown and Mr. Baines together.

62,602. Did you take parties' names down that promised you? Did you have a canvassing book?—I carried a canvassing book with me, and put down as they promised, and ticked them off.

62,603. Did you make some payments afterwards to a man of the name of William Featherstone, of Little Queen Street?—I do not recollect making him a payment.

62,604. 20*s.* for Mr. Brown?—No.

62,605. Was your father alive then?—No.

62,606. Do you recollect George Hare?—No.

62,607. Do you know such a man?—I do not recollect such a man by name.

62,608. Might you have made some of these payments without remembering names, do you mean?—It is impossible; I can safely swear that never a farthing passed through my hands for electioneering purposes.

62,609. Did you engage any room?—No.

62.610. Any sham committee room, I mean?—No.

62,611. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

62,612. Were you on any committee?—I was on the Lowgate North Ward committee.

62,613. Did you attend the room?—Occasionally.

62,614. Did you canvass for the party?—Yes, I did.

62,615. Did you send persons occasionally to get their names set down, who were applicants for work as runners or messengers?—Yes, I did.

62,616. You would send them, I suppose, to the committee room?—Yes.

62,617. Did any persons apply to you that their rooms might be taken for committee rooms?—No; I do not remember any applications.

62,618. Do you recollect whether you recommended that any person's rooms should be engaged for that purpose?—I recommended none.

62,619. Did you attend after the election and make any payments?—No.

62,620. Were any persons paid after the election at your committee room to your knowledge?—Not to my knowledge.

62,621. I do not mean that you were present, but were there any payments made at the committee room after the election?—I believe there were payments made at the committee room after the election, but I was not present.

62,622. Who would be the person who would attend to that part in your committee?—I should say Mr. Pulleyn.

62,623. When were those payments made as far as you know?—I do not know; there was a party who made the payments, but he was the deputy chairman of that committee, and active.

62,624. Who were there at your father's house on this evening when the payments were made in 1841? Your father, you say,—we have got so far,—and who else?—My mother, and two or three other branches of the family.

62,625. Was your father in the room with you at the time?—I was not with my father; he was in the room, I believe, when the payments were made, but I was not.

62,626. He was in the room when the payments were being made?—I believe he was.

62,627. He was the only person you mention as being in the room?—He was the only one I know of; there were other parties in the room, but I do not know them.

62,628. Others were there whose names you do not know?—Yes.

W. Binks, jun.

27th July 1853.

62,629. Have you ever seen any of them since?—No; I do not know that I have; I may have seen them.

62,630. Can you undertake to swear you never have seen any of those persons in the room since?—I did not see them when they were in the room.

62,631. You might have seen them going in and coming out?—That I did not; I was not aware who the parties were. I may have met them every day.

62,632. You do not know anybody there except your father?—I know there were some parties.

62,633. How do you know that?—Because I could hear a portion of their conversations?

62,634. You heard people talking?—I heard people talking in the room.

62,635. Your only mode of knowing was the noise that you heard of voices?—Yes.

W. K. Baskett.

WILLIAM KIRBY BASKETT sworn, and examined.

62,636. Where do you live?—Brook Street.

62,637. What is your business?—A baker by trade.

62,638. What rent do you pay?—I am in lodgings.

62,640. When were you made a freeman?—1849, I believe.

62,641. By which party,—blue or orange?—Orange.

62,642. Did you vote for them, in consequence, at the next election?—No.

62,643. You voted for the blues, did you?—Yes.

62,644. Did you get some money for that?—Yes.

62,645. You voted Clay and Thompson?—No; Hanmer and James.

62,646. How much money did you get?—Thirty shillings.

62,647. Who paid you?—Ten shillings at the committee room, and a sovereign in High Street.

62,648. They paid your rent, did they not, too?—No; I was in a furnished room then. They paid no rent for me.

62,649. Was not your rent in arrear?—No.

62,650. Do you mean to say that?—I am sure.

62,651. Did you pay up your rent that day that you got the money?—It was 3*s.* 6*d.* a week, and I paid it every week.

62,652. When were you paid the money?—I got a sovereign after the election. I am sure I do not know how long after.

62,653. Where did you get the other?—The 10*s.* I got the night before polling, just.

62,654. Where?—The Church Lane committee room.

62,655. You promised Mr. Wilde, did you not?—Yes.

62,656. For the orange?—Yes, I did; and I received 8*s.*, two days' pay, from him, and I want more yet, for I worked hard that week. They told me I could go to the blues, and I took them at their word. There were lots that came down that could not get paid for those two days. They said we were to go the blues, and I did go.

62,658. What money did you then get?—I got 10*s.*

62,659. From which party?—Mr. Brown.

62,660. When were you paid?—I was paid two days before the election.

62,661. Where?—At the Blue Bell.

62,662. By Mr. Bannister?—Yes.

62,663. Did you get anything more for Mr. Baines?—No. They put us down as runners, but they never paid us.

62,664. Who put you down for Mr. Baines?—Mr. Sidebottom.

62,665. Himself?—Yes.

62,666. How much were you to have for that?—5*s.* a day.

62,667. But you did not get it?—No.

62,668. Where did you go to look for it?—To Mr. Sidebottom, at the George Inn, where he was paying, at a house just opposite the George Inn.

62,669. Whose house was it, do you remember?—I do not know.

62,670. Exactly opposite the George?—Yes; they paid the colourmen there.

62,671. Why did they not pay you?—I do not know.

62,672. What was the reason?—They reckoned I was not down.

62,673. They could not find your name on the list?—No; or they would not.

62,674. Did they say you had got money for Brown, and that was enough?—I do not know the meaning of it.

62,675. In 1852, at the last election, who did you choose?—Moore and Butler.

62,676. Did you get any money for that vote?—I got eight days' running.

62,677. Where were you set down?—At Prospect Street.

62,678. Did you go to be set down?—A party said my name was not on the register. I went to see that it was, and they asked me if I wanted putting down as a runner. I said yes, of course, like all the rest.

W. K. Baskett.

27th July 1853.

62,679. At first they said your name was not on the register?—A man met me in the street, and said I was not on the register.

62,680. You understood he meant the register of voters?—Yes; it was not in the book.

62,681. You went to the place?—I went to the committee room in Prospect Street, and looked at the register. Yes; and I found it was there.

62,682. And they asked you if you wished to be put down as a runner?—Yes.

62,683. And they did put you down?—No; not that day. They said they had some, and I was to call again in a day or two.

62,684. How soon after?—A day or two after I was to call again.

62,685. What did you get?—I got 10*s.* on the Saturday before the election; I got 17*s.* the week after, and 13*s.* the week after that; that is, 40*s.* altogether. The eight days' looking after it, and every day running for it; at least eight days' work for it.

62,686. When they said to you, would you like to be put on, of course you meant to vote for them?—Yes, of course. I have always polled blue.

62,687. Has it occurred to you to pay back the money for your freedom in 1841? the orange party took up your freedom?—Yes, they did.

62,688. Has it ever occurred to you to pay back the money the orange party paid, as you never once gave them a vote?—No; they told me to go and vote for the blues, and, of course, I did.

62,689. It was at the request of the orange party that you voted for the blues?—Yes, it was; Mr. Peck himself.

Philip Rogers.

PHILIP ROGERS sworn, and examined.

62,690. Where do you live?—West Street, at the time of the election.

62,691. What business are you?—A grocer, at that time.

62,692. What rent do you pay?—£12.

62,693. Are you a freeman?—No.

62,694. When were you first entitled to vote?—Ever since the Reform Act.

62,695. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Yes.

62,696. Who for?—I am sure I have forgotten the persons: it will be in the book.

62,697. Clay and Thompson, your name is down for?—Yes.

62,698. Did you get any money for your vote?—No.

62,699. Were you paid nothing?—No.

62,700. Were you a runner?—No.

62,702. Did you get any money for your vote?—No.

62,703. Paid no money at all, were you?—No.

62,704. Sure of it?—Sure of it.

62,705. In 1852, who did you vote for?—The blues.

62,706. Moore and Butler?—Yes.

62,707. How much money did you get then?—Thirty shillings.

62,708. When were you paid?—I was paid before the election.

62,709. Where?—At a fruiterer's, in Prospect Street.

62,710. Stephenson's?—Yes.

62,711. Who paid you?—His father keeps a public house at Spring Bank.

62,712. George Steeple?—John Steeple.

62,713. Are you sure you did not get any money in 1847?—I never did. At the election before the last I got 10*s.* from Mr. Bannister, as a runner.

62,714. I ask if you got any money?—Yes; the election you named, I got 10*s.* from Mr. Bannister.

62,715. For Mr. Brown?—I think it was.

James Riby.

JAMES RIBY sworn, and examined.

62,716. Where do you live?—I live in Nelson Street; the Groves.

62,717. What is your business?—A shipwright.

62,718. Do you pay rent for a house?—No; I am a lodger.

62,719. When were you made a freeman?—The year that Mr. Burke came.

62,720. Who paid for it?—Mr. Burke did.

62,721. Did you vote at the election in 1841?—Yes.

62,722. Who did you vote for?—I voted for the blue.

62,723. That was Hanmer and James?—Yes, you are right.

62,724. How much money did you get for your vote?—£1.

62,725. Who paid it you?—I cannot tell. I was paid in a blacksmith's shop.

62,726. Was that before or after the election you were paid?—It was the next election to Burke's.

62,727. Did you get your money before you polled, or afterwards?—After, some time.

62,728. At a blacksmith's shop?—Yes; in a blacksmith's shop.

James Riby.

27th July 1853.

62,729. Where was this blacksmith's shop?—In Witham,—Robinson's.

62,730. Is the blacksmith's name Noah Robinson?—Yes.

62,731. In 1847, who did you vote for; the blues?—No; there was a better shop to go to. I voted for Clay and Brown.

62,732. How much money did you get at that time?—£2.

62,733. Who was it for?—It was for both of them, I expect.

62,734. Were you paid the whole at the same time?—We had it altogether. I had to look very sharp; I had a long way to go.

62,735. Where were you paid?—At the Baltic Tavern, in the Pottery.

62,736. In 1852, who did you choose then?—Bramley Moore and Butler.

62,737. Were you a runner at Holderness?—No; I was a runner for Mr. Bramley Moore.

62,738. In Holderness ward?—Yes.

62,739. Witham?—Yes.

62,740. How much did you get?—I got a pound, for four days.

62,741. Who paid you?—It was in the Groves. I do not know the name. There were only two in the room where I was paid.

62,742. Edward Stephenson?—No.

62,743. Mr. Walker?—There were only two in the room.

62,744. Was Mr. West one?—I do not know the man's name. I think they said so, but I never asked any questions.

62,745. Do you know Mr. Walker, the druggist?—I do not know him, I am sure. I think it was Mr. Tealby.

62,746. Did you get some money from him? did Mr. Tealby pay you anything?—No. I never asked him any questions.

John Stuart.

JOHN STUART sworn, and examined.

62,747. Where do you live?—Nos. 35 and 36, Saville Street.

62,748. What is your business?—Tobacconist and cigar dealer.

62,749. What rent do you pay?—£25.

62,750. Are you a freeman?—I am not.

62,751. Which election were you first entitled to vote at?—At Mr. Baines'.

62,752. In 1847, Clay, Baines, and Brown were the candidates?—Yes.

62,753. Who did you vote for?—For Mr. Baines.

62,754. Had you any room engaged at that election?—Only that one room.

62,755. You have not told us yet which room?—Only the committee room.

62,756. That was in 1847?—At Mr. Baines' election.

62,757. Who were the committee who used your room?—At that time I think Mr. Sidebottom engaged my room.

62,758. When did he engage it?—I cannot tell you.

62,759. How long before the election?—A few days before the election, it was only a few days the election lasted that time.

62,760. Did any committee meet there?—I suppose so. I do not know anything at all about it; it was a private place altogether.

62,761. What was it for?—For a committee room.

62,762. Was it a private place?—It is a private entrance; I am in a different business; I did not interfere with that part of the house.

62,763. You were in your shop?—Yes; attending to my own business, not theirs.

62,764. How much did they pay you for that room?—Ten guineas which I received from Mr. England, he paid me; he received it from Mr. Sidebottom.

62,765. You voted, I suppose, at that election?—I did.

62,766. Who for?—For Mr. Baines only.

62,767. Cannot you tell me the names of some of the committee that met there?—I do not know anything about the committee. I cannot tell you a single word about it.

62,768. It is a private room, you say?—It is my room, but I never saw the place. I never went up-stairs after the party took my room.

62,769. Could people go up to it without your seeing them?—Of course they could.

62,770. What part of the house were you in?—I was in my own shop.

62,771. Is there an entrance to this room without coming into the shop?—Of course there is.

62,772. How far from the shop?—Just the passage.

62,773. Are you sure a committee could be held in that room of yours, such as committees usually are at elections, with people passing up there the whole day, without your knowing or seeing anything about it?—Decidedly; that I will take my oath of.

62,774. You took no means to prevent Mr. Baines' adversaries from going into the room?—No.

62,775. You had no list of any persons given you that you were to admit?—No; not anything.

62,776. For anything you knew, all the people who went up there might be opposed to Mr. Baines?—Whoever went up there I know nothing about.

62,777. All the people, if any, for what you knew, may have been opposed to Mr. Baines who went up there?—They were for Mr. Baines in my opinion, because the room was taken for Mr. Baines' party.

62,778. You took no means to prevent that?—Certainly not.

62,779. For anything that you knew there was not a single friend of Mr. Brown's there, and it might have been full of his opponents?—So it might be.

62,780. Now in 1852, who did you vote for?—I voted for Mr. Moore and Mr. Butler.

62,781. Was your room engaged again as a committe room?—Yes, it was.

62,782. At what rate?—Ten guineas.

62,783. The same sum?—The same sum.

62,784. Who engaged your room at the last election?—Mr. Cattley and Mr. Craven.

62,785. When did they take it?—I cannot say.

62,786. Give us some idea?—I could not give you the least idea about it. I know it was for six weeks or two months they had it.

62,787. Before the election, I suppose?—From the beginning.

62,788. Were you paid in one sum or weekly?—I was paid in one single sum.

62,789. When was that?—I cannot say the date of it.

62,790. When were you paid?—I could not say the date; I dare say you have my bill and receipt there.

62,791. Did you make out a bill?—I did.

62,792. We have not got it?—I gave a receipt for it.

62,793. Had you not some other charge against the blue party?—A small one, I think.

62,794. What was it for?—For some little alterations that were made.

62,795. What were they?—Locks to be put on, and some other little matters; there was some damage done to the room which they agreed to pay for; you will find the bill I dare say.

62,796. We have not got those papers?—I received it from Mr. Steeples.

62,797. Do you think he would have the papers?—Yes; it was only one paper

62,798. Did you have 2*l.* for that?—No; it was not 2*l.*

62,799. Just tell us what it was?—It was 1*l.* 10*s.*, over and above that made 12*l.*

62,800, Was that independent of the ten guineas?—The ten guineas was for the hire of the room; they had another room afterwards; they spoilt the paper in the room—it was beautifully papered before they took it, and they agreed to pay all expenses afterwards, and there is 1*l.* 10*s.* charged for extras. Now you have the whole of it.

62,801. Who agreed to pay you that?—Mr. Cattley and Mr. Craven.

62,802. Those who took the room?—Yes.

62,803. Do you know anything more about the committee that attended then, than you do of the one in 1847?—No; I do not know anything about them.

62,804. Have you seen them this time?—No; we locked up our shop door and went away.

62,805. Did they keep the key of their room?—They did; I had nothing to do with them.

62,806. There is an entrance to your shop and to your house, separate?—There is.

62,807. Who kept the door of the house?—I cannot tell who kept the door of the room.

62,808. The door into the street I mean?—Of course I took the key of my own shop and door, I had nothing to do with the passage during the time they were there.

62,809. You do not know who kept the door?—No, I do not.

62,810. Was there a doorkeeper at all?—I suppose there was. Perhaps Mr. Wilde can tell you who was the doorkeeper; he knows every person.

62,811. He says that there was none at all?—I cannot tell you.

62,812. Do you know a man of the name of Wilberforce?—He was not a doorkeeper there, certainly; I have seen him there, but he was no doorkeeper.

62,813. What was he doing there?—I cannot tell.

62,814. What is he?—He is a traveller, I believe.

62,815. Are you sure he was not the doorkeeper?—I am certain he was not.

62,816. You can tell me who was then?—No; I had nothing at all to do with it; I have told you plainly once, it is no use trying to get me to tell you different.

62,817. Do you or not know the person; if you do tell me?—I do not; the only person I knew there was Mr. Wilberforce; I believe he was a messenger.

62,818. You told me before you did not know anybody there?—Only that man.

62,819. You told me that you knew nobody at all?—I did not tell you; you mentioned his name to me.

62,820. Can you remember any others?—Not one.

62,821. You swear that?—I will swear that I do not know the name of a single person in that room.

62,822. Would you know the names of any if they were mentioned to you?—I will see if you mention any.

62,823. Do you think you would know if they were mentioned to you?—I fancy I could.

62,824. I presume that at night your door was kept locked?—Yes, at night-time.

John Stuart.

27th July 1853.

62,825. Just say yes or no?—Yes; it was locked.

62,826. Who kept the key at that time?—I cannot tell you that; I do not know.

62,827. Did you?—I did not.

62,828. Do I understand that you parted with your key to a person of whom you knew nothing, and of whom you can give us no information?—No; I did not know any person.

62,829. When did you give up the room to them?—When they took the room, they had no communication with my shop.

62,830. Who did you give the key to?—I think Mr. Cattley was there.

62,831. Did Mr. Cattley take the key when he agreed to take the room?—Of course he took the key, it was his private place then.

62,832. That is not an answer to my question. Do you mean to swear that you gave up the key of your outer door to Mr. Cattley, when he agreed to take your room?—Well, I am sure, I cannot answer to whom I gave the key, I took it up into the room and left it with them.

62,833. Did you give it to Mr. Cattley or Mr. Craven?—I laid it on the table in the front room.

62,834. When they agreed to take the room?—Yes; when they agreed to take my room.

62,835. The room was up-stairs?—The room was up-stairs.

62,836. It was the key of the up-stairs room?—And the key of the front door also.

62,837. What occasion had you to take the key; up-stairs?—Because it is a private passage.

62,838. How came the key up-stairs before your room was taken?—It was taken then.

62,839. I want to know how it was: if it was taken, you might have given it on your way down. Can you recollect going down-stairs to fetch the key, and taking it up-stairs again?—I recollect very well going down-stairs and bringing the key of the passage door up-stairs, and laying it on the table.

62,840. You took it up-stairs?—Yes.

62,841. Why did they not come down-stairs at the same time?—At that time we did not think of such a thing.

62,842. They had agreed to take your room, what did they want more up-stairs?—They wanted the room.

62,843. I understood you to say, this took place after you let the room; how came you to go down-stairs and up again?—I could not give possession of the room till they got the key.

62,844. Why did you not give it up in the passage?—I must go down-stairs to fetch the key of the door up, to give it them.

62,845. You might have given it in the hall?—There is no hall.

62,846. There is a passage and a door?—True.

62,847. Why did you not give them the key as they were going out?—They might have business up-stairs.

62,848. What business had they?—There might be, perhaps, some business in their room.

62,849. Your business with them was done, as I understand? you had agreed to let the room?—Not till I gave them they key.

62,850. Why should you not have given them the key when they were going out?—For several reasons.

62,851. Give us one of them?—I might be busy in my shop at the time.

62,852. You could not be busy in the shop when you were first up-stairs?—I might have to be busy in the meantime. I could come down-stairs surely to get the key and carry it up again.

62,853. How could your business in the shop prevent you more from giving the key down-stairs than up?—For this reason: the shop door is a long way from the passage door.

62,854. They would have occasion to go out, I suppose?—Still my shop door is different from the passage door.

62,855. I ask you why it would not have answered for them to have come down-stairs and you have given it down-stairs as well as up. We want to see if there was any reason for your leaving these people up-stairs, and going down for the purpose of going back again?—I am sorry I did such a thing.

62,856. Let us understand distinctly; when you let them your room there was no communication between the passage and the shop?—Decidedly not. I had given them full possession of it.

62,857. All they could do was to go up the passase into the room?—Certainly.

62.858. The key you intrusted to Mr. Cattley?—Of course, I did.

62,859. Still, you do not explain how it was you took the key up for the purpose of bringing it down again?—Really, I cannot tell.

62,860. Where does Wilberforce live?—I am sure, I cannot tell.

62,861. Have you seen him in the town lately?—Yes; I saw him not long ago in this court.

JAMES STOCKDALE sworn, and examined. James Stockdale.

27th July 1853.

62,862. Where do you live?—Christopher Street, No. 9.
62,863. What is your business?—Shipwright.
62,864. Do you pay any rent?—£9.
62,865. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
62,866. When were you made a freeman?—By servitude.
62,867. When?—In 1811.
62,868. Did you pay for it yourself?—Yes; I think I took it up myself.
62,869. Now, at the election of 1841, who did you vote for?—My memory rather deceives me; but I think it was Hanmer.
62,870. Did you get any money then?—Well, I really cannot say whether I did or not. I really wish to speak the truth. I do not recollect it; I am sure, I cannot say now.
62,871. In 1847, Clay, Baines, and Brown, who did you vote for?—I voted for Baines I think, and Mr. Clay. I think you will find that to be correct.
62,872. Did you get any money then?—I cannot say whether I did or not; I rather think I did; but I will not be sure.
62,873. Now, in 1847 I see you were a runner for Mr. Baines?—I was.
62,874. Did you get something for that?—I do not know that I did not, I am sure. I do not know what it was, I really do not.
62,875. Now, in 1852, who did you vote for?—I polled for the two blues.
62,876. Mr. Moore and Mr. Butler?—Yes.
62,877. How much did you get?—I got 1*l.*
62,878. Who paid you?—A man of the name of Cattley brought it to my house; perhaps, a day or two after the election was over I got 1*l.*
62,879. Was your name set down?—No; I never promised.
62,880. What did they give you the 1*l.* for?—I did not promise them at all.
62,881. Did you see Mr. Moore and Mr. Butler at your house?—Yes; they were at our house; but I did not promise them to my knowledge; I did not, I am sure.
62,882. Did you ask to be a runner?—No; I never asked for anything of the kind. I was employed pretty well at that time. I never asked anything of the kind.
62,883. Did they come to your house after the election, Mr. Moore and Mr. Butler?—No, I believe not; not at all.
62,884. Were they at your house more than once?—I will not say; perhaps they might be; I could not say exactly. I was at work.
62,885. Did either of them give you any money?—No; I am sure they did not, not a farthing; that I am sure of; nothing except that 1*l.* I was telling you of; not as much as a pint of ale or anything else.
62,886. Did you not get money after you had voted for Hanmer and James, some time afterwards; recollect yourself?—I cannot answer that question. I am sure I do not know; if I did, I would tell you.
62,887. Was there any election that you ever voted at that you did not get some money?—I never got any at any election; the year you speak of, perhaps, I might have got 5*s.*; I will not say.
62,888. Was it not a sovereign you got from Hanmer and James after the election was over?—I do not know that I did.
62,889. Do you know that you did, or that you did not?—I am sure I cannot say; I really cannot.
62,890. You say that you were a runner for Mr. Baines in 1847, were you not then paid? Did they not pay their runners?—I admit, Mr. Gill and Mr. Sheppard came to our house and asked me if I would be a runner; and they were paid at some time or another; I do not know when, and I do not know that I got a farthing.
62,891. Did not your wife get your money for you?—Not that I know of.
62,892. Did you expect to get it at the time of the election, when you voted?—Mr. Gill and Mr. Sheppard put my name down.
62,893. Did you not expect that they would pay you?—Of course I did; but I did not get paid to my knowledge; there was an appointed time; but I did not know what the time was.

WILLIAM STORR sworn, and examined. William Storr.

62,894. Where do you live?—In Myton Gate.
62,895. What is your business?—A bacon factor.
62,896. What rent do you pay?—£36 a year.
62,897. Are you a freeman?—No.
62,898. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—This last one.
62,899. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.
62,900. Do you not mean Moore and Butler?—No; they never came to solicit my vote.
62,901. Have you got somebody here of your name?—I do not know; I dare say there is.

William Storr.

27th July 1853.

62,902. You voted for Clay and Goderich?—I did.
62,903. Did you get anything for your vote?—No.
62,904. Was your name set down?—No.
62,905. You did not get any profit by it?—No.
62,906. And did not let any room?—No; nothing of the kind.

Benjamin Sacker.

BENJAMIN SACKER sworn, and examined.

62,907. Where do you live?—Brook Street.
62,908. What is your business?—I am in no business.
62,909. What rent do you pay?—£4.
62,910. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
62,911. When were you made a freeman?—When Mr. O'Niel was here.
62,912. Did you pay for it yourself?—No; my brother paid for it for me.
62,913. Did you vote at the 1841 election?—Yes.
62,914. Who did you vote for?—I do not remember, I am sure.
62,915. Are you blue or orange?—Then, do you mean?
62,916. Yes.—I do not remember.
62,917. How much money did you get at that time in 1841?—I do not remember getting anything at that time.
62,918. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I voted, I think, for Mr. Baines.
62,919. Did you get any money?—No, I think not. I do not remember that I got any money.
62,920. You seem rather doubtful about it?—Yes, I am.
62,921. You are not sure of it?—I cannot say, I am sure.
62,922. You cannot say for certain?—No, I cannot.
62,923. Do you remember, if your wife got a little for you?—I have no wife.
62,924. Now, at the last election in 1852, who did you vote for?—I voted for Moore and Butler.
62,925. Did George Steeple pay you some money then?—Yes; he paid me my runners' money.
62,926. How much did he pay you?—A pound.
62,927. Where was your name set down?—It was set down at Cohen's in Brook Street.
62,928. Is that a committee room?—No; it was no committee room; the gentleman called there, and I was called over into his shop.
62,929. Who set your name down down, do you remember?— Mr. Goldsmith, I think, they called the gentleman that set my name down.
62,930. You did nothing, I believe?—No.
62,931. You did not run much?—I never was asked to run; consequently, if I had, I should have run.
62,932. When did the pay you?—After the election was over.
62,933. At what place?—At Steeple's, on the bank.
62,934. In 1847 did you not vote for Baines and Clay?—Yes.
62,935. You said for Baines only before, did you not then get some money?—I do not remember that; I do not.
61,936. You will not say that you did not get 10*s.*?—I cannot say whether I did or did not. If I did, of course I would say. I do not remember that I did.

Edward Smelt.

EDWARD SMELT sworn, and examined.

62,937. Where do you live?—57, Francis Street West.
62,938. What is your business?—A coaldealer.
62,939. What rent do you pay?—I am rated at 12*l.*
62,940. Are you a freeman?—I am a freeman of the borough of Beverley.
62,941. But of this borough?—No.
62,942. At which election were you first entitled to vote as a householder?—In 1847.
62,943. Who for, Clay, Baines, and Brown?—For Mr. Brown.
62,944. Did you get any money then?—A guinea, I believe.
62,945. Who paid it you?—I believe it was Anthony Bannister.
62,946. Was that after the election?—On the day of the election.
62,947. Was that at the Blue Bell?—Yes.
62,948. And you voted for Brown only?—Yes; Mr. Brown only.
62,949. In 1852, did you vote Moore and Butler?—Yes.
62,950. Did you have a room in your house taken?—Yes.
62,951. Who took your room?—Mr. Richard Cattley and Mr. Ward, shipowner, and another gentleman with them.
62,952. Is that the gentleman, Mr. Ward, who was the chairman of the committee?—I think so.
62,953. An elderly gentleman?—No; about forty.
62,954. Do you know his Christian name?—I do not know it.

Edward Smelt.

27th July 1853.

62,955. Where did they take your room?—At my own house.

62,956. When did Mr. Cattley and the other gentlemen take it?—About five days before the election.

62,957. How much were you to have for it?—Two guineas.

62,958. Did they give you a list of any committee to attend there?—No; they said they would send one, but they never did.

62,959. How much money besides that did you get from the blue party?—Not a farthing.

62,960. Who paid you for the room?—Charles Brown.

62,961. I am told that you got 6*l.*?—I never got a farthing more than two guineas.

62,962. Upon any account?—Not upon any account; not a farthing, but that two guineas, and this was about a fortnight after the election.

62,963. Were you canvassed by the orange party?—Yes; I was canvassed by the orange party.

62,964 Did you offer them your room?—They made application to me for it.

62,965. I asked you if you offered them your room?—Yes.

62,966. Was that after the other party came?—Yes.

62,967. How much did you ask of the orange party?—I never asked anything.

62,968. Did you intend them to have it for nothing?—They said they did not want it.

62,969. I ask you, did you not ask them to take your room for 4*l.*?—Who?

62,970. The orange party.—I went with John Darley; he was the person that made the application to one for my room. He asked me if I would go to his own house, to the committee room in Francis Street East, to Mr. Hodson. I went with him, and when I got to the room he immediately introduced me; and he said, "Here is Mr. Smelt has a room to let as a committee room, will you take it?" and he replied, "We have as many as we are allowed to take at present, but we will put his name down on our list." There was never such a thing as a price named.

62,971. Just attend to it, because you may be contradicted. Do you know a man of the name of Sissons who was the deputy chairman of the East Sculcoates do you know him?—I do not.

62,972. I ask you whether you did not make an application to somebody, to Sissons, or somebody else, to take your room for 4*l.*, and you said that if they would you would vote for them?—I have no recollection of anything of the kind.

62,973. Will you swear that you did not say so?—I have no knowledge of it. Where-abouts was it?

63,974. To Jonathan Dove Sissons.—I do not know him by name. I do not know such a person unless he was pointed out to me.

62,975. If they had taken your room no doubt you would have voted orange?—No doubt I should have voted one and one.

62,976. You said you would vote for those who would pay you best?—Who to?

62,977 Did you say so or not?—I do not remember saying so.

62,978. Will you swear that you did not?—I do not know that I did.

62,979. Will you swear that you did not?—I cannot say that I did not.

62,980. Answer the question as I put it to you; will you swear that you did not state that you would vote for that party on being paid for your room?—I have no knowledge of anything of the kind.

62,981. That is no answer to my question. Will you swear that or not?—No; I will not swear so.

Robert Tadman.

ROBERT TADMAN sworn, and examined.

62,982. Where do you live?—No. 16, Robinson's Road.

62,983. What is your business?—Commission agent.

62,984. What rent do you pay?—Fourteen guineas a year.

62,985. Are you a freeman?—Yes,

62,986. When were you made a freeman?—In 1826.

62,987. At your own expense?—Yes; at my own expense.

62,989. Who did you vote for?—I voted for Hanmer and James.

62,990. Did you get any money at that election for your vote?—I got 60*l.*

62,991. What for?—I paid for a band of music.

62,992. Who did you get the 60*l.* from?—I got it from Mr. Clifford Pease.

62,993. Did you send in a bill?—Yes.

62,994. What were you; the drummer, or what?—I was the man that had the employment of the band.

62,995. How many men had you?—Thirty.

62,996. How long was your band engaged for?—Two days.

62,997. At 2*l.* a man?—At 2*l.* a man.

62,998. At the election of 1841?—Yes; that was at the 1841 election.

62,999. Did you get anything besides that?—No.

63,000. What became of the 60*l.*?—I paid the men with it.

Robert Tadman.

27th July 1853.

63,001. Were they all to have the same sum?—Not exactly. I had commission out of it. Each man allowed me 2*s.* a day.

63,002. You got 4*s.* out of each man's 2*l*?—Yes; except in some few instance I paid the whole pound to them. Those who were freemen got their full money.

63,003. That seems to be a good commission?—It is the regular commission of musicians, 3*s.* in the guinea. Whoever gets the job of that description, it is no matter whether it is at an election or not, 3*s.* is the commission.

63,004. Some of the band were freemen?—Yes.

63,005. How many of them?—I think there would be six or seven.

63,006. They got more than the non-freemen?—They got a pound each.

63,007. Why did they get more?—It was an understood thing that they were to have their full money.

63,008. The 2*l.*?—Yes.

63,009. They got the 2*l.* each?—Yes.

63,010. Who was it arranged with that they were to have the full money?—It was between me and themselves that they should vote for the party they played for.

63,011. Did you and Mr. Clifford Pease settle that?—I do not think I did.

63,012. He would know perhaps that they would have the full money?—I do not think he did. I do not think he ever mentioned it when he paid me the money.

63,013. Did he know that you were to deduct 4*s.* from some of them?—That he did not know; that was an arrangement among ourselves.

63,014. You made it when you employed them?—Yes.

63,015. The freemen, on condition of their vote, had their full money?—That is generally the case.

63,016. Who were they?—There was a man of the name of Bell, a corkcutter.

63,017. Can you give us the names of them?—I cannot give you all the names. Mr. Bell the corkcutter can give you more names than I can.

63,018. Now, at the next election, in 1847, Clay, Baines, and Brown; who did you vote for?—I voted for Mr. Brown.

63,019. Did you get any payment then?—Yes; I got 120*l.*

63,020. How did that go?—I paid thirty men for four days.

63,021. For the music?—Yes.

63,022. That was 4*l.* apiece?—That was 4*l.* apiece.

63,023. How much was the commission then?—I got the same commission out of them that time.

63,024. Out of all them?—No, not all of them; with the exception of the leaders or perhaps half a dozen freemen.

63,025. You made the same arrangement as before?—I made the same arrangement as before.

63,026. Who paid you that money?—Mr. Digby.

63,027. Will you get their names?—I will endeavour to do so.

63,028. You had some difficulty in getting your money from Mr. Digby I understand?—I had.

63,029. Did you take him into the County Court?—I did not. It was some party he added after I made the arrangement.

63,030. Was that for this money?—No; it was for other money.

63,031. Was it for money connected with the election?—It was for money connected with the band by some parties they had put on. After they had agreed with me for thirty they put on some auxiliaries, seven or eight.

63,032. Did you get that additional money?—I did not.

63,033. Did you succeed in recovering it?—The parties who put Mr. Digby into court I think lost the day; but they were going to summons me for the money. I went to Mr. Wells, and he said if I would fetch the parties to him they would make it up with them, which they did, and paid them.

63,034. Could you add those names to the others?—They were not freemen.

63,035. None of them?—I think there was one they called Charles Nainby; he was a freeman.

63,036. At the 1852 election, who did you vote for?—I voted for Clay and Goderich.

63,037. Did you get any money then?—Nothing.

63,038. There was no band?—No band.

63,039. And no commission?—And no commission.

63,040. Did you get commission in every other shape?—No; not a farthing.

63,041. Were you upon any committee?—No, I was not.

63,042. Was not your music used at all?—No.

63,043. Did you get any names set down?—No, I did not. I did not get my own set down either at that time.

63,044. Did you let any room?—No.

63,045. Did you engage any room for either party?—No.

63,046. Or pay for any?—No.

63,047. Joseph Watson, was he one of your band?—Yes; at Mr. Brown's election.

63,048. He was one of the musicians?—Yes.

63,049. He was employed as far back as 1837 in the same way?—He was.

Robert Tadman.

27th July 1853.

63,050. George Craig?—No.
63,051. He was then examined as a witness?—He was engaged in those times.
63,052. Not since 1837?—Not that I remember.
63,053. Was he engaged after 1837?—No; it was before that.
63,054. You are the Robert Tadman who was the musician in 1837?—Yes. Ling would have the engaging of the band then.
63,055. Were you always the same as you were this time, inclined to be orange?—No; I was always inclined to blue before. I once voted for Mr. Hutt, but there was only one blue in the field at that time. I was always blue before this last election.
63,056. You voted for whichever party employed you?—I always contrived to be engaged by the blue party, being that way. No doubt if I had not been engaged by the blues, but by the other party, I should have voted the other way.

Thomas Tadman.

THOMAS TADMAN sworn, and examined.

63,057. Where do you live?—Otter Square, Queen Street.
63,058. What is your business?—A fruit merchant.
63,059. What rent do you pay?—8*l.* a year.
63.060. When were you made a freeman?—In 1839.
63,061. At whose expense?—At the expense of the orange party.
63,062. Did you vote for them at the next election?—No.
63,063. Not in consequence of that?—No.
63,064. You voted for James and Hanmer?—Yes.
63,065. What did you get for that?—I cannot tell to a pound or two.
63,066. Tell us as near as you can?—About 10*l.*
63,067. What were you then?—I was engaged picking up stray voters.
63,068. When you picked them up what did you do with them?—I took them to the committee room and got their names set down.
63,069. How many did you pick up?—Perhaps 100, me and my party. There were five or six of us.
63,070, Who engaged you to do it?—A gentleman of the name of Colton.
63,071. Who else?—Nobody else. There were five or six of us engaged.
63,072. Who were the others?—There was a man they called Dry, and two or three more.
63,073. Ralph Dry?—Yes.
63,074. When you found people who wished to have their names set down, did you send them to any place?—We mostly used to go with them.
63,075. To what place did you go with them?—We went to the Shakespeare, and a committee room in Church Lane.
63,076. Those are the only two places?—Those are the only two places that I had anything to do with, and a committee room in Queen Street. There were three.
63,077. Who was at the Shakespeare?—Mr. Ullathorne I think would be the chairman there.
63,078. And at Church Lane?—Thomas Jarratt.
63,079. And in Queen Street?—Mr. Moxon would be the chairman.
63,080. And what is Mr. Moxon's christian name?—I do not know.
63,081. Were all those people that you picked up runners?—They were all set down; every one of them.
63,082. How long were you employed at this before the election?—Only twe days. the nomination day and the day of the election.
63,083. Did you afterwards go up with them to poll, some of them?—Some of them.
63,084. You took them up to the poll?—I took them up to the poll in a carriage or cabs, or different things.
63,085. Where did they get their money?—That I do not know anything about.
63,086 When were they paid?—I do not know.
63,087. After you took them up to the poll, what did you do with them?—They went about their business. I think some of them were paid beforehand.
63,088. How many days were they set down for?—Six.
63,089. Have you any acconnt of it?—No; I never had anything to do with that.
63,090. How many do you think you took up to the poll?—I cannot say.
63,091. Did you take up a hundred?—No; not so many. Twenty or thirty.
63,092. Some of them got 5*l.* a man we hear?—Very likely.
63;093. You did not see any payment made?—No; they would be very silly if they did not get 10*l*; there were plenty of good chances.
63,094. Where could that chance be had?—I suppose if they had looked after it the same as I did. I looked after myself, that was all.
63,095. If you come to pay 100 men 10*l.* each it runs into money?—It does.
63,096. They did not all do as much as you did?—I did not do a good deal I assure you.
63,097. Who did you get your 10*l.* from?—From Mr. Colton.

Thomas Tadman.

27th July 1853.

63,098. When did he pay you?—He paid me at half past one on the day of the election 5*l.*, I got 5*l.* then and 5*l.* the day before; not all at once; the first 5*l.* was in odd pounds.

63,099. Did you ask for a 30*s.* ticket at that election?—Yes; I got a good many.

63,100. Who gave you them?—Mr. Colton.

63,101. How many do you suppose you had?—Perhaps a dozen.

63,102. What did you do with them?—We had beer for them.

63,103. 30*s.* each man?—No; among, may be, thirty men.

63,104. Were there a good many of those tickets?—Perhaps a dozen.

63,105. What did the ticket say?—Let the bearer and his party have 30*s.* worth of meat and drink at such a public house.

63,106. Was the public house mentioned?—No, the public house was not mentioned; I took it where I liked.

63,107. Was that after the election or before?—It was on the nomination day.

63,108. Was the ticket left at the house, or how were they to be paid for?—The ticket was left at the house and set down in the bill.

63,109. You did not pay the money?—No; but I know the man got it.

63,110. I merely want to know whether you paid it?—I never paid any money.

63,111. Where did you take them to?—To the Humber Tavern, and two or three of them would go to the Black Eyed Susan in Blanket Row.

63,112. Was there any other place that you went to?—No, we mostly used those two houses; we were not fond of running about.

63,113. Who is this Mr. Colton?—He was brought down here, I believe, expressly for the purpose of assisting at the election. I have only seen him once since, and that was at Doncaster races. I believe he belonged to a family about Sutton; I believe he was brought down to assist at the election.

63,114. You have never seen him since—only once at the Doncaster races?—I never saw him before nor since, only then.

63,115. Can you tell us anything more about the '41 election?—No; not that I know of.

63,116. Who paid besides Mr. Colton, do you know?—No, I do not know; there were so many of them had money.

63,117. You say there was a good chance of getting money then?—There was lots of money knocking about.

63,118. How did you know that?—I saw it.

63,119. Where did you see it?—At the blue public houses, if you had a mind to go there to look for voters. I was looking for some money myself, that made me see it.

63,120. You saw the men who got the money with it?—No, I never saw the men with it; I said I saw gentlemen with money.

63,121. You did say that some got their money before voting?—No, I did not say so; I saw gentlemen with money on the nomination night looking for voters.

63,122. Who were they?—I do not know; there were so many of them, it is impossible to say.

63,123. Give us some of them?—There was young Mr. Trigg; his father is a timber merchant, I believe.

63,124. At what house did you see him?—In the Humber Tavern.

63,125. Who else did you see?—I do not remember anybody else.

63,126. Did you see Mr. Freebody?—No; I do not know the gentleman.

63,127. Mr. McAdam?—Yes; that is one I saw.

63,128. Which house did you see him in?—It would either be the Shakespeare or the Humber Tavern; I never went anywhere else.

63,129. Mr. Hammond?—I had nothing to do with Mr. Hammond.

63,130. Mr. Cattley?—I had nothing to do with him.

63,131. Mr. Gleadow?—No, I never saw any of those gentlemen: I cannot remember the names, I am sure there are many gentlemen in this town that I do not know the names of.

63,132. Did Mr. Jarrett give you any money?—Yes.

63,133. At that election?—Yes.

63,134. What did he give you that money for?—It was a little money they owed me for the 1837 election, when I was not a freeman.

63,135. Did you not have a good deal of money from Mr. Jarrett?—Only 22*s.*

63,136. That was for yourself?—So was the other; all I got hold of was for myself.

63,137. He paid you that 22*s.* for back money?—I said I should not vote if he did not.

63,138. And he paid it?—He did.

63,139. When did he make that payment?—Three days before the election.

63,140. Did you vote at that election?—No.

63,141. What had you done for it?—There was a bit of a row I got into, and they said they would pay the money.

63,142. You had a fight?—Yes; I was brought up before the magistrates.

63,143. And you got fined?—Yes; there is the gentleman here who fined me.

63,144. I suppose it was 15*s.* fine, or three days imprisonment?—No; we were sent out to make it up; the men took 22*s.*

63,145. At the election of 1847, who did you vote for?—For Mr. Baines.

63,146. Did you help him in his election?—No.

63,147. Were you set down anywhere?—No.

63,148. Had you a room taken?—No.

63,149. Did you get any money?—No.

63,150. From anybody?—Not a shilling.

63,151. How came you to be so idle then?—I will tell you the reason; there was no money astir, that was just the reason.

63,152. We have not heard that was the case?—There was only half a sovereign, and I would as soon do without it.

63,153. It was not enough?—Not exactly for me.

63,154. In 1852 who did you vote for?—I voted for Lord Goderich.

63,155. For Clay and Goderich?—No; Lord Goderich himself.

63,156. Alone?—Alone.

63,157. Did you get some money from a man of the name of Currer in Myton Gate?—No.

63,158. On the morning of the election?—No.

63,159. It may be somebody else?—I do not know him.

63,160. Did you get any money on the morning of the election? did you get 10*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes, I did.

63,161. Who from?—Mr. Aitkin, a currier.

63,162. What did he give you the 10*s.* 6*d.* for?—Three days' pay, I suppose they call it.

63,163. When were you set down?—I think it would be about three days before.

63,164. Where?—At the Shakespeare.

63,165. That was for the blue?—That was blue; but I did not vote for them for all that.

63,166. You got the money?—Yes.

63,167. Did Aitkin pay you for the blues?—Yes; he paid it in the morning.

63,168. Did he pay a good many others when you were there?—No; there was nobody went but myself.

63,169. I am told that he paid everybody who came?—Very likely he did.

63,170. You did not see him?—I am sure I did not.

63,171. When he paid you the 10*s.* 6*d.* did he ask you who you were going to vote for?—No; he never mentioned it.

63,172. He thought you were going to vote for the blues?—I should think so.

63,173. You did not tell him you were not going to vote for him?—Not exactly.

63,174. Do you know Mr. Brodrick?—Yes.

63,175. The wine merchant?—Yes.

63,176. He paid you some money?—No, not a shilling.

63,177. He paid you some money for shouting?—No.

63,178. Did you get any money for that purpose?—Yes.

63,179. Who paid you?—Mr. Davis.

63,180. Was that 5*s.*?—No; 35*s.*

63,181. What did Davis pay you the 35*s.* for?—To pay a few men with to go and make a noise, or rather keep quiet when they were speaking in the Market Place.

63,182. When did Mr. Davis give you that employment?—It was the morning before they were going to speak in the Market Place ward.

63,183. Who was it for?—For Mr. Bramley Moore and Butler.

63,184. He gave you 35*s.* for that?—Not for myself.

63,185. I thought you told me before, all the money you got hold of was for yourself?—That was not.

63,186. What did you do with it?—We spent most of it.

63,187. Then that was not for yourself. How much of it did you keep for yourself?—I cannot tell, I am sure. I should think it would be all spent—there were twenty of us—and may be, some more to it.

63,188. That was some time before the election?—I should think it would be a week before; it was on the speaking day.

63,189. Had you been set down then for the blues?—No; I got set down after.

63,190. When did you get set down for the orange party?—I never got set down, or spoke to about my vote, or anything of the kind.

63,191. When did you make up your mind to vote for Lord Goderich?—A fortnight before the election; as soon as ever they brought Mr. Butler into the field.

63,192. Who did you give your other vote for?—I voted a bullet for him.

63,193. That is only one?—I made up my mind afterwards to vote for him.

63,194. Perhaps you heard him speak?—Yes, he is a very clever man.

63,195. Did you get nothing at all?—Not a shilling. I was never spoke to about any money by the orange party.

63,196. Did you make any payments after the election?—No.

63,197. Did you assist Mr. Wilde at all?—No; I never saw him then.

Thomas Tadman.

27th July 1853.

63,198. I thought you looked at him as an old friend?—I know him.
63,199. Did you help him?—No; I never saw him during the election.
63,200. Did you not help him after the election?—That I am sure I did not.
63,201. Did you not receive anything from him?—Not a shilling.
63,202. Nor from Mr. Carrick?—No; I never spoke to anybody about it.
63,203. You can have money without speaking?—I never got any, and I did not expect any.

William Townend.

WILLIAM TOWNEND sworn, and examined.

63,204. Where do you live?—28, John Street, Drypool.
63,205. What is your business?—I am a painter.
63,206. What rent do you pay?—I pay 6*l.* 10*s.*
63,207. When were you made a freeman?—In 1839, I think.
63,208. At whose expense?—At the orange party; they took it up.
63,209. Did you vote for them in consequence?—Yes.
63,210. At the next election?—Yes.
63,211. That was Clay and Thompson?—I forget who it was, I am sure.
63,212. Did you get some money then?—No, not a farthing; nothing more than my freedom taken up.
63,213. You promised them, I suppose?—I promised to vote for them if they would take up my freedom.
63,214. In 1847—Clay, Baines, and Brown—who did you vote for?—I polled for Brown and Clay.
63,215. Did you receive any money at that election?—I received 10*s.* from Mr. Brown's party.
63,216. And how much for Mr. Clay?—Nothing.
63,217. Who paid you for Mr. Brown?—Dr. Twining.
63,218. When was it?—It was before the election.
63,219. Where at?—At the Noah's Ark, in Witham.
63,220. In 1852 did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes.
63,221. Were you a clerk in some room?—No.
63,222. Were you a runner?—No.
63,223. You were a Holderness runner?—No.
63,224. Did you not get some money?—I got 10*s.* about a week or a fortnight after the election. I did not know I was going to get it; they sent to my house to say I was to go to Mr. Jubbs' public house, and there was half a sovereign for me, and of course I went.
63,225. Had you been canvassed by the blues?—I was canvassed by both; but I did not promise any one.
63,226. Did you say to them they might set your name down?—I did not.
63,227. Did they offer to do it?—I believe Mr. Walker said he would set me down for two days, and I did not make any reply.
63,228. You did not tell him not to do it?—I did not.
63,229. And then he paid you 10*s.*?—Yes.
63,230. You expect it was for the two days?—I expect so; I do not know of anything else it could be for.

Charles Thompson.

CHARLES THOMPSON sworn, and examined.

63,231. Where do you live?—61, Waverley Street.
63,232. What is your business?—I am a baker.
63,233. What rent do you pay?—£15.
63,234. Are you also a freeman?—I am not.
63,235. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—At 1841 and the last election.
63,236. Who did you vote for in 1841?—James and Hanmer.
63,237. Did you get any money at that election?—I received a pound about two months after unexpectedly.
63,238. Who brought it to you?—Mr. McAllen called to say would I accept of a sovereign, and I was not foolish enough to refuse it.
63,239. You had voted for them, I suppose?—I had.
63,240. Was that Mr. Gleadow's clerk?—I believe it was.
63,241. Had your name been set down?—Not that I am aware of; I never had any communication with anybody during the election.
63,242. Of course you understood that 1*l.* was for your having voted for them?—I understood so when I got it, but I never expected anything of the kind.
63,243. In 1847 who did you vote?—I was not on the register.
63,244. Did you see Colonel Thompson at all at that election in 1841?—I heard him speak out of a window.

Charles Thompson.

27th July 1853.

63,245. Did not somebody canvass you for him?—I was canvassed by all parties I believe.

63,246. Did you ultimately make any promise to anybody?—No; I believe after I had promised the blues Mr. Thistleton offered me 30*s.* to poll for them.

63,247. And what did you say then?—I said I had promised the blues, and I should not.

63,248. In 1852 who did you vote for?—For Mr. Moore and Mr. Butler.

63,249. I believe you got some money then?—I was engaged by them for about three weeks.

63,250. Where was your name put down?—I was engaged by Mr. Croft.

63,251. Where was that at?—At the Waverley Street committee room.

63,252. When were you engaged there?—I think it was about three weeks before the election.

63,253. How much money did you get?—Something near 3*l.* I think; I cannot tell to a shilling or so.

63,254. Were you paid weekly?—No; when I wanted any money I used to say, you may as well pay me a little money, Mr. Croft; and he would give me a sovereign or a half sovereign, as he felt disposed.

63,255. Of course you meant to vote for him?—I told him I should before I was engaged.

63,256. Was there any of the weekly salary kept back till after you had voted?—I think that there was a balance of some fifteen shillings or a pound that he paid me after the election.

63,257. He kept that back?—I was not paid it till after the election.

63,258. They kept it back?—Yes; they kept it back, because I did not get it.

63,259. They kept it back to secure your vote?—They had no occasion to do that.

63,260. Was not that the object?—I should say it was.

63,261. You did not ask for it till after the election?—To be paid up.

63,262. Yes.—No, if it had been 5*l.*, I should not either. I had every confidence.

63,263. You had every confidence that if you had voted all right they would have paid you?—Yes, I had.

63,264. But you would not have had much expectation of the money if you had voted the other way?—No; I should like to have had it first.

George Thompson.

George Thompson sworn, and examined.

63,265. Where do you live?—Cottage Row, Drypool.

63,266. What is your business?—A publican.

63,267. What rent do you pay?—£22.

63,269. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—This is the first time.

63,270. At the last election?—Yes.

63,271. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

63,272. How much money did you get?—I got nothing for voting.

63,273. How much did you get?—They had a committee room at my house, that is all I got from them.

63,274. Who engaged it?—I do not know.

63,275. Who paid you for it?—George Steeple.

63,276. Was that after the election?—After the election.

63,277. Who used your room?—I do not know who they were; they were all strangers to me.

63,278. Where was it taken?—At the committee room in Drypool.

63,279. Did you go there?—Yes, I did.

63,280. Cannot you tell me who took it of you?—I cannot; they came to our house when I was out, and my wife told me when I came home; they said they wanted to take our room for a committee room, that they wanted one in that district, and I let it them.

63,281. How much did you get for it?—£2.

63,282. That was paid by George Steeple?—Yes, it was.

63,283. When was it taken?—I should think it would be a week or so before the election.

63,284. How many of the committee came there?—I do not know I am sure.

63,285. Do you ever see any?—I saw some people going backwards and forwards, but I do not know what their business was.

63,286. Coming backwards and forwards to your house?—No, to the room.

63,287. Were they working men?—I do not know what they were.

63,288. You must know if they were gentlemen or not?—Some of them were dressed in black coats. I did not bother my head with them at all.

63,289. You did not much want to vote?—No.

63,290. You did not care about it?—No.

63,291. Did you not tell them that you would not vote without they took a room?—No; and I never was asked to vote.

George Thompson.

27th July 1853.

63,292. When you went to let them the room, did you not say you should vote for them?—No; I always meant to vote blue.

63,293. Did they ask you to vote for them?—They did not ask me.

63,294. Did you tell them you should not vote for them?—No; the vote never was mentioned in any shape or point.

63,295. Was there any doorkeeper there?—There was a man stood at the door.

63,296. What was his name?—I do not know.

63,297. How late did he stay in the day, that doorkeeper?—I do not know I am sure.

63,298. Did he stay there an hour during the day?—Do you mean a doorkeeper at our house?

63,299. Yes.—There was no doorkeeper there; I thought you meant at the committee room.

62,300. Was there a doorkeeper at your house?—No.

63,301. How late used the people that you saw coming backwards and forwards to the room stay?—I did not take any notice; I had other business to attend to; I did not bother my head about it.

63,302. Did they stay as much as ten minutes during the day?—I do not know, to say, what they did.

63,303. You do not know that they stayed there ten minutes?—I should think they would.

63,304. Did they stay a quarter of an hour?—I am sure I do not know; I should think they would, a deal more than that.

63,305. Did they give you a list of gentlemen who were to come there?—No, they never gave me anything.

63,306. They gave you the 2*l.* we hear?—George Steeple did, and I gave him a receipt for his money.

63,307. Did you go for the money, or did Steeple come with it?—No, I went two or three times to the committee room; they put me off time after time, and at last George Steeple brought it.

63,308. They wanted to see the check sheet to see how you voted, I suppose?—I do not know what they did; it is a matter I do not understand.

Thomas Watson.

THOMAS WATSON sworn, and examined.

63,309. Where do you live?—Kelsey's Buildings, North Street.

63,310. What rent do you pay?—£5.

63,311. You are a freeman, I believe?—Yes.

63,312. When were you made a freeman?—In 1826 I took it up.

63,313. Did you vote at the election in 1841?—Yes.

63,314. Who did you vote for?—For Mr. Clay.

63,315. For Mr. Clay only?—For Clay only.

63,316. Were you employed at that election?—No, I was not.

63,317. Did you get any money then?—Yes; I got 2*l.*

63,318. What was that for?—It was for being a runner, and for polling; one thing and another.

63,319. You did not run?—Yes, I run; but nothing particular.

63,320. You were set down as a runner, and paid 2*l.*?—Yes.

63,321. Who paid it you?—Thistleton.

63,322. Is that all you got at that election?—Yes.

63,323. In 1847 who did you vote for?—For Clay and Brown.

63,324. Did you get paid for your vote?—Yes, I got 10*s.* from each party.

63,325. Where were you paid?—At the committee room for Mr. Brown in Bishop Lane; Mr. Wilde paid me the 10*s.* for Mr. Clay.

63,326. Who paid you for Mr. Brown?—I was paid at the committee room; I do not know who it was.

63,327. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Clay and Goderich.

63,328. Did you get any money at the last election?—I got 10*s.*; I was two days running.

63,329. Who paid it you?—Mr. Wilde.

63,330. Was that before or after voting?—Before I voted.

63,331. Where were you employed, as a runner?—In Saville Street.

63,332. Did you pay any money to a man of the name of George Gilliard?—No, I never paid any money.

63,333. On the polling day?—No, I paid none at all.

63,334. Have you been employed by the blue party at any of the elections?—No.

63,335. Or to get people set down?—No.

CHARLES WORSDALE sworn, and examined.

Charles Worsdale.

27th July 1853.

63,336. Where do you live?—In Osborne Street.
63,337. What are you?—A sail maker.
63,338. What rent do you pay?—£5 10*s.*
63,339. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
63,340. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1826.
63,341. Did you vote in 1841?—Yes.
63,342. Who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.
63,343. Did you get paid for it?—No; I went away the day after the election to sea.
63,344. Was there any money left for you?—No; I got nothing.
63,345. Were you to have been paid?—No; I never got anything.
63,346. Was your name set down at all?—No.
63,347. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I voted for Mr. Brown.
63,348. Brown only?—Brown only.
63,349. Did you get paid for that?—I got 15*s.*
63,350. When was it paid, before or after the election?—It was about four days after the election.
63,351. Who paid it you?—Mr. Bannister.
63,352. Is that all you got at that election?—Yes.
63,353. At the last election who did you vote for?—Mr. Moore and Mr. Butler.
63,354. Were you set down at Legitt's?—No.
63,355. At the Minerva Terrace?—No.
63,356. Did you get any money?—Yes.
63,357. How much did you get?—I got a sovereign.
63,358. When was that paid you?—About three weeks after the election.
63,359. Who paid it?—Mr. Wells.
63,360. Where at?—George Yard.
63,361. Is that all you got?—Yes, that is all I got.
63,362. Had you anything to do with the election, in getting other people set down?—No.

WILLIAM WISE sworn, and examined.

William Wise.

63,363. Where do you live?—14 Church Row, the Groves.
63,364. What rent do you pay?—£7 10*s.* I think it is.
63,365. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
63,366. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1839.
63,367. Which party took it up?—I paid for it myself.
63,368. Was it ever repaid to you?—Yes.
63,369. By which party?—By the Conservatives.
63,370. By the blues?—By the blues.
63,371. Did you vote for them in consequence of their repaying you for your freedom?—No, not in consequence of their repaying me for my freedom; I voted that way through principle.
63,372. You voted for them at all events?—Yes.
63,373. When they paid for your freedom they expected you to vote for them?—Most likely they did, but I did not promise them.
63,374. You accepted their money when you knew they expected you to vote for them?—Yes.
63,375. Did you get paid for your vote in 1841?—Yes, I did.
63,376. You voted blue?—Yes; I voted blue.
63,377. What were you paid?—I got a sovereign.
63,378. Who paidit you?—I cannot tell whether Mr. Bannister or Mr. Wilkinson paid it.
63,379. Where did he pay it?—Whether it was in Mr. Bannister's or Mr. Wilkinson's room I do not know which. I was two or three times, first with one and then with the other.
63,380. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay and Brown.
63,381. Did you get paid for that?—I got a pound from Mr. Brown.
63,382. Who paid you that?—Mr. Twining, at the Noah's Ark, in Witham.
63,383. Was that after you had polled?—Directly after I had polled, in the morning.
63,384. Had you anything more at that election?—Nothing.
63,385. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Moore and Butler.
63,386. Did you get any money then?—Yes.
63,387. How much did you get?—Thirty shillings.
63,388. Where was it paid you?—I received part of it in York, by a post office order.
63,389. Did you come from York?—Yes; I came from York to Hull.
63,390. Who paid you?—I got a pound by post office order, which I received in York; and I got 10*s.* in Parliament Street, on the polling day.
63,391. Who from?—From the blue party.

William Wise.

27th July 1853.

63,392. Who paid it?—I cannot tell you exactly his name; it was at a place in Quay Street, however.

63,393. How did you come from York?—By the train.

63,394. Which class?—The third class.

63,395. How much did it cost you?—The fare would be 10*s.*

63,396. From York here?—And back again.

63,397. How many days did you stay here?—I was five days here; six days if I reckon Sunday and all.

James Wing.

JAMES WING sworn, and examined.

63,398. Where do you live?—Drypool.

63,399. What rent do you pay?—£18.

63,400. Are you a freeman?—No.

63,401. At what time were you qualified to vote?—At the last election.

63,402. Who did you vote for?—Butler and Moore.

63,403. Was your room taken?—Yes, it was.

63,404. How much were you paid?—£2, or two guineas.

63,405. Who took it?—I do not know who took it

63,406. Did you apply to have it taken?—No.

63,407. Why is it you do not know them?—There were different gentlemen came in, whom I did not know. I know who paid me.

63,408. Were they the canvassers for Moore and Butler?—Yes.

63,409. How long before the election was it?—Perhaps a week.

63,410. Did anybody use it?—I should say it was not used a deal.

63,411. It was not used at all, was it?—I would not be certain. I was not in all the time.

63,412. You have no reason to suppose it was occupied?—I have no reason to suppose it was or was not. I should say it was not.

63,413. Did you not get some money for a dog cart?—Yes.

63,414. How much did you get for that?—£2, or two guineas.

63,415. Besides the 2*l.* for the room?—Besides the 2*l.* for the room.

63,416. Who had your dog cart?—It was used for fetching up voters.

W. Wilberforce.

WILLIAM WILBERFORCE sworn, and examined.

63,417. Where do you live?—Francis Street.

63,418. What rent do you pay?—£8.

63,419. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

63,420. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1839.

63,421. Which party took it up for you?—I took it up myself.

63,422. Were you repaid?—No.

63,423. Who did you vote for in 1841?—James and Hanmer.

63,424. Did you get any money?—I got bread for life.

63,425. Did you get a place?—Yes.

63,426. What place did you get?—A situation in the custom.

63,427. Who got it for you?—Archdeacon Wilberforce.

63,428. Was that for your vote?—Well, I should say it was.

63,429. Had you told them, before you voted, that you would require some situation or maintenance?—No.

63,430. I see you are the same name as Archdeacon Wilberforce; are you any connexion of the archdeacon, or his family?—I do not know that I am.

63,431. Did you get the situation through the members?—Yes. I think Sir Walter James had something to do with it.

63,432. Did you apply for it after the election?—No.

63,433. Do you know whether any application was made to them on your behalf?—Yes, I believe there was, by Archdeacon Wilberforce.

63,434. What was the occasion of Archdeacon Wilberforce interesting himself on your behalf?—I requested it.

63,435. Was he in Hull at the time?—No.

63,436. Did you write to him?—I went to his house.

63,437. Did you say anything to him about your voting?—I am sure I forget.

63,438. What reason do you give that he should interest himself?—Probably the same name. I do not know.

63,439. Had it anything to do with your voting for the blue party?—No; I do not think it had.

63,440. Did he know that you would vote for them?—Yes; he knew that.

63,441. Now in 1847, who did you vote for?—Mr. Baines and Mr. Brown.

63,442. Did you get any money?—I got a sovereign.

63,443. Was that before or after you had voted?—After.

W. Wilberforce.

27th July 1853.

63,444. Where were you paid?—In the Market Place.
63,445. Who paid it you?—Mitchell.
63,446. For Mr. Brown?—Yes.
63,447. Did you get anything for Mr. Baines?—No.
63,448. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
63,449. Were you paid for that?—I was engaged from the 10th of June, and I got paid for my services.
63,450. How were you engaged? in what capacity?—A messenger.
63,451. Where at?—In Saville Street.
63,452. Who engaged you?—Mr. Richard Cattley.
63,453. Did you apply to him for employment?—Yes.
63,454. And you had your name set down for employment?—Yes.
63,455. How much were you paid?—£1 a week.
63,456. For how many weeks?—Three or four.
63,457. Was there anything coming to you after the election was over?—Yes.
63,458. How much?—I think I got a pound after the election.
63,459. A pound a week before, and a sovereign for the last four days?—Yes; I think that was it.
63,460. Did they keep back any part of your payment till after the election was over, for the three or four previous weeks?—No; I got paid every Saturday.
63,461. How much did you get altogether?—I do not know, I am sure; 4*l.* or 5*l.*
63,462. What was said to you when you applied to Mr. Cattley? what answer did he make?—When I made the application to be employed?
63,463. Yes.—I said, "I have come to offer my services to you, to assist you in the election."
63,464. What was his answer?—He said, "Very good; we shall be very happy to have your assistance."
63,465. Every vote counts, and, I suppose, they thought so?—Yes; that is a natural consequence.

D. Wilkinson.

DANIEL WILKINSON sworn, and examined.

63,466. Where do you live?—Anlaby Road.
63,467. What rent do you pay?—£20.
63,468. Are you a freeman?—No.
63,469. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Ever since the Reform Bill.
63,470. Did you vote in 1841?—Yes.
63,471. Who did you vote for in 1841?—I am sure I cannot tell you. It was for the orange party, I believe.
63,472. That would be Clay and Thompson; is that so?—I think it was.
63,473. Did you get any money for that?—No.
63,474. Did you get any money paid to you at that election?—I do not remember any.
63,475. Was your name set down at all?—No; not that I know of.
63,476. Are you quite sure you got nothing then?—I do not believe I did.
63,477. I see here, Daniel Wilkinson voted for James and Hanmer, in 1841; is that so?—Yes; I should think it would be.
63,478. Now recollect; as you voted for the blues, did you get any money for it?—No; I do not remember it.
63,479. After the election was over?—I do not remember it.
63,480. Will you undertake to swear that you did not?—I do not remember getting anything.
63,481. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines.
63,482. Did you get any money then?—No.
63,483. No money at that election?—Not at all.
63,484. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
63,485. Did you get any money for that?—A sovereign.
63,486. Was that paid before, or after you had voted?—About three weeks after.
63,487. Who by?—By Mr. Wells, of George Yard.
63,488. Were you paid any money by Mr. Croft?—No.
63,489. Have you been paid any money at any election before the last?—Not to my recollection. I never received anything before the last.
63,490. Do you mean by that that you have not?—Yes; I have not.

Joseph Watson.

JOSEPH WATSON sworn, and examined.

63,491. Where do you live?—Garden Square, Prince's Street.
63,492. What rent do you pay?—£9.
63,493. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
63,494. How long have you been a freeman?—Twenty-three years.

Joseph Watson.
27th July 1853.

63,495. Did you vote in 1841?—Yes.
63,496. For which party?—If you will name the members I will tell you.
63,497. Clay and Thompson?—Clay and Thompson.
63,498. Did you get any money for that?—I cannot tell the amount; I was playing in the band at the time. I never got anything for voting.
63,499. Who engaged you?—I think it was Mr. Retalic.
63,500. How many were there in the band?—I cannot say how many there would be.
63,501. Is it usual in the band to pay a commission to the person who employs you?—Generally.
63,502. Did you pay that commission upon that occasion?—Mr. Retalic took some 2*s.* off the pound for his commission.
63,503. Is that all the money that you got?—Yes; I never received any more for voting, only at Mr. Schonswar's election I received 2*l.* for a bullet, some time after.
63,504. Who did you vote for in 1847?—For Clay and Brown.
63,505. Did you get any money at that election?—£2 from Mr. Brown.
63,506. What did you do for that?—I played in the band.
63,507. That was paid you by Tadman?—I was one of the four who did not get paid, and we were obliged to summon Mr. Digby for 16*l.*; Mr. Digby and Mr. Beeton engaged us.
63,508. Did you get paid?—We took half of it and would not let it go any further, we were non-suited; I should have summoned Mr. Tadman instead of Mr. Digby.
63,509. Beeton engaged you?—Yes.
63,510. Therefore he expected you to vote for them?—No; I played for the blues before and voted orange; I have played for the blues frequently.
63,511. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.
63,512. You are sure of that?—Yes.
63,513. Were you engaged then?—Yes; I was engaged at Stark's committee room.
63,514. As a runner?—To do any business in the office.
63,515. Did you attend at his office?—I attended from nine o'clock in the morning till nine o'clock at night.
63,516. Did they send to you?—Mr. Rawson saw me and asked me if I would take an engagement in Mr. Galloway's office. I was engaged three weeks and four days.
63,517. How much were you paid in the whole?—£3 11*s.*
63,518. What was your agreement at the beginning?—There was no agreement made, I took the same as they were paying the others.
63,519. Did you promise your vote?—No, I did not.
63,520. Was nothing said about it?—Nothing was said, because I always voted, me, my father, and my brothers, upon the orange side.
63,521. What is your trade?—I am a tailor by profession.
63,522. Do you know another Joseph Watson?—No, I do not know him; he is no relative of mine.
63,523. You know there is such a man?—I know the man by sight, not to speak to him; he is living in Dock Street, I believe.
63,524. How came Mr. Rawson to apply to you?—I saw Rawson, and I asked him if he had two or three cards to spare to give my children to play with; he said, "Are you doing anything, because," he said, "if you will come up in the afternoon with me we will see Mr. Galloway, and put you into Stark's office."
63,525. That was in the streets?—Yes; in Bishop Lane.
63,526. Do you know what day of the week it was?—Upon the Tuesday morning.
63,527. The day after the members arrived?—Yes; the day after the members arrived.

J. M. Wildbore.

JOHN MORFITT WILDBORE sworn, and examined.

63,528. Where do you live?—In Porter Street.
63,529. Do you pay any rent?—Six guineas.
63,530. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
63,531. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1841.
63,532. Did you pay for it yourself?—No.
63,533. Which party paid for it?—Mr. Clay, I believe.
63,534. Were you in time to vote in 1841?—Yes.
63,535. Was it not when all the others were made freemen at the Mansion House?—Yes.
63,536. That would be 1839; now in 1841 did you vote in consequence of that for the orange party?—No; I voted for James and Hanmer.
63,537. When Clay's party paid for your freedom you knew that they did so because you would vote for them?—No.
63,538. You signed a paper to that effect?—I think Mr. Thistleton asked me if I had any objection, he said, "Come along with me," and I went, and I heard no more about it.

J. M. Wildbore.

27th July 1853.

63,539. What did you expect they did it for?—They would expect me to poll for them, no doubt.

63,540. They expected you to poll for them, and you accepted their bounty on that understanding, is that so?—Probably it might be.

63,541. You voted for Hanmer and James?—Yes.

63,542. Did you get any money for your vote?—No.

63,543. Were you paid nothing?—Not a farthing.

63,544. Were you employed at that election —No.

63,545. Was not your name set down as a messenger?—I do not know; not that I know of, it was not.

63,546. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.

63,547. Did you get any money then?—I got 15*s.*

63,548. Who paid it you?—A man of the name of May gave me half a sovereign, and I got 5*s.* in White Horse Yard; I do not know who paid it.

63,549. Where was the 10*s.* paid you?—At the Black Horse in Carr Lane.

63,550. Did you vote for Brown only?—Yes.

63,551. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

63,552. Did you get paid for that vote;—A sovereign.

63,553. Who paid it you?—Mr. Wells.

63,554. Of George Yard?—Yes.

63,555. Was that after you had voted?—Yes.

63,556. After signing the paper which you did, to vote for the orange party in 1839, how came you to vote against them at the very first possible opportunity you had?—I do not know that I signed any paper.

63,557. You put your name down here, upon the paper you signed?—Not to vote for the orange party, I think.

63,558. There it is, John Morfitt Wildbore?—Yes, that is my name.

Thomas Winter.

THOMAS WINTER sworn, and examined.

63,559. Where do you live?—George Street.

63,560. What rent do you pay?—Fourteen guineas.

63,561. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

63,562. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1839.

63,563. Which party paid for your freedom?—The orange party.

63,564. Did you vote for them in consequence in 1841?—Yes.

63,565. Did you get anything for your vote then?—Nothing at all.

63,566. You had no money from the blue candidates party?—No; I never asked for anything.

63,567. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Brown and Clay.

63,568. Did you get any money on that occasion?— A sovereign.

63,569. Who paid it you?—Doctor Twining.

63,570. Was that after you had voted?—No, before.

63,571. Where at?—At the Noah's Ark.

63,572. Is that all you got at that election?—Yes; that is all.

63,573. Now, at the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

63,574. Did you get paid for that?—No.

63,575. Did you get any money then?—No; not anything.

63,576. Were you living in Hull at the time?—Yes. I was born in Hull, and have never been out of it.

63,577. You did not come from any place to Hull to poll?—No.

63,578. You had no travelling expenses paid you?—Not anything.

63,579. Was your name set down as a runner?— No; I was never applied to, and never asked for anything.

63,580. Do you know a place called Potrington?—No; I never was there in my life.

Matthew Tait.

MATTHEW TAIT sworn, and examined.

63,581. Where do you live?—57, Great Passage Street.

63,582. What rent do you pay?—£18.

63,583. Are you a freeman?—No.

63,584. How long have you been entitled to vote?—I have not been entitled to vote these last ten or a dozen years; I did vote in 1832, 1835, and 1837, since that I have been off the register in consequence of being in arrear with my poor rates; I am a non-elector.

63,585. Did you canvass at the election in 1841?—I did, for Clay and Thompson.

63,586. Did you get names set down as runners?—I think there were some; I really do not recollect their names now; I took them to Mr. Thistleton.

Matthew Tait.

27th July 1853.

63,587. You put down their names?—Yes.

63,588. That was in order to secure their votes?—I believe it was.

63,589. Do you not recollect any of their names?—There was a man here to-day, I recollect him, William Kirby Baskell.

63,590. You took some others to be set down who you do not recollect?—Just at the present I do not.

63,591. Did you do anything else at that election?—No; I do not recollect that I did.

63,592. Did you pay any money yourself?—I had no money through my fingers, not a farthing.

63,593. Did you canvass in 1847?—I took no part in the 1847 election at all.

63,594. Did you canvass at the last election?—I did.

63,595. Did you take people to have their names set down this time?—There is my canvassing book (producing a small book). I see I am requested to bring it.

63,596. Does that show at all the parties who were to be set down?—I took some other parties besides those, perhaps half a dozen.

63,597. Which party did you canvass for?—For Clay and Goderich.

63,598. Will this book show which of those parties were to be paid money?—George Cuthbert canvassed with me, and he took a note,—it was some trouble to me as I cannot see very well to write without my spectacles,—and I took them down in ink afterwards; he took them down in pencil; and I think the book will be a correct analysis of what we did right away through.

63,599. You say you sent some other persons also to have their names set down at the last election?—I think there might be half a dozen I took to Wilde's room.

63,600. You took them to No. 21, Saville Street?—Yes.

63,601. Had you anything to do with the blue party?—Never; I have never had anything to do in that line at all, I never should have.

63,602. Did you do anything or hear anything that you can tell us about?—Just at the present I think there is nothing that strikes me particularly.

63,603. Did you pay any money?—I had no money through my hands.

63,604. Had you anything to do with Craig's party at the Manor House Tavern?—Nothing at all.

63,605. Did you offer a man of the name of Brown any money for his vote?—I offered to take him to be set down.

63,606. Did you offer a man any such sum as 3*l.* 10*s.* for his vote?—No.

63,607. Were you directed to attend at the central committee in consequence of somebody having said that you did offer a man money?—I was.

63,068. And did you attend before the committee?—I did.

63,609. And who was there, do you know, to charge you?—Mr. Craig was there, and I think he stated that George Hair had made a statement of that kind in his room the day before.

63,610. And you denied it?—It was not true.

63,611. Did you deny it?—I did.

63,612. How long was that before the election? before the polling day?—It might be a week or ten days, I do not recollect to a day or two, it would be a week I should think before the election.

63,613. Did you say you took a lot to Mr. Wilde's room before the committee?—Brown told me he was to have some money, as he had left his family without any means of getting bread. I said, "That is a pity, I will take you down to Mr. Wilde, and I will do all I can for you."

George West.

GEORGE WEST recalled, and examined.

63,614. You have some statement to make, what have you to say relating to the election?—Well, Mr. Charles Yeall said that I never polled orange but this last time, and that I should not have polled orange this time if it had not been for Lady Goderich's coming to visit me; I never saw Lady Goderich in my life, I never did, and I never made any application to Lady Goderich.

63,615. You never spoke to Lady Goderich at all, nor she to you?—No; that is what I have come here to contradict, because it was put in the public papers.

Adjourned to to-morrow at 10 o'clock.

FORTY-FOURTH DAY.—Thursday, 28th July 1853.

Mr. HENRY SMITH BRIGHT sworn, and examined.

Mr. H. S. Bright.

28th July 1853.

63,616. What business or profession are you?—Merchant.
63,617. Carrying on business in Hull?—Yes.
63,618. Are you a voter for this borough?—I am.
63,619. Are you a freeman?—A freeman.
63,620. How long have you been free?—About fifteen years, I think.
63,621. Do you also occupy premises in this borough?—I do.
63,622. What is the value or rate?—As a householder, 40*l.*
63,623. Did you take any interest in the election in the year 1841?—No.
63,624. Did you vote?—I did not vote; I was not in England at the time.
63,625. In 1847, I believe, you took a considerable interest on behalf of Mr. Baines?—I did.
63,626. I voted for him?—I voted for him only.
63,627. When did Mr. Baines first become a candidate for the representation of the borough, as far as you are aware?—In, I think, May 1847.
63,628. Have you got any document to refer to?—Mr. Shaen has the whole of my documents and papers.
63,629. These are accounts?—Yes, accounts.
63,630. They only begin the 7th of July?—The requisition to Mr. Baines was dated July 3d, 1847.
63,631. Do you know who it was presented by?—It was presented by myself.
63,632. On that day or soon after?—A very few days after that.
63,633. Can you tell how many signatures there were to it?—I can hand in a copy of the requisition, but I have not counted them.
63,634. Has that paper got all the signatures?—I believe not the whole.
63,635, How many short of the whole, because it has been said that it contained a a clear majority of the whole constituency?—My impression is that it did; my decided impression is it contained a clear majority of the electors of the borough.
63,636. And that it was presented at all events you think prior to the 10th of July?—The address by Mr. Baines, acknowledging the requisition and adopting it, was dated on the 15th of July.
63,637. That was long before Mr. Brown was talked of?—A considerable time. A correspondence with Mr. Baines, prior to the date of this requisition, had been going on about a week, at least a week.
63,638. He had been recorder of the borough before?—He had for ten years, I believe.
63,639. Except professionally he had no connexion with it?—Except professionally he had no connexion.
63,640. We hear it stated that he was introduced by yourself; at least that you were the most active?—It was accidentally.
63,641. How soon was there a committee organized?—I think almost immediately upon the receipt of Mr. Baines' address.
63,642. Previously to that, was it not?—I am not quite sure.
63,643. How soon was Mr. Sidebottom retained?—Immediately, I think, upon the receipt of Mr. Baines' address in manuscript.
63,644. I observe that he charges from the 7th July, eight days before?—That would be between the time of the requisition being completed, and Mr. Baines' acceptance, I presume; but I have no distinct recollection of the date.
63,645. When did you say the committees were organized?—About the same time.
63,646. About the 15th?—Yes, if that date is correct; the 7th, I should say; about that time. I have not looked at those documents since that year; I cannot very well remember them.
63,647. The 7th of July is what Mr. Sidebottom states?—If Mr. Sidebottom states it so, I have no doubt the committee was formed about that time.
63,648. Was Mr. Sidebottom himself an active partizan of Mr. Baines previous to his being a candidate?—No; not to my knowledge.
63,649. Do you know who Mr. Sidebottom was retained by?—I believe by myself.
63,650. In anticipation then probably?—Yes, in anticipation.
63,651. You felt quite confident Mr. Baines would accept it from pour own knowledge of him?—Yes.
63,652. Mr. Stark stated in his evidence that he was engaged in some way on behalf of Mr. Baines; how was that?—I do not know in what way Mr. Stark was engaged.
63,653. And that he was paid. I have looked through the accounts, and can find no trace?—It must be a mistake. I have no recollection of it.
63,654. Have you any recollection that Mr. Stark was paid out of money required for Mr. Baines' purposes?—Not unless it is in these accounts.

Mr. H. S. Bright.

28th July 1853.

63,655. I have taken the greatest possible care, and cannot find it?—Then he has not been paid decidedly.

63,656. Who was engaged in preparing the street lists?—They would be prepared under the direction of Mr. Sidebottom without my knowing any of the details.

63,657. He says he set down names for Clay and Baines?—That might be gratuitously, unless there is some entry in the accounts I have handed to you; he was not paid by Mr. Baines.

63,658. You think it is an error?—I should think so. I have no recollection of its being paid,

63,659. You have no recollection of Mr. Stark being recognized in any way as an agent of Mr. Baines?—I have not.

63,660. And to the best of your belief he was not an agent?—To the best of my belief he was not.

63,661. And in anything he was doing or acting for Mr. Clay he was incidentally giving an advantage to Mr. Baines?—That is my impression.

63,662. How soon did Mr. Baines come into the town, do you recollect? how soon did he arrive here personally?—I forget the day of the election.

63,663. Thursday the 29th of July?—I think Mr. Baines came into Hull on the previous Friday.

63,664. The Friday before?—The Friday before the election; I think so.

63,665. The impression is Mr. Baines was here only a week?—Not more than six days.

63,666. Was the committee organized under your superintendence?—No; not exclusively.

63,667. Yours was the central committee?—Mine was the central committee.

63,668. Can you tell how many district committees there were?—No, I cannot, without I had the accounts; I think I could tell you. I have not looked at those accounts since.

63,669. I am relying on what has been said previously. Mr. Pearson stated that he was also on a committee which met at Wright's public house? do you remember that?—I do not. Mr. Pearson took an active part in the election for Mr. Baines, but I have no recollection of the name of Wright or any name of that kind.

63,670. At Wright's public house?—I do not know where it was.

63,671. He called it Wright's public house, as the name of the person. You do not remember the fact?—I do not remember the fact.

63,672. Is there no minute book in existence which would show what was the course of procedure by the committee?—None at all.

63,673. You are aware that it was rather a singular election; persons on all sides were anxious that Mr. Baines should be one of the members?—And, therefore, there was not the same order observed as would probably have been otherwise the case.

63,674. You think there was no third candidate in the field until the Sunday before the election, two days before Mr. Baines arrived?—Until that time there was no candidate in the field.

63,675. And owing to that would it be the case that the canvassing and other preliminaries were rather neglected?—The mere knowing there was a requisition signed by a majority of the electors, it was natural it should be so.

63,676. And then that your proceedings like the others were obliged to be of a very hurried character?—Yes.

63,677. Was there ever a minute book?—No, I believe not. I never saw one, and I should have done if there had been one.

63,678. Was there time formally to appoint district committees, or did you leave it to the different sections of the town to look after themselves?—It was left very much so.

63,679. There was no organized system of committees and sub-committees?—No; there was not.

63,680. Did that prevent your central committee from being fully aware of the proceedings elsewhere than in your own committee, or did the district committee parties attend once a day or oftener at the central committee?—Not with any regularity. Of course reports were made frequently to the central committee.

63,681. Other reports than the canvassing reports?—No; other reports that I was aware of.

63,682. I understood you to say you were chairman?—No.

63,683. Deputy chairman?—No; I was treasurer.

63,684. Who was chairman?—Mr. Richard Tottie, and Mr. Theophilus Carrick and Mr. Thomas Ward Gleadow were deputy chairmen.

63,685. Did Mr. Tottie attend?—Occasionally.

63,686. And you were treasurer?—I was.

63,687. And as treasurer, did the great majority of the financial arrangements pass through your hands?—They did.

63,688. How was the staff appointed; messengers, doorkeepers, and clerks; by yourself or by the committee?—The two professional clerks, Mr. Sidebottom and Mr. Ayre, were appointed, not by myself alone, but by the general committee.

63,689. Which Mr. Ayre?—Mr, William Ayre, the magistrate's clerk.

63,690. Who appointed the doorkeepers and messengers?—I do not think exclusively any one party.

63,691. As to the runners. What was the system adopted, as well as your memory will enable you?—There were some runners appointed certainly.

63,692. By whom?—By the committees.

63,693. Describe what was the mode adopted on that occasion; we have got lists. I want to know if you can favour us with your memory as to how they were appointed?—At a time like that a great number of persons were wanted, and must necessarily be employed for the conveyance of various messages, and so forth, and they were so employed by the central and other committees.

63,694. Were they appointed with reference to their being on the register of voters?—I do not apprehend any man who was not on the register would be appointed a runner.

63,695. Did they apply or did you look for them?—They applied undoubtedly.

63,696. You had no lack of applicants?—No lack whatever of applicants; a great many were refused

63,697. On what ground?—Because they were not wanted.

63,698. Is that so according to the custom of Hull, that persons not voters take it for granted almost they will not be appointed, and consequently do not apply? Do you consider that is an impression sufficiently strong to prevent many persons other than voters from applying?—I believe so.

63,699. Does that from your knowledge of Hull show that the system of setting down runners exclusively for a class of voters is very well known?—I have had no experience but in that one election.

63,700. From your experience of that election, should you draw that conclusion?—Certainly.

63,701. Had you any book in which their names were set down?—I had no book. I believe Mr. Sidebottom had.

63,702. For such a purpose as that it would be necessary to have a book, otherwise you would not be able to pay?—I believe that each committee would have a small book, and would put down the names of the parties employed.

63,703. Would it have a list of applicants?—No; I should think not.

63,704. Now be so good as to favour us with the mode in which you dealt with those you refused. Was it by refusing to put their names down on paper at all, or that you put them down and treated them as applicants to be employed at some time or other?—Certainly not the least; they were not treated as applicants to be employed. Mr. Baines' instructions were very precise; he placed himself entirely in my hands, with a strong injunction that no money should be paid for bribery or treating.

63,705. Those are very general words that would leave it entirely to anybody to construe the word bribery his own way?—I was going on to say, and consequently the number of runners was limited to parties who were really usefully employed to the best of my knowand belief.

63,706. But what I want to know is this: did Mr. Baines, when he became a candidate, leave it to you and his committee to interpret what was bribery, or did he put his own interpretation on it, and leave you to carry it out?—There was no interpretation; those were his general directions.

63,707. I should like to have the words, without leading you to them at all, as near as you can, the very words of Mr. Baines. I wish to have that in every case?—As nearly as I can remember he said this: "I place myself in your hands, in the full confidence "that you will sanction nothing which can endanger my election; and that I am re-"garded as a candidate brought forward by both political parties in the borough."

63,708. Is that all?—That is all.

63,709. I want to know whether those instructions were given before or after a contest became evident?—Before Mr. Brown's appearance, certainly, and repeated on several occasions.

63,710. That was before another candidate was anticipated?—Yes; and repeated subsequently as well.

63,711. Was that in writing, or by words?—By words.

63,712. I presume you are now alluding to the first occasion, because I want to go by steps. These are the first instructions he gave?—The first instructions he gave.

63,713. On that occasion was there any allusion made by himself, or by you, or by anybody present, to the system that had prevailed of runners?—No, I think not.

63,714. Or to a great number of persons being employed?—No, I think not.

63,715. Do you remember who was present at that interview?—No one but myself.

63,716. The system of runners was not alluded to, nor the system of employing a large number of persons; that is your recollection?—I believe not; I have no recollection of it.

63,717. On that occasion was there any allusion made to the expenses of the election, or its probable expense—any estimate?—Not at that time, I think.

63,718. Or at any time previous to that?—Yes; I think there was.

63,719. What was it?—Mr. Baines, as he had a right to be, was under the impression that he would be returned, as nearly free of expense as it would be possible for any candidate to be.

63,720. How did that impression arise; did you collect that from your communication with him?—Decidedly.

Mr. H. S. Bright.

28th July 1853.

63,721. Just state anything that he said to you which conveyed that impression, or that you said to him, to induce him to arrive at it?—A requisition, presented by so large a number of the voters, led to that impression; and the feeling of parties in the town with reference not only to him, but to the desire to avoid a contest in the borough; all parties were anxious for it.

63,722. The requisition would be treated by Mr. Baines, to a certain extent, as a guarantee against any large expense?—Certainly.

63,723. Inasmuch, as it would tend to render it very possible that a third candidate would not come?—Certainly so.

63,724. Also, it was a union of all parties?—Yes; and a general desire among the thinking classes of the town, that a contest was undesirable.

63,725. On what ground?—It was at a rather singular time, as regards the political interests of the country, entirely owing to the great changes in the Conservative party, and the free trade question.

63,726. Then it had no reference to a desire to put an end to the system of corruption that had existed?—No.

63,727. It had reference to political reasons?—Yes.

63,728. Then up to that time was any sum named by Mr. Baines?—No; I think no sum was ever named.

63,729. Never?—I do not think any specified sum was named.

63,730. Did he ever say that he would not be responsible beyond a certain sum?—No.

63,731. Are you aware that any of the parties said to him that they would undertake that he should not be put to a greater expense than a certain sum?—No; there was nothing of that kind; I should have known it if there had.

63,732. You think the limit of expenses was never named by either the one side or the other?—I feel certain it was not.

63,733. At any time?—I believe at no time.

63,734. This statement relating to placing himself in your hands was when a contest was not expected. Can you recollect any occasion when Mr. Baines made reference to the same subject?—When a contest was inevitable.

63,735. To begin with, how soon did you hear a contest was inevitable?—I heard so in the course of the Sunday.

63,736. On the Sunday the contest became inevitable?—Yes; on the Sunday I heard of it; on the Monday it became inevitable.

63,737. But on the Sunday you heard it was extremly probable?—I heard that Mr. Brown had consented to come forward.

63,738. You had nothing to do with Mr. Brown being here, and could know nothing of what the motives of his party were?—No, nothing at all.

63,739. We have been told the names of the six gentlemen who created that contest; do you remember who they were?—I remember the names.

63,740. Do you know whether any of them had joined in the requisition to Mr. Baines?—I do not. The requisition I have handed in. My impression is there were some. Mr. Digby was one who signed the requisition to Mr. Baines; and Mr. William Stephenson was one.

63,741. Can you account for how it was that the gentlemen had joined in the requisition to Mr. Baines, or must we ask them it ourselves?—You had better ask themselves. I do not know.

63,742. Perhaps you probably know how the contest came up?—By some gentleman going over to Mr. Brown, I believe.

63,743. We have heard that already; you know that three gentlemen of each party went over and brought Mr. Baines?—Yes, that was the case.

63,744. We know that fact, but we want to know how the contest became inevitable?—By Mr. Brown's coming forward.

63,745. By Mr. Baines having a clear majority, and Mr. Clay being the sitting member, neither of them would give way to the new man?—Neither. Mr. Brown did not come forward in opposition to Mr. Baines, but to Mr. Clay.

63,746. You considered him as an opponent to Mr. Clay?—Yes.

63,747. And not to Mr. Baines?—Not to Mr. Baines.

63,748. Did you understand from those gentlemen, or was there any understanding that Mr. Brown was not to endanger Mr. Baines' seat?—I had no communication with those gentlemen at all.

63,749. Did any of those six gentlemen, as far as you know, who brought Mr. Brown here, communicate with you or Mr. Baines's friends, previous to bringing Mr. Brown here?—Certainly not.

63,750. Did they intimate, after they had brought Mr. Brown, that the opposition was to be directed exclusively against Mr. Clay?—Not officially; there was no communication made.

63,751. No communication at all?—Not until the day of the election.

63,752. I am coming to that; a communication was made while the polling was going on, I believe?—Yes.

63,753. Did the parties who brought Mr. Brown make no explanation to you on the subject, and give no explanation until some time during the polling was going on?—On the Thursday, or the previous day; the day of nomination; I forget which.

63,754. We have heard of a particular communication, which is in evidence, and took place during the course of the polling?—There was a particular communication made during the time of the polling.

63,755. I merely want to know if they communicated with you previously?—There certainly was no, what I would call for distinction, official communication made, prior to the day of polling; but it was a matter of general remark, by friends of Mr. Baines, who were on Mr. Baines' committee, that he was not brought forward to endanger Mr. Baines' election.

63,756. Were those gentlemen who were members of Mr. Brown's committee, also members of Mr. Baines'?—No, I believe not.

63,757. But the other way?—No, nor the other way.

63,758. Were there members of Mr. Baines' committee, who afterwards joined Mr. Brown's?—My impression is, there were not.

63,759. The communication to which you allude was merely several of Mr. Brown's committee came in to yours, of which they were not members?—I mean this, that persons, members of Mr. Baines' committee, and honestly anxious to carry out his requisition, might have their own feeling in favour of Mr. Brown or Mr. Clay, and such members as were favourable to Mr. Brown certainly did give us to understand he was not brought forward to oppose Mr. Baines.

63,760. Do you understand it to come as far as this, that they would not vote for Mr. Brown, if it endangered Mr. Baines' seat?—Yes, I do, certainly.

63,761. They never did join committees, I believe?—Never.

63,762. Some of Mr. Clay's friends were members of Mr. Baines' committee?—Some of Mr. Clay's friends, certainly, and also Mr. Brown's.

63,763. By friends I mean supporters?—And supporters also, but not on the committee; I draw that distinction. I think, to the best of my recollection, there was no person a member of Mr. Baines' committee who was also a member of any other committee.

63,764. The committees were quite separate?—Quite separate.

63,765. As to individuals?—As to individuals.

63,766. You have told us already what Mr. Baines said before the contest became inevitable: do you remember the next time that the subject of expense of any sort or kind was alluded to by Mr. Baines, or in his presence?—The same general remark was repeated to me by Mr. Baines.

63,767. Will you have the goodness to state the words as nearly as can be?—I cannot remember precisely the words at this distance of time.

63,768. As near as you can recollect?—As near as I can recollect, it was the same as he employed on the previous occasion.

63,769. Was there anything more; at that time there was something more imminent; after the contest he used the same words; but was there anything more; was the word runner or employment used?—I have no recollection of that.

63,770. Was the expense ever alluded to?—Mr. Baines' time was employed in addressing the electors, remaining for deputations, and so forth.

63,771. Was the mode by which the election was to be carried on, ever alluded to?—I fully believe not.

63,772. Was there no understanding come to with Mr. Baines about the expenses of the election?—Certainly not. I believe, indeed I have no doubt,—of course these questions lead me to remember things,—I have no doubt I told Mr. Baines that the election was going to cost a great deal more than it would have done, but for Mr. Brown coming.

63,773. Do you remember Mr. Baines' answer?—I believe also Mr. Baines' reply was, "I leave myself in your hands." No sum or calculation was ever entered into, as to the amount of the cost by me.

63,774. That was a self-evident proposition?—Quite so.

63,775. Was there any mention of what the character of the expenses would be?—No, there was not.

63,776. If there had been no contest you would not have had to pay sheriff's expenses?—Yes.

63,777. But a mere trifle?—Yes.

63,778. It must cost more?—Yes.

63,779. And his answer, "I will place myself in your hands"?—Yes.

63,780. Do you think during the course of your communications with Mr. Baines that he was aware of the practice of runners, of paying or employing a large number of runners?—No; I do not think that he was.

63,781. Do you think one way or the other that he was or was not; did you draw any conclusion in your own mind?—Not exactly in the way of runners. I think Mr. Baines' impression was, that it was customary in Hull to pay a certain sum per head for persons who voted, whether they were runners or not; and that he refused to do.

63,782. When was it that you gathered that he had that impression, and how soon?—At the time you are nearly coming to, when the election was beginning to be warm.

Mr. H. S. Bright.

28th July 1853.

63,783. Mr. Baines' impression was, that money was paid per head?—Yes; head money.

63,784. When did you collect from Mr. Baines that that was his impression?—Between the Monday and the Thursday.

63,785. Do you remember what words he made use of that conveyed that to your mind?—No, I do not, I am sure.

63,786. Or what was the cause of it?—No; I was constantly to and fro with Mr. Baines, and I cannot remember the conversations.

63,787. Do you mean it was a casual remark of his, or something drawn from him on consideration from the state of the contest?—From the state of the contest.

63,788. I should like to have the conversation as accurately as you can favour us with it. Try your memory as far as you can?—It would be a conversation that would arise immediately after its coming to Mr. Baines' knowledge that Mr. Brown was coming forward.

63,789. As near as you can tell me, what was the conversation, and who began it?—I cannot remember that.

63,790. Can you give us a general sketch of what took place on the subject?—It would arise I apprehend from my making a remark, as I mentioned before, that the election would cost him more, and his reply was, that he placed himself in my hands; and then conversations would arise as to elections in Hull.

63,791. Then it is from the general result of the conversation you collected, that was Mr. Baines' impression?—I was going to tell you that conversation would follow on the general practice in Hull at elections.

63,792. Did he ask you what the practice was, or did he seem to be aware of it?—We both of us knew it very well.

63,793. Now, what was said?—I think that some remark was made, that the usual payment was 2*l*. I think it was something of that kind.

63,794. The remark was made either by you or him?—By me, I imagine.

63,795. In what form did you put that remark; you could not say, "The usual custom is 2*l*.," and nothing more?—I do not suppose I could; but it is impossible at this length of time to say in what way I put it. It was a matter of remark, and I remember Mr. Baines saying to me, "I will be no party to anything of that kind."

63,796. Did you say, in order to secure the election, there was to be 2*l*. paid, or what?—That it was a customary thing for the canvasser to pay the voter.

63,797. And he said he would have nothing to do with that?—I remember on one occasion, but it is impossible to fix the precise day or hour when the remark was made, but I remember his statement to me was, "I will rather lose my election than sanction such practices." But I should apprehend that was at a later time in the election; but I gather that you wish to go chronologically.

63,798. He said he would be no party to that, what did you say then?—Of course I assented.

63,799. Did you point out to him the probable consequences?—No; because I did not apprehend them.

63,800. Tell us what you did say, what answer you made?—I assented to it. I do not remember any particular answer.

63,801. Do you mean that you acquiesced in it immediately?—Yes.

63,802. Tell us all you can recollect: was anything said about the subject on that occasion, with reference to employment of runners?—No; certainly not.

63,803. If I understood an answer you previously gave, there was no impression on Mr. Baines' mind on the subject of runners, that there was such a thing in existence?—I do not think he had such an impression.

63,804. It never was referred to?—No.

63,805. His impression was a different one, namely, as to head money?—Yes; it was to that he directed the remarks I have just made. It was to the subject of paying voters what you call head money, that he made the remark, "I would rather lose my election."

63,806. Is that all you recollect upon that occasion?—Yes.

63,807. I should wish to know whether anything was said about the expenses of the election generally?—No.

63,808. Was the question of the probable expenses of the election ever raised as far as you remember, from the beginning to the end?—I believe firmly that it was not. I have no recollection of its being so.

63,809. When, according to your recollection, was the subject of payments of such a description as you have already alluded to again mentioned; go by steps?—By me to Mr. Baines?

63,810. Or by Mr. Baines to you, or by anybody in your presence?—I believe that it was never again mentioned, either by me to Mr. Baines or by Mr. Baines to me.

63,811. I think you have already said it was by Mr. Baines?—I have told you the last time it was said, at which there was any conversation between Mr. Baines and myself, when he made use of the remark, "I will not sanction any such practice."

63,812. You also went on to say, on some other occasion he made the answer he would rather lose the election?—That was the same occasion.

63,813. Tell us the words that he said; he said he would rather lose his election than what?—Than sanction any such practice.

63,814. Were you yourself aware at that time that the practice had prevailed upon former occasions of setting down as it is called persons as runners?—I was quite ignorant of the mode in which elections were conducted, except by report.

63,815. Even from report?—No; I was not aware of that precise mode.

63,816. Were you aware of any other mode of securing an election by money, other than that of payment of what we have called head money?—No; I have not.

63,817. Not even by report?—No; not to any mode of payment.

63,818. Than payment of head money; I mean such payments as you have now described?—No; I have not heard of any other one.

63,819. For instance, the system has been alluded to of taking rooms from voters for the purpose of influencing their votes. Have you ever heard of that?—No; I have not heard of that.

63,820. And had you heard of the practice of persons setting down their names not employed, and being paid afterwards?—No; I had not heard of that.

63,821. Never upon any occasion at all?—No. You are speaking of prior to the election of 1847?

63,822. Yes.—I had nothing to do with elections in Hull previously.

63,823. Still you might have heard it?—I never troubled myself about it at all.

63,824. Had you ever heard of Mr. Thistleton?—Yes; I had heard of him.

63,825. Did you never hear of his system?—No.

63,826. What had you heard of him; I mean of him as connected with elections?—I do not know that I heard anything of him connected with elections. He had some office under the corporation.

63,827. You had heard of the exertions he had made for Mr. Clay?—No, I had not.

63,828. And the mode in which he carried them out?—No, I had not.

63,829. Was there a book at your committee room in which the names of the runners were set down?—I believe Mr. Sidebottom had it.

63,830. Other than the minute book?—There was no minute book.

63,831. The papers which have been sent in contain different lists of persons who were paid various sums, from 5*s.* up to three guineas, and the amount is 81*l.* 4*s.*;—can you tell us from what that list was made; can you throw any light upon it (list marked D.)?—This is a list prepared by Mr. Sidebottom.

63,832. After the election was over, was it not?—After the election was over.

63,833. From what would it be prepared?—I do not know anything beyond his own knowledge of the names of parties that would be employed.

63,834. Can you throw any light upon the mode in which they were employed?——Merely from looking at the names, some few of which are familiar to me. They are parties who were employed at the poll booths, as far as the 1*l.* goes; and the others would be runners, I should apprehend.

63,835. Can you tell us whether those are runners at the central room or not?—I do not know it from their names.

63,836. There is nothing in it that leads you to a conclusion one way or the other?—There is not.

63,837. Is there anything that leads you to tell what way they were employed?—I do not see anything. You see how it is endorsed, "Agents, poll clerks, and messengers."

63,838. Is it your belief that that paper refers exclusively to the booths?—I believe so.

63,839. The whole paper?—The whole paper.

63,840. You draw a conclusion from the endorsement?—Yes; and from the number and the amounts.

63,841. You do not limit it to the people who got the 5*s.*?—I see this in the endorsement, the word "messengers;" and I suppose the 5*s.* men are all messengers.

63,842. Would those be employed on any day but the polling day?—I should think not.

63,843. Here is another (marked C), 119*l.* 6*s.*, "messengers and colourmen"?—This is endorsed "List of messengers, colourmen, &c."

63,844. Are those the persons who are employed out of doors?—Yes.

63,845. By whose authority were those employed?—By the authority of different members of the committee.

63,846. Do not answer hastily until I put the case before it into your hand (handing paper marked B). Look first at C, and then at B, and then attend to the question I am about to put, and look at the endorsement. Does C relate to the central committee, or is it exclusively confined to persons not of the central committee?—I think that this, marked C, would refer to the whole of the committee rooms, not the central committee room only. I do recognize some names here, C, that were employed at the central committee room for many days.

63,847. Now look at B. Were those persons employed exclusively at the central committee; what is the heading of B?—List of clerks at central committee, 48*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.*, and 32*l.* 2*s.* 10*d.*

63,848. Who are they?—I believe that they were clerks.

63,849. Only clerks?—48*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* was for clerks. I believe those were clerks employed at the central committee during the whole time of the election.

Mr. H. S. Bright.

28th July 1853.

63,850. Go on, and look at the next item?—These appear to be small payments that do not appear to come under any particular head. There is the bill sticker, and a man for getting the requisition signed, postage stamps, town clerk for registers.

63,851. Are any of those runners?—No; I believe not. None of those are runners.

63,852. Besides that, can you throw any light upon how those persons were employed; any of those in B, C, or D; was there any book or any record kept of what services they were called upon for?—No; not to my knowledge. The first one you have called my attention to is for the polling day: the list of agents, poll clerks, and messengers.

63,853. The first is exclusively for the polling day?—Yes.

63,854. When you say poll clerks, you mean check clerks?—Yes.

63,855. Check clerks and check messengers?—Yes.

63,856. Check clerks, and messengers who bring the check sheets?—Yes.

63,857. Now look at C?—These appear to be messengers employed at all the districts.

63,858. Can you throw any light on the system adopted for procuring those messengers; to put it plainly, was it not understood, in employing those people, their votes were expected to go with them?—Certainly it was; but I believe that all the parties whose names were put down did some service.

63,859. Still I repeat my question distinctly. It was expected on this, as on all other occasions, that the persons employed were to vote with their employers?—Certainly.

63,860. The voters consider it as much a part of the bargain as the service?—Yes.

63,861. Does that answer apply to the clerks?—No; I speak exclusively of the messengers in the list of 119*l.*

63,862. Are the clerks in the list B voters?—I do not know at all. I do not apprehend, in that case, it would be as you put the question to me at all.

63,863. Why not?—They are generally young men in solicitors' offices, I think, who have been employed for that purpose.

63,864. Is the duty that they are called upon to perform such as to render it necessary to be mindful of other considerations besides the vote?—No; but I make that remark by Mr. Baines being the recorder of this borough and having a large professional practice from it also; and, being very popular with the profession, there was a great anxiety on the part of the profession to aid him generally; that made me make the remark. It was quite apart from anything connected with the vote.

63,865. You think the solicitors' clerks were anxious to assist him?—Yes; it was quite foreign to anything connected with the vote.

63,866. There is a document marked E, signed by people; read the heading?—"Received from Mr. Godfrey Richard Park the sum of 10*s.* each for services rendered by us at the Hull election, July 1847."

63,867. Head money, is it not?—No; I apprehend not.

63,868. What is the whole number paid?—These are merely signatures of parties who acknowledge the receipts of 10*s.* each.

63,869. How many are there?—Twenty-five.

63,870. Who are the persons, do you know?—These are the Hedon voters.

63,871. Exclusively?—Exclusively; this is exclusively Hedon; the whole of these documents are Hedon; these are the vouchers for the solicitor's general account here.

63,872. You find among those papers, do you not, that independent of that 10*s.* all their expenses were paid; Mr. Park was the agent at Hedon for Mr. Baines?—Yes.

63,873. Is he an attorney?—Yes.

63,874. Just look at them carefully and see whether those documents do not, independently of that paper, show the whole of the expenses of the Hedon voters are paid?—The 12*l.* 10*s.* is for the twenty-five persons whose names are mentioned here for two days' employment at 5*s* a day.

63,875. Why should you bring strangers into the town?—They are voters.

63,876. What is the whole amount of Mr. Park's bill with respect to the Hedon voters?—The whole of the bill is 41*l.* 8*s.* 10*d.*

63,877. Is that all with respect to the Hedon voters?—Yes.

63,878. In respect of those twenty-five?—Yes.

63,879. How was the difference between 12*l.* 10*s.* and the 41*l.* expended upon them?—The details are here, printing: expenses of carriages from Hedon to Hull and Hull to Hedon.

63,880. And refreshments?—Yes.

63,881. I think you will see the whole almost of the expenses there of these Hedon voters are shared by Mr. Brown; you see the sums are divided in two?—I do not see it here; I see some pencil marks.

63,882. The breakfasts and carriages are divided?—I think not. I see there are some pencil marks—conveying voters from Hedon to Hull, some one has written, "Half of twelve guineas," in pencil, I do not know who.

63,883. The expenses, I think, of bringing the voters, is not that divided?—Printing is 11*s.* 6*d.*, that is not shared, and pink calico, that is not shared.

63,884. Look at the item of breakfasts and carriages?—I find that the breakfasts for the voters were divided.

63,885. The expense of bringing them here and taking them back again?—"£6 each, hire, being Mr. Baines' share, according to agreement."

63,886. Look at this document relating to Mr. Brown, compared with the one you have in your hand (marked A). That is Mr. Brown's version of the same day: twenty-five Hedon voters 10*s.* each, except one, to whom the specific remark of "a plumper" is put, and he got 1*l.* instead of 10*s.*?—Twenty-five single voters, 12*l.* 10*s.*

63,887. One plumper 1*l.*; they are the same men, are they not; Mr. Brown puts it boldly twenty-five single at 10*s.* each, and one plumper a pound, whereas you put it down as services rendered; that is the only distinction?—That is the solicitor's doing.

63,888. Now I put the question to you again; that is head money, is it not?—I can only deal with the facts as they are there. I do not know what you call it. I am sure the men were taken from their work, and it is a usual thing.

63,889. Loss of time?—Yes; loss of time.

63,890. Services?—Yes; services rendered.

63,891. Do you know the number of the different committees?—No; I do not remember the number at the present time.

63,892. Did you make the payments that took place afterwards, or were they made by Mr. Sidebottom?—By Mr. Sidebottom, I believe.

63,893. How were the payments made, both during and after the election; first of all, during the election were there any made?—I believe there were no payments made during the election at all.

63,894. A large number of the accounts were paid by Mr. Sidebottom himself, were they not?—Yes, they were; I should give him the money.

63,895. He is a gentleman, we hear, whose health prevents him from favouring us with his attendance, but he is a gentleman whose signature you would place implicit confidence in?—Certainly.

63,896. And looking at these papers which are handed in you would place implicit confidence in him, and pay them to him; you have no reason to entertain a different opinion now?—No.

63,897. You would pay him money upon his producing those vouchers?—Yes; I paid him money upon account of the expenses; I paid him 150*l.* at a time.

63,898. You prepaid this account?—I did not do it myself; I placed it in the hands of an accountant to do it.

63,899. It was prepared upon the vouchers rendered to you principally by Mr. Sidebottom?—By Mr. Sidebottom.

63,900. Mr. Sidebottom was a gentleman in whom you had great confidence and have still?—Yes; I have no reason to doubt it.

63,901. The whole amount appears to be 1,825*l.* 14*s.* 1*d.*, as Mr. Baines' expenses?—Yes.

63,902. That is the whole of the money that is expended, as far as you know?—Yes.

63,903. With the exception of a small specific bill here?—Yes; some small items which were subsequently paid.

63,904. Did you pay any of the bills yourself, do you remember, or were they paid by Mr. Sidebottom under your direction?—Part would be paid by myself, no doubt.

63,905. I have no doubt you would consider all this as correct?—Yes, certainly.

63,906. They speak for themselves?—Yes.

63,907. Here is an item I wish to draw your attention to, which is the law expenses?—If you will allow me, you made a remark before, and asked me a question early in the examination, if there was a committee room of the name of Wright. I see there was one.

63,908. Stuart's was another?—Yes.

63,909. He has been called as a witness, and the sum surprised us rather that he got ten guineas for the use of his room for two days?—Here is a voucher for Stuart, 11*l.* 5*s.*

63,910. He charged ten guineas, but it appears he was only paid 9*l.*; the stamp receipt is for 9*l.*?—Yes; he has charged ten guineas, and he took 9*l.* I see there is a remark upon the voucher that the South Myton committee room is only 2*l.*

63,911. Do you know anything about Stuart?—I do not.

63,912. Or about the taking of his room?—No; I never was in the place, I believe. I was never in any committee room but the central.

63,913. The district committees were not formed by the general committee, were they?—They were not, they were formed by gentlemen residing in the neighbourhood.

63,914. Can you throw any light upon them; look at the bills; you see there is a considerable amount expended in eating and drinking?—A great deal. I have no remark to make about them.

63,915. Can you give us any information about this, whether the houses were open for the use generally of Mr. Baines' supporters; look at these papers (Nos. 3 and 4), and say whether they were not houses open for the purpose of giving refreshment to Mr. Baines' supporters, as it is called?—The only two houses that were recognized were the George Inn and the Vittoria Hotel.

63,916. And the Paragon?—The Paragon might chance to be a committee room.

63,917. There is a bill for refreshments there?—I do not know the name. I have a recollection of the bill after the election.

63,918. You know nothing beyond that?—Nothing beyond that.

63,919. A person of the name of Jubb has been very often mentioned to us as a person employed on behalf of Mr. Baines; can you tell us in what character he was employed?—No; I cannot.

Mr. H. S. Bright.

28th July 1853.

63,920. Who was he?—I believe he was the deputy chairman of the Drypool district, Holderness ward.

63,921. His name has been mentioned as a person who made some payments, and as a person who engaged runners, is not that so?—He was the deputy chairman of that ward; Mr. Harris was the chairman. I know nothing of their proceedings.

63,922. The witnesses have said so, and you have no reason to doubt the accuracy of those persons?—I do not know who the persons are who told you.

63,923. What was Jubb?—Deputy chairman of the Holderness ward.

63,924. What rank of life was he in?—I believe he kept a public house in the garrison, or the immediate neighbourhood. He kept the canteen in the garrison.

63,925. He is dead, is he?—Yes; he had the public house at the time of the election in the neighbourhood of the garrison.

63,926. Look at that bill?—Here are his expenses, 2*l.*

63,927. For what expenses?—Expenses at the election, 2*l.*

63,928. That is all?—Yes.

63,929. What expenses could the deputy chairman be at other than the general committee expenses?—I do not know, I am sure.

63,930. It is something very like what has been called a sham committee?—I think not.

63,931. Or for the payment for the vote; the vote looks very much as if it had been thrown into the bargain?—I think not; I have no reason to believe it. I never saw Mr. Jubb before.

63,932. I want to know if you can throw any light upon the deputy chairman of the district sending in a claim in that very ambiguous form, "Payment of expenses," without any allusion to what they were?—No; I do not know.

63,933. He as deputy chairman of the Holderness ward committee debits the whole committee, and give them no explanation for it?—I see it.

63,934. Who is Mr. Robert Brown?—He is a clerk.

63,935. He charged 5*l.*?—Yes; 5*l.*, according to the vouchers. He received 2*l.* at one ime, and 3*l.* afterwards.

63,936. What were those services?—He was employed as a clerk.

63,937. Where was he employed as a clerk?—He was employed in communication between different parties.

63,938. How long?—Seven days, according to this note.

63,939. Five pounds was rather a strong charge for seven days' employment for a clerk?—It is including two journeys to Barton, and other incidental expenses.

63,940. That is what I wish you to explain, if you can; if you can throw no light upon it we will take the paper as we find it?—I can throw no light upon it.

63,941. There is another, Charles Wilkinson, 2*l.*?—Yes.

63,942. Charles Wilkinson charged you 2*l.*?—Not for his vote certainly.

63,943. Can you tell what it was for?—He was on the committee of the ward, and was an active man, and appears to have been at some small expenses of his own.

63,944. It does not say so?—I should say that was the case. It is hardly possible for a person to be actually engaged for a week without having some expenses.

63,945. Is that Mr. Charles Wilkinson the share broker?—Yes.

63,946. Here is one, can you throw any light upon it; we cannot tell who it is, it has no name to it. It merely says he is a deputy chairman. What deputy chairman is there that charges 2*l.*?—Mr. Theophilus Carrick; he was of the South Myton ward. It has no connexion with the vote, certainly.

63,947. Now the law expenses by Mr. Sidebottom. I will just show you that, and you can tell me whether that includes the whole 208*l.*, and with a supplemental bill of 18*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.*, and there is another of Mr. Ayre for 57*l.* 1*s.* 3*d.*?—Yes; and Ayre would have that payment.

63,948. Is that the whole of the law expenses; are they all comprised in those three sums?—That I cannot say. You have the schedule.

63,949. There are one or two lumping charges in it?—If I had the schedule before me I could tell, but I have not seen the accounts since 1847.

63,950. There is the schedule (marked A.)?—Yes; those three sums comprised the whole.

63,951. How much are they together?—£295 0*s.* 1*d.*

63,952. That includes expenses?—Those are the law charges.

63,953. It includes part of it as expenses; for instance, look at the bill of 18*l.* I do not know whether you include that?—Yes; law and solicitors' charges: Mr. Sidebottom, 208*l.* 19*s.*; ditto, William Ayre, jun., 57*l.* 1*s.* 3*d.*

63,954. That is fifty guineas for himself and 1*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.* for getting signatures?—Yes; and ditto 28*l.* 19*s.* 10*d.*

63,955. I do not see that you charge anything for music; yesterday we had 120*l.* for music, and you charge only 8*l.*?—£8.

63,956. When it was ascertained that a contest was inevitable on Monday, how was the canvass conducted after that?—More actively.

63,957. How, I ask you; what was the course adopted; did you get street lists, or what?—The town was divided into committees. Gentlemen favourable to the cause residing in those districts formed themselves into committees and undertook the canvass.

63,958. Were a good many district committees necessary?—It would be left entirely to the committee of each ward.

63,959. Would not any committee for each ward be previously appointed?—I think not.

63,960. Had you had but one committee before?—One committee; in fact, as I said before, no contest was expected.

63,961. Then you immediately commenced appointing district committees?—Yes.

63,962. How many, do you remember, were appointed; about the number?—I do not remember, but I apprehend, I believe, in each ward there would be one, and in some cases, where the ward was large, two.

63,963. And would those district committees have the exclusive charge of the district?—They would.

63,964. Were street lists prepared for their use?—You mean canvassing books?

63,965. Yes; of some kind, either in the shape of lists or books?—Yes; canvassing books.

63,966. Were those canvassing books and their results returned to the central committee?—The results were reported to the central committee; the books remained with the district committees.

63,967. Eventually?—They were not returned to me. I believe they were returned to Mr. Sidebottom.

33,968. Were they sheets or books?—To the best of my recollection they were books.

63,969. Were all the persons canvassed inserted in those books?—I do not know.

63,970. I mean the results of the promises, or I should say, rather, the persons who promised?—I apprehend they would be, but I do not know it from my own knowledge.

63,971. The doubtful, I suppose?—Yes.

63,972. Those that applied for employment, would they also be put down upon a list in the district where they made the application?—Yes; I believe so.

63,973. The canvass, of course, was obliged to be very active?—Very; so short a time remaining.

63,974. Did Mr. Baines canvass personally much?—No.

63,975. Not at all?—I believe not at all.

63,976. He had been in the town before Mr. Brown was announced?—I have already said I think he came here upon the Friday prior to the election.

63,977. Prior to the Sunday?—Yes, prior to the Sunday. The election was on the Thursday, and I think Mr. Baines arrived here on the Friday; on the Saturday he left to stay with Mr. Tottie.

63,978. Where did Mr. Tottie reside?—About five miles from Hull.

63,979. I believe he was the nominal chairman?—Yes.

63,980. During the time that the active canvass was necessary, did Mr. Baines attend the central committee room?—I think I am correct in saying that Mr. Baines never was in a committee room.

63,981. Never in any committee?—Never in any committee room; I will not be quite sure, but I think so, unless it might be in this way: he addressed the electors in different parts of the town, in the evening, and he might in that time upon some occasions address them from the windows of the committee rooms; he did not as a general rule come to the committee rooms.

63,982. What did he do during the three days?—He was at the Vittoria.

63,983. Where he stayed?—Yes.

63,984. Did you communicate with him frequently upon the progress of the canvass?—Yes; from time to time.

63,985. I suppose if he was at the Vittoria he would be in communication with his principal supporters, as to the progress they were making upon the emergency?—Yes.

63,986. And was the progress reported to him from time to time by those most active?—Yes; not methodically at all, but it was reported.

63,987. At the Vittoria?—Yes.

63,988. I understood you to say that the requisition was signed by a majority of the whole electors?—My impression is that it was.

63,989. It does not contain above 500 and odd names, the requisition you have handed in, and the electors amount to 4,000 or 5,000?—The printed requisition that I have handed in does not contain the whole of the names that signed the requisition to Mr. Baines.

63,990. I thought it was printed from it?—No; it was printed during the course of it.

63,991. According to what we have heard, to make a majority of the electors you would have to add nearly a couple of thousand to those names?—It was generally understood that the majority of the electors were in favour of Mr. Baines.

63,992. You were the treasurer, I think you said?—I was.

63,993. Did you receive any money from Mr. Baines?—Yes.

63,994 When did you receive it?—Almost immediately after the election.

Mr. H. S. Bright.

28th July 1853.

63,995. Did you receive none in the progress of it?—No, none.

63,996. Was that by arrangement, or had you not occasion to ask for it?—I had no occasion to ask for it.

63,997. I think you said you were making payments occasionally during the progress of the election?—No; after the election.

63,998. You said for instance you paid money on account to Mr. Sidebottom?—That was after the election.

63,999. When did you receive money from Mr. Baines, after the election?—Mr. Baines left for town immediately after the election, and I should say within three or four days certainly I received money.

64,000. Was that after you had transmitted to him the prepared accounts?—No; they were not transmitted for some time.

64,001. In what shape was the application made for money; was that made on account?—Mr. Baines remitted me money on account.

64,002. You applied to him, I suppose?—I suppose so; it was quite clear that money was required.

64,003. You stated that after the contest became inevitable, in some conversation something like this passed: you said that the election would cost more; that was the substance; I am not repeating your very words to Mr. Baines?—Yes; in consequence of the contest.

64,004. I want to ask you, when it was said that the election would cost more, whether the heads of expense were not at all alluded to?—No.

64,005. Did not Mr. Baines say, "In what respect, what will be the greater cost?"—No; there was no lengthened conversation upon it.

64,006. Were not the heads of expense adverted to?—No; they were not.

64,007. Was any total sum mentioned as likely to be wanted?—Never.

64,008. When you say Mr. Baines said he would place himself in your hands, did you think you had liberty to spend 50,000*l.* if you liked?—No, certainly not.

64,009. Then I ask if some limit or sum was not mentioned beyond which he would not go?—I have already said that no sum was mentioned.

64,010. Then to what extent did you think yourself at liberty to go with Mr. Baines' money?—To the fair cost of the election.

64,011. What do you mean by the words "fair cost"?—I do not know.

64,012. Do you mean what was necessary to win it?—Yes; to win it fairly.

64,013. You mean by a fair competition with your adversary?—Yes; and leaving out what has been called head money.

64,014. If your adversaries were employing runners and standing head money, you would not include an expenditure upon that account, in the permission that you had to spend money?—Certainly not; I refused to do that.

64,015. Do you think that the 1,825*l.* was entirely expended in fair expenses?—No portion of it was expended in paying individuals what you call head money.

64,016. Do you think that 1,825*l.* was spent in the fair matters of the election?—That is a matter of opinion entirely.

64,017. I only ask you what do you say?—In what way do you mean fair?

64,018. It is your own word; necessary, I should construe it, necessary expenses for a perfectly pure election?—The sum of 1,825*l.* was necessary to win Mr. Baines' election, without paying head money.

64,019. What do you think of it without paying runners and messengers?—The amount of runners and messengers is not a large item.

64,020. Not very large, but it comes to 119*l.* 6*s.* in one case?—That is all, I think, for runners.

64,021. And agents and others 80*l.* more?—That is not for runners; there is only 119*l.* for runners, I think.

64,022. You may put the 81*l.* for check clerks and messengers?—That is not for runners.

64,023. I understand you to think that the runners are but few?—I think so.

64,024. Do you think they might be less upon a pure and fair election?—They would have been less without any contest.

64,025. Do you think they would be less upon a totally pure election, with no money unnecessarily spent on either side?—Yes; less by the whole 119*l.* perhaps.

64,026. When the circumstance was alluded to of head money, which Mr. Baines entirely forbade, and said he would be no party to any such payment, did you think he would lose his election if no money was spent either in head money, runners, or messengers?—You limited your question to head money. I did not think he would lose election.

64,027. If no money was paid as head money?—No; but there were those who did.

64,028. Some did think so?—Yes; certainly.

64,029. Did you ever know an election in Hull when money was not either paid as head money or for runners?—I have had no experience in elections but that one.

64,030. In the course of the rumoured reports of elections in Hull have you heard it?—I have had nothing to do with elections nor troubled myself with them.

64,031. You knew of the existence of head money?—Yes; it was a matter of report.

64,032. I understand the term of "head money" is not the usual term?—No.

64,033. What is the name?—Paying so much for their votes.

64,034. Did you pass those accounts; did you have vouchers for them?—Yes; I think there were vouchers for all.

64,035. Laid before you?—Yes.

64,036. And then the accounts were ultimately made up by an accountant?—Yes; made up by an accountant.

64,037. But the vouchers of the total were before you?—When the schedules were made out, but not prior to their being paid; not all of them.

64,038. Do you mean you made some payments without seeing what they related to, without vouchers?—As I said before, I gave Mr. Sidebottom even sums of money for payment of expenses, which he was more acquainted with than myself, and he afterwards rendered me an account.

64,039. Of how he disbursed the money?—Yes.

64,040. But the bills which you have been good enough to furnish us with, were, if I may say so, made up by yourself or passed by yourself, the accounts?—Yes; I saw them, and the balance sheets were drawn up under my direction.

64,041. And some time or other you saw the vouchers relating to them?—Yes; I did not scrutinise them very particularly.

64,042. I draw your attention once more to letter D, and see if the circumstance that I draw your attention to, throws any light upon that; on analysing D carefully, an exactly equal number were paid a sovereign and 5*s*., namely, thirty-six, and precisely the six paid three guineas, and as nearly as can be exactly half paid a guinea and a half, thus as if it had relation to some system?—I do not think that has been so.

64,043. You think that is accidental?—I think it is quite accidental.

64,044. This paper C, do you know the total number of names upon it; they are not added up?—No; I have not added them up.

64,045. How was the paper made out, from what?—That paper, I have already said, was made out by Mr. Sidebottom. I believe that is his writing; if not his writing, it is that of a clerk in his office.

64,046. I observe that in the names that are set down, they go through the alphabet from A to the end of it, and then they begin with the alphabet again, and then go to the end of it; and then begin again, and again go to the end of it?—The same parties?

64,047. No, totally different; there are three alphabetical commencements in the list. I want to know if you can explain how those lists are made out? Can you explain those three lists that are upon the face of that account?—No, I cannot. I do not know what it means at all, unless it has been taken from returns from different committee rooms, from different wards.

64,048. You said that there were district committees in every ward?—I believe there were in every ward.

64,049. How many would that amount to?—I do not know the number of wards in Hull.

64,050. Eight wards, and there would be a district committee for each ward?—Yes.

64,051. And you said just now that the applications would be made in the ward in which they were?—Yes.

64,052. And a general report made from time to time, to the central committee?—Yes; of the results.

64,053. I do not know whether you paid any attention to this fact, whether the names upon those lists are voters or not?—I have not.

64,054. You do not know the fact one way or the other?—I do not indeed.

64,055. Were you at the George Inn on the day of the polling?—Yes.

64,056. Is that where you attended?—Yes.

64,057. At the George Inn, Mr. Baines' committee room?—Yes.

64,058. Do you remember on the afternoon of the polling day any communication coming to your committee room from Mr. Baines' committee, about one or two o'clock?—Yes; Mr. Brown called to retire from the contest.

64,059. Called himself?—Yes.

64,060. Were you present?—I was.

64,061. About what time was it that he called?—I think about half-past two o'clock.

64,062. Will you state, as well as you remember, what Mr. Brown said when he called to retire?—I was there and went into the room with Mr. Brown; to the best of my recollection, he said something of this kind: "Well, Baines, I find it is no use persevering, unless I endanger your election." I think those were his words.

64,063. I ask you whether, before that, you remember any communication was made to your committee from Mr. Brown through Mr. Wells, before Mr. Brown himself came there; Mr. Wells, the solicitor?—No.

64,064. Do you remember Mr. Wells being sent to your committee room, before Mr. Brown came?—No; I do not.

64,065. You remember Mr. Brown coming?—Yes.

64,066. And he stated what you say?—Yes.

64,067. And I ask you, whether, at that time, in the course of what Mr. Brown stated, any allusion was made to a certain number of freemen, through whom the election might be secured?—I heard nothing of the kind; nor do I believe it to have been stated to Mr. Baines, or at that time.

Mr. H. S. Bright.

28th July 1853.

64,068. I did not ask whether it was stated to Mr. Baines?—I say, not stated to Mr. Baines, nor stated at the time.

64,069. Do you remember whether it was stated at any time either to Mr. Brown's party, or from his party, that there were a certain number of freemen through whom the election might be secured, or something to that effect?—I have heard, in the course of this inquiry, that it was so stated, but it was not so stated by any member of Mr. Brown's committee to myself, nor officially communicated to the committee; to the best of my knowledge, it was a matter which I knew of.

64,070. At that time, that there were a certain number of freemen?—Voters; I do not know what they were.

64,071. Who might be secured by the payment of money?—Yes.

64,072. And would secure the election?—Yes.

64,073. Do you remember whether any communication with reference to that party was made at any time to your committee upon that day?—Any communication made by Mr. Brown's party?

64,074. Whether any reference relating to that party of voters was made from the other party to you upon the nomination day or polling day?—I have already stated that no communication of that kind was made to me, nor do I believe it was made.

64,075. Did you hear that any such communication had been made at all to any of your committee?—Never, until during the course of this inquiry.

64,076. Did you ever hear it stated that Mr. Brown was prepared, or would have paid his share of that number of voters?—No.

64,077. How long did Mr. Brown stay when he came to the committee room?—Some three or four minutes I think would be the outside.

64,078. And stated, I think you said, that his continuance would endanger Mr. Baines' election?—Yes.

64,079. Or something to that effect?—Yes; or something to that effect.

64,080. Did he say what he should do in consequence?—That he would resign.

64,081. Did he say that he had resigned, or that he would resign?—I am pretty sure that he said he had resigned; he came direct from his committee room, having previously consulted with his committee, that is my impression; and he came immediately to Mr. Baines to communicate the fact to him.

64,082. Was Mr. Baines at the George at the time?—Yes.

64,083. In the committee room?—No.

64,084. He saw him in your presence?—Yes.

64,085. Did he state how his perseverance would endanger Mr. Baines' return?—No; not in my hearing, nor do I believe he did.

64,086. Did you understand how it would endanger Mr. Baines' return?—Yes.

64,087. How was it?—That Mr. Baines would not pay, and Mr. Brown would.

64,088. Who was present upon this occasion, when Mr. Brown saw Mr. Baines, besides yourself, at the George?—I really do not remember; I think that Mr. Brown was accompanied by Mr. Fewster Wilkinson.

64,089. Anybody else?—I think also by his brother-in-law, the Honourable Mr. Scarlet.

64,090. And you were there?—I drove up in a cab at the very same moment Mr. Brown arrived, and went into the room where they were; it was the first time I had left the room all day. I went to poll.

64,091. Was anybody else there?—I do not recollect; there would be one or two persons; I think Mr. Tottie was there.

64,092. Upon this being announced, did some others come in?—No; I think nothing but a general cheer.

64,093. You said you understood the reason was, that Mr. Brown would pay and Mr. Baines would not?—I said I understood the reason, but not from Mr. Brown.

64,094. That you understood that that was the meaning of it at the time?—Yes; that Mr. Brown would have paid; I do not mean, understood it from him; I particularly guard myself as to that.

64,095. Was such an opinion at all rife during the morning of the election as to those people that it might turn upon, whether they were bought or not?—Yes, decidedly.

64,096. What was about the number of them?—Speaking from memory, I was told about 220 or 230, who were then waiting.

64,097. Hanging back?—Yes.

64,098. Were there any particularly who were endeavouring to treat for them?—I do not know.

64,099. When they were hanging back in this way, and getting towards four o'clock, I suppose they had some means of making their wishes known through some person or other?—Yes.

64,100. Who were the principals?—I was told of there being voters to about that amount, who were ready to poll for Mr. Baines on being promised the payment of 50*s.* each.

64,101. Who communicated that to you?—It was some working man, but I do not know his name.

64,102. How did you get that impression upon your mind, that Mr. Brown would have paid?—Because I was told repeatedly during the course of the day, that if I did not sanction payment, Mr. Baines would lose his election.

64,103. Who did you have that pressure, if I may so call it, put upon you by?—It was general; I do not remember any particular person; it was repeatedly stated, and said also that unless I consented to a coalition upon the part of Mr. Baines with one of the other candidates, that he would lose his election.

64,104. Either with reference to Mr. Clay or to Mr. Brown?—Yes; and it was with reference to that point that a deputation waited from Mr. Brown's committee, not with reference to payment.

64,105. Did you have any communication in substance, such as that you have been alluding to, from Mr. Brown's committee during the day?—As regards payment, do you mean?

64,106. With regard to losing the election, if those parties were not bought?—No; not from the committee.

64,107. Not from any of the committees?—Not from the committee.

64,108. I said not from any of the committees. Then who was it from, if not from the committee as a body?—I have drawn a distinction throughout as to official communications.

64,109. From whom did it come individually, or from whom did you hear it?—I do not remember at the present moment any individual who named it; it was frequently named in the course of the election day.

64,110. Though not from the committee, was it made from persons individually interested in Mr. Brown?—Yes; I should say that it was.

64,111. Did you know that those persons were upon his committee, although it did not come from his committee?—I did not, with one exception.

64,112. Who is that that you would except?—I think it was Mr. Joseph Walker Pease; I think he was upon Mr. Brown's committee, I am not quite certain.

64,113. Do you think you had a communication of that kind from him?—When you use the word "communication," I do not mean an authorised communication, but a remark was made.

64,114. A mention of the fact?—Yes; a mention of it.

64,115. You think it came from him among others?—I think so; but I wish to be careful to avoid mentioning names if I am not certain about them.

64,116. But we must ask you for them, and when we ask you, we hope you will consider that a sufficient reason for your giving them?—Quite so.

64,117. Do you think any communication of that kind from Mr. Pease, would have been on the nomination day or the election day?—The remark, or the mention of it, would be on the polling day.

64,118. Do you remember where that remark was made?—It would be at the George Inn; I was at the George Inn the whole two days.

64,119. You think you saw Mr. Joseph Walker Pease there?—Yes, I saw him there; he was very anxious, and so were others, that there should be a coalition between Mr. Brown and Mr. Baines.

64,120. I think you said you thought a coalition with either might secure Mr. Baines' return?—Yes; both the other candidates were anxious to coalesce with Mr. Baines.

64,121. Either Mr. Clay or Mr. Brown?—Yes.

64,122. There was the same general wish remaining, that Mr. Baines should be one of the members?—Quite so, on both sides.

64,123. Was there any proposal at any time of a coalition with Mr. Clay?—There was with Mr. Brown.

64,124. But with Mr. Clay?—I think not; but there was a formal communication made from Mr. Brown's committee to coalesce.

64,125. When was that?—About noon, I think, of the polling day.

64,126. Who did that come from?—Mr. Fewster Wilkinson and the Honourable Mr. Scarlet were the persons that called, and I think some other gentleman; I do not remember the name.

64,127. In the situation in which you were with regard to the requisition and your party, you would seem to be placed almost beyond the possibility of a coalition. Your requisition was signed by some of all parties, and a coalition with either would therefore have dissatisfied many?—I was very anxious about the election, certainly—about the result of it; but I felt that anything of that kind would be a departure from the instructions that Mr. Baines had given me.

64,128. This communication, or mention, or remark, whatever it was, that was made by Mr. Pease. Do you remember whether an allusion to pay half these freemen was mentioned?—No; I believe it was never mentioned.

64,129. But the fact of there being such persons, and that the securing them would turn the election?—No; the conversation was not with reference to that specific matter of freemen; it was to the general practice.

64,130. Had it not also reference to these persons that were known to be hanging back?—No; I feel quite clear about that, that there was no mention made to me by any parties connected with either of the committees.

Mr. H. S. Bright.

28th July 1853.

64,131. But with reference to the general practices at elections, there was mention of some persons, the securing of whom might turn the election?—With reference to the general practice it was; but that I was too niggardly, that was the expression used.

64,132. You seem to have understood a little more about elections than I thought you did?—I did not understand much.

64,133. You said at the commencement, you did not know of the means of influencing votes by employing parties?—No, I did not.

64,134. Was that method brought to your attention during the election?—Do you mean the runners?

64,135. The influencing parties by employing them?—Yes.

64,136. How early in the election was that brought to your notice?—Almost immediately, I should think.

64,137. Did you sanction it then?—There was no payment made for votes, excepting to runners, as I have mentioned before.

64,138. The exception has now become a principle with you. Did you sanction the system of influencing people by giving them employment?—I sanctioned the principle of putting down runners, certainly.

64,139. Why did you not carry it to a greater amount, if there were parties standing out?—Because I apprehended that the committees would follow the instructions of the general committee, not to employ more men than were needful.

64,140. Did you give those instructions?—It was quite an understood thing from the first, quite so.

64,141. Still you have said, that for the purpose of carrying on a fair contest, the whole of this might have been cast away. You have said that there was no occasion for any of them?—The question was, whether under a fair contest there would be any occasion for such means; it was not with reference to that election.

64,142. The question put to you was, whether, supposing neither party to desire to influence the voters by pecuniary motives, it would be necessary to have so large a staff of runners as required the payment of 119*l.*?—And my answer was, that it would not have been needful.

64,143. Then at this election, when you did employ them, it was for the purpose of influencing their vote, was it not?—We were not very particular as to the amount of work which we got out of the men for a day's pay.

64,144. Then I ask if any instructions were given not to carry it beyond a certain amount?—Yes, I think so.

64,145. Why?—Because it would have been glaringly doing that which there was no necessity for; all these persons were employed more or less.

64,146. It would have been too glaring, was that your reason?—Yes.

64,147. Was any reason given at the time, why another candidate was introduced; that is, why Mr. Brown was brought?—I had no reason given to me at all.

64,148. We have been told, that although he was invited partly from political motives, yet he was, in a great measure, invited by persons who always insisted on having a contest; do you agree in that?—I have heard so, but I do not know it of my own knowledge.

64,149. Did you hear so during the election?—Yes, I did.

64,150. You have said that this item for runners would be wholly unnecessary, and I suppose you would say the same of an item of 118*l.* 15*s.* 10*d.* for colours and calico flags?—Most decidedly.

64,151. And that an item divided among nineteen tradesmen; you say that is wholly unnecessary?—Yes, I should think so.

64,152. Would you say, for the purpose of coming to a fair decision by the constituency, that it was necessary for you to incur an expense of 324*l.* for printing?—No; not absolutely necessary.

64,153. Almost the whole of that would be unnecessary, would it not?—Yes.

64,154. And that is divided among twenty different persons?—Yes.

64,155. Would you say, that the item for cab hire and bringing voters up in carriages, amounting to 137*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.*, is wholly unnecessary?—It was not wholly unnecessary at that election; it would be unnecessary under the pure system which you are anticipating, certainly.

64,156. I think, perhaps, you will say the same of that large item for legal advice?—Yes, certainly.

64,157. That is an item of 290*l.*?—Yes.

64,158. That would be wholly unnecessary?—Yes.

64,159. Then I presume you agree with other gentlemen who have been here, that for the purpose of coming to a fair decision by the constituency of Hull, the expenses of two candidates would not amount to a sum above 800*l.*?—Certainly.

64,160. Then all the expenses in that case, the difference between the 400*l.* and the 1,825*l.*, were wholly unnecessary for any fair election?—That would be so.

64,161. For what purpose did you, who were conducting this election, incur expenses to the amount of the difference between 400*l.* and 1,800*l.*?—For the purpose of securing it.

Mr. H. S. Bright.

28th July 1853.

64,162. For the purpose of influencing the constituency?—For the purpose of securing the election.

64,163. Is not that by means of influencing the constituency?—Indirectly it is.

64,164. By indirectly do you mean corruptly?—No.

64,165. Take that in your hand, the register for 1847; look at the first twelve names in that list, and compare them with the register of the year 1847, which you have before you, and you will see, that of nine out of the twelve, there are not even any persons of the same name upon the register (referring to document C.)?—I do not find the three first names upon the poll book.

64,166. How do you account for that, assuming that as a fair instance: were there any pains taken for that?—I am quite unable to account for that perfectly.

64,167. Assuming that to be the same throughout the list, can you account for it in any way?—I cannot account for it at all.

64,168. You gave an answer some time ago, which is not quite consistent with that paper, as far as I understand it, because you said some runners were appointed by the committees; a good many were wanted, and non-voters would not be appointed; that seems to contain a good many who are not?—This is perfectly inexplicable to me.

64,169. Then, when you gave that answer to me in the first instance, were you applying that to the general practice rather than the particular practice?—Yes; apprehending the particular practice accorded with it.

64,170. You assumed that the occasion was in accordance with the general practice?—I did.

64,171. Looking at that, you see it is not?—Or, to put it more clearly, I assumed the names in the list were voters.

64,172. Your answer was based upon that supposition?—It was.

64,173. When Mr. Brown came to Mr. Baines' committee on that day, was there anything said about Mr. Brown's resignation?—No; it was a simple communication of the fact.

64,174. Can you account for Mr. Brown stating that it was likely to endanger Mr. Baines' election, assuming the fact to be as it has been stated by many witnesses, that at that time Mr. Baines was at the head of the poll?—Yes.

64,175. It might have endangered Mr. Clay's situation; I do not see how it could have endangered Mr. Baines, because at that time the contest lay between Mr. Baines and Mr. Clay?—It would endanger Mr. Baines' election, if there were a certain number of voters ready to be paid, if Mr. Baines did not pay them and Mr. Brown did.

64,176. Did you consider that there was at that time so large a number of the venal voters still remaining unpolled, as to be able to remove Mr. Baines from the top to the bottom of the poll, if Mr. Brown had persevered in it?—Yes, I did.

64,177. It seems to me that quite explains it, because Mr. Brown was friendly to Mr. Baines?—Yes; and therefore retired.

64,178. Although he might have paid the voters, might he not canvass their second vote for Mr. Baines?—Yes; he might do so, but I had no knowledge of that.

64,179. Being so friendly to Mr. Baines, that he was ready to resign in his favour, why could he not have canvassed for the second vote for Mr. Baines?—He might have done so.

64,180. When you say canvass, you mean paid, I suppose?—If you put it in that way.

64,181. Did you hear at all during the election, that the freemen were so incensed against Mr. Baines, upon the rumours that he would not pay, that they refused to vote for him when they were canvassed by Mr. Brown's canvassers?—No; I do not remember that particularly.

64,182. Are you aware of this fact, that has been stated by many of the witnesses in evidence, that after Mr. Brown resigned, and after the resignation was known, notwithstanding that he polled more votes afterwards than Mr. Baines?—I think I have heard that.

64,183. Can you explain that?—No; I do not understand it.

64,184. Was it not because they wanted money?—I do not know, I am sure.

64,185. Do you think that is the explanation?—It might be.

Mr. T. Carrick.

MR. THEOPHILUS CARRICK sworn, and examined.

64,186. Are you in any business?—I am the official assignee of the Court of Bankruptcy for the Leeds district, resident in Hull.

64,187. Where do you reside in Hull?—No. 55, Lister Street.

64,188. Do you pay rent?—£40 a year.

64,189. Are you also a freeman?—I am a freeman, but I have never taken up my freedom.

64,190. You are not a burgess?—I have never voted as a freeman.

64,191. How long have you been entitled to vote for the borough?—Since the passing of the Reform Bill.

Mr. T. Carrick.

28th July 1853.

64,192. You have taken a considerable amount of interest in the elections for members of Parliament?—I have, till the last one. I took no part in the last election, beyond recording my vote for Moore and Butler.

64,193. In the year 1837, I believe, you took a good deal of interest on behalf of the blue candidates?—It is so long ago that I cannot remember I took an active part. I voted for the two blue candidates in 1837. I dare say I should be chairman of the district of South Myton at that election.

64,194. There is but one name like yours in the report. You are the person mentioned in the report before me?—I dare say it would be, in reference to that election.

64,195. In the scrutiny of 1847?—I was not aware of it.

64,196. In 1841 who did you vote for?—In 1841 I took a great interest in the election for Hanmer and James.

64,197. And voted for them?—I should vote for them.

64,198. What position did you occupy then?—I was chairman for the South Myton district, and I seconded the nomination of Sir Walter James on the hustings.

64,199. Do you know anything of how Sir John Hanmer became a candidate?—I do not.

64,200. From your knowledge as chairman were you aware that the practice of setting down names, as it is called, of runners, prevailed at that time?—To a limited extent, it did.

64,201. To some extent?—To a limited extent.

64,202. How many do you think there were in the South Myton district?—I think not more than twenty of them, and, in my knowledge, not one that was not actively engaged.

64,203. They were set down?—I think about twenty. There were others engaged as colour men and waiting men, waiting at the committee.

64,204. Was the system adopted of giving employment if possible to the greatest possible number of freemen?—Yes, it was to some extent, but not to the same extent that prevailed at the last election.

64,205. On that occasion it did prevail, and some little ingenuity was resorted to to find employment?—It was.

64,206. You agree with most of the other witnesses, that the most valuable part of the services performed was the vote?—No doubt of it.

64,207. Who was the paymaster of your district?—I believe I was.

64,208. You were not the gentleman behind the hole in the door?—No.

64,209. And the payments were made openly?— ——.

64,210. Where were they made?—I think the whole amount of money that passed throug my hands did not exceed 25*l.*

64,211. There must have been some other paymaster to pay these twenty men?—I dare say there might. £25 only passed through my hands.

64,212. Who else paid in your district?—Mr. George Milner was my deputy chairman. He left the town, and has since died.

64,213. Did you know at the time, or have you learned since, how much you disbursed?—I have not. I have not any knowledge of any amount beyond the 25*l.*

64,214. Did you supply him with money?—I did not.

64,215. Did he you?—No.

64,216. Who supplied you with money?—Mr. Clifford Pease, the chairman of the central committee.

64,217. Was it the custom at that election, amongst your party, for the chairman and deputy chairman to meet of a morning?—We met in the committee room every morning; in fact, all the day.

64,218. Were all the district chairmen members of the general committee?—Yes, and occasionally received summonses to attend daily.

64,219. Does that enable you to give us any information as to the extent of runners who were employed?—No.

64,220. The amount to be paid?—No; we had no instructions.

64,221. You might have heard it talked of in the committee?—No, I did not.

64,222. Did you hear how much was the amount of money available at the election?—I did not.

64,223. Not within any limits at all?—I was not aware at all of the nature of the engagement that was entered into with the candidates, as to the amount they ought to pay.

64,224. You were aware that an arrangement was entered into?—I have heard that there was.

64,225. Did you not also hear to what extent that engagement went?—No.

64,226. It has been variously stated to us that 6,000*l.*, 7,000*l.*, 8,000*l.* is the amount spent by the blue party on that occasion?—I have no means of judging as to the correctness of that amount at all.

64,227. Either from your own knowledge, or anything that transpired at the time by your party?—Exactly so.

64,228. Did the candidates frequent the committee room occasionally?—Occasionally they came. They called when they canvassed in the separate districts.

64,229. Were you yourself much at the committee room?—I was not, at that election.

64,230. What became of your books and papers after the election terminated?—I believe they were principally left with my deputy chairman. I thought I had some in my possession, but I could not find them. Mr. George Milner had them. I think still I have some of them in my possession; if I find them you shall have them. I do not think they will give you any information beyond what I have given viva voce.

64,231. Do they give the names of the parties?—I do not think they would. I do not think those documents came through my hands. Possibly they might show how the 25*l.* I myself paid was appropriated, but not beyond that, certainly.

64,232. Had you a minute book belonging to your committee?—I think we had not. There was the chairman's book, that contained a list of all the voters from the district. They were regularly posted up.

64,233. And the canvass book?—I think that book I have somewhere.

64,234. Do you know the names of the parties employed as runners?—I have not any of those papers.

64,235. Where would they be?—I think Mr. George Milner, my deputy chairman, would have had them.

64,236. When did he die?—About twelve months ago.

64,237. In this town?—No; he left the town some years before.

64,238. Can you answer this question,—as a person familiar with what took place in 1837,—can you tell in what way the conduct of the election of 1841 differed from that in 1837?—I think a very essential difference. I think there was not so much money spent in 1847 as in 1841.

64,239. No, in 1837?—I do not know the circumstances of the election of 1837.

64,240. You do not remember it?—I do not think I took so active a part as in the subsequent election.

64,241. You have not a sufficient knowledge of what took place in 1837, to be able to distinguish that from the two others: I think that is your answer?—I have not.

64,242. How long was the committee in existence?—Prior to the election?

64,243. Prior to the election?—I should think a fortnight or three weeks.

64,244. Was there much money, as far as you know or have heard, paid after the election was over?—I have no knowledge of any money at all being paid afterwards; in fact, as soon as the election was over, I ceased to take any further interest in it. I never attended the committee room afterwards; I left it to my deputy chairman.

64,245. What was your practice when, in the course of your canvass, you found people who said they wanted to be runners?—My belief was, they were paid a certain amount after the election.

64,246. Were there regular pay sheets kept of those who were employed previous to the election?—I should say not.

64,247. These twenty?—I think those who were actively employed were paid at the time.

64,248. Were the pay sheets transmitted to the central committee?—Yes; I think all the payments would be sent to the central committee.

64,249. £25 by no means would cover that?—No; not merely the expenses to which I became personally responsible for.

64,250. What were they?—Paying the men I had engaged.

64,251. How?—As runners, who were actually engaged.

64,252. If there were regular pay sheets I do not understand, unless you can favour us with some explanation, how it is you should pay any money at all?—These men were engaged as weekly servants, and they expected to be paid weekly, as I promised them they should.

64,253. The 25*l.* would by no means cover the twenty. I do not understand why you became liable to pay them the whole, or why you became liable to any part?—I was liable to the persons I personally engaged. I promised them they should be paid, and I paid them.

64,254. Why were they not set down in the pay sheet?—I cannot tell you; it was the system adopted in my committee room.

64,255. Did each member of the committee who employed runners pay separately from the rest?—No; I do not think they did.

64,256. I do not understand how you came to pay them and others not?—I engaged those men and promised them they should be paid. I paid them prior to my getting the 25*l.*

64,257. Was it at an early period of the election?—It was before the election.

64,258. At the very early period before the pay sheets were made out?—Yes.

64,259. Quite at the early period you expended the 25*l.*, and the pay sheets were resorted to afterwards?—Yes, it was. I had nothing to do with paying after the election.

64,260. What I want to know is this: before the committee were completely organised, and the pay sheets were used, you paid out of your own pocket?—I paid out of my own pocket.

64,261. And afterwards referred the men, by means of the pay sheets, to who?—The cashier or treasurer it might be, or to the general committee, I cannot say which.

28th July 1853.

64,262. Is there no other information you can give respecting the election of 1841?—No, I am not aware that I can give you any that you have not already in my notes.

64,263. Was there a person named John Lusby?—I know the man.

64,264. It is stated he was paid by you?—He was an active man in our committee room.

64,265. You heard a man of the name of Lyson examined a few days ago?—I knew him also; he was a man engaged in our committee room.

64,266. Lyson is one of the men it was stated was paid through a hole?—I think he was a kind of confidential doorkeeper.

64,267. What is the meaning of that?—A man we could put trust in.

64,268. He was doing the duties that a confidential doorkeeper would have to perform?—He differed from a person we might suspect to be a kind of spy in the camp. We knew he was a thorough-going blue—blue to the back bone.

64,269. Did you hear anything of the system of paying through doors?—Not a syllable.

64,270. This Lyson stated that he was paid?—If he were so, I was no party to it.

64,271. Assuming it to be so, did you not pay him?—I do not know it, and I do not believe it to be so.

64,272. So many people have said that it was in some places, that we must take it it was so?—It was not so in the South Myton district,

64,273. Where were they paid in the South Myton district?—I do not know.

64,274. Where did your district committee hold its meetings?—I had never any place at all where the payments were made.

64,275. Where did the district committee meet?—There were two, one in Osborne Street, and the other in Cockburn Street.

64,276. Which did you attend?—The one in Cockburn Street.

64,277. Now, in 1847, how did you vote?—In 1847 I voted for Mr. Baines only.

64,278. Were you a member of his committee?—I was the deputy chairman of one of them; there were two.

64,279. Where?—At the George Inn.

64,280. At the general committee?—At the central committee. Mr. Tottie was the chairman.

64,281. Can you inform us how the district committees were appointed?—I think the whole of the gentlemen who had formerly served as members of the committee were summoned to the central committee room, and the district committees were formed to the best of my recollection,

64,282. Explain what was done with reference to the setting down names there?—I am not aware that a single name was set down.

64,283. What means did you resort to for the purpose of carrying on the ordinary business of the election?—The appointing the district committees.

64,284. I want to know what the mode of doing it was. The district committee men could not stand at the door, or carry messages. How did you understand votes were to be secured at the election?—That I cannot tell you. I had nothing to do with those arrangements for the election.

64,285. How were the people to be employed; what arrangements did you make for carrying on the ordinary intercourse of the committees?—There was a deputy chairman to the committee. I had nothing to do with the arrangements; my part was principally to go about with Mr. Baines to the different districts. I took no active part at all in the arrangements.

64,286. Cannot you give us any information as to the mode in which those runners were selected?—I cannot.

64,287. Now, what steps were taken for the selection?—I cannot tell. I believe the whole of the arrangements were made with the gentleman who has been just under examination.

64,288, My reason for asking was, that you had more experience?—Mr. Baines was not one of our party, and, being a blue man, I did not take that interest in it that I should have done.

64,289. Did you feel an anxiety for the return of Mr. Baines, with a view to avoid a contest?—Mr. Baines had been our recorder and was a gentleman highly respected, and I signed the requisition asking him to put himself in nomination.

64,290. Was it personal rather than political?—It was personal rather than political. If there had been a blue candidate I should not have voted for Mr. Baines. I might have divided my vote if there had been.

64,291. Do you know anything of the address to him to be present; had you anything to do with getting it up?—I cannot tell you. It was numerously signed—1,400 or 1,500 I think.

64,292. Do you remember, at any time during the election, the subject of how the expenses were to be met?—They were never canvassed in my presence at all.

64,293. Do you remember hearing on the morning of the election there were a considerable number of votes to be disposed of?—I did not.

64,294. Did you never hear of it in the course of the day?—No, I did not.

64,295. How soon did you hear of Mr. Brown's resignation?—I was in the central committee room when Mr. Brown came to say that he had resigned, at about three o'clock in the afternoon.

64,296. Just tell us what your recollection is?—My impression is, that Mr. Brown gave up under the impression that he could not win the election; or, that if he did win it, he would endanger the return of Mr. Baines, which he was anxious to avoid.

46,297. How could that be, according to your judgment, seeing that at the time when Mr. Brown resigned Mr. Baines was a long way ahead?—I thought it was too late for any possibility for Mr. Brown to be returned at that time, considering the state of the poll.

64,298. Are you not aware that Mr. Brown polled more one hour after he resigned than he did in the seven hours before?—I am aware of that; the fact is, they continued polling for Mr. Brown long after he resigned.

64,299. They polled for Brown and Baines; can you give us any explanation of that?—It is assumed that these men were purchased at a late hour, and came to poll.

64,300. Not purchased for Mr. Brown; this was after Mr. Brown had resigned?—I believe they were for Mr. Brown after he had resigned, only Mr. Brown did not know that to be the case.

64,301. Did you hear anything of any of the parties who were standing out for money on that day?—I did not.

64,302. Did you hear it said that money was scarce on Mr. Baines' side at all, or there was more on Mr. Brown's?—I did not.

64,303. You said you were paymaster at the 1841 election?—No; I only paid 25*l.*

64,304. I suppose, when you were paymaster, it was to your own ward only?—To my own ward.

64,305. Who was the general paymaster?—The chairman of the general committee, Mr. Clifford Pease.

64,306. £25 is quite a drop in the ocean, is it not?—I believe much more money went through the hands of my deputy chairman than mine.

64,307. Out of the 25*l.*?—No; besides that.

64,308. But the general paymaster was Mr. Clifford Pease?—Yes.

64,309. If money was wanted for the election of 1841, was he the person who would be applied to?—Certainly.

64,310. Were payments made from time to time by the committee while the election was proceeding?—I think there were.

64,311. And he would be the source to look for the money?—Most assuredly.

64,312. Was this 25*l.* you paid entirely devoted to the persons whom you had engaged and employed?—It was, or nearly so; there might be some small expense beside.

64,313. Those were persons you had interested yourself in?—Yes.

64,314. Could you not give us the names?—I think the names have been already mentioned.

64,315. Lusby and Lyson?—There was another man.

64,316. John Rutherford?—Yes; I do not know him. I know him by name, but I do not know the man.

64,317. Samuel Brown, do you remember him in 1841?—I do not.

64,318. I ask you, because it is stated you in the presence of Samuel Brown paid Rutherford some money?—Very possibly; I might if he was a man actively engaged.

64,319. You do not remember his name?—No, I do not.

64,320. Mr. Brown is a gentleman now in London?—I do not know.

64,321. Mr. Brown, he was the agent for the registration, Samuel Brown?—I never paid him any money. I remember the man now very well; I never paid him any money to the best of my belief.

64,322. The statement made of what Samuel Brown did is, that he said you in his company paid some money to Rutherford?—I do not remember. I remember the name very well; but I do not remember the man. He might receive money if he was engaged upon my committee.

64,323. Was Brown one of the committee?—I think not.

64,324. He had been active on the registration?—He had.

64,325. He had been a useful man?—He had.

64,326. Do you know whether he was on the committee?—I do not think he was on any committee.

64,327. Do you remember that he was secretary?—I knew he was actively engaged, but I do not know on what committee, or in what capacity.

64,328. I am sorry I have no more names to put to you?—Now you call Rutherford by name, I remember him very well; Brown was the gentleman's name.

64,329. Did you act on any committee in 1852?—I did not; I took no part beyond recording my vote.

64,330. Did you canvass?—No, I did not,

44,331. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

64,332. How came you not to assist them more actively; did you not canvass?—No; I received an official appointment, but I did not think it proper that I should interfere at all in the election.

64,333. You were not on any committee?—I was not.

Mr. T. Digby.

28th July 1853.

Mr. THOMAS DIGBY sworn, and examined.

64,334. Are you in any business?—Not any.

64,335. You occupy premises in this town?—Yes.

64,336. At what rate?—£50 a year.

64,337. Are you a freeman also?—No, I am not.

64,338. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Since the Reform Bill.

64,339. You were formerly in the bank here?—I was.

64,340. Did you take any interest in the election of 1841?—Yes; very actively. I canvassed for Sir Walter James and Sir John Hanmer. I was on one of the committees.

64,341. Do you recollect which committee?—I think it was the committee in Saville Street, of which Mr. Cattley was the chairman.

64,342. Perhaps you can throw some light through the keyhole of the door there?—I never heard of it till after this inquiry, and I do not believe there was anything of the sort.

64,343. You did not hear of it?—No; I never heard of it.

64,344. Who was the chairman?—I think Mr. Farthing was the chairman at that election.

64,345. Did the practice prevail then of setting down persons' names for the purpose of their votes?—I am sure I do not recollect at all. I do not think I was at all conversant with it if there was anything of the sort. I do not recollect whether there was anything or not.

64,346. Did you hear of the subject alluded to occasionally?—I do not recollect now. I did not know it even at the time.

64,347. How did you carry on business; you had runners and messengers, I presume?—I believe there were. I was only one of the committee, and my principal occupation was canvassing among the voters.

64,348. What did you do with the doubtful people when they gave you information that they would like a little something in return; what did you do with them when you were canvassing; did you not meet a good many such?—I dare say there were, but I do not recollect any particulars.

64,349. Do you recollect meeting persons who intimated that they wanted some consideration?—I have no doubt there were persons who expected to be paid for their votes.

64,350. What did you do with those people; refer them to the general committee?—No; they were sent to the chairman or deputy chairman; how they were dealt with I do not know.

64,351. You sent them to the chairman or deputy chairman?—Yes.

64,352. How many do you think you may have sent to the chairman or deputy chairman?—I am sure it is impossible to recollect. I dare say there may have been a good many apply in that way.

64,353. What is a good many; how many would that be?—It might be twenty or thirty, or forty, in that election perhaps. I do not know; it was rather a large district, Sculcoates.

64,354. Did you have many of the kind yourself?—There might have been many sent in that way to the committee. I do not think I did.

64,355. How many do you think you yourself sent?—There might be ten or twelve .I do not say how many.

64,356. Did you pay any yourself?—No; I had nothing to do with it prior to that time.

64,357. Where was the account kept, if any, of the expenses?—I do not know; I suppose at the central committee. I think Mr. Clifford Pease was the chairman of the committee.

64,358. Did you apply to him when you wanted money?—I had nothing to do with the money. No money passed through my hands at all.

64,359. Did you not pay any of the runners, or other persons?—No; I never had any money at all,—I never paid any one. I never had any money at all in my hands.

64,360. In 1847, I believe you interested yourself for Mr. Brown?—I did.

64,361. As deputy chairman, I think?—No; I was chairman.

64,362. Did you vote for Mr. Brown only?—I voted for Brown and Baines.

64,363. I believe you were one of the party that went to see Mr. Brown?—I was.

64,364. And you had an interview with him, at which the other members of the deputation were not present?—Yes, I had.

64,365. What took place between you and Mr. Brown?—I went with a letter of introduction from Mr. Tottie. I made known the business that we had come upon, and that there was a deputation waiting to call upon him to request that he would become a candidate for Hull. He had been here previously; before that he had been with Mr. Tottie and some other parties, but they had thought it better for him not to stand in opposition to Mr. Baines. I am not certain whether he had been here, but there was some idea of his coming as a candidate before

64,366. What further took place between you and Mr. Brown?—After I had been with him a short time, he requested the deputation to come in.

64,367. Before the deputation came in, I want to know what it was took place which the deputation were not permitted to hear?—I merely told my object and my views. He asked me if there was any one else here. I said, "Yes; a deputation is waiting to be introduced to you." He sent his servant for them, and they joined us.

64,368. I want to know what took place between you and Mr. Brown, and which the deputation were not permitted to hear?—I stated to him the object of my visit; scarcely anything else passed.

64,369. Why did you not all go together?—It was thought more adviseable for me to go by myself first.

64,370. Why?—I do not know why; but the others wished me to go and take my letter of introduction.

64,371. What was said with regard to the expense?—He asked me if it would be an expensive election. I told him I thought not, as the time was short, I did not suppose it would be very expensive.

64,372. What else?—We then had the deputation in.

64,373. Was nothing more said as to the expense?—No, nothing at all at that time.

64,374. Was nothing said as to the mode in which the money would be expended?—No, nothing.

64,375. Some of these gentlemen were very old electioneerers; did any of them tell Mr. Brown?—No.

64,376. The others came in?—The others came in, and then there was a general conversation, and the probability of success was canvassed. He gave us some luncheon, and said he would retire for a short time, and he would then give us an answer whether he would come over.

64,377. Before the deputation was there, was not something said about the expenses?—No; nothing in the presence of the other parties at all.

64,378. Was anything more said before they came in?—No; he merely asked me what the expense would be. I told him I did not know, but I thought it could not be very expensive, as the time was very short. I do not think that money seemed to be of much object to him; he did not seem to care much about it.

64,379. Did he not ask how much it might cost?—No, he did not.

64,380. No estimate of any kind?—Not at all.

64,381. What age was Mr. Brown at the time?—I should think about thirty or thirty-five.

64,382. Scarcely as much, was he?—I do not know; he was a young man,—he might not be as much.

64,383. A man of large fortune?—Yes.

64,384. Which he had recently succeeded to?—Yes, he had.

64,385. Was he told what number of runners, colourmen, and so on, it would be necessary to employ?—Oh no; not at all.

64,386. Was there no information given him to enable him to form a judgment of the cost?—No; there was nothing mentioned as to the mode, or anything of the sort, or what was the cost of carrying on the election.

64,387. Was there anything said about who was to have the care of the money during the election?—No; he said, after he came back in about three-quarters of an hour, on consideration he would put himself in our hands, and he would come on the Monday morning.

64,388. You were on that occasion his treasurer?—I was.

64,389. When was it first proposed that you should be the treasurer?—I had no idea at all of being his chairman, or taking any active part after he had come; however, it was in a state of confusion when he arrived,—it was necessary for some one to take an active part, and become chairman,—and I was appointed.

64,390. But the treasurer?—Why, there was no one but me who was treasurer or chairman. I was treasurer and chairman also; at least I paid the money for him,—I advanced the money in fact.

64,391. Did it not naturally fall to your lot, that being his chairman and being a banker, you should be his treasurer?—I was his treasurer, and I advanced the money before I received anything from him.

64,392. How much did you advance before you received any money from him?—I think about 1,200*l.*

64,393. When did you receive the first money from him?—I do not recollect. I gave Mr. Shaen the memorandums and two letters also from Mr. Brown, and the dates of the two checks which he sent to me.

64,394. Altogether 3,000*l.*?—£3,000.

64,395. How much was there, not more than 1,200*l.*, disbursed by you before you got the first 1,000*l.*?—I think not; somewhere about 1,200*l.*

64,396. You disbursed that out of your own funds?—I did.

64,397. How was the committee organised?—I scarcely know; it was in such a state of confusion that it was scarcely organised at all.

64,398. Did everybody act for themselves?—No; there was a sort of committee formed, but it was not a very organised one, and we wrote to a number of gentlemen we thought were interested in Mr. Brown's election, to form committees in the districts, and we got them very badly formed.

Mr. T. Digby.

28th July 1853.

64,399. Was there any arrangement made between you and your committee, or anybody representing Mr. Brown, with Mr. Baines?—Not any.

64,400. Or Mr. Clay?—Not any.

64,401. Was it understood that the object merely was for Mr. Brown to get in, careless of who was turned out?—Mr. Brown told me in the first instance when I went, if there was any danger of Mr. Baines losing his election, he would not come to Hull; that he knew Mr. Baines, and had great respect for him, and he would not endanger his election.

64,402. Was it understood that the attack was to be made on Mr. Clay?—Mr. Clay was the object of it.

64,403. If that was so, how came it to be that Mr. Brown's committee clubbed with Mr. Clay's committee to buy eighty voters right away in a lot?—We did not club with Mr. Clay's committee. There were a great number of Mr. Clay's supporters that proposed to support Mr. Brown, but I do not know how they did vote.

64,404. It has been stated, and how do you account for this: that an agreement was made between Mr. Brown's supporters and Mr. Clay's for the purchase of voters wholesale?—Yes; there were a number of persons,—a Mr. Mitchell, since dead, he was a very leading man among the radicals.

64,405. Who do you call radicals?—The orange; and also a Mr. Walker, who has been here, and some others, Mr. Beeton; they were dissatisfied with Mr. Baines being re-elected, and he wished to support a third candidate, if they could.

64,406. Then your committee was not unanimous in their determination to keep friends with Mr. Baines?—No; certainly it was not.

64,407. Do you know how that transaction was arranged, the purchase of eighty voters at the Baltic Tavern; how that purchase was effected; eighty we have been told by several witnesses; how the purchase of eighty voters was effected by 1*l.* for Mr. Clay, and 19*s.* on account of Mr. Brown, or vicè versa?—I do not know how it was effected.

64,408. How soon did you hear of it?—I do not think I heard of it during the election at all, I am not sure that I did.

64,409. You supplied the money?—I supplied the money, but I gave it to Mr. Burstall, who was my deputy, to disburse the money among the chairmen of the different committees.

64,410. Is Mr. Burstall the gentleman who conducted that little operation among the eighty voters?—I do not know whether he did or not, I am not sure; except Mr. Mitchell, I think he was the only person I paid the money to.

64,411. How much may you have paid to Mr. Mitchell, on or before the polling day?—I should think several hundreds.

64,412. You could have very little doubt to what purpose it would be applied?—No; I had no doubt of it.

64,413. And Mr. Burstall, had he also some hundreds of pounds?—Yes, several hundreds; a considerable sum of money, which he divided among the chairmen and deputy chairmen.

64,414. He had it from you?—Yes.

64,415. How much passed through your hands on or before the polling day?—I am sure I cannot say; perhaps I should think 1,000*l.*

64,416. Do you think the whole of the 1,200*l.*?—Perhaps 1,200*l.*; I think it was about 1,000*l.* I advanced, and perhaps the whole of it.

64,417. Was it out of the 1,200*l.* that the various payments were made by Mr. Bannister and the others?—Yes, it was to the deputy chairman.

64,418. Did you pay Mr. Bannister money?—No, I did not; I think I did not pay any to Mr. Bannister, it all went through Mr. Burstall's hands.

64,419. How were Mr. Mitchell's payments distinguished from Mr. Burstall's?—He applied to me, he would not go to Mr. Burstall; he would not apply to Mr. Burstall for money, and he came to me himself.

64,420. Was he the chairman of a district?—He was; he was very much interested for Mr. Clay; I believe he divided his vote between Mr. Brown and Mr. Clay, and induced others to do the same.

64,421. Some of your chairmen exercised their influence on behalf of Mr. Clay?—They did.

64,422. And some on behalf of Mr. Baines?—They did.

64,423. Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Burstall were opposed in politics?—Yes; very much.

64,424. That was the reason Mr. Mitchell objected to go to Mr. Burstall?—I believe it was.

64,425. Do you consider that the whole of the 1,200*l.* was expended in the purchase of votes?—I dare say it was.

64,426. It must be something more, because, altogether, 2,000*l.* had been expended?—Yes, it had.

64,427. How much, according to your judgment, was spent; 2,000*l.* out of the 3,000*l.* most likely?—Yes.

64,428. In the purchase of votes?—No; I think not so much as that; the different tradesmen's bills amounted to a very large sum.

64,429. How much did the bills come to, according to your account?—Printers' bills were very large; we were not at all careful, at least we were very liberal in printing, cards, and carriages and music; we paid pretty handsomely for music, and flags and colours.

64,430. It has been mentioned one of the proceedings at the commencement of the tactics was to buy up all the pink ribbons in the whole town?—Yes; I believe it was.

64,431. Can you tell me about the printing?—No; I have not any account of that, and whether there is any in that account I am not sure.

64,432. You have no recollection upon the subject at all?—No, I have not; I know it was to a very large extent; the printing was very large.

64,433. The advertisements and newspapers you had nothing at all to do with?—No.

64,434. Would there not be a newspaper account?—There was no newspaper account.

64,435. What did the printing consist of?—Cards, to a certain extent, and a great many placards.

64,436. How much do you think it would come to?—I cannot say at all.

64,437. Would it amount to 500*l.* or 600*l.*?—No, not so much as that; I should think 300*l.*

64,438. The colours, how much do you think they would make?—As to colours, we had one bill of nearly 300*l.*, that was reduced considerably; to one person it was nearly 300*l.*

64,439. How much do you think was actually paid for colours?—I think, perhaps, 350*l.* for colours; I should think there would be that.

64,440. Carriages?—I am sure I cannot tell; we got all the carriages we could in the town.

64,441. About?—I cannot tell; perhaps about 120*l.*; I really cannot say, it is merely a guess.

64,442. Was there any agreement made as to any of these items with either of the candidates or their friends; for carriages, for instance?—No; there was no agreement made.

64,443. Music?—As to music, I made an agreement.

64,444. How much was it?—I made an agreement to pay 120*l.*; and they took me afterwards into the county court to pay it before I would; Mr. Beeton took me there.

64,445. How much for the lawyers' expenses?—When we were forming, Mr. Wells was engaged.

64,446. Who was he engaged by?—By the committee.

64,447. How much do you think Mr. Wells had?—I cannot tell.

64,448. How much had the lawyers altogether?—I do not know.

64,449. Was there anybody besides Mr. Wells?—No; he engaged others as the agents; I think Mr. Thorney; I am not sure, but I think Mr. Thorney and some others were engaged by Mr. Wells.

64,450. What is your memory of the law expenses?—I am sure I cannot tell you.

64,451. How much do you think?—I really should be very sorry to say what; I do not know; perhaps it might be 400*l.* or 500*l.*

64,452. Do you know whether Mr. Wells prepared an abstract of the Bribery Act on that occasion?—No; I do not think he did.

64,453. The law expenses you think were between 400*l.* and 500*l.*?—I think, perhaps, they might be.

64,454. £450 you think?—I think, perhaps, the bill was as much as that; I am not sure whether in that is included the sheriff's account or not, I do not know.

64,455. Can you tell how the agreement was carried out, relating to the Hedon voters (handing a paper to the witness)?—No; I do not know anything about it; this was all under the management of Mr. Wells.

64,456. Under the directions, I presume, of the committee?—Under the directions of the committee.

64,457. Mr. Wells is a gentleman on whom you would not cast the slightest doubt of it being correct; it being furnished by Mr. Wells, there is not the slightest doubt it is correct?—I have no doubt it is correct.

64,458. He is a gentleman of great respectability in this town?—Yes; I really did not, and have no reason to doubt it now, not the slightest.

64,459. Therefore when you see there were twenty-five voters who were bought at 10*s.* a vote, you have not the least reason to doubt that it is correct?—I have no doubt it is correct.

64,460. Do you know anything of Mr. Park, the gentleman who appears to have been the means of carrying out this negotiation?—No; I do not.

64,461. Was he in any way an agent for Mr. Brown?—I think not; I never heard of his name before to-day; I did not know he was engaged at all, I thought it was Mr. Wilson that had the arrangement of it.

64,462. You had an agent there?—I think there was a Mr. Wilson.

64,463. Probably the purchase mentioned in that paper was concluded between Mr. Park on the one side, for Mr. Baines, and Mr. Wilson on the other, on the part of Mr. Brown?—I think it very likely.

Mr. T. Digby.

28th July 1853.

64,464. Were there any other outlying voters; Cottingham and Barton voters; do you know how they were dealt with?—I do not know at all.

64,465. You made no individual payments, no small sums?—No, not any; I did not pay any of the small sums after the election; we had all the bills checked as far as we could, before their payment; I gave the money to pay those bills to Mr. Steeple, and the others I paid to Mr. Wells.

64,466. Did you know that Steeple was also engaged by Mr. Baines; were you aware of that?—I did not know that.

64,467. He is returned to us as one of Mr. Baines' agents?—He was at our central committee room the whole time of the election.

64,468. He succeeded in getting payment out of Mr. Baines?—The four days we had him.

64,469. What was Mr. Steeple's occupation?—He was occupied at the central committee purposely to answer any voters who came.

64,470. Is he considered a person who would be a fit person to entrust generally with the more confidential department of the election?—Yes, rather.

64,471. A person considered familiar with the freemen and the general practices?—He has been an old electioneerer.

64,472. Was he a person qualified to deal with the corrupt part of the electors?—I think he was.

64,473. I want to know what in Hull, at a Hull election, is the difference if any between a messenger and a runner?—I am sure I cannot say.

64,474. Do you understand any difference?—No; I do not.

64,475. Do you think they are convertible terms?—Yes; I should apply them the same.

64,476. We have heard both names frequently mentioned, you would not make any difference?—No; not at all.

64,477. You said when you went to Mr. Brown, he asked if it would be an expensive election?—Yes; he did.

64,478. I do not quite understand the reason of the answer you gave; I understand you told him the time was so short that you thought it would not be so expensive?—Yes.

64,479. But if Mr. Brown acceded to the requisition, there was a contest immediately?—Yes.

64,480. And a very short time to conduct it in?—Yes.

64,481. Only three days?—Three or four days.

64,482. You were there on the Sunday and the election was on the Thursday?—Yes; but there were no expenses incurred till the Monday morning.

64,483. Would not the very fact of the shortness of time between the date of the requisition and the polling day, in your judgment, create a considerable expense in a Hull election?—No doubt it would.

64,484. Do you not think that even in three days, having recourse to the usual means that we have heard of as generally prevailing at a Hull election, there was plenty of time to spend a great deal of money?—No doubt there was; but I was not so old an electioneerer as to know what the expenses were; mine was a very indefinite term, "not expensive;" I do not really know what I meant by not expensive; I did not consider that that it would cost so much money as it did.

64,485. When you stated from the shortness of time you thought it would not be a very expensive election, did not Mr. Brown ask what such an answer as that would mean?—No; he did not make any remark.

64,486. I understand you to say that he put no limit at all on you, he placed himself in your hands?—No, he did not make any limit at all; he said he placed himself in our hands, and he would come on the next day.

64,487. No doubt it must have been represented, that, from the shortness of time, a great deal of activity would be requisite?—No doubt it would be.

64,488. There were a good many persons employed from the shortness of time, in order to get the matter into a proper state?—Yes.

64,489. Should you not think that the shortness of time would be an ingredient in increasing the expense?—I do not think it would be very different whether it was a fortnight or four days; I did not suppose we should expend the same money in four days as we should in a fortnight.

64,490. Supposing, for the sake merely of giving the figures, that there were 1,500 persons who did not vote, except for money, do you mean that they might as well be looked up in three days as in thirty?—Yes.

64,491. They would be pretty well known?—I dare say they would to those who understood the general matters of the election.

64,492. They might be got pretty well as soon?—Yes.

64,493. You said, I think, that Mr. Mitchell had a good deal of money from you, several hundreds, as you expressed it?—Yes, he had.

64,494. And that you had no doubt of the purpose to which he applied it; do you recollect if he stated the purpose?—He wanted to pay the men that had tickets; Mr. Walker gave the tickets to the men and he wanted to pay them.

64,495. He stated that?—He did.

64,496. Are you aware that a good many 5*s.* tickets were issued by Mr. John Walker? — A great many.

64,497. Can you state about the amount in point of number?—No, I cannot; they came very thick.

64,498. As many as 500?—I dare say; I have no doubt there was.

64,499. Each of those tickets was a voucher for 5*s.*?—For 5*s.*

64,500. And Mr. Mitchell's money you understood was to be applied in that way?—Yes.

64,501. On what day, as far as you remember, were those tickets issued?—I think, perhaps, a day or two before the election; I am not sure.

64,502. Mr. Walker said he issued a thousand tickets, do you consider that is the number?—I think very likely.

64,503. You have no reason to distrust him on that point?—No; I think it very likely.

64,504. Do you know if the same person got more than one, sometimes?—There were some represented to us.

64,505. Some thought 5*s.* little enough; what was the 5*s.* supposed to go to, what purpose?—It has been said it was to get their votes; I have no doubt it was to obtain their votes.

64,506. I see the general form is, "wages ticket, 5*s.*, J. W."; those would be Mr. Walker's initials?—Yes.

64,507. And the name of the recipient endorsed?—I saw some of them, not many; Mr. Mitchell produced them to me.

64,508. You had several committee rooms?—Yes, we had.

64,509. Just look at that book, and tell me if you remember seeing that book at your committee room (B.)?—Yes; I have seen this book before.

64,510. Be kind enough to look; you see various marks and initials in red ink, do you recognise the writing?—I think some of them are Mr. Lockwood's.

64,511. In what capacity was Mr. Lockwood?—He was actively employed at the central committee.

64,512. In what capacity?—I must call him deputy chairman, almost; he was very actively employed.

64,513. He had gone with you as one of the deputation?—Yes, he went with me.

64,514. Do you think the red marks are in his writing?—I think a good many are.

64,515. I observe the marks of several are the chairman's of the committee?—Yes, they are.

64,516. Do you know what that means; I see the name of "chairman" carried out against the name?—I think it most likely those men were referred to the chairman of the committee, when they applied to be paid.

64,517. As far as your recollection goes, would that be a book of applications that were made at the central committee room?—Yes, it would.

64,518. Do you know that they would be referred to the district rooms?—I think so.

64,519. And for that purpose the chairman's name of the district seems to have been affixed?—Yes; I see there is Mr. Bannister, Mr. Mitchell, Mr. Stephenson, Mr. Twining, and Mr. Collison.

64,520. All these, we understand, were chairmen of the different districts?—And deputy chairmen, according to the list I have.

64,521. Is Mr. Mitchell dead?—Yes, he is.

64,522. I believe all the money for the election passed through your hands?—It did, the 3,000*l.*

64,523. I believe, at one time, you had a good many vouchers connected with it?—I had.

64,524. Were they destroyed?—They were, about when I left the bank; I took them home to my house; I believe six or eight months after, when I removed to the house I am now in, they were old dirty papers, and I destroyed them; that is three years ago.

64,525. Could you tell me what the other marks denote, the ticks at the side?—No, I do not know.

64,526. Is Mr. Lockwood alive?—Yes.

64,527. And in the town?—No; he lives at Bradford.

64,528. Do you know what the side marks would mean?—No; only to show that they had done with them, and then pass them on.

64,529. I think there is an occasional allusion to colourmen; of course there would be a considerable expenditure under that head?—There was.

64,530. There I see "messengers—central room," with some eight or ten names following; after that comes other messengers. You understand them to be messengers and runners?—Yes; general messengers.

64,531. Then "colour bearers," who would they be?—I suppose men that went about the streets with the colours; we had a great many of those.

64,532. Were they voters?—Yes, they were.

Mr. T. Digby.

28th July 1853.

64,533. You would rather select voters as a means of giving a colourable employment? —Yes, exactly.

64,534. "Room clerks;" I see also, "committee room;" are you aware of some rooms being taken besides the rooms to which I advert?—Yes, I believe there were some not used; some taken merely to get votes.

64,535. Look at the page headed "committee room," and tell me whether, in your judgment, that runs on into the next page also?—I think not, in the next page; I think these are men that offered as messengers or runners.

64,536. Just turn back; probably they would apply to those rooms?—Probably they would.

64,537. Those are not the lists of the general committee; those are different?—I think, very likely, taken for the object of securing persons to vote, for the purpose of influencing them.

64,538. Did you see Mr. Brown during the election?—He stayed at my house during the election, principally.

64,539. Had you been sanguine of the result of your exertions for him and his success? —We thought we should be successful. I believe we might have been, but he would not endanger Mr. Baines' election. I believe that was his object in giving up; it was said there were plenty of voters to have turned the election about one or two o'clock.

64,540. The plenty of voters who would have turned the election would have to be paid for it?—No doubt of it.

64,541. Did they ask 10*l.* a piece?—No, they did not.

64,542. Did you ever hear the reason given that Mr. Brown left because they began to ask 10*l.* a piece?—No, I never heard that.

64,543. Just look at that book again a little onward, and say whether the names that are mentioned there, are messengers or runners, in your judgment?—Yes; I think these would be applicants to be paid as runners and messengers.

64,544. Is there anything to decide, in your judgment, whether any had been paid, any striking out in pencil or otherwise?—I do not see anything.

64,545. I think all those seem to be struck out in pencil, except those who have got the name of the chairman opposite to them?—Yes, they are so.

64,546. Do you know what that would denote?—I do not know what they are.

64,547. It would seem, according to your explanation, those who have that name, were referred to the particular district; does that enable you to say whether the others have been paid as belonging to the central room?—No; I cannot tell what the pencil mark at all is for; I think very few were paid at the central, but I am not sure.

64,548. Were a good many paid after the election, the runners?—Not a great many; I thinkt here were some made application, who were paid after the election, a day or two after the election.

64,549. Who was the principal paymaster; each chairman would pay?—Each chairman would pay.

64,550. Do you know whether, when it was known at Mr. Baines' room that Mr. Brown had resigned, that they dropped going on for Baines?—It was sent round to the different committees. I went with Mr. Brown to Mr. Baines' when he resigned, and as soon as he had made up his mind to do so, we sent messengers to the different committee rooms, to say he had resigned. I believe there were a great number polled afterwards, I suppose in the hope of being remunerated.

64,551. Do you know also whether Mr. Baines' voters would stay on that intimation from going to the poll?—I do not know.

64,552. Because if they polled on Mr. Brown's account, or for the purpose of getting paid, that would account for the greater number that seemed to have polled for Mr. Brown? —I do not know that at all.

64,553. This is one mode in which it has been accounted for by a witness on the other side, that the men whose names were set down, polled after Mr. Brown's resignation, in order to get their money?—I dare say they did. I have no doubt they did.

64,554. Now, would not the effect of such an election that took place in 1847, tend to render it very difficult for many years afterwards to ascertain which party preponderated after the expenditure of that large sum of money?—I think money would win the election.

64,555. My question is, whether the expenditure of that large sum of money would not have had the effect of rendering it extremely doubtful which party, the orange or the blue, preponderated?—I think it would.

64,556. So as to render any estimate that might be prepared, extremely doubtful?—I think it would.

64,557. And very little reliance could be placed upon it?—I think, with a constituency so divided, it would render it very doubtful.

64,558. I am talking of the circumstance of the large expenditure: would it not have the effect of rendering it difficult to ascertain for many years afterwards, what the state of parties was?—Yes; I think it would.

64,559. Did you take any part in the election of 1852?—No, I did not; I voted for Moore and Butler, but I took no active part; I did occasionally go into the committee room, but I took no active part.

Mr. WALTER JAMES REED sworn, and examined.

Mr. W. J. Reed.

28th July 1853.

64,560. Are you a solicitor?—I am.

64,561. You were formerly clerk to Mr. Sidebottom, a solicitor of this town?—I was.

64,562. Are you a voter?—I am.

64,563. As a householder?—Yes; and also as a freeman.

64,564. What rent do you pay as a householder?—£25.

64,565. How long have you voted at the election?—1841 or 1842.

64,566. Some time previous to the election of 1847?—Yes; I think it was in 1841.

64,567. You were not qualified to vote in 1841?—I was not.

64,568. You were clerk to Mr. Sidebottom at the period of Mr. Baines' election?—I was.

64,569. And you were clerk to Mr. Sidebottom, although not a voter, in 1841?—Certainly, in 1841.

64,570. Mr. Sidebottom was professionally engaged in the election of Hanmer and James?—He was.

64,571. Can you tell us how long before the election his retainer commenced?—I should think two or three weeks before, if I remember right; I think about that time.

64,572. Did you attend at the committee room?—Not till the last of the election; I think I was the last clerk who left the office; there was another clerk before me. I think I remained at the general business till a very short time before the election.

64,573. The general business of the committee?—No, I attended to the general business of the office.

64,574. Mr. Sidebottom's general business?—I attended to Mr. Sidebottom's general business until within a day or two of the election.

64,575. You only attended at the committee about a day or two before the polling day? I should be engaged there on the election day.

64,576. In what way were your services given?—In getting up the voting papers, and doing the clericle part of the election. I was acting under Mr. Sidebottom in that respect.

64,577. Had you anything to do with the financial department?—I had nothing to do with it on any occasion, except at Mr. Baines' election.

64,578. On this occasion you had nothing to do with it?—I had nothing to do with money matters on this occasion.

64,579. Mr. Sidebottom himself had?—Very probably.

64,580. That you would know as his clerk, that he had to do with it?—I should know, as his clerk, that he was very much engaged in all departments at the election.

64,581. To what extent was he engaged in the financial department?—That I do not know; I cannot say.

64,582. Do you know what the amount of his own bill of costs was?—No, I do not remember. I do not think I ever knew.

64,583. Did you pay any money yourself after the election was over?—Not in 1841. I think I made no payment in 1841.

64,584. It is suggested to me that you paid the runners and the colourmen in 1841, in the Land of Green Ginger?—No; the Land of Green Ginger would be in connexion with Mr. Baines' first election, in 1847.

64,585. At Mr. Abbey's rooms?—Yes, in 1847.

64,586. In 1847 Mr. Sidebottom was engaged on the part of Mr. Baines?—He was.

64,587. You voted for him?—I voted for him and Mr. Brown.

64,588. I dare say you are aware if the accounts handed in to us are accurate?—Some of them would be prepared by me.

64,589. Have you seen the accounts produced to-day?—I was in court when you examined Mr. Bright, and I saw those accounts.

64,590. Will you see if you have seen these before (handing a bundle of papers to the witness). You have very likely assisted in making them out. They are Mr. Sidebottom's accounts, all except the top one. You say you are aware that Mr. Sidebottom paid the greater portion of the claims against Mr. Baines?—I think he did. I have no doubt of it.

64,591. Look at them, and see if they are endorsed with Mr. Sidebottom's handwriting?—I do not recognise it as his handwriting.

64,592. Is that paper D his handwriting?—This endorsement is not his writing, the contents of it may be.

64,593. Just look at the contents?—Yes, this is his writing, but not the endorsement.

64,594. They are either endorsed by Mr. Sidebottom or some gentleman connected with him?—The endorsement of that I do not know. I do not recognise it at all.

64,595. Have the goodness to turn to papers B C and D, those are the only three I wish you to look at?—I have them.

64,596. You paid at the Land of Green Ginger?—No, I did not pay anything with the exception of the agents and the check clerks, and I think the booth runners.

64,597. Look at that one, the amount is 81*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.* (referring to the paper marked D.)?—That I should pay, no doubt.

64,598. Does that relate to the booths; did you pay that; do you know anything about it?—From memory I know most of these men, and I could state what machinery or position they would hold in the election.

Mr. W. J. Reed.

28th July 1853.

64,599. Let me draw your attention to the items,—it contains thirty-six names, at 1*l.* each; exactly the same number at 5*s.* each; one-sixth of that number at three guineas each, about; and seventeen at a guinea and a half each?—Yes.

64,600. It would look like some systematic payment?—Yes, it was so, no doubt.

64,601. Having called your attention to that particularity, perhaps you can tell us more readily to what it relates?—I am speaking of this paper D. Those gentlemen who are marked as receiving three guineas, were the agents for Mr. Baines, at the several booths, and they were professional men. Each of those I can give you the names of, if need be.

64,602. You need not read the names; those six had three guineas?—Those six had three guineas; they would be attending professionally at each booth, and they would be professional men. All those marked 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* were likewise agents at the booths, and they were retained in consequence of the great number of professional men that were engaged. There were not sufficient left to constitute all the agents, and they were only paid half the amount; they were somewhat experienced clerks in solicitors', offices, those 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* men.

64,603. What is the number of them?—I think either seventeen or eighteen. I have no doubt they would give the precise number of the booths.

64,604. Then there are thirty-six at a sovereign?—Yes; that would be thirty-six clerks; two check clerks to each booth; each of those took an account of how the election was going on.

64,605. What, were they voters?—No, not exactly; some of them were quite young men,—men of seventeen, eighteen, or nineteen years of age. I can pick out several that I know would not be of age at that time.

64,606. The thirty-six at 5*s.* comprise the runners?—They were the booth runners, to take the slips from the check clerks,—one to the central committee, and the other to the district committee.

64,607. That would be two to each booth?—That would be two to each booth.

64,608. Were they all voters?—No, they were not. I appointed them myself the night before; at least I selected a good many of them. Some of them were voters, no doubt, but some, I am certain, were not.

64,609. Now, then, go to paper C, that contains 220 names, and a small number of them received a sovereign each?—Yes.

64,610. I think about nineteen or twenty, what are they?—I cannot speak so certain about those, but I think those would be the runners employed at all the committee rooms throughout the town, and it is in connexion with this I remember something that occurred in the Land of Green Ginger, at Mr. Abbey's place.

64,611. The highest sum there paid to anybody is George Steeple?—It is 3*l.*

64,612. Did you pay any of them?—No, I did not pay any of those.

64,613. You selected them, did you not?—No.

64,614. Who would pay them?—I do not know who would pay them; it is in connexion with the setting down of those names that I remember a circumstance I should be glad to detail.

64,615. State it if you please?—It would be a night or two after the election, I understood all the runners from the various booths were to come to the central committee room in the Land of Green Ginger, to give in their names, and to specify how long they had been running, and where they had been employed.

64,616. That was a pre-existing arrangement?—With the pre-existing arrangement I had nothing to do, but I remember the arrangement for this particular night, when they were to come there.

64,617. You understood that there had been an arrangement made to that effect, that they were to come there?—I did.

64,618. They were to come there to give an account of their employment, and where they were employed?—Yes; and accordingly, at about seven o'clock in the evening, a great host of men presented themselves.

64,619. What do you mean by a host of men?—I mean a very considerable number; perhaps two or three hundred people. Mr. Sidebottom was not at that time in the room, and myself and Mr. Brown commenced taking down the names of those men.

64,620. Robert Brown?—Robert Brown; and we took down, perhaps, two or three dozen names; I do not know how many exactly. Then Mr. Sidebottom came in, and when Mr. Sidebottom perceived that we had not distinguished accurately how many days they had been employed, and to what committee rooms they had been attached, he said all that we had done would go for nothing; that he must begin again himself, and take down all the information.

64,621. You had not discriminated the number of days?—We had not discriminated the number of days they were employed. There was a crowd there, and we were doing it in a hurry, but we had not done it to Mr. Sidebottom's satisfaction, and he commenced afresh entirely, and made each man give an account of how many days he had been employed, and at what committee room, and he refused to put down those who could not give that account of themselves; and the dissatisfaction evinced by those men whose names were not taken down by Mr. Sidebottom was such, that there was quite a riot, and I escaped from one of the back windows, and fetched a body of policemen to protect our books and papers.

64,622. Was that the pay day?—That was not the pay day, according to my recollection; there was nothing at all paid at that time.

64,623. Had you no mode of checking them, otherwise than by taking their own word?—It was intended to check them by the lists of each district committee; that is the reason they were to distinguish the districts.

64,624. Was it part of the arrangement that they were to be paid then, or on a day to be fixed for payment?—I do not know. I know they were simply to come to have their names put down.

64,625. You are satisfied that was not to be the pay day?—I am certain that was not to be the pay day.

64,626. You did not pay those that you had put down by mistake?—No, not a farthing.

64,627. Is that paper the result?—I can only suppose this is the result. I do not know. There are one or two names I know——

64,628. I do not trouble you to go through it.—I cannot explain it further.

64,629. Whose handwriting is it in?—It is in Mr. Sidebottom's handwriting.

64,630. You think it is the list that he would make at that time?—I think it is the list that would be made at that time, and perhaps there might be additions made afterwards. I do not think he would get through so many that night.

64,631. It was not all written that night?—It might be written in a book at the time, and taken out of that book.

64,632. Casting your eye over the names, do you see the twenty or thirty that you set down?—I do not remember that I set down any. All that we had done was simply thrown aside when Mr. Sidebottom came.

64,633. Is there anything in that paper to lead you to believe it contains a list of the persons so made out; is it made out in the way that Mr. Sidebottom wished you to make out yours?—He merely took their names down, and distinguished such as belonged to Sculcoates and to Myton.

64,634. That would rather appear to be the result?—It would not be a copy of the book.

64,635. Had you nothing to do with setting down the names previous to the election?—I had nothing to do with it, more than in this way: I remember I attended the committee room for two or three days, and when persons came we should take down the names at the time, if they said they actually wanted employment, and perhaps, in the long run, we might fix upon runners from the list we had taken down. No doubt there would be a list kept of those who wanted to be runners.

64,636, An application book?—An application book. I should think it would be at the end of a book. They would not be very numerous. I have a certain recollection there were persons entered as wanting employment as runners.

64,637. I dare say your experience of Hull is quite sufficient to enable you to know what that means?—On this occasion of Mr. Baines?

64,638. That is the common form of expressing it?—Yes. I have no doubt many that came would expect to be paid. I speak particularly with reference to what occurred at the Land of Green Ginger, by showing that Mr. Sidebottom's intention was to select those from this list only that had been employed, and it is the result of that attempt on his part to do so.

64,639 Do you think that throws any light on the intention existing beforehand?—I think it does.

64,640. Did you pay anybody afterwards, or assist in paying anybody?—I believe I paid none except the list D; I think I should pay the entire of those.

64,641. Now look at B?—I should pay some of the list B.

64,642. What is that?—It is a list of clerks at the central committee room.

64,643. Did you pay them?—I should not pay them all, I think; I have no recollection of settling with Robert Brown. I think I paid Ferraby.

64,644. Robert Brown was engaged in making payments himself?—Yes; he was Mr. Sidebottom's clerk, for the purposes of the election, the same as myself.

64,645. Was it not his duty to make payments?—Well, I do not know whether he made payments or not; he was with me, I am satisfied, when we made the mistake in setting down the names.

64,646. Did you never hear, during your conversations with reference to that election, how the runners were paid, and by whose hand?—No; I do not remember hearing how they were paid.

64,647. Or by whose hand they were paid?—Or by whose hand at all; I do not remember that with respect to the runners.

64,648. Did you hear who selected the runners?—I should think they would be selected by the chairmen of the several districts, a great portion of them; some at the central committee room.

64,649. Do you know what instructions were given, as to how they were to be selected?—No, I do not.

Mr. W. J. Reed.

28th July 1853.

64,650. Do you know what was the principle acted on at the central committee room?—If a man came, and we wanted a runner, we should select a voter.

64,651. Are you speaking of the usual practice at elections, or the particular practice on that occasion?—I had more to do with that occasion than any other.

64,652. You are speaking with more confidence as to that occasion?—Yes.

64,653. You voted in 1852?—I was deputy sheriff then.

64,654. But you voted?—Yes; we are allowed to do so here.

64,655. Most people are allowed to vote here?—The sheriff went round and liberated all his under sheriffs, for the purpose of going to vote.

64,656. And you voted?—I voted.

64,657. Who for, on the last occasion?—Bramley Moore and Butler.

64,658. Did you take any other part at that election, except that of deputy sheriff?—Not to any extent; I went occasionally to the committee room, in Lowgate.

64,659. Were you paid for any duties?—No, nothing but that of under sheriff.

64,660. Now, about this understanding in setting down the names: did you think all were to come to Abbey's rooms who had been set down as runners, without reference to whether they had been employed or not?—No.

64,661. What was the misunderstanding?—The misunderstanding was this: that none of us at Abbey's were fully instructed. I have no doubt it was Mr. Sidebottom's intention to have been present at seven o'clock, but he had been detained. The people were around the door, and thronging upon us, before he arrived.

64,662. When you set down the names, what did you say to the people: "Have you voted?"—No; we asked where the man was employed, and for how many days. We asked that, but the rush was so great that persons would be into the room before we got it answered, and we set their names down ultimately, so as to get them passed through the room.

64,663. You began according to the way that Mr. Sidebottom meant it to be done?—Mr. Brown may have known it, but I have no distinct recollection of having those definite instructions.

64,664. I want to understand what you thought the instructions were: to set down all who had voted for Mr. Baines?—I have no definite recollection of any instructions.

64,665. You would not set down every man who came in out of the street?—We ultimately did; they crowded in upon us so much, that we were glad to set a man's name down, and pass him through the room.

64,666. Whether he voted for the orange party or for the blue?—Quite irrespective of everything; it came to that at last.

64,667. That would take you a long time?—It would have done so, but we were soon interfered with.

64,668. You put them down to get rid of them?—It came to that, that if a man came, we took his name down.

J. R. Duncan.

JOHN RICHARDSON DUNCAN sworn, and examined.

64,669. Are you in any business?—I am managing clerk to Messrs. Gee and Co.

64,670. Where do you live?—No. 73, Lister Street.

64,671. Do you pay rent for a house?—Yes.

64,672. What rent do you pay?—£35.

64,673. You are not a freeman, I presume?—No.

64,674. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—I did.

64,675. Clay, Thompson, Hanmer, and James were the candidates; who did you choose to vote for?—Hanmer and James.

64,676. Were you on any of the committees at that election?—I think not; I do not remember that I was.

64,677. Did you take any interest in it, more than as a canvasser?—Only occasionally so.

64,678. Where did you make your canvass?—I took no direct canvass from any committee room whatever; I merely made a general application to such voters as I knew.

64,679. Did you report the result to any committee?—I think I should occasionally send in a list of their names.

64,680. To what committee?—I am sure I do not remember.

64,681. In the course of your canvass, did persons make applications to you to be set down as runners?—No, not to me.

64,682. Did you see any of that sort upon your canvass?—Not at that election.

64,683. I mean persons who expected to be paid for their votes?—I cannot distinctly remember any individual.

64,684. There are a large class of them in Hull. I thought a person could hardly go canvassing without meeting with them?—I have no doubt I might send some there for the purpose of getting their names set down.

64,685. If a person applied to you, that would be the result?—Certainly.

64,686. You would not turn your back on such an applicant?—By no means.

64,687. You think it better to have him still, by sending him to some committee room—Yes.

J. R Duncan.

28th July 1853.

64,688. How long did your canvass occupy you at that election?—My general practice has been never to associate myself with any committee room, in consequence of my business being so great. I merely occasionally popped into the committee rooms, and gave in the name of any voter whom I might occasionally meet.

64,689. Your time is a good deal occupied in your business?—Yes.

64,690. Your principals are supporters of the blue party, are they not?—Yes.

64,691. I mean the Messrs. Gee?—Yes.

64,692. They are general supporters of the blue party?—Yes.

64,693. It was with their knowledge and sanction, the extent to which you did canvass, that you did so?—I never received any instructions from either of the partners; I was left entirely to my own discretion.

64,694. In addition to the canvass that you made, did you make any payments at that election; did any money pass through your hands?—None whatever.

64,695. For Hanmer and James?—None whatever.

64,696. Who did you vote for at the election in 1847?—I voted for Mr. Baines. I think it was a plumper. I do not recollect whether I divided my vote. I voted rather late in the day.

64,697. Were you on any one of his committees?—No.

64,698. There was a good deal of haste at that election, from the recent arrival of Mr. Brown. Did you take any active part in canvassing at that election?—I rendered all the assistance I could.

64,699. I see you polled for Mr. Baines and Mr. Brown?—I think that is correct.

64,700. Did you act upon any committee for Mr. Baines?—I rendered Mr. Baines all the influence I could, by sending him voters, such as I could influence by argument, and others I sent to the central committee room, in the Land of Green Ginger.

64,701. If your argument was not persuasive, you sent them to some place to see if they could persuade them?—I left them to go there if they liked.

64,702. To the central committee room?—Yes.

64,703. During the three days after Mr. Brown became a candidate, did you canvass extensively?—No, I did not 64,704. That was the time it would commence, because there was no contest expected before that?—No.

64,705. Did you put down some freemen, and send in their names at that election; did you make a list of them?—I think I gave in the names of some freemen to the committee room.

64,706. How many do you think?—I kept no copy of them; it might be, perhaps, a dozen.

64,707. Did you put them on a paper?—Yes; I put them on a paper, and sent them in to the committee room.

64,708. Those were people who were paid, I believe, for their vote?—Not the whole of them; there were two or three men who did expect to be paid as runners or messengers, and would be put down, I have no doubt.

64,709. And what were the others?—The others were freemen over whom I had some degree of influence, and of course they gave in their names as voters for Mr. Baines.

64,710. Who did not receive any payment?—I should think not. I do not know they did. From their character I should think they would not expect to be paid.

64,711. Did you report them, from day to day, to the central committee?—No.

64,712. Did you attend there?—No, I did not.

64,713. Who did you send your list in by?—I generally took a list in myself, and sometimes I sent them by a messenger in my employ.

64,714. I ask you if you attended the room, and you said no?—I think one of the person's names was William Job.

64,715. I asked you if you attended there yourself, and I understood you to say that you did not?—I did sometimes, personally.

64,716. Do you not think the number of freemen that you secured at that election amounted to more than ten or twelve?—Yes, I should think it would.

64,717. How many altogether?—Perhaps twenty-five; from that to thirty.

64,718. Not more than that, you think?—I think not.

64,719. How many of them do you think would be applicants for employment, in the sense I have been using the term, as far as you can judge and remember?—I should think about a dozen of them.

64,720. I suppose you sent all of that kind that you could meet with, that you thought you had any influence over?—Of course.

64,721. Did you attend at the committee room at all after the election?—Yes, I was at the committee room after the election.

64,722. Did you assist at all in winding up the affairs of Mr. Baines' election?—No.

64,723. Did you assist in making any of the payments?—Not in the least.

64,724. As regarded those you had sent, or any others?—No.

64,725. Did persons apply to you occasionally, for their rooms to be taken as committee rooms?—No.

64,726. Not in any instance?—No.

64,727. Did you offer to take any rooms for committee rooms?—No.

J. R. Duncan.

28th July 1853.

64,728. Not in any instance?—No.

64,729. Can you tell us anything further about that election of Mr. Baines, as affecting him, Mr. Brown, or Mr. Clay?—No; I cannot suggest anything. I should be happy to communicate any information which the court may desire, but I do not remember anything particular, any further than that our exertions were very great for the short time we had.

64,730. I suppose you were obliged to have recourse to the ordinary people, namely, those who vote for money, as we understand, who get their names set down and are paid?—That is the general practice.

64,731. And it was not departed from then?—No; I think not.

64,732. Did you vote in 1852, the last election?—Yes.

64,733. Who did you choose then?—Mr. Bramley Moore.

64,734. A plumper?—Yes.

64,735. Were you upon any committee then?—I believe my name was down in Mr. Davis's committee room at the Shakspeare.

64,736. And were you able to attend?—I attended there occasionally, just in the same way. I would take no system of canvassing or a canvassing book; I merely popped in occasionally during the day.

64,737. You gave in some of your old friends?—Yes.

64,738. Did you canvass the people that you mentioned before in the same way?—Yes, I did.

64,739. And sent the applications to the committee room in the same way?—I did.

64,740. Did you then take any part in the pecuniary department?—I did not.

64,741. You did not make any payment?—I made no payment whatever.

64,742. Did you engage any rooms?—No.

64,743. Did you have any applications made to you of that nature?—No.

64,744. I mean sham committee rooms?—No, I had not.

64,745. Those persons whom you said required pyament, did they ask you to have their names set down?—Yes.

64,746. And did you undertake that it should be done?—I told them I would do the best I could for them; that if employment could be provided for them they should be employed.

64,747. You gave them to understand that their request was granted, as far as it could be?—Yes; and in some instances, when I was certain their names had been put down, of course I told them so.

64,748. Although you have not a recollection of any particular person in 1841, have you sufficient recollection to say that you did send in names in that way?—That was James and Hanmer's election?

64,749. Yes?—I think I should. Indeed I have no doubt I should.

64,750. There were two or three mentioned as having been employed in the 1847 election, with the expectation to be paid. Have the goodness to look at that list (marked C), and see if you can find the names of those two or three?—I will.

64,751. You can examine it while we proceed with the next witness, and tell us presently?—I will do so.

Mr. R. Collison

Mr. Robert Collison sworn, and examined.

64,752. Where do you live?—No. 3, Albert Terrace, Anlaby Road.

64,753. What is your business?—A coal merchant and ship broker.

64,754. Are you a freeman?—No.

64,755. How long have you been entitled to vote at the elections in Hull?—Since 1838, I think.

64,756. What rent do you pay?—£19. My houses and places of business are rated to the poor at about 80*l*.

64,757. Have you always lived in Hull?—Yes.

64,758. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Yes.

64,759. For Hanmer and James?—Yes.

64,760. Did you take any part in that election besides voting?—Yes.

64,761. Were you on any committee?—I attended at the Lowgate ward committee.

64,762. Were you a member of it?—I am not sure whether my name was set down, but I attended pretty regularly in the evening.

64,763. For the blues?—Yes.

64,764. Did you canvass during the election?—No.

64,765. What were your duties at the committee?—I generally took down the names from the canvassing book, and put them into the chairman's book, if he was not present.

64,766. Did you see whether there were any applications from persons to be set down as runners?—That was the case generally.

64,767. The names that you put into the chairman's book were all persons who had promised?—They were promises to vote, and they were applications from persons personally to be put down as runners.

64,768. Did you take their names down occasionally?—I have taken names down.

64,769. How many such applications were there at your committee room at that election?—Perhaps forty or fifty.

64,770. And all their names were set down?—I should think that would be about the number. Every man coming to have his name set down says he has promised. He is therefore a friend, and it is taken down.

64,771. Were they employed?—Some of them were; some of them were employed for a few days, and then exchanged for others.

64,772. They were all paid?—They were all paid ultimately, I believe.

64,773. Did you take any part in the payment?—I do not think I did; if I did it might be a few afterwards. I am not sure whether I did or did not. I think I might, by Mr. Cracknell, the solicitor's, desire.

64,774. You were a person who had sufficient authority in your committee to set the names down?—Any of the committee took them down when asked to do so by the men applying.

64,775. And you did take them down?—Yes.

64,776. In order to secure their vote?—They had promised before, many of them.

64,777. But that was to secure them?—Yes; if they required to be secured, but the promise of a man ought to be binding.

64,778. Were there any applications made to your committee rooms?—I do not know if there were.

64,779. You do not recollect any, then?—There were very few at that election.

64,780. Did you take any part in the payments to the persons set down?—I might, a few of them.

64,781. Do you know who was the general paymaster for that election?—Mr. Cracknell, the solicitor.

64,782. Do you know where it was paid?—I do not. There were some that could not be found by him. I had been in that part of the town for a number of years, and I knew most of the burgesses in that district from having had to do with the elections of 1832, 1835, 1837, and 1841.

64,783. And you paid those?—I paid those, a few that he could not find. He came to me to ask me to do so.

64,784. The course of business was to send them to Mr. Cracknell?—They had notice in some way or other in certain districts to meet in a certain place and on a certain night. I think they were paid in High Street for that district.

64,785. At the election of 1847, did you take a part in that?—Yes.

64,786. For whom?—For Mr. Brown.

64,787. Were you on a committee then?—I was.

64,788. Upon whose committee?—Mr. Brown's committee. I was chairman of the Black Horse committee in Carr Lane.

64,789. Did you vote for Mr. Brown only?—For Brown and Baines. I signed the requisition to Mr. Baines. I voted about three o'clock in the afternoon.

64,790. Who was your deputy chairman?—I never had one.

64,791. That was the South Myton committee?—One of the South Myton committees. It was the most peculiar election that ever took place in Hull.

64,792. Who was the active man on your committee?—John Caswell.

64,793. Did you have a graet many applications to be set down?—There were a good many.

64,794. How many?—I should think forty. The South Myton was divided into two districts.

64,795. Did you put their names down or not?—I put down all of them as they came.

64,796. Did you pay them at once?—No; I was obliged to employ a good many I know to take out the voting and soliciting cards, as I had no one on the committee to assist me.

64,797. You employed all those who came to be employed?—As many as I could.

64,798. You took the names down?—As burgesses who asked to be put down.

64,799 When were those parties paid?—There were a few of them paid by myself on the night oefore the election. They were employed for the two days. A message came down to me that evening that I was to pay those that I employed for two days.

64,800. How many were there?—Ten probably.

64,801. At what rate of payment?—At 5*s.* a day for the two days.

64,802. After the election were the other parties paid also?—I fancy those that got paid were paid afterwards by Mr. Wells. I expect so.

64,803. Did you pay any afterwards?—No; I did not.

64,804. Were all the people you paid at the Black Horse in Carr Lane the ten you paid on the nomination night?—I am not sure whether the whole amounted to ten or more. There is a list you will have from Mr. Wells of mine that was given in to him.

64,805. What did you do with the list of names you set down?—It was given to Mr. Wells.

64,806. Do you know whether the payments at that election were made in the same way as before; that is, that a place was appointed in the district, where a person came to pay the voters?—I think they were all paid afterwards at the central committee in Market Place. I never troubled myself about it after the election was over. The different chairmen met there and compared lists.

Mr. R. Collison.

28th July 1853.

64,807. Which Mr. Wells are you speaking of?—Mr. Robert Wells, the solicitor.

64,808. Were there any applications made to you for committee rooms to be taken?—No, not to me. I think that is worse than paying a premium for the loss of time; it is a direct case of bribery, and a disgrace to the man who applies.

64,809. You know of the system?—Yes; I have heard of it, more particularly at the last election, in consequence of this inquiry.

64,810. Was Charles Hewitt one of the persons that you paid?—Yes.

64,811. Was he paid on the nomination night?—He lived in the Anlaby Road, and I remember him coming on the election day to me; he had lost his voting card, and he got a fresh one.

64,812. Did you also pay parties on that day?—I did some on that day.

64,813. Do you recollect Mr. Kay?—He is a carpenter.

64,814. Did you pay him?—I did.

64,815. George Johnson?—I do not know him; it is a district I know very few in.

64,816. Do you know Matthew Kirby?—I do not remember him; there are very few of the men I know. I have been in Lowgate before.

64,817. Who did you get the money from?—From Mr. William Burstall.

64,818. Was the amount about 15*l.*?—I think it was 15*l.* exactly, in half sovereigns.

64,819. You told Burstall for what you wanted the money?—No, I did not; I remonstrated against the payment. I said I thought it was a folly to do anything of the kind before the election was over.

64,820. Mr. Burstall told you to pay them?—He brought the message from the central committee with the money; that was the first intimation I had of it.

64,821. It would not have surprised you to find that a good many had voted against you?—I said so at the time that it might be the means of their voting against us the next day.

64,822. You objected to it upon that ground?—Yes; I thought it would be the means of their going to the opposite party the next day, if they got what was due to them from us.

64,823. At the last election in 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

64,824. Did you take any part in that election?—No.

64,825. Why not?—In consequence of being nearly blind. My name was upon the committee but I took no active part. I was there a few times. In the election of 1847, I think the principal cause of the opposition was the dissatisfaction of the town at half a dozen of each party having been the means of bringing down Mr. Baines. Many of the Conservatives were disappointed, and it was not so much for the sake of a third man, but their not liking a party to rule the town in their own way. That was the cause of the amalgamation of the two parties; they were both dissatisfied with the way in which they had been treated by half a dozen men in bringing Mr. Baines forward.

64,826. Did you hear from many parties among the blues, that they did exert themselves to get a blue candidate of great respectability, and that they did not succeed?—That is the reason why Mr. Brown was so far astern; if he had been a blue candidate he would have got on much better.

64,827. One gentleman has stated to us a section of the blue party wrote to Sir Robert Inglis, who is one of the most excellent of the members of the blue party?—I believe that was the case; I only heard of that on the Friday evening, the day before the gentlemen went to Leeds. I was at a meeting where it was stated; that was the first of my knowing it. They had written, instead of going up as a deputation to look for a man, and in that way it was they had no blue candidate.

64,828. I see your name in this book frequently set against names; are you able to look at it?—No; I cannot see. I have not been able to read these two years.

64,829. I see your name is set in red ink against them?—Is it a book from the central committee?

64,830. Yes; with names in it, and your name is set in red ink against the names that have been mentioned to you?—Hewitt and McKay, I know.

64,831. I see your name put against those two?—I fancy where the marks are put against the names in that way; they had probably got their names put down also; and when we compared tests by the chairman of those we paid, those marks were put against the party, so that they would not have to be paid afterwards, as they had already been paid.

64,832. That view would appear to receive confirmation from this fact, that on the face of this book, with the exception of the names to which I have adverted, you have some chairman's name put against them; and all the others are struck through as if paid at the central room?—I think that is the way. The 5*s.* wages ticket had no reference to freemen, but only to colourmen, and men with boards, who were employed during the four days.

64,833. I see for instance, as regards Matthew Kirby, and also McKay, that the pencil is not carried through them, but your initial is set against the end of the name?—That is in consequence of their having been paid, so that they would not have to be paid at the central room afterwards. Some got paid twice by the chairmen diverting from their orders, and paying some who did not belong to their own district. Some of them got paid at two different places in consequence of that.

Mr. R. Collison.
28th July 1853.

JOHN RICHARDSON DUNCAN recalled, and examined.

J. R. Duncan.

64,834. Do you find any of the names of the persons whom you referred to the central committee in that list?—I have no recollection of any of these names.

Mr. EDWARD TWINING sworn, and examined.

Mr. E. Twining.

64,834. What is your business?—A surgeon.
64,836. Do you occupy premises in this borough?—Yes.
64,837. At what rent?—£35 at present.
64,838. Are you a freeman?—No.
64,839. How long have you been qualified to vote?—Since 1843.
64,840. Where do you live?—No. 33, George Street, Hull.
64,841. Who did you vote for in 1847?—Mr. Baines and Mr. Brown.
64,842. I believe you were deputy chairman of the Holderness ward for Mr. Brown?—I was.
64,843. Mr. Burstall was the chairman?—No; I believe I was the chairman.
64,844. Did you attend much?—I was there continually for two days; the day of the election and the day before.
64,845. There was a good deal of money spent on those last two days?—Yes; a good deal.
64,846. We understand you paid away some part of it?—I paid a large proportion.
64,847. How much did you pay?—I paid at that committee room about 90*l.*
64,848. Was that to the 10*s.* men?—We began with giving them 5*s.* a day; there were only four days, and I think we got at last to giving them 10*s.* for a half vote, and a pound for a whole one.
64,849. How many men did that 90*l.* cover?—I cannot tell that.
64,850. Had you not a book?—There was a book at the time; all the names were taken down at the time.
64,851. Varying from 5*s.* to 20*s.*; it would come to about 150 persons, that is a rough average; do you remember the number?—No.
64,852. It says here, "Paid runners as per book, 84*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*" and then you add some more which makes a total of 95*l.* 3*s.* You had a book then?—I had a book at that time, of all the names put down as runners.
64,853. Then it says "Paid out 95*l.* 3*s.*, received of Mr. Burstall, 90*l.*"?—Yes.
64,854. So that there is 5*l.* 3*s.* due to you?—Yes.
64,855. Then it says "Perhaps you will look over my book and see if it is correct." It would be more correct to say that you received 90*l.*, and had disbursed 95*l.*?—Yes; I was out of pocket.
64,856. How many were paid at your own room?—I do not know.
64,857. Taking 5*s.* as the minimum, and 20*s.* as the maximum?—No man was paid as little as 5*s.*, perhaps he would have 5*s.* a day for four days, and then he would get a pound, those men who worked four days would get a pound.
64,858. Take it at 10*s.* each, that would be about 180?—Yes.
64,859. Here is a note addressed by you to Mr. Wells: "My dear Sir,—You will see my book amounts to 84*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*, in sums paid for runners, in addition to which I paid the men of the name of Wood, referred by you to me, 5*s.* each, and one man named Stringer, 5*s.* I also advanced Jubb 4*l.* 10*s.* by cash, and paid him, as you will see by bills, the sums of 1*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* and 15*s.* 6*d.* respectively; and on account of the Noah's Ark committee room, three guineas, of which you have the several receipts."—Yes; that is mine.
64,860. Then you sum up in this way: "Paid runners as per book, 84*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*" Then John Howse 10*s.*, Stringer 5*s.*, and those other people we have mentioned. Jubb, by cash, 4*l.* 10*s.*, two bills of 1*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* and 15*s.* 6*d.*, making the total of the payments that you charge yourself with in this paper 95*l.* 3*s.* Then you carry it thus: "Paid out 95*l.* 3*s.*, received from Mr. Burstall 90*l.*, balance due to me, 5*l.* 3*s.* Perhaps you will look over my book and see if it is correct." Did you send your book with this note?—Yes; I have no doubt I did to the central committee room.
64,861. It is not addressed, but you have no doubt you sent it to Mr. Wells?—It would go to Mr. Wells at the central committee room.
64,862. Can you at all recollect how many men you paid?—No, I do not know; they crowded into the room and I was glad to get rid of them.
64,863. Were there a hundred?—I should think so.
64,864. 150?—No; not so many as that. I think some of those men who were paid

Mr. E. Twining.

28th July 1853.

did a good deal of work, and perhaps they were paid more; some of the men may have got more because they worked for four days; the voters were the worst workers.

64,865. Where did you pay them?—At the Noah's Ark.

64,866. Was that the committee room?—It was the committee room.

64,867. Did you make any payments besides those?—I made no other payments but what are mentioned in that note.

64,868. When was that, before or after the election?—All the runners were paid on the day of the election; and the others, the small sum to Jubb, and perhaps for the committee room, were paid afterwards.

64,869. Were they paid before or after the election?—After the election.

64,870. After they had polled on the same day?—No; most of the runners were paid before they were polled; no doubt it was a very bad system, but my instructions were to pay the men, or else I should not have had the money.

64,871. Do you know who managed the buying of lots; it was stated in the evidence taken before us some months ago, that Mr. Burstall assisted in a negotiation relating to eighty votes; do you know how that was?—I do not know. I went myself to the Baltic tavern with Mr. Mitchell, the son of the Mr. Mitchell whose name has been mentioned, the late Mr. Mitchell.

64,872. Is that Mr. Edward Mitchell?—I do not know his Christian name.

64,873. Is it Mitchell in the Market Place?—Yes; I went to see the men at the Baltic tavern, and I forget the sum they asked now, but I think it was 3*l.* a head, and I refused to give it them.

64,874. Did you agree with them?—No.

64,875. Do you know who did?—No; I do not know what became of them; I always understood that Mr. Clay's party had bought them up. I know I did not come to any agreement with them; it was the night before the election that I saw them.

64,876. The purchase, I suppose, was not completed until the next morning?—Probably not.

64,877. Did you see their leader?—I dare say I did; I do not recollect him by name.

64,878. Who was the man that you treated with?—I went into a room full of these fellows.

64,879. Do you remember whether Nicholson was one of them?—I do not recollect the name of any one of them.

64,880. You were not at the final close of the bargain?—I heard no more of them myself.

64,881. Did you not hear from Mr. Burstall what became of them?—No, I did not; I went into the Drypool district, which is removed from that, and I heard no more of them.

64,882. Did you make any payments after the election?—I do not think I paid anything after the election.

64,883. You paid nothing but this 95*l.*?—That is all, and I got that over before the election.

64,884. Did you have any money except from Mr. Burstall?—Not any.

64,885. Did you take some share in the election also in 1852?—No; I had no vote at the last election; I had left Hull.

64,886. You might have given your assistance in other ways?—I went once or twice into a comittee room, and I think I canvassed a few people.

64,887. Nothing beyond that?—I did not do anything beyond that.

64,888. You were not a member of any committee?—I was not.

Henry Hudson.

HENRY HUDSON sworn, and examined.

64,889. Where do you live?—In the Beverley Road.

64,890. Are you in business?—I am a publican.

64,891. What rent do you pay for your house?—£18.

64,892. Are you also a freeman?—No.

64,893. Were you entitled to vote at the election of 1841?—No.

64,894. Were you landlord of that tavern in 1841?—No; my father-in-law was.

64,895. Were you landlord of some other tavern in 1841?—No.

64,896. You were not a publican in 1841?—No.

64,897. Did not your father-in-law carry on the public house at that time?—Yes.

64,898. You were living with him?—Yes.

64,899. The Zoological Tavern it is called?—Yes.

64,900. Did you take any part in the election of James and Hanmer?—No.

64,901. What is your father-in-law's name?—John Black.

64,902. In what capacity were you living with him then?—I was living in the house with him; I married his daughter, and she kept his house.

64,903. Were you married at that time?—Yes.

64,904. And lived with your father-in-law?—Yes.

64,905. I believe after that election, some voters were paid at your father-in-law's, at the Zoological Tavern?—Not that I am aware of.

64,906. Do you not remember Mr. Anthony Bannister being there?—Yes, very well.

64,907. And a man named Farthing?—Yes.

64,908. When were they there?—They were often there during the election; they were treating the voters at different times.

64,909. How did they treat them, with money?—No; with drink and provisions, and all sorts, ham and beef.

64,910. And drink?—Plenty of drink.

64,911. I suppose your father-in-law's bill was a large one?—It was a good bill.

64,912. How many figures?—He never made out a bill; he got his money every night almost; they would not have any bill at that time, neither Farthing nor Bannister.

64,913. Why not?—Because they did not want them; they paid ready money.

64,914. Did Mr. Farthing and Mr. Bannister bring the men in?—Yes.

64,915. And they were guarantees for the payment?—Yes.

64,916. You looked to them for it?—Yes; and got it.

64,917. The party who ate and drank did not pay anything?—No.

64,918. I suppose they were kept well engaged in that way, in eating and drinking?—Yes; they did very well then.

64,919. How many voters do you think Farthing and Bannister brought there?—I cannot tell.

64,920. 500?—Not so many as that.

64,921. What do you say to 100?—Not so many as that; perhaps fifty or sixty during the election.

64,922. How many days before the election did they begin to come?—A fortnight.

64,923. And ate and drank regularly at your house?—More or less.

64,924. Whenever they were hungry or thirsty?—Yes.

64,925. Were they freemen?—They were all freemen that came there, either freemen or ratepayers; they were voters.

64,926. Then, after the election, did they not pay them in another way?—Not that I am aware of.

64,927. Bannister and the other gentleman?—Not that I am aware of.

64,928. There was a room at your house where the people came to after, to settle the accounts?—No; we had no committee room at all.

64,929. Was there not a room where Mr. Bannister and Mr. Farthing met after the election?—They used to meet during the election upstairs in the front room, but after the election was over they never came any more.

64,930. Do you remember John Hall being there?—No, I do not.

64,931. Do you remember the man?—Yes; I remember him.

64,932. Is he dead?—Not that I am aware of.

64,933. Did you pay him 20*s.*?—Yes, I did.

64,934. What was that for?—To vote for Mr. Brown in 1847.

64,935. Who told you to do that?—Mr. Bannister, and he gave me the money to pay him to vote for Mr. Brown.

64,936. Where does John Hall live?—At the Robin Hood beershop in Passage Street.

64,937. You said you did not see anybody paid in 1841; did you hand him the money without seeing it; we are told the voter never saw the man who paid him?—I say I never saw any money paid there; I saw Mr. Farthing pay my father-in-law Black several times, but I never paid any money to anybody.

64,938. Did you see Mr. Farthing or Mr. Bannister pay the men?—No; there was no money paid to the men at our house at all.

64,939. Will you undertake to say that?—Yes, I can.

64,940. Did Mr. Bannister say so?—I was there all the time.

64,941. You were not in the room all the time?—Generally I was; I used to wait on the company there.

64,942. Can you tell us any more about the 1841 election?—No.

64,943. Anything against the other party?—No.

64,944. Nothing at all?—Nothing.

64,945. You can tell us a little about the orange party, I suppose?—I had nothing to do with the orange party then.

64,946. Had they any room at your place?—No.

64,947. How much did your father-in-law get for his room?—Nothing at all.

64,948. He was paid in eating and drinking?—Yes.

64,949. When was it paid?—They used to pay every morning or night.

64,950. How much did it come to?—Sometimes 5*l.* or 6*l.*, and sometimes 7*l.* or 8*l.*

64,951. It would run into a matter of 50*l.*?—It would be that during the election.

64,952. Was your father-in-law a voter?—Yes; a freeman and a householder too.

64,953. And voted, I suppose, for Hanmer and James?—Yes.

64,954. Did they set down names at your place?—No.

64,955. It was in 1847 you paid this 20*s.*?—Yes.

64,956. Which you got from Mr. Bannister?—Yes.

Henry Hudson.

28th July 1853.

64,957. I did not hear you say what it was for?—It was to vote for Mr. Brown a plumper.

64,958. Did you pay anybody else?—Yes.

64,959. By Mr. Bannister's direction?—Yes.

64,960. Who else?—I paid four more a pound each.

64,961. He gave you the money?—Yes, at the Blue Bell, in Prospect Street.

64,962. On the polling day?—On the polling day.

64,963. Who were they?—They called one George Holmes, James Shipham, Edward Ellerker, and a man of the name of Mason.

64,964. Do you know where Mason lives?—No; I see them about sometimes. I know them all.

64,965. They are not dead?—No, none of them are dead.

64,966. Did you have that particular money to pay 1*l.* each with?—There were five of them.

64,967. He gave you 5*l.* to pay them with?—Yes.

64,968. I thought you paid Hall at your place?—No, I paid him at the time.

64,969. How did they happen to come there to be paid by you?—On the polling morning I was going into the town; Mr. Bannister was getting out of a cab, and he says, "You know some of the coopers who are burgesses?" I said, "Yes." He said, "If you see any of them who will vote for Mr. Brown, tell them I will give them a pound for a plumper, and 10*s.* for a split vote." I said, "Very well;" and when I got to the Junction Bridge I saw five men talking together, and they asked me if I knew where they could get an allowance, and I said, "If you go to Mr. Bannister you can get a pound apiece for voting for Mr. Brown."

64,970. And when you got back you found Mr. Bannister?—Yes.

64,971. And you got the money?—Yes. They said they would not vote without getting the money first. He said he would give me the money; I was to see them vote and then give it them.

64,972. You kept your part of the engagement, I suppose?—No, I did not.

64,973. Did they vote?—Yes, for Mr. Brown.

64,974. Did you pay them before they voted?—Yes, before they went out of the house.

64,975. You could trust the coopers?—Yes.

64,976. He gave you a large order, if you met anybody in this way to bring them to him?—Any burgesses who wanted a sovereign for voting for Mr. Brown, I was to send them or bring them.

64,977. Did you not get a good many more on that day?—No.

64,978. Only five coopers?—They were not all coopers.

64,979. Did you fall in with any others?—No.

64,980. Did you make any other payments?—No; that is all I paid.

64,981. In 1852 did you vote?—Yes.

64,982. Who did you support then?—Clay and Goderich.

64,983. What can you tell us about that?—I have nothing to tell you about that.

64,984. You paid somebody, did you not?—No.

64,985. Did you get any names set down?—No.

64,986. What were you doing all the election time?—Like the rest, I was running about.

64,987. When you say running about, you do not mean that you were a runner?—No; I was not engaged as a runner.

64,988. Or as a messenger?—No.

64,989. Or as a clerk?—No.

64,990. You had no claim upon them?—No.

64,991. You were not upon any committee?—No.

64,992. Did you send in a bill to the orange committee?—No.

64,993. Not at all?——No; I had no claim upon them.

64,994. You did not have any money at all?—No, not a farthing.

64,995. How came you to desert the blues?—I never had a vote before this last election.

64,996. You had been friendly to the blues through Mr. Bannister?—Yes, I knew him well.

64,997. You know nothing about the 1852 election?—No.

64,998. Are you sure you did not canvass for the orange party; would not Mr. Wilde employ an active man like you; did you not exchange visits with Mr. Wilde?—He called to see me frequently, but there was nothing said about the election.

64,999. Did he not call to ask you how you were going on with your canvass?—No, nothing particular. I think Mr. Wilde knows that I was not engaged in any way during this last election.

65,000. He did not give you anything for being neutral, did he?—What, Mr. Wilde?

65,001. Yes.—I do not think he is so liberal as that.

65,002. You said that he knew you did nothing?—He came to my house daily.

WILLIAM WEST sworn, and examined.

William West.

28th July 1853.

65,003. Where do you live?—In the Anlaby Road.

65,004. What is your business?—Stock and share broker.

65,005. Are you a voter?—Yes.

65,006. As a 10*l.* householder or as a freeman?—As a householder.

65,007. How long have you had a vote?—About eleven or twelve years.

65,008. What is the rent of your premises?—I think I am rated from 40*l.* to 50*l.*

65,009. Did you take part in the election of 1841?—No.

65,010. Were you then a voter?—No.

65,011. You know nothing about that election?—Nothing at all.

65,012. In 1847, did you take a part in that election?—I took some little part, but I was not a voter in 1847. I had removed, and I lost my qualification.

65,013. What was the part you took?—I assisted Mr. Twining in the Holderness district. I simply canvassed a few voters; that is all I did.

65,014. Were you upon any committee?—No; we had not a committee at that time, I believe.

65,015. You assisted Mr. Twining to canvass?—I did.

65,016. While you were assisting him, did you get the names of any parties set down as runners?—Yes; I took them to Mr. Twining, and he set them down.

65,017. Those were parties who applied to have their names set down?—Yes.

65,018. And you undertook that their names should be set down?—I took them there and left them. I had done my duty, and I went to look after some more.

65,019. Had you not authority from Mr. Twining to do that?—Yes; I believe I had authority to bring all those voters to him.

65,020. Having authority to do that, you took them there to get them set down?—Yes; as many as I could.

65,021. Did you assist him in paying?—No; I saw him pay a great many, but I never paid any myself.

65,022. Were you not there to help him?—No; I used to take them into the room. I took them on the polling day up to the poll, and then to him. He said, "Have these men voted?" I said, "Yes;" and some he gave half a sovereign, and some more,—I did not see which.

65,023. You brought them back, in order to vouch for their having voted before payment?—Of course.

65,024. How many do you think you so took up?—I cannot say. I canvassed a day previous to the election and on the election day. I brought as many as I could find and took them to the poll, but I cannot say how many.

65,025. Did you take persons to anybody but Mr. Twining?—No; I confined myself entirely to that district.

65,026. How many do you think you did take?—I think I should poll thirty or forty. I with Mr. Twining were the only two persons there,—there was no one to assist us.

65,027. All those were paid?—All those were paid.

65,028. Did you keep any list or account of them?—No; I had a canvass book which contained the names.

65,029. What have you done with your book?—When I came away in the afternoon, I left it with Mr. Twining; of course I have never seen it since.

65,030. You have no means now of giving us the names?—No; not the slightest.

65,031. How much money was paid them, do you know?—I understood about 80*l.* or 90*l.* was spent at that committee room. There were other committee rooms in the same district. Our committee room was at the Noah's Ark, and I confined my services entirely to that place. There were several other committee rooms in the same district.

65,032. Do you know if parties were paid at those rooms?—No; I cannot say.

65,033. You were not at those rooms?—No; I confined my services entirely there.

65,034. Was that all you had to do with that election?—That was all I had to do with that election.

65,035. That is all you can tell us about it?—Yes; I can tell you no more.

65,036. Did you take any part at the last election?—Well, I can scarcely say that I did. I was not in town at the time. I do not think I bestowed above two hours in the service.

65,037. Did you vote?—Yes.

65,038. Who for?—Moore and Butler.

65,039. Did you canvass anybody this time?—I think I canvassed about five or six people.

65,040. Were those persons who wanted employment?—No; respectable householders in my own neighbourhood.

65,041. You had nothing to do with it?—No; I never got a man's name set down.

65,042. You have no means of learning anything about the election?—I never was at a committee room, except once.

65,043. You know nothing about it?—No; I know nothing about it.

William West.

28th July 1853.

65,044. Had you a partner of the name of Scholefield?—I had a partner of that name, but he is on the London Stock Exchange now.

65,045. Did he assist in canvassing with you?—No; he has left here this eighteen months.

65,046. Did he not at Brown's election?—No, he did not. I think he rendered some service or assistance to Mr. Stephenson in his district, Bowl Alley Lane; he was very active there no doubt.

65,047. He did not take people to the poll as you did?—I do not know what he did. I never saw him during the whole day.

65,048. Did he tell you he had set them down?—No; he never mentioned a syllable to me.

65,049. Do you know a man of the name of Grundrill?—Yes, I do.

65,050. Did you pay him any money?—I believe the money passed through my hands; it was after the election, I remember now; about a week or ten days after he called at my office, and stated that he wanted 20*s.* or 22*s.*, for money that he had expended or laid out, and I told him to go to Mr. Twining. He went to Mr. Twining, and Mr. Twining refused to pay him without I gave him a voucher; and I could not do that without inquiring more into detail; and I think he furnished a small account, but whether I paid it or not I do not know,—if I did, I got it from Mr. Twining, and handed it over to him.

65,051. What was it for?—For refreshments to different voters.

65,052. At a public?—At a public, on the day of the election and also the day previous, which he said he had expended out of his own pocket.

Adjourned until to-morrow, at 10 o'clock.

FORTY-FIFTH DAY.—Friday, 29th July, 1853.

Thomas Rowley.

29th July 1853.

THOMAS ROWLEY sworn, and examined.

65,053. What business are you?—I am a clerk.

65,054. In whose employ?—Messrs. Barkworth and Spaldin.

65,055. Are you a voter for the borough?—No.

65,056. Never was?—No, never.

65,057. Do you occupy any premises of your own?—No, I am not a resident in Hull.

65,058. In 1852, I believe you had something to do with the election of that year?—Yes; I think I had a little.

65,059. Some money passed through your hands?—It did.

65,060. Tell us shortly the circumstances, and your recollection of it,—a few days before the election day, was it not?—No, perhaps the day before, Mr. Barkworth wished me to look up some out-voters, I think they are called.

65,061. Was that Mr. Henry Barkworth?—Yes; some men at Grimsby.

65,062. What do you mean by looking up?—To see which way they were inclined to vote.

65,063. To canvass them you mean?—I suppose so.

65,064. Did he tell you where the out-voters were?—At Grimsby.

65,065. Had you a list of them?—Yes.

65,066. Have you got that list now?—No, I have no papers now connected with it; I gave them all to him directly afterwards.

65,067. You had a list?—Yes; with the names of those men on.

65,068. Did you go to Grimsby?—Yes.

65,069. Were you provided with funds?—I had funds; but I had none previously from him.

65,070. What were your instructions?—To look for those voters that would vote for our party; to bring them down to vote.

65,071. How were they to be paid their expenses for loss of time?—Mr. Barkworth knew that I had some money.

65,072. What arrangements had you to make?—I had no instructions except that I was to bring these men with me; I had no arrangements at all to make with them.

65,073. What should you do, supposing they had said, "We want our expenses paid"?—I should have said, "Come along to the Railway."

65,074. Supposing they had said that they would not without being paid first?—I made no decisive arrangement with them at all.

65,075. Supposing that the first man you came to, to whom you said "Who do you mean to vote for"—had said, "I shall not vote without my expenses," what should you have done?—I should have decided what I should have done.

65,076. Had you instructions?—No.

65,077. Had you a carte blanche?—Yes, exactly.

65,078. Suppose the man said, "I will not go without my expenses and 10*s.* for loss of time"—would it have fallen within your instructions to have complied with that?—I had no instructions.

65,079. Were you to bring them upon any terms?—Yes; I should have done as I thought fit.

65,080. Suppose a man had said, "I will not go unless my fare is paid beforehand, and 10*s.* for loss of time," what should you have done?—I had no instructions—no intimation.

65,081. Would it have been within the scope of what you considered your duty to have done so?—I think I should have done it in that case.

65,082. I do not suppose that you had special instructions applicable to that; but I want to know whether you had some instructions, because you said you had some instructions to go to Grimsby?—Yes; I was sent to Grimsby to see which way the men were inclined to vote, and anybody who felt inclined to vote for the blues I was to bring up with me.

65,083. A voter is not like a sack that you can take away with you; he has a will of his own?—Yes, exactly; in that case I should tell him I should pay his carriage down.

65,084. Supposing he had said, "No; I will not go unless I have 10*s.* for my loss of time"?—Then I should not have said anything at all about it; nor did I.

65,085. Supposing the man had said so, should you have left him behind?—I should have tried to make some arrangement; I should not have left him.

65,086. I come at once to the point, what should you have done?—I should have got him down; I should have made him no promise of money, but I should have got him down.

65,087. My hypothesis is this, that the man says positively, and is ready to swear it if you like, that nothing upon the face of the earth shall induce him to go unless he is paid his 10*s.* and his fare; notwithstanding all your eloquence and favour towards him, would you have left him behind?—The fact was not so, because no one did say so.

65,088. Take my hypothesis?—I should have left him behind.

65,089. If a man had refused to come unless he was paid his expenses and loss of time, would you have paid the loss of time and the expenses?—I would have left him behind.

65,090. You would have left him?—Yes; decidedly. I would not pay him any money previously, and he would not take my promise because he knew that I was not connected with Hull.

65,091. Supposing all your words had failed to persuade him?—I would not have put my hand in my pocket to give him any money; I should not have thought Mr. Barkworth would have allowed me to do that, or have paid me again.

65,092. Supposing he had gone on and said this, "If there is any money expended, will you promise that I shall be paid for my loss of time"—what would you have done then?—I should have promised him immediately.

65,093. Would you have considered in so doing that you were acting under the general authority you had from Mr. Barkworth?—I had no general authority whatever, and therefore I could only use my own judgment.

65,094. It was by somebody's authority that you went there?—I was told to go.

65,095. You began by saying that you had authority, and were authorised to go by Mr. Barkworth?—I merely wish to state the fact, but I had no authority; I cannot say that I had.

65,096. Did you go without Mr. Barkworth's knowledge?—I went with his knowledge, but I had no authority to go.

65,097. I want to see what view you put upon the extent of your own instructions—you were instructed to go to Grimsby?—Yes.

65,098. You got as far as that?—Yes.

65,099. Now tell us what the words were that Mr. Barkworth used?—I cannot recollect that.

65,100. Did he tell you generally to bring the voters?—No, he did not say that; he gave me a list. I do not think I was with him three minutes; he said, "Here, Rowley, there are voters at Grimsby; see if they will vote for us, and bring them down to-morrow morning"; that is the extent of what was said. I do not think that there was another word passed at the time,—not a single word whatever.

65,101. Did he furnish you with any money?—None at all.

65,102. Then, if I understand you, if you had even paid their expenses for coming, it would have been entirely beyond the scope of your duty?—I should not have deemed it so, as a servant of Mr. Barkworth.

65,103. Your duty would have been, unless they chose to come at their own expense, to leave them behind?—I should not have deemed that my duty, as a servant of Mr. Barkworth, because I knew him very well, and knew what he meant and what he intended to do; what he meant when he gave me any general orders, without reference to the election or anything else.

65,104. You say that from the previous intercourse you had had with Mr. Barkworth, and his general way of dealing, that you would have acquired some knowledge of what his views and intentions were?—Yes; I had not a previous word with him, recollect,

Thomas Rowley.

29th July 1853.

about this election; not a word at any time previously; it was simply an order given, and I went and did it to the best of my ability. I certainly told him my sympathy was entirely with the other party, and therefore he must not expect me to be very anxious upon that, but I simply did it as a business matter.

65,105. Consequently you would not consider it right to go beyond the strict letter of what your belief was as to Mr. Barkworth's intention?—Just as a matter of business; that is all I did it as.

65,106. Your object was to fulfil Mr. Barkworth's views, and to do no more?—Exactly.

65,107. And you told him that your sympathies were with the other side?—I did say that.

65,108-9. Have the kindness to tell us what you did do when you got to Grimsby?—I do not think I recollect. I do not know anything particular, except the first thing was to find out these men.

65,110. How many did you find out?—Five, or six, or seven; I do not recollect; something about that; I had never been to Grimsby before in my life, so I knew very little about the place.

65,111. Tell us as near as you can your recollection of it, that would be sufficient?—I will do so.

65,112. Did you bring any of them?—I did.

65,113. Did you pay their expenses?—I paid their railway fares.

65,114. Up to Hull?—Yes, to Hull.

65,115. What it cost out of pocket, I suppose, you paid; the tickets?—Yes; I took the tickets for them, and gave them to them.

65,116. Did you promise any of them any remuneration for their loss of time?—After I had started I did; about when I first got to Hull I did.

65,117. Had any conversation taken place upon the subject before that?—Oh dear, yes; an immense deal.

65,118. They discussed it at Grimsby?—Yes, and all the way coming down as well; but I made them no promise until I got them nearly to Hull.

65,119. You got them into the railway carriage first?—I promised them in the boat.

65,120. What did you promise them?—They said there was a great loss of time; and I said, I dare say that would be made up for them, and they would not be satisfied with that.

65,121. You promised them what?—Something for their loss of time.

65,122. Was any sum mentioned; the number of days, for instance?—They wished for three days.

65,123. They asked for it?—No, they wished for three days, and I declined to give them three days.

65,124. You collected that they wished for three days?—They had one spokesman for the lot.

65,125. Who was he?—I do not know one of the names.

65,126. The general demand was for three days?—Yes.

65,127. At how much a day?—No sum was mentioned; the usual sum, I believe, was 5*s*.

65,128. Probably you knew that the usual sum was 5*s*.?—No, not till since. I had no idea then, not the slightest.

65,129. Then by their manner of saying the number of days, probably you collected that they knew?—I did not know what was meant by it; I thought the committee would know.

65,130. When they said three days, did you collect from them that they knew what it was?—No, not at all; I thought the people in Hull would pay them, therefore I did not ask what sum was meant by three days.

65,131. What I wish to know is whether, although you did not know how much "a day" meant, did you understand, from the mode in which they said "three days," that they were speaking of something which they understood themselves?—A definite sum; yes, I did.

65,132. What did you promise them?—I did not promise them anything; they would not take my promise.

65,133. You said just now that you did promise?—Yes.

65,134. Then what did you promise?—The three days; I expected they would have that, of course, as usual; I felt the utter want of any instructions in all that.

65,135. You had no specific instructions, but you did what you believed he meant you to do?—I believe what he wished me to do.

65,136. You acted upon your own judgment in construing Mr. Barkworth's wishes?—Exactly.

65,137. Did you mention to Mr. Barkworth the construction that you had put upon his wishes?—Exactly.

65,138. Did you mention to Mr. Barkworth the construction that you had put upon his wishes?—Afterwards I did.

Thomas Rowley.

29th July 1853.

65,139. Did he blame you for it?—He shook his head, but I do not know that he blamed me more than that.

65,140. What did he say?—He said nothing at all.

65,141. But he shook his head with a smile, I suppose?—The same as if I had done anything else in any other matter of business that he did not exactly approve of, he would shake his head.

65,142. Did he say anything in disapproval?—He was too much engaged in business. When I mentioned the fact to him, he did not say a word.

65,143. Had you anything to do with paying them?—Yes, I did.

65,144. Who supplied you with the money?—No one at all; I paid them myself out of my own pocket.

65,145. Was the money refunded to you?—It was, the next day.

65,146. When did you pay it?—At the time, after they voted.

65,147. Directly after?—Directly.

65,148. How much?—I do not recollect, indeed I have no idea. I have been trying to think of it since I received the summons yesterday, but I do not recollect at all. I gave him the account of it.

65,149. Did you pay them for the loss of time?—I think I paid them what they expected for the three days; there was a man met me when I came over, and he gave me some further instructions.

65,150. Who was that man?—I do not know.

65,151. Just say what those further instructions were?—I would not say so much instructions as I would insight into it; and then I asked a question, and then I understood it was 5*s.* a day.

65,152. Have you any doubt that you did give them 5*s.* a day?—I should think I did give them that.

65,153. Do you know any of their names?—I should know them if I was to hear them, but not without.

65,154. Were they resident in Grimsby?—No; as far as I can recollect they were over there at work, but resident in Hull. There was a new pier being built there, and they were over at work there; they were ship carpenters, I think.

65,155. Who repaid you?—Mr. Henry Barkworth.

65,156. What did he say when he repaid it?—Nothing at all; he asked me how much I was out of pocket, and I told him.

65,157. I think you said that you returned an account?—I gave an account of each man.

65,158. Was it to him?—Yes; to him.

65,159. How soon were you repaid?—The next day or the day after; I cannot say for a day or two; perhaps it might have been two or three days, perhaps it was.

65,160. Did he shake his head when you said you had paid them?—The first time when I told him what they expected.

65,161. But when you said you had paid them, and wanted to get your money back, did he shake his head?—There was not a word passed.

65,162. I did not ask about words, did he not shake his head?—No; he did not shake his head at all.

65,163. How came your sympathies to be the other way?—Because I had been always inclined that way.

65,164. Were you engaged on the other side?—No.

65,165. Had you voted on the other side?—No; I never had a vote, and I never want to have a vote.

65,166. You never canvassed?—No; I was not in Hull five minutes before I saw Mr. Barkworth.

65,167. You mean merely your feelings were on the other side?—Yes.

Frederick Tricker.

FREDERICK TRICKER sworn, and examined.

65,168. Where do you live?—In Witham.

65,169. What is your business?—A grocer.

65,170. What rent do you pay for a house?—£20.

65,171. Are you a freeman?—No.

65,172. What election were you first entitled to vote at?—The last election.

65,173. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

65,174 Was a room engaged at your house for them?—No.

65,175. Did you get any payment for the hire of a room?—Yes; my wife got 30*s.* for their speaking out of the window before the election.

65,176. When was the room engaged?—It was not engaged. I made the offer myself to them.

65,177. You offered the room?—Yes.

65,178. When did you offer it?—Perhaps a fortnight before the election.

65,179. Did they accept the offer?—Yes.

Frederick Tricker.

29th July 1853.

65,180. Was your name or your room entered in some book?—No; they asked me if I wanted pay, and I said "No," so Mr. Harris gave my wife 30*s.* for the use of it.

65,181. After the election?—No; before the election.

65,182. Before the speaking out of the window?—No; afterwards.

65,183. That was before the election?—Yes; a fortnight before.

65,184. And you were paid a day or two after the speaking?—Yes.

65,185. Who paid you?—Mr. Harris sent her 30*s.* just for cleaning it up. I made no charge whatever.

65,186. But you did take it?—No; I did not take it.

65,187. Did you send it back?—No; she kept it herself.

65,188. Your wife?—Yes.

65,189. And gave it you?—I do not know; there is six of one and half a dozen of the other.

65,190. Did she give it to you or spend it in bonnets or handkerchiefs for herself?—I cannot say.

65,191. Do you mean to say you never had the money?—No; she had it for her own private use.

65,192. And you allowed her to spend it as she liked?—Yes.

65,193. I am told it was 4*l.*?—That was a falsehood; I will swear it was not.

65,194. Is 30*s.* all that you got?—30*s.* is all that she got.

65,195. Who got the rest?—That is all we did get.

65,196. The whole?—Yes.

65,197. Was that the only occasion on which your room was used?—That was the only occasion.

65,198. Was there ever anybody there?—No; I made the offer because there was plenty of room for the parties to come and hear them; it was a good situation.

65,199. Did they ask you which way you would vote?—No.

65,200. You told them before?—Yes.

65,201. And they knew which way you were going to vote?—Of course.

65,202. And after you had offered to vote for them, you offered them a room to speak out of the window of?—I offered them the room before I offered to vote; they did not call on me till the day or two before the election, to ask for my vote.

65,203. After the speaking?—Yes; after the speaking, Moore and Butler called, it may be a day or two before the election, and this would be a fortnight before the election that they spoke out of the window.

65,204. You had been canvassed before Moore and Butler came?—I was asked, and I said I would vote for Mr. Clay, provided Lord Goderich did not join, and as soon as Lord Goderich joined I was at liberty to change my opinion. I said if there was no opposition I would vote for Mr. Clay, but if joined with Lord Goderich, I would not, as I considered he was merely a tool.

65,205. Did you offer the room for the purpose of their making a speech out of the window?—Yes.

65,206. You said so?—Yes.

65,207. To whom?—To Mr. Harris.

65,208. Had you heard that they wanted to make a speech at that part of the town?—Yes; I happened to be at the place where they were inquiring if they could get a room anywhere.

65,209. For what?—For speaking.

65,210. And what did you say?—I said if my room was of any use, they might have it.

65,211. How soon after that was it that they proposed to pay you?—Mr. Harris met me in the street and said, "Tricker, what do you charge?" I said "Nothing."

65,212. How soon after?—I said the next day.

65,213. Was nothing said about payment on the first occasion?—No.

65,214. You merely offered your room for them to speak out of the window?—Yes.

65,215. I do not understand exactly what you mean by saying you would vote for Clay if there was no contest?—That is, they said that Mr. Clay did not feel inclined to join Lord Goderich. I knew there were two blues coming out.

65,216. When was it that you promised to join Mr. Clay?—It may be some time beforehand; it may be a month or two.

John Rotherforth.

JOHN ROTHERFORTH sworn, and examined.

65,217. Where do you live?—No. 4, Prospect Street.

65,218. What is your business?—A publican.

65,219. What is the sign of your house?—The Blue Bell.

65,220. What rent do you pay?—£65 a year, including some tenements that I have along with it.

65,221. Are you a freeman?—No.

65,222. Which election were you first entitled to vote at?—1852, the last election.

65,223. Who did you vote for?—Lord Goderich and Mr. Bramley Moore.

John Rotherforth.

29th July 1853.

65,224. Was your house used at the 1847 election?—I do not know at all; I did not live there then; I was not in Hull.

65,225. At the last election?—It was not used for electioneering purposes.

65,226. You had a large number there had you not?—No, I had not.

65,227. Was there not a large supper at your house?—No.

65,228. Not at the Blue Bell?—No.

65,229. A small one?—No.

65,230. Not a supper?—If there was, it was myself and my wife. I had no other supper that I am aware of.

65,231. Did not Robert Brown order a supper at your house?—No.

65,232. Was your room engaged?—No.

65,233. Did any committee meet there?—No.

65,234. Or any gentlemen who are not a committee?—I do not know that; I could not say.

65,235. Did they meet, I mean?—Not for electioneering purposes. We had, of course, people in the house, but not on electioneering matters.

65,236. Had you a room engaged by either party?—No, not at all, no more than at other times.

65,237. Do you know Robert Brown, of West Street?—I do.

65,238. You say he never ordered a supper at your place?—No.

65,239. And there never was one?—There never was one except for my own family.

65,240. Do you keep the Blue Bell now?—I do.

65,241. Did you receive any money at all from the committee of either party at the last election?—I supplied some drink to parties that were sent in by the order of Mr. Brown, or others, but I do not know whether it was by order of the committee or who. Mr. Brown told me he would see me paid.

65,242. They were voters?—I do not know whether they were voters; there were some I knew and some I did not know.

65,243. How many?—I am sure I could not say.

65,244. About how many; could you tell whether ten or fifty?—I should say more than ten but less than fifty; but I could not say how many.

65,245. Was it thirty?—I should say there would be.

65,246. What did they have; how much each?—Sixpennyworth each, by the order of Mr. Brown.

65,247. When was it?—I do not know the date; it was the night that Mr. Bramley Moore and Mr. Butler were speaking from their committee room near to my house; I do not know what night it was, but it was that evening.

65,248. Did Mr. Brown bring the men to the house?—He did; Mr. Brown and others; there were more than Mr. Brown.

65,249. What did he say?—He said, "Let these men have sixpennyworth each."

65,250. Is that all the money that you had from either party?—There were men in a similar way sent to get 6*d.* sixpennyworth.

65,251. When was that?—Some on the morning of the election and some previous; I have not the dates; I really do not know.

65,252. How much was your bill altogether?—£3 odd.

65,253. £3 18*s.*?—Mr. Steeple paid it, I do not know the amount.

65,254. It is stated as 3*l.* 18*s.*?—I dare say that is the amount, but I do not know.

65,255. Was that all spent in sixpennyworths?—Yes.

65,256. And was it all at the order of Mr. Brown?—No, there were several others.

65,257. Were they all for the same party?—I believe they were.

65,258. The blue party?—Yes.

65,259. Was William Henry Nicholson one of them?—I am sure I do not know.

65,260. Do you know the man?—I am sure I do not, I do not know a person of that name.

65,261. He is a sailmaker?—I do not know him.

Mr. R. Wells.

Mr. Robert Wells recalled, and examined.

65,262. Were you engaged in the year 1841 in electioneering matters?—No, I was not.

65,263. Did you vote at that time?—I had no vote at that time.

65,264. You took no part in the election?—I might have had a vote, but I did not vote at that time.

65,265. You took no part in it?—I took no part, I believe I had not a vote; I paid 30*l.* for my offices, but I believe the landlord paid the taxes, and I had no vote.

65,266. In 1847 I believe you were retained on behalf of Mr. Brown?—I was on behalf of the committee for Mr. Brown's election.

65,267. And voted for him?—I did.

65,268. Did you vote for anybody else?—Mr. Baines also.

65,269. Were you retained on the Monday?—I believe I was retained to commence immediately after midnight on Sunday night it would be, or Monday morning.

Mr. R. Wells.

29th July 1853.

65,270. Are those all the accounts that you have relating to that election (handing a bundle of papers marked "A" to the witness)?—I have no other accounts than these relating to the election, except a duplicate of one here.

65,271. The gross amount of those accounts is about 1,200*l.* or 1,400*l.*, is it not?—I have not cast them up; the last account I can tell you, because that was cast up, but there is a blank in it, 1,305*l.* the large one, and then there come several items, and then there is a blank left for runners, messengers, &c. at Hull, which is not filled in.

65,272. The items which are there amount to between 1,300*l.* and 1,400*l.*?—Yes; they are about 1,450*l.* or thereabouts, 1,460*l.*

65,273. Take this in your hand: as far as you can judge are those correct lists of clerks and messengers employed?—Yes; these are lists prepared in my own office; I have no doubt they would be correct.

65,274. As far as these papers go, they show in your judgment a correct list of payments made to messengers, clerks, and persons of that description?—As far as I know they do.

65,275. The two next papers, I think, you will see contain a list of persons who were paid for their votes; particularly let me draw your attention to the bottom of the paper; there is nothing stated there, not even the pretence of service; look at the bottom, showing that the payments were made according to the mode they voted, and not according to the service?—This is the document I do not know the writing of, it says, "Returns by Mr. Garfitt, from booths generally."

65,276. Now look at the bottom of it?—"Percival Beautyman, polled Porter Street, 10*s.*; James Milner, residence High Street;" there are the names of several persons, and the names for whom some of them voted, and some sums of money put at the side, and the corresponding note in the register.

65,277. And the sums vary according to whether they split their votes or not?—I think so, that is the result from this paper.

65,278. "Jackson voted fully"?—There is no sum against that.

65,279. That explains the whole paper, does it not; these two words are a common key to the whole paper?—I cannot say that, and I will tell you why: I do not know that I ever saw it before; I sent this paper along with the others.

65,280. You do not know the writing?—No, I do not know the writing; it is written by some attorney's clerk but not by any clerk of mine, it is Mr. Garfitt's return, and he was one of the district committee men.

65,281. This is a check sheet, is it not?—No; that is the return that he sent in.

65,282. It is a return from booths generally?—Yes; it is Mr. Garfitt's return, and he was one of the district committee men; I do not know of what district now.

65,283. The man who gets the 15*s.* has the good fortune to be a householder, and the rest of them who get the 10*s.* are freemen?—This paper I must have seen before, because the words "Hight Street" are in my own handwriting, but I have no recollection of it.

65,284. You pointed out that he was a householder, and somebody else added the 5*s.* to it?—I cannot say how the fact is, that is as I state it.

65,285. Opposite all the freemen is put 10*s.*, and opposite the householders 15*s.*?—No; that does not appear.

65,286. Look at the next page, that contains a list of twenty-five voters, purchased at 10*s.* each?—Yes; "Twenty-five single votes 12*l.* 10*s.*, one plumper 1*l.*: 13*l.* 10*s.*;" then four more, and it is said those are paid by Stephenson.

65,287. That is, in plain English, a purchase of twenty-five votes?—There is not the least doubt in the world that these men were paid for voting so much money, the out-voters at Hedon.

65,288. Who I dare say you are aware were paid equally by Mr. Baines?—I know nothing of Mr. Baines' proceedings except what I heard accidentally yesterday. I see they voted for Baines and Brown most of them together, except one, which is marked "P.," that means "Plumper."

65,289. Then allow me to draw your attention to this, that the four paid by Mr. Stepenson, or paid 1*l.* each, are plumpers?—Yes; every one of those are plumpers; there is "P." marked against them.

65,290. Were they plumpers for Brown?—I presume so.

65,291. And I think those two slips contain lists of people or runners, set down, as it is called; if not, perhaps you can explain what they are?—These have not come from me, they come from elsewhere I think, I will not be sure upon that point; I sent a great number of papers that I never looked at.

65,292. Look at those two slips?—"Runners, Hargreaves and Bower, gone into Porter Street canvass." There are several names here, and then it is put below, "Messengers."

65,293. Look at the next?—Runners again; it appears to be in the same handwriting.

65,294. Do these contain the names of people of the ordinary class we hear of, who got their names set down and expected to be paid?—I cannot say at this distance of time, I think it is very probable, but I cannot say.

65,295. And that third one with the heading, "Tuesday," in your judgment, probably, is a paper of the same description?—I could not say whether it was meant to be a list of runners, or a list of persons, voters, to be seen; I could not say.

65,296. Look at the paper before it?—The paper before it appears to be in the same handwriting as the preceding paper to that.

65,297. What is that?—Men with cards to solicit.

65,298. Explain the paper?—I should imagine these are persons set to work to go round with canvassing cards.

65,299. Messengers?—I can explain the system that was adopted at that time, it would save trouble. The election commenced very early on Monday morning, immediately after midnight on Sunday; we then had to get prepared everything connected with the election, as the election would have to take place the Thursday following; with so large a number as 4,500 electors it of course required a great amount of despatch, and a very great number of persons to be engaged in the necessary division of labour required for that purpose. The men were set on immediately to go round among the electors with cards struck off, merely requesting the vote and interest in favour of the candidate, and I should imagine that this paper contains the names of persons who had been engaged for such a purpose.

65,300. So that there was an unusual number of messengers employed to distribute polling cards upon that occasion?—Yes; such a number as never was engaged or required at any previous election.

65,301. Were they all voters?—That was quite immaterial; the orders were to get on men, voters or not voters; we had no time to consider that question or to make a distinction, the orders were to get men.

65,302. Were you with Mr. Brown at the time when he made up his mind to resign?—I believe I was, before he finally determined to make up his mind, and by his orders I went to the committee room of Mr. Baines to inform that committee that he did intend to resign, and I also went to the sheriff to withdraw his name.

65,303. Were you aware at that time that there were a large number of unpolled voters still remaining in the market to be bought?—Yes, I was, I had a very strong reason for knowing it.

65,304. State your own reason?—An application was made, I think, at about a quarter-before three or half-past two that day, by a very large number of voters to be paid to vote for Mr. Brown. This application came into the committee room at the time I was there.

65,305. At the time Mr. Brown also was there?—No; Mr. Brown was at his own hotel at that time, and came into the committee room while I was there.

65,306. Who was the principal man?—I cannot tell; I think he was a shipwright or a person of that class; it was not the first application of the kind that we had had made during the election; on a preceding time 200 freemen and upwards, I was told, went over to New Holland and sent a deputation over to Hull, stating that there were that number of them ready to vote for Mr. Brown for a consideration; Mr. Brown knew of that application, and he and the committee said, "Not one sixpence will we give them;" on the day when he resigned a similar application came at the time I have mentioned. Mr. Brown at once made up his mind to resign, and he said he was so disgusted with the affair that he would neither stand himself nor would he allow Mr. Baines (for there was a threat held out that Mr. Baines would buy them) to waste his money in any such way. That to the best of my recollection is the substance of the resolution that he came to.

65,307. Was that the cause of his resignation?—That was the cause of his resignation at that time, to the best of my judgment and belief; he may have had another, but that was the cause expressed.

65,308. How much did they ask?—I cannot say; I have no recollection.

65,309. Can you say whether it was 10*l.*?—No; I cannot say pounds, I do not know the amount, I have no doubt it would be pounds; the application was that they should be bought, but I do not know that the price was named.

65,310. Was the number stated?—I think the number stated of the second lot at that time was 150, or thereabouts, to the best of my recollection.

65,311. Did they come all together or did they send a deputation?—No, they did not come all together, there was a messenger sent on their behalf.

65,312. Do you know the messenger from either of those deputations?—I do not

65,313. Were you present when the purchase of Nicholson's lot was effected on the part of Mr. Brown?—I never heard of the purchase of such a lot being effected.

65,314. Then you were not present?—No.

65,315. You have heard often of them since?—No, I have not indeed, I can assure you; I have heard Nicholson's name mentioned, but I did not know it was in connexion with Mr. Brown.

65,316. You heard of eighty men during the election being bought at the Baltic?—Yes; I did not know that they were Nicholson's, I knew who they were bought by, they were bought by Mr. Clay and paid for by Mr. Galloway.

65,317. They were bought by a joint arrangement between Mr. Brown and Mr. Clay; half and half?—I never knew that before this moment.

65,318. Have you heard that?—No, I did not know it; this is information to me for the first time.

65,319. Was not Mr. Mitchell a member of your committee?—Yes.

65,320. He is the man who bought them?—Then you give me information that I did not know before.

Mr. R. Wells.

29th July 1853.

65,321. And Mr. Burstall was another member?—He was.

65,322. You were not cognizant of Mr. Burstall's and Mr. Mitchell's purchase?—Certainly not; on the contrary, up to the present moment I was ignorant of it. I remember, two days after the election, telling Mr. Galloway what an imprudent thing it was to do, having not the least notion that Mr. Brown's committee had anything to do with the purchase of these men for half their votes.

65,323. Do you believe, looking at those figures—"Baines, 1611; Clay, 1399; Brown, 1140;" written on the back of one of these sheets of paper, that they represent the state of the poll at some period of the morning of the polling day?—At some period I should presume it does.

65,324. Have you anything to tell you that it is so, or is that a mere guess?—It is a mere presumption; I only form my judgment in the same way that you gentlemen can by seeing those figures there, that is all.

65,325. There are other figures also, that seem to throw some light upon it, and render it possible?—I have not seen the other figures; I only judge the same as you or any other gentleman might judge. I believe the total number of votes for Mr. Brown upon that occasion was about 1600; I think so from memory, but I may be mistaken.

65,326. Is that a letter written to you by Mr. Twining (handing the letter to the witness)?—This is a letter, I presume, from Mr. Twining to me, because I found it among the loose papers in that box; there is no name of any person to whom it is addressed.

65,327. Have you any recollection of the letter, now that you have seen it?—I have seen this letter before, certainly.

65,328. Do you remember letting Dr. Twining have some money upon the polling day?—I have no recollection of giving Dr. Twining any money. I have been informed, and understood that Mr. Burstall gave him 90*l.*; and I gather that from another letter, in which Mr. Burstall says that Dr. Twining had 90*l.*

65,329. I thought it came through your hands?—No, it did not.

65,330. What disbursements passed through your hands?—After the election?

65,331. During the election?—I think during the election no disbursements went through my hands, except the payment of the clerks, now and then, money on account; there were only four days.

65,332. You had a bill yourself for services?—I had.

65,333. Can you recollect what is the amount, or have you the means to tell you?—I can tell you. I have a copy of it in my own office.

65,334. How much was it?—I believe the bill for my own professional services altogether was 160*l.* or 170*l.*, exclusive of from twenty to twenty-five clerks employed.

65,335. Including the clerks, how much?—I could not say altogether without referring; I have a copy; I could easily refer.

65,336. Tell us about?—My impression is, that the amount of the bill, including the clerks and my own, would be something like 350*l.*, to the best of my recollection. I have a very fair recollection of my own bill, and I believe my bill, for my own professional services, was something like 160*l.* or 170*l.*; that extends over not merely the election week, but two or three weeks afterwards.

65,337. How was it paid?—Mr. Digby, the chairman, paid it.

65,338. How long after the election?—I think it was paid some weeks after the election, when all the accounts were paid; some accounts were paid, inasmuch as it necessarily included all the work done up to that time.

65,339. How long was it after that you were paid?—My impression is, it was something like from six weeks to two months after.

65,340. That is your impression?—I had necessarily to wait until all the business was concluded connected with the election.

65,341. I see a great many clerks entered here?—Yes.

65,342. Had you a full discretion to employ any number you liked?—Certainly; I had full discretion to employ whatever forces I liked for any purpose.

65,343. The time was short?—The emergency required an enormous number of them to be put on.

65,344. The time was short, and the object was to win?—Yes, precisely.

65,345. Did you make those payments?—I believe so.

65,346. There are a great many clerks, can you tell me the number?—I should think about twenty-five.

65,347. It says thirty-six polling and check clerks?—That is another lot of clerks, which would be the clerks on the day of the election for eighteen booths.

65,348. You think there would be twenty-five clerks, and the thirty-six polling and check clerks would be additional?—Certainly.

65,349. Do you not think that some of these are persons whose votes would be influenced by employment?—You are speaking of the clerks who are engaged as check and poll clerks?

65,350. Or the other clerks; here is one long list of "Mr. Wells's" clerks?—Yes.

65,351. Are there among those persons any who had votes?—My impression is, that most of them had no votes at all; they belong to a class of persons who have no votes; they are not householders, and are not in a position to have votes, and are not freemen.

Mr. R. Wells.

29th July 1853.

65,352. We understood yesterday, from Mr. Digby, that there was a difficulty in getting them, from the shortness of the time?—I had great difficulty. Mr. Baines had a fortnight before him, and I had only three days before me. I know he had great difficulty in getting up the papers in the time; we had no time; we had not even the street lists ready.

65,353. I do not know whether there is anything upon the face of this list, which shows that they were voters, or who were voters?—I should not make out a list for that purpose; my business was to engage persons quite irrespectively of whether they were voters; those men were all paid by myself, or my partner, or by some one in my office.

65,354. The commitee clerks, would they be paid by you?—I think they would.

65,355. Mr. Garfitt would have paid his own account?—I believe so.

65,356. What would those ticks mean, against those who are Hedon voters?—At the first part of the election it was determined, by whom or how I know not, but it was so determined, to give to a number of persons tickets marked 5s. each upon them, and the production of those tickets would entitle the party to receive payment. I believe that scheme was first concocted by Mr. John Walker, whose name you have had before you on more occasions than one, and who was engaged for one portion of the party who brought Mr. Brown down. You may have heard that it was a coalition between the two parties, to bring him in; and that scheme of the ticket system was introduced by him. I am aware that it caused afterwards a little unpleasantness in the committee; they did not like it and they put a stop to it.

65,357. The "2" would mean to have two tickets?—Yes.

65,358. Why should one have two tickets, and the other only one?—I cannot tell.

65,359. Do you know whose writing it is?—No; it is a list of Hedon voters, written by some attorney's clerk, but I have no notion whose writing it is; it is not written by any clerk of mine.

65,360. Who assisted Walker in carrying into effect the ticket system?—There was a committee met at the Ball and Sun, where he was, and he was one of the committee, but I do not know who the others were; the truth is, I had so much to do in attending to the mere ordinary machinery of the election, that I never interfered with the proceedings of the committees, as to their mode of conducting the canvass.

65,361. It has been stated, that at the election of 1847, the different committees exchanged but little communication with one another?—I think that is most probable.

65,362. It is so stated by Mr. Baines' friends?—My impression is, that each committee did as they liked, as far as they could; the understanding was that they were to get the election, and all the expenses would be paid.

65,363. You stated you believed that the ground of Mr. Brown's resignation was disgust at the attempt to extort money?—I have always believed that; and when I say disgust, there is another reason. It is evident, from what I have stated, that he was anxious that Mr. Baines, with whom he appeared to be friendly, should not be a sufferer by anything that took place at his election, and therefore he said "I will not give them a sixpence myself, nor shall Mr. Baines be allowed to do so. I will resign, and I will go and tell Mr. Baines so."

65,364. Do you think that Mr. Brown could have won his election?—Supposing he had gone up to the poll at that time?

65,365. Supposing he had gone on to the end?—I do not think he could. I think if he had come into the field two days before, he would.

65,366. You still think, if he had gone on to the end, Mr. Baines and Mr. Clay would have been returned?—Yes; but the election could not have finished that day.

65,367. Why not?—A riot took place at one of the booths, but that was not known at head-quarters at the time; we did not know it until afterwards.

65,368. You still think, if Mr. Brown had continued to the end, he could not have won?—I think not, at that hour of the day; three o'clock.

65,369. But the next day he might?—Possibly he might, because we had a great number of voters, who would then have come up to the poll. I understood the riot took place in consequence of a number of voters wanting to vote for Mr. Baines, and could not get up to vote; and I also understood, from one of the canvassers, that we had a reserve of voters, who would have come in and voted, had the election been adjourned until the next day. I could not say what would have been the result, if the representations, made to me by many of our canvassers, were correct. I think Mr. Brown would have stood a very good chance of coming in.

65,370. How do you account upon your hypothesis for the fact, that Mr. Brown actually polled a greater number in the one hour, after he resigned, than Mr. Baines, and almost as many as he polled in the whole day, or rather in the previous seven hours?—An hour would not have elapsed after he resigned before the election was stopped.

65,371. That is still more extraordinary; if at the time of Mr. Brown's resignation, between that and four o'clock, he polled nearly as many as he had polled in the whole seven hours before, and more than Mr. Baines?—That is only confirmatory of what I said before, that the voters for Mr. Brown had not got up to the poll in good time, and that the riot took place in consequence of the pressure to get on for the purpose. If that election could have been kept open an hour or two longer, beyond four o'clock, or on the next day, then I believe we had a reserve of voters that would have secured the election for Mr. Brown, but the time prevented its necessity; but this is a speculation. I cannot say what the result would have been.

65,372. Did you know that a number of voters, to the amount of from 150 to 200, had been raising their price during the day?—I did not.

65,373. Did you hear that they offered themselves at a smaller sum than 10*l*., or any sum?—I heard no sum; I am speaking from a recollection of six years back.

65,374. Did you at any time have any communication with Mr. Baines' committee, or with any one connected with Mr. Baines, as to securing those voters by a joint payment?—I have no recollection of anything of the sort, nor do I believe that any such arrangement took place to my knowledge.

65,375. You went to the George Inn?—Yes.

65,376. That was to carry the resignation of Mr. Brown?—Yes.

65,377. Had you been there before that day?—I have no recollection of having been there before that day.

65,378. Do you recollect at any time, whether on that day or the previous day that any proposition had been made to secure the wavering hanging-off men, at the joint expense of Mr. Baines and Mr. Brown?—I do not recollect anything of the kind.

65,379. You never heard that that was done?—I never heard it, but what I hear now.

65,380. This is the book that was lying generally open at your committee room (book marked B). Mr. Digby informed us of that?—Yes, it would be so.

65,381. The first page is a list of general messengers?—It is.

65,382. And then a list of clerks?—Yes.

65,383. Would they be separate from those that you have been speaking of who appear in your own list?—No; that would be a book for the purpose of getting down, as well as we could, the names of persons who would be required to go into the matter, I remember that book was laying on the table, and I think that the first writing in it is Mr. James Beeton's, to the best of my recollection.

65,384. Look at that page which is headed "committee rooms." I asked Mr. Digby yesterday whether he supposed that that heading was intended to be carried on to the next page, there is no special heading to the next page, and he said he thought not?—And I think not.

65,385. Tell me in your judgment what those names are, upon the next page, they continue for several pages; are those the general lists of runners?—My impression is, that this would be a list of persons who wanted to be engaged as runners, or messengers, that is my impression,—the next are colour bearers.

65,386. I do not think there is any separate heading after the one I drew your attention to?—My impression is, that the whole of these pages; are lists of persons who applied to be set down as runners or messengers, except those who came under the special heading.

65,387. Are those ticks and marks made in red ink in the early part of the book made by you; there is an explanation at the top of the page?—Those marks and letters are in my writing.

65,388. What does that red ink mean; I do not quite follow it on looking through the lists?—I should imagine that these were marks made after the election, and I have no doubt they were made for the purpose of checking the persons who applied to be paid as runners or messengers.

65,389. I think you will see through the book several who have the chairman's name set against them; and those appear to me not to be crossed out, as if they had been sent to the district of which that person was the chairman?—Yes; here is Twining, Mitchell, Bannister.

65,390. Those are not struck out, but there is a general pencil erasure against those who have not a chairman's name; would that denote that they had been paid?—I think so.

65,391. Then the pencil mark comes down and then stops?—You observe all those that have the name at the side, have a tick at the side also, and the tick says, these are referred to the districts of which these gentlemen are the chairmen.

65,392. You will see that the pencil mark is not run through the names. I want to know if it shows, where the pencil mark is run through the names, that those were paid at the central committee room?—I cannot say.

65,393. You see the pencil mark there?—Yes; and there is no pencil mark through those that are sent elsewhere.

65,394. But it is to all the others?—Yes.

65,395. Do you remember if that pencil mark is a note of your own?—I think not.

65,396. What do you say that it means?—I cannot tell.

65,397. Does it mean that the parties were paid?—I should presume it means that the parties were done with, but I cannot say.

65,398. Payment is the only thing probably remaining after the elections?—That is the fair inference.

65,399. There were a great many colour men employed, I see?—A great many.

65,400. And you do not make any distinction between them and runners?—No.

65,401. Or between runners and messengers?—No, we call runners and messengers the same thing. I think it right to say that we had a very large number of messengers necessarily employed.

65,402. That was in order to win?—No; but for actual services; and I can explain why we had it: we managed to get done, by two o'clock on Tuesday and part of the Wednesday morning, a three weeks' work, which had to be done in three days; we had to deliver to all these parties in the town, not merely the application cards for the votes, but also the voting cards afterwards.

65,403. There is a list which you have been good enough to furnish us with, which seems to be an alphabetical list of names, and I see it has got cut somehow or another, the first letter of the alphabet, A, is absent; it goes through the alphabet with a good many names,—what does the letter B mean, and C?—There are only two letters at the side; "B," I presume, means "Brown," and "C" means "Clay." (Referring to the list marked G.)

65,404. What is that a list of?—I presume it is a list of persons who voted.

65,405. Is it not a list of runners?—That I cannot say; I have nothing else to go by; part of the handwriting, half of this list, is in the handwriting of Mr. Rosindale, who acted as my clerk at the time, and the other half is in a strange handwriting.

65,406. Do you know whether these would be the same names as appear in the book I last showed you?—My impression is, that this would be a list of persons who had been engaged to act as messengers for us, with the result of their voting, but I am only presuming it to be so.

65,407. Perhaps there did not happen to be any who began with A, but A is certainly absent?—I do not know how that is.

65,408. Is it not more likely that the first page is off?—I do not know; I do not know we had anything marked with A,—this is exactly in the condition in which I found it. I have not looked at the box since the election, until the other day.

65,409. In the letter to which you have been referred, the letter of Mr. Twining, in which it states that all the persons he paid, amounting to 90*l.*, would appear in his book?—Yes.

65,410. Did all the people have a book of this kind, headed "List of runners in the committee"?—I have sent in to you a great number of books of this kind.

65,411. Only two called the list of runners?—My notion is that they would have a list of these prepared, and sent to each committee, I have very little doubt about that. This book is written by a young man who is a clerk of mine: "List of runners referred to the West Sculcoates committee," the meaning of which would be, that those runners, being on that district committee, would have to be paid for in that committee.

65,412. Mr. Twining's list, to which he referred yesterday, would have amounted to fifty or sixty?—I have no doubt that was so, because the arrangement was this, that the runners at each district committee would be paid for by the district committee, and those of the central committee would be paid there.

65,413. The total of the bills that you have given in amounts to 1,450*l.*?—Thereabouts, 1,460*l.*

65,414. The total sum expended is 3,000*l.* for Mr. Brown?—Yes.

65,415. Does the difference of 1,550*l.* in your judgment represent the money that was paid for runners and messengers?—No, I could not say that; you will find there are blanks left in the account I sent in, for other names to be inserted. I cannot answer your inquiry, but I have heard that the runners cost about 1,100*l.*

65,416. You told us of the 1852 election that there were about 400; did you hear how many there were paid in that way, in the 1847 election?—I cannot say, indeed; my impression is that we should have somewhere about 500 persons there at that time.

65,417. You would not pay 500 persons 1,100*l.*?—There would be more than that; I estimated that we should require persons as messengers, whether voters or not.

65,418. I ask you in your judgment how many voters were secured by payment in 1847?—I cannot answer that question, because we chose persons irrespective of their being voters.

65,419. Did you never hear, either before or after the election, in your position as solicitor and adviser, how many men were paid?—No, I never did; there was a book which contained the names of all that were paid at the central committee, and who were paid by Mr. Mitchell, but that book he took possession of; I asked him for it twice, but he never would give it to me.

65,420. You cannot tell me at all?—I cannot tell the number of persons.

65,421. How lately did you speak to Mr. Mitchell about that book?—The last time would be somewhere about six months after the election; he evidently seemed desirous of keeping it; therefore I did not press him much for it.

65,422. You have said in 1847 the Hedon voters were paid for their votes?—I gather so from that paper.

65,423. Can you tell me whether a similar arrangement was made as to any of those outlying voters in 1852?—I believe no arrangement of the sort was made to pay them anything in 1852, except their expenses. I know those were my instructions, not to do so.

Mr. R. Wells.

29th July 1853.

65,424. Were their expenses to include money for loss of time?—I think not; I think the expense of coming over here and their necessary refreshments were paid; I remember I had one or two conversations with the agent, Mr. Iveson, upon that subject, and I told him distinctly that we would not pay the out-voters in the way they were always accustomed to be paid; that we should pay expenses and refreshments, and that was all.

65,425. Were those expenses and refreshments to be made equivalent to what they had before?—No, certainly not; no reference to what they had before, or comparison was made.

65,426. You seem to confine that to the Hedon voters?—Yes.

65,427. Then what arrangement was made as to the Cottingham voters?—That matter was left entirely to Mr. Bamford, who did just as he chose in the matter; Mr. Colbeck was the gentleman I engaged, he made no arrangement with them as to bringing them here at all, he only canvassed their votes.

65,428. Mr. Bamford acted for the Cottingham voters?—I believe he took them all into his own hands.

65,429. In the year 1852 was it by your advice that the practice was resorted to of discharging some of the runners for a time in order to give employment to other persons?—Certainly not.

65,430. Were you cognisant that it was done?—I heard that that had been done on one occasion at one of the districts, at Prospect Street, in the North Myton ward.

65,431. Had you at the time heard that it was only resorted to in one ward?—I never heard at the time that it had been resorted to by any other ward.

65,432. I presume that would be reported in due course by the chairman to the central committee?—No; the fact is, in that ward we had great difficulty in carrying on the business at all, the committee were very irregular in their attendance, and we very rarely saw the chairman, he was so much from home.

65,433. Who was the chairman?—Mr. Wilkinson.

65,434. How soon did you hear of it?—That I cannot tell you; I have no recollection indeed.

65,435. Ultimately, before the election terminated, it became a subject of discussion?—It was a matter of discussion. I have heard that they had changed their runners in that ward; but from what cause I know not. I also heard that they had some trouble with their voters, who insisted on being paid the same amount as they were on the other side, the difference between the guinea and the pound a week, and that they had threatened to leave and would go, if that was not done.

65,436. When did it come to the knowledge of the central committee that the North Myton ward were resorting to that practice; did you consider it consistent with Mr. Ward's declaration, that the election should be a pure one?—I do not know that the matter ever struck me at all upon the subject.

65,437. It did not strike you that it was inconsistent; perhaps you put it that way?—Yes. I need scarcely tell you, as I was the only solicitor employed, I had so much to think of, that a little matter of that sort I should not have time to take notice of.

Mr. J. Richardson.

Mr. JOHN RICHARDSON recalled, and examined.

65,438. You have some explanation to make?—I am informed that Mr. Farthing in his evidence says, that I told him I was in the habit of carrying the colours of both parties in my pocket, so that I could mount either colour, and go among either party; he says, he believes he said something like that. I have seen him this morning, and I have his authority to repudiate that; it is a misconception upon his part. I never did such a thing; all the other I admit, as to having got the door broken in, and the rest of it.

65,439. Did you at the last election bring up the Cottingham voters?—Yes.

65,440. What did you pay them?—Nothing.

65,441. Who paid their expenses?—I paid their expenses of course. I engaged an omnibus, as being the cheaper thing, to bring them from there and take them back again, and, as is usual upon those occasions, I gave them the necessary refreshment.

65,442. In the first place, how much would you pay for the omnibus?—Two guineas.

65,443. You did not pay that through them, you paid that to the man from whom you hired it?—I sent in the account to the committee.

65,444. What refreshments did you give them?—It is usual in these cases not merely to bring the voters——

65,445. Tell me what you did, not what is usual?—I paid nothing.

65,446. What you gave them?—I do not know what they got. I only know an account was sent to my committee room, for refreshments for the Cottingham voters; that I sent in, thinking it was a fair sum for the election, without any comment. I put my name to it "Correct;" and I believe the sum was paid; what it was I cannot undertake to say.

65,447. Was it agreed with them when they came that they should have refreshments?—No.

65,448. Had they refreshments at Cottingham first?—Yes; they had breakfast.

65,449. When they came to Hull, did they have a luncheon?—Not that I am aware of.

65,450. Had they anything before they polled?—I think we had a bottle of wine in.

65,451. Anything else?—Nothing else that I am aware of.

65,452. Then they were taken to the poll?—They went to the poll by themselves.

65,453. Afterwards, what did they have?—Afterwards, they met again. I said to my clerks, "Keep yourselves sober, I am going at night to dine with some of my friends, and you shall come in along with us; and then you shall have a dinner."

65,454. All the Cottingham voters?—Yes; and their friends who were canvassing for us.

65,455. And then they were taken home to Cottingham?—Yes; in the same omnibus.

65,456. Did they get anything else?—Nothing.

65,457. No supper at Cottingham?—Yes.

65,458. They had a supper at Cottingham?—Yes.

65,459. And all their friends?—Yes; a great many.

65,460. Did they get any money paid them for their loss of time?—No.

65,461. That had been the custom before, to pay them for loss of time?—I believe it had.

65,462. Why was not that done upon this occasion?—I was the party to look after them, and, as an old electioneerer, I was very cautious in not promising anything, which should lead them to expect anything.

65,463. Did they not ask for the same as they used to have?—No.

65,464. Did they say anything about what they used to have?—No.

65,465. Was no mention made of any payment for loss of time?—No mention was made of any payment for loss of time.

65,466. Was no question asked as to what would be given them, or the way they would be treated?—No.

65,467. Do you mean that you merely asked for the vote, and they promised at once?—The party that canvassed I think in my presence did all that he could that was necessary to secure their votes.

65,468. Who was that party?—Mr. Bushby.

65,469. Does he live at Cottingham?—Yes; but he had strict injunctions not to promise anything.

65,470. What was he to do to secure their votes?—He was to go round and see them as he was a resident in Cottingham, and sound them. I was to visit them afterwards and get their promises.

65,471. How was the loss of what they used to have, to be made up to them upon this occasion?—I cannot tell, because there was no promise made by me to them.

65,472. You say you were cautious, and would promise nothing?—Yes.

65,473. I ask you to tell me exactly, what was to be the understanding between you?—There was no understanding, because nothing was ever mentioned.

65,474. Did you tell them that they were to have nothing?—I never asked anything.

65,475. You did not tell them there would be a change on this occasion?—No; I never said that they were either to have anything or to expect anything.

65,476. Did you leave them to understand that they were to be treated as before?—They are burgesses, and would understand that they were to be treated as before.

65,477. This bringing them in the carriage and all the refreshments they had, was to be equivalent to them for the money they had had on former occasions?—Oh, dear no; of course, if any money was to be paid afterwards, they would put in their claim, no doubt of that.

65,478. Have you ever heard that they did put in their claim?—I have not heard they did. I do not think that they have. I am in the habit of seeing them, almost daily, after business; and I should say that none of them have expected anything yet.

65,479. I want to know more particularly, what instructions you gave to Mr. Bushby?—I am attending my business during the day, and at night I go there; and he was to see them, having a better opportunity during the day, and ask as to how they were likely to vote. I cautioned him to make no promise to them, merely to ask for the vote, and I would see them afterwards.

65,480. He was to tell them that?—No.

65,481. You said he was to secure their votes?—Yes.

65,482. Merely to ask a man how he is going to vote, does not secure it?—It does in many cases.

65,483. That is when there is an understanding between the parties?—There was no understanding between the parties; they might expect, and would expect as freemen, that there would be the usual fee given afterwards.

65,484. That you know?—That I know; but it never went from me to them.

65,485. You understood it, but they did not understand it?—They did not.

65,486. Then you deceived them?—I did not deceive them.

65,487. Just explain it?—If I was to ask you for your vote, I should go as a canvasser generally does, plead the claims of the prrty; and if you were one of the burgesses, and had been in the habit of receiving fees, you would expect, if you gave a vote upon that side, and any fee was to follow, you would get it amongst the freemen; and you must understand these were freemen.

Mr. J. Richardson.

29th July 1853.

65,488. When you went to canvass them, or the gentleman you sent to them, you knew that was their understanding?—It was never expressed by them or by yourself.

65,489. You knew it was their understanding?—I should not take upon myself to say that they knew it.

65,490. To use your own words, their expectation?—I should say that they would expect it.

65,491. And you did not undeceieve them?—I did not undeceive them.

65,492. And that was intentional?—Certainly; I should not commit the party nor myself in any way whatever.

65,493. Did Mr. Bushby come up in the omnibus with them?—Yes; and I came as well

65,494. Your evidence seems to amount to this: that all freemen would expect to be paid, therefore you expected that these would?—I should say that ninty per cent. of the freemen would expect to be paid in some way or another.

65,495. Do you know how many you brought up?—Do not understand me that all the people who came with me would expect it.

65,496. What do you say to Mr. Bushby?—Mr. Bushby would not be paid.

65,497. Would he expect it?—No, he would not; he is a man of good circumstances.

65,498. How many did you bring up who would expect to be paid?—I think there were three of them.

65,499. Do you mean that only three would be men who would expect to be paid?—I think only three were men in such a position in life that they would expect to be paid; that I only know from having got paid before.

65,500. What are their names?—George Henry Holmes.

65,501. How many would there be altogether, that you brought?—Robert Carlisle Briggs, a highly respectable gentleman, a merchant in this town, who availed himself of the omnibus to come over that morning, and who breakfasted with me. John Bushby, he would not expect anything.

65,502. That is the man who assisted you?—Yes. William Gunnee, he would not expect anything; he is a man in good circumstances; then there is a man from Skidby, James Watson: from having had it some previous years, he would expect it; I only say he would expect it from that; and there was another man whose name I forget now, who lived there, but he is removed; he is not in the non-resident freemen list.

65,503. Hitchin?—No; Hitchin got something on the other side. I forget his name; but these are the only three that would expect anything.

65,504. They got paid, I suppose?—Not by me, nor do I suppose that they got paid by any one.

65,505. Did they ever apply to you for money afterwards?—No.

65,506. I should judge from that that they have been paid?—I should say they were not; because I heard one of them say that he got nothing.

65,507. Which one was that?—George Henry Holmes.

65,508. Disappointed was he?—I cannot say.

65,509. When he told you he had not got it, did he not say he was disappointed?—No.

65,510. Then, perhaps, he does expect it?—Perhaps he does.

65,511. How many came over altogether?—Thomas Butlery was another; he would not expect anything; there would be six of them altogether.

65,512. And you have given the names of those who you think would expect to be paid?—Yes; I say only from having previously got fees.

65,513. Was six all that you brought over?—Yes.

65,514. And six all that you had to dinner?—Six voters and the friends. I have some good canvassers in that village, when I am not there, who of course look after them.

65,515. How many canvassers were there to canvass these six men?—There are other voters besides these six, and they must be going round continually seeing them.

65,516. Other voters, where?—There are a great many more at Cottingham, Skidby, Newland, and West Ella.

65,517. And your canvass was going on among those people?—Yes, certainly; sounding and seeing how they would go.

65,518. And did they get the votes from many of them?—There are six voters that they got.

65,519. Is that all?—Yes.

65,520. How many people had you to dinner for these six votes?—Bear in mind I had my committee as well.

65,521. How many were there?—There would be about a dozen of us altogether.

65,522. You seem to say that you did not promise them, merely because you said nothing. Of course you must be aware that people can promise by action. For instance, supposing a man comes into your surgery and says nothing, but points out the operation he wants performed to his teeth, do you not think that he wants that operation performed and that he contracts to pay you for doing it?—Yes; but no signs passed with me.

65,523. Do you not consider the mode of dealing with these people practically amounts to a contract to pay them the same as before?—I should fancy, as I said before, that every pure freeman, when I say pure freeman, I mean those who are not householders, that every freeman expects, directly or indirectly, to have something.

62,524. Something besides a supper?—Yes; that if there be any money on the stir, that they are to have a share of it; but I never do, as an old electioneerer, say anything that shall compromise either myself or the candidates.

GEORGE THOMAS SHERBURN sworn, and examined.

65,525. Where do you live?—Fish Street.

65,526. What is your business?—Grocer and flour dealer.

65,527. Are you a freeman?—No.

65,528. A householder?—Yes.

65,529. What rent do you pay?—£19.

65,530. How long have you been qualified to vote as a householder?—Only at the last election.

65,531. How long have you been entitled to vote; how long have you held the house you are now in?—About four years.

65,532. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

65,533. I believe they had a room at your house?—Yes.

65,534. Who engaged that room?—Mr. Sylbon.

65,535. How much did you get paid for it?—Three guineas.

65,536. Did he pay you?—No.

65,537. Who paid you?—Mr. Wride.

65,538. When did he pay you?—After the election; I do not know the day.

65,539. Did he come to your house and pay you?—Yes.

65,540. Was the room ever used for any purpose?—For a committee room.

65,541. What committee met there?—Do you mean the names?

65,542. I want some of the names; the chairman?—Mr. Sylbon was the chairman.

65,543. How often did they meet there?—Every day after the room was taken.

65,544. How long before the election was it that they took it?—A week before.

65,545. As much as a week?—About a week.

65,546. Was it more than two days; remember you are upon your oath?—It was engaged a week.

65,547. You swear that?—Yes.

65,548. When did anybody first come; Mr. Sylbon for instance?—The week before the election.

65,549. Who else attended?—There were a lot of runners.

65,550. Do you mean people got their names set down?—Yes.

65,551. Who set them down; Mr. Sylbon?—Yes.

65,552. Do you mean they came to be set down?—I do not know they came to be set down. There were a certain number of men had been set down, and had to attend at my office.

65,553. I want to know whether they had been set down anywhere else, or whether they were set down at your room?—I do not know; but they got set down at my place.

65,554-5. How many of them?—I suppose about fourteen of them.

65,556. Did you show them into the room when they came; did you keep the door?—No.

65,557. Did Mr. Sylbon give you a list of committee men?—No.

65,558. Who was the clerk there?—I believe his name was Simpson.

65,559. Who was the doorkeeper?—I think we had not a doorkeeper.

65,560. Perhaps you had a doorkeeper yourself?—No.

65,561. Might anybody go in that pleased?—Yes.

65,562. The door was open to let anyone in?—Yes.

65,563 What did Mr. Sylbon say when he came to you; I do not know whether you are aware that Mr. Sylbon has been examined; what did Mr. Sylbon say when he came into the room?—I do not know that he said anything. He said nothing to me that I know of particular.

65,564. How came he to come to you about the room?—Mr. Sylbon said to me, there was an orange room in the street; and he came to me and said, "Your house will make a very good committee room, will you have one on the blue side?" and I said, "Yes, I have no objection."

65,565. Had there been nothing said about which side you were to be?—He knew I was a blue.

65,566. How did he know it, you have not told us that; what was said about your being a blue?—He knew I was a blue.

G. T. Sherburn.

29th July 1853.

65,567. People do not know things unless they are told. They have some mode of acquiring knowledge what was said?—He said nothing more than that.

65,568. How did he know you were a blue?—We had known each other a length of time.

65,569.—He knew it previously?—Yes.

65,570. Did he canvass you for your vote?—No.

65,571. Were you canvassed by the blues?—Yes; I believe I was.

65,572. Who by?—I do not know.

65,573. How often were you canvassed by the blues?—Only once I believe.

65,574. Surely you can tell who it was by: was it before or after you let your room?—It would be before.

65,575. Did you say you had not made up your mind?—I had not made up my mind. I said who I should vote for.

65,576. When were you paid; was it after the election?—Yes; after the election.

65,577. You had been canvassed by the other party had you not?—Yes.

65,578. Had you not promised them?—No.

65,579. Something like that?—No; I did not.

65,580. Did they ask for your room?—No.

65,581. Did they merely canvass for your vote?—They canvassed for my vote.

65,582. What did you say?—I did not promise them.

65,583. Was there a private entrance to the room?—They could come through the shop; and there is a passage. They could come through the shop or the passage.

65,584. Who kept the key of it?—It was open.

65,585. There was nobody there but Mr. Sylbon and the messengers?—That was all.

Robert Brough.

ROBERT BROUGH sworn, and examined.

65,586. Where do you live?—Dixon's Square, Blue Bell Entry.

65,587. What business are you?—A seaman.

65,588. What rent do you pay?—4*l.* 10*s.*

65,589. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

65,590. When were you made free?—In 1820.

65,591. At whose expense?—My own.

65,592. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Yes.

65,593. Who did you vote for?—Mr. Clay I voted for, and Mr. Thompson as well; but I am not sure.

65,594. Did you get any money then for your vote?—Yes; I got paid for the time I was employed.

65,595. How much did you get?—I cannot recollect; but I was paid for the time I was employed.

65,596. Do you not remember what you generally got for your employment?—I had 5*s.* a day the time I was employed.

65,597. How many days?—I cannot tell you, if I speak the truth.

65,598. Was it more than before?—I cannot tell you.

65,599. Who paid you?—Mr. Galloway or Mr. Green. It was at one of their places; I do not know which.

65,600. Was it after the election?—I think it was before the election, before I polled; I think I got nothing after.

65,601. You were one of the ordinary runners?—Yes.

65,602. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Mr. Baines.

65,603. Alone?—Alone.

65,604. Not Mr. Baines and Mr. Brown?—No; Mr. Baines.

65,605. Did you get anything for running at that election?—Not one farthing; not a halfpenny.

65,606. Did you run?—No; I was not employed.

65,607. And got nothing?—No.

65,608. At the last election of 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

65,609. You did get a little then I think?—Yes.

65,610. How much did you get?—It was either eight or nine days.

65,611. How much?—I had 3*s.* 6*d.* a day.

65,612. When were you paid?—I was paid before the election.

65,613. That was about 30*s.*?—Yes.

65,614. Who paid you?—I was paid at that office in Pier Street, by Legitt.

65,615. Were you in Lowgate?—No.

65,616. A runner there?—No.

65,617. You are in the Lowgate list of runners?—Yes; but I was at that office in Pier Street.

65,618. You were set down in Lowgate?—No; in Pier Street.

Robert Brough.

29th July 1853.

65,619. Do you live in Lowgate ward?—I live in Dixon's Square, Blue Bell Entry. That was where I got set down and paid.

65,620. Were you not paid something for your vote after you voted last time?—Not one farthing.

65,621. When did you get the last payment?—Oh yes, it was after the election the last payment.

Mr. W. Cutt.

Mr. WILLIAM CUTT sworn, and examined.

65,622. Where do you live?—No. 26, Market Place.

65,623. What is your business?—A woollendraper.

65,624. What rent do you pay for a house?—170*l.* a year.

65,625. Are you a freeman?—No.

65,626. At which election were you entitled to vote?—For 1847.

65,627. Did you vote at that election?—I did.

65,628. For whom?—Mr. Clay.

65,629. Were you on his committee?—No.

65,630. Did you act for him at all?—No.

65,631. As an agent?—No.

65,632. Did you canvass for him?—No.

65,633. Did you get any people set down in his interest?—No.

65,634. Did you make any promise?—No.

65,635. Nor any payment?—No.

65,636. Did any money pass through your hands?—No.

65,637. At the last election, in 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

65,638. Were you on any committee?—Yes.

65,639. Was that the committee Mr. Davis was on?—He was the chairman of the same committee.

65,640. Names were set down at your room?—They were.

65,641. Did you canvass in the streets?—I did.

65,642. Do you remember canvassing a man of the name of William Watson, in Church Lane?—I do not recollect the names. I recollect canvassing in Church Lane.

65,643. I am told you and Mr. Davis put down Watson for six days?—I did not.

65,644. Do you recollect the man?—I recollect canvassing in Church Lane, but I do not recollect the name of Watson.

65,645. Watson has said you did, and probably you would not set your recollection against his?—Can you tell me his business?

65,646. No. William Watson, of Church Lane?—I do not know the name. The principal part of the men were strangers to me. I know one thing, I never set down a man, and I never discharged one as a runner.

65,647. When canvassing, if a person applied to be set down, should you not have sent him to the committee room?—I should have told him to go to Mr. Davis.

65,648. What to do?—To get set down.

65,649. You do not mean that you yourself made any entries?—Not at all.

65,650. The course would be to send them to the room?—I should have told them to go to Mr. Davis.

65,651. Did you send several that way?—Not any.

65,652. How many?—I do not recollect one. I recollect some men coming to me in the committee room and saying they wanted to be set down, and I said, "I have nothing to do with setting anybody down; you must see Mr. Davis."

65,653. Any application of that kind you referred to Mr. Davis?—Yes.

65,654. This Watson, we hear, was a fruiterer?—I do not recollect the man. There is a man stands in the Market Place; I do not recollect that is his name; but that I recollect going with Mr. Davis to. It is not in Church Lane; I think it is in Hale's Entry, and I recollect the man now.

65,655. What happened?—I recollect going to canvass that man, and he said, what did we intend to do; we had got his brother, or two other brothers. I said, "For myself, I do not intend to do anything. If you want pay for your vote, I shall have nothing to do with you," and I left him and came away.

65,656. Did you leave him with Mr. Davis?—I think Mr. Davis came away at the same time.

65,657. He got 30*s.*?—I do not know.

65,658. Did you not pay him?—I never paid a halfpenny, and never saw a halfpenny.

65,659. Did you not say, "Go to the district room?"—No; if Mr. Davis was with me, I should not say so.

65,660. Did you make any payments?—Not one.

65,661. Did you attend when payments were made?—I never saw any payments made.

65,662. After the election?—Neither before nor after the election. I never saw any money paid, and I never paid any.

65,663. Were you not present when Watson's name was set down?—I think not. I do not recollect it.

Mr. W. Cutt.

29th July 1853.

65,664. Supposing he was to state positively that you were, would you undertake to pledge your oath that it was not so, or is it merely that you do not remember the fact?—I do not remember the fact at all as to any one being set down in my presence.

65,665. Would you undertake to pledge your oath against his, supposing he was to say you were?—I could not call to mind positively, but I can say this: from what I recollect I believe that I never promised any one.

65,666. You do not mean to carry it further than that you do not remember?—I do not remember ever saying so.

65,667. It may have been so?—I should be inclined to think that I never did anything of the sort.

65,668. Still you will not be more positive?—Only to say that I do not recollect it.

65,669. Suppose the man were to swear you did so, you would not say that man was committing perjury?—No; I would not say that, because I do not recollect the thing.

65,670. Do you mean to say you were not in the room, or that you will not say you did not take part in setting his name down?—I can only say I do not recollect his name being put down.

65,671. Can you say you took no part in putting his name down?—Yes; that I can swear.

65,672. You say you recollect some parties did require to have their names set down?—Yes; many.

65,673. When you canvassed?—No; they came to the committee room.

65,674. Did they apply to you?—Yes.

65,675. You recollect the parties did?—Yes; I recollect several did that.

65,676. Tell me, if you please, what it was you said to them?—I said, "I have nothing to do with setting any one on; you must apply to Mr. Davis, the chairman."

65,677. Did you lead them to understand it should be done; or that they must apply to Mr. Davis to see whether it was done or not; do you understand the difference; did you give them to understand that Mr. Davis would do it?—No; I did not give them to understand he would do anything of the sort. This is just the thing I should say to them, "You must see Mr. Davis. I do not interfere at all with setting any one on, or discharging any one; you must appeal to Mr. Davis."

65,678. My question to you was this: supposing Mr. Watson to say positively, upon his oath, that you were present and did take part in setting his name down, would you pledge your memory that you did not; or will you pledge your oath against his oath?—About my assisting in setting his name down?

65,679. Yes.—I am satisfied in my own mind I never set any one's name down, or assisted in setting a name down.

65,680. Have the kindness to answer it in the terms I put the question: will you say you do not remember it; or will you say that you decline to pledge your oath as to whether it occurred or not: supposing he swears to the fact that you took a part in it, do you mean to pledge your oath that it did not occur, or that you do not remember it?—I do not remember its occurring.

65,681. You will not carry it further than that?—No; I cannot go further than that.

William Ramsey.

WILLIAM RAMSEY sworn, and examined.

65,682. Where do you live?—Lister Street.

65,683. What is your business?—A saddler.

65,684. Do you pay rent for a house?—Yes.

65,685. What rent do you pay?—£24 a year.

65,686. Are you a freeman?—No.

65,687. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—1852.

65,688. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

65,689. We have been told that something passed about ordering some goods at your shop, by Mr. Barkworth, shortly before the election,—some saddlery goods: do you understand that that had anything to do with your vote or not?—No; I do not think it had.

65,690. Was the acceptance of the goods any condition to your giving the vote?—No; I do not think it had anything to do with it.

65,691. Do you think that the return of the harness afterwards was a bonâ fide return in the way of business?—Yes. I think Mr. Barkworth did not like the harness, and I did not mean him to have it if he did not like it.

65,692. You voted for the blue party?—Yes.

65,693. I need not ask a gentleman in your situation whether he received anything?—No; I did not receive anything.

65,694. Were you on any committee?—No.

65,695. Did you take any part with the blues?—No.

65,696. Never at all anywhere?—No.

65,697. Did any money pass through your hands?—No.

65,698. Have you anything you can tell us upon the subject?—No.

William Ramsey.

29th July 1853.

65,699. Were you canvassed for your vote by Mr. Barkworth?—Mr. Henry Barkworth asked me who I should vote for.

65,700. Was that the same day the harness was ordered?—No; I think Mr. Henry Barkworth canvassed me before.

65,701. John Boulderson Barkworth ordered the harness?—Yes; that was the gentleman who ordered the harness.

65,702. Had you been previously canvassed by his brother, Mr. Henry Barkworth?—I think it was before I had been canvassed by Mr. Henry Barkworth.

65,703. Are you sure?—I am not quite sure about it.

65,704. Had you promised your vote previously?—As far as I can recollect, I had promised it to Mr. Henry Barkworth. They were the only two parties that did ask me on that side.

65,705. Did you promise your vote the first time it was asked?—Yes.

65,706. Did you always mean to vote blue?—I do not know, I am sure, for that.

65,707. Had Mr. Barkworth before dealt with you?—Yes; I have worked for him three or four years. I have been four years in Hull.

65,708. Had you ever supplied him with a set of harness before?—Not Mr. John. I had his brother.

65,709. Had you supplied Mr. Henry Barkworth with a set of harness?—Yes.

65,710. Not his brother?—No.

65,711. How much do you think John Barkworth had paid you altogether, previously?—10*l.* or 12*l.* a year.

65,712. When Mr. John Barkworth ordered this harness, was there a conversation on the subject of the election?—I think he asked me who I should vote for this election; but I am not sure whether he asked me at the time or not. I cannot say positively.

65,713. You think he did?—I think he said, "Who do you vote for this election?"

65,714. And then did you tell him?—Yes.

65,715. And then he gave you the order?—I think he gave me the order first. I think he came in, and said he wanted a set of harness.

65,716. You cannot tell which was first?—No. I do not think the harness had anything to do with the election at all, because when he returned the harness he said I might make him another set, if I liked.

65,717. He asked you for your vote on the same occasion, but you cannot tell which of those things, the order or the asking, took place first?—I do not recollect.

65,718. If I understand you, you do not recollect the order in which it occurred?—He inquired about the harness first. I do not know whether he gave me the order first just now.

65,719. Did he give an order then?—I think he did.

65,720. Did I understand you to say, to the best of your recollection the brother had asked you about your vote before?—Yes, I believe he did.

65,721. And you said you thought you should vote blue?—To the best of my recollection I had promised him to vote before.

John Atkin.

JOHN ATKIN sworn, and examined.

65,722. Where do you live?—29, Chariot Street. My shop is there. I live on the Anlaby Road.

65,723. What is your business?—I keep a tallow chandler's shop.

65,724. What rent do you pay?—£18 there.

65,725. Are you a freeman?—Yes; I am a burgess, and I vote as a burgess.

65,726. When did you take up your freedom?—In 1821.

65,727. You are not entered as a freeman?—I do not know. I am a burgess. In 1821 I took it up.

65,728. You voted before the Reform Act?—I do not know how long I have voted. I was at sea before I was in business.

65,729. Did you ever vote before the Reform Act?—Perhaps; but I do not know.

65,730. Did you vote in 1841?—Perhaps I might.

65,731. I will tell you who were the candidates: Hanmer and James, and Clay and Thompson?—I should say for the blues.

65,732. Hanmer and James?—Yes, I should think so.

65,733. Were you on the committee?—No.

65,734. You lived in Chariot Street then?—Yes.

65,735. Then you did vote for Hanmer and James?—Yes, I think so.

65,736. Were you on any committee?—No.

65,737. Did you have any room occupied by them?—No.

65,738. Did any money pass through your hands at all?—No.

65,739. Did you get any names set down?—No.

65,740. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

65,741. Did you receive any money?—No.

65,742. Were you on any committee?—No.

65,743. Did you take any part in the election?—No.

John Atkin.

29th July 1853.

65,744. Except voting?—Except voting.
65,745. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
65,746. After the election, was a room used at your house by the blue party?—No.
65,747. Was there not?—No.
65,748. A room in which some people were paid some money?—No.
65,749. You seem to know it before I put the question to you. You answer a little quickly. Just attend to the question. Was there any room at your house after the election?—None at all.
65,750. Not by any person?—No.
65,751. Have you got a pump on your premises in Chariot Street?—No; we have not one there.
65,752. In 1841, had you a pump?—No; we had no pump at all.
65,753. Was any room used in 1841 after the election?—I never had a room used at all.
65,754. Were any persons paid at your house?—No.
65,755. Were any persons paid at your house after the election of 1841?—None at all. I never saw any money exchanged in my house in my life.
65,756 Were any persons paid out of your house?—Not to my knowledge.
65,757. Do you know of a man standing behind a pump with a green shade over his eyes?—No. I never received any money at any election in my life.
65,758. I am not supposing you were the person; but was there anybody who paid people at your house after the election?—No; none whatever.
65,759. You know nothing about it?—Nothing at all. I have explained all I can to you.

James Waddie.

JAMES WADDIE sworn, and evamined.

65,760. Where do you live?—22, Wincolmlee.
65,761. What is your business?—Plumber and glazier.
65,762. What rent do you pay?—£13.
65,763. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
65,764. When were you made a freeman?—In 1839, I believe.
65,765. At whose expense?—My own.
65,766. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Yes.
65,767. Who for?—Hanmer and James.
65,768. Did you receive anything at that election?—15*s.*, I believe.
65,769. When were you paid?—After the election
65,770. Where?—At the committee room, Wincolmlee.
65,771. Linwood's?—Yes.
65,772. Who paid you there?—I do not know, I am sure.
65,773. Did you not see the man?—Yes. I saw him, but I did not know his name.
65,774. Were there a good many paid at that place?—I should say there would.
65,775. How many were there when you were there?—I cannot tell.
65,776. 300?—No; nothing like that.
65,777. Thirty?—Yes; perhaps there might.
65,778. How long after the election was it?—Well, I cannot say; some time after.
65,779. A week or a month?—Yes; perhaps it was.
65,780. Six months?—No; not so far back.
65,781. You can tell me?—Perhaps about a week.
65,782. Were you sent for to go there?—No.
65,783. How came you to go?—I happened to be on the premises working at the time.
65,784. Did you assist in making the payments?—No.
65,785. Did you go back to your work directly you got your money?—I do not know; perhaps I might.
65,786. Were you in the room while the payments were going on after you were paid yourself?—I believe there was only one paid at a time.
65,787. You do not know who paid you?—I do not.
65,788. Did you hear the name mentioned?—No, I did not.
65,789. You were working there, and saw them come in, did you not?—I was not on the premises the whole of the time.
65,790. Do not you know who some of them were?—No.
65,791. In 1847, what did you do the next election?—I polled for Brown.
65,792. What did you get then for your vote?—£1.
65,793. When were you paid?—A day or two after the election, I believe.
65,794. Where was that?—At the Sculcoates Tavern.
65,795. Who paid you that; do you remember?—I do not. Mr. Yeall was there, and can, perhaps. I do not know.
65,796. In 1852, did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes.
65,797. Did you have your name set down?—No.
65,798. Did you get any money?—No.

James Waddie.

29th July 1853.

65,799. Nothing at that election ?—No.
65,800. Nothing at all ?—Not a farthing.
65,801. Nor any promise ?—No.
65,802. Did you have a room engaged ?—No.
65,803. Did you make any payments ?—Not one.

Thomas Carlton.

THOMAS CARLTON sworn, and examined.

65,804. Where do you live ?—In Chapel Lane.
65,805. What is your business ?—A whitesmith.
65,806. What rent do you pay ?—£20.
65,807. Are you a freeman ?—No.
65,808. A 10*l.* householder ?—Yes.
65,809. Which election were you entitled to vote at ?—Brown and Clay's.
65,810. 1847 ?—Yes.
65,811. Who did you vote for ?—Brown and Clay.
65,812. Did you get any money for your vote ?—No; nothing at all. Never intended or expected anything of the sort.
65,813. Did you get paid anything, or any promise ?—No.
65,814. Did you get a promise ?—Never thought of such a thing.
65,815. At the last election, who did you vote for ?—Moore and Butler.
65,816. Did get your name set down ?—I got some money brought to me after the election, but I was ill in bed at that time.
65,817. At what time ?—At the time I got the money I got 17*s.* brought to my house.
65,818. Who brought it to you ?—Mr. Sylbon sent it to my house. I was in bed.
65,819. Mr. Bamford put your name down, did he not ?—I was solicited for my vote at Mr. Bamford's place; one of the gentlemen came, and solicited my vote.
65,820. Did you say they might please themselves about setting your name down ?—I said I should not go against them.
65,821. Who did you vote for ?—Moore and Butler.
65,822. Who do you say you told so ?—Mr. Garfitt, I believe, was the gentleman that came from Mr. Bamford's.
65,823. Were you ill some time before the election ?—I was very much subject to rheumatics. I was not aware I should be paid that money.
65,824. You did not do anything for Moore and Butler ?—No.
65,825. They brought you 17*s.* ?—They brought me 17*s.* when I was ill in bed.
65,826. How did you get to vote then when you were so ill ?—I could walk about, but I could not work. I went to the poll. I never went in a carriage or anything. I went and polled, and walked back, and went to bed.
65,827. Did they pay you any on that day ?—No; I never went near anyone.
65,828. Were you in bed from the time you polled to the time it came ?—No.
65,829. You walked to the poll, and went straight back to bed ?—Yes.
65,830. You had been seriously ill ?—I was bad with the rheumatics; I could not get about.
65,831. Is Garfitt a voter ?—I do not know.
65,832. Where does he live ?—I do not know where he lives. His office is at High Street; Garfitt and Sleight's, opposite Mr. Bamford.
65,833. Do you know his Christian name ?—I do not.

Ralph Tadman.

RALPH TADMAN sworn, and examined.

65,834. Where do you live ?—Francis Street West.
65,835. What is your business ?—I am in no business at present; I am out of business.
65,836. You have left it ?—Yes.
65,837. What rent do you pay ?—£12.
65,838. Are you a freeman ?—Yes.
65,839. When were you made free ?—Fifty years since.
65,840. At your own expense ?—Yes.
65,841. You got 4*l.* and 2*l.*, perhaps, in the old days, for your vote ?—Yes.
65,842. Did you vote at the election of 1841 ?—No.
65,843. Why not ?—I was not on the register.
65,844. You did not get anything for not voting, did you ?—No.
65,845. In 1847, who did you vote for ?—I did not vote at that election.
65,846. Why was that ?—Because I was not registered.
65,847. In 1852, who did you vote for ?—The blues.
65,848. Moore and Butler ?—Yes.
65,849. Did you get any money ?—No.
65,850. Neither before nor after the election ?—No.

Ralph Tadman.

29th July 1853.

65,850. Neither before nor after the election?—No.

65,851. Do you know Mr. Hodgson, the chairman, in Francis Street?—I never was in the committee room.

65,852. I did not ask you that. I ask if you know Mr. Hodgson?—No, I do not.

65,853. You do not know him?—No.

65,854. Doctor Hodgson, the surgeon; do you mean to tell me you do not know him?—Oh yes, I know him very well.

65,855. Did you offer him your vote for 2*l.*?—No.

65,856. Did he canvass you?—Not that I know of.

65,857. Did he ever speak to you about your vote?—Not that I know of.

65,858. For the orange party?—There were some people called at our house, but I never was in. I never was canvassed by anybody.

65,859. For the orange?—For the orange nor the blues neither.

65,860. You were canvassed?—I never saw any of them. They called at my house, but I never saw any of them. There was a ticket left, to go to the poll. I told nobody whether I should go to the poll or not. I never promised. I did not intend to go to vote. My daughter said, "If I was you I should."

65,861. Perhaps you left your wife in charge of your vote?—I wish I had. She has been dead eleven years.

65,862. Did any offer reach you about your vote?—No.

65,863. Not in any way?—No. My vote was a good and independent vote.

65,864-5. They did not offer you any money?—No.

JOHN GILDART JACKSON sworn, and examined.

J. G. Jackson.

65,866. Where do you live?—Spring Bank.

65,867. What is your business?—A wine merchant.

65,868. What rent do you pay?—Forty guineas.

65,869. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

65,870. When were you made a freeman?—About twenty years ago.

65,871. At your own expense, probably?—At my own expense.

65,872. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Yes.

65,873. Who did you vote for then?—Hanmer and James.

65,874. Were you on any of the committees?—No.

65,875. Did you canvass for them?—No.

65,876. Did you send any person to any room to have their names set down?—No.

65,877. Did you make any payments for them?—No.

65,878. Did any money pass through your hands?—No.

65,879. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

65,880. Were you on any committee?—No.

65,881. No money passed through your hands?—No.

65,882. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

65,883. Were you on any committee then?—Yes.

65,884. Which committee were you on?—North Myton.

65,885. I believe you were an active member?—I was one of the committee.

65,886. Were you present a good deal?—I was there occasionally.

65,887. A good deal there?—Pretty often.

65,888. I am told you were active for the party. Do you know of persons applying, and getting their names set down?—I have been at the rooms sometimes when they applied.

65,889. They had their names put in some list or book?—They were.

65,890. Applications for money or employment, I mean?—Yes. I have been present when the applicants have come for employment.

65,891. I do not know whether you yourself inserted any in any book?—Never.

65,892. Was such a proceeding as that of not uncommon occurrence?—I have been there several times when the names have been put down.

65,893. What part did you take in it?—I used to canvass.

65,894. But when they came to the committee-room?—I used to refer them to the clerk, Mr. Steeple.

65,895. That was equivalent to ordering him to put them down?—Not exactly. I had nothing to do with that.

65,896. Who could order it, if you did not, when you were there?—When they applied I may have told them they had better go to Mr. Steeple.

65,897. He was sitting in another room?—He was sitting in the same room.

65,898. Did he have authority to attend to applications of that sort?—I suppose so.

65,899. He was the clerk?—Yes.

65,900. Was not it his duty to do what you told him?—Not exactly. I used to refer them to Mr. Steeple, and he pleased himself about setting them down.

65,901. I dare say you looked to the book occasionally?—I do not think I ever did.

65,902. Did you hear that some were put down?—I am certain some were, because I was present.

J. G. Jackson.

29th June 1853.

65,903. Did you canvass out of doors also?—Very often.
65,904. Did you send persons also to have their names set down?—No, I never did.
65,905. Did not some persons apply to you?—I do not think they ever did.
65,906. Did any persons apply to you for rooms for committees?—No.
65,907. You say they did not?—They never applied.
65,908. Were you present when any payments were made?—I do not remember any payments being made.
65,909. Were you present?—I was not present at the time.
65,910. When these persons applied, generally for employment, either to yourself or those sitting with you, what was said to them?—When they applied I had nothing to do with them; I would have nothing to do with them, I said they must apply to Mr. Steeple.
65,911. If they applied to him in the same room, you would hear what passed, would you not?—I took no further notice of it.
65,912. You could hear what passed?—I put the names down very often while I was there.
65,913. Did the men say, "I want employment," or "want to run?—They came in to be employed as runners, and he put them down.
65,914. Did you ever tell him not to set them down?—Yes.
65,915. Did you ever tell him, if he did you would not be answerable for his conduct?—No.
65,916. He was your clerk?—He was the clerk to the committee-room.
65,917. Sometimes he was there quite alone?—Oh yes; he may have been alone.
65,918. Did he sometimes stay there alone?—Yes, often.
65,919. And some of these men came in at the time?—I do not think they ever did.
65,920. We hear that the runners at your committee-room were changed very often?—I have understood so, but I am not certain of it.
65,921. You understood so at the time?—I have understood they have been changed.
65,922. They have been changed from time to time?—Yes; and on a short time, and then others put on.
65,923. Was it for the purpose of keeping in your service a greater number of persons?—I should suppose so.

George Adams.

GEORGE ADAMS sworn, and examined.

65,924. Where do you live?—Hessle Road.
65,925. What do you do?—Supply the vessels with water in the docks.
65,926. Do you pay any rent?—Yes.
65,927. How much?—Six guineas.
65,928. When were you made a freeman?—In 1840.
65,929. 1839, do you not mean?—No; 1840.
65,930. Who paid for it?—Myself.
65,931. Did you vote at the next election?—No.
65,932. Were you not on the register?—Yes. I was a sailor.
65,933. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I did not vote at all.
65,934. Were you at sea?—Yes.
65,935. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
65,936. Did you get your name put down?—Yes.
65,937. Where was that done?—I had it promised to be set down in Humber Street.
65,938. Who said he would do it; was it Mr. Davis?—Yes.
65,939. He said so?—Yes.
65,940. I believe you got some money at the Sir John Falstaff, afterwards?—Yes.
65,941. How much?—30*s*.
65,942. Who paid you?—I do not know who he was.
65,943. Mr. Davis?—No.
65,944. A man of the name of Ouston?—I have heard so since; I did not know at the time.
65,945. Who was at the Falstaff on this occasion, do you remember?—Four or five, I think. They were all strangers to me, except my father and John Labon.
65,946. Do you remember the other two or three?—I do not know their names. They are strangers.
65,947. I hear they were nine altogether?—Six, I understood there were; I did not take particular notice.
65,948. Six besides you three?—No; with us three.
65,949. Do you know Nicholson, a sailmaker?—No.
65,950. Nor the Pilot Boy?—No.
65,951. You do not remember any of the other names, do you?—No, I do not.

Mr. P. Lambert.

29th July 1853.

Mr. PERCIVAL LAMBERT sworn, and examined.

65,952. Where do you live?—Holborn Mount.

65,953. Do you carry on any business?—Yes; a wine merchant.

65,954. Are you in partnership?—In partnership with my brother.

65,955. What rent do you pay?—We pay no rent. We are rated at about 300*l.* a year.

65,956. Are you a freeman?—I am.

65,957. When did you become free?—About twenty-three years since.

65,958. At your own expense?—I presume so.

65,959. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—I did. I have always voted for the Conservatives at every election.

65,960. What colour?—Blue; always blue.

65,961. Were you upon any committee at that election?—I was not.

65,962. Did you assist in canvassing at that election for them?—I have never taken any interest in an election till the last year; not as a canvasser; any active part, I should say.

65,963. In 1847 you voted for—— ?—Baines and Brown.

65,964. Did you take any active part in that election?—Not any; I did nothing but vote.

65,965. I believe, at the last election of 1852 you were the deputy chairman of Hol derness?—Yes, I was.

65,966. I believe you were active for the blue party, and attended a good deal?—I attended occasionally; perhaps not particularly active, nor particularly careless. I did what I could.

65,967. Mr. West gave you a good character for activity: he was the chairman?—He was.

65,968. He told us that he was very often absent, and you took the chief seat as chairman?—He was generally absent; at least the last week, when I attended in his place.

65,969. You were deputy chairman during the last week?—I was.

65,970. Do you remember that applications were made at the room for persons to be set down for employment?—I know that during the election many applications were made, and whenever I met with them personally I put them off. I told them that I should refer it to the chairman, and in the meantime they must wait. I never put one name down myself.

65,971. How long did they have to wait; probably not long?—They had to wait their time, till Mr. West returned.

65,972. When he returned were they put down?—The election immediately took place, and so they were put off. He did not return till the eve of the election. I do not know if it was done.

65,973. Do you know whether there were any applications made, excepting during that time?—I am aware they made applications, and were put off; they made applications to be put down during the canvass. I mean to say I did not put one down.

65,974. The last week, when you were chairman, you did not put any down?—Not one.

65,975. When the names were put down, I suppose some clerk or some person would take them, probably?—We had no clerk. He was in York Castle for debt.

65,976. Had you not somebody instead of him, who acted, and took the business of clerk?—I do not remember. I think the last three or four days Mr. Rollit came generally to superintend, and lend any assistance. We had no other specially engaged.

65,977. Did you, when Mr. Rollit was clerk, tell him to set down names?—I never told Mr. Rollitt or any clerk to put any one's name down. I cannot answer for the deeds of others.

65,978. How many do you think were set down?—Upon my word I do not know; I never looked over the list. Perhaps twenty or thirty; I do not know.

65,979. You mean twenty or thirty were set down before Mr. West went away?—Yes.

65,980. Before he went away?—I think about that number.

65,981. Did you canvass out of doors occasionally?—I did.

65,982. If persons applied for employment, when you were out of doors, as runners, what did you direct them to do; where to go?—I never, except in one instance, canvassed among that class of people. I took all in my own neighbourhood: Holborn Mount, Pennington Street, and Sutton Bank; the most respectable class of voters.

65,983. Some persons might apply to you, and say, "Set me down as a runner," or anything of that sort, without your canvassing them? Where should you direct them to go?—I do not remember that they did; and if they had I should always put them off, and refer them to Mr. West.

65,984. To the district room?—To their committee room.

65,985. You do not remember that?—I really do not remember that they did; I was so little known by the constituency.

65,986. Did you pay any monies at all?—Yes; in one instance.

65,987. What instance was that?—When Mr. West was away, I paid the current expenses of the week to our clerk, Todd, and knowing his situation I thought there might be some inquiry as to it; so I took a receipt, which I have in my pocket.

65,988. Was it for the disbursements?—For the week Mr. West was away; for colour staffs, and clerks, and doorkeepers, and incidental expenses.

65,989. The last account of Todd was that he did not go to York Castle till after the election. First it was said he voted at the election?—Yes; he went; he was taken to the Castle; it strikes me, a week before the election.

65,990. He voted?—Did he? I do not exactly know how that was.

65,991. There is some little mistake about the time of his going?—This is the only paper I have that I got from Mr. Harris. I should have handed it over to Todd. As he was only in doubtful circumstances, I thought it was more prudent to get a receipt; and I handed it to him to pay. I see how it is now.

65,992. It appears by the poll book he voted?—Yes.

65,993. This is on the 3d of July?—Yes; I see how it is now. Mr. Harris gave me the money, to hand over to Todd, to pay for the current expenses of the week, and knowing Todd's position I thought I should like to have his receipt, that I might have it, in case he did not pay, because when people are pressed for money those that apply first get it.

65,994. When Mr. West came back, at the eve of the election, do you know whether these persons who applied for employment were then set down?—I never made any inquiry.

65,995. You were present at the committee?—I was present occasionally, certainly.

65,996. After he came back?—I do not remember saying anything about that to Mr. West.

65,997. You say you put them off?—I put them off a little.

65,998. Do you not know those names were afterwards set down?—I am sure I do not. I have no knowledge whatever of them.

65,999. Were they set down when you were in the committee room, after Mr. West left?—They might, but I do not remember.

66,000. You do not remember any individual names?—No, I do not, indeed.

66,001. If an application was made, would it be part of Todd's duty to set down the names of the persons, according to the course of business?—No; he would refer them to the chairman.

66,002. And the chairman would refer them back to him, would not he, when the chairman was away?—It might or it might not; I cannot say. I did not take so much interest in it as to make myself master of all those ins and outs.

66,003. What is your view of the clerk's duty; anything they had to do in the absence of the chairman?—To compare the canvass books.

66,004. With reference to setting names down? You see Mr. West the chairman was absent for a whole week?—I think perhaps scarcely a week.

66,005. What was Todd to do when people applied, and Mr. West was not there?—He would probably put their names down, and tell them that on the return of the chairman, Mr. West, the thing would be inquired into, and if we could employment would be furnished; but there was no promise made.

66,006. How would you have furnished them with employment? In what way; seeing that he was not expected back till the polling day?—We did not know when he was expected; he might have come back at any day.

66,007. Did you expect him back?—Yes, I expected him back every day. I am not quite certain that he did not return a day or two before. I do not charge my memory with all these trifling things. I only say I never made a single promise, I never put down a single name, and I never spent a single shilling during the election, personally.

66,008. They were put down, I understand?—I knew they were being put down. I never put one down.

66,009. You knew it was in order that they might get some payment?—It was the first election I took any interest in.

66,010. Did you not know they were applying to be set down in order to get some pay?—In my innocency I thought employment was to be furnished for them, and they really would be paid for the work they did, and that was some 7*s.* 6*d.* a day.

66,011. If they got employment they would vote for the party?—No. I had an impression that they were favourable to the Conservative cause, and that if we did not pay them the opposite party would pay them, and perhaps when they got paid we should lose them.

66,012. Lose their votes?—Lose their votes, certainly.

66,013. Did you know that when you paid this money to Todd?—This money was not to pay the voters.

66,014. It was to pay the messengers employed at the room?—Only the necessary messengers.

66,015. It was to pay some of them?—It was.

66,016. If I understand you, you expected that if they were not employed by you that they would take their votes and services somewhere else? You consider that was a likely thing to happen?—Certainly.

66,017. In order to avoid such a thing, you secured their votes and services yourself by employment?—Not more than we thought we had had services for. I am only speaking of my own individual feeling.

Mr. P. Lambert.

29th July 1853.

66,018. You consider the vote had something to do with it; that the vote and services go together, and if you lost them they would have gone together; if you gained them they would have gone together?—Yes.

66,019. I believe, in your innocency, there was a good deal of refreshment going on in your committee room the day of the election?—Certainly not.

66,020. Nothing of the kind? Was not there some wine and other refreshments in your committee room on the day of the election?—No; on the morning of the election. Mr. Field, the deputy chairman, applied to me, and said he should like to have a dozen of wine. I said Andrew Hare was the publican. He said he was not likely to have so good wine as we should have, being wholesale merchants, and asked if I would send a dozen. I said no, I would not, because if we took the committee room of Andrew Hare he ought to have any benefit of what was consumed on the premises,—necessary expenses, one considered; and he said he would arrange that with him.

66,021. If you say you did not supply any I do not want the explanation?—I did supply a dozen.

66,022. Was it had at the room on the day of the election?—It was for the use of the committee men on the day of the election.

66,023. Mere nonsense; refreshment?—Just so.

66,024. And some voters also had it?—I am not aware that they had.

66,025. Did Hare get the benefit of that order?—He was to have 1*s.* 6*d.* for every bottle that was drank. I must add, I never sent in any account of that dozen of wine. I was never paid for it. I made them a present of it.

66,026. I am told you made a present to the blue party?—Not a sixpence.

66,027. Your firm?—We let them a room of ours in Quay Street, for the purpose of paying the out-voters.

66,028. You subscribed, did not you, to bind your firm?—No.

66,029. You got nothing for the wine, and Andrew Hare gets 1*s.* 6*d.* a bottle?—We get nothing, and Andrew Hare gets 1*s.* 6*d.* a bottle.

66,030. None of it was returned?—The empty bottles only.

66,031. You had none of the wine?—No.

John Warrener.

JOHN WARRENER sworn, and examined.

66,032. Where do you live?—Salthouse Lane.

66,033. What is your business?—Foreman for Messrs. Johnson and Walker.

66,034. I believe they are merchants in Queen Street?—They are.

66,035. You are not a voter, I believe?—No; I am not a voter.

66,036. You never voted?—No; never; not intelligent enough for that at present.

66,037. Did you take any interest in the last election?—Yes.

66,038. For Moore and Butler?—No, Sir, I should not like; Clay and Goderich.

66,039. In what way did you interest yourself?—On the working man's committee.

66,040. Were you on their committee?—Yes; the working man's committee in Dock Street, No. 8.

66,041. Of which Moat was the secretary?—Yes.

66,042. Do you know a man of the name Bower receiving some money from Murgatroyd?—Is he a cooper?

66,043. Yes; I dare say he is?—Yes; I believe it would be the same Bower; he would be working at Mr. Sisson's.

66,044. He is the man?—Yes, I know.

66,045. Do you know of his receiving any money?—I will tell you the circumstance, and leave you to judge. I saw Wass; he was working at the same house at the election. I was ordered by Mr. Goddard to go and see him. I went and saw him. I said, "Wass, I understand you got paid." He said, "Yes; the blues have paid honourably." I said, "Who paid you?" He said, "I would rather not tell that." "But I guess Murgatroyd paid you; is that correct?" He said, "I shall not say; I was ordered not to tell." I said, "How many of you voted in your place?" He said, "There were five or six. I will not tell; I was ordered not to tell. Three gentlemen came to our establishment, and called us out of the shop, one at a time, and paid me 1*l.* each." I said, "You worked at the election morning." He said, "We worked in our establishment up to the election morning, and all got paid;" and he told me the names of those that did get paid; Bower was one.

66,046. Was there another man of the name of Lyon?—Just after the election, when the petition was filed against Mr. Clay and Lord Goderich, there was a gentleman of the name of Goddard down.

66,047. Did you say Brown or Bower?—Bower, I believe, is the name.

66,048. Where does he live?—In Wincolmlee; I do not know the man.

66,049. Do you know his first name?—I am sure I do not know. He did tell me his first name, but it has slipped my mind again. When the petition was filed against Mr. Clay and Lord Goderich, Hart says, "Warrener, I see what is going to be the result of the election. They are going to petition against the men for bribery." I said, "There is no bribery that I have heard tell on, without setting down names is that, and that has been of general occurrence, I dare say, on the blue and the orange side." I said, "I do not know anything about it. I said, "Will those gentlemen take the seats if they unseat the others?" He said, "Of course;" and I said, "I can get one case of direct bribery against them." He asked me who it was. I said, "Charles Stephenson; I believe he got 3*l.*, and 7*s.* 6*d.* besides, from some one in Drypool.

66,050. Where does he live?—Hutchin Street. I went to Goddard when I heard tell of the circumstance, and I and Goddard went down about ten o'clock at night, and found we could not get at Charles Stephenson. I knocked a gentleman up (he was in Court). I got him, and he knocked another up, and we got to Charles Stephenson by this means, and he told me how it occurred. He got the 3*l.* from Edward Stephenson. I and Goddard were not quite satisfied, and we went to Edward Stephenson, and asked him if he paid Charles Stephenson 3*l.* He said, "No; I lent it to him;" and I said, "He tells us you gave it to him to vote." He said, "I can tell you where the money came from; who left it."

66,051. Did he tell you where the money came from?—No; he said, "I will tell where the money came from," because Goddard said, "You will have to answer somewhere else."

66,052. Do you know anything of a man of the name of Lyon getting any money?—He said he had had it given him to vote for Moore and Butler, and he said, "I will tell you where the money came from."

66,053. Did you not learn where the money come from?—He would not tell us.

66,054. Do you know anything of a man of the name of Lyon getting a sum of 10*l.*?—Yes. When Goddard was down, of course he was gleaning all the information he could against the blue party, and I went to a gentleman in this town, and he says, "Warrener, there is a good case, if you can get hold of it." Of course I went to Goddard. I thought he was the likeliest gentleman to get hold of a job of this sort. I went. He went there, and he did not exactly succeed; so he came to me on the night, and he said, "I cannot get at this man very well." I said, "He is at a porter vaults;" and he said, "If I go there the thing might be blown at once." He said, "Will you try?" I said, "I will." I went to the party that gave me the first information, and he said that was the man. I went to his house.

66,055. Is that John Lyon?—John Lyon.

66,056. Does he live in Manor Street?—I went to his house in Manor Street. There is a passage going through into Quay Street. I asked if he was in. I understood from his Missus he was not in; he was at a house; would I go there? and her daughter said she would show where. I went to the door of Mr. Hewitt, the French consul's, on the Dock side.

66,057. Did you see him?—He came to the door. I asked if his name was Lyons, and he said, "Yes." I asked did you work for a man named Ganderton, the porter vaults in Parliament Street, and he said yes.

66,058. Will you state what passed about the money?—I will tell you. I said, "Did you take any active part in the last general election." He said, "Yes." I said, "Were you at some committee room where Arthur Pease, Esq., the banker, was at?" He said, "Yes." I said, "Did he give to you on the election morning 2*s.* to buy 2*s.* worth of flowers?" He said, "He might; I do not recollect." I said, "Did he give you two 5*l.* notes on the morning of the election?" He yaffled and snaffled, and said he could not recollect. I said, "If you told a gentleman, not 100 yards from here, that he did give it to you, would that be speaking the truth?" He said, "It is a bad job; I cannot help it. I suppose it is about this commission of inquiry;" and that is all. I said, "You will have to answer for it somewhere else. If you like you can tell me; it is the same if you do not."

66,059. That is what Lyon said?—Yes.

66,060. Was that Lyon a voter?—I am sure I do not know whether he is a voter or not.

66,061. Is he a man you know if you see him?—Yes; a little man. At one time he used to be a steward of one of the Gainsborough boats, when they used to run up, a many years ago.

66,062. You do not know whether he is a voter?—I do not.

66,063. You gathered from him that he had two 5*l.* notes?—Yes; by the way he shuffled with his answer.

66,064. Did not anything pass about what it was for?—I asked him. He said it was a bad job; he could not help it; he would not say anything else.

66,065. He was a porter?—Yes.

66,066. Do you know William Storey, the shoemaker?—Yes.

66,067. Do you know of his having any money?—It is in the same line. I went to Story's from some information I received.

66,068. Is he a voter?—Yes.

66,069. You had some information?—Yes.

66,070. Did you see him?—No; I did not see him; but I went down; he was out; I saw a next door neighbour.

66,071. Who is the next door neighbour?—He was a shoemaker; Burgess.

66,072. Where does he live?—He lives in a street that goes out of Osborn Street into Myton Street.

66,073. Did you see him?—No; I did not see him at any time.

66,074. What did Burgess tell you?—He told me, after the election he saw him, and

John Warrener.

29th July 1853.

he had gotten as much money as would get him a suit of clothes before the election, for polling for the blues.

66,075. He told you that Story had?—Yes.

66,076. Do you know anything about a man of the name of John Sands?—Yes; that is at the same employment.

66,077. What is he; a porter?—At the same employment as Wass and Bower.

66,078. Where does John Sands live?—He lives in Wincolmlee.

66,079. Did you hear from him of his receiving anything from Murgatroyd?—No. I received this information from Wass himself.

66,080. It is said he had money given to him?—Yes.

66,081. Do you know of any others who received money?—I do not just now. I think those who have received it have gone through your hands, or pretty near all. There is a gentleman of the name of Fenwick. Perhaps I may mention that. There is something in circulation that Mr. Scott gave him a bundle or two of clothes just before the election. Of course when this is going on one would anticipate they mean something about it.

66,082. Who from did he get it?—From Parson Scott, one of the Protestant Alliance clergymen. There is another circumstance. I do not know whether it is of any use or not. Goddard and I, when we were out with the rest,—Goddard was at a certain place, and Mr. Bamford we heard offered 500*l.* for anybody to come forward to unseat Mr. Clay and Lord Goderich.

66,083. That is what they talked about?—Yes.

66,084. You did not hear Mr. Bamford say so?—No; I heard say so; and I know he reported it at head quarters.

66,085. What do you call head quarters?—In London, I think; to Mr. Burges. There is another case: a man of the name of Hilkin took a very active part with the blues this last election; there is some talk about him doing a bit on the sly. I cannot state the facts of it.

66,086. You know nothing about it?—I dare say he has got a good bit of many before times.

66,087. Did you hear anything definite, that we can inquire into it?—I heard at the election that he had got rather tapped; that he was in a cab for no good purpose. There are one or two things I should like to be put right. It is in connexion with the working man's committee. Mr. Burges stated here that the working man's committee abstracted money from the members' pockets.

66,088. No; Mr. Burges said they paid a large sum of money?—This is the circumstance that it is right to be put right; that the sixteen of us got 8*l.*; so we could not abstract a deal for our services.

66,089. Is it not that the working men's committee in all got nearer 60*l.* than 8*l.*?—He sent it on the 24th of June. It was a fortnight I worked for what I had.

66,090. Do you not know the fact that Moat the secretary got nearer 60*l.* than 16*l.*?—No; I was not aware that he had gotten that quantity; we were never told what quantity he had got.

66,091. All you know is that you only got 10*s.*?—I got 1*l.* Some were only employed on the election day, and they got 5*s.*

66,092. The average is 10*s.* each?—Yes.

66,093. Did you not see the amount that Ingram Moat fetched?—No.

66,094. Did he keep the account entirely to himself?—I expect so; him and Hart together.

66,095. You went out disguised at night?—I did.

66,096. Dressed up?—Yes.

66,097. How often?—Only one night; the nomination night.

66,098. How much did you get paid for that?—Nothing.

66,099. What were you disguised for?—When I first joined them I joined them before there was any meeting.

66,100. Why did you go disguised on the nomination night?—To see that the blue party did not bribe.

66,101. How could that prevent the blue party bribing?—It would not prevent them; but if we ascertained they had bribed of course we should send it in.

66,102. Were you assisting Goddard, the police officer?—I was not with him; he was out that night.

66,103. Were you assisting him?—No; there was no arrangement for me to assist him at all; I was by myself.

66,104. Who provided you with these disguises?—I provided my own.

66,105. What shop did you get it at?—I borrowed it at Mr. Gresham's.

66,106. There was only one; you got yours there?—Nobody else got their's there; it was their own clothes, the rest.

66,107. How do you mean; you did not borrow it?—I went and asked if he could lend it.

66,108. Asked who?—Mr. Gresham's son.

66,109. Did he lend it?—He did.

John Warrener

29th July 1853.

66,110. Did you hear of Hart applying for money after the election was over, to Mr. Burges?—I heard before we were paid that he had applied to get money to pay us.

66,111. Did you hear that he applied to Burges after the election was over?—No.

66,112. And got the money?—No.

66,113. Did you get any more?—£1 after the election.

66,114. How long after?—Three weeks, perhaps. The money I am talking of was considerable.

66,115. Did you get anything more three weeks after?—No, never a farthing; it was about three weeks after; it was after the county election of Lincolnshire.

66,116. If Moat has stated that he had no money to pay the men, and therefore was obliged to apply to Mr. Burges more than a month afterwards, has he stated what is not true?—I think he has stated two or three things that were not correct.

66,117. You and Hart went to Lincolnshire?—I was authorized by him to go to Barton.

66,118. Did you get any money from Hart or Moat till after the election was over?—Not a farthing; not one halfpenny piece.

C. Horncastle.

CHARLES HORNCASTLE sworn, and examined.

66,119. Where do you live?—Jarratt Street.

66,120. What is your business?—A shipowner.

66,121. What rent do you pay?—The house is my own.

66,122. Are you rated?—At 38*l.* a year.

66,123. Are you a freeman?—I am.

66,124. When were you made a freeman?—I think somewhere about 1820. I am not quite clear as to the time. I think it was 1814.

66,125. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—I believe I did.

66,126. Do you remember who you voted for?—Hanmer and James.

66,127. Were you on any committee?—No.

66,128. Did you canvass for them?—Very likely I would; I am not clear about that.

66,129. Did you meet with any persons that wanted employment?—No.

66,130. Any applicants as runners?—No.

66,131. Did you pay any money at all?—Not a penny.

66,132. Did you receive any to disburse and pay away?—No.

66,133. In the 1847 election, who did you vote for?—I was not in Hull.

66,134. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

66,135. Have you any connexion with the Trinity House?—I have.

66,136. What is your relation to the Trinity House?—One of the elder brothers.

66,137. Have you any apartments in the house?—No.

66,138. Are there some out-brethren?—They all live out.

66,139. What is the number of them?—There are twelve elder brothers and six assistants in Hull.

66,140. Are they voters all of them?—I expect they are; I have no doubt they are.

66,141. Do they vote blue, all of them?—No.

66,142. How many out of the eighteen?—The principal part, I believe. I think some two or three otherwise. Mr. Wilde seems to know.

66,143. Were you in the service?—I have been at sea.

66,144. Are you an elder brother of the Trinity House?—I am.

66,145. The same as Captain Whitaker?—Yes.

66,146. How many pensioners are there?—I am sure I cannot say.

66,147. I mean in Hull?—I cannot really recollect; several hundred.

66,148. Pensioners entitled to vote?—That I cannot say.

66,149. What sort of number?—I have not the least idea of their number.

66,150. Twenty, or fifty, or one hundred?—I cannot say. Do you mean the in-door pensioners?

66,151. All pensioners who would be entitled to vote?—I am sure I have not the least conception.

66,152. I am told they generally vote for the blue party? Do you know whether any influence at all is exercised over their votes?—None, I believe.

66,153. Any coercion or intimidation?—None whatever, that I am aware of.

66,154. Who is the chief officer who resides at the establishment?—There are no residents there; they are all pensioners that live in doors.

66,155. Who is the chief officer over the Hull pensioners?—Each of the hospitals have a matron; that is all.

66,156. Is there no governor?—Not in the hospitals; we are all governors.

66,157. Is there not a resident governor?—No; there is none in any of the hospitals, except a matron in the care of the hospital. Of course they have the rules from the board.

66,158. Do you happen to know that they will all vote blue; the pensioners?—I do not.

C. Horncastle.

29th July 1853.

66,159. You do not know the practice, one way or the other?—I think not.

66,160. You do not know the fact whether any of them received any money for their votes?—I do not.

66,161. Have you heard of it?—No; I have not heard.

66,162. How are they elected in?—By the votes of the board.

66,163. Is the allowance they receive sufficient to maintain their rank in life?—It is well towards it; many of them have to get employment out of doors to assist them.

66,164. Are they not persons who are unequal to work and labour?—Yes.

66,165. You would not probably send to the hospital if you wanted some active runners?—No.

66,166. Did you canvass any of them yourself?—I did.

66,167. For the blue party?—I did.

66,168. Do you know if any of them got their names set down?—I am not aware of any.

66,169. As applicants for runners?—I am not aware.

66,170. Have you heard since that they did?—I cannot say that I have.

66,171. You say that you canvassed some?—I canvassed, I should say, most of them.

66,172. Did they mostly promise to vote blue?—They did.

66,173. Or were they undecided?—They were most of them decided. I merely said, "For whom do you vote?" and I should say those that had votes, nine out of ten, said "For the blue party."

66,174. I suppose they would be in different wards scattered about, or would they belong to any particular ward?—No.

66,175. In different wards?—In different wards.

66,176. You can tell me about the number then?—I really cannot.

66,177. Have you any list of them?—I generally applied when I went in to know who had votes.

66,178. Applied where?—At the rooms.

66,179. You know where they all live?—They all live in the different hospitals, in different rooms.

66,180. Are they all hospitals, or only one room?—No.

66,181. Scattered about in different parts?—Yes.

66,182. You knew were they all lived?—They are in different parts of the town.

66,183. You knew where they were to be found?—I did not, till I inquired.

66,184. How long did it take you to make this canvass of them?—I should say perhaps it was an hour in two days.

66,185. An hour each day?—Yes.

66,186. Did any of them refuse to vote for the blues, that you remember?—I think two or three days. They said they had promised their votes. I said, "Very well; that is sufficient."

66,187. Were you on any committee yourself?—I was not aware, till I saw it in the paper, that I was named as being on Mr. Cattley's committee?—I did certainly go into the room. I was not aware I was on the committee.

66,188. Unless you were on the committee you would hardly have gone into the room?—There were several went in.

66,189. Did you go to report progress?—I do not believe I did.

66,190. Not when you had been canvassing?—I do not know that I did.

66,191. As to those pensioners, you reported the progress you made as to your canvassing?—Yes.

66,192. To the committee?—Yes.

66,193. Mr. Cattley's?—It would depend on what was said at the different rooms.

66,194. What was the mode?—They would report to the district in which they were.

66,195. Did any of them make application for employment?—I am not aware of that.

66,196. When you canvassed them then you would know it?—To the best of my knowledge, I did not.

66,197. Did any apply to be set down as runners or messengers?—They might at the different rooms, but not to me.

66,198. If any of them made application as runners or messengers to you, should you tell them to apply to the room which was in the district?—I should say I had nothing to do with it; they must apply elsewhere.

66,199. That is what you would yourself do?—I cannot say that I can bring it to my mind that any did ask.

66,200. That was the course you would take if such applications had been made?—Yes.

66,201. I must ask you. Do you not know, from information, that some of those pensioners have, since they voted received money?—I have heard so, but I am not aware that they have.

66,202. Who did you hear it from?—I am sure I cannot call to mind.

66,203. Was it only a report that you heard?—Merely a report that they had.

66,204. That some had received money?—Yes.

66,205. Were their names mentioned?—I cannot say that they were.

66,206. I am not imputing to you that you paid them. I ask for information. Be kind enough to mention the names of any of those that you have heard of that received money?—I cannot name one.

66,207. Do you know a man of the name of Finlay (suggested to me) of Holderness? Did you hear that he received some money?—I have not heard more than what I have seen in the papers.

66,208. Did anybody canvass the pensioners but yourself, do you know?—I believe others have done; indeed I have heard they have.

66,209. Was this matter of canvassing the pensioners in any way assigned to you?—No.

66,210. Did you take it voluntarily?—I was asked at one of the committee rooms, would I see any of the pensioners?

66,211. That is what I meant; whether you were asked to take that district or that class of persons?—I was asked if I would take that class of persons.

66,212. Who asked you do that at the room?—That I cannot tell you.

66,213. I think you said somebody else canvassed also?—I heard so.

66,214. Who was it?—Some of the orange party.

66,215. An elder brother?—No; I did not hear that.

66,216. Was it at the committee room at which you found afterwards your name was on as a committee man, do you remember?—I cannot at all remember.

66,217. You, as an elder brother, would have access to the roll of pensioners?—Yes; but we do not know any of the names when they come in.

66,218. By comparing the roll with the register you would know which way they were voters?—Yes.

66,219. How many pensioners are there in the different hospitals? First of all, how many hospitals or almshouses are there in the town?—Six or seven.

66,220. You, as a governor, ought to know; you seem to have some doubt about it?—I could tell by just running them over in my mind.

66,221. Six or seven?—Yes; when I say almshouses, I mean places for pensioners.

66,222. Belonging to the Trinity House?—Yes.

66,223. Where these persons live rent free, and are supplied with coals and candles and maintenance?—Not maintenance.

66,224. What do they get?—When you say maintenance, do you mean boarded?

66,225. I meant in lieu of board?—There is a different scale for the different grades of seamen. Some of them have 7*s.* and some 10*s.*

66,226. 7*s.* is the lowest?—Yes; I think it is 7*s.* to 14*s.*; that I believe is the highest.

66,227. Is the furniture their own?—Yes; except a bedstead; that is found for them.

66,228. Bedding and furniture?—Not bedding and furniture.

66,229. They are regulated in scales?—Yes.

66,230. Is it the province of the elder brethren of the Trinity House to promote them?—They are promoted when they come into the house.

66,231. After they have come in, is there a scale of promotion?—No.

66,232. If a man comes in at 7*s.* he never gets any more?—Not without there is a general increase of pension.

66,233. Is there any increase after a man gets in?—Not without there is a general increase of the whole.

66,234. According to what the funds are?—The scale.

66,235. A man is never raised from one scale to another?—No; if he comes in as a seaman, he remains so.

66,236. Is it according to what rank he holds in the service?—Yes; they are in the merchant service.

66,237. I suppose that there constantly are numbers of applicants?—Yes.

66,238. Did you canvass anybody excepting the Trinity House?—Do you mean the voters?

66,239. Yes?—I did, several of the houses.

66,240. Amongst the seamen?—Yes; several seamen.

66,241. Did you canvass anybody else besides the pensioners of the Trinity House?—Yes.

66,242. Did you not receive applications from those persons who wished to go into the Trinity House?—I am not aware.

66,243. Do you mean you do not recollect it, or that it did not occur?—If any applied to me in the way of candidates for coming into the rooms, I should say, "I have nothing to do with your getting into the rooms."

66,244. I want to know whether the fact did occur?—I am not aware that it did.

66,245. No such thing ever occurred?—I am not aware of it.

66,246. Is it that you do not remember the fact, or do you mean to pledge your oath that it did not occur?—I do not remember the fact. I will not pledge my oath that it did not occur.

66,247. I suppose they are persons who are chosen because of their desolation?—Yes.

66,248. Do any of the elder brethren and assistants belong to the orange party?—Yes.

66,249. Who are they?—Joseph Sykes is one.

C. Horncastle.

29th July 1853.

66,250. Anybody else?—I think Donaldson. I am not quite sure whether he is or not. Captain Meggit, in my own employ; I believe he is one.

66,251. Duncan?—He is one of the eighteen.

66,252. An elder brother or an assistant?—He is an assistant.

66,253. You said you had heard that some of these men got money?—I heard some had.

66,254. Pensioners?—I only heard, so far as I saw in the paper something occurred at this examination; beyond that I have never heard of it.

66,255. Do you know of any pensioner who would pay them?—No.

66,256. How many persons do you reckon applied to you to be set on as runners, and you referred them to the central committee? Would you refer disabled men to the central committee as runners?—I am not aware the question has been put.

66,257. But would you have referred disabled men to be runners?—If anybody had asked me, I should have told them I had nothing whatever to do with it; but they must go to the committee.

66,258. You say if they were disabled. Why did you prefer disabled men to be employed as runners?—I should not have preferred them to be employed as runners.

66,259. I did not say preferred; I said referred?—Or referred. I should have told them I had nothing to do with it; but if they wanted to be employed they must inquire elsewhere. None of them did apply to me.

John Ellis.

JOHN ELLIS sworn, and examined.

66,260. What are you?—A grocer and cornfactor.

66,261. Where do you live?—Witham.

66,262. What rent do you pay for a house?—For a house and premises, about 33*l.* a year.

66,263. Are you a freeman?—No.

66,264. A voter?—Yes.

66,265. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—No.

66,266. 1847, I mean?—No.

66,267. 1852?—Yes.

66,268. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

66,269. Were you on any committee?—Yes.

66,270. Which committee?—Clay and Goderich.

66,271. There were a great many; which?—Holderness ward.

66,272. Do you know anything about the blue party?—I had something to do with them.

66,273. Do you know a man of the name of Samuel Good?—Yes.

66,274. And William Harrison?—Yes; I know William Harrison too.

66,275. A man named Holman?—Yes.

66,276. Are they blue voters?—Yes, I believe they were.

66,277. Do you know anything of their getting any money?—No more than it being stated to me that they were put on so many days.

66,278. Who stated it to you?—Samuel Good stated to me that he was on so many days.

66,279. Where was that?—I asked him for his vote.

66,280. At what place?—I was in the street; Witham.

66,281. Where was his name put on?—I did not ask him the question.

66,282. For which party?—Moore and Butler.

66,283. Where does he live?—He lives at Witham.

66,284. Holderness Court?—Holderness Court.

66,285. William Harrison; is he one?—I do not know anything about him.

66,286. Who are the people you have got?—William Omer, William Page, Joseph Drant, Johnson, and a person of the name of Drinkall.

66,287. Which Drinkall?—I do not know his first name.

66,288. Did each of these parties say they had got money?—Each asked to be put on six days; but I had no authority to put them on for a day.

66,289. What did you tell them?—I told them I could not put them on. I asked what they wanted a vote; and they said they should not vote under 3*l.* I believe one of the parties was a carpenter, working at Grimsby.

66,290. Do you know anything of their getting money at the Shepherd; a public house in Witham?—I knew before they voted. I heard the landlord say that they had not any money. They got something to eat, and a quart; and they asked me to stand a quart, which I did. After they came in from voting they had plenty of money.

66,291. These men you have mentioned?—Yes.

66,292. Did anything pass about where the money came from?—I did not know the party who was in the room with them. I was going to ask for their votes. I had been fetching some parties up the road, in a cab. When I got in, they asked me, some of them, to go down with those parties, who would most likely give a vote. I went to the door, and fastened the door. There was a party in there.

John Ellis.

29th July 1853.

66,293. You found they had some money, but you did not see it paid?—No.
66,294. Did you afterwards hear it stated who paid it?—No.
66,295. Those people you mentioned are those who had the money after voting?—Yes.
66,296. Where is the Shepherd?—Witham.
66,297. Do you know whether they were Grimsby men?—No; Witham men.
66,298. How many of them were working men?—One or two were working men.
66,299. Who?—One was Johnson, a carpenter.
66,300. Where does he live?—He lives in the neighbourhood of Witham.
66,301. William Omer; where does he live?—Witham.
66,302. Witham is a large place?—They are on the poll book.
66,303. William Page; where does he live?—Witham. I do not know his exact residence. They live all round Chaffers Alley, or somewhere there.
66,304. Joseph Drant; do you know where he lives?—Holderness Court.
66,305. Johnson; where does he live?—I do not know where he lives. Close to Holderness Court. His father lives there. He is a single man, and he lives with him. William Johnson, a shoemaker, next door to the Shepherd, I believe.
66,306. Drinkall; do you know his Christian name?—I do not.
66,307. They all live at Witham?—Yes.

Charles Miller.

CHARLES MILLER sworn, and examined.

66,308. Where do you live?—In Wetwand Street, Drypool.
66,309. What is your business?—A labourer.
66,310. What rent do you pay?—£7 10*s.*
66,311. When were you made a freeman?—I believe in 1830; in July.
66,312. At your own expense?—Yes, at my own expense.
66,313. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—I believe I did.
66,314. Who for?—Sir Walter James, I think, and Hanmer; I think so.
66,315. Did you receive some money at that election?—I did.
66,316. How much did they give you?—I really do not know; I cannot tell you, I am sure. I do not know the sum.
66,317. Was it 5*l.*?—No; not above a quarter of it. I really do not know the sum. I got something, but I do not know what it was.
66,318. A pound, perhaps?—I do not know.
66,319. Who paid you?—I do not know.
66,320. Where were you paid?—I think at the corner of Salthouse Lane; at a public house there.
66,321. What is the sign of it?—I think Mr. Wetwand kept the house at that ime.
66,322. Was that after you had voted?—I should think it would be six months after. I really cannot recollect. I think it would be that.
66,323. Who did you vote for in 1847, when Clay, Baines, and Brown were the candidates?—I voted for Mr. Brown.
66,324. What money did you get then?—£1 5*s.*
66,325. Where were you paid?—It was at a public house; at the Noah's Ark.
66,326. Was that after the election?—No; it was at the time of the election. I recollect the gentleman gave me 15*s.*; they called him Dr. Twining; and I got half a sovereign after that, which made up 1*l.* 5*s.*
66,327. Where was that paid you?—I got that in Bishop Lane.
66,328. Who paid that?—I really do not know the gentlemen that paid me; I really do not know them, but I got it.
66,329. I do not understand whether both those sums were paid you after you had voted?—Well, I believe it was the night previous to the election.
66,330. That you got the whole of it?—That 15*s.* I got before. I got three payments of 5*s.* each time.
66,331. At the last election, did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes, I did.
66,332. Did Anthony Bannister pay you some money?—No, he did not.
66,333. Who was it paid you?—I was put down. I did not expect I was going to have anything; but I think about eight or nine days after, I was told to go down to Drypool, and I got a sovereign.
66,334. Who paid you?—Mr. Walker, the druggist in Drypool.
66,335. You got your name put down?—I got it put down on the nomination day, at the Shakespeare.

William Nichol.

WILLIAM NICHOL sworn, and examined.

66,336. Where do you live?—I lived down the Hessle Road when I polled.
66,337. And where after you polled?—Carr Lane Hospital.
66,338. What rent do you pay?—I paid 12*l.* then; I pay nothing now.

William Nichol.

29th July 1853.

66,339. Are you a freeman?—No.

66,340. When did you get into the hospital; before the election, was it not?—Yes; it was about a month before.

66,341. You were entitled to vote for your late house?—Yes.

66,342. You were on the register, and you voted?—Yes.

66,343. Did you vote in 1841?—No, I did not.

66,344. You were not entitled to vote, perhaps?—No.

66,345. In 1847 did you vote?—I was a board a man-of-war then. I was not in England.

66,346. Now, in 1852, did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes, I did.

66,347. Did you get some money then?—I have not yet, and whether I shall or not, I do not know.

66,348. Do you expect some?—No, I cannot expect it, except they they may give it me; I wish I had it.

66,349. I thought you said you thought you might get it?—No; it is too long a time after. I never got a halfpenny.

66,350. It is too long for what?—Too long after the election; I do not want it now; I do not care anything about it.

66,351. Had you your name set down?—Yes.

66,352. Where was that?—In the Pottery.

66,353. Were you at that time one of the almshouse men?—Yes.

66,354. You were set down for Moore and Butler, and you voted for them?—Yes; I was put down before that.

66,355. Who applied to you to put your name down, or did you make an application?—Dr. Bell first asked me who I was going to poll for. I told him certainly for the blues, which I was born to, and all my friends before me.

66,356. Did he say he would put your name down for you?—No; he never said any more to me, not a word.

66,357. Was your name put down at his committee?—I believe it was, but I am not sure. I polled at Church Street corner. I went and asked if there was anything for me; and they told me no. I said thank you. They cheated me of a glass of grog, that is all I know.

66,358. Do you know what is meant by setting down your name?—Yes, I do, perfectly.

66,359. I mean having your name set down with the expectation of being paid for it?—No.

66,360. Then why did you say you knew what I meant?—My name was not put down for anything of that sort. I should be happy to receive it if it was.

66,361. Was your name put down on any list as a runner?—No.

66,362. Or a messenger?—No; nowhere that I am aware of.

66,363. What did you mean by saying just now your name had been set down?—Polling, I mean.

66,364. There was no canvassing you in the ordinary way for your vote?—No.

66,365. You said it was so long ago you did not expect to get any money now?—Who is to give it me?

66,366. Did you ever expect any?—I certainly did expect something, as well as others. There is none of us like to work for nothing. I should be very sorry, if I knew it, to work for nothing.

66,367. That is what you call real true blue principle?—Yes; that is the real true blue principle.

66,368. Who did you expect would pay you?—I expected to get a trifle as well as the others. My name was not down for anything. When I went to the committee room, Dr. Bell says, "I am astonished such a man as you should ask for anything." I said, "I am astonished you should take pay for your medicines. If I owed you a doctor's bill, most likely you would give me a trifle, and I walked away.

66,369. What made you go to Dr. Bell's committee room?—That is where they put me down, and asked me for my vote first. It was because I lived at the Pottery I went there; that was all the motive I had.

66,370. You got your name put down?—For polling.

66,371. And then you said you expected some money?—I expected to be paid.

66,372. What for?—Why, for looking on. I ought to have been paid as well as another.

66,373. How long was it before you voted that your name was set down to poll at the committee room?—I should think nearly a week. I was backwards and forwards several times.

66,374. You went several times to get your money?—No; I never went any more.

ROBERT LAYBOURNE sworn, and examined.

Robert Laybourne.

29th July 1853.

66,375. Where do you live?—New George Street.

66,376. What is your business?—Apothecary and druggist.

66,377. What rent do you pay?—£10.

66,378. Are you a freeman?—No; but I have been thirty-five years rated in East Sculcoates, and of course, when the Reform Act came into operation, I got a vote.

66,379. I am told you were assisting at the taking up of the freedoms in 1839?—Yes, I assisted. Mr. Galloway sent for me.

66,380. Did you vote in 1841?—Yes.

66,381. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Thompson.

66,382. Did you get any money at that election?—I was on the committee at that time.

66,383. My question is, whether you got any money at that time?—I think I was engaged to canvass.

66,384. Did you get any money? That is my question?—Yes; I got paid for canvassing at that time.

66,385. What did you get paid for canvassing?—I am sure I forget what the amount was. Mr. Galloway can tell you every particular.

66,386. It is a long time ago, no doubt?—I do not remember the specific sum.

66,387. Were you set down as a runner?—No; I think I was canvassing before the election, for some three or four weeks.

66,388. Canvassing about the town?—Yes. It was an agreement that there were to be six or eight of us taken, and they were to canvass the town, and be paid for it.

66,389. How much did you get paid; do you remember that?—No, I am sure I cannot tell.

66,390. Were you paid every week?—No. Mr. Galloway paid me altogether, after the election, some time; I am sure I forget when it was.

66,391. Did you promise your vote to that party?—Yes; I promised to vote some time before that, to Mr. Clay's party; not to Thompson's party. I had only to do with Mr. Clay.

66,392. What do you think about the money? Do you think you would have got it if you had not voted orange?—I do not know. If I had not worked I should not have got it.

66,393. If you had not voted for them, what do you think? Do you think you would have been paid if you had not voted for them?—It is a natural consequence, they would not have paid me. They would have made a demur if I had not voted for them.

66,394. You understood that?—Yes,

66,395. Do you think they understood it?—I am sure they understood that.

66,396. Who did you vote for at the 1847 election?—Mr. Clay only.

66,397. Did you do anything at that election?—Yes; I was clerk at the East Sculcoates room, under Mr. Sandell.

66,398. How long were you employed there?—I should think about three weeks.

66,399. Were you paid by the week?—No; I was paid some time after the election.

66,400. Who paid you?—Mr. Galloway.

66,401. Were you employed for three weeks before the election in 1847?—Yes; I think it would be about three weeks altogether.

66,402. There was not much to do at that time till about three days before the election?—We had a good deal to do.

66,403. What had you to do?—To canvass, to make up the books, and those things.

66,404. You did not receive any money from Mr. Clay?—No. I received it from Mr. Galloway, the lawyer; he paid me.

66,405. What did you do at the last election, in 1852?—At that time I was going to be clerk again.

66,406. You changed sides; then you voted for Moore and Butler?—Yes. I was going to be the clerk; but there were certain things in Lord Goderich's politics that I could not sanction, and I left them.

66,407. You liked the blue party better?—No, I did not exactly like them better.

66,408. Perhaps you liked their money better? How much did you get from them?—£1 11*s.* 6*d.* I was nine days employed.

66,409. Where were you a runner?—Down in East Sculcoates, principally, I canvassed; and I gave the result to Mr. James Pease. He came every day to see what I had done.

66,410. Did you promise them your vote?—I had promised them some time before, or else they would not have come to me.

66,411. You think that?—I am sure so. I promised the vote on the Thursday, and Mr. Turnbull came to me on the Tuesday after.

66,412. When did you get that money you mentioned?—On the 20th of August; after the election.

66,413. Who paid you?—Mr. Robert Wells, the attorney.

66,414. Where?—At his own office.

66,415. I dare say you did the same thing in 1847. Mr. Galloway would not have

Robert Laybourne.

29th July 1853.

employed you to canvass for Mr. Clay unless you had voted for him?—No; when we used to set men down for the day's work, we used to expect them to vote.

66,416. They gave you the vote, and you gave them the money?—We were certain they would vote for us, or they would not have been employed.

66,417. They expected to get the money?—Yes, they expected to have the money.

Robert Keighley.

ROBERT KEIGHLEY sworn, and examined.

66,418. Where do you live?—Worship Street.

66,419. What is your business?—Master mariner.

66,420. What rent do you pay?—£16.

66,421. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

66,422. When were you made a freeman?—In 1823.

66,423. At your own expense?—Yes.

66,424. Did you get the 4*l.* and the 2*l.* in former days?—No, never.

66,425. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—I believe I did, but I cannot say exactly.

66,426. Who do you think you voted for?—For the blue party, if I did vote.

66,427. Do you recollect if you got any money at that election?—No.

66,428. You do not recollect that, or you did not; which do you mean?—I do not recollect that I voted, and I never received any money.

66,429. Where did you live in 1841?—In John Street, I think.

66,430. Are you sure that you voted, or not, in 1841; we cannot find your name?—I am not sure.

66,431. In 1847, who did you vote for, Clay, Baines, or Brown?—I was at sea then.

66,432. You did not vote then?—No, I did not.

66,433. In 1852, did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes.

66,434. Did you get your name set down anywhere?—No.

66,435. You were canvassed by the orange party?—Yes, by both parties.

66,436. Did you promise to vote for Clay and Goderich?—I believe I did at first.

66,437. Did you promise them, or not?—Yes.

66,438. How came you not to vote for them?—Through the persuasion of my friends, I changed my mind.

66,439. Did you get any money then?—No.

66,440. Do you belong to the Trinity House?—I am a younger brother of the Trinity House.

66,441. Who persuaded you to change your mind?—No one but my relations.

66,442. Who are they?—My brothers and sisters.

66,443. Are they in any way connected with the Trinity House?—No.

66,444. Those who persuaded you?—No.

66,445. Did you not get any money at all?—No.

66,446. Was your name set down as a runner or a messenger?—No; nothing of the sort.

66,447. Was it set down by the blue party?—No.

66,448. Did you apply to them for employment?—No.

66,449. Not at any time or place?—No.

66,450. Were you afraid of losing some advantage?—No; I had no advantage to lose.

66,451. You seem to be old enough to take care of your own vote?—I am old enough, although one can be persuaded at all times.

66,452. What were you afraid of?—I had always voted for the blues, and I thought I would change my mind, and vote for the orange. They came, and solicited me, and I promised them, although I did not vote for them.

66,453. You did not vote in 1841 or 1847?—I could not in 1847. I was not here.

66,454. Nor in 1841?—I might be here then. I do not know whether I voted or not.

66,455. Did you expect to get some benefit by it?—Not at all.

66,456. Was it to escape from any disadvantage?—No.

66,457. Did you expect to be made an elder brother?—No, nothing at all of the sort.

Samuel Good.

SAMUEL GOOD sworn, and examined.

66,458. Where do you live?—Holderness Court, Witham.

66,459. What is your business?—Labourer.

66,460. Do you pay any rent?—Yes, a little.

66,461. What is it?—About 5*l.*

66,462. When were you made a freeman?—About eighteen years ago.

66,463. At whose expense?—The blue party.

66,464. Did you vote for them at the election of 1841?—Yes.

66,465. Was that because they took up your freedom?—Decidedly it was.

66,466. Did you get anything for that vote besides; any money?—Yes.

Samuel Good.

29th July 1853.

66,467. You did get some money from the blue party for your vote in 1841?—Yes.
66,468. How much did you get?—I got 30*s.* as a runner.
66,469. When were you paid?—About six months after the election, I should think.
66,470. Who paid you?—T. D. Hammond.
66,471. Where did he pay you?—Well, I can hardly tell you the place where he paid me.
66,472. Somewhere in Hull?—In Witham.
66,473. At a public house?—No, it was not. It was in Witham, but it was a dark place where I was paid.
66,474. You can tell me what part of Witham it was?—It is betwixt the Noah's Ark and the King's Arms, in a passage.
66,475. Was it in the daytime?—No, it was not.
66,476. Was it at night?—About six or seven o'clock in the winter time.
66,477. Was it dark?—Yes.
66,478. Generally dark?—Generally dark.
66,479. Did you go into a dark room?—No; it was not in a room; it was paid through a window.
66,480. Did you not find out who it was?—No.
66,481. Did you put your head in or your hand?—It was handed to me out of the window.
66,482. How came you to find out this dark window?—There were many persons assembled there.
66,483. Tell me how you found it out?—I was informed by a party that they were paying there, and I was to go.
66,484. Who informed you of that?—I cannot tell you the man's name now.
66,485. Do you not remember the house?—It was not a house; it was an old blacksmith's shop.
66,486. A blacksmith's shop between the Noah's Ark and the King's Arms?—Yes.
66,487. Did they pay anybody that went there? How did they know who to pay?—I do not know; I cannot answer that. They asked me no name, no question, or anything.
66,488. In 1847, at the next election, who did you vote for; Clay, Baines, and Brown?—I voted for Brown.
66,489. How much did you get then?—I think 25*s.*
66,490. Where was that paid?—At the Noah's Ark.
66,491. At the same place?—Near upon it.
66,492. Who paid you that?—I think it was Dr. Twining; that was the man's name.
66,493. Before or after the election?—Before the election.
66,494. At the last election, in 1852, were you a runner in Holderness?—Yes.
66,495. Did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes.
66,496. Did Mr. Harris pay you some money?—No.
66,497. How much were you paid?—30*s.*
66,498. Who paid it you?—A man of the name of Stephenson.
66,499. Was that at Mr. Harris's house?—No.
66,500. When did he pay you; before or after?—Before the election. I was a runner seventeen days for him.
66,501. Did you get paid every week?—No; I got nothing but the 30*s.*
66,502. At once?—At once.
66,503. Did you apply to be a runner?—Yes.
66,504. Was your name put upon a list?—My name was put on a list.
66,505. Do you know a man of the name of Bailey?—Yes.
66,506. Did he pay you some money?—No.
66,507. I am told he paid you 7*s.*?—No.
66,508. Did you get any more than the 30*s.*?—Yes; I got the 7*s.*, but not from Mr. Bailey.
66,509. Who was it from?—From Todd, the man that went to York Castle.
66,510. When did he pay you the 7*s.*?—It would be the week or the fortnight before the election.
66,511. What was that for?—For two days. I was seventeen days running.
66,512. When Todd paid you, was your name set down, or was it set down afterwards?—It was set down before Todd paid me the 7*s.*

Joseph Monday.

JOSEPH MONDAY sworn, and examined.

66,513. Where do you live?—New George Street, Mill Yard.
66,514. What is your business?—A labourer.
66,515. What rent do you pay?—Four guineas.
66,516. When were you made a freeman?—In 1816, I believe.
66,517. At whose expense?—At my own.
66,518. You always have had a little money for your vote, I believe, at election times?—No.

Joseph Monday.

29th July 1853.

66,519. Have you not?—No.

66,520. I am told that you have?—You are told wrong.

66,521. Before the Reform Act, did you not get the four guineas and the two?—I once got £4; that was at Mr. Stanniforth's election.

66,522. That is not the most you ever got?—Yes, it is; and that was paid about six months after.

66,523. Perhaps you gave them your services a good deal one time? I am told that you got 30*l.* at one election?—It is a falsehood.

66,524. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Yes.

66,525. Who did you vote for?—I am sure I really cannot tell you now.

66,526. For the blues?—Yes.

66,527. Hanmer and James were the blues?—I believe they were. I never got anything at that time. I had a constant berth at so much a week.

66,528. Who from?—Mr. William Cobb.

66,529. In what way?—As a lighterman.

66,530. It had nothing to do with the election?—No, it had not.

66,531. I want to know whether you mean a constant berth at a committee?—No.

66,532. It had nothing to do with the election work?—Nothing.

66,533. In 1847, I believe you were not quite so much employed?—Yes, I was.

66,534. Were you a runner for Mr. Baines?—No.

66,535. Just remember?—I do.

66,536. Were you not set down as a runner for Mr. Baines at the 1847 election, and also for Mr. Brown?—No; I do not recollect ever getting a penny from any one.

66,537. I did not ask you about getting a penny; I asked you if you were a runner or a messenger?—No.

66,538. Are you sure of that?—I am.

66,539. Did you get any money at that election?—No.

66,540. Who did you vote for then; Clay and Brown are put opposite your name; is that right?—Yes, I dare say it is, but I am sure I cannot recollect now.

66,541. Who did you vote for at the last election?—For the blues.

66,542. Moore and Butler?—Yes.

66,543. How much did you get then?—30*s.*

66,544. Where was that paid you?—At Christ Church.

66,545. After the election?—No; just before.

66,546. At Mr. Turnbull's?—Yes.

66,547. How long before the election?—It was not long; I think a day or two before.

66,548. Had you applied for employment?—Yes.

66,549. Where had your name been set down?—At the committee.

66,550. Which committee?—At Christ Church.

66,551. Do you know John Leaven?—I cannot say that I do.

Joseph Watson.

JOSEPH WATSON sworn, and examined.

66,552. Where do you live?—Wellington Street at present.

66,553. What is your business?—Mastmaker.

66,554. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

66,555. Did you vote in former days, when people got a good deal of money for voting?—Yes; I voted at many elections.

66,556. How much did you ever get in former times?—I cannot tell exactly.

66,557. Did you ever get as much as 10*l.*?—Not at once.

66,558. £5?—No; I have had 2*l.* and 4*l.*

66,559. £4 when you voted a bullet?—Yes, of course.

66,560. When did you take up your freedom?—About 1821.

66,561. At your own expense?—At my own expense.

66,562. In 1841, who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.

66,563. What rent do you pay for your house at present?—I do not pay any. I am foreman, and have a house rent free.

66,564. In 1841, who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.

66,565. Were you employed by them at all?—No.

66,566. Were you upon any committee?—I offered my services upon the committee.

66,567. Was your name put down?—Yes.

66,568. As a committee man or a runner?—As a committee mnn.

66,569. They put your name down on the committee?—The same as all committee men are put down upon committees to afford their services.

66,570. Did you attend at the committee room?—Yes, I did.

66,571. What did you do there?—I canvassed occasionally.

66,572. That would be out of doors?—That would be out of doors.

66,573. Did you get people's names set down?—I dare say I did.

66,574. You know the plan of getting names set down?—Yes, perfectly well.

66,575. Which committee was yours?—In Mason Street, I think it was at that time; I forget almost. I know it was in the New George Street district that I was about; that would be East Sculcoates.

66,576. Have you always been blue?—With the exception of once, when I voted for Mr. Wrightson. I think that is the only time I was ever orange.

66,577. How many people did you send to get their names set down in 1841?—I do not know I am sure; perhaps fifty or sixty; very likely.

66,578. Were you some time canvassing?—No; it was only after I had done my work. I did not give my whole time to it.

66,579. I do not mean for some time on one day, but several days?—Yes; three or four weeks.

66,580. Were you paid any weekly sum for that?—No.

66,581. Did you get any payment?—For work in my business.

66,582. In what business?—We made flag staffs for the colours.

66,583. Who did you make them for?—For the committee.

66,584. For the blue party?—Yes; the blue party.

66,585. Did you not get anything for your services in canvassing?—No.

66,586. Was there not some extra profit upon making the flag staffs?—Yes; considerable.

66,587. The profit was in making the flag staffs?—Yes; I considered that sufficient.

66,588. How much was it?—I cannot tell. I had a partner at that time, and I never had the books since he received the money. I should think our bill for the flag staffs would be about 60*l.* or 70*l.*, very likely.

66,589. Was not the order to make the flag staffs given you as a reward sufficient for all the services that you rendeaed to the cause?—They knew perfectly well that I was a strong blue, and they employed me.

66,590. They gave you this employment as a reward for your services?—No doubt the orange party would not employ me; I am quite satisfied about that.

66,591. Do you mean that they gave you that order in order to influence your vote?—No; I beg your pardon.

66,592. That is my question, that having promised your vote they gave you this order as a reward for that and your services?—No; I do not mean to say that; because I had not been a master until that election for myself; I had been working under another party. Of course I had always felt an inclination and did vote for that party; and in consequence of my becoming a master they gave me the order, without asking me for my vote.

66,593. You were a mast and blockmaker?—At that time.

66,594. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I voted for Baines and Brown.

66,595. Were you upon a committee for Mr. Brown?—No, I was not.

66,596. When he was announced as a candidate, did you interest yourself for him?—No; I left it to my foreman. I did not know there was such a person coming to the town.

66,597. What did you leave to your foreman to do?—He called upon me the evening that Mr. Brown was announced, to say that they wanted a certain quantity of flag staffs; and I said, "Very well;" you can supply them of course; that was all.

66,598. Did you make any payments in 1841?—No, not that I am aware of; I do not know that I did.

66,599. Neither before nor after the election?—I had nothing to pay with.

66,600. I do not mean out of your own pocket?—No; not to any party.

66,601. Linwood paid at that election?—Yes.

66,602. Did you assist him at the Bay Horse?—No; I was in the house; but I had nothing to do with it in any shape.

66,603. You were at the house?—I was in at the Bay Horse.

66,604. What were you there for?—I was standing as I am standing over these gentlemen, and I saw them paid the money.

66,605. Who paid the money?—I think a man of the name of Wright. Are you speaking of Brown's election?

66,606. No; I am speaking of the former election?—I was not there at all then.

66,607. Did you see any payments made at that election?—No.

66,608. In 1847 you voted for Brown and Baines?—Yes.

66,609. You were not on any committee then?—I was not.

66,610. And you left the canvassing to your foreman?—Yes, I did.

66,611. Do you mean the canvassing?—No; the supplying the poles; the colour staffs.

66,612. I asked you about the canvassing, and you said I did not canvass at all at Brown's election?—No; neither for Baines nor Brown. Mr. Atkinson called on me to ask me to canvass for Mr. Baines. He was not a blue, I considered, and therefore I would have nothing to do with it.

66,613. You saw some people paid after the election?—I did, at the Bay Horse.

66,614. Who was paying them?—A man of the name of Wright.

66,615. Who was he paying for?—I do not know; I did not ask. I should think for Brown, as far as I know.

66,616. How came you to be in the room?—I had got down, and gone into Linwood's

Joseph Watson.

29th July 1853.

house. Previous to that I had always had the Sculcoates district to canvass, and I, as a matter of course, was allowed to go into the room, where others would not be.

66,617. You were known in that district?—Knowing the parties in that district.

66,618. Was it Wright or Bright?—Wright, I think. He was a clerk at East Sculcoates.

66,619. Do you know his other name?—I do not.

66,620. Was he a clerk in the committee room?—Yes; I believe in the East Sculcoates committee room. I think his name was Wright.

66,621. He was in a room there paying?—Yes.

66,622. How many do you suppose came in and got money while you were there?—Twenty or thirty, the time I was there.

66,623. How much did they get?—I should think about a pound a piece, on the average.

66,624. Was it after the election?—It was after the election.

66,625. What was the course adopted? Did they take their names down?—Yes; the parties who sat at the table took the names down, and gave them the money, for some three or four days; they paid them for three or four days.

66,626. Who was at the table, do you remember, besides Mr. Wright?—I do not remember at the present moment.

66,627. How long did you stay?—I should think about a couple of hours in the room.

66,628. That was at the Bay Horse?—Yes.

66,629. Did you not yourself, at the Bay Horse, pay a man of the name of John Curtis, at that time?—No.

66,630. Do you know such a man as John Curtis; a cooper?—I do not know such a man.

66,631. Did you not pay him 10*s.*?—No.

66,632. Did you pay him any money?—No. I had nothing to do with it at all.

66,633. You did not receive any money from Wright to pay to any people?—Not a halfpenny.

66,634. Did you order any refreshments at that election?—No.

66,635. In 1852, who did you vote for?—For Moore, and Butler.

66,636. Were you upon a committee then?—No; I was a clerk.

66,637. At which committee?—At the Lowgate.

66,638. A paid clerk?—Yes.

66,639. What did they pay you?—30*s.* a week.

66,640. How long were you employed?—Five or six weeks.

66,641. Did you apply to be a clerk?—Yes; I applied at the George Inn, to the first meeting there was.

66,642. Did that business keep you pretty much in the room, or were you out canvassing?—I think, when I had been there two or three days, Mr. Brodrick our chairman came in, and said he should engage another clerk; that he thought I should be of a little more service out of doors canvassing with him, and I was not confined all the time to the room.

66,643. After that you took more to canvassing?—Yes, after that.

66,644. Who was the clerk that came in your place?—A man of the name of Sedman.

66,645. When you became a canvasser, did you send people to get their names set down in the way you mentioned before?—No; I never set any one down.

66,646. If people wanted to be employed, where would you send them?—To the chairman or deputy chairman.

66,647. You would refer them to the committee room?—Yes.

66,648. You know a good many of the voters, I suppose?—Yes.

66,649. Did you know a good many to get this employment; the freemen?—Yes.

66,650. How long were you canvassing, do you suppose?—I was five or six weeks employed. I had nothing at all to do then but to give my time to it.

66,651. You were a clerk part of the time?—Yes.

66,652. How many do you suppose you sent to be set down, applicants for employment?—I should think not above twenty or thirty; those that might apply to me personally.

66,653. You understood you had authority from the committee room to do that?—I had no authority to do so, but to refer them to the chairman or the deputy.

66,654. That was what you had to do?—That was what I had to do. I could not promise them anything. We had strict orders not to do so.

66,655. They were to apply to the committee room?—They were to apply to the committee.

66,656. Did people apply to you for rooms to be taken at two or three guineas each?—No; I never heard a word about them; I never knew such a thing till lately. The papers have told me.

66,657. Did you order any refreshments at one or two places; at M'Merron's?—I did at M'Merrons.

66,658. Who ordered you to do it?—Mr. Pulleyn.

66,659. What did he give you?—A card.

66,660. What was it for?—To give to Mr. Plummer's men a pint of ale each.
66,661. When was that?—On the nomination day.
66,662. At M'Merron's?—Yes. It was very warm. I do not know if they were voters; I expect they were not; but I did that.
66,663. At the last election, although you became a canvasser you got the pay of 30*s.* a week?—Yes; it was paid me every Saturday night.
66,664. Was the last payment on the Saturday after the election?—Yes; they were paid for the whole week; the election was on the Thursday.
66,665. You were employed after the election a little while?—Yes.
66,666. Did you assist Mr. Whytal Walker in getting up a petition?—No; I do not know Mr. Whytal Walker.
66,667. John Walker, I mean?—I saw John Walker.
66,668. Did you get some more money?—I was paid my weekly wages.
66,669. When you applied for employment on this last occasion, did you ask for a clerk's place, or did you apply generally?—I was told by one of the clerk's that Mr. Pulleyn wanted a clerk for his committee room, and as I was out of employ at the time I thought I might as well be employed as any one else. I applied to Mr. Pulleyn, and he said he wanted a clerk, and that I was to attend the Lowgate committee room.
66,670. Were you in the same business at the last election?—I am now.
66,671. But at the last election; were you in the same business?—I was out of employ.
66,672. You were a master before; are you now?—No; I am a foreman now.
66,673. I do not wish to say anything hurtful to your feelings; but you are not in the same circumstances now that you used to be?—No; unfortunately I am not.

Joseph Watson.
29th July 1853.

Adjourned till to-morrow, ten o'clock.

FORTY-SIXTH DAY.—30th July 1853.

66,703. Did you vote in 1841?—Yes.
66,704. Who for?—Hanmer and James.
66,705. Were you paid for it?—No.

James Atkin.

James Atkin.

30th July 1853.

66,706. Did you get any money that election?—No.
66,707. Nor after?—No.
66,708. You got no money that would be coming to the candidates for anything?—No.
66,709. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I did not vote at all.
66,710. Why not?—I was too late; the poll was closed.
66,711. Did you get any money?—Afterwards I got 10*s.*
66,712. After the election?—Yes.
66,713. Was it for Mr. Brown?—Yes.
66,714. Did you have your name set down before?—Yes, it was.
66,715. Were you stopped by a disturbance at the poll booth?—No; I was too late; he had given up.
66,716. Did you get anything for him before you voted?—No.
66,717. Before the poll closed?—No.
66,718. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
66,719. Did you get anything for it?—Not till after the election.
66,720. What did you get after the election?—A sovereign.
66,721. Where was it paid?—It was brought to me.
66,722. You had your name set down before?—Yes.
66,723. Who paid you, do you know?—I do not know the man's name.
66,724. You were in West Sculcoates?—Edward Street, West Sculcoates, I think it is.
66,725. Did you have your name set down?—Yes.

F. Beautyman.

FRANCIS BEAUTYMAN sworn, and examined.

66,726. Where do you live?—Popple Street, Thomas's Square, No. 7.
66,727. What rent do you pay?—£6.
66,728. What business are you?—A ship carpenter.
66,729. Are you a freeman?—Yes; by servitude.
66,730. How long have you been a freeman?—1841.
66,731. Was it in 1839, when all the others were paid at the Mansion House?—No.
66,732. Who paid you for it?—Nobody.
66,733. Did you pay for it yourself?—Yes.
66,734. Were you not repaid the money?—No.
66,735. Did you vote in 1841?—No.
66,736. In 1847 did you vote?—Yes.
66,737. Who for?—Brown and Baines.
66,738. Were you paid for it?—Yes; I got 5*s.*; nothing else.
66,739. Where did you get the 5*s.*?—I do not know the man's name; who it was.
66,740. Was it before or after you had voted?—It was after I had voted.
66,741. Was it for Baines and Brown?—I do not know which it was for.
66,742. What was it for; what did you do for it?—I did nothing.
66,743. At the last election who did you vote for?—Goderich and Clay.
66,744. Had you before that been set down for the blues?—They set me down.
66,745. They had asked you whether you would be set down, I suppose?—Yes.
66,746. And what had you told them?—I said they might set me down.
66,747. Were you employed at all?—No.
66,748. Did you get any money?—No.
66,749. Either from the blue or the orange?—I got what I worked for from the orange.
66,750. You were set down to run for the orange?—Yes.
66,751. Where did you run for them?—I was a doorkeeper.
66,752. Where?—At Mr. Galloway's.
66,753. How long?—A month or five weeks.
66,754. How much did you get?—I got a guinea a week.
66,755. For five weeks?—Yes.
66,756. Were you paid the whole of it before you voted?—I got it weekly.
66,757. Were you paid some of it after you voted?—No.
66,758. When were you paid the rest?—The election week. The election was on a Thursday, and I got paid for it, when I had done.
66,759. When was it; was it on the Saturday night after the election?—Yes, I think it was.
66,760. You applied to them for employment, or to be set down?—Yes.
66,761. Were you set down by the blues before you went to the orange, or after?—Before.
66,762. It cannot be the blues then. They had no place to set down at until about a few days before the election?—I will tell you what it is: I got pitched down stairs upon all fours, and I thought after that I was free enough to do as I liked.
66,763. Who pitched you down stairs?—The doorkeepers.
66,764. Where?—At Mr. Brodrick's committee rooms in Lowgate.

F. Beautyman.

30th July 1853.

66,765. What did they pitch you down stairs for?—I do not know. I went up stairs civil enough to see if they would give me a card.

66,766. Perhaps they had heard that you had been to the orange side?—No.

66,767. Did they not call you orange?—No.

66,768. What did they call you? what did you say?—I asked them to give me a card. "Well, walk down," said they, and I said, "I am going down." I did not seem in a great hurry, so they took and shoved me down. I nearly got my neck broke, and hurt my leg, and then, thinks I, I am free enough for anything.

66,769. Then, I suppose, they knew you were a doorkeeper at the orange rooms?—No, I was not a doorkeeper.

66,770. You went over to be a doorkeeper for them afterwards?—Yes.

JOHN BEAUTYMAN sworn, and examined.

John Beautyman.

66,771. Where do you live?—Blanket Row.

66,772. What rent do you pay?—£5 10*s.*

66,773. What is your business?—A porter.

66,774. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

66,775. How long have you been a freeman?—About nine years.

66,776. Was the election of 1847 the first election at which you voted?—Yes.

66,777. Who for?—Baines and Brown.

66,778. Were you paid for it?—Yes.

66,779. How much?—I received 10*s.* for carrying boards two days.

66,780. What else?—I received 7*s.* 6*d.* from Mr. Baines.

66,781. Carrying boards for Mr. Brown?—Brown and Baines.

66,782. Were you paid the 10*s.* before or after you voted?—Before.

66,783. Where were you paid?—At Mr. Mitchell's, the tobacconist's. Two 5*s.* papers of coppers.

66,784. Where were you paid the 7*s.* 6*d.*?—In Parliament Street. It would be about six weeks after the election; for Mr. Baines.

66,785. You had applied to be set down for employment?—Yes.

66,786. Who paid you for Mr. Baines the 7*s.* 6*d.*?—It was at the lawyer's office, in Parliament Street.

66,787. After you had voted?—Yes; it was five, or six, or seven weeks after.

66,788. Where; at the Land of Green Ginger?—No.

66,789. Mr. Sidebottom's?—I am sure I do not know the name.

66,790. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

66,791. Were you paid for it?—Yes.

66,792. How much were you paid?—I was engaged rather better than three weeks, at the office next to Brownlow and Pearson's.

66,793. Was that at the committee rooms?—Yes.

66,794. You were employed as a messenger?—Yes.

66,795. You had applied?—I did apply.

66,796. How much did you get?—I cannot tell what I got the first Saturday night; I think it was somewhere about half-a-crown.

66,797. The second Saturday?—I think I got 14*s.* or 15*s.*

66,798. And the Saturday following?—I think 16*s.* or 18*s.*; and the last week I got paid after the election.

66,799. How much?—18*s.*

66,800. They kept back some of the first week till the election was over?—The first week I was only put on on the Saturday morning at about eleven o'clock, and on the Saturday night they paid me; I only received half-a-crown.

66,801. Then you got 14*s.* the second week?—14*s.* or 16*s.*

66,802. What was the sum you ought to be paid?—They told us, when they put us on, we were to have 3*s.* 6*d.* a day.

66,803. And they kept some back?—I do not know if they kept some back; they did keep it.

66,804. Was it at Leggitt's?—Yes.

GEORGE BELL sworn, and examined.

George Bell.

66,805. Where do you live?—No. 12, Blue Bell Entry, High Street.

66,806. Do you keep a house?—Yes,

66,807. What rent do you pay?—£8.

66,808. What business are you?—A corkcutter.

66,809. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

66,810. How long have you been a freeman?—Thirty-five years.

66,811. Before the Reform Bill, did you get your four guineas and two guineas?—Yes.

66,812. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.

66,813. Did you get anything for it?—I got a pound.

George Bell.

30th July 1853.

66,814. Before or after?—After.

66,815. Where?—I got a pound before, and a pound after. I was employed at one room for four days.

66,816. Where were you paid the pound before?—In Queen Street.

66,817. Who by?—There was a committee room there; I was paid at the room.

66,818. Do you know who paid it?—A person of the name of Todd; the chairman at the committee room. He is dead now.

66,819. Who paid you the pound?—I cannot tell you.

66,820. Where was it paid?—At High Street; the north end of High Street; at Binks, the painter's shop.

66,821. Did you see the person that paid it?—I did not.

66,822. It was through a window?—Yes.

66,823. In 1847 did you vote?—Yes.

66,824. Who for?—Brown and Clay.

66,825. Were you paid for that?—I got 1*l.* from Brown; not anything from Clay.

66,826. Was it before or after you voted?—On the polling day.

66,827. Was it before or after you voted?—I got half-a-sovereign before, and one after.

66,828. Where was it paid?—Bishop's Lane.

66,829. At Stephenson's?—Yes.

66,830. At the last election who did you vote for?—I was put down for the pay day, at Leggit's.

66,831. How much did you get?—I got it at two payments. I cannot tell to a few shillings; it amounted, the whole of it, to about 25*s.*

66,832. Was it paid before or after you voted?—Before.

66,833. The whole of it?—Yes, I think it was.

66,834. Did you get anything after?—I do not recollect that I got anything after; if I did, it was a part of that, but my memory does not serve me. If I did, I certainly do not recollect it.

Richard Bell.

RICHARD BELL sworn, and examined.

66,835. Where do you live?—George Place.

66,836. What rent do you pay?—I am at lodgings; 6*l.* I pay.

66,837. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

66,838. What business are you?—A labourer.

66,839. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1841.

66,840. Did you pay for it yourself, or was it paid for for you?—Paid for for me.

66,841. Who paid for it?—I think the blues.

66,842. Did you see Brown, Mr. Sidebottom's clerk there, at the time your freedom was taken up?—Yes, that is the man.

66,843. Did you vote in 1841?—No.

66,844. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Brown and Clay.

66,845. Were you paid for that?—I got half-a-sovereign.

66,846. Was it before or after you voted?—Before the election.

66,847. Was it for Brown?—Yes, for Brown.

66,848. Where were you paid at?—Bishop's Lane.

66,849. Was that all you got?—Yes.

66,850. At the last election who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

66,851. You had been set down for the blues?—Yes.

66,852. At the Market Place?—In Humber Street.

66,853. Is that Leggitt's, at Minerva Terrace?—No; it is the public house there.

66,854. Did you work for them?—Yes; three days.

66,855. And were paid for it?—Yes; I got it paid the Monday instead of the Saturday night.

66,856. Was it after that you went over to the orange?—Yes, after that.

66,857. Were you employed by them?—No.

66,858. Did you get any money from them?—No.

66,859. What made you go over?—Because I did not get any money the Saturday night, the same as the rest of the people.

66,860. You got no money from the orange, before or after the election?—Not a halfpenny.

66,861. Were you set down in Saville Street?—No.

66,862. You had not your name set down for the orange?—Not that I know of.

66,863. Not set down as a runner?—No.

66,864. Do you mean to get any money from the orange?—I never tried.

66,865. When the employment went, the vote went with it?—Yes; but I thought I should get something after the election. I got nothing before; I thought I should get something after.

66,866. The vote and the employment always go together?—I do not know, I am sure.

66,867. You would have voted for the blues if they paid you?—Yes; had they paid me on the Saturday night, as Mr. Davis promised me, I certainly should.

66,936. At the committee room?—Yes.

66,937. You applied for employment?—I applied for employment, of course.

66,938. When you applied to the committee to be employed, you knew if they employed you they would expect you to vote for them?—I never said so.

66,939. You knew, when you asked for employment, if they did employ you they would expect you to vote for them?—They might expect it.

66,940. You knew that they would?—Yes.

66,941. You asked for employment?—Yes.

66,942. Did they employ you?—Yes.

66,943. And you took their money?—Yes.

66,944. Were you paid before or after?—Paid both before and after; I was paid every Saturday night.

66,945. Paid before and after?—Yes.

66,946. Who paid you?—Mr. Croft, I believe.

66,947. I suppose you knew also, if you had not voted for Moore and Butler, you should not have got the money after the election?—No; I was never asked for the vote.

66,948. You knew perfectly well if you had not voted for Moore and Butler, you would not have got any money from the blues, after the election was over?—No; it is a very great chance.

66,949. How much did you get?—Between 3*l.* and 4*l.*; I was employed between three weeks and a month.

James Booth.

JAMES BOOTH sworn, and examined.

66,950. Where do you live?—Richardson's Buildings, Sykes Street.

66,977. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

66,978. How long have you been a freeman?—I cannot tell you; above sixty years, I think.

Gabriel Bower.

30th July 1853.

66,979. You used to get the four guineas and two?—No, I never got anything; I never got a farthing.

66,980. When you were a young man did you get four guineas a plumper and two guineas for a split vote?—No; I did not.

66,981. Did you get any money for a vote when you were young?—No, I did not; not a farthing.

66,982. Do you recollect that you voted for Hanmer and James?—I am sure I do not know; I cannot remember that.

66,983. Do you recollect getting any money?—No; I cannot.

66,984. Do you recollect voting for Brown?—Yes.

66,985. Did you get any money for that?—Yes; I got 10*s.* from Brown, but I did not get anything from the others; only that.

66,986. Where were you paid?—I was paid at the Black Horse in Carr Lane; a gentleman paid me there himself, one of the committee.

66,987. Did you vote for Moore and Butler at the last election?—Yes.

66,988. Did you get paid for it?—I never got a farthing for them; not a single copper.

66,989. Was your name set down?—Yes.

66,990. Was it set down as a runner?—I could not run about, and I did not get a halfpenny.

66,991. What was your name set down for?—For nothing; I was not able to run or walk.

66,992. Where was your name set down?—I do not know.

66,993. Do you know Mr. Yeall?—No.

66,994. Did you ever ask for any money?—No; I did not.

66,995. Did you expect to have any money?—I did not expect to have any for the last election. I never got a halfpenny or a farthing's worth of anything. I went to poll and came back, and I never was back after.

66,996. Do you know Mr. Brodrick?—Yes.

66,997. Did Mr. Brodrick set your name down?—No.

66,998. You know him, the spirit merchant?—I do not know Mr. Brodrick, the spirit merchant. I know Mr. Brodrick who belongs to the Trinity House.

66,999. Was it Mr. Brodrick that got your name set down?—No; I cannot remember his setting my name down. Mr. Horncastle put my name down, and he put me in a coach and took me to the polling house. I went and polled, and he took me back again. I never went among them any more, because I could not walk.

John Boyden.

JOHN BOYDEN sworn, and examined.

67,000. Where do you live?—3, York Street.

67,001. What rent do you pay?—I am a freeman born, I pay 16*l.* a year.

67,002. Did you vote in 1841?—Yes.

67,003. Who for?—Clay and Hanmer.

67,004. Were you paid anything?—I took my freedom up as a freeman then, and I never received a farthing.

67,005. Were you paid any money in 1841?—No; I never took any interest, not the least; only voted.

67,006. Which party took up your freedom?—I think it was Mr. Clay; I am not positive.

67,007. Did you vote for him because he took up your freedom?—No, not in particular.

67,008. When he paid for your freedom, what do you think made him do it?—I am sure I do not know; I never saw him, and I never asked him to take it up.

67,009. Do you think he would have paid for it if he did not mean you to vote for him?—I do not know; I never asked him such a question.

67,010. Did you not sign a paper when they paid for your freedom?—No.

67,011. Are you quite sure?—I think not; I do not know; if I did it is unknown to me, it is so long back; I took my freedom up the 4th day of July, or at least it was taken up for me, in 1839.

67,012. They have put it down that the blues paid for your freedom?—I think not.

67,013. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I voted for Clay and Brown.

67,014. Were you paid any money for that?—No.

67,015. Were you paid any money that election?—No; I did think of voting for Baines.

67,016. At the last election who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich, to be sure.

67,017. Did you have your name set down by the blues at the Market Place?—I never had my name set down; if they took me up to the poll, I would not vote for them.

67,018. Did the blues canvass you?—No; I was on the committee of Clay and Goderich.

67,019. Did the blues ask for your vote?—No, not this time.

John Boyden.

30th July 1853.

67,020. Did they tell you they would set your name down?—No; I would not have my name set down.

67,021. Did you refuse to have it put down?—I would not, if they offered me ever so much money.

67,022. Did you refuse the blues?—I would not vote for the blues on any account.

67,023. Did you get any money from the orange?—Never a farthing from any one; nor so much as a drain of water.

67,024. Did you live in York Street?—Yes, No. 3.

67,025. You say you canvassed for the orange?—To be sure I did; I made myself as busy as I could.

67,026. Did any of the people whom you canvassed want to be set down as runners?—No; not such a thing.

67,027. Not one of them?—No; I wanted one man set down as a runner, but he went to Mr. What-do-you-call-him's office in Bowl Alley Lane. I promised him I could set him down if he had a mind to vote, and he never came afterwards.

67,028. Did you have to pay any money for the orange?—No, never a farthing; I never had a farthing from any one.

George Bradley.

GEORGE BRADLEY sworn, and examined.

30th July 1853.

67,181. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
67,182. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
67,183. How much?—10*s.*
67,184. Was that all?—That was all.
67,185. Before or after you voted?—After.
67,186. Where?—In High Street, near Salthouse Lane.
67,187. Who paid it?—I cannot say, it was put through a window.
67,188. Was it at Mr. Binkes'?—I believe that was the place.
67,189. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Brown and Baines.
67,190. Were you paid for it?—I got 10*s.* for Mr. Brown.
67,191. Was that all?—That was all.
67,192. Was it paid before or after?—On the election night, after the poll.
67,193. Who paid it?—Mr. Mitchell, the tobacconist.
67,194. Was it after you voted?—Yes.
67,195. Did you get nothing for Mr. Baines?—No.
67,196. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Moore and Butler.
67,197. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
67,198. How much?—10*s.*
67,199. Before or after you voted?—After.
67,200. Who by?—I believe it was Mr. Pulleyn; I fancy so; but it was a stranger to me; they told me it was Mr. Pulleyn.
67,201. Was it in Lowgate?—Yes, at the Conservative committee room.
67,202. Your name had been set down before?—Yes, for two days running.
67,203. Did you make no claim at the last election for any money owing from Mr. Baines; any back money?—Not a farthing.

EDWARD CLARK sworn, and examined.

Edward Clark.

67,204. Where do you live?—I now live in Manor Alley, in lodgings.
67,205. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
67,206. How long have you been a freeman?—About forty-three or forty-four years.
67,207. Did you get four guineas and two guineas in the old times?—In the old times of course we got them.
67,208. In 1841 did you vote for Hanmer and James?—Yes, I did.
67,209. Were you paid for it?—No, never received a farthing.
67,210. Not got a farthing that election?—No.
67,211. Were you set down as a runner?—No.
67,212. Did you get any money after the election?—No.

67,216. Did you get any money for it?—No.
67,217. Did you get no money that election?—No; not a penny.
67,218. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
67,219. What did you get for that?—Nothing.
67,220. Were you not paid for that?—No. I should not know them if I was to see them again. They never came to canvass me.
67,221. Did you get anything from their party?—No, not a halfpenny.
67,222. You were set down as a runner at Lowgate ward?—No, I was not.
67,223. They say you were?—No.
67,224. Is that all wrong?—It is wrong.
67,225. You got no money at all?—Not a halfpenny.
67,226. Did you expect any?—I never expected any.
67,227. Perhaps you would not have any?—I have come to tell you the truth. I never looked for anything. A person came to tell me a week or ten days after the election was over, and asked me if I had got paid. I said I never knew that I was entitled to anything. He said, "I know you were set down; will you go with me?" I said, "Yes." We went up to Silver Street to Mr. Pulleyn; when we got there, he looked at a book, and he said, "You were paid on Saturday night." I said, "Then I never got the money, somebody else has got it and walked away with it," and I never received a halfpenny.
67,228. Did he not give you any?—No, not a halfpenny; they walked away with my money; I never got it.

WILLIAM TAYLOR CLARK sworn, and examined.

67,283. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
67,284. How long have you been a freeman?—To the best of my recollection from 1812.
67,285. Did you get your two guineas to vote before the Reform Bill?—Yes.
67,286. In 1841, did you vote for Hanmer and James?—I was at sea sometimes; I believe I did.
67,287. Were you paid for it?—I do not recollect. I dare say I may have got something, but I do not recollect.
67,288. Did you get a pound, do you recollect?—No doubt but what I might, I cannot say. I will tell you the truth. I will answer anything as far as I can recollect.
67,289. You will not say you did not?—I do not know, and I do not recollect.

John Cooling.

30th July 1853

67,290. Do you think you ever voted without getting something?—Yes. I do not know but what I should. I have polled at elections, and never looked for anything.
67,291. How many?—Two or three, I think.
67,292. In 1847, did you vote for Mr. Brown?—Yes.
67,293. Were you paid for that?—I got 1*l.*
67,294. Was that before or after you voted?—It was after, I think.
67,295. Who paid it?—I cannot say. I got paid at the Blue Bell in Prospect Street. I do not know the gentleman who paid me.
67,296. Was it Mr. Bannister?—Mr. Bannister was there, but he did not pay me.
67,297. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Clay.
67,298. Were you paid anything for the blues?—No.
67,299. Was your name set down?—No.
67,300. Was not your name set down at Legitt's, in Minerva Terrace?—It was never set down anywhere, and I never authorized anybody to put my name down, and I would not give anybody an answer that I would poll for them.
67,301. Did you see Legitt?—I may see any one. I never gave authority to put my name down.
67,302. Do you know Legitt?—No.
67,303. Did you see him about your vote?—I went to nobody, and if they came to me I should not tell them who I polled for.
67,304. Did you get anything from the orange party?—From nobody.
67,305. Not any money?—I am quite sure I got no money from any party, not the smell of a match.
67,306. You had money at almost every election you voted at before?—Yes.
67,307. Why did you not tell them?—I determined to be independent of them all. I polled for anybody who I thought would do the most good for the country.

Robert Corner.

ROBERT CORNER sworn, and examined.

67,308. Where do you live?—Wood's Lane.
67,309. What rent do you pay?—£7 a year.
67,310. What business are you?—A painter.

67,312. How long have you been a freeman?—Twenty-two years.
67,313. In 1841, did you vote for Hanmer and James?—Yes.
67,314. Were you paid?—Yes.
67,315. How much?—£1.
67,316. Before or after?—After.
67,317. Who by?—I cannot tell.
67,318. Where?—It was brought to my house.
67,319. Who by?—A messenger.
67,320. You do not know who sent that?—No.
67,321. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.
67,322. Were you paid for it?—No.
67,323. Not by either party?—No.
67,324. Was your name set down?—No; not that I am aware of.
67,325. Did you get no money at that election?—No.
67,326. Not for anything?—Not for anything.
67,327. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
67,328. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
67,329. How much?—Ten shillings.
67,330. Before or after you voted?—After I voted.
67,331. Who by?—Mr. Pulleyn.
67,332. Was your name set down before you voted?—Yes.

Charles Coverdale.

CHARLES COVERDALE sworn, and examined.

67,333. Where do you live?—No. 4, Pindar's Court, Manor Alley.
67,334. What rent do you pay?—£6.
67,335. What business are you?—A cooper.
67,336. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
67,337. How long have you been a freeman?—I am sure I cannot tell you the year it was in. I polled for Brown the first time.
67,338. How long before that, how many years was your freedom taken up?—I think about three.
67,339. Did you pay for it yourself?—Yes; my father did, however.
67,340. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.
67,341. Only?—Only.
67,342. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
67,343. How much?—£1.

Charles Coverdale.

30th July 1853.

67,344. Was that before or after you voted?—Afterwards.
67,345. Who by?—Mr. Bannister.
67,346. At the Blue Bell?—At the Blue Bell.
67,347. Was that all you got?—At the Blue Bell I got half a sovereign, and I think the other half sovereign I got at Mr. Stamp's, in the Market Place. I think I was paid there.
67,348. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
67,349. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
67,350. How much?—I am sure I cannot tell you to a shilling or two. I think about 23*s*.
67,351. You were paid by Legitt?—Yes; I was paid one part by Legitt, and one part by another gentleman.
67,352. Where?—At the Minerva Terrace.
67,353. You were set down at Legitt's room?—Yes, I was.
67,354. Were you in treaty with the orange party at all?—No.

George Crouch.

GEORGE CROUCH sworn, and examined.

67,355. Where do you live?—No. 20, Jarratt Street.
67,356. What rent do you pay?—£16.
67,357. What business are you?—Professor of music.
67,358. Are you a freeman?—No.
67,359. A 10*l*. householder?—Yes.
67,360. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Twelve or fourteen years. I first voted for Hanmer and James.
67,361. You voted in 1841 for them?—Yes.
67,362. Were you paid it?—Certainly not.
67,363. Did you get no money?—No.
67,364. Were you paid no money on behalf of the candidates?—No.
67,365. Or their party?—No.
67,366. Not for anything?—No.
67,367. Were you on any committee?—No.
67,368. Did you canvass for them?—I did.
67,369. During your canvass did men ask you to be set down as runners?—No; I had nothing to do with money matters, nor would not put them down.
67,370. Did any of the persons whom you canvassed require to be set down as runners?—Certainly they did.
67,371. What did you say to them?—I referred them to the committee room.
67,372. Did you tell them to go to the committee room and their names should be set down?—No; I told them to go and try it themselves.
67,373. Were you acting under the committee?—No; acting on my own account.
67,374. Had you received any instructions from the committee?—No; none at all.
67,375. Had you any power to get the men set down?—No; none at all.
67,376. Did you yourself go to the committee after the men spoke to you?—I think in James and Hanmer's time three men called at my house. I went and introduced them to the committee room, and I did not stop a moment; whether they were set down or voted I do not know.
67,377. You took them to the committee, in order that they might be set down?—I did, but whether set down or not I do not know. I do not know the men's names. I lived then in Silvester Street.
67,378. When you got to the committee room can you recollect what you said to the committee?—I merely introduced them to the room, and said, "These parties are likely to vote for us." These are the words I used.
67,379. Is that all?—That is all.
67,380. Did you not say they wanted to be set down?—No; I did not understand the term, it being my maiden vote.
67,381. You thought they wanted some money in some shape?—I have no doubt they did.
67,382. They would not promise?—No; but they never asked me for money.
67,383. You said they were likely to vote?—Yes.
67,384. Did they say they would if set down?—They never mentioned the term setting down to me.
67,385. What did they say?—They said, "Shall we be engaged?" Those were the words I used: "I have nothing to do with that; I will introduce you to the committee room." I did so, and then I left.
67,386. You knew they meant by that unless they were engaged they would not vote?—I expect it was the usual thing; but as it was the first vote I had the honour of giving I was not aware of it.
67,387. Do you know whether they were set down?—I do not.
67,388. Any of them?—I do not know their names.

George Crouch.

30th July 1853.

67,389. Did you leave them in the committee?—I left them in the committee room at Mrs. Hopper's, in Saville Street.

67,390. Were you at Mrs. Hopper's, in Saville Street, afterwards?—No, I was not.

67,391. Did you hear at the time people were paid at Mrs. Hopper's during that election?—No.

67,392. I mean after the election?—No, I did not.

67,393. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Brown and Baines.

67,394. Were you paid any money at that election?—No.

67,395. Not for anything?—No.

67,396. Did you canvass at that election?—I did.

67,397. You understood your business a little better at that time?—A little better.

67,398. Were you on any committee?—No, I was not.

67,399. Did men apply to you in the same way?—No, they did not apply to me.

67,400. Did no men require to be set down?—No.

67,401. Or require to be paid?—No.

67,402. Did those whom you canvassed promise or refuse at once?—They promised me they would. Those I canvassed were parties above taking anything of that sort. The district where I was was among gentlemen who would not require anything of that sort.

67,403. You had nothing to do with anything of that sort that election?—Not at all.

67,404. For which party did you canvass?—I canvassed for the Conservative party.

67,405. For which party was that?—Brown and Baines.

67,406. You canvassed for both?—I canvassed more particularly for Brown.

67,407. You got the second vote for Baines if you could?—Yes.

67,408. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

67,409. Were you on any committee?—No.

67,410. Did you canvass?—Yes; I did.

67,411. Were you paid anything?—No.

67,412. Did people ask you to get their names set down this time?—Yes; they did.

67,413. What did you do with them?—When they asked me what I would give, I told them I had no power of giving any money. If they wanted any money for being set down they must go to the committee room themselves.

67,414. Did you tell any of them you would get their names set down?—No; I did not; not a soul; not one.

67,415. Had you any instructions from the committee?—No.

67,416. Were you not at the committee when you began to canvass?—I have been at the committee room, but there were no instructions from them to me to engage runners or to have names set down.

67,417. They gave you authority to canvass?—Yes; they gave me the same authority as I had before.

67,418. Was your name on the committee?—No, not on the committee at all.

67,419. Did you have understand from the committee you would have authority to deal with interested people?—Of course I might say to them, "Go to the committee." But I never saw any money nor ever heard of any.

67,420. Did you understand if you sent a man to have his name set down, it should be done?—I have no doubt I did.

67,421. That was the understanding you had with the committee?—I had no understanding at all. It was only my own idea. If I sent a man or gave a note he would be put down; but I never had to send one.

67,422. You did send them?—Yes; but I only sent them in my own name. I said, "You can call and see if they want you;" nothing more.

67,423. Did you not give them to understand their names would be set down as applicants for employment?—Yes, I did in one or two instances, but I could not tell they were going to receive any emolument.

67,424. You did give them to understand their names should be set down as applicants?—Certainly.

67,425. Have you any doubt in your own mind that employment would be found for them, one way or the other?—I had a great deal of doubt.

67,426. Had you any doubt they would get money in some way?—I had a doubt in this respect, I did not think there was any money for them.

67,427. When you let them understand their names should be set down, did you not lead them to understand they would have money?—They might take that to themselves, it was nothing to me.

67,428. Did you not intend that they should think so?—They might take that of their own minds; I had nothing to do with that.

67,429. Did you not desire or intend that they should think so?—Most certainly.

67,430. You left them to think so?—I left them to think so, exactly.

Richard Cuttill.

RICHARD CUTTILL sworn, and examined.

67,431. Where do you live?—New George Street.

67,432. What rent do you pay?—£6.

67,433. What business are you?—A shipwright.

Richard Cuttill.

30th July 1853.

67,434. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

67,435. How long have you been so?—I cannot say exactly, perhaps fourteen or fifteen years.

67,436. Did you pay for it yourself or was it paid for you?—No; it was taken up for nothing.

67,437. By which party?—By the orange party, I think; I will not be certain.

67,438. Did you vote in 1841?—No; I never voted before this election.

67,439. Why not?—I have always been away at sea, and at different places.

67,440. At the last election who did you vote for?—For the blue party.

67,441. Moore and Butler?—Yes.

67,442. Were you paid for it?—Yes; I got a sovereign for being a runner.

67,443. Before or after you voted?—The Saturday night after the election.

67,444. Who paid you?—I was paid at the committee room.

67,445. Where?—Against Christ Church.

67,446. At the Worship Street committee room?—Yes; that is the street.

67,447. And you do not know who it was paid you?—No.

67,448. You had applied to be employed, had you not?—Yes.

67,449. You had asked them to set your name down as a runner?—Yes.

67,450. How much of that sovereign do you think you would have got if you had voted for the orange party?—I do not know, I am sure.

67,451. Do you think you would have got a shilling?—I do not know, I am sure. I got it after the election.

67,452. Do you think you would have got a shilling?—Perhaps nothing at all.

John Dalton.

JOHN DALTON sworn, and examined.

67,453. Where do you live?—Wellington Street.

67,454. What rent do you pay?—£30 a year.

67,455. What business are you?—A lodging-house-keeper.

67,456. Are you a freeman?—No.

67,457. A 10*l.* householder?—Yes.

67,458. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Not before this last election.

67,459. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

67,460. Who for?—Moore and Butler.

67,461. Were you paid any money for it?—Yes.

67,462. How much?—I believe 17*s.*, or 17*s.* 6*d.*, near the Market.

67,463. You were paid by Legitt?—Yes.

67,464. At the Minerva Terrace?—Yes.

67,465. You were set down as a runner in his room?—Yes.

67,466. When were you paid, before or after the election?—After.

67,467. Did you get any other money?—No.

Thomas Dalton.

THOMAS DALTON sworn, and examined.

67,468. Where do you live?—Helen Terrace.

67,469. What rent do you pay?—For house and offices, 15*l.*

67,470. What is your business?—Teacher of navigation and nautical astronomy

67,471. Are you a freeman?—I am a freeman.

67,472. How long?—Since 1839.

67,473. Do you know whether you are on the household list as well?—Not this last election.

67,474. Was your freedom taken up by the blues?—No.

67,475. By which party?—I paid for it myself.

67,476. Who did you vote for in 1841?—James and Hanmer.

67,477. Were you paid for it?—No.

67,478. Did you get no money?—The committee was held at my house for many weeks, and I was the clerk.

67,479. Were you paid for the use of your room?—I was paid for the use of my room.

67,480. And paid as a clerk?—Yes.

67,481. Had you applied to have your room taken?—No.

67,482. They came to you?—Yes.

67,483. Where was your room?—No. 7, Mason Street.

67,484. Who was the chairman?—Mr. Dennis Peacock.

67,485. Who was the deputy chairman?—I really do not know.

67,486. Who was the clerk besides you?—I really cannot say; I think I was the principal party.

67,487. Were there many names set down?—Yes.

67,488. How many during the election?—A goodly number.

67,489. How many?—There would be upwards of 100, I should suppose.

67,490. Where were they paid after the election?—At my house.

67,491. Who paid them?—I do not know; there was a gentleman, it was said, that came down from London, and those parties were paid a sovereign each at my house.

67,492. Were you there to help to pay it?—I was in the house at the time, but did not see them paid.

67,493. Who was there to check the payment?—I do not know anybody; they brought cards, and they were paid the money and walked away.

67,494. Each party brought a card?—Yes.

67,495. Were these cards given during the election?—I do not know how they were given; they were given to the parties and laid down, and each had a sovereign.

67,496. Was yours a private house or a public house?—A private house; at that time of day I was a schoolmaster and kept a school.

67,497. Did you never hear who the man was that came from London?—No.

67,498. How long after was it?—Some months after; six or nine months.

67,499. Were any paid during the election?—I think so; I never had anything to do with the payment.

67,500. Did you go to lock the people up?—Occasionally I went to lock them up.

67,501. Do you know what sort of notice was given of the day of payment?—I do not know; I know nothing about it.

67,502. You set the names down yourself?—A good many of them I did.

67,503. And some of them you told the payment would be made a certain day?—No doubt I did. I was asked many questions; who the party was I do not know.

67,504. Then it would spread from party to party?—Yes.

67,505. Was it a lawyer's clerk from London?—I do not know who it was.

67,506. What age was he?—A party in middle age.

67,507. Are you sure he was not a lawyer's clerk?—I do not know who he was. I asked the question many times.

67,508. And you never could find out?—And I never could find out.

67,509. What authority had you to let them into the house?—A party came and asked if I would let my room.

67,510. Who was the party?—I think John Newton, from the Operative Conservative Society.

67,511. John Newton took the room on the second occasion?—He came and asked for it.

67,512. Did you keep a list of the persons set down?—I had nothing to do with it.

67,513. Have you any papers relating to that election?—Not one.

67,514. And you can give no information as to the names of the hundred?—I do not know them; there was a goodly number.

67,515. Did Mr. Peacock take the papers?—Mr. Peacock and Mr. Robert Hentig.

67,516. Was he an active person?—Yes; and there were several other persons.

67,517. Is Mr. Peacock living in Hull now?—He lives in Albion Street, a timber merchant.

67,518. Is Mr. Hentig in Hull?—He is out in Borneo or Sarawak. He left Hull a year or two afterwards.

67,519. Who else came on the committee?—I cannot tell; there were two or three other persons. George Stephenson, Mr. Ruff, Frederick Peterson, and Joseph Watson.

67,520. Which Joseph Watson?—A mast and blockmaker.

67,521. Where does Watson live?—I really do not know. I see he was examined the other day.

67,522. Where does Peterson live?—Peterson is dead.

67,523. Was it Joseph Watson who was examined yesterday?—Yes.

67,524. Can you tell us anything more about that election?—I do not know; I know nothing more about it.

67,525. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

67,526. Were you paid anything that time?—I was clerk to Mr. Charles Yeall.

67,527. Did you help him to set down names?—I dare say I did.

67,528. And to pay?—I had nothing to do with the payment. I was present when he paid the men at the Sculcoates Tavern.

67,529. Was that after the election?—That was a day or two after the election.

67,530. Were you there to check the payments?—I believe I was.

67,531. That is helping him, is it not?—Yes; certainly.

67,532. You mean the money did not pass through your hands?—No money passed through my hands.

67,533. Do you know whether any sham committee rooms were taken?—I do not.

67,534. This was for Brown in 1847?—Yes.

67,535. Mr. Yeall has given us a list, did you take any part in the election besides helping him?—No; I did not. I scarcely ever left the room.

67,536. The names of all the persons set down in your room were taken down in a list?—Yes.

67,537. Was there more than one list?—I cannot say.

Thomas Dalton.

30th July 1853.

67,538. Mr. Yeall has given a list of eighty or ninety?—I should think there would be that number.

67,539. And that is all?—That is all.

67,540. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

67,541. How were you employed by them?—I was employed by them a few days at a central committee.

67,542. As a clerk?—Yes; and I was check clerk at the polling booth in Mason Street, the day of the election.

67,543. Did you set down names this time?—No; nothing to do with it.

67,544. You were in Fowler's room?—Yes.

67,545. You saw nothing of the real part?—I had nothing to do with the election this time.

67,546. You were useless this time?—My business would not allow me to attend to it.

67,547. By whose recommendation were you employed last time;—by Mr. Yeall's?—Mr. Yeall would have been anxious for my services. I said I would render what assistance I could.

67,548. You were employed a few days at the central committee?—Yes; Mr. Fowler and Mr. Rosindal introduced me.

67,549. How long were they making the payments in 1841?—I was only an hour or two.

67,550. All done one day?—It was in the evening.

67,551. How many do you think you paid?—Fifty or sixty, probably more; parties that were neglected in other parts of the town came with their cards, and were paid as they tendered them.

67,552. The 100 men set down, when were they paid?—This would be the payment, I presume.

67,553. You say that the fifty or sixty paid by this gentleman, were those who had not been paid at different parts of the town?—Parties left the district I was in, and got the money at other places. It was not generally known who they were to go to, and consequently many set down at my house were shut out and went elsewhere.

67,554. There were payments immediately after the election?—That I am not aware of; I had nothing to do with that.

67,555. How soon did you get your own money?—That would be some weeks. Mr. Peacock left it with my wife.

67,556. Some other people got paid at the time you got the 15*l.*?—They were not paid at my house, and I had nothing to do with it, that I know of.

67,557. How long was your room engaged the first time?—For many weeks; I cannot tell; it was eight or ten weeks, or probably more in 1841.

67,558. Was the committee sitting as long as that?—Yes; they came in the evening a long time before the election came off.

67,559. Who applied to you first for the use of your room that year?—I do not know; it might be Mr. Peacock or Dr. Alderson.

67,560. Did you make a specific agreement?—I made no agreement; I never did; I left it entirely to themselves.

67,561. You understood you would be paid something as an equivalent?—I did, certainly.

William Day.

WILLIAM DAY sworn, and examined.

67,562. Where do you live?—No. 58, Francis Street.

67,563. What rent do you pay for a house?—£9.

67,564. What business are you?—Hay and straw dealer.

67,565. Are you a freeman?—No.

67,566. Are you on the 10*l.* household list?—At the time I was put down I paid 18*l.*

67,567. You are on the register?—Yes.

67,568. How long have you been entitled to vote?—I voted for Mr. Baines the first.

67,569. You were not entitled to vote in 1841, then?—No.

67,570. Who did you vote for in 1847?—I voted for Baines, and I cannot recollect the other party.

67,571. Brown?—I think it was, I cannot recollect.

67,572. Were you paid any money for it?—No.

67,573. Did you get no money that election at all?—Not a halfpenny.

67,574. Did you let no room?—No.

67,575. No bill against them?—No.

67,576. Did you canvass?—No.

67,577. Had you anything to do with the election?—Nothing at all.

67,578. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

67,579. Were you paid for it?—Yes.

67,580. How much?—A sovereign.

67,581. Where?—A gentleman brought it to my house and gave it to my wife.

William Day.

30th July 1853.

67,582. You do not know who it was?—No.
67,583. Where were you set down?—I was set down in Charles Street.
67,584. Do you know who by?—I believe Mr. Cattley.
67,585. You are not quite so well off as you used to be?—Not quite; I have been ill eighteen months.
67,586. Is that the cause of it?—Yes.
67,587. Money was of more importance to you at the last election than it used to be?—Yes.

Thomas Dean.

THOMAS DEAN sworn, and examined.

67,588. Where do you live?—Reform Street.
67,589. What rent do you pay?—Five guineas.
67,590. What business are you?—A shipwright.
67,591. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
67,592. How long have you been so?—Since 1830.
67,593. Was it paid for for you?—No; I bought it myself.
67,594. Who did you vote for in 1841?—Hanmer and James.
67,595. Were you paid for it?—No.
67,596. Were you paid any money?—I got a sovereign; but I was not paid for voting.
67,597. Who paid you?—I do not know; I think it was Mr. Conkerton.
67,598. Where were you paid?—In Vincent Street, I think.
67,599. Was it at a committee room there?—No.
67,600. Was it before or after you voted?—After.
67,601. How long?—A day or two after; I cannot say.
67,602. Had you been set down as a runner? had you had your name set down?—Yes; I was one for Mr. Edward Gibson. I believe there were only two freemen in the place, and Sir John Hanmer came, and I said I would promise him, and I would poll for him, and I did.
67,603. What else did you do for your guinea besides that?—I was running about all the week; to the polling room, I ran.
67,604. You were a messenger or a runner for them?—Yes.
67,605. At what committee room?—I was in Sykes Street committee room, and then from there, I would not stop there, I went into Saville Street.
67,606. Was that in 1841?—Yes.
67,607. For Hanmer and James?—Yes.
67,608. When did you ask them to employ you?—I did not ask them at all.
67,609. Did they ask you?—Yes.
67,610. And you agreed to be employed?—Yes.
67,611. You knew very well, that if they employed you, they would expect you to vote for them?—Of course I should expect so; it was not unlikely.
67,612. And you knew afterwards, that if you had not voted for them, they would not have paid you?—I should think it was not likely.
67,613. Their part was to employ you and pay you, and your part was to run about a little and vote, is not that so?—I hung the colour staffs about.
67,614. At the next election of 1847 who did you vote for?—Brown and Clay.
67,615. Did you get any money for that?—Ten shillings for Mr. Brown, and I might have got 10*s.* for Mr. Clay, if I had promised I would poll for the orange again; but they would not give me anything.
67,616. Who paid you for Mr. Brown?—Mr. Mitchell; I got that at Mr. Mitchell's house.
67,617. Was that before or after you voted?—After.
67,618. When was it that you asked for the money for Mr. Clay?—It was before this election came on.
67,619. Just before this last election?—Yes.
67,620. You went to King Street?—Yes; and Mr. Gresham and Mr. Atkinson told me if I would only set down my name and poll for them, they would pay me.
67,621. You went to King Street, and Mr. Gresham and Mr. Atkinson were there, is that so?—Yes.
67,622. When you went into the room what did you ask them?—I asked if I could get my 10*s.*
67,623. That is for Mr. Clay's former election?—Yes; I polled for Mr. Clay.
67,624. Tell me as exactly as you can what they said to you?—They said if I would promise them, and would put my name down upon a book, they would give me the 10*s.*
67,625. Are those the words they used?—Yes.
67,626. What were you to put your name down in a book for?—To promise them for the orange.
67,627. Did they say so?—Yes.
67,628. They said you were to promise to vote for the orange?—Yes. I expect I am upon my oath now.

Thomas Dean.

30th July 1853.

67,629. Which of them said it?—I do not know which of them. It was said so, but I could not swear who.

67,630. Did you refuse to have your name set down?—I said I should not poll for them.

67,631. You said that?—Yes.

67,632. What did they say?—They said I must call again to-morrow. I called again to-morrow and they would not give me anything; they said the blues were in the field, and they would not pay the money.

67,633. They refused to pay you the money?—Yes.

67,634. Did you go to the blues; was your name set down for the blues?—Yes.

67,635. Where?—I do not know where; I saw Mr. Moore and Mr. Butler in Francis Street, and I told them I should vote for them.

67,636. Was your name set down in Worship Street?—No.

67,637. Which committee room was it, do you know?—In Saville Street it was.

67,638. You voted for Moore and Butler?—Yes.

67,639. How much did you get?—A sovereign.

67,640. Who paid it?—I cannot tell you exactly; I think it was a man they called Brown; I do not know; I cannot swear that.

67,641. It was paid at the committee room?—Yes.

67,642. After you voted?—After I voted.

67,643. You mean the blue committee in Saville Street, not the orange committee?—Yes, the blue committee.

Joseph Dixon.

JOSEPH DIXON sworn, and examined.

67,644. Where do you live?—No. 3, Ebenezer Place, Chariot Street.

67,645. What rent do you pay?—Six guineas.

67,646. What business are you?—A plumber and glazier.

67,647. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

67,648. How long have you been a freeman?—Twelve or thirteen years.

67,649. Was it taken up for you?—Yes.

67,650. In 1839, when others were taken up?—Yes.

67,651. By which party?—The blue party.

67,652. Did you vote in consequence in 1841?—I did partly; I believe I voted for Sir Walter James and Mr. James Clay.

67,653. The vote you gave to Sir Walter James was, because he had taken up your freedom?—Decidedly, through gratitude.

67,654. When they paid for your freedom, you knew they would expect that of you?—Yes, decidedly; and they did.

67,655. Did you get any money at the election for your vote?—I believe I did previous; I was a runner, but could not say what I got.

67,656. You were a runner for Sir Walter James?—Yes; and I received a sum of money, but I could not tell you what.

67,657. Have you any doubt that you did receive some?—I have no doubt that I did receive some 67,658. You do not recollect how much?—No; I was quite young in the business then.

67,659. Were you young enough to get something from Mr. Clay too?—No; not a single farthing.

67,660. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Brown.

67,661. Did you get anything from him?—Yes, afterwards.

67,662. How much?—Ten shillings.

67,663. Who paid it?—Mr. Bannister, I believe; he paid my missus; that was paid the day following. I went out of town and she received it; she told me she had.

67,664. Was that all you got?—I believe it was.

67,665. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

67,666. Were you paid for that?—I was afterwards, not previous.

67,667. How much?—I received a sovereign.

67,668. Who from?—Mr. Steeple.

67,669. You had your name set down before?—Yes, decidedly.

67,670. As a runner?—Yes.

67,671. Was Mr. Brown, Mr. Sidebottom's clerk, present when your freedom was taken up; who was the party that attended, paying the money for the blues?—I cannot tell; it was a stranger to me; it was left to each man's option who should pay for the freedoms that were taken up at that time.

WILLIAM DONALDSON sworn, and examined.

W. Donaldson.

30th July 1853.

67,672. Where do you live?—No. 28, Christopher Street.
67,673. What rent do you pay?—£7.
67,674-5. What business are you?—A painter.
67,676. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
67,677. How long have you been a freeman?—About ten years, as near as I can tell.
67,678. Did you take up your freedom, or was it taken up for you?—I took it up myself.
67,679. And were not repaid?—No.
67,680. Which was the first election at which you voted?—Clay and Brown's, in 1847.
67,681. Was that the first election at which you were entitled to vote?—Yes.
67,682. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Brown.
67,683. Were you paid for it?—No; I never received a halfpenny.
67,684. Did you get any money?—Not any at all.
67,685. Was your name set down?—I do not know that it was.
67,686. Did anybody tell you that it should be?—No.
67,687. Did anybody speak to you about it?—No one came to me.
67,688. And you never expected to have any money that election?—No.
67,689. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
67,690. Were you paid for it?—Yes; I got a sovereign after the election, for four days' work.
67,691. Who paid you?—It was paid by Mr. Dutchman, in Saville Street.
67,692. Was he on the committee or one of the clerks?—He was a runner, the same as myself.
67,693. You had your name set down as a runner, before you voted?—Yes.

JOHN DORAN sworn, and examined.

John Doran.

67,694. Where do you live?—George's Place.

67,696. What business are you?—A shipwright.
67,697. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
67,698. How long have you been so?—I think about 1847 I took it up; but I was not entitled to vote at that election.
67,699. Was it taken up for you or did you take it up yourself?—I took it up myself.
67,700. Was the last, the first election at which you were entitled to vote?—Yes.
67,701. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
67,702. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
67,703. How much?—I was paid as a labourer.
67,704. How much?—27*s.* 6*d.*
67,705. Where?—At the Shakespeare.
67,706. Who by?—Mr. Edwin Davis.
67,707. Were you paid before or after the election?—I got 22*s.* 6*d.* the day after the election, and 5*s.* on the Saturday night before. I was on seven days.
67,708. Did you apply to be employed?—I applied for employment.
67,709. When you asked them to employ you, you knew if they did employ you they would expect you to vote?—They might.
67,710. Did you know at the time?—I always intended to vote for the blues.
67,711. You may say yes or no; but when you asked them to employ you, did you not know in your own mind, if they did employ you, that they would expect you to vote for them?—Yes; certainly they would.
67,712. You knew that?—Yes.
67,713. And you accepted their employment?—Yes.
67,714. And took their money?—Yes.
67,715. Did you not know that as an honest man you were bound to vote for them?—Yes.
67,716. And you did vote for them?—Yes.
67,717. And you knew afterwards, if you had not voted for them, they would not have paid you?—I should not have applied for the money.
67,718. Did you think they would have paid you?—I should think not.

JOSEPH DRURY sworn, and examined.

Joseph Drury.

67,719. Where do you live?—No. 1, Fillingham Buildings, William Street.

67,721. What business are you?—A boatbuilder.
67,722. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
67,723. How long have you been a freeman?—About 1826 I think it was. I would not say to a year or two.

Joseph Drury.

30th July 1853.

67,724. In the year 1826?—Yes.

67,725. Did you vote at any election before the Reform Bill?—Yes; I voted for Sykes.

67,726. Did you get four guineas and two guineas?—I got two guineas.

67,727. In 1841, who did you vote for?—Clay and some one else. I cannot say who.

67,728. Clay and Thompson?—I could not say who.

67,729. Did you vote orange or blue?—I cannot say who it was.

67,730. Did you get any money for it?—Not a farthing.

67,731. Was your name set down?—No.

67,732. Did you not expect any money?—No.

67,733. You swear that you got no money from the candidates or their party?—Yes.

67,734. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I believe it was Clay and Baines.

67,735. Did you get any money?—Nothing.

67,736. Any money at that election at all?—Nothing at all. I never was promised any, and never had any idea of any.

67,737. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

67,738. And was paid for it?—Yes.

67,739. How much?—I got 17*s.* 6*d.* before the election, and 17*s.* 6*d.* about five weeks after.

67,740. You were set down at Legitt's room, at the Minerva Terrace?—Yes, I was. I promised Legitt and George Hare; they came canvassing the Railway Dock side, and the day after they came and said they would set me down as a runner; they did set me down and I got 17*s.* 6*d.* before the election, and 17*s.* 6*d.* about five weeks after.

67,741. Who paid you?—Mr. Legitt paid me before the election, at the Minerva Hotel; and about five weeks after he brought it to the Victoria Dock, where I was working.

Thomas Drust.

THOMAS DRUST sworn, and examined.

67,742. Where do you live?—Humber Dock Street.

67,743. What rent do you yay?—£8.

67,744. What business are you?—A smith.

67,745. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

67,746. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1838.

67,747. Was it paid for for you, or did you pay for it yourself?—I paid for it myself.

67,748. And were not repaid?—I was not repaid.

67,749. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Hanmer and Clay.

67,750. Were you paid for it?—Yes.

67,751. How much?—10*s.*

67,752. Only?—Only.

67,753. For who was that?—For Hanmer, I think.

67,754. Who paid you?—I do not know. I was paid in Parliament Street. I do not know the gentleman who paid me. I think it was at Mr. Sidebottom's office.

67,755. Was it after you had voted?—After I had voted; perhaps four or five months. I cannot say to a month.

67,756. You got nothing from Mr. Clay?—No; not a farthing.

67,757. At the next election, in 1847, for whom did you vote?—Brown alone.

67,758. Were you paid for it?—Yes.

67,759. How much?—A pound.

67,760. Before or after?—After.

67,761. Who by?—Mr. Bannister.

67,762. At the Blue Bell?—Yes.

67,763. At the last election for whom did you vote?—Moore and Butler.

67,764. Were you paid for it?—Yes.

67,765. How much?—A pound.

67,766. By whom?—I do not know. I was in the committee room in Waverley Street. I do not know the gentleman.

67,767. Before or after you voted?—After.

67,768. Was that all you got?—That was all I got.

John Dunn.

JOHN DUNN sworn, and examined.

67,769. Where do you live?—Queen Square, Scott Street.

67,770. What rent do you pay?—£10.

67,771. What business are you?—A woodturner.

67,772. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

67,773. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1841.

67,774. Was it paid for for you, or did you pay for it yourself?—I paid for it myself.

67,775. And were not repaid?—No.

67,776. Did you vote in 1841?—No.

John Dunn.

30th July 1853.

67,777. Were you not entitled to vote?—No.
67,778. In 1847 for whom did you vote?—Baines and Brown.
67,779. Were you paid for it?—Not at the election. I got 5*s.* after the election.
67,780. Who from?—I cannot tell you the name. Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Steeple were present. I cannot say whether they gave it or not; it was in the Market Place here, at Mr. Stamps's; where his place was.
67,781. Had you a 5*s.* ticket?—No.
67,782. Did you get anything for Mr. Baines?—No.
67,783. Did you get any money for Mr. Brown?—That was for Mr. Brown, the 5*s.*
67,784. And nothing more for Mr. Brown?—No.
67,785. Had you your name set down before?—No; not that I know of.
67,786. How came you to go for the 5*s.*?—Because they were paying it to all who went.
67,787. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
67,788. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
67,789. How much?—I had 30*s.* 6*d.* altogether.
67,790. Who paid you?—Mr. Atkin gave me a sovereign on the polling day, and 10*s.* 6*d.* the Saturday before. I was put down for six days' running.
67,791. That that was paid on the polling day, was paid after voting?—No; I was paid before.
67,792. Were you paid anything after you voted?—No; the 10*s.* 6*d.* was paid on the Saturday previous.
67,793. At the Market Place committee room?—At the Shakespeare.

OSWALD ETHERINGTON sworn, and examined.

O. Etherington.

67,794. Where do you live?—Regent Street, Anlaby Road.
67,795. What rent do you pay?—The house is my own.
67,796. What is it rated at?—£6.
67,797. What is your business?—A coalporter.
67,798. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
67,799. How long have you been so?—About twenty-three years.
67,800. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Sir Walter James and Sir John Hanmer.
67,801. Were you paid for it?—I was three weeks at the committee room, at 30*s.* a week.
67,802. As a messenger?—Yes.
67,803. At which committee room?—In Waterworks Street.
67,804. Were you paid before or after the election?—I was paid every week; every Saturday night.
67,805. The last payment was after the election?—It was.
67,806. You had applied to be employed, had you not?—No; they applied to me.
67,807. And you agreed to be employed for them?—Yes; I agreed to be employed by them.
67,808. When you were to be employed by them and paid, you knew that they would expect you to vote for them?—Of course.
67,809. And when you were paid after the election, you knew that they would not pay you unless you had voted for them?—Certainly.
67,810. In 1847 who did you vote for?—For Baines and Brown.
67,811. Were you paid for either of those?—I was paid 10*s.* for Mr. Brown.
67,812. And anything else?—No, nothing for Baines.
67,813. Who paid you for Mr. Brown?—I do not know.
67,814. Where was it paid?—I was paid at Carlisle Street end; the Blue Bell.
67,815. By Mr. Bannister?—Yes, by Mr. Bannister.
67,816. Was it before or after?—After I voted.
67,817. Was that all you got that election?—Yes.
67,818. At the last election who did you vote for?—Lord Goderich and Mr. Clay.
67,819. Had you had your name set down for the blues?—No.
67,820. Were you employed by the blues at all?—No.
67,821. Nor paid?—No.
67,822. Before the election?—No.
67,823. Was your name set down?—Not that I know of.
67,824. Was it not set down in Mr. Wilde's list?—No.
67,825. Did you apply to have your name set down?—No.
67,826. Why did you not apply for employment at the last election?—I did not feel disposed.
67,827. You did not wish any money?—I did not want to lose my other employment. I did not want to spend my time there.
67,828. You were at work elsewhere?—Yes; I was at work at my own business.
67,829. Your name is down at two different committee rooms?—Then I did not know it.
67,830. When they canvassed you, did they ask you whether they should set your name down?—Not that I know of; I never got my name put down. I did not go to the committee room, neither did they ask me to have any name set down; they canvassed me, and asked me to poll for them.

O. Etherington.

30th July 1853.

67,831. What did you tell them?—I said I had not made up my mind. I did not know which way I should poll.

67,832. Did they tell you they should set your name down?—I do not know.

67,833. Do you recollect whether they did or not?—I do not at present; two gentlemen came, Mr. West and another.

67,834. Do you recollect anything of this sort; they said they would set it down, and you said they might if they liked?—No.

67,835. Nothing of that kind?—I said I had not made up my mind which way I should vote.

67,836. Did you say the same to the orange?—Yes; they solicited me afterwards, and then I told them I would poll for them.

67,837. When the orange first canvassed you?—When the orange first canvassed me, I said I should not poll for them, the same as I did for the blues.

67,838. Did they say they would set your name down?—No; I never got my name set down at all.

67,839. Are you quite sure they never said anything about setting your name down as a runner?—No; they did not say anything about it.

W. Etherington.

WILLIAM ETHERINGTON sworn, and examined.

67,840. Where do you live?—Finkle Street.

67,841. What rent do you pay?—£17 10*s.*

67,842. What business are you?—A porter.

67,843. Do you carry on business where you pay the 17*l.* 10*s.* rent?—Yes.

67,844. What business is it?—A grocer's shop. I am not always in the shop; I am out working.

67,845. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

67,846. How long have you been a freeman?—In 1848 it was taken up.

67,847. Have you ever been entitled to vote as a 10*l.* householder?—No.

67,848. Never been on the register?—No.

67,849. Was the last election the first at which you voted?—Yes.

67,850. Who for?—Moore and Butler.

67,851. Were you paid for it?—Yes.

67,852. How much?—I believe it was a month and some two or three days.

67,853. How much were you paid?—The first fortnight was a pound a week, and the other was a guinea.

67,854. Were you paid the whole before you voted, or part before and part after?—Part before, and part after.

67,855. Did they hold any part back each week?—I was paid every Saturday night.

67,856. The whole of your money?—For the week's work.

67,857. The first two weeks, were you paid the pound on Saturday night?—No.

67,858. You were not paid in full?—No; there was something kept back the first week.

67,859. Then they did keep part back till after you had voted?—Yes.

67,860. What was that for, to see which way you voted?—I expect so.

67,861. You knew that at the time?—I knew I should vote for them.

67,862. You knew that they would expect it; it was part of the agreement?—There was not a deal kept back.

67,863. Did you not know that they would expect you to vote for them if they employed you?—Yes, of course I should vote for them.

67,864. And they would not pay you what they held back, unless you had voted for them?—No.

67,865. Were you one of the parties who threatened to go over to the other side, unless the sum was raised, from a pound to a guinea?—No; I never spoke a word.

67,866. We have heard there were a great many that did?—I know two or three of them that did.

67,867. Mention who they are?—One they call Smithson.

67,868. William Henry Smithson?—I do not know what they call him; he is a butcher or a drover.

67,869. Who else?—I think there was another they call Todd.

67,870. Go on?—There were no others that I know of.

67,871. There were others, though you do not remember the names?—I do not know who they were exactly.

67,872. At which committee room was it that they complained?—At the Shakespeare.

WILLIAM EVERINGHAM sworn, and examined. W. Everingham.

30th July 1853.

67,873. Where do you live?—Great Thornton Street.
67,874. What rent do you pay?—£6.
67,875. What business are you?—A shipwright.
67,876. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
67,877. How long?—Since 1847.
67,878. Did you pay for it yourself?—Yes.
67,879. Were you entitled to vote in 1847?—Yes; but I was away.
67,880. It was before 1847 that you took up your freedom?—Yes.
67,881. And you were away?—Yes; at sea.
67,882. At the last election, for whom did you vote?—Moore and Butler.
67,883. How much were you paid for it?—23*s.*
67,884. By Legitt?—Yes.
67,885. Was your name set down at the Minerva Terrace?—Yes.
67,886. At his room?—Yes.
67,887. Did he pay you before or after you voted?—After the election.
67,888. Was that all you got?—That was all I got.

ROBERT FEATHERSTONE sworn, and examined. R. Featherstone.

67,889. Where do you live?—In Dock Street.
67,890. What business are you?—A tinner.
67,891. What rent do you pay?—Nine guineas.
67,892. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
67,893. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1812.
67,894. Did you get the four guineas and the two in the old days?—Yes.
67,895. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
67,896. Were you paid for it?—I was paid for being employed as a runner.
67,897. How much?—I really cannot tell you.
67,898. About how much?—I am sure I cannot say to speak positively, for I never thought any more of it.
67,899. Was it more than a pound?—Yes; more than a pound.
67,900. More than two?—Not so much.
67,901. Between one and two?—Yes.
67,902. Who paid you?—I cannot say.
67,903. Before or after you voted?—After, I believe.
67,904. You were employed as a runner?—Yes.
67,905. Do you recollect whether you were paid through a window, or a hole, or anything of that sort?—No; I had it in a room, but I cannot remember where it was at present.
67,906. When they employed you, you knew that they would expect you to vote if they did employ you?—Yes; they would expect me to vote for them. I promised to vote before I was employed.
67,907. They would not have employed you, unless they expected that you would vote for them?—I expect that they would expect me to vote for them if they employed me.
67,908. And you accepted their employment upon those terms?—Yes.
67,909. You did vote for them?—Yes.
67,910. And you took the money?—I took the money.
67,911. And they would not have paid you after the election, if you had not voted for them?—I should not have looked for it, if I had not voted.
67,912. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Brown and Baines.
67,913. Were you paid for that?—I think I got 15*s.* or something of that sort, for Mr. Brown, and 5*s.* for Mr. Baines.
67,914. Was the 15*s.* paid you before or after you voted?—I think I got 5*s.* before, or else 10*s.* before; I did not get all before, I got something after.
67,915. Who paid it?—I was paid at Conkerton's.
67,916. Was that a committee room?—No; I think it was only a paying place. I do not know whether it was or no; I did not see that it was a committee room.
67,917. Was it Mr. Conkerton who paid you?—Yes, he paid me himself.
67,918. That was your 15*s.* for Mr. Brown?—Yes.
67,919. Where did you get the 5*s.* for Mr. Baines?—At Mr. Sidebottom's, in Parliament Street.
67,920. That was some time after the election?—Yes.
67,921. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
67,922. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
67,923. How much?—I do not remember; I think it was four days at 3*s.* 6*d.* a day, and two days at 5*s.* a day; I believe that was it.
67,924. That is about 24*s.* 6*d.* altogether?—Yes.
67,925. Was it paid before or after you voted?—Part of it was paid before, and part after.

R. Featherstone.

30th July 1853.

67,926. Who paid it?—Mr. Purdon before, and a gentleman that I did not know paid after, but Mr. Purdon was in the room.

67,927. You, as an old freeman, know that in Hull the vote is always considered as part of the bargain, where a person is employed; the man does not get money unless he votes?—I should look on it as this; I should never take employment if I did not vote that way.

67,928. As an old freeman you know that the vote always is considered as part of the bargain?—I do not know but what it is.

67,929. Everybody else has said so?—Yes.

67,930. That is so, is it not; it is always considered so?—It is considered so, I believe.

Robert Fewlass.

ROBERT FEWLASS sworn, and examined.

67,931. Where do you live?—Cumberland Street.

67,932. What rent do you pay?—£10.

67,933. What business are you?—A grocer and flour dealer.

67,934. Are you a freeman?—No.

67,935. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Four or five years ago.

67,936. Is the last election the first at which you voted?—Yes.

67,937. Who for?—Moore and Butler.

67,938. Were you paid for it?—Yes.

67,939. How much?—A pound.

67,940. Who by?—It was left for me in Waverley Street, next door to the committee room.

67,941. At a friend's house?—Yes.

67,942. Was that after you had voted?—Nine or ten days after.

John Ford.

JOHN FORD sworn, and examined.

67,943. Where do you live?—Grimstone Street.

67,944. What rent do you pay?—£15.

67,945. What is your business?—Bricklayer.

67,946. Are you a freeman?—No.

67,947. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Only this last election.

67,948. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

67,949. Were you paid for it?—Not for my vote. I had 10*s.* for my day: I was fetched out of the country.

67,950. Where did you come from?—From Lincolnshire.

67,951. How far from Hull?—Two miles across the water.

67,952. Did you come across in the ferry-boat?—The New Holland boat.

67,953. What is the fare?—4*d.*

67,954. Fourpence there and back?—Each way.

67,955. How did you come those two miles?—I had to walk.

67,956. You walked it both ways?—Yes.

67,957. And I suppose you took the trouble to walk into Hull?—Yes, from South End.

67,958. Your expenses were 8*d.* and you got 10*s.*; is that so?—Yes, and there was the day's wages.

67,959. When were you paid?—As soon as I had voted.

67,960. Who paid you?—It was paid at Quay Street.

J. Faulkner.

JEREMIAH FAULKNER sworn, and examined.

67,961. What is your business?—I am a joiner.

67,962. Where do you live?—No. 78, Lowgate.

67,963. What rent do you pay?—None.

67,964. You are sexton?—I am sexton of St. John's church; I keep the Conservative news-room; I have a small salary, and they allow me to live rent free. I am rated at 28*l.*

67,965. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

67,966. How long have you been a freeman?—It was taken up by the blue party in July 1839, and was paid for by them.

67,967. Was it understood that if they did take up your freedom you were to vote for them?—Certainly.

67,968. Who did you vote for in 1841?—Hanmer and James.

67,969. Did you receive any money?—Not at the time of the election. I was employed four days at the central committee room, and I took the state of the poll every half hour on the election day from one of the polling booths to the central committee in Bowlalley Lane.

67,970. Were you paid for that?—I was paid 1*l.*

67,971. After the election?—After the election.

67,972. Did they understand from you that if you were paid you would vote for Hanmer and James?—That did not influence my vote; if I had not got a farthing, I should have voted the same.

67,973. Did you believe you would have been paid, if you had not voted for them?—They would have paid me for my services.

67,974. How many persons did they pay who voted against them; did you ever hear of a single instance of their paying a runner who had voted against them?—Not since this inquiry.

67,975. Did you ever hear of it?—No; I should think not.

67,976. Do you think they would have made you the exception?—Perhaps not. I know I worked for the money, and I got it.

67,977. The question you are asked is, whether they would have done it?—If I had voted for Clay and Thompson, of course they would not have paid me

67,978. You knew that when they gave you the employment?—Certainly.

67,979. You accepted the employment on that condition?—I intended to vote for them.

67,980. You knew that was the condition they made, and you accepted it on that condition?—Yes.

67,981. Who did you vote for in 1847?—Baines and Brown.

67,982. Did you receive any money at that election?—Yes.

67,983. How much?—7*s.* 6*d.*

67,984. For whom was that?—It was paid me as a messenger.

67,985. For which candidate?—For Brown.

67,986. That was the same in terms as in 1841, was it not?—Yes, I was engaged at the central committee two days, the nomination day and the polling day.

67,987. Before or after the election were you paid?—After the election.

67,988. Was that all you got?—I only got 7*s.* 6*d.* I was done out of half-a-crown; I always thought so.

67,989. How came that?—I do not know. They ought to have given me 10*s.* but I only got three half-crowns.

67,990. Who was it paid by?—It was paid at the central committee by Mr. Side-bottom.

67,991. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Moore and Butler.

67,992. Did you get paid this time?—Yes.

67,993. How much?—I was engaged, from the 8th of June to the 10th of July, as the messenger to the Lowgate ward committee room—that is the house I live in, and I had the charge of the committee room and the papers. I was engaged the whole of the time, from the 8th of June to the 10th of July, the first two weeks at a pound a week, and the rest of the time at a guinea a week.

67,994. Was it your house that they took as the committee room?—They did not take it from me; I lived in it.

67,995. You were engaged then on the same conditional understanding as in 1841?—Exactly.

67,996. Were you paid for the use of the room?—No; it went to the funds of the society; the Conservative Society; I never saw it.

67,997. Was it engaged for about a week or a fortnight?—I was engaged from the 8th of June to the 10th of July; the first two weeks at a pound a week, and the rest of the time at a guinea a week. It came to betwixt 5*l.* and 6*l.* I suppose.

67,998. At that time was there a strike among some of the runners who threatened to go over to the orange party unless an extra price was given?—That was about the middle of June.

67,999. Did you join the party?—No.

68,000. Who were the parties that struck?—Several of the persons who were employed as messengers.

68,001. What are their names?—George Dix, I remember, was one; but he has left the country; he has gone to Australia.

68,002. Tell us one that has not gone to Australia?—I cannot just now; I could easily hand in a list on another day.

68,003. Can you hand in a list of all the persons who were the messengers at that ward?—Yes, it is very likely I could, by just consulting the poll book.

68,004. Perhaps you will do that by Monday morning, and distinguish the names of the gentlemen who struck?—Yes.

68,005. What did they say?—That they would go over to the other side and vote for Clay and Goderich.

68,006. How many were there of them?—Well, I should think half of them.

68,007. And how many were there at that room at that time?—About twenty.

68,008. About ten of them struck?—Yes.

68,009. How many men were set down at that committee room altogether during the election?—Well, I could not tell to half a dozen; I should think from thirty to forty.

J. Faulkner.

30th July 1853.

5*s.* for you." I said, "I am to have 10*s.*, you want to sack the other 5*s.* yourself." However, he gave me no more than that 5*s.*, and he had lots of money, I know.

68,010. You think you can give us the names?—I think I can by consulting the poll book.

68,011. Can you give us, as near as you can, the date of that strike?—Yes, I should say it was the 19th of June.

68,012. At that time there were about twenty employed there?—Yes, and after that from twenty to thirty.

68,013. Did this happen at the end of a week?—Yes, it did; on a Saturday.

68,014. What did the parties do; did they go into the committee room, or whom did they complain to?—To Mr. Pulleyn.

68,015. At the committee room?—Yes.

68,016. Did they go into the room to him?—They did; I let them in.

68,017. What did they say to him; all or some of them?—They said the orange party were giving a guinea a week, and they were not willing to be employed at the rate of a pound.

68,018. They said that to Mr. Pulleyn?—They said that to Mr. Pulleyn.

68,019. And what did he say?—He said he could not do anything in it; then it was represented to the aggregate meeting of the chairmen at the central committee room on the following Monday, and the extra, I believe, was paid to them—that they said they would stop for.

68,020. Who was the chairman?—Mr. Brodrick was the chairman, but I am speaking of the aggregate meeting of the chairmen at the central committee; Mr. Pulleyn paid them after that meeting, some on the Monday and some on the next day, and they came back.

68,021. Did he pay them for the bygone time,—for the weeks gone past?—Yes, they were all paid at the rate of a guinea a week from the commencement, after that.

68,022. Not in advance?—No, they were engaged at a pound a week, and they struck, and then they were paid all back arrears.

68,023. The back money was paid them?—Yes.

68,024. You mean all the previous payments were made up to a guinea?—Yes, they were paid at the rate of a guinea a week from the first to that time.

68,025. They had received the 1*l.*?—Yes.

68,026. And they received a shilling more for those weeks?—Yes, exactly.

68,027. And a guinea afterwards?—Yes.

68,028. Do you think they would have carried their threat into execution?—Well, I do not know; men are not to be depended upon at election times; they are a sad set, some of them; men are to be bought any way at elections.

68,029. Would the difference between a pound and a guinea turn the scale?—Yes, it will actually turn a man's vote.

68,030. A shilling?—Yes, the shilling.

John Newmarch.

JOHN NEWMARCH sworn, and examined.

68,031. Where do you live?—I live in Kingston Square, North Street.

68,032. What rent do you pay?—Five guineas.

68,033. What is your business?—I am a mariner, a sailor by trade.

68,034. You are a freeman?—Yes.

68,035. How long have you been a freeman?—In 1825, I believe, I took up my freedom.

68,036. Did you take it up yourself?—Yes, independent of anybody.

68,037. In 1841 did you vote for Hanmer and James?—I voted for O'Neil the first election.

68,038. But in 1841 did you vote for Hanmer and James?—Yes.

68,039. Were you paid for that?—Yes.

68,040. How much?—I got 30*s.* for the week, and I got a pound after; it would be twelve months after, I cannot say exactly.

68,041. Who paid you the first, the 30*s.*?—Mr. Bannister.

68,042. Who paid you the second sum?—I am sure I could not say; there was a lamp before the man, and I could not say who he was.

68,043. Where were you paid?—In Medley Street.

68,044. At the schoolmaster's house?—I think he was a painter.

68,045. Mr. Conkerton?—Yes, that is the name.

68,046. In 1847 who did you vote for?—For Baines and Brown.

68,047. Were you paid for that?—Yes.

68,048. How much were you paid?—I got 10*s.*

68,049. Who from?—From Mr. Brown, and I should have had 10*s.* from Mr. Baines, but Mr. Sidebottom robbed me of 5*s.* out of that; he only gave me 5*s.* instead of 10*s.*

68,050. Who paid you for Mr. Brown?—Mr. Bannister.

68,051. At the Blue Bell?—At his own office in Humber Street.

68,052. Before or after the election?—After the election.

68,053. Were you at Mr. Sidebottom's after the election?—Yes; he says to me, "I have

John Newmarch.

30th July 1853.

68,054. Was there a riot?—No, it was all quietness.

68,055. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

68,056. Were you paid for that?—I was paid for being a messenger at the Prospect Street committee room.

68,057. Were you paid by Mr. Charles Wilkinson?—No.

68,058. Were you set down by him?—By a man called Steeple; I was at work three weeks there.

68,059. Is that the elder or the younger Steeple?—The younger set me down; the clerk in the committee room.

68,060. Who was the chairman there, Mr. Wilkinson?—Yes; I was paid on the Saturday night; I got put down on the Thursday, and I was paid 10*s.* on the Saturday night for the three days; and the next week I got three days more; the week after I got a sovereign for the full week, and the week after that I got 17*s.*, and the week after 13*s.* to make it up 30*s.* for the election week.

68,061. Was the 13*s.* money kept back from your weekly payments?—They were short of money.

68,062. They did not pay you in full?—No, they did not, and I was very sorry for it.

68,063. What did they back some of it for?—Well, they had not money enough to pay the men, and so they said they would give us a little on account.

68,064. Do you think it was to see which way you voted?—We had voted.

68,065. When did they pay you the difference?—The election was on the Thursday, if I am right, and on the Saturday night they gave us 17*s.*, and we said we always looked for 30*s.* for the election week, and they said they would see, and the week after we got 13*s.* which made up the 30*s.*

68,066. Do you think you would have got that if you had not voted for them?—I should not have voted for the other party.

68,067. Would they have paid you if you had not voted for them?—Well, I am sure I do not know; I should not have voted any other way.

68,068. You have told us that the blue party employed you?—Yes, I was always a blue.

68,069. When they employed you, you knew that they would expect you to vote for them if they did?—I was invited to Clay and Goderich's committee.

68,070. Answer my question. When they employed you, you knew that if they did so they would expect you to vote for them?—Yes, of course.

68,071. And they would not have given you employment unless they did know it?—I should have gone to the other party.

68,072. Did you not know that they would not have given you employment unless they did know it?—Well, I generally get a job that way at election times.

68,073. Will you answer my question: did you think they would have employed you unless they expected you to vote for them?—No, of course not. I did not know what you meant; I beg your pardon.

68,074. It was part of the agreement that you should vote for them?—I never promised them; as soon as the election comes, I go right away there, they know what I am.

68,075. You knew that they would not employ you unless they had expected you to vote for them?—I do not think they would have given me a job if they had not expected it.

68,076. Did you not accept it knowing that?—Yes.

68,077. And you took their money knowing that?—Of course, I got paid for my labour.

68,078. And you knew that if you did not vote for them they would not pay you anything after the election?—They knew I would vote for them.

68,079. Did you not know that if you did not vote for them they would not pay you?—Well, if they had not seen my name in the book, they would not have given me anything after the election on the Saturday; I did not understand you before.

John Hall.

JOHN HALL sworn, and examined.

68,080. Where do you live?—No. 2, Baker Street.

68,081. What rent do you pay?—I live in my own house; I pay no rent.

68,082. What is it rated at?—It is 30*l.* I think; but I am a freeman as well.

68,083. What is your business?—A merchant and a manufacturer.

68,084. You are a freeman you say?—Yes.

68,085. How long have you been a freeman?—Upwards of fifty years.

68,086. You have been well acquainted with the Hull elections?—Yes, at times.

68,087. You know what the system was before the Reform Bill?—I believe I do.

68,088. Did they give the two guineas, and the four?—They gave 2*l.* or two guineas.

68,089. They gave it without any disguise?—It was perfectly understood by the freemen.

68,090. Then after the Reform Bill, did the system a little change?—There was a revolution at the Reform Bill, and they did as well as they could.

John Hall.

30th July 1853.

68,091. After the Reform Bill did they begin to give them some employment?—I believe they did.

68,092. It was employment to save appearances, was it not?—Possibly it might be so.

68,093. Do you believe it was?—I believe it was; it was an inference drawn by them that it should be so.

68,094. Did you vote at the election in 1841?—Yes.

68,095. Who for?—I think it was Hanmer and James.

68,096. Were you upon any committee?—I cannot answer that question, it is so long since.

68,097. Did you then canvass?—I might do so probably, if I was upon a committee, but I cannot charge my memory whether I was or not.

68,098. Can you recollect whether you took any part in the election of 1841?—No.

68,099. Do you think you did?—I think that I did not,—not as a committee man.

68,100. As a canvasser for the party?—I might possibly canvass a few.

68,101. Tell me whether you recollect doing so?—I cannot recollect that I did.

68,102. You do not know anything about it?—No, I do not.

68,103. You have no memory about it?—No.

68,104. Do you recollect making any arrangement at that election with any of the voters?—I do not think I did.

68,105. Do you know where you lived in 1841?—In George Street, I think.

68,106. John Hall, Dock Street, is that it?—That is it.

68,107. Now, in 1847 who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

68,108. Were you acting for either ot those gentlemen?—Not particularly so.

68,109. What were you doing?—I was not on any committee, that is what I mean.

68,110. Do you recollect canvassing for either of those gentlemen?—Yes, I have canvassed for Mr. Baines.

68,111. Did parties apply to you to have their names set down?—No.

68,112. None?—None.

68,113. Did you not meet with that at all in your canvass, with any application to be set down as a runner?—I did not canvass as a committee man. If I fell in with any individual who I knew was a freeman, I gave him my opinion of the eligibility of the candidates.

68,114. You did not make any arrangements with the voters?—None whatever.

68,115. Did you make any arrangement with the Barton voters?—No.

68,116. Not on that occasion?—No.

68,117. Did you at all, in company with Mr. Joseph Mackerill?—No.

68,118. Do you know him?—Yes.

68,119. Did you take no part at that election?—None, but canvassing a few, as I have said.

68,120. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Moore and Butler.

68,121. Were you on any committee the last time?—No.

68,122. Did you take any active part this last time?—No; none whatever.

68,123. Did you make any arrangement with the Barton voters this time?—No.

68,124. Or with any of the outlying voters?—No, not one.

68,125. Have you had anything to do with the Barton voters at all?—A very great deal.

68,126. Have you, at any of the elections, used your influence at Barton?—No.

68,127. Or make any arrangement with the Barton voters?—No, not once.

68,128. Have you canvassed them?—Not once; I will tell you who did it, my late partner, Mr. William Burton; he had a great deal to do with them.

68,129. Is he alive?—No, he is dead; he had the control of the whole of them, I think.

68,130. At this election?—At most all of them, for the last thirty years.

68,131. Those are the Barton voters in the blue interest?—Yes.

60,132. Can you tell me whether he did so in 1841?—I do not know; I cannot answer that question.

68,133. Did he do so in 1847?—He was dead I think at that time.

68,134. It is a long time ago, then, since he did, if you think he did not arrange with them in 1841?—He has been dead about ten or eleven years.

68,135. You could not give me the names of the parties with whom he made the arrangement?—No; I am sure I cannot now, there are several of them dead.

68,136. Do you carry on business at Barton?—Yes, I do.

68,137. What are you?—A manufacturer.

68,138. Of what?—Of cordage and canvass.

68,139. Do you employ a good many men?—I do, a good many.

68,140. Can you give us any information about the monetary transactions of the lection?—All I know is, that the Barton voters, the generality of the voters there, the operatives, always expect to be paid; and from what I have known of them, they have received pay.

68,141. I dare say you know that the general understanding is, that whenever a man is employed, he is to vote for the party employing him?—Yes.

John Hall.

30th July 1853.

68,142. And that if they are discharged from the employment, they take the vote with the employment?—Yes, they very often do.

68,143. If the employment goes the vote goes?—Of course.

68,144. And also at present, as to these outlying voters in the outlying towns, within the area of seven miles, is it not part of the system that they expect a considerable payment as for travelling expenses?—They do.

68,145. And they will not vote without it?—They will not.

68,146. They make that payment the condition of their vote?—Yes; there are very many of them to deal with. They band together in a clique, and there is a spokesman who acts for them.

68,147. The circumstance of a few living together in a village a few miles off, does that not in your judgment afford great facilities for combination among themselves to sell their votes?—It is a very convenient system to act upon. They band together as a body, and they generally have a spokesman amongst them who acts for the body.

68,148. Do you not know that there are many small clubs, as they may be called, in Hull also?—There are many parties who unite in Hull in the same kind of way no doubt; for instance, in the same trade. They work together, they combine together.

68,149. Or meet at some public house?—Yes; they meet at a public house, and they often have a club.

Henry Atkinson.

HENRY ATKINSON sworn, and examined.

68,150. Where do you live?—In York Street.

68,151. What is your business?—Oil miller.

68,152. What rent do you pay?—£6.

68,154. How long have you been a freeman?—Six years.

68,155. Did you pay for it yourself?—Yes.

68,156. Was the last election the first you voted at?—Yes.

68,157. Who did you vote for then?—Moore and Butler.

68,158. You were paid for that?—Yes.

68,159. How much did you get?—A sovereign.

68,160. Who from?—Mr. Croft, in Waverley Street.

68,161. Was that before or after you had voted?—A week after.

68,162. Were you paid at the committee room?—I was.

Adjourned until Monday, at ten o'clock.

FORTY-SEVENTH DAY.—August 1st, 1853.

G. W. Marshall.

1st August 1853.

GEORGE WALTON MARSHALL recalled, and examined.

68,163. What is it you wish to explain; you said that you had 10*s.* from Colonel Thompson?—No; I said from his party.

68,164. Who paid you?—I could not recollect then, but John Peck paid me.

68,165. When did he pay you?—About a week after Colonel Thompson came out.

68,166. Where did he pay you?—In his own house.

68,167. How came you to remember this matter?—There is a paper put me in mind of it.

68,168. What paper?—The Hull news.

68,169. Have you been speaking with anybody about your evidence?—No; I only spoke to one of the people there; that is Mr. Larrard's son. He went with me to Mr. Peck's.

68,170. Who did?—Mr. Larrard's eldest son.

68,171. What did he take you to Mr. Peck's for?—He said I was set down, and he gave me the money when he went. His father was with Colonel Thompson.

68,172. Who remembered the matter?—My wife, when I came to speak to her.

68,173. Did Larrard come to you about the evidence you had given?—No; I never mentioned anything about the evidence.

68,174. He came to you about what you had said?—No, I went to his shop. My wife recollected it.

68,175. You are sure of that?—Yes.

68,176. You had the money from a Mr. Peck?—Yes.

68,177. And what from Colonel Thompson?—Four half-crowns they gave me; but Mr. Larrard did not see what money he gave me.

68,178. Was Mr. Larrard present?—Yes, when he paid it; but he did not see it. He gave it me all in a lump.

G. W. Marshall.

1st August 1853.

68,179. Anything else?—No.

68,180. How long have you been in this ill state?—Twenty-three years.

68,181. Not able to get about except in a carriage?—No; I have had this invalid chair that I am now in for nineteen years last June.

Thomas Wilde.

THOMAS WILDE recalled, and examined.

68,182. We have understood, and wish to know whether it is correct, that the persons whose freedoms were paid for by the orange party in 1839 signed a paper?—They did.

68,183. All of them?—All of them, except two or three.

68,184. And those who would not sign that paper, you would not take the freedom up for?—We would not.

68,185. That paper was to the effect that they would pledge themselves?—It runs in these terms:—"We, the undersigned, pledge ourselves to vote for James Clay, Esq., and Colonel Thompson at the next general election." It was but very short. That is about the substance of it.

68,186. One person who has been here before stated that he signed a paper, but denied all knowledge of its contents?—That is impossible; he could not do that. He made himself look very simple in this court, but I assure you he is very sharp out of it.

68,187. Would the officers of the corporation be cognizant of such a paper being signed?—Yes.

68,188. Those officers who were present when the freedoms were taken up?—Yes; there was an officer present, but, as usual, he is dead; but I think the town clerk must have a copy of the payments.

68,189. Would the officers of the corporation then present have any opportunity of seeing that paper which was signed by the voters to vote for Mr. Clay?—I would not say that they saw it signed.

68,190. Would they have any opportunity of seeing the paper, so that they would know what was going on?—Yes.

68,191. The number was very large?—Yes.

68,192. Probably larger than ever occurred on any occasion of freedoms being taken up?—Never since the Reform Bill was there such a number of freedoms taken up in so short a time, and I can scarcely say so many in twelve months.

68,193. That alone is a circumstance that would attract the attention of the corporation, and would induce them to make inquiries?—Yes.

68,194. Do you know whether any paper was signed by the parties when freedom was conferred upon them by the blues?—No; there was not I believe.

68,195. You who were present can tell us whether they were actually cognizant of the circumstance?—They were equally aware of what was doing by the blues as well as the orange.

68,196. Immediately after the election in 1841 also some freedoms were taken up by the blue party as it has been stated to us. Are you cognizant of that?—Not personally; only from hearsay. I never went there any other time after that July.

68,197. It has been stated to us that the fact was so, and that the money was paid by a person of the name of Brown. Was that the same person who was present in 1839?—Yes.

68,198. Do you know who was the alderman or person who admitted these men to their freedom on that day?—They are admitted in public council assembled.

68,199. Do you know who presided?—The mayor would take the chair in 1839.

68,200. Who was that?—I think it was Mr. Cookman, but I am not certain.

68,201. Is he in Hull now?—Yes.

68,202. Have there been any freedoms taken up since that period by the orange party?—Not to my knowledge.

68,203. Taken up by themselves?—Yes, there have been plenty of freedoms taken up by the parties themselves.

68,204. But not in that way?—Not in that way, to my knowledge.

68,205. Nor by the blues?—Yes, I am told that they have on the other side.

Thomas Forsey.

THOMAS FORSEY sworn, and examined.

68,206. Where do you live?—North Street, Bridge Street.

68,207. What is your business?—A coal dealer.

68,208. What rent do you pay for a house?—My rent comes to about 7*l.* a year altogether.

68,209. When were you made a freeman?—In 1831, I think.

68,210. At your own expense?—No.

68,211. What party paid for it?—Mr. Samuel Brown paid my expenses.

68,212. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—I did.

68,213. Who for?—Hanmer and James.

Thomas Forsey.

1st August 1853.

68,214. Did you get some money for your vote?—I got paid for my employment; I got a sovereign or 30*s.* for running., I am not able to say to a few shillings.

68,215. Would you say 25*s.*?—You may say that would be the outside; 30*s.* would.

68,216. Shall I say a pound?—Yes.

68,217. Who paid you?—I think Mr. Brown. If I recollect right, the same Mr. Brown that took the freedoms up.

68,218. Where did he pay you?—In Bowlalley Lane.

68,219. As he had taken up your freedom you felt yourself a little obliged to that party?—I do not know that. I had given him part of the money towards taking it up.

68,220. Did you apply to be set down as a runner?—I did.

68,221. How long before the election?—I think the election had started at the time.

68,222. And you meant to vote for that party?—Yes, I did.

68,223. And you intended them to understand you so?—I never was asked such a question when the freedom was taken up.

68,224. But you intended that they should understand that you meant to vote for them when you got the employment?—Yes, I did

68,225. And you did vote for them?—Yes.

68,226. Who did you vote for in 1847?—Baines and Brown.

68,227. Were you employed then?—Yes.

68,228. Where?—For Mr. Baines.

68,229. Did you get any money for your vote and services?—Yes; about three weeks after I went to Mr. Sidebottom. I had to go out of town three days after the election and came back in three weeks; and then I went to Mr. Sidebottom, and he gave me three half-crowns.

68,230. Where?—In his office, Parliament Street.

68,231. What for?—For services, three days' running at the election.

68,232. Did you get something from Mr. Brown?—Half a sovereign.

68,233. Was that all you got from Mr. Baines?—Yes.

68,234. When were you paid for Mr. Brown?—I got half a sovereign the night before the election.

68,235. Where?—I think at the Bay Horse, Scott Street Corner.

68,236. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

68,237. How much did you get then?—A guinea.

68,238. Who paid you?—Mr. Purdon.

68,239. Where did he pay you?—He paid me half a sovereign the Monday morning before the election; and the other two or three days after.

68,240. Did you apply to be set down?—Yes.

68,241. And you meant to vote for them?—Yes.

William Forsey.

WILLIAM FORSEY sworn, and examined.

68,242. Where do you live?—In Sykes Street.

68,243. What business are you?—A cordwainer.

68,244. What rent do you pay?—£10 5*s.*

68,245. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

68,246. When were you made a freeman?—About forty-one years since.

68,247. At whose expense?—My own.

68,248. Did you vote in 1841?—Yes.

68,249. Who for?—Clay and Hanmer.

68,250. Did you get any money at that election for your vote?—I do not know that I did.

68,251. You have been thinking of it, I suppose. Now what do you say,—did you get any money?—I do not recollect whether I did or not.

68,252. Will you swear you did not?—No; I will not swear I did not.

68,253. How much do you think you got; how much would it be?—I do not know whether they gave me 10*s.* or no.

68,254. It was 10*s.*, in consequence of your having split, instead of a sovereign?—Most likely.

68,255. In 1847 were you a runner for Mr. Brown?—No; I did not run for Mr. Brown.

68,256. Clay, Baines, and Brown were the candidates?—I voted for Baines and Brown.

68,257. How much money did you get then?—I think I got nothing but pay for a committee room.

68,258. How much?—30*s.*, for five days.

68,259. Where was your room?—In Sykes Street.

68,260. What committee met at it?—Mr. Newmarch's.

68,261. Were there other men there?—Yes, ten or a dozen.

68,262. Was that a room for Mr. Baines or Mr. Brown?—Mr. Baines.

68,263. What number in Sykes Street?—No. 14.

68,264. Do you live there now?—I live at No. 12 now.

William Forsey.

1st August 1853.

68,265. Did you then live at No. 14?—Yes.
68,266. You got some money besides that, did you not, for your vote?—No.
68,267. Or services?—No; I got no money but that.
68,268. None?—No; not that I know of.
68,269. When were you paid for that room?—Three weeks after the election. I was out of town at the time.
68,270. Who were you paid by?—At Mr. Sidebottom's.
68,271. Did you apply to have your room taken?—No; they were looking for a room.
68,272. Did they come to you?—Yes, they did.
68,273. Did you say that Mr. Newmarch came there after he took the room?—Yes.
68,274. Every day?—I do not know for that. Most likely they were in and out to do as they thought proper.
68,275. How many days?—Five days.
68,276. What did they do there?—They took names down for people for promises, and such like.
68,277. And they took your name down, did they?—Yes, most likely.
68,278. They put you down?—Yes.
68,279. For a promise?—Yes.
68,280. Just remember whether you did not get some money besides that for the room?—No, I think not.
68,281. Did you get some of Mr. Brown's money?—I do not know that I did.
68,282. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
68,283. How much money did you get?—1*l.* 4*s.*
68,284. Who paid you?—I do not know what they call him. It was a young man, a clerk.
68,285. Where?—In Saville Street.
68,286. When?—I do not know the day when.
68,287. Was it before the election, or after?—After the election, I think.
68,288. Did you get it all at once?—Yes.
68,289. Were you set down?—Yes.
68,290. As a runner?—Yes.
68,291. And you meant to vote for them?—Yes.
68,292. And you did vote for them?—Yes.

John Foster.

JOHN FOSTER sworn, and examined.

68,293. Where do you live?—Church Street, Drypool.
68,294. What is your business?—A whitesmith.
68,295. What rent do you pay?—£8.
68,296. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
68,297. When were you made a freeman?—In 1839.
68,298. At whose expense?—I paid a trifle, 4*s.*, a part of it. I do not know whether it was at my own expense or not.
68,299. Was it your own money?—Yes, that part.
68,300. How much did they pay towards your freedom?—I do not know.
68,301. Who did you vote for in 1841?—The orange party.
68,302. Clay and Thompson?—Yes.
68,303. Then, in consequence of their taking up your freedom, you voted for them at the next election?—Yes; I voted for them.
68,304. You voted for them because they paid for your freedom?—Not exactly that; my inclination was that way.
68,305. Did you sign the paper to say that you would?—I signed no paper.
68,306. It is sworn that you did, and the paper is in existence now?—Not that I am aware of.
68,307. Every party whose freedom was taken up by the orange party, in 1839, signed a paper. It has been proved by Mr. Wilde this morning, and your name is in it. Do you deny it?—I am not aware that I signed any paper to promise.
68,308. You do not recollect it?—No.
68,309. Were you set down as a runner that election?—No.
68,310. Did you get any money?—No.
68,311. Did you get any money at all at that election?—No.
68,312. Who did you vote for in 1847?—The orange party.
68,313. Who did you vote for?—It would be for Clay. I never voted for any other party but for the orange.
68,314. Were you not a runner for Mr. Brown?—No.
68,315. How much money did you get, in 1847, for Mr. Clay?—None.
68,316. Were you set down anywhere?—No.
68,317. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.
68,318. Did you receive any money then?—Yes.
68,319. How much?—17*s.* 6*d.* for five days' services.
68,320. Where were you paid?—At Mr. Galloway's office.

John Foster.

1st August 1853.

68,321. When ?—I got part before the election and part after.
68,322. Were you set down as a runner ?—I believe so.
68,323. Did you intend them to understand that you should vote for them ?—No ; they did not know anything about that.
68,324. You did not say so ?—No ; I never promised.
68,325. When you applied for employment did you tell them you should not ?—There was never anything said about that.
68,326. Did you mean to vote for them ?—Yes.
68,327. Do you think that they understood you did mean to vote for them when they paid you ?—Yes, I should think they would.
68,328. When you went into the orange committee, and took the orange money, they would expect you to vote for them ?—Of course they would.
68,329. And they would not have paid you without ?—No.

Joseph Foster.

JOSEPH FOSTER sworn, and examined.

68,368. When were you paid ?—10*s.* before and 1*l.* after.
68,369. Who paid you ?—Mr. Bannister.
68,370. Both sums ?—I do not know whether he paid me both or not, I am sure ; or whether his clerk paid me the 10*s.*, and he paid me the 1*l.*, I could not say.
68,371. Where were you paid ?—In Waterwork Street, at Tesseyman's.
68,372. In 1847 who did you vote for ?—I bulleted for Baines.
68,373. Did you get any money then ?—Ten shillings.
68,374. What for ?—Running. It ought to have been a pound.

Joseph Fox.

1st August 1853.

68,375. Did you apply to have your name set down ?—Yes.
68,376. Where ?—At the Paragon.
68,377. How long did you run ?—Five days.
68,378. Did you say you should vote for them ?—Yes.
68,379. When you applied ?—Yes.
68,380. And when were you paid ?—I was paid three weeks after.
68,381. Who by ?—Mr. Sidebottom.
68,382. At the last election who did you vote for ?—Moore and Butler.
68,383. Did you get your name set down ?—Yes.
68,384. On your own application ?—Yes.
68,385. How much money did you get ?—45*s.*, I think.
68,386. When were you paid ?—Before and after.
68,387. How much before, and how much after ?—I could hardly say ; I was paid by the week.
68,388. Who paid you ?—Mr. Wride.
68,389. Were you paid the last after the election ?—Yes.
68,390. Was there some money in arrear besides that week ?—No, I think not ; they paid us up, I believe, or else they would not give us any.
68,391. You were at Legitt's, were you ?—Yes.

John Frankland.

JOHN FRANKLAND sworn, and examined.

68,392. Where do you live ?—In Grimston Street, No. 4.

68,431. What rent do you pay?—Ten guineas.
68,432. Are you also a freeman?—No.
68,433. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—1852.
68,434. You did not vote before that?—No.
68,435. Why did you not vote before 1852?—I had not the opportunity; the rent did not entitle me at that time.
68,436. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Clay and Goderich.
68,437. Were you set down as a runner?—No.
68,438. Did you receive any money?—No.
68,439. Had you a room?—No.
68,440. Did you receive any money at all?—No.

ISAAC GIBSON sworn, and examined. Isaac Gibson.

68,441. Where do you live?—No. 3, Waterwork Street.
68,442. What business are you?—My business is certainly an engineer, but carrying on in the shop the confectionery business.
68,443. What rent do you pay?—About nineteen guineas.
68,444. Are you a freeman?—No; not of Hull at least.
68,445. At which election were you entitled to vote first?—The last.
68,446. Who for?—Moore and Butler.
68,447. Were you employed at all in any way?—No.
68,448. You were set down at the Minerva Terrace?—Not that I am aware of.
68,449. Where were you?—I was working out of town, at Grimsby.
68,450. Did they not talk to you about your vote?—I had several parties asked me both sides; I never promised.
68,451. Did they ask to set your name down?—They did ask to set my name down, but I would not promise.
68,452. Did you say "Do as you like"?—Not that I am aware of.
68,453. Was that the answer you gave?—As near as I could tell I should not promise anyone.
68,454. There is a difference between making a promise and saying they may set your name down?—I made no promise further than that.
68,455. That you should not promise?—I should not promise anyone.
68,456. Are you one of the men that Mr. Barkworth's clerk fetched over from Grimsby?—No.
68,457. You got no money at all, did you?—Not that I am aware of; I did not see any.
68,458. Do not say aware of. If you got money you must be aware of it?—I did not see any money at the election.
68,459. Answer the question?—I can tell you what I did. I came from Grimsby at my own expense, and was here three days, and got nothing for it.
68,460. Did your wife get anything?—She did not know which way I was going to vote.
68,461. She might have got it after?—I cannot say.
68,462. Did anybody get any money on your account?—I cannot say.
68,463. Did anybody get any to hand over to you?—Not that I am aware of.
68,464. Do you mean to swear you never had any money?—I do not know that I got anything.
68,465. Do you think you could have got it without knowing it?—Decidedly; at times you may get it, and not know it.
68,466. You will not swear you did not get it?—I will not swear I did not get it, and I will not swear I did.
68,467. Your name being down in Minerva Terrace, we shall most likely conclude you did?—You can do so.
68,468. Will you swear you did not get any money?—Not for the election, I did not.
68,469. In any way connected with the election?—Not before or after.
68,470. Afterwards did you?—I received some few shillings after the election towards my expenses, but that was about six weeks after.
68,471. How much did you get?—Something like between 15*s.* and 16*s.*, I cannot say exactly.
68,472. You came from Grimsby?—I did so at my own expense.
68,473. How much did it cost?—I took a second class ticket here and back, and lost three days' wages.
68,474. Tell me the fare?—2*s.* each way, and then there is my 5*s.* 6*d.* a day during the time I was here.

Isaac Gibson.

1st August 1853.

68,475. Do you mean to say the fare is the same each way if you take a return ticket?—I had not the chance of doing that.

68,476. You might have got a return ticket and not used it?—Perhaps I might if I had come the Thursday morning.

68,477. What made you stay so long?—Business caused me to stop.

68,478. Your own business?—No; the master's business that I came on.

68,479. He paid you for that?—No, he did not.

68,480. Who canvassed you to come?—No one.

68,481. Do you mean you were not canvassed at all at Grimsby?—I never was canvassed; I never saw the members, nor yet an agent at Grimsby.

William Good.

WILLIAM GOOD sworn, and examined.

68,482. Where do you live?—No. 10, Russell Street.

68,483. What business are you?—A grocer.

68,484. What rent do you pay?—£16.

68,485. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

68,486. When were you made a freeman?—In 1838, I think.

68,487. At your own expense?—No.

68,488. By which party?—The Conservative.

68,489. The blue party you mean?—Yes.

68,490. In consequence of that did you vote for the blues at the 1841 election?—Yes.

68,491. That would be for Hanmer and James?—Yes.

68,492. Did you receive any money at that election?—I received a sovereign.

68,493. Were you on any committee?—Yes.

68,494. Were you a committee man?—Only just to put casual names down.

68,495. Where did you do that?—I cannot remember where the committee room was.

68,496. You can remember that?—I can tell you where I was paid.

68,497. I want to know where you set the names down, and what sort of names they were?—Anyone who came casually into the room.

68,498. And applied for employment as runners?—Yes.

68,499. Who employed you to do that?—I cannot tell, I am sure.

68,500. Who paid you; you told me you could tell me that?—I cannot tell the gentleman, but I was paid in Medley Street.

68,501. Do you not remember the person who paid you or employed you?—I do not; I do not know the gentleman who paid me.

68,502. Was it the same committee?—It was the committee room in Medley Street.

68,503. Were you employed by the committee to do this?—Yes.

68,504. Did you have a separate room for the purpose?—I was with others.

68,505. Other committee men, or who were they?—Connected with the committee.

68,506. Was there a committee sitting at the same place?—Yes.

68,507. How much were you paid?—I received a sovereign after the election was over.

68,508. How long were you employed?—About a week.

68,509. Was your name set down on any list?—I believe it was.

68,510. Did you apply to have it on?—No; I did not apply for it.

68,511. Do you mean you were employed as a clerk?—Yes.

68,512. Were you a member of the committee also?—No.

68,513. Surely you can tell us who employed you. Did they come to your house an ask for employment or what?—I cannot tell you for that election; I can for the last.

68,514. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Brown and Baines.

68,515. Did you receive any money then?—No.

68,516. No money at all?—No.

68,517. Were you employed at all?—No.

68,518. Not for either party?—No.

68,519. Did you have any room taken?—No.

68,520. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

68,521. You were set down, were you not?—Yes.

68,522. In West Sculcoates was it?—Yes.

68,523. Did you apply to be set down?—No.

68,524. What were you put down for?—To attend at the committee room to take casual names down of any voters that might come.

68,525. The same way as in 1841?—Yes.

68,526. Can you tell us who employed you?—Mr. Cattley.

68,527. Did you do that in a separate room?—No.

68,528. Or in the committee room?—In the committee room.

68,529. How much did you get?—25*s*.

68,530. Did you apply for employment that time?—No.

68,531. Did they send for me?—They sent for me.

68,532. When were you paid?—About a fortnight after the election.

68,533. Who paid you?—Mr. Richard Cattley, junior.

William Good.

1st August 1853.

68,534. At the committee room?—No; at his own office in High Street.
68,535. How much?—25*s*.
68,536. How long were you clerk this time?—Above a week.
68,537. Did they pay any part of it before?—No; about a fortnight after.
68,538. How many days did you attend the committee?—Seven or eight days; eight or nine days probably.
68,539. What is your business generally?—A merchant's clerk in this town.
68,540. Was the gentleman obliged to get another clerk while you were away?—I was out of a situation at the time.
68,541. Have you got one now?—No.
68,542. Were you out of work in 1841?—No.
68,543. What did you do with your own employment?—I got leave.
68,544. Did you get paid?—I got paid for my situation.
68,545. And got paid during your leave for those who employed you then?—Yes.
68,546. Why did you not get paid till after the election; was it because they wanted to see which way you voted?—No.
68,547. Why not?—I never promised any one.
68,548. In 1841 you voted, because they took up your freedom?—Yes.
68,549. You made them that return?—Yes; in 1838 they took it up.
68,550. When they took your freedom up you knew that was the condition of their paying?—I was under no control to vote for them at all; I never promised them.
68,551. You knew when they paid for your freedom they did so in order that you might vote for them at the next election?—That was not the understanding.
68,552. Why did they pay for it?—I could have voted for the orange or the blues.
68,553. Did they tell you so?—No; they never named it.
68,554. Do you think they would have paid for your freedom if you had not voted blue?—I never told them.
68,555. Do you think in your own mind they would have paid for you if you had told them you would vote orange?—I do not think they would.
68,556. Were you not convinced in your own mind that they would not?—It is not very natural they would.
68,557. You took the money on that condition?—As an honourable man I voted for them because they had done so.
68,558. You had no agreement in writing?—No.
68,559. Supposing you had voted orange, should you not have thought yourself bound as an honest man to pay the money back to the blues, who took your freedom up?—I should.

Charles Goodreck

CHARLES GOODRECK sworn, and examined.

68,564. At your own expense?—Yes.
68,565. Did you vote in 1847?—I did not.
68,566. Why not?—I was not on the book.
68,567. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
68,568. Did you apply to get set down?—No, I did not.
68,569. Did they set you down?—No.
68,570. As a runner?—No.
68,571. Did you get any money?—No.
68,572. Your name is down, I think, in the South Myton list as a runner?—Yes; it may be down in the South Myton, but not as a runner.
68,573. The South Myton gentlemen have sent your name in to us as one of the runners?—They have done wrong, I was no runner.
68,574. Did you get any money?—Not a farthing.
68,575. Were you asked for any?—Never asked for it.
68,576. They canvassed you?—I told them I should poll for who I chose, and being an independent man I polled for who I chose. I was not compelled.
68,577. Did they say they would set you down as a runner?—They said they should set me down, and I told them they need not, because I should not tell them I should poll that way.
68,578. It was at the Pottery they were set down?—Yes.
68,579. When did you first know you were set down at the Pottery?—I did not know I was set down as a runner.
68,580. What time were you first set down in the Pottery?—I have always lived in the Pottery.
68,581. They canvassed you there?—Yes, both parties.
68,582. Did they ever tell you they had set your name down as a runner?—No; they did not.
68,583. Was ever anything said about it?—No; they never asked me to be a runner, and I never applied for a situation.

68,890. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
68,891. You got your name set down at East Sculcoates ward, the Market Place?—Indeed I never got it set down anywhere.
68,892. Did they ask you to get your name set down?—They asked me if I would favour them with my vote.
68,893. Did they ask if they might put your name down as a runner?—No.
68,894. They took a great liberty with you?—They might have done what they thought proper.
68,895. Did you tell them so, that they might do what they thought proper?—No, I did not.
68,896. They put you down in East Sculcoates ward, the Market Place?—They might have put me down a dozen, I cannot help that.
68,897. Was anything said about it?—No.
68,898. Did they tell you that before you voted?—No. I never was in East Sculcoates ward, I know that.
68,899. Did you receive any money?—No.
68,900. At any time?—No.
68,901. Did they occupy your room?—No.
68,902. Have you got anything that you can tell about the election?—There was a note delivered into Mr. Stamps'.
68,903. What was that?—I dare say you have got it.
68,904. What is it?—A note about some party that received some money from the orange, which I have no doubt you have.
68,905. That is all you know?—Yes.

George Hanger.

1st August 1853.

GEORGE HANGER sworn, and examined.

69,034. Where did you get it?—I got it in Parliament Street.
69,035. At his office?—Yes.
69,036. Did he pay it to you himself?—I cannot say exactly.
69,037. Or was it a clerk?—One of his clerks, a young man in the office.
69,038. How came you to go there and get it?—I was ordered to go.
69,039. Who sent word that it would be paid?—Mr. England told us that we were to go to be paid by Mr. Sidebottom.
69,040. Was he a committee man?—Yes, in Saville Street.
69,041. When did he tell you that?—At the time; somewhere about the time; a day or two before the election; I do not exactly know.
69,042. That you would be paid at Mr. Sidebottom's?—That we should be paid for the running, four days; 5s. a day.
69,043. Did many go?—Several went.
69,044. Did you have your name put down?—I had my name put down as a runner before the election.
69,045. You applied to do so?—Yes, I did.

69,124. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
69,125. When were you made a freeman?—1838.
69,126. Did the blues or orange take your freedom up?—I believe my father took my freedom up.
69,127. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
69,128. Was your name set down to run for them?—Yes.
69,129. How much money did you get?—I am sure I cannot tell.
69,130. Give us about the sum?—I was set down as a runner; I believe I received 30*s*., I am not certain.
69,131. When was it paid?—On the Saturday night.
69,132. Before or after the election?—Before the election.
69,133. All of it?—Yes; the 30*s*.
69,134. Who paid you?—Mr. Bannister.
69,135. Were you paid anything afterwards?—Yes.
69,136. After the election?—Yes.
69,137. How much?—A sovereign.
69,138. £2 10*s*. altogether?—Yes, I believe that is the sum.
69,139. Who by?—Mr. Bannister gave me the ticket to receive it.
69,140. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I did not vote at all.
69,141. Why not?—I was out of town; I came up late, and could not get here in time.
69,142. You did not receive any money for not voting?—Yes.
69,143. For going out of the way?—I had to go out of the town, and I did not get back again in time.
69,144. They paid you the money?—Yes, they paid it before.
69,145. Who was it for?—Mr. Brown.
69,146. At the last election, 1852, I believe you voted for Moore and Butler?—Yes.
69,147. Did you apply to have your name set down in North Myton?—Yes.
69,148. How much money did you get?—I received it at different times, I do not know how much I got.
69,149. How were you paid?—3*s*. 6*d*. a day.
69,150. For how many days?—It was either a fortnight or three weeks.
69,151. Where were you paid?—Just against the Blue Bell, at the fruiterer's shop.
69,152. Stephenson's?—I believe that is the name.
69,153. You asked them to set you down as a runner; did you not?—Yes.
69,154. Were you paid sometime after the election?—Yes.
69,155. At the same place?—No, at Mr. Steeple's house, on Spring Bank.
69,156. How much did he pay you after?—I believe it was 13*s*., but I am not sure; 13*s*. or 13*s*. 6*d*.
69,157. Was that the sum that was owing to you and unpaid?—Yes, I believe that was the sum, but I am not sure; I think so.
69,158. A little while after the election?—Yes.
69,159. Did they keep back part of your pay in each week?—I am sure I do not know how it happened; I forget now.
69,160. Did they keep back some money till after the election was over; or did they pay you up in full every week?—No; I think they did not.

W. Jefferson.

WILLIAM JEFFERSON sworn, and examined.

69,161. Where do you live?—I lodge in Francis Street.
69,162. Are you in any business?—I was formerly in the oil and colour trade.
69,163. Do you pay any rent?—£45.
69,164. Are you a freeman?—No; I have been on the register nine or ten years.
69,165. Was the first election you voted at in 1847?—Yes.
69,166. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Brown.
69,167. Did you receive any money at that election?—Not a farthing.
69,168. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
69,169. Did you receive anything then?—Yes, my brother gave me 1*l*. or 2*l*. for it.
69,170. Did you get your name set down?—No, I did not get my name set down.
69,171. Your name was set down in South Myton, West Sculcoates?—No, I think not.
69,172. Did your brother get it put down for you?—No.
69,173. How much money did you have?—Mr. Cattley gave me 1*l*. at Mr. Wells's.
69,174. What was it for?—For the vote, I expect.

THOMAS JENKINSON sworn, and examined.

T. Jenkinson.

1st August 1853.

69,175. Where do you live?—Waltham Street.

69,176. What business are you?—A tailor.

69,177. What rent do you pay?—I do not pay rent; the rent is reckoned in consideration for my services; the rent entitles me to vote, at least the value of the house; my name is down on the register.

69,178. As a householder?—Yes.

69,179. What is the house rated at?—The value of the house is about 10*l.* a year.

69,180. Do you live alone?—Eleven years there.

69,181. With your family?—Yes.

69,182. Are you also a freeman?—No.

69,183. At what election were you first entitled to vote?—1847.

69,184. Who did you vote for?—I did not vote.

69,185. Why not?—I had intended to vote, but the election was decided before four o'clock.

69,186. There was a disturbance at the polling booth?—The election closed before four o'clock, there were so many waiting at the booth in Blanket Row to poll.

69,187. Were you paid anything?—I got one day's pay, but it was as a runner. I got 5*s.*

69,188. Beforehand?—No, not beforehand; neither of the parties knew I was entitled at all to vote; they had no knowledge of it; they were in want of some one on the morning of the election.

69,189. Did you run of your own accord without telling anybody?—I was there at the time they were inquiring for some one, they were short of runners on the day of the election; they were not aware I was entitled to vote.

69,190. From which candidate was it you got the money?—Mr. Baines.

69,191. Were they not aware you were a voter?—No.

69,192. Did they not ask?—No.

69,193. You did not tell them?—No.

69,194. Had they got a book to see whether you were on or not?—No, they merely set the name down on a slip of paper in the Land of Green Ginger at a room there.

69,195. When did they employ you; when was it there was a distress?—On the morning of the election.

69,196. At what time of day was it?—About eight, or a little before, perhaps ten minutes before.

69,197. Where were you to run?—From Drypool to the principal committee room, from the polling booths; I used to carry the lists.

69,198. Had you not time to go to vote?—They did not require that I should go; I went to the booth, and there were so many waiting, and the election was given up before four o'clock.

69,199. How was it you did not vote earlier?—I do not know; I thought there was sufficient time betwixt three and four, and so I went at that time.

69,200. Were you busy going messages all the time?—I was, all the time.

69,201. What sort of messages were they?—Polling lists.

69,202. Check sheets?—Yes.

69,203. The check sheets did not come out till after some time?—Every half-hour.

69,204. At the very beginning?—Yes.

69,205. There could not have been a check sheet for half-an-hour after?—Yes.

69,206. You might have gone and polled the first hour?—I might; I did not think of it. I never polled before; perhaps that was one reason for it.

69,207. You thought you would put it off?—Yes.

69,208. At the next election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

69,209. Did you apply to have your name put down?—I did not apply, I was asked if I would be a runner.

69,210. In North Myton?—Yes.

69,211. What money did they pay you?—I cannot say; I have been trying to remember this morning, but I cannot.

69,212. £2?—Not so much, a little above a pound.

69,212a. Where was it paid?—At the committee room, Stephenson's committee room.

69,213. After the election?—After the election.

JOHN JESSOP sworn, and examined.

69,217. Are you a freeman?—No.

69,218. At what election were you first entitled to vote?—1847.

69,219. Who did you choose?—Baines and Clay.

69,220. Did you receive any money for your vote?—No.

John Jessop.

1st August 1853.

69,221. Did you receive any money at all, that election?—No.
69,222. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
69,223. I believe you got your name put down at the Market Place?—At the Shakespeare.
69,224. Did you apply to be a runner?—No, I did not apply; a gentleman said he would put me down.
69,225. How much did they pay you?—15*s.*
69,226. Was it before or after you voted?—The Saturday after.
69,227. Who paid you?—I do not know, I was paid at the Shakespeare room.

69,287. At which election were you entitled to vote first?—The last election.
69,288. Did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes.
69,289. I believe you got your name put down in North Myton district?—Not as a runner.
69,290. What were you put down for?—I was on the committee.
69,291. Did you not get some money?—I received a sovereign after the election; that was for services and expenses incurred through the election.
69,292. Do you mean you were 20*s.* out of pocket?—Yes; perhaps more. I do not know to a shade.
69,293. How did you spend the money?—I, perhaps, treated a few parties.
69,294. Perhaps?—Well, I did do so.
69,295. What was it for?—A few glasses of grog, and for ribbons.
69,296. For voters?—Yes.
69,397. Was it on the polling day?—Yes; the nomination day too.
69,398. Did you go out canvassing?—Yes.
69,399. And you gave them a glass of grog?—No, I did not; not at the time I received it. It was after business hours I was out.
69,300. When the people wanted to have their names set down, what did you tell them to do?—I had no power to contract with them in any way. I sent them down to the committee room.
69,301. Did you take names down in your own book?—No; I never entered names down to be set down as runners in my own book.
69,302. You took a memorandum of them?—Yes.
69,303. Those that you sent?—Yes.
69,304. Were they set down, those people?—Perhaps some were; but I believe not all. I think there were a few.
69,305. They were voters?—Yes.
69,306. For the blue party?—Yes.
69,307. When you were paid this 1*l.*, did you send in a bill?—I told Mr. Steeple at the time; he was the cashier, I think.
69,308. Do you mean of the disbursements you made?—I did not send in a bill. I named it to him.
69,309. You named the payments you had made?—Yes.
69,310. You do not mean that you named every single sixpence?—Not every halfpenny.
69,311. Were you paid all at once?—Yes; he paid me a sovereign.
69,312. When was it?—I should say three weeks or a month after the election.
69,313. For payments you made for the good of the cause, I suppose?—Yes.
69,314. You were not deputed to do so by the committee?—No.
69,315. Did some of them say they would not promise, unless they got a little drink?—I never received any of those.
69,316. It was to keep the voters in good humour?—Yes; parties that I knew.
69,317. What committee were you on?—North Myton.
69,318. You were put down as a runner on the list?—I am sure I was not down as a runner. They may have put me down. I never said I would run, and they never asked me such a thing.
69,319. Who asked you to be on the committee?—Mr. Charles Wilkinson.
69,320. Did you ever expect to be paid?—I never expected a halfpenny.
69,321. When people asked to have their names set down, what did you say to them?—I told them I had no power to do so.
69,322. When they did ask, you made an answer?—I told them I had no power to set names down. I had no orders; they might go to the committee room, and see if they could get on there.

M. L. Kellington.

1st August 1853.

69,323. Do you remember what are the words you used?—That I could not do it. I sent them down to the committee room.

69,323a. What did you say to them?—I said I had not power.

69,324. Did you tell them what to go to the committee room for?—To see the chairman.

69,325. Did you say, "I have no power to set you down, go to the committee room and see the chairman"?—Yes.

69,326. What else?—I remember saying nothing else; they chose whether they would go or not.

69,327. Did you say, "Go and see the chairman, and he will do it"?—That I am quite sure I did not say to them, what he would have done.

69,328. You say you put their names down in your book; did you put them down as having promised?—Some of them.

69,329. Do you mean those who wanted to be set on as runners, that you put their names down in your book as having promised to vote?—No.

69,330. What did you put their names down in your book as?—Perhaps "Favourable."

69,331. Would that mean that they were to be canvassed again?—Perhaps so.

69,332. What did it mean?—I left the book at the committee, and they could choose if they liked to go again.

69,333. Did you ever canvass any man at all?—No.

69,334. You thought the business was done?—Different parties had the books.

69,335. Did you ever canvass one man?—Well, I might. I do not know.

69,336. Did you?—Very likely.

69,337. When you sent others to the committee, did you consider them as safe men, who did not want canvassing again?—I was not up so much to electioneering matters.

69,338. Had you any opinion about it?—I thought they were voters. I could not be sure.

69,339. You thought they would vote, if they could get set down?—No doubt of it.

69,340. Were you not quite certain they would be set down?—No, I was not, I am sure. I was not up to the system of setting down. I knew nothing at all about it.

69,341. Did you lead them to understand they would be set down, if they went to the committee?—No; that I did not.

69,342. Did you tell them it was doubtful whether they would be set down or not?—I told them they could go down and see. I told them I had no power to put them down.

Enoch Kelsey.

ENOCH KELSEY sworn, and examined.

69,343. Where do you live?—Sykes Street.

69,343a. What is your business?—A mast and block maker.

69,347. Who for?—James and Hanmer.

69,348. Were you set down as a runner?—No.

69,349. Did you get any money?—Yes; a sovereign, for my expenses from Liverpool.

69,350. Who paid you?—Mr Moxon, the druggist.

69,351. How much did it cost you coming?—It cost rather more than that.

69,352. How did you come in those days?—By rail; the expenses were higher then than they are now.

69,353. It cost you 1*l.*?—It cost the expenses on the road and the rail together.

69,354. What was the fee by railway?—I paid 6*s.* from Liverpool to Manchester.

69,355. Did you go back the next day?—I did not go back to Liverpool.

69,356. Were you sent from Liverpool to vote?—No, I was not; I only received a letter from my wife, to say the blue candidates were in the field, and they wanted me at home I took the train and came home.

69,357. Was 1*l.* all you got?—It was, indeed.

69,358. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Brown.

69,359. Were you living in Hull then?—Yes

69,360. Did you get any money then?—Yes; I got a sovereign.

69,361. Who for?—Brown.

69,362. What was it for?—I was a messenger.

69,363. It was for your vote?—No; he said my name was set down; he said he was going to pay a sovereign apiece; and he said, "If you come I will pay you a sovereign." So I went and got it.

69,364. At the last election, did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes.

69,365. Was your name set down in the Market Place?—No, it was not; I was not here. I was only on the election day.

69,366. Did you get any money for that?—I got 10*s.* coming down. I was on the pilot boat, at Spurnhead and Dinnington.

69,367. Is that in Lincolnshire?—No; on a pilot cutter, on the pilot station.

69,368. On board the pilot boat?—Yes; I was on board the pilot boat as steward.

69,369. Did it cost you 10*s.*?—Yes, very near.

Enoch Kelsey.

1st August 1853.

69,370. How did you come?—By the steam boat.
69,370a. Did you pay anything for it?—I had to give a man something.
69,371. A shilling or two?—Perhaps 1*s.* 6*d.*
69,372. Who paid the money?—Mr. Ward.
69,373. Where did he pay you?—At his office.
69,374. When?—Ten days after the election; after I came home.
69,375. Did they write to you to say they wanted your vote?—No, they did not. I came voluntarily. I came amongst the rest.
69,376. Was it that they made you a present of the 10*s.*?—Yes; after I came home, I went to Mr. Wells's office, and asked if I could have anythingfor my expenses; he asked what it was; I could not tell exactly; and he asked if half a sovereign would cover it; I said it would; and he gave me a half sovereign.
69,377. Did you tell him where you came from?—Yes, I did.

James King.

James King sworn, and examined.

69,378. Where do you live?—Francis Street, West.
69,379. What is your business?—A mariner.
69,380. What rent do you pay?—I pay no rent; the house is my own.

69,452. Did you receive any money?—I do not recollect that I did.

69,453. What do you say; did you receive any money or not?—I think not; I would not positively say.

69,454. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I think I did not vote at all; I am not sure about that; perhaps you will be able to know.

69,455. Will you undertake to swear that you were not paid a sovereign some little time after the election in 1841?—I would not take an oath either way.

69,456. What is your memory, tell us to the best of your recollection?—I cannot recollect either way; whether I did or did not, positively, let the consequence be what it will.

69,457. I will tell you what the consequence is; it is this: that if you do not tell us, and we find it out elsewhere, you will be liable to a penalty of 500*l*.?—You will never get it, let the consequence, as I said before, be what it will. My memory fails me; I really could not say—if I could, I would tell you.

69,458. In 1847 you did not vote?—No, I think not.

69,459. In 1852 did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes, I did.

69,479. Who paid you that?—Mr. Galloway.
69,480. After you had voted?—After I had voted.
69,481. Do you mean Mr. Galloway paid you, or that you were paid at his office?—I cannot exactly say whether it was Mr. Galloway or his clerk at that time; it is a long time since. I think Mr. Galloway paid me.
69,482. Can you say whether he was present?—I cannot exactly say whether he was or was not.
69,483. In 1847 who did you vote for—for Clay, Baines, or Brown?—For Clay.
69,484. Did you receive any money then?—I received 10*s.*
69,485. Who paid you that?—Mr. Galloway himself. I do remember that.
69,486. Where did he pay you that?—In his office.
69,487. Had you been set down as a runner?—Yes; I was set down as a runner for six days, and they paid me 10*s.* I was to have 5*s.* a day, and that was all he would give me.
69,488. When did he pay you?—I cannot exactly say; it would be perhaps two or three months after the election.
69,489. You heard that there was an advertisement in the paper calling on all persons having claims on Mr. Clay to come in and be paid?—Yes.
69,490. And Mr. Galloway paid you 10*s.*?—Yes.
69,491. And you ought to have been paid six days; you were set down as a six day runner?—Yes, at the bottom of Chapel Lane, or Bishop Lane. I do not know where they set my name down.

69,507. Who by?—By Daniel Taylor.
69,508. Where at?—In George Yard.
69,509. Was that all that you got?—Yes, it was.
69,510. How long have you been a freeman?—About fifty-one years.
69,511. Who did you vote for in 1847?—I did not vote at all.
69,512. Why not?—Because I was not able. I was confined; I was laid up with the gout.
69,513. At the last election did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes.
69,514. How much did you get for it?—I believe 27*s.* 6*d.* They said 30*s.*; however, I believe 27*s.* 6*d.* was what I got.

Thomas Liddell.

1st August 1853.

69,515. Were you set down at the Market Place?—Yes, I was.

69,516. Were you paid before or after you had voted?—Both before and after.

69,517. Who paid it you?—Mr. Aitken, a currier in Myton Gate, and Mr. Davis paid the other.

William Low, jun.

WILLIAM LOW, junior, sworn, and examined.

69,518. Where do you live?—Jennings Street, in the Groves.

69,519. What business are you?—A shipwright.

69,520. What rent do you pay?—£5.

69,521. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

69,522. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1839.

69,523. Which side paid for it?—The blue party.

69,524. Did you vote for them in consequence in 1841?—Yes.

69,525. For Hanmer and James?—Yes.

69,526. Were you paid for it?—Yes.

69,527. How much did you get?—35*s.*

69,528. Before or after you had voted?—After.

69,529. Who paid it you?—Mr. Hammond, the druggist.

69,530. Where at?—In Witham.

69,531. Was that all you got?—Yes.

69,532. Was it paid you by Thomas Hammond?—Yes; I think it was Thomas Hammond.

69,533. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I was at sea. I did not vote at all.

69,534. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Moore and Butler.

69,535. Were you paid for that?—I got a sovereign after the election.

69,536. Was your name set down before the election?—Yes.

69,537. Where at?—At the Blue Bell.

69,538. Who paid you?—I do not know who paid me; I got three crowns in the Groves. I do not know the gentleman. I never saw him before or since.

69,539. Was that in a committee room?—No; in a public house.

69,540. How long after the election?—I should think three weeks or a month.

69,541. Were other people paid at the same time?—There were other people who got paid at the same time.

69,542. You do not know who it was paid you?—No.

69,543. What was the name of the landlord of the house?—Stephenson.

69,544. Was he there at the time?—He was upstairs. He was not in the room we were paid in.

69,545. Do you know Mr. Walker, the druggist?—I do not know him.

69,546. Do you know if he was there?—No; I do not know him.

William Low, sen.

WILLIAM LOW, senior, sworn, and examined.

69,547. Where do you live?—In Carr Lane, Mariner's Hospital.

69,548. Are you an almsman?—Yes.

69,549. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

69,550. How long have you been a freeman?—All my lifetime; I was born free.

69,551. How long is it since you took up your freedom?—I cannot tell exactly. I took it up as soon as I was out of my time.

69,552. How old are you?—Seventy-six years.

69,553. In the election of 1841, did you vote for Mr. Clay and Colonel Thompson?—I cannot recollect now.

69,554. The book says that you did. You voted in a different way to the way your son did. Your son voted one way and you another. Can you recollect whether you got any money for it?—No; I got no money, I think.

69,555. Your son got 30*s.*?—I got 10*s.* this time, that is all I got.

69,556. Do you recollect who you voted for in 1847?—No; I cannot recollect. My memory is not very good. I cannot think of it. I might not be at home. I might be away at sea at the time.

69,557. You voted for Brown?—Yes; I think I did.

69,558. Did you not get something for that?—No; nothing.

69,559. Are you quite sure?—I think not. I got nothing from Mr. Brown.

69,560. Will you undertake to swear that you did not?—I did not get anything from Mr. Brown.

69,561. Did you get anything at that election?—No; I think not.

69,562. Now at the last election did you vote for the blue party, Moore and Butler?—I voted for Mr. Bramley Moore and Butler the last time.

69,563. How much did you get?—I got 10*s.* for it; two days' pay is what I got.

69,564. Who paid you?—I do not know the man that paid me. I was paid at Bayley's Bridgefoot public house when I was paid. I do not know who the man was.

69,565. Were there other people being paid?—There were more paid in the same house besides me. William Low, sen.

69,566. Was it a committee room?—There were several of them paid, about ten, as well as me. 1st August 1853.

69,567. Was that after the election?—Yes; after the election; about a fortnight I dare say before I got the 10*s*.

SAMUEL LOWDEN sworn, and examined. Samuel Lowden.

69,568. Where do you live?—No. 42, New King Street.
69,569. What is your business?—A tea dealer.
69,570. What rent do you pay?—£12.
69,571. Are you a freeman?—No.
69,572. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Since 1835.
69,573. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Clay and Thompson.
69,574. Were you paid anything for it?—No.
69,575. Did you get any money from the candidates, or from their committee or their party at that election?—Never.
69,576. Not for anything?—Not for anything.
69,577. Who did you vote for in 1847?—Clay and Baines.
69,578. Did you get any money at that election?—No.
69,579. Not from the candidates or their committee, or their party?—No; I detest the idea.
69,580. Not on any account?—No.
69,581. At the last election who did you vote for?—For Clay and Goderich.
69,582. Did you get any money this time?—Never.
69,583. Were you set down as a runner?—No.
69,584. Do you know anybody else of your name?—No.
69,585. Did you canvass for the candidates at all at any election?—I had a book once delivered to me, but I am sure I forget what election it was now.
69,586. Did you canvass at the last election?—No.
69,587. You took no part but voting?—I have never taken any part at all but voting.
69,588. You are set down in a blue list?—I believe there is a Jeremiah Lowden. I have always voted for the Liberal party.
69,589. Would you be in the Holderness ward?—No; I have always been in the East Sculcoates ward.

WILLIAM LUSBY sworn, and examined. William Lusby.

69,590. Where do you live?—Jennings Street.
69,591. What rent do you pay?—£4 10*s*.
69,592. What is your business?—Mast and block maker.
69,593. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
69,594. How long have you been so?—From 1839.
69,595. Which party paid for it?—I paid for it myself.
69,596. You were not repaid?—No; I paid for it myself.
69,597. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
69,598. Were you paid any money for it?—No; not myself. I believe my wife got a sovereign. I did not get any myself.
69,599. Was that after the election?—Yes; after the election.
69,600. Do you know who paid it?—I am sure I do not know.
69,601. Had your name been set down during the election?—It was not; not that I know of.
69,602. How soon after your wife got the money did you learn that your wife had been paid?—Why, perhaps the same night.
69,603. You did not send it back?—No; I should have been very sorry.
69,604. In 1847 who did you vote for?—For Brown.
69,605. Only?—Mr. Brown only.
69,606. Were you paid any money at that time?—Yes; I got 10*s*.
69,607. Before or after you had voted?—At the time I went to vote.
69,608. Who paid you?—That I cannot tell you.
69,609. Where were you paid?—In the road.
69,610. Was that by some one belonging to Mr. Brown's party?—Yes; some person belonging to the party, but I do not know who.
69,611. Did you see him pay other persons in the same way?—I did not.
69,612. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
69,613. Were you paid for that?—I got a sovereign.
69,614. Was that before or after you had voted?—It was after.

William Lusby.

1st August 1853.

69,615. Who paid it?—I could not tell the person's name.
69,616. Where were you paid?—I was paid at Stephenson's.
69,617. Is that next door to the Blue Bell?—No; at the Three Crowns, in the Groves.
69,618. Is that all you got?—That is all I got.

George Malory.

GEORGE MALORY sworn, and examined.

69,619. Where do you live?—High Street.
69,620. What is your business?—A foreman.
69,621. What rent do you pay?—£9.
69,622. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
69,623. How long have you been so?—Since 1839, I think.
69,624. Which party paid for it?—I do not know.
69,625. The orange party took up your freedom for you?—I do not know that.
69,626. You signed a paper at the time?—No, I did not.
69,627. Just consider?—I think not.
69,628. Did you vote for the party who took up your freedom in 1839?—I do not know who took it up.
69,629. When those people took up your freedom, did you not know that they would expect you to vote for them?—I did not know which party paid for it.
69,630. You do not mean to say that?—I do, indeed. When I came into a room in some part of this place to take my burgess oath, I asked what there was to pay, and they said it was all settled for. I said, I wish to pay for it myself, and they said, move on; that is all I know about it.
69,631. Will you undertake to say that you did not sign a paper?—I think not.
69,632. Will you swear that?—I will not swear it
69,633. It has been sworn positively that you did?—No, for this reason: I believe both parties were taking up freedoms at the time; one was the same to me as the other. I should not have got the orange party to take it up for me. I could pay for it myself.
69,634. Will you swear you did not sign a paper?—No, I could not, it is a long time since. I could not bear it in mind.
69,635. I have it here you signed a paper undertaking to vote for Clay and Thompson?—I did not sign any, to my knowledge.
69,636. Will you swear that you did not?—I will not swear either way.
69,637. Now, in 1841, who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.
69,638. Were you paid for that?—Yes.
69,639. How much were you paid?—I cannot tell. I was on pay as a runner for eight or ten days.
69,640. At how much a day?—At 5*s*.
69,641. That is 2*l*. 10*s*.—5*s*. for ten days—is that what you were paid?—5*s*. a day.
69,642. For the ten days?—I cannot say to a day or two.
69,643. Did you apply to be set down as a runner?—A party or two canvassed me, and they said they wished to set me down as a runner. They said they would find me employment, and they did so.
69,644. Were you paid before or after the election?—I believe I had a week's pay before.
69,645. And something after?—Yes.
69,646. Who paid you?—I believe I was paid by Mr. Collison before the election.
69,647. How much had you before?—I cannot say to 5*s*. or 10*s*.
69,648. Who paid you after the election?—I received the money in Bowl Alley Lane.
69,649. How much did you receive?—I cannot say; I got it at two or three different times.
69,650. In 1847 who did you vote for?—For Baines and Brown.
69,651. Were you paid for that?—I got a pound.
69,652. Who was that for; which of them?—I got 10*s* from Mr. Bannister down at the Blue Bell.
69,653. Was that before or after you had voted?—Before.
69,654. And the other 10*s*.?—I got the other 10*s*. as I was going home. I lived in Bishop Lane. I saw a party round the door.
69,655. Did you get anything from Mr. Baines?—I do not know; there was a p at round the door, and they said they were making presents of half sovereigns, and I said I may as well have one.
69,656. Is that all you got?—Yes, I think so.
69,657. At the last election who did you vote for, Moore and Butler?—Yes.
69,658. How much did you get?—30*s*.
69,659. Was your name put down?—Yes.
69,660. Where?—By Mr. Bamford.
69,661. Were you paid before or after you had voted?—After.
69,662. Who paid you?—I was paid at Mr. Wells's office.
69,663. Mr. Wells, the solicitor?—Yes.

Mr. THOMAS THOMPSON sworn, and examined.

Mr. T. Thompson.

1st August 1853.

69,664. Are you the town clerk of Hull?—I am.

69,665. Do you produce a printed copy of the resolutions of the council, at a meeting in 1839?—Yes, of the quarterly meeting of 1839 (the witness handed in the same).

69,666. Are these the minutes of proceedings?—They are the minutes of the council, which I believe to be a true copy of the original; it has been examined with it.

69,667. Amongst other things does it contain a list of the burgesses admitted to their freedom on the 4th of July?—On the 4th of July and on the 11th of July in that year, and also those admitted on the 5th of June. The admissions on the 5th of June were only under ordinary circumstances, but they came in a crowd on the 4th and 11th of July. There must have been some extraordinary circumstances to induce that number to come up.

69,668. How long have you been the town clerk?—Since May, 1837.

69,669. Is that the greatest number ever known that came on the 11th of July?—I have never known, in my time, so many applications to be admitted at one council meeting.

69,670. Can you say whether this list contains the greatest number since the Reform Act?—I should say so, decidedly, since the Reform Act.

69,671. That is from your knowledge of the burgess roll?—Yes. At Sir James Graham's election there was an immense number, but I was not the town clerk then. There would probably be more than in 1839.

69,672. Were you present on that day when that large crowd of persons were admitted?—I was.

69,673. Can you say whether it was known to the authorities the circumstances under which they were being admitted?—I cannot say that any of them knew it, nor did I know it from anything but report; but I had a very strong suspicion when I found so many, who had declined on account of the fines to which they were liable, all suddenly rushing forward and taking up their freedoms by paying their fines. I had a very strong suspicion that from some quarter money was supplied to them, but I cannot say I had any personal knowledge of it. No doubt the authorities, generally, must have had a similar suspicion, but they had no power to refuse. If the money was paid they were bound to administer the oath, and admit them to their freedom. There are certain clauses in the Municipal Act by which they should be admitted.

69,674. What is this other paper you produce?—That is the proceedings of the third quarterly meeting of the council in 1841.

WILLIAM MARSHALL sworn, and examined.

William Marshall.

69,675. Where do you live?—In Anne Street, South Myton.

69,676. What is your business?—A cooper.

69,677. What rent do you pay?—£6 12*s.*

69,678. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

69,679. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1830.

69,680. Did you take it up yourself, or was it taken up for you?—I took it up myself.

69,681. In 1841 who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.

69,682. Were you paid for that?—Yes.

69,683. How much did you get?—Somewhere about 3*l.*, I believe.

69,684. Were you a runner?—I believe I was.

69,685. Were you paid before or after the election?—Somewhere about a pound, I think, after the election.

69,686. And the rest before?—Yes.

69,687. Who was it paid by?—I do not know who it was paid by.

69,688. Where were you paid?—I was paid in St. James's Street.

69,689. At a committee room?—No; it was paid through the nick of a door.

69,690. Do you know the number of the house?—No, I do not.

69,691. Who did you vote for in 1847?—Mr. Baines.

69,692. Only?—Yes.

69,693. What were you paid for that?—5*s.*

69,694. Before or after you had voted?—After I had voted.

69,695. Where at?—Opposite St. James's Church.

69,696. Who by?—By a gentleman who lived in Lister Street; I forget his name now.

69,697. Was that all you were paid at that election?—Yes.

69,698. At the last election who did you vote for, Moore and Butler?—Yes.

69,699. Were you paid for that?—No, I was not; I never received anything for it.

69,700. Was your name set down?—I do not know that it was.

69,701. Did you apply to have it set down?—No.

69,702. Did they tell you it should be done?—No.

69,703. Did you ever hear that it was set down?—I never did.

William Marshall.

1st August 1853.

69,704. At the Pottery?—No, I never did.

69,705. Nothing was said to you about money at all at the last election?—I was never canvassed.

69,706. Were you in full work of your own?—Yes.

69,707. Your name is set down at the South Myton district in the Pottery?—Not by my authority. I never was canvassed by either party.

69,708. Did you have any money?—No, not a farthing.

John Matson.

JOHN MATSON sworn, and examined.

69,709. Where do you live?—No. 28, Fawcitt Street.

69,710. What is your business?—A shoemaker.

69,711. What rent do you pay?—£5.

69,712. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

69,713. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1812.

69,714. In 1841 did you vote for Hanmer and James?—I did.

69,715. Were you paid for it?—I was. I ran eight days, and received 50s.

69,716. Who paid it you?—William Day; now dead, I believe.

69,717. Before or after the election?—Before.

69,718. The whole of it?—The whole of it.

69,719. Were you paid nothing after?—No, nothing after.

69,720. In 1847 who did you vote for?—For Mr. Brown.

69,721. Only?—Only.

69,722. Were you paid for that?—I got a sovereign. Half a sovereign before the election, and half a sovereign after the election.

69,723. Who paid it you?—I really do not know. I believe it was a gentleman named Collison.

69,724. Where at?—At the Black Horse, in Carr Lane.

69,725. At the last election did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes, I did.

69,726. Were you paid for that?—No.

69,727. Nothing?—Nothing.

69,728. Was your name set down?—Not to my knowledge; if it was, it was without my authority.

69,729. Did you get any money at the last election from the candidates?—No.

69,730. Or their committee?—No.

69,731. Or their party?—No.

69,732. Did you ask for any?—No.

69,733. Do you remember being canvassed by the blues?—I do.

69,734. Who is the gentleman who canvassed you?—I do not know.

69,735. Did he say he would have your name set down?—No.

69,736. Did he ask you if you would have your name set down?—He asked me, and I refused it.

69,737. You said you had not made up your mind?—I did; although I knew who I should vote for. I have always voted blue ever since I had a vote. I have never turned my colour

69,738. When you denied him, did he say you should have your name set down?—No; I said, "I am very blunt in my manner, and what I say I mean."

George Merrikin.

GEORGE MERRIKIN sworn, and examined.

69,739. Where do you live?—In Jane Street.

69,740. What is your business?—Shipwright.

69,741. What rent do you pay?—£9.

69,742. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

69,743. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1825.

69,744. In 1841 did you vote for Hanmer and James?—Yes.

69,745. Were you paid for it?—I believe I was paid after I had gone to sea.

69,746. How much were you paid?—10s. or a pound, I will not say which.

69,747. Was that paid to your wife?—It was paid to my wife after I had gone to sea.

69,748. Did you not know that you were to be paid?—No.

69,749. Did you expect to be paid?—No, I did not.

69,750. How soon did you learn it after your wife got it?—I cannot tell you that, I am sure. It is sometime ago now, and I cannot tell you that.

69,751. About how long after?—I cannot tell that.

69,752. Was it a year?—It was more than that.

69,753. More than that after she had got it?—No, not more than that after she had got it when I heard tell of it; perhaps it might be in 1842.

69,754. Was that about a year after?—I will not say exactly,—it was paid at the time I was at sea.

George Merrikin.

1st August 1853.

69,755. Had your name been set down?—No.
69,756. At that election?—No.
69,757. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I polled for Baines and Brown.
69,758. Were you paid for it?—No.
69,759. Nothing?—Nothing.
69,760. Not by either party?—No; not a halfpenny.
69,761. Did you receive any money from the candidates?—Not one halfpenny.
69,762. Or their committees?—No.
69,763. Or their party?—No.
69,764. Did you promise them?—No.
69,765. Was your name set down at all?—No.
69,766. At the last election did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes; Moore and Butler.
69,767. Were you paid for that?—Yes; I got 17*s.*
69,768. Was that paid to you at Legitt's room?—Yes.
69,769. Were you set down at the Minerva Terrace?—Yes.
69,770. By Legitt?—Yes; that is right.
69,771. And did he pay you?—I do not know that he paid me. There was a person in the office paid me.
69,772. You were paid at his room?—I was paid at his room.
69,773. After you had voted?—After I had voted, sometime.
69,774. Is that all you got?—That is all I got.

David Metcalf.

DAVID METCALF sworn, and examined.

69,775. Where do you live?—Gibson Street, Sculcoates.
69,776. What is your business?—A millwright.
69,777. What rent do you pay?—£10.
69,778. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
69,779. How long have you been so?—From 1818.
69,780. In 1841 did you vote for Hanmer and James?—Yes.
69,781. Were you paid for it?—I believe not. I do not think I ever got a farthing,—not to my knowledge.
69,782. Will you swear you did not?—In 1841 do you say?
69,783. Yes.—There was a person employed as a runner that I got 10*s.* from; that is all I got. Who he was I do not know,—he brought it round to the voters. I never got paid for my vote.
69,784. A person brought you 10*s.* after the election?—Yes.
69,785. On the part of the candidates?—Yes; which side it was I do not know, whether Hanmer or James.
69,786. You took the money?—I took the money of course.
69,787. Is that all you got?—Yes, it is.
69,788. Did you not ask what the money was for?—He said it was brought on account of the election. I did not ask him any more than that, when he told me it was on account of the election.
69,789. In 1847 who did you vote for?—For Clay and Brown.
69,790. Were you paid for that?—Yes; I got 10*s.* from Brown.
69,791. Before or after you had voted?—After.
69,792. Who paid it?—Mr. Brown paid it; do you mean what person?
69,793. Yes.—I believe his name was Edward Wright. There was a room taken at the corner of Scott Street, Sculcoates, and they were paying the men that voted for Mr. Brown there; it might be a fortnight after.
69,794. Did you get anything from Mr. Clay?—Not a farthing.
69,795. At the last election who did you vote for; Moore and Butler?—No.
69,796. Who for, then?—Bramley Moore and Clay.
69,797. Were you paid for that?—Not a farthing.
69,798. Did you get anything from the blue side?—From neither side.
69,799. Was your name set down?—Not to my knowledge. I was canvassed at my house, and I promised each of them. I never went to apply for anything.
69,800. Did you promise them the first time they came?—Mr. Cattley came and I promised him one for the blues; then Lord Goderich and Mr. Clay came, and I promised them one; and I stuck to my promise.
69,801. Did you tell Mr. Cattley that you meant to vote for only one of the blues?—Yes, I did. I told them I should not go more than one.
69,802. Was anything said to you about having your name set down?—No.
69,803. Not by anybody?—There was something said by the orange party, if I would devote my time to running. I said that I should be out of pocket by it; that the income was not what I should be out of pocket.
69,804. What did you say to the blues when they talked to you about setting your name down?—They never put the question to me, and I never put it to them.

David Metcalf.

1st August 1853.

69,805. Are you sure, when the orange party said that about running, you did not say you should not run, but that they might set you down?—I ascertained they were going to pay about 1*l.* a week, and it would not be worth sacrificing my time for it.

69,806. Are you sure you did not say they might put your name down, but you should not run?—No; they never asked anything more than my vote, and I sanctioned that.

Charles Miller.

CHARLES MILLER sworn, and examined.

69,807. Where do you live?—No. 41, Brook Street.

69,808. What is your business?—A builder and publican.

69,809. What rent do you pay?—I pay 45*l.*, but I have two or three tenements in the take.

69,810. Dou you keep a public house?—I do.

69,811. What is the name of it?—It is the Grapes.

68,812. Are you a freeman?—I am not.

69,813. How long have you been entitled?—Ten years.

69,814. Was 1847 the first election at which you voted?—Yes, it was.

69,815. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines.

69,816. Were you paid anything for that—No, nothing.

69,817. Did you get no money at all at that election?—No; I am sure I did not.

69,818. Had you no bill against them?—No.

69,819. Did you let them any room?—No.

69,820. Did you do nothing at that election but vote?—No.

69,821. You had nothing else to do with the election of 1847?—Yes; I was one day in Mr. Baines' committee room, and at the request of Mr. Bright I went and helped them to endorse the voting cards,—that is all I did, and I got nothing for it.

69,822. At the last election in 1852 who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

69,823. Was your name then set down?—No.

69,824. Were you upon any committee?—Yes.

69,825. Which committee were you upon?—In North Myton, at Mr. Walker's house in Chariot Street.

69,826. Did you canvass people at that election?—Yes; I canvassed part.

69,827. Did any of those that you did canvass ask to have their names set down as runners?—No.

69,828. Not one of them?—Not one, that I remember.

69,829. Were you present at the committee room when any names were set down of persons applying?—No, I was not.

69,830. Did any persons apply there to have their names set down?—I was not there. I did not attend very often.

69,831. Did you make any bargain with any one for their room?—No, I did not.

69,832. Did you have a bill at your own house?—No, not a farthing.

69,833. You got nothing this time?—No.

69,834. Were you set down for the blues?—No, I was not. There is another Charles Miller; perhaps that confounds it.

69,835. Can you tell us where he lives?—I have only seen it by the poll book, Charles Miller, of Holderness.

William Milner.

WILLIAM MILNER sworn, and examined.

69,836. Where do you live?—In West Street.

69,837. What is your business?—I am a painter.

69,838. What rent do you pay?—It is my own house.

69,839. What is it rated at?—I have a shop besides, which is rated at 18*l.* together.

69,840. Are you a freeman?—I am not.

69,841. How long have you been entitled to vote as a 10*l.* householder?—At the last election.

69,842. Who did you vote for then?—For Mr. Moore and Mr. Butler.

69,843. Did you get any money for it?—10*s.*

69,844. Were you set down as a runner?—I believe I was. I did not apply for it.

69,845. When were you paid the 10*s.*?—About a week after the election.

69,846. Who paid it you?—It was left at my house; I cannot tell you who left it.

69,847. You did not run, I suppose, although you were set down?—No, not much.

69,848. Is that all you got at that election?—Yes; that is all I got.

JAMES HENRY MITCHELL sworn, and examined. J. H. Mitchell.

1st August 1853.

69,849. Where do you live?—In Lowgate.
69,850. What is your business?—A bootmaker.
69,851. What rent do you pay?—£65.
69,852. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
69,853. How long have you been a freeman?—About ten or eleven years.
69,854. Which is the first election at which you voted?—1841.
69,855. Who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.
69,856. Were you paid anything?—Yes.
69,857. How much?—A pound.
69,858. Was that before you had voted or after?—Before.
69,859. Who was it paid by?—I do not know.
69,860. Where at?—At Waterworks Street.
69,861. At a committee room?—Yes; I was employed there a week.
69,862. In what capacity?—A runner.
69,863. Had you applied to be employed?—Yes
69,864. When you applied for employment, you knew that if they gave you the employment they would expect you to vote for them?—Of course; I intended to do so.
69,865. You knew that if you did not vote for them, they would not pay you after the election?—Of course. I never went after the election. I only took one week, and I never went any more.
69,866. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Brown and Baines.
69,867. Did you get any money at that time?—No.
69,868. You got no money from the candidates, or their committee, or their party?—No.
69,869. Not upon any account?—No.
69,870. Now at the last election who did you vote for?—Bramley Moore and Lord Goderich.
69,871. Did you get any money this time?—No.
69,872. Not from either party?—No.
69,873. Not upon any account?—No.
69,874. Were you upon a committee?—No.
69,875. Did you take any part in the election, besides voting?—No.
69,876. Were you canvassed by the blues?—Yes; and by the orange.
69,877. What did you tell them?—That I would not promise.
69,878. Did they say anything to you about setting your name down?—No.

JOHN MONKMAN sworn, and examined. John Monkman.

69,879. Where do you live?—No. 16, Pemberton Street, Sutton Bank.
69,880. What is your business?—A schoolmaster.
69,881. What rent do you pay—Ten guineas.
69,882. Are you a freeman?—No.
69,883. How long have you been entitled to vote?—In 1852.
69,884. The last election was the first at which you voted?—Yes.
69,885. Who for?—Moore and Butler.
69,886. Were you paid any money for it?—No. I was paid 10*s*. I was employed as a clerk.
69,887. Where were you paid?—In Witham.
69,888. At a committee room?—Yes.
69,889. Did you apply to be employed?—No.
69,890. They came and asked you?—No; I went down to the committee room, and they put me on while I was there.
69,891. What did you go there for?—I merely went to see how they were getting on.
69,892. Did you say anything to them about your being employed?—I said I would assist them if they wanted any assistance.
69,893. Upon condition of being paid?—No; I cannot say that. I got paid about three weeks or a month after.
69,894. Who employed you?—Mr. Richard Field.
69,895. Was there any agreement made as to your being paid or not?—No; he gave it me as he was passing in the street, in Witham.
69,896. Did you act as clerk for them upon the understanding that you were to be paid, or not?—I expected I should receive something.
69,897. What made you expect that you should receive something; had you ever said anything to them about it?—It was only upon the polling day that I went down to see how they were getting on, and I said, "If I can assist you in anything I shall be glad to do so;" and I met Mr. Field about three weeks after; he had a little money by him, and he gave me the 10*s*. at the time.
69,898. Did you say you would vote for them at the time?—I always did vote blue.
69,899. Did anything pass at that time?—Not a word.

John Monkman.

1st August 1853.

69,900. Had you said that you would vote for them before that?—No.

69,901. Did they canvass you?—They never canvassed me; they knew I always did vote that way.

69,902. You are sure there was no agreement made?—No, not a word.

69,903. That being so, that 10*s.* was rather a reward for your vote than your services, if you entered into no contract to be paid for your services?—I think not.

69,904. Why do you say so?—Mr. Field met me about three weeks or a month after, and he said, "I will give you something for your services upon that day;" the polling day, and he gave me 10*s.*

69,905. Is that the usual way?—I am sure I do not know. I do not know what they generally receive.

69,906. Did you ever serve as a clerk before?—Yes, in 1847.

69,907. At the election?—Yes.

69,908. You said that you never voted before?—No.

69,909. What were you paid then?—I am not certain whether it was 30*s.* or 2*l.*

69,910. For how long was it?—Three or four days.

69,911. Were you employed as a clerk then?—Yes.

69,912. At which committee; which colour?—The blue.

69,913. There was no blue in 1847. For which candidate?—For Mr. Baines.

69,914. You got 30*s.* or 40*s.*?—I got 30*s.* or 40*s.*; I am not certain which.

69,915. Did you volunteer at that time to work for them?—No. Although I had never applied for it at all, I was met by a gentleman, since dead; a Mr. Langrick.

69,916. And you received the same rate of pay in 1847 as in 1852?—A little more. I am not certain whether it was three or four days; it is about the same, I think.

69,917. Except at election times, are you ever engaged as a clerk?—No.

69,918. You are a schoolmaster?—Yes.

69,919. What did you do with your scholars all this time?—I am afraid they are running about this afternoon.

69,920. But at the time of the election?—It was their vacation.

69,921. Did you vote in 1841?—No.

69,922. Where were you engaged in 1852; where was it that you were employed?—At the committee room in Witham. I was engaged for the central committee room, but the party said they would rather that I should be in my own district, therefore I was in Witham.

William Morley.

WILLIAM MORLEY sworn, and examined.

69,923. Where do you live?—Hessle Road.

69,924. What rent do you pay?—£5.

69,925. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

69,926. What is your business?—A plumber and glazier.

69,927. How long have you been a freeman?—I took it up in 1838 or 1839; I do not know which.

69,928. Did you take it up yourself or not?—I took it up myself.

69,929. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.

69,930. Were you paid for it?—Yes.

69,931. How much did you get?—£2.

69,932. Before or after you had voted?—Before; upon the election day.

69,933. Who paid it you?—George Steeple.

69,934. Where?—In the street.

69,935. In 1847 who did you vote for, Clay, Baines, or Brown?—For Brown and Clay.

69,936. Were you paid for that?—Yes.

69,937. How much were you paid?—£2.

69,938. Which was that for?—It was a pound for each, I think.

69,939. Where was it paid you?—At the Baltic.

69,940. Were you one of Nicholson's party?—Yes.

69,941. What time of the day was it, in 1847, when the agreement was made about your being paid?—I do not know, I am sure.

69,942. Was it early in the morning?—I had nothing to do with it; it was through the landlord, who told me about it.

69,943. What time of the day did he tell you about it?—He told me two or three days before.

69,944. Did he tell you what time of the day the bargain was complete?—It was not complete till after dinner. There was some party came down and paid the money.

69,945. About one o'clock?—It might be two or half-past.

69,946. And then did you vote?—We got one pound before, and one pound after we had voted. There was not time to wait while he got the money, and we trusted one pound till he came back.

69,947. What time did you get the first part of it?—About two o'clock, and the other when we came back.

William Morley.

1st August 1853.

69,948. Which of the candidates paid you first?—I do not know which; I believe it was Mr. Clay.

69,949. In 1852 who did you vote for; Moore and Butler?—Yes.

69,950. Were you paid for that?—Four days after the election.

69,951. Who paid it you?—Moses Margeson.

69,952. Were you paid a pound?—Yes; nine days after, I think.

69,953. Where were you paid?—He gave it me in the street. He had been to seek me at home, and I met him in the street.

69,954. Where does Margeson live?—In the Pottery, not far off from me.

69,955. You had been set down in the Pottery?—I was not set down at all. Bramley Moore and Butler called upon me, and I promised them; that is all I had to do with it.

69,956. Is Margeson a friend of yours?—He had something to do with elections. I do not know what he was; he was a doorkeeper, or something of that kind.

JOHN MOSES sworn, and examined.

John Moses.

69,957. Where do you live?—Pigminster Square.

69,958. What rent do you pay?—Six guineas.

69,959. What is your business?—A shipwright.

69,960. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

69,961. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1818.

69,962. In 1841 did you vote for Hanmer and James?—Yes; I believe I did.

69,963. Were you paid for it?—I cannot recollect. My memory will not allow me to think of it. I cannot recollect. I will tell you as far as I know.

69,964. Did you not get a sovereign after the election was over?—Well, I cannot say; may be I might.

69,965. Do you believe that you did get a sovereign after the election was over?—Very likely; I may have done so; I cannot say that I did not.

69,966. In 1847 who did you vote for?—For Mr. Brown; I polled for Mr. Brown; I gave him a bullet.

69,967. And what did he give you?—10*s*.

69,968. Was that paid before or after you had voted?—After the election.

69,959. Who paid it you?—I am sure I do not know the man's name.

69,970. Where was it paid?—It was paid at the Noah's Ark, in Witham. I believe, Mr. Twining.

69,971. At the last election who did you vote for?—Bramley Moore and Butler.

69,972. Were you paid for that?—Yes; I got 10*s*.

69,973. Was that before or after you had voted?—After I had voted.

69,974. Who paid it you?—I do not know the man's name.

69,975. Where was it paid?—It was paid at Great Union Street corner, at Barley's, over North Bridge.

69,976. Was that at a committee room?—No, it was not.

69,977. Were there many others being paid at the same time?—Yes, there were many paid the same way that I got paid at that place, at Barley's.

WILLIAM MOWFORTH sworn, and examined.

William Mowforth.

69,978. Where do you live?—In Alicia Street.

69,979. What rent do you pay?—£15.

69,980. What business are you?—A merchant.

69,981. What sort of a merchant?—Potatoes and peas, and all sorts.

69,982. Are you a freeman?—No, I am not.

69,983. How long have you been entitled to vote?—At the last election.

69,984. Was that the first election at which you ever voted?—Yes.

69,985. Who did you vote for?—For Bramley Moore and Butler.

69,986. Did you get anything for it?—Yes.

69,987. How much?—I got 10*s*. before, and something like a sovereign after; I do not know to a few shillings.

69,988. Who paid you the 10*s*.?—Mr. Purdon.

69,989. Who paid you the sovereign?—The same gentleman, at the committee room at Worship Street.

69,990. Is that all you got?—Yes.

John Jefferson.

1st August 1853.

JOHN JEFFERSON sworn, and examined.

69,991. Where do you live?—Francis Street.
69,992. What is your business?—A merchant's clerk.
69,993. What rent do you pay?—I reside in lodgings.
69,994. Are you a freeman?—No.
69,995. Are you a 10*l.* householder?—No, it was for a warehouse.
69,996. Are you the occupier of the warehouse?—I was at that time, at 45*l.* rent, I think it was.
69,997. At how many elections have you voted?—I only voted at one; I ought to have voted at Baines' and Brown's election, but I did not get upon the register in time.
69,998. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler,
69,999. Were you paid any money for that?—I received two sovereigns after the election.
70,000. Who from?—It was Mr. Wells's doing; he solicited me for my vote, and he said he could put me down, and I could assist him in the Osborne Street committee room; I did not render him much service; I found there was plenty of them there. I was constantly backwards and forwards, and I afterwards went into Charlotte Street; I thought I might be of more service there. Mr. Cattley wanted me to help him, but I did not do so, as I had promised Mr. Wells.
70,001. And in the end you got 2*l.*?—Yes.
70,002. Was that after you had voted?—Yes, two or three weeks after.

John Coates.

JOHN COATES sworn, and examined.

70,021. Did you live in Neptune Street at the time of the election?—Yes.
70,022. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Yes, I believe I did.
70,023. Who for?—The orange party.
70,024. Clay and Thompson?—Yes.
70,025. Were you paid for it?—No.
70,026. Did you get any money at that election?—No.
70,027. You got no money from the candidates or their committee, or their party?—No.
70,028. Was your name set down?—Not that I know of.
70,029. Did you ever ask for any money?—No.
70,030. Neither before nor after the election?—No.
70,031. Were you paid anything after the election?—No.
70,032. In 1847 who did you vote for?—The orange.
70,033. For which candidates?—Mr. Clay, I believe.
70,034. Were you paid anything at that election?—5*s.*
70,035. Who by?—Mr. Anthony Bannister.
70,036. Then that was not for Mr. Clay. Did you vote for Clay and Brown?—Yes, I believe I did.
70,037. And you were paid 5*s.* by Mr. Bannister for Mr. Brown?—Yes.
70,038. Was that before or after you had voted?—After.
70,039. Where?—In Prospect Street.
70,040. Were you paid anything for Mr. Clay?—No.

David Cutile.

1st August 1853.

70,041. Did you ask for anything from him?—No.
70,042. Was your name set down for him?—Not that I know of.
70,043 At the last election who did you vote for?—Bramley Moore and Butler.
70,044. Were you paid for that?—Yes.
70,045. How much?—About 1*l.* 8*s.* I received altogether.
70,046. Was your name set down as a runner?—Yes.
70,047. Where?—First in Sculcoates two days, and then I left there and came to South End, to Legitt's.
70,048. You were paid part before and part after the election?—Yes.

Adjourned till to-morrow, at ten o'clock.

FORTY-EIGHTH DAY.—Tuesday, 2d August 1853.

SIR WALTER JAMES, Bart., sworn, and examined.

Sir Walter James, Bart.

2d August 1853.

70,049. You were formerly member for this borough?—Upon two occasions I was elected member for this borough.
70,050. First in the year 1837?—Yes.
70,051. Had you, previous to your becoming a candidate, any connexion with the borough?—None.
70,052. You were invited, probably, by a requisition?—I was invited by a requisition.
70,053. And ultimately you were elected?—Ultimately I was elected.
70,054. In the year 1841 you became again a candidate for the representation?—I did.
70,055. When did you first hear of the name of Sir John Hanmer being associated with yours as a second candidate?—It was in the spring of the year previous to the election.
70,056. Were you acquainted with Sir John Hanmer?—No, I was not previously acquainted with him; I was introduced to him, as far as my memory serves me, before I came down to Hull.
70,057. Can you recollect about the date of your first interview with Sir John Hanmer?—I am quite certain that we had no lengthened interview until we found ourselves here, both candidates for the representation of the town.
70,058. He has mentioned, in a letter that we have received this morning from him, that he had had two or three interviews with you in London. Particularly he has referred to one upon the subject of the expenses: do you remember that?—Upon you mentioning the circumstance, I think I do remember something of the kind; an interview with regard to the expenses.
70,059. You recollect having an interview with Sir John Hanmer, at which some discussion took place about the expenses of a contest in Hull?—I recollect there was an arrangement with regard to the expenses of this contest, but I cannot say that I can call to mind with much accuracy the circumstances of the interview. I recollect an arrangement was entered into between Sir John Hanmer and myself upon the subject.
70,060. Do you remember what the origin was; how came the subject at all to be discussed?—I apprehend it is not very usual for gentlemen to go down and stand for a place without coming to some agreement upon the subject of expenses.
70,061. It not being usual, tell us how it occurred?—I say it is not very usual for a gentleman to go down and stand for a place without coming to some arrangement upon the subject of expenses, and I think the usual plan is to come to some arrangement previous to going down to the place, and I have not the least objection to tell you that at once.
70,062. In the present instance how was that arrangement brought about?—When I was informed that Sir John Hanmer was about to stand for the town of Hull, we had some conversation together as to the amount which it would be desirable, and which we felt inclined to lay out in the election.
70,063. Go a stage back, if you please. Was the interview sought by you or was it sought by him, or did it originate with third parties?—I really cannot say exactly whether it originated with third parties or not; but my impression rather is, that it would originate with third parties, but at the same time by our wish and desire.
70,064. What took place then at that interview?—I have stated, as I told you, that my recollection upon the subject of the interview was imperfect, but I have not the least objection to state it, and I had better state now what the arrangement was.
70,065. Do so, if you please?—The arrangement was, that we were to pay 2,000*l.* each.
70,066. Was there anything else in the arrangement; was it anticipated that the contest would cost more than 2,000*l.*?—£2,000 each, we were to pay, as I understood.

Sir Walter James, Bart.

2d August 1853.

70,067. Was it anticipated at that time that the expenses might exceed 2,000*l.*?—I understood that the arrangement was a general one; that we were to pay 2,000*l.* each, and to be elected for that sum.

70,068. How was any deficiency, should any occur, to be paid?—I understood that the gentlemen who had the conduct of the election, would undertake the whole arrangement if we were accountable for that sum.

70,069. The deficiency, if any, would be met by subscription I presume?—I apprehended so.

70,070. Who did you understand that from?—I think I had a correspondence with several parties about it; several gentlemen, I think, upon the subject; Mr. Pease, Mr. Beadle, and others.

70,071. Was Mr. Barkworth one?—Yes; I think so. My impression is, that Mr. Barkworth corresponded with Sir John Hanmer.

70,072. Which Mr. Pease?—I really cannot say at this length of time; but that was the general arrangement that was come to.

70,073. In your correspondence, had you a distinct understanding that you were not to be liable beyond the 2,000*l.* yourself, and that the deficiency would be made up elsewhere?—There was a general understanding to that effect.

70,074. What I wish to know is this, whether you understood that there would or would not be a deficiency; were you under the impression that a deficiency would occur or not?—My impression was, that the sum was a very large one, and that it ought to cover more than all necessary expenses, so I did not anticipate that there would be any deficiency.

70,075. How much had your previous election cost you?—My previous election cost me 1,500*l.*

70,076. And was it from that circumstance that you were induced to believe that 2,000*l.* was a large sum?—Exactly so.

70,077. Was there not a very considerable subscription in aid of the previous election?—Yes, there was a very considerable subscription; but that circumstance arose, I apprehend, from Mr. Wilberforce not paying a large sum of money.

70,078. Can you state generally what the expenses of the two candidates were. I do not say how paid, in 1837?—I paid 1,500*l.* Mr. Wilberforce paid 500*l.*; and I think the subscriptions, as far as I am acquainted with the circumstance, came to 1,200*l.*

70,079. Was the whole expense of the 1837 election for the two candidates 3,200*l.*?—To the two candidates it was not more than 2,000*l.*

70,080. I am speaking of the whole election, from whatever source it came?—As far as I am acquainted with the expenses of that election, the expense to me was 1,500*l.*; the expense to Mr. Wilberforce was 500*l.*; and there was a subscription, I believe, which amounted to between 1,200*l.* and 1,500*l.*

70,081. Then was it arising from your previous experience that you thought 2,000*l.* a large sum to become responsible for?—It was.

70,082. In 1841, before you actually came to Hull, was there any effort made towards getting a larger sum than 4,000*l.*; did you hear, for instance, that subscriptions were advertised for?—When you say advertised for, you do not mean in the newspapers, I suppose?

70,083. Yes; either in the newspapers, or were subscriptions solicited in any way, as far as you have heard?—No, I did not hear that, certainly; but I considered that the party generally made themselves responsible for the expenses of the contest.

70,084. Was there any minute or agreement prepared respecting the expenses?—No; I trusted entirely to those gentlemen.

70,085. Was this agreement the result of a continued negotiation?—No; I do not think that either Sir John Hanmer or myself made much difficulty upon the subject.

70,086. Still, there was a good deal of correspondence, was there not, between yourself and the gentlemen in the town of Hull, with reference to the expenses?—Upon my word, I think remarkably little.

70,087. Did you learn from Sir John Hanmer that there was a requisition sent to him?—I did; I think so.

70,088. And how soon after that did you come to Hull?—A week, I should think, afterwards, or shortly afterwards; we were pressed to come down to Hull, I remember, as soon as possible.

70,089. Sir John Hanmer, who was not at that time a member of Parliament, came down before you?—No; I think not. If he did, it was only a few hours; but now you put the question, I think I remember Sir John Hanmer came down a few hours before me, I think perhaps the previous day; I being a member of Parliament, might have some avocations which detained me.

70,090. Your duties would probably detain you in London?—I am sure there was not more than twenty-four hours' difference.

70,091. How long do you think that was before the day of election?—I remember, as nearly as possible, six weeks.

70,092. Upon your arrival did you find a committee organized?—I found all the usual preparations going on for an election.

70,093. Including the formation of the committee?—Probably so; there were a good many committees formed in different parts of the town.

70,094. Did you find that those committees were organized by the time that you came here?—A committee organizes itself gradually; I think members are added to a committee as the contest becomes more severe.

70,095. But a committee, although probably of a limited number, you found organized?—Probably so.

70,096. I forgot to ask you this, whether you were consulted in the selection of the second candidate?—Yes; I was consulted, no doubt.

70,097. And were there other gentlemen talked of besides Sir John Hanmer?—I do not remember that there were any names distinctly mentioned besides that of Sir John Hanmer.

70,098. Upon your arrival in Hull did you find any lawyers engaged?—No.

70,099. How soon was recourse had to professional assistance?—I have always understood that the election at Hull was managed without professional assistance.

70,100. Up to the time when you arrived, or were acquainted with Sir John Hanmer, had you communicated to him the practice which had prevailed in 1837, of employing runners?—Yes; I had. I think so; I would not be quite certain whether I had, or whether I mentioned it to him afterwards; I was not aware of it myself at the time of the election of 1837.

70,101. But the protracted inquiry which took place subsequent to the election of 1837, made you perfectly aware of the system?—Yes; I was aware that a certain number of the poorer electors who chose to claim it, were allowed to put down their names in a book, and were allowed 5*s.* a day by both sides, as I was always told.

70,102. You learnt that it was prevalent, I may almost use the word universal, as much one side as the other; that it was the practice in Hull, and not confined to any one party?—Precisely; I heard that previous to the Reform Bill the custom always had been to give two guineas for a plumper, and a guinea for a split vote; but that upon that measure passing, there was a great anxiety amongst some of the respectable inhabitants of Hull to check a practice which they thought injurious to the character of their town, but at the same time it was thought hard that the poorer electors should sacrifice their day's work, and that a sort of compromise was come to that they should be allowed 5*s.* a day to compensate them for their day's work. I do not defend the transaction.

70,103. By the poorer electors I presume you mean the freemen?—I was not told that the practice was confined to the freemen.

70,104. When you say that you heard of the compromise and 5*s.* a day, inasmuch as there were none but freemen entitled to vote previous to the Reform Act, I wish to know whether I collected it accurately?—I apprehend it extended to any electors that were in distressed circumstances.

70,105. And who thought fit to have their names set down. I observe you use the word which we have had so often made use of here, "put down"?—Yes, exactly.

70,106. Did you constantly hear those words "put down" and "set down" made use of as very significant words; they have been used fifty times a day while here?—I never heard anything of it previously to the canvass.

70,107. I confine your attention to that time previous to 1841. By the long inquiry that took place in 1838, you had become aware of what the practice was?—With regard to the inquiry of 1838, I may state that both parties strictly abstained during that long inquiry from alluding to the practice.

70,108. In the evidence?—In the evidence.

70,109. Upon the scrutiny?—Yes. I always understood that that was the reason the scrutiny was adopted, rather than any other form of inquiry; that the people did not choose, it may be said, to foul their own nest.

70,110. Let me see if I am correct in this: that the scrutiny, although it was a bribery scrutiny, was conducted carefully, so as to exclude that class of people, runners?—I do not apprehend that it was a bribery scrutiny.

70,111. Do you not recollect; because the lists that have been furnished to us contain upwards of a thousand allegations of bribery upon both sides?—I think you will find, if you look into the history of that scrutiny, that every other objection was taken to the voters, rather than that they had been bribed.

70,112. Do you mean to say that no one was objected to on the ground of bribery, or that they never put forward the system of setting down as a ground of objection to a great class of voters?—I think, in the first instance, they struck off persons who had not been properly put on the register, and to whom there were technical objections of different kinds; but when they were very hard pressed, they endeavoured to make out a case of bribery; but my notion is that they failed in so doing.

70,113. That is your recollection of it?—Yes; but on this point, I think, my memory will not deceive me: that they did not go upon bribery in the first instance.

70,114. There you are right; the first names struck off for the first few days the committee sat, were not for bribery?—No; and what I meant by saying it was not a bribery scrutiny was, that their object was, if possible, to seat their men, Mr. Hutt and Mr. Wood, without any allusion to any of these practices.

Sir Walter James, Bart.

2d August 1853.

70,115. In the course of that inquiry they did not allude to the setting down as a system?—Not at all.

70,116. To come back to the question with which I started; it was this: that subsequent to your election of 1837, though you might be wholly ignorant of it in 1837, you became aware of the practice having sprung up of people having their names put down?—Oh, perfectly; and I also informed Sir John Hanmer of it.

70,117. Before he came to Hull, or shortly after his arrival, I think I understood you to say?—Yes; one of the two.

70,118. Did you understand the system then to be a system of putting down names, and then paying them afterwards, without any reference to whether they had performed a service or not, or setting down the names and giving them some employment, real or colourable, to fill up their time, and then paying them afterwards: which of the two did you understand to be the practice then?—Will you just repeat the question.

70,119. Two systems have been spoken to here, and I am trying to trace the origin of each. Was the system at that time, as you understood it, a system of setting names down, and of paying afterwards those persons whose names were set down and who had voted for their candidate, whether they were employed or not; or was it a system of setting down names, and managing somehow or another to find them employment, and then paying them afterwards, nominally for their employment?—I dare say the discrepancy that has arisen in the evidence here may have arisen from the different practice of the chairmen of the district committees; one chairman may adopt one practice, and another chairman may adopt another upon the subject.

70,120. Then do we understand that to some extent both of those practices prevailed, varying according to who was the chairman of the district?—I really know very little upon the subject, because, in the whole management of the election, my rule was to leave it as much as possible in the hands of the gentlemen of the party; but at the same time I could not go round Hull upon a canvass, and not observe that very different systems prevailed in different districts; one gentleman would be much more strict than another, according to the disposition or temper of the individual.

70,121. Did you learn, during the course of your connexion with Hull, that the system was to some extent adopted of merely putting the names down, and afterwards producing a register of the names and paying everybody, provided he voted?—I cannot say that I ever saw any of those books, or that I can go into it. I knew that a practice of that kind, when I came in 1841, had prevailed, and that was all. Really, whether there was colourable employment or not, appeared to me to be matter of very little moment.

70,122. That is just what I expected you would answer in plain English?—Yes.

70,123. You considered that that was a mode adopted to some extent more or less by both parties, of securing votes?—Exactly so.

70,124. And you communicated that to Sir John Hanmer, so that he should be aware of what he was about when he came down?—Quite so; to the best of my recollection I did.

70,125. Do you remember how many committees there were appointed?—A very considerable number. How many districts there were, probably you will have in evidence; there was a central committee, and a variety of district committees.

70,126. While you were canvassing in 1841 did you find out that the system you have spoken of was in full operation?—I should not have found it out if I had not been told it previously.

70,127. You were told it?—I had been told of it after 1837, and I supposed it went on, but that is all.

70,128. From what you observed during the course of your protracted canvass in 1841, have you any reason to doubt that the system was in operation at that time?—I cannot say that I know it of my own knowledge.

70,129. Had you any reason to doubt it?—My belief is that it was so.

70,130. Let me put the question this way: did you find in your canvass you were often applied to by people to be set down?—No, never. The persons that they would go to would be the chairmen of the district committees. They would not allude to that kind of subject to the gentleman who was canvassing them.

70,131. From what you observed during the canvass had you any doubt at that time that the system of which you have spoken was being actually carried out?—I should not have suspected it if I had not been told; but as I had been told so by credible witnesses, I had no reason to doubt it.

70,132. Then you did believe it at the time?—Yes, certainly.

70,133. I asked you just now a question about the lawyers being employed. How soon was there any professional gentleman introduced into the management of the election?—I really do not believe there were any at all.

70,134. Not during the time at all; no regular staff?—No; certainly not, as far as I know.

70,135. By your party I mean the blue party?—Exactly. I do not believe it was the custom in Hull to employ regular professional people at all.

70,136. You did not find it was the custom to have a regular staff of lawyers, and to pay them fees?—No; I believe there were no lawyers' expenses attending Hull elections; very heavy attending the petition, but none with regard to the election.

70,137. We have heard it said a gentleman came from London, do you know anything of him?—Yes; I remember a gentleman. I was told it would be an advisable thing to have a gentleman come down as a friend of mine to advise me upon any doubtful point.

70,138. Was he any personal friend of your own?—No; he was not.

70,139. He was a barrister?—Yes; he had been recommended to me.

70,140. And was paid for his professional advice?—Yes; he was paid 100*l.*, but he was no use at all. I regretted afterwards that I had incurred so useless an expense.

70,141. I was going to ask you one more question, which might have saved that. How much did the whole election cost you?—The whole election cost me 2,800*l.*

70,142. We are told that it cost you 2,890*l.*; that is the exact sum that has been named. Have you any memorandum that will refresh your memory?—I found it cost me 2,790*l.* I am told there is some difference between Sir John Hanmer's expenses and mine, but I cannot account for that.

70,143. Perhaps the 100*l.* paid to the barrister was not included in it; if so, that would make the two tally?—I cannot recollect.

70,144. If you paid the fee that would make the two correspond?—It is very possible, then.

70,145. You think that is possible?—Yes.

70,146. Perhaps you will say you think it is probable, because that will account for it? Yes; I think it is.

70,147. Have you got the dates on which you made the payments there?—Yes; I have.

70,148. Will you favour us with the dates?—On the 16th of June, 400*l.*

70,149. Who was it remitted to?—It was remitted to a gentleman of the name of Ward.

70,150. Was he the chairman or an active member of your committee?—I think it must have been the gentleman who proposed me.

70,151. The next?—By cheque, I apprehend, on Pease and Liddell, 500*l.*

70,152. What is the date?—The 29th of June.

70,153. Pease and Liddell, the bankers of this town?—Yes.

70,154. In whose favour was that drawn?—I cannot say I can tell you that. I apprehend that I should have drawn it on my London banker in favour of Messrs. Pease and Liddell.

70,155. Give us the sums and the dates, that will be sufficient?—To Pease and Liddell, the 14th of July, 1,000*l.*; and lastly, on the 14th of October, 890*l.*

70,156. How drawn, upon your London bankers?—I apprehend it must have been on my London bankers in favour of Messrs. Pease and Liddell.

70,157. Did you pay all these sums of money to the credit of Mr. Ward?—No; I think not. I just paid the money as I was asked for it during the election. I have not examined my old banker's books in London; it would have given me some trouble to examine them.

70,158. Who was the treasurer of the election who paid the bills?—My belief is that the gentlemen managed it among themselves.

70,159. That would be, it would come to some one person's hands who would have more the arrangement of the money than another; there is usually a treasurer on these occasions, we hear?—As I tell you, I think there were several gentlemen, very intimate friends, members of the Conservative party, and I think they managed all those things among themselves very much.

70,160. Can you recollect now the names of them into whose hands the money passed?—Mr. Barkworth, Mr. Ward, Mr. Pease, and Mr. Beadle, I think, are four of the gentlemen to whom I have paid money at different times.

70,161. That is the late Mr. Barkworth?—Yes.

70,162. Which Mr. Pease; Mr. Clifford Pease?—I may have either paid it to Mr. Clifford Pease or to his brother. I considered these gentlemen as my personal friends, and had always great pleasure in communicating with them.

70,163. Was there an account opened with a bank here?—I do not think it was done by way of regular account. Whenever any of those gentlemen in whose honour I perfectly confided asked me for money, I gave it.

70,164. You would hand the gentleman a cheque, and he would make use of it as he thought fit in his judgment.

70,165. Leaving it to him to open an account or disbursement as he thought proper?—Yes; I remember, for instance, the 400*l.* The first cheque was sent down in gold for the necessary expenses of the election, hiring committee rooms, and soforth.

70,166. Did you ever see any account ultimately of the mode in which the money was spent?—Never.

70,167. That was arranged entirely then in Hull?—Entirely arranged in Hull.

70,168. The sum of 890*l.* being an odd sum, was that remitted by you as a balance clearing up the accounts, taking that for granted?—I remitted that.

70,169. You remitted that, being an odd sum. Was that in consequence of some communication that you had received that the accounts were settled, and showing a balance against you to that amount?—It was.

Sir Walter James, Bart.

2d August 1853.

70,170. Do you know anything of a person having come down from London?—Certainly not.

70,171. Let me draw your attention to a fact that has been proved, that a gentleman came down from London and went and took a room that belonged to a person named Dalton, where he made sundry payments after the election?—I can solemnly say that this is the first time I heard any intimation of the kind.

70,172. Do you think that your professional man from London would of his own motion undertake such an affair as that or of that kind?—You had better ask him; I do not think he would. My impression is he would not.

70,173. I think it may possibly assist you if I read to you the evidence given by Thomas Dalton. Our object was to trace who the person was. Do you remember a committee meeting at the house of Thomas Dalton, of which a person of the name of Peacock was chairman?—I do not recollect Mr. Peacock, and should not know him if I saw him. I have a sort of vague idea passing through my mind with regard to the name, but I do not think I should know Mr. Peacock if I saw him.

70,174. Do you recollect hearing a person of the name of Peacock was a member of a district committee then?—I think it is not unlikely; I have a vague notion of the name in my mind.

70,175. Did you ever hear of anybody coming down from London for the purpose of disbursing any money?—Never.

70,176. You never heard it till now?—I never heard it till now.

70,177. Do you think you have the means of tracing who the person was?—No; I do not indeed, but I would very willingly assist you if I could in any way.

70,178. Other witnesses have fixed the date nearer; this witness fixes the date at six or nine months after. All the other witnesses who received the money fix it at about six; some called it the autumn, and some called it the winter?—I know nothing at all about it.

70,179. The question is how that 890*l.* was disbursed?—Exactly.

70,180. You never heard anything about that circumstance?—No; never.

70,181. It is our duty if we can to find out that fact, and I am sure you will assist us if you can in finding out?—Certainly, if I can.

70,182. You were not cognizant of any of the minor disbursements?—Quite so. I am not cognizant of it.

70,183. You made no payment with your own hands?—Certainly not.

70,184. I understood you to say you are positive you made no payment yourself?—Quite so.

70,185. Or any money paid in your presence?—No; certainly not.

70,186. So far as you are aware, or as you have heard, was any money paid in the presence of Sir John Hanmer?—Certainly not. I may speak with confidence on both those points.

70,187. After the election was over, having thought, from your experience of Hull before, that 2,000*l.* was a large sum, I dare say you became fully satisfied, when you had paid 3,000*l.* nearly, that the expenditure had been excessive?—I thought so.

70,188. Had that anything to do with why you ultimately retired from the representation of Hull?—Certainly, that influenced my mind in connexion with other circumstances.

70,189. I do not go into any of those other circumstances, but it had a share in influencing your mind?—Undoubtedly.

70,190. How soon did you come to a resolution not to offer yourself again a candidate for Hull? Was it early after your re-election that you felt dissatisfied?—Yes; I felt really dissatisfied in my own mind about it, but also a change took place in politics about that time, and that confirmed my determination.

70,191. Was it not at first considered between Sir John Hanmer and yourself that the sum each of you should provide should be 1,600*l.*; do you remember?—No; it was 2,000*l.* You mean in London, whether there was any discussion on that subject in London?

70,192. In London. I draw your attention to it in this way: I have gathered that the sum originally proposed for both of you was 1,600*l.*, and that there should be something in the nature of a guarantee fund, to cover extra expenses. Do you remember anything of that kind in the first instance?—No; I do not remember anything of that kind. I understood that when I was to pay the 2,000*l.* there was to be an end of it, and I was to payno more.

70,193. I found the question that I am putting to you upon information that Sir John Hanmer has furnished us with on that point. That in his understanding the first proposal was that each should find 1,600*l.*, and that the proposal of the gentlemen who supported you was then that they would find a guarantee for the ulterior expenses. I put that, upon Sir John Hanmer's information to us, and I do not know whether that calls it to your recollection?—It does not recall it to my recollection.

70,194. You do not remember anything in the nature of a guarantee fund to cover beyond what you were to provide?—I fancy that there was something of the kind.

70,195. I believe that fell through?—No; I apprehend not. I apprehend that there was about 800*l.*

70,196. Still remaining beyond the 2,800*l.* supplied by each of you?—I apprehend so.

70,197. You think there was?—I think so.

70,198. That would be adding 800*l.* to the two sums that you and Sir John Hanmer provided?—Yes; in speaking with regard to the 800*l.*, or what steps these gentlemen took among themselves, I really cannot say. I know very little about it. I have a notion that at the time I heard that there were sums promised, but whether the subscription fell through, or whether there was any money provided, I have no knowledge.

70,199. If I understood beyond the ultimate provision of 890*l.*, which you made in October, and which Sir John Hanmer has informed us he made in November, you think there would be still a sum of 800*l.* to cover the whole expenses?—That is my impression, but I wish it to be understood it is only an impression.

70,200. I observe that the last payment was long subsequent to the prior one. The one anterior was as early as July, and this was not until the 14th of October. Do you remember if that was deferred in consequence of the accounts not having been fully balanced until the latter payment was made by you?—Certainly.

70,201. I ask you whether you remember whether that balance and final payment, as regards yourself, was made,—whether that would or not draw it to your mind whether or not there was still an outstanding balance uncovered by the 890*l.* from yourself and Sir John Hanmer?—I remember receiving a letter from one of the gentlemen at Hull, stating that the expenses had unfortunately exceeded what was anticipated, and asking me to pay 890*l.*

70,202. I think your impression with regard to that would be that yourself, Sir John Hanmer, and the town—I mean that part of it which supported you—would find an equal sum to cover the remainder, 890*l.*, and 890*l.* not quite equal, I think you said 800*l.* was your impression of what was remaining?—I do not know what sums; I have no doubt that some sums of money were given by the gentlemen of the town, but they applied to me and told me there was still a balance of 1,500*l.* or 1,600*l.* unpaid, and I thought the best way was to pay my share of it.

70,203. And on the consideration which you have been able to give you would think there was something in the nature of an addition to your payments, to the extent of about 800*l.* by your supporters?—Yes; I am pretty confident that there was.

70,204. You said you confided in those gentlemen whose names you have mentioned, and when they asked you for money you gave it to them. Did you put any restraint at all upon them as to the character of the payments, or did you leave it entirely to them?—No; I cannot say I put any restraint upon them with regard to the character of the payments; I left it entirely to their honour.

70,205. You said you had perfect confidence in them?—I had perfect confidence in them. My impression was that Hull was a place in which treating prevailed, and also the payment of head money, but I thought there was no such thing as trafficking in votes.

70,206. Had your experience in Hull brought your mind to the conclusion that an election could hardly be won there without having recourse to those systems of treating and head money?—It was the universal practice on both sides, I believe.

70,207. And probably you would think an election could not be won without having recourse to them at that time of day?—I always understood, with regard to the payment of 5*s.* to the poor voters, it was quite impossible to come to Hull and not acquiesce in that custom.

70,208. That there would be no success without it?—I think if you want the proof of that you cannot have a stronger proof than what took place at the committee in 1837; neither party brought forward the practice then.

70,209. We have been told by some gentlemen that there was something like a sacred principle that on scrutinies, or on electioneering investigations, this system should not be made the ground of a petition. Did you ever hear of that?—I palliated it, perhaps wrongly; I palliated it to my own mind, by thinking that in the old system it prevailed to a greater extent.

70,210. I understood you to say you could not defend the practice?—No.

70,211. Did you hear there was an understanding in Hull between the parties, that they never should take advantage on either side, of that system on a petition?—I have always understood so.

70,212. You collected it probably rather from general observation than from any specific language used?—At the time of the petition, all the lawyers on both sides made no secret of it.

70,213. You knew in 1837, that the election on your side had cost the sum of about 3,500*l.*, did you not?—Yes, exactly; not quite so much, I think, but about that sum.

70,214. Then in London, when they asked you for 2,000*l.* as your subscription to the election of 1841, had you any doubt in your mind at that moment that the money which you were to give would be expended in the same way in 1841 that it had been in 1837?—No, none at all.

70,215. Then you gave or agreed to give the 2,000*l.* for the purpose of its being expended in carrying out that system of which you have spoken?—I am afraid that is the logical inference.

70,216. There is one subject which I purposely kept separate, with a view to draw

Sir Walter James, Bart.

2d August 1853.

your attention to it. While you were the member for Hull in the year 1839, it has been said that a great number of freedoms were taken up for the purpose of influencing the election, by both parties. It was began by the orange and continued by the blues. Were you aware of that circumstance. On the 11th of June, 1839, it has been said that the largest number of freedoms were taken up that ever were known since the Reform Act. A list has been handed to us, pointing out that a large number were taken up by the orange, and not so large by the blues. It has been accounted for by the fact, that the orange party stole a march upon you?—It was at the time the late Sir Robert Peel made a speech about paying great attention to the registration, and both parties took advantage of it to the greatest possible extent. I remember the circumstance.

70,217. Did you contribute to the expense of taking up the freedoms on that occasion?—I said, when I was elected for Hull, that I would give 50*l.* a year to watch the registration.

70,218. Independent of that, which is totally different, I am talking of the money which was spent for the purpose of securing an additional number of supporters?—Exactly. Undoubtedly everybody in a free country will do all they can to improve their position on the register, and I gave 50*l.* a year as a general practice to maintain the interests of the party upon the register.

70,219. Independent of that, which would be spent probably in investigating fictitious claims and proposing valid ones, were you aware money was spent for the purpose of paying the fees for freemen and other persons?—I apprehend it is required, when a freeman obtains his right to vote, that he should pay a certain sum of money.

70,220. There is a book which has been produced in evidence, containing a list of all the freemen admitted on the 11th of July. You will see opposite every name the fees that were paid?—The charge is, I suppose, that this money was not paid by the freemen themselves but by others for them?

70,221. Yes; all that was paid by other persons. It is said that a person of the name of Samuel Brown, on the blue side, and Thomas Wilde, on the orange side, assisted by a person of the name of Thistleton, sat one at one side and the other at the other side of the table, each with a bag of money to pay the fees. And the orange party got a written promise; it is not said that that occurred on the blue side. What I wish to ask is this, did you provide funds for the purpose of paying the expenses of persons admitted to their freedom, so as to secure a number of voters?—I dare say I did, but unknowingly. I was not aware it was necessary for a freeman to pay any money to obtain his constitutional right of voting; I was told the expenses of the lawyers were great, and I gave 50*l.* a year for the purpose of maintaining the interests of the voters, but I was not aware of the practice of paying the fees of freemen.

70,222. It is not merely for the purpose of the franchise. It is valuable for many other purposes; it is the fees on taking up the freedoms?—Until you told me, I was not aware it was necessary that they should pay any fees, further than I thought were paid by the 10*l.* householders for their votes.

70,223. Do I understand you, you were not personally cognizant of the use that was made of it if it was your money?—No, I was not.

70,224. It has been also said by several witnesses that immediately after the termination of the contest in 1841, a further increase was made, but that was exclusively by the blue party; were you aware of that fact?—No; I was not aware of that fact. It is very likely it would have been noticed in the newspapers at the time.

70,225. These are the minutes of the town council and the corporation that we get the information from?—All the intelligence I should have on that subject, would probably be derived from the newspapers.

70,226. You did not provide money expressly for such a purpose?—Certainly not.

70,227. Supposing then a part of this 2,890*l.* was applied to such a purpose as this, you were not cognizant of it at the time?—Certainly not.

70,228. Nor supposing that any of your registration money was applied for the purpose of purchasing freedoms, do I understand you that you were not aware of that application of your money?—Certainly not.

70,229 Do you consider yourself authorized to state, as your belief, that Sir John Hanmer paid his money with the same knowledge and upon the same understanding that you did?—That is my belief.

70,230. Do you think you would be authorized to say as much as that?—I think so.

Colonel T. P. Thompson.

Colonel THOMAS PERONET THOMPSON sworn, and examined.

70,231. You are a colonel in the army?—Lieutenant-colonel.

70,232. You were formerly a member for this borough?—I was.

70,233. You were returned for it in the year 1835, in the single contest with Mr. Mildmay?—Yes.

70,234. I believe you are connected by property with the borough?—I was born in the borough, and my property lies in the neighbourhood.

70,235. Were you not a candidate for re-election in 1837?—No, not in 1837.

70,236. But in 1841 you again offered yourself?—Yes.

70,237. Was that in consequence of a requisition?—I cannot recollect; it is very likely the form of a requisition was gone through.

70,238. Probably it would be known that you were desirous to represent your native borough?—Undoubtedly it would.

70,239. How long before the dissolution, which took place in 1841, were you a candidate?—I am afraid I cannot recollect, for I do not recollect precisely what the circumstances were.

70,240. Was it a couple of months?—I think more.

70,241. It has been said that your intention to offer yourself was known as much as six months before?—As much as six months. Upon recollection, I think I recollect it was as long as six months.

70,242. How long had you a committee organized?—I should imagine something like a committee at the commencement of that period, but whether what is formally called a committee I cannot say.

70,243. Is that the committee of which Mr. Peck was the chairman?—I think Mr. Peck was acting at the early part, whether formally called a committee I cannot say.

70,244. At the time you were a candidate at the election of 1841, were you aware that the practice prevailed in Hull of paying runners or messengers?—I knew that men were employed as messengers in election proceedings. I remember once asking a question, whether the men who were so employed had not their votes vitiated, and the answer was made that they were not voters.

70,245. Were you aware that the practice prevailed of setting down persons as runners, with a view to obtain their votes?—Not at all on my side, not on my part.

70,246. I want to know in general; I am not talking of individual instances. I ask you, were you aware that such a practice existed in Hull?—I believe every practice of that kind existed in Hull; all kinds of improper practices I believe existed, but not on my part.

70,247. I want to know whether you agree with the other witnesses, who said that there was a practice existing?—I have no doubt that the practice of paying men as runners, and of paying them for their votes, had existed; but I do not know that it existed since the period of 1835, because after the Reform Bill I always imagined there was an alteration in respect of things of that kind.

70,248. I want to know were you aware, when you offered yourself as a candidate in 1841, that the practice had prevailed; for instance, at the very election before?—I had no doubt that it prevailed; but as I said before, it was a matter that I should have made a point of resisting.

70,249. I want to take you by steps, and get first of all, that there was such a practice, and that you knew of such a practice at the time you became a candidate?—I never had any concern with such practices, nor did anybody mention them. If I am asked to say what is the general character of the town, I know, from my recollections of boyhood, that it was as bad as could well be.

70,250. I wish you to have the kindness to answer the question a little more precisely, and I will renew the question somewhat more definitely. Were you aware, when you became a candidate in 1841, that up to that time the practice of paying people called runners, with a view of obtaining their votes, prevailed?—I do not believe it prevailed on what is called the Liberal side before; if it did it is without my knowledge. I do not know that it prevailed at that time; that it prevailed twenty years before I have no doubt. At that time I had no reason to believe it did prevail on the Liberal side.

70,251. Do you think it did not prevail on the orange side in 1837?—I have no reason to think so. I never was concerned in any compact for paying anything of the kind, and I have no reason to suppose it did.

70,252. Then, if that is so, believing it would not; would it be an ordinary course that you would take no means to prevent it?—Yes; I know it was a great besetment in Hull to do things of that kind.

70,253. If you believed that had not prevailed ever since the Reform Bill by your own party, why should you take any pains to prevent that which does not exist?—I have no doubt I said to my friends, "Take care we do not implicate ourselves in any improper payments."

70,254. Then you were not aware it existed?—I knew it existed from them, but not from me.

70,255. If you believed that the practice of employing runners never had prevailed since the Reform Act, would it not follow that you would take no measures to prevent that which you did not believe existed?—No, I think not; in our position we had need of every possible caution. I can only say it did not exist to my knowledge, or I had no concern in it. I do not vote for the opposite party—that is, the Conservative party.

70,256. You are expressing your belief, that the practice of setting down the names of runners, with a view of influencing their votes, did not exist in the party to which you belonged?—It did not, to my knowledge.

70,257. It would follow, that if you believed it did not exist, you would take no precaution to prevent it?—I do not quite see that that follows; believing it was what there had been a strong tendency to, was the reason why care should be taken to prevent it.

Colonel T. P. Thompson.

2d August 1853.

70,258. Did you think it probable that in 1841 it would be resorted to by your ow party, unless you took means to prevent it?—I certainly took every means to prevent it that I could. I was not engaged in any such plan.

70,259. Would not that be in consequence of a fear that it would be introduced if not guarded against?—Certainly it would.

70,260. And would not that fear be grounded on your previous knowledge that such things had occurred?—No; only that such things were likely to occur.

70,261. Then your answer comes to this, that you were afraid that the practice would be introduced when you became a candidate?—I think I must answer, that I only took precautions against its being introduced.

70,262. What were the precautions you did take?—Inviting all my friends to do everything in their power to prevent any practice of that kind.

70,263. Did you describe what the practice was that they were to guard against?—I cannot say whether I ever said pointedly to them "take care you do not employ runners;" but if I had seen anything that struck me as the commencement of that system I should have resisted it. And, as I said before, when I saw some men employed as messengers, I asked the question on one occasion whether they were voters, and would it not vitiate their votes; the answer was made to me, they were not voters; and I did not do it in consequence of seeing any remarkable number, but only because it occurred to me, if their votes were objectionable, that it was a thing that ought to have been prevented.

70,264. What further instructions did you give when you were told that the people were not voters?—I gave no further instructions; I was satisfied then, when they said they were not voters, and I asked no further questions. I saw two or three men about, no more, to carry messages, as there must be on all occasions, where business is doing, and I said, I think, very likely, to the chairman of the committee, "Who are these men? are they voters, and will not that vitiate their votes in case there is a scrutiny, and will not they be objected to?" and the answer was made to me that they were not voters.

70,265. What other means did you have recourse to, to avoid objectionable practices prevailing?—Exhorting all my friends and everybody with whom I was connected to remember that our success mainly depended on our character for not doing things of that kind.

70,266. Did you in the course of this general exhortation refer to the practice of setting down the names of voters as runners?—I do not remember its being specified in any manner, putting down names as runners; I never heard it mentioned.

70,267. We hear that before the contest actually took place, you formed a coalition to a limited extent with Mr. Clay, but that previous to that date you were canvassing on your own account exclusively; is that so?—I should like to go into the history of those circumstances, if the Commissioners thought it was proper.

70,268. Perhaps that would be the shortest way?—In the year 1839, as I believe, a plan was set on foot by a section of the orange party, which was not my section, for purchasing freedoms for certain voters; that plan was an act of direct hostility to me and to my friends or party, the object being to annihilate our influence in the borough. There are documents in print at the time in the public papers to which I have had recourse to refresh my memory, and I could produce them here if it was desired.

70,269. A letter has been shown to us containing a remonstrance on your part against it?—That letter I have no doubt is correct. As soon as I heard of it, I brought the matter before the constituency; perhaps it is not necessary for me to go further into that part of the matter. When the election proceeded, there was what I call a condonation for that injury, for injury it was, and I have no doubt that it was the principal cause of the loss of that election, and very possibly had some influence on three elections more which went unfavourable to the Liberals about that time; I do in my heart attribute the loss of those elections, in a greater or lesser degree, to this most unhappy proceeding that took place in 1839.

70,270. Did you ever repay any portion of the expenses that were incurred by that section of the orange party in taking up freedoms?—I never paid anything towards the taking up of those freedoms; it was an act hostile to me, and a man does not pay towards an act of hostility against himself.

70,271. We have heard a great many of the parties signed a paper pledging themselves to vote for you, and a great many of them did. I wish therefore to know whether at any subsequent time you repaid any part of the whole expenses; I understood you to say not?—After, there was a condonation, as I phrased it; no doubt there were expenses which would be divided between both parties.

70,272. What is the condonation to which you allude?—There was a great deal of quarrelling between the two sections of the Liberal party, and everybody said, "You are sure to lose the election unless you make the quarrel up," and at last, at a rather late period, I consented to make up the quarrel.

70,273. In the term "condonation" are you alluding to an agreement entered into by a gentleman on your part, and another gentleman on the part of Mr. Clay, for sharing certain expenses?—There would be expenses to be shared, no doubt, but what they were I do not know.

70,274. Is that what you are alluding to as the condonation?—No; the condonation was an agreement that the candidates should meet and shake hands, and that ceremony took place at Mr. Jalland's house over the North Bridge.

70,275. Then subsequently to that, a coalition, to a limited extent, took place?—It did.

70,276. In which I believe you agreed to share certain expenses and certain expenses only?—That I believe to have been the case.

70,277. And an agreement for sharing the expenses between yourself and Mr. Clay was drawn up?—I have no doubt of that being what took place.

70,278. With your sanction, it says you are to share the expenses of the sheriff and a limited number of committees?—I have no doubt that generally had my sanction.

70,279. After this date, the 12th of June, you had seventeen joint committees I believe?—I really cannot speak to that fact whether they were joint committees or not; I do not recollect anything that impresses upon me that it was so; they might be.

70,280. Various documents have been handed to us by Mr. Peck?—I have no doubt that everything handed in by Mr. Peck is correct, I trust to what he says.

70,281. You have no doubt after the 12th of June, you shared in the expenses named in these papers?—I have no doubt of it.

70,282. It has been said that at the election in 1841, besides these seventeen committees mentioned here, in which you shared the expenses, that from seventy to eighty other committee rooms were paid for by the orange party; did you pay any part of that expense?—I really cannot say whether I did or not. It was entirely in the hands of the chairman of the committee to produce an account of the expenses that he charged to me.

70,283. There is no such item to be found among the documents handed in, but there is a document showing that those number of committee rooms were engaged; therefore I ask you, whether you paid any part of them?—I have no doubt that whatever is stated by my chairman of my committee as having been paid, was paid.

70,284. There is nothing stated as having been paid by you; that is the reason I ask the question?—Then I go no further.

70,285. The evidence is clear that Mr. Clay paid something, or, at least, it has been said so?—It is highly probable that I paid according to the agreement there stated.

70,286. That is only the seventeen committees; the agreement limits it to seventeen?—Then I cannot say whether more was paid or not.

70,287. It has been said besides that, that seventy-two at the least, if not more, committee rooms, were engaged and paid for. There is no trace of such an item to be found in your account, but there is in Mr. Clay's; therefore, I ask the question whether you can undertake to say you did not pay them?—Since there is a limitation to seventeen, the probability seems to be that no others were paid for, and the intention was to say we would not pay for other committees, but only for seventeen.

70,288. The agreement limits it to seventeen, but what I want to know is, notwithstanding the agreement limited it to seventeen, whether you in point of fact paid for a greater number?—I do not think I did. I have no reason to believe it. If proof is brought from other quarters I should submit to it; I have no knowledge of it. I should surmise, in consequence of limiting it to seventeen, that that is all I paid for.

70,289. The agreement according to your knowledge was carried out as there stated?—I believe it was.

70,290. Did you find during your canvass that voters would apply to you to be employed; to be set down to be employed as runners?—I must state my impression of what was the meaning of setting down. No doubt I have gone to some of the most respectable men in Hull, and a man who it would be most insane to offer a bribe to, and said, "Pray will you allow me to set you down?" That did not mean to be set down for 30*s*. Every canvasser has a friend attending him to put the name down in a book.

70,291. That is setting it down in a promise book?—Yes.

70,292. I mean setting down as runners?—I never heard it mentioned, never heard such a thing, and never was asked a question on that subject.

70,293. Have you any means of distinguishing runners that were actually employed; for instance, here is a list of the number necessary to be employed: have you any means of distinguishing who were voters and who were not?—I have stated I asked the question, and was told they were not voters. I have no knowledge of any man being employed with a view of influencing his vote.

70,294. Is it your recollection that you preferred to employ non-voters to voters?—I was told it was not so, and therefore I believed it. When I inquired I was told the men employed were non-voters.

70,295. Did you take pains or not that that should be the case; did you take pains to exclude voters?—It was not in any department of mine. I neither took particular pains one way or another. I did not interfere in such matters. Everybody connected with me knew I should oppose anything like giving money to voters to influence their votes; in proof of which, I stated I asked the question.

70,296. Or employment also?—I say the same with respect to employment. I should have resisted anything like giving employment to men with a view of influencing their votes.

Colonel T. P. Thompson.
2d August 1853.

70,297. We have been told that you were to a great extent your own treasurer?—I paid the bills that were brought against me, if that is being my own treasurer.

70,298. You paid the bills yourself?—Yes.

70,299. You employed no banker in the town?—I did not; I employed a banker in London. What I observe stated by one witness upon that subject is quite correct; I remember saying to my chairman, I think, "We will not trouble our friends of the opposite party, with knowing either what we do, or what we do not do."

70,300. Look at that paper endorsed "Objections to bills paid," and I want to ask you this question: did you examine carefully all the accounts that were sent in?—I do not think I examined them all; I paid them, there is no use in examining accounts afterwards. I did all I could to keep things clear and clean beforehand.

70,301. We have not had the good fortune to get any balance-sheet of the expenses that you incurred; can you tell what the gross amount is that the election cost you?—I can come no nearer than Mr. Peck's statement. I have examined my account at Hopkinson's, and I find there 600*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* in bills to Mr. Peck, and I find others which I cannot at this time account for, so that there might be, and probably were, other payments included in them; and I have no disposition to controvert the statement of my chairman of committee; I have no doubt that what he says is the correct sum.

70,302. Let me draw your attention to three answers: "I gave to Colonel Thompson a balance-sheet;" he also says, "The whole expenses of Colonel Thompson's election were about 1,220*l.*;" and he also said, "We went carefully through the account"?—Who went carefully through?

70,303. That is what Mr. Peck says that you and he did?—If so, I do not recollect it. I cannot recollect it at all.

70,304. He says, "I gave Colonel Thompson the final balance-sheet; the whole of the expenses were 1,260*l.*, and we," that is, he and you, "went carefully through the account?" —We might or might not, but I have no recollection whatever upon the subject.

70,305. You do not remember the fact?—I do not remember the fact; it might be, or it might not.

70,306. When you say you agree with Mr. Peck, that is why we wish to draw your attention to what Mr. Peck said. Do you remember the fact of having a balance-sheet? —I do not remember it.

70,307. I think I understood you to say that you do not remember whether it was 1,260*l.*?—I do not remember.

70,308. Is it your impression that it was less, or more?—I have no recollection of it at all; until I saw the evidence brought forward here, I had no idea that I had paid anything like that sum. I believe not an uncommon case in elections.

70,309. He has given details: flags from 150*l.* to 200*l.*, Mr. Peck said. Do you believe it was as much, or more?—I think it is a very enormous sum for flags; we had some flags of a rare construction, in proof of which, they have been asked for at two or three elections since. I should have thought they could not come to that.

70,310. He says you dressed up some sweeps at the expense of 10*l.*?—That was a freak of a deceased friend of ours; when men get into a state of excitement at elections, they do things that do not come within the range of being rational.

70,311. Mr. Peck says that you had music to a considerable extent?—When a man makes a profession of not taking illegal methods, he is obliged to spend more upon the legal ones, and considering that legal, I have no doubt we did all that could be done by way of music.

70,312. Mr. Peck has only stated the clerks at 80*l.* Do you think that is all that you paid for clerks?—I trusted entirely to him; I do not know what he paid for clerks. I have no means of intimating that that was incorrect.

70,313. Do you remember what there was for printing?—I do not know what the amount was.

70,314. Your memory does not enable you to give any details of the expenditure?— None at all, I think.

70,315. There is 100*l.* put down for colourmen?—I do not know very well, I suppose they were to carry the colours.

70,316. And eighty men carrying boards?—I have no doubt there was a great deal of board carrying.

70,317. Do you believe that they were voters or non-voters?—I have none but the general reason to believe that they were not voters.

70,318. He has put a breakfast for the non-voters at 120*l.*, do you remember that?— No; I cannot say, really; I do not know particularly what it is that he alludes to.

70,319. And the printing is put at 120*l.*?—There was a good deal of printing; I do not know what the amount would come to, but I apprehend printing like music is one of the most honourable courses a candidate can have recourse to.

70,320. You supplied, I believe, money in small sums from time to time, to Mr. Peck? —No; I should rather think it was in considerable sums.

70,321. What, according to your recollection, would the gross amount be beyond the 670*l.* that you had paid?—I have no means of referring to anything but Mr. Peck's statement of the sum, and I think it would be well that Mr. Peck should be asked whether he means that that sum was all paid by me, because it might by possibility be paid by other persons, a part of it.

70,322. This is Mr. Peck's evidence: "The whole expenses came to 1,260*l.*, and I made a balance-sheet from time to time, to keep a check upon it that there should be nothing spent contrary to law." Did you, so far as in you lay, do everything that you could to check any illegal expenditure?—I never in my life did encourage or wink at any illegal expenditure, that I know of.

70,323. Were you aware then, that supposing that the practice had been followed by your party of giving employment to persons with a view of influencing their votes, that that would have been illegal?—I should have resisted it to the utmost; I cannot say within what limits that would have been illegal or not, because it is a thing that there are very great doubts about.

70,324. Would you have resisted it lest it should be considered illegal; is that the impression?—Lest it should be considered illegal, and because I thought it generally contrary to our duty and to our character.

70,325. Do you recollect after the election any application being made to you on behalf of Mr. Clay's committee, or his friends, to share some outstanding expenses of runners?—There might be such a thing, but I do not recollect it, nor can I speak to it; there might be a claim of that sort.

70,326. Your memory would not serve you?—My memory will not serve me to say that there were or there were not.

70,327. As to the answer you might send to such an application?—I cannot say, there might be such claims; if there were, I should imagine that they were resisted.

70,328. You may remember this, that some time elapsed before the amount of the expenses that you were to share with Mr. Clay were finally adjusted?—I really cannot speak to them; I do not recollect.

70,329. Some time did elapse?—In all probability some time would elapse.

70,330. You did not inquire, I dare say, whether all the musicians were voters or not voters?—Certainly not; in the case of the individuals it was impossible for me to make an inquiry of that sort. In the position of a candidate at an election, different departments are left necessarily to friends, and there were always the strongest instructions given to my friends to put down everything that was illegal. I take no credit for it, it was our stock in trade to do nothing of that kind. It was like a character to a servant; we should have been foolish to have broken through it willingly.

70,331. Do you think that an expenditure of 120*l.* in printing would indirectly have a bearing upon the result of the election?—Inasmuch as it was a dissemination of information, it might not; I have not the slightest idea that it was ever done in any shape or degree with any corrupt intent. We printed "at" our adversaries and our friends with all our might, among other reasons, because we paid nobody.

70,332. You would confine the printing to your own party?—That is a thing that never came under my notice; but, of course, I should take for granted that we did not employ our adversaries' printers.

70,333. I did not understand you to say that you had employed the printers on both sides?—No; I said we did not, and undoubtedly we did not employ the printers who were our adversaries'.

70,334. You do not mean, when you say "at" your adversaries, at your adversaries' shops, but you directed it at them?—Yes; we directed it against the intelligence of our adversaries.

70,335. You meant that you fired your papers at them?—Yes; in one statement that I made, I meant if there had been an opportunity to make an exception. I think I was asked whether I was ever asked during my canvass to put any man down improperly; I remember calling upon an old shoemaker upon a first floor in Dock Side, and the old man looked cunning and said, "Is there not something usual upon these occasions?" Whether he meant money or drink, I do not know; but we did not get any good from our visit to him, and that is the only instance within my memory of anybody during our canvass in Hull having asked me for anything of the kind.

70,336. What did you say to him?—We told him that that time had gone by.

70,337. I observe that you use the word "illegal," that it was your desire and your instructions that no expenses should be incurred that were illegal?—Yes.

70,338. Was it then your object to have merely a legal contest, or a cheap contest?—To have merely a legal contest; and a cheap contest in so far as we could not expend money illegally.

70,339. Then you did not object to the expenditure of money, provided it could be brought within the strict letter of the law?—No; I do not know that I did. I did not want expenses to be incurred; and they were finally a great deal more than I ever expected.

70,340. Your instructions were that no expense should be incurred that was illegal?—Yes; illegal.

70,341. Not that they should limit the expense of the election more than other Hull elections had been limited?—The cutting off of the illegal expenses is cutting off the major part of the expenses of an election, I apprehend.

Colonel T. P. Thompson.

2d August 1853.

70,342. You have said when a man makes a profession not to spend money in an illegal mode, he is obliged to spend more in a legal mode?—He is.

70,343. With what object?—In order that he may carry his election.

70,344. Is that in order to carry it by putting his constituents in good humour by the amount of money expended?—No; it is by setting forth your own claims. I fought up the whole battle of the Corn Laws, in printing, at that election.

70,345. Had you no regard to the influence that an expenditure of money would have generally?—Not the slightest. I never authorized the expenditure of a shilling with any such view.

70,346. Do you agree with Mr. Peck, that you did pay 1,260*l.*?—I have no disposition or ability to contradict Mr. Peck's statement. I am in his hands; I can produce no counter-statement.

70,347. How soon do you think you paid that sum, or how much of it did you pay during the election?—I cannot tell how much of it I paid during the election; I should have paid for the expenses which he represented as being necessary at that time; and the other I imagine I paid up as soon as possible afterwards; it was indifferent to me whether I paid it soon or late.

70,348. Did you, as an experienced candidate, believe that the sum of 1,260*l.*, or anything like it, was necessary for the mere machinery of the election?—I did believe it, most devoutly; and to this hour I believe the same; and I can give the Commissioners evidence why I think so. I can point them to another election, with a smaller population than Hull, where the election was carried on for a shorter time, and where there were men of great mark, I mean the League, who were concerned, and who never would have compromised their characters for the sake of any petty election game; and that election cost more a good deal than 1,260*l.*

70,349. We have heard that an election in this town, contested fiercely, cost one candidate 400*l.*, and he won the election?—There may have been circumstances under which such a thing may have been done; perhaps somebody else paid for him.

70,350. It has been stated that the whole expenses of that candidate, or on his behalf, were 400*l.* If he could carry a contested election for the cost of 400*l.*, how do you wish us to understand that a sum of 1,260*l.* is necessary for the mere machinery of the election?—An election at one time, is not an election at another time; and the circumstances are, and may be, exceedingly different. There are some elections that go by default, and other elections where there is a strong adversary, and you must put forward every power that you have to oppose him. I believe devoutly that 1,260*l.* was quite reasonable to be expended legally in that election, and I never had the slightest suspicion or belief to the contrary.

70,351. I do not wish you to take the word "legally," but whether it was absolutely necessary to carry on the mere machinery of the election?—What is the mere machinery? The machinery was, to speak at as many places as we could, to print as much as we had the chance of getting anybody to read. All that goes to great expense, and I do not think that 1,260*l.* was primâ facie an unreasonable amount for all those expenses.

70,352. After the shaking hands with Mr. Clay upon your part, was there so far a coalition that you were to have the benefit of his supporters?—I must say something upon that head. I have said that the purchasing of those freedoms originated in hostility to us. The plan was that they should be bought on the last day, or towards the last day, when it could be legally done; and a march should thereby be stolen upon the Conservative side. That plan failed, and therefore there was an end of any chance of putting us down by dint of those purchased voters. I therefore state there is no thanks due to the other side for their voters voting for us. If they hired those voters after, they would be obliged to put into the contract that they were to vote for us, and without any complicity, and for this reason: that if their voters had been found not voting for us, our friends would have immediately refused to vote for them, and the election for the orange party must have been given up altogether.

70,353. Again I ask whether after the coalition, or after the shaking of hands with Mr. Clay, it was understood that you were to have the benefit of these voters?—There was no such understanding entered into with me; the fact was, that they did vote for us because they could not do anything else.

70,354. For what purpose did you coalesce?—In order that there might be the appearance of unison, and that the opposite party might not say, "These two parties are at daggers drawn, and therefore we will beat them."

70,355. Did you not induce your supporters to give him the second vote?—Certainly.

70,356. And did they not induce their voters to give you the second vote?—I knew we must give instructions to them, but I entered into no contract; of course there was a general understanding, when there was a giving up of the quarrel, that both sides would assist each other.

70,357. Were you aware at all that Mr. Clay's party was going to a considerable expense in setting down runners?—Not at all; I left it entirely to take its own course. I had no responsibility for them; whatever they did was of their own choice.

70,358. I ask whether you heard that he was spending money for such a purpose?—I do not recollect any such thing. It might be said or reported, but I had nothing to do with it. It had nothing to do with any conduct of mine, or my party, that I am aware of.

70,359. Forgetting for a moment that Mr. Peck has made any statement as to the cost; or forgetting for a moment that Mr. Peck has made any statement at all; and relying entirely upon your own memory, what should you say that the election cost you?—I really have no means of ascertaining.

70,360. Supposing you had been asked the question before Mr. Peck said 1,260*l.*?—I certainly did not think or expect that it would have cost so much.

70,361. You named 670*l.*?—That is only the sum for which I find his name attached to bills; 600*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* But there are other drafts or bills in the account which may be, and probably are, what Mr. Peck alludes to.

70,362. How much, according to your own exclusive judgment, should you say it was over and above that 600*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*?—I have no disposition to controvert Mr. Peck's evidence that there was so and so.

70,363. Throwing altogether Mr. Peck out of consideration, and relying exclusively upon your own memory; supposing this question had been put to you two months ago, and Mr. Peck not examined, what should you have said was the sum?—I should have been all abroad upon the subject. I should not have known.

70,364. Would your judgment have been that it was less than 1,000*l.*, or more?—I did not expect it was as much as 1,000*l.*; the rest came upon me in the shape of surprise.

70,365. You were surprised when you heard Mr. Peck's statement that it was 1,260*l.*?—Yes; because I did not think it was so much.

70,366. I think you say you did not think it would exceed 1,000*l.*?—I did not expect 1,000*l.*

70,367. Have you heard the sum of 1,260*l.* named before you came to be examined to-day?—I saw it in the evidence printed in the newspapers.

70,368. Having since directed your attention to that sum, is it still your impression; because it was nothing but a guess of Mr. Peck's that the money amounted to 1,200*l.* Having seen that sum named by Mr. Peck, but relying upon your own judgment, do you still think that the sum was over 1,200*l.*?—No. Having seen Mr. Peck's evidence, I have no means to doubt that his is a correct statement.

70,369. Is that because you prefer his memory to your own?—Undoubtedly; and because he has access to papers that I have not.

70,370. Because you prefer his memory to your own?—And his papers and documents.

70,371. But he has no papers?—Then I prefer his memory to my own.

70,372. Your memory would lead you to say that it was less than 1,000*l.*, but his evidence makes it 1,260*l.*, and you prefer to rely upon him?—When I speak of memory I should rather say expectation, because I have no memory upon it.

70,373. Do you still think that 1,260*l.* is a sum that ought to be expended in a fair contest in Hull?—I have no doubt that it was honestly and legally expended.

70,374. How soon did you learn that the expenses of your party upon that occasion were 3,000*l.*?—I do not know that I ever heard that to this hour; it is quite new.

70,375. Do you think that the sum of 3,000*l.* could be fairly expended in merely necessary expenses?—I have no concern with the other section of the orange party; they acted in hostility to me up to the period I mention.

70,376. You did not think that 3,000*l.* could be fairly expended upon merely necessary expenses.?—It is not for me to make a statement upon any other parties' proceedings, any more than it is for them to do so upon mine.

70,377. That is including your own?—I state I have no doubt that 1,260*l.* might be, and, if Mr. Peck says so, was legally and properly expended. For any other parties' expenses I cannot answer, because I never heard what they were until now.

70,378. From the experience that you have of the Hull constituency, and the extent of the town, cannot you form a judgment whether it is absolutely necessary for two candidates to expend 3,000*l.*?—Really I can only answer for my own part, because I have no knowledge what the other side might do.

70,379. Do you think if they only did what was right, that they could expend 3,000*l.*?—I cannot have an opinion upon that subject. 1,260*l.* was a good deal to spend, and we spent it honestly to the best of my belief.

70,380. To what do you attribute losing your election in 1841?—In a very high degree to the system that was then introduced of purchasing freedoms; it destroyed the character of the Liberal side.

70,381. But I understand that that system has been resorted to by both sides?—Never by my side.

70,382. If our information is correct, more freedoms were taken up by the orange party in 1839 than by the blues?—That was done hostilely to me; it was a movement to neutralize my influence and the influence of what I call my friends and party in the borough.

70,383. You have alluded, more than once, to the hostility of the other section of the orange party?—I have.

Colonel T. P. Thompson.

2d August 1853.

70,384. That other section of the orange party at the election of 1841 was equally unsuccessful with yourself?—Yes, it was, and that ruined both of us.

70,385. Allow me to repeat the question. To what do you attribute the loss of the election in 1841?—Mainly to that miserable procedure, that introducing the practice of buying the freedoms. I cannot say positively we should have won it, but I have heard it said we should have won by five if that practice had not been set on foot.

70,386. If the freedoms purchased in that way by the orange party exceeded considerably those purchased by the blue party, the result could not be attributable to that cause?—It was to a great extent, because, as I said before, it ruined our character.

70,387. The orange party would get the full extent of the freedoms purchased upon their side, and assuming that the blue party did the same, still the balance, taking those persons upon the one side or the other, would be greatly in the orange favour?—It would, but it did not balance the injury done to the general character of the party.

70,388. Do I understand you to say that you are of opinion that independent electors upon the orange side deserted that side in consequence of the freedoms that had been taken up upon that side?—I mean to say that the general loss of character which ensued thereupon was a great or serious detriment to the election.

70,389. It lost you a great many votes?—Lost votes; men would not vote for our side, when they said "We clearly see you are the same as the other men are."

70,390. Do I understand you to say that at that election there was a considerable section of the orange party, independent men, who did not vote at all, or did they go over to the blues?—I cannot say; there is always a fluctuating party in an election who are doubtful, and who no one can say beforehand which way they will go, and where anything happens to damage the character of the party, they are very likely to go the other way, or not vote at all.

70,391. Still I cannot bring my mind to the conclusion that the result of taking up the freedoms was the cause of your losing the election. I cannot see how it works out?—It works out this way: supposing the 200 votes were got by this proceeding, we lost more than the difference between the 200 and what the Conservative side took up, by the bad reputation that we got, by the loss of character of the Liberal side generally.

70,392. But loss of character, unless loss of votes, would not affect the result?—Men do not vote for the side that they think has a bad character; loss of character always implies loss of votes.

70,393. It was well known that the blues had done the same thing?—I understood not to the same extent.

70,394. But they did do it?—It was understood they did afterwards, upon seeing it begun by a section of the orange party; I understood the blues then did the same thing.

70,395. I mean that the blues did it long before the election of 1841?—They did.

70,396. They did it in 1839, upon the same day?—I do not apprehend that they did it until that section of the orange party set the example; I then understood that they did all that they were able.

70,397. I do not want to contest the matter of who commenced it, but the fact seems unquestionable, that both parties did it to a considerable extent at the same time?—I have no doubt they did; and if they had done it to an equal extent, things would have been left in statu quo.

70,398. Then the character of the blues and the orange being considerably tainted in your judgment by this recourse to buying freedoms in 1839, do I understand you to say, in your judgment, that the loss of the election was occasioned by a certain party not mixing themselves up at all with the taint upon either side?—The blues never had any character to lose, it was the Liberal side that lost character, without anything to balance it.

70,399. The blues having no character to lose, the orange party rushed immediately into the arena and purchased freedoms very much more fully than the others?—That section of the orange party began it with a view to damage my party, and hence arose all the mischief that followed.

70,400. Do you think that the orange party bought up the freedoms to that extent to put themselves upon an equality with those who you say had no character to lose?—No, they did it not with that view, but with a view to neutralize the influence of what I call for distinction my party.

70,401. There is one matter that I have been endeavouring to direct my question to, I cannot arrive at the conclusion unless you intend to inform me, that a great many of the orange party abstained from voting altogether in 1841, I cannot otherwise account for your being defeated?—I attribute it to the defalcation of what may be called the doubtful party; men who do not call themselves either blue or orange. There are always a great number doubtful, who make up their minds at the close of the election, when they see what all the different parties have to say for themselves.

70,402. We have heard this morning that the blues expended 6,500*l.*, and the orange 3,000*l.*; do you not think that the difference of that expenditure had a considerable effect upon the result of the election?—I have no doubt at all that the difference of expenditure had the effect, but we might have beaten them after all if the hands of all the Liberal party had been clean.

70,403. Do you not think that the 3,500*l.* in excess spent by the blues, was the real cause of your losing the election?—No; it is my belief there is a high probability that we should have beaten them in spite of that, and I have been told that we should have had a majority of five, a very bare majority, but enough to give a position.

Colonel T. P. Thompson.

2d August 1853.

70,404. The poll book shows that if all the persons whose freedoms were taken up by the blues had voted for them, and all the persons whose freedoms were taken up by the orange had voted for the orange, that then the result of the election would have been one and one, by a majority of five, and Mr. Clay would have been returned by five; but if neither party had taken up any freedoms, that both the blues would have been returned, as they were, that is obvious from the poll book?—I think that confirms the statement I have heard.

70,405. We have had a list of names of freedoms taken up by each party?—I have not consulted the poll book, but my impression is that we lost by that misfortune.

70,406. We have been told that the difference between one side spending a guinea and the other side spending a pound would change an election in Hull; what is your opinion upon that?—I have no experience at all upon the subject.

James Clay, Esq.

JAMES CLAY, Esq., sworn, and examined.

70,407. You are the late member for this borough?—Yes.

70,408. You were also a candidate for the election in the year 1841?—I was.

70,409. When was your attention first directed to the representation of this borough?—I think that it must have been early in 1839; it might have been quite at the end of 1838, but my belief is it was at the beginning of 1839.

70,410. At that time I believe you had no connexion with the borough?—None; I knew only one gentleman in the place, and that was the late Doctor Chalmers, who happened to attend me when I was taken ill in coming through Hull.

70,411. What is the origin of your connexion with the borough of Hull?—There existed at Hull a Reform Association; at that time a meeting was held to decide who should be invited to be the candidate, as it was then expected that a general election was impending. The election was put off for a year, or a year and a half; I had stood for Beverley, and a gentleman, Mr. Alderman Gresham, had heard me speak at Beverley, and seen me there, although I believe I was not introduced to him; he thought I should be a good candidate, and he proposed me, and the proposition was carried, and an invitation was sent to me to stand.

70,412. Was that invitation communicated to you early in 1839 or late in 1838?—Yes.

70,413. Through the medium of Mr. Gresham?—No; the first intimation I had of it was by a message from Colonel Thompson through Sir William Clay, and that was followed almost immediately by a letter from Mr. Galloway, communicating to me a resolution of the Reform Association.

70,414. At that time was Mr. Galloway a perfect stranger to you?—I was a perfect stranger to every gentleman in the place, nor had I the slightest communication either directly or indirectly for the promotion of my own candidateship. I knew nothing of it until the intimation came to me.

70,415. How soon did you become acquainted with Mr. Galloway?—Upon my first visit to Hull, which I think was about the summer of 1839. I have carefully avoided refreshing my memory upon any of these subjects, which might easily be done by referring to the newspapers, but I have cautiously avoided refreshing my memory, because particular accuracy upon one point might make other points of which I was entirely forgetful, rather suspicious.

70,416. You were in Hull earlier than the summer of 1839; allow me to mention, that among the correspondence before us, is a correspondence very early in 1839, between you and Mr. Galloway?—The first time I visited Hull the date may be found by the papers.

70,417. There is a letter before us from Mr. Galloway to you, of the 29th of May 1839, will that enable you to fix the date?—My first visit to Hull was when I made my first speech in Hull at the Victoria rooms.

70,418. At the time that you came to Hull, you had not entered into any communication with Mr. Galloway, except the letter of which you have spoken?—It is very probable that some correspondence might have taken place.

70,419. Can you recollect this: whether you wrote to Mr. Galloway acknowledging the receipt of the letter that you have mentioned, which caused your introduction to Hull; did you acknowledge it to any other parties?—No doubt I should have written to Mr. Galloway, as it was Mr. Galloway who wrote to me.

70,420. In the early part of that year you became acquainted with Mr. Jalland?—Yes, in my first visit to Hull.

70,421. Had you had any correspondence with Mr. Jalland previously?—I think no correspondence, unless it was an invitation to go to his house.

70,422. I mean upon the business of the election?—I think not.

70,423. Then you came to Hull?—Yes.

70,424. And was there a meeting held here at which you made a speech?—I came down to make inquiries myself, to see whether I thought that Hull would suit me, and to show myself to the electors to see whether I should suit them.

James Clay, Esq.

2d August 1853.

70,425. To feel your way?—Yes; to make a declaration of my opinions, and to see whether I should suit them; to inquire as to the position of the borough, and see whether the borough would suit me.

70,426. Upon the occasion of that visit to Hull, was the subject of the expense of a contest in Hull brought to your attention?—Yes; even before that.

70,427. How soon?—Either in the first invitation that Mr. Galloway sent to me, or in a letter very shortly subsequent to that. I do not know whether it was not in the same letter that the probable expense was mentioned to me as 750*l.*

70,428. In a letter from Mr. Galloway?—Yes, from Mr. Galloway.

70,429. Can you recollect whether there were any details entered into?—Not in that letter; but I may probably save you some trouble, and make the matter shorter by telling you very concisely what was represented to me to be the state of the borough,—those representations coming chiefly from Dr. Chalmers and Mr. Galloway. I asked questions of other gentlemen whom I met when I came to Hull, but the state of the borough was principally represented to me by Dr. Chalmers and also by Mr. Galloway.

70,430. Will you just listen to this letter, and see whether you recollect receiving it:—"29th May 1839. I am desired to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, and also desired to inform you for your government, what in all probability would be the amount of election and registration expenses; but this we cannot give you this morning, as Mr. Gresham (who is in possession of the accounts for the last election) is from home; we will, however, on his return, procure all the necessary information and then write you. In the meantime you may consider (as my opinion) that the election expenses would amount to 1,000*l.*, and the expenses attending the ensuing registration (should the election take place after it) would be about 50*l.* each candidate, and 30*l.* each for revising the register and printing the street lists. Some discussion took place as to how far you would go on the extension of the suffrage." That letter must have been written after the one in which the 750*l.* is mentioned?—No doubt that letter must be subsequent to it.

70,431. Consequently does that enable you to say that your visit to Hull was before or after the 29th of May?—I think I had not visited Hull on the 29th of May; but the matter is so very easily known by the newspapers. My own belief is, that I had not visited Hull before I received that letter.

70,432. Your impression is that at that time you had not been at Hull?—Yes.

70,433. Therefore, that at the time you came to Hull, correspondence in two or three letters had taken place between you and Mr. Galloway?—Yes.

70,434. I interrupted you when you were going to state what took place when you came to Hull; will you continue it?—I was going to state very concisely the result of more than one long conversation chiefly with Dr. Chalmers and Mr. Galloway; for I was anxious to know, of course, how electioneering was carried on here, more especially as Hull did not enjoy a very good name. Dr. Chalmers told me, and this was confirmed by Mr. Galloway, and more or less by every gentleman with whom I spoke upon the subject, that previous to the Reform Bill a custom existed of giving head money to the freemen, of four guineas for one vote, that is for a plumper, and two guineas for a split vote; that advantage was taken of the excitement which the Reform Bill caused all over the country, to get rid of this system, and that at the election immediately following the Reform Bill, no money, or very little money, had been paid in this way; that it was found by the subsequent defeat of Mr. Hill, the gentleman who succeeded upon so small a payment, immediately after the Reform Bill, that this system of paying nothing at all would not do, and that a system had been devised infinitely better than the old one, for reasons I will give you as he gave them to me afterwards; that that system was to employ men as messengers in the committee rooms—as flagmen, and as messengers, men who come under the general head of runners; to give them actual employment, and pay them 5*s.* a day for the time they were employed. He led me to believe, of course, that the inclination was to find as much employment as possible; the belief to which he led me was, that if a committee room required ten or twelve messengers, there would probably be fifteen; and that in some cases, possibly, the employment was colourable; and even there might be some cases, but very few, where, in the confusion of the election, men not employed at all would slip in for payment; but that would be only an accident, there would be no continuation of it at all. He then told me that the party considered, with some show of reason, that this differed very materially from bribery; that there was a legal difference between this and bribery; and inasmuch as upon a petition, a case of bribery could not be made out from the employment of these men, and that all that could be done would be to knock off their votes upon a scrutiny. Whether that is good law or bad I did not know then, and I do not know now; but that is what was represented to me; but that which was more important was, that according to his representation of the state of Hull, there was a very great moral difference between those systems of bribery, inasmuch as this system was pursued upon both sides, and that any one of the freemen was sure or nearly sure of being able to get employment at the same tariff from either side; that they believed they had an opinion and a principle as well as other people; that in receiving those payments they received a sort of birthright, and that they voted for their principles; and he assured me that there were scores of men, and I believe it myself now, that there were scores of men to be found in Hull, who, although they would not vote for any colour unless paid the usual fee, which they looked upon as their birthright; yet they could not be tempted by a very much larger sum to vote the other way. Those were the two distinctions that were drawn between those systems of bribery; and the gentlemen who informed me as to the state of the borough, the principal being Dr. Chalmers, assured me that was all that was done in the way of illegal expenditure at Hull elections; and that that illegal expenditure could not upon petition substantiate a case of bribery; and allow me to say, he stated distinctly there was no treating at all; that such a thing as opening a public house was unknown upon our side of the question; and still more so, that anything like sending about money in the streets was really unknown upon our side. He said if both parties contented themselves with this system of the payment of runners, that then the Liberal side would certainly return one, and probably two men; but that the great danger to our side was, that our opponents almost invariably,—although they began originally, as I am informed, with good intentions,—that they almost invariably on the day of polling sent money into the streets and bought such of the men, who had either promised us or who were among our runners, as could not resist the sight of ready money. I was always told if that was done my success was very uncertain, but if that was not done, my success was almost certain; and under those circumstances, feeling no doubt that the system was by no means as pure as it might be, but that it was certainly a good deal purer than nineteen out of twenty of the boroughs throughout the kingdom, I was obliged to take the system as I found it; and I became a candidate for Hull.

70,435. Did you understand that mainly these parties, unless employed as runners, would not vote at all?—Would not vote at all; but that there was a very large number of them who, although they would abstain from voting, would not be tempted by any sum to vote against the party they considered that they belonged to.

70,436. You think they are divided into a number of classes, and that there would be a class of persons who would expect to be employed by their own side, and unless so employed, would not vote at all?—Just so.

70,437. Also another class, who would vote according as they were employed?—Another class, who, if not employed by us, would take their employment from the other side, and vote for them; and probably a third class; but I must do the freemen of Hull the justice to say, as it was represented to me, I had reason to believe that that class was exceedingly small, who would take the usual payment as runners from one side, and be bought off by ready money to vote for the other. I have reason to believe that there has been such a class, but that it is a very small one; and it was always represented to me that it was a very small one. It was always said, "The promises of the runners may be depended upon, and there are a great many who, although they will not vote for you unless paid, will not take an infinitely larger sum of money to vote against you."

70,438. You had not heard at that time that the difference between a guinea and a pound would lose an election?—I have never heard it, and when I do hear it I shall not believe it.

70,439. You had not heard it at that time?—No.

70,440. Did you then agree to stand for the borough?—I then agreed to stand for the borough.

70,441. How long did you remain here upon that occasion?—I think not more than a week or ten days, but I really do not know. I think I may certainly say not more than a week or ten days.

70,442. After you received that letter containing the statement as to the 1,000*l.*, you wrote a letter accepting the offer?—Yes.

70,443. Your acceptance of the invitation was by writing?—I presume it was, but I am not clear about that; any acceptance that I should give previous to coming down here would, I have no doubt, be in writing.

70,444. Just see whether you remember writing this letter:—"Oxford and Cambridge Club, June, 6th 1839. I am much obliged by your very plain statement of the probable expenses at Hull. I see nothing in them at all objectionable, and am, indeed, surprised that a place so large as Hull, and with not a very first-rate reputation for the cheapness of its contests, should have made so near an approach to purity of election. I shall, therefore, write by to-day's post to Mr. Jalland, accepting the invitation with which I have been honoured, and I have great hope that the reformers of Hull, on a closer acquaintance with me, will see no cause to repent the confidence they have placed in one whose claims to their notice are as little known as my own. I believe there will be no dissolution before the autumn." Did those two letters pass before you came to Hull—Before I came to Hull.

70,445. And made those inquiries of which you speak?—Exactly; but of course it is right to say that such an acceptance as that was understood to depend, first of all upon the constituency agreeing to receive me, and next upon my finding when in the place that the state of the place was such as had been represented to me. If, for instance, I had been led to suppose that I should expend 2,000*l.* instead of 1,000*l.*, I should consider that not an acceptance.

70,446. You did not consider that an unconditional acceptance but an acceptance subject to what might transpire?—Yes.

James Clay, Esq.

2d August 1853.

70,447. It must have been as late as June, at all events, that you came to Hull?—Yes.

70,448. Have you told us all that took place upon the occasion of that visit to Hull relating to the expenses?—Yes? everything relating to that matter of expense.

70,449. It was within a very short time after that, I believe, that steps were taken for procuring a large number of freedoms to be taken up?—I have an entire recollection of all the circumstances connected with the taking up of those freedoms, but I could not give the exact dates. I know precisely under what circumstances the idea was first suggested, and how far it was intended to go. I can recollect everything in fact quite perfectly upon the subject with the exception of whether it was at that visit or at a subsequent one.

70,450. Perhaps it would be more convenient if the letter of the 8th of July, which fixes the date, was drawn to your attention?—Exactly.

70,451. When did you first hear of the name of Thistleton as a person very active in electioneering matters here?—Almost as soon as I came here.

70,452. This is a letter written from Mr. Galloway to Mr. Thistleton upon the subject, and it will probably refresh your memory:—"Tindall's Hotel, Westminster, July 8th, 1839. Dear Sir,—I have had a long conference this morning with Mr. Clay as to the propriety of taking up any further freedoms, and I left him with the determination that he would not take up any more, beyond those who had signed the paper, and whose freedoms were not taken up upon Thursday last. He will write to Mr. Jalland, giving his reasons for taking this step, and it would be well that you should call on Mr. J., and have some conversation with him on the subject; of course you will not proceed to take up the freedoms of the parties without you have the authority of Mr. Jalland for the purpose. On the other side I send you a list of the parties who have signed, and whose freedom is to be taken up, the money for which Mr. Bell will advance you, on producing this letter to him; indeed you had better leave the letter in his hands, after you have read it, and request he will see Mr. Jalland with it, so that the proper arrangements may be made before the next admission day.—I am, dear Sir, your most obedient servant, J. H. Galloway." And on the other side there is a list of names. Now that letter is read for the purpose of fixing your attention to the date?—I must have been in Hull before I received that letter, and have returned from Hull. I do not know the date, although by looking at my newspapers, of which I have a file I could readily have seen it. I do not know when I was in Hull, but it is clear that I had been in Hull between the first letter and that. The origin of taking up those freedoms was this: from the first time it was mentioned to me that it was proposed for me to come to Hull, it was also proposed that there should be a coalition between myself and Colonel Thompson. I saw Colonel Thompson myself before coming to Hull, at his house at Blackheath; and we spoke of a coalition between us being the natural result of there being two candidates upon the Liberal side; the one representing the Whig or Liberal party in the place, the other the Radical party, the difference, I believe, being merely in name, for the Hull Whig was an excellent Radical in any other part of the country. I do not know that any written compact was entered into, but it was always understood that the parties should be in coalition; but there was a strong feeling of jealousy on the part of Colonel Thompson's party, they being the Radical party, against the old party in the place; and during the time that I was in Hull I myself frequently heard a threat which I know was made to many of the leading gentlemen of the Whig party, to the effect that they were so far distrusted by the Radical party that a list of the Radical party was signed and in the possession of Mr. Larrard, of voters who pledged themselves not to vote until near the close of the poll, and then either to plump for Colonel Thompson or to divide their votes according as they should see that the leading gentlemen of the Whig party had divided their votes or had plumped for me. This threat, or anything like threat, or anything like distrust between the two parties was so evidently calculated to make any coalition a failure, and was so evidently certain to end in discomfiture to both sides, that I took a great deal of pains and made several propositions, with a view of having this list of names given up. I wrote a very long letter upon the subject to Colonel Thompson, which possibly may be in his possession now. I saw Mr. Larrard upon the subject, and various propositions were made to get rid of this difficulty. It was suggested that Mr. Jalland and a great many of the leading gentlemen of the Whig party should pledge themselves to go with this list of Colonel Thompson's party, that they should all go together and poll for their two men at eight o'clock in the morning. Every suggestion was made, as far as possible, to get rid of this difficulty, and it was always refused, for some reason or other. For some reason or other this party would never allow themselves to be known. They used to be called the party in Mr. Larrard's back parlour, and this threat, which would obviously have greatly damaged both Colonel Thompson's cause and my own, continued to be held out against the Whig party. Under these circumstances a suggestion was made, I believe by Mr. Thistleton, that a sufficient number of freedoms should be taken up to balance as far as possible this concealed party upon Colonel Thompson's side. The party was supposed to be—the number was exaggerated no doubt, but it was generally supposed by those who knew best, that there might be about forty so pledged, and a suggestion was made to take up about forty freedoms, with the understanding that the freedoms so taken up should not vote for me, or for me and Colonel Thompson, but that they should vote under the direction of Mr. Jalland; and it was then intended to take this list to Colonel Thompson and say, "Here are these men, let us get rid of this annoying threat; let us set off these men against yours, and have no longer any threat held out that a certain number of persons are to wait for the last, and either plump for you or split their votes, as they think proper at the time." Before I mention the result of that, I should say that as soon as permission was given to do this, it was a very foolish step, undoubtedly; it might have been foreseen, but as soon as permission was given to do this, those that had received that permission ran riot, and instead of taking up freedoms for forty, they took up freedoms for more than 100, and as far as my recollection serves me it may have been 200. I do not know, but I do recollect that the number taken up was far beyond that which was originally anticipated; and when I found that out, I had an interview with Mr. Galloway, and told him, "This has gone far beyond what I originally intended; it is altogether a very bad system, it must not go any further," and that I have no doubt is the cause of the letter you have just read, and which I have never heard before. That letter was written, no doubt, in consequence of an interview or correspondence with me, in which I said that the permission given for taking up the freedoms had been greatly abused, and had gone far beyond the original intention, and that it must be discontinued.

70,453. When you mentioned that they were to vote under the direction of Mr. Jalland, you meant that they were to vote for an orange candidate?—They were.

70,454. But not that they were to be at liberty to vote under Mr. Jalland's direction, if he thought proper, for the blue candidates?—That would be understood; although I never saw any writing upon the subject, I believe a list was signed by freemen whose freedoms were taken up, and the heading of that list was to the effect that the undersigned pledge themselves to vote at the ensuing election according to the direction of Mr. Jalland; that I have always understood, but I never saw the paper nor a draft of it.

70,455. Still did you not distinctly understand this, that they were to vote for an orange candidate?—There is not the least doubt if Mr. Jalland had exercised such a right, they would have a right to go over to the blues, but of course it would not be fair, legal, or equitable. The words might not strictly provide against his so doing, but of course there was an understanding that Mr. Jalland being a leader of the orange party would not be likely to direct them to vote for the other party; and the original object was to have a list of these men, in order to be set off against what we called the list in Mr. Larrard's back parlour.

70,456. The understanding was that they were to vote for such orange candidate or candidates as Mr. Jalland should direct them?—No doubt that was the understanding. I believe no communication was ever made to Colonel Thompson in that sense: "Here is a list that we will set off against your list; show us your list and let those gentlemen be pledged to vote for the two candidates, and these votes will also go for the two candidates." I believe that was never done, because as soon as Colonel Thompson heard of it he came to Hull and held a meeting, at which I was not present, and, without going into any details of that meeting, which I presume has really nothing to do with the present inquiry, the steps that he took caused a division in the party; I believe he stated his intention of retiring at the time, I am pretty certain he did; it caused a division in the party and the quarrel, which was not heard until the reconciliation of which Colonel Thompson spoke in his evidence.

70,457. I believe that ultimately you paid the expenses, about 100*l.*, which you paid to Mr. Galloway?—I do not know whether I had paid that to Mr. Galloway, or whether I had paid it to Mr. Thistleton.

70,458. You paid it to one or the other?—There is not the least question that I paid it to some one.

70,459. £100, or thereabouts?—My impression would have been that it was rather more than 100*l.*, it is mere guess; I should have said 120*l.* or 130*l.*, but it is merely a vague impression.

70,460. I do not exactly understand; in this letter of Mr. Galloway's, which is evidently written in consequence of a personal interview with you, it alludes to the objection to taking up any more freedoms except those which have been taken up; it appears the signing or not signing the paper is a material question as to whether any more freedoms should be taken up?—Most undoubtedly not; it had nothing whatever to do with it; if Mr. Galloway, in making use of that expression, made use of an expression that I had made use of, it would certainly only have this meaning, that as certain men had signed the paper and had therefore been promised that their freedoms should be taken up, that we could not retract the promises made; it could not mean anything more than that, and as far as I am aware, I have never paid for the taking up of any man's freedom since.

70,461. Since that time?—I know nothing of it; if any have been done, I know nothing of it; it is felt to be a very unadviseable step.

70,462. Of course this was thought to be kept very secret from the blues?—I am not aware of its being kept secret.

70,463. It was originally intended, we are told, that these freedoms should be taken up at the quarterly meeting of the corporation, but failed in consequence of the absence of one of the authorities of the corporation, and in the meantime the blues got wind of it, and they were awake and did the same?—It would not be at all from that idea that I gave such sanction as I did to the taking up of the freedoms; the freedoms, the taking up of which I sanctioned, were not taken up at all to increase our strength as against the blue party, but for the specific purpose of being able to have a list, with which we could deal with Colonel Thompson's party, and say, "Give us up the concealed names of yours, and here is a list of ours;" but for that being the object, if it had been simply proposed to me to increase our strength, I should have had nothing to do with it. The probability is when the permission was abused, and many more freedoms were taken up than were contemplated, that those who did so looked upon it as a move against the blue party, and would be careful to conceal it from the blue party.

70,464. Even although the immediate object of taking up this limited number of freedoms might be to ensure a coalition between you and Colonel Thompson, yet the ultimate object and effect was through the medium of that coalition to increase your strength?—No doubt, of course it would have that object; but it was so far from being a move against the blue party, that so far as the observation of any secrecy was concerned, if any gentleman of the blue party had talked to me about it, and had said he had heard a report of it, I should have said, as a matter of course, "Oh yes, there are thirty or forty freedoms have been taken up, and you had better do the same."

70,465. It appears to be this, that the immediate object was to create a coalition with Colonel Thompson, and the ultimate object of it was by means of that coalition to secure a majority?—Yes, that was the object, no doubt of it.

70,466. How soon did you hear of the result of the proceedings of the 11th of July, when these freedoms were taken up?—I do not know, but the probability is that they would let me know as soon as it was done.

70,467. Have you anything further material to state respecting the expenses previous to the dissolution in 1841?—As to what was represented to me to be about the expenses?

70,468. Yes?—No, nothing.

70,469. Did any circumstance induce you to come to a different opinion as to the expenses; you are now upon the sum of 1,000*l.*?—Yes.

70,470. How soon did you come to the conviction that the 1,000*l.* would be insufficient if ever?—I had no particular reason for coming to that conclusion, but when I was told that 1,000*l.* would be the sum, I felt quite clear that those estimates were always exceeded, and that it would probably be 1,500*l.*; I had no particular reason for believing it, but I felt clear that all expenses of that kind are always under-estimated, and I knew it would be more.

70,471. Do you remember receiving this letter of February, 1841:—"Mr. Jalland informed me the other day that there was some misunderstanding as to the probable cost, he thinks that each candidate should provide himself with 1,500*l.*" I dare say you remember receiving a letter of that sort?—No, I do not; but I have no doubt that I did receive it.

70,472. How soon did you come again to Hull? We pass over 1840, and come to 1841?—I came to Hull once only, as far as I recollect, between my first visit and the election.

70,473. How soon did you come to Hull? How long before the election was it?—I think a month before the election, certainly; more than that probably.

70,474. The election was on the 30th of June, I think?—I must have been in Hull at least a month.

70,475. At that time Colonel Thompson was in the field?—He had been in the field the whole of the time; Colonel Thompson was in the field before I was invited to come to Hull, because when I received the first intimation it was from Colonel Thompson.

70,476. During all that time am I correct in supposing that you had failed in coming to anything like a cordial good understanding between you?—No attempt had been made to do it; after the meeting which Colonel Thompson held in Hull, at which he expressed his dissatisfaction at the freedoms being taken up, he said that he should retire, and I think afterwards there was some proposal on his part, if they wanted a candidate, that he would send his son to stand for Hull; from that until pretty near the election there was a doubt whether Colonel Thompson would stand or not after that period.

70,476a. Is this the letter you before mentioned, from Mr. Galloway to you:—"Mr. Jalland informed me the other day that there was some misunderstanding with regard to the probable cost, he thinking that each candidate should provide himself with 1,500*l.*, and you not expecting to incur more expenses than 1,000*l.* I think you will find the latter sum to be my estimate, and it was made on the principle of paying nothing but legal expenses, and confining ourselves to such; I still think it would be sufficient, but on this subject I should like to have some conversation with you, and would willingly come up (if you think it necessary), giving my time, you paying my expenses." At that time your attention appears to have been drawn by Mr. Galloway to the circumstance that 1,000*l.* would be sufficient, upon the principle of purity only?—Yes.

70,477. Now turn your attention to your answer, dated the 1st of March, 1841:—"Your letter of the 21st ultimo is satisfactory enough, as regards the general prospects of the reform party in Hull. You have heard from Mr. Jalland that there has been some difference of opinion about expenses, Mr. Jalland supposing that 1,500*l.* was the sum named to me as necessary for the contest. I have sent to Mr. J. a copy of your letter to me on the subject, in which 700*l.* is given as about the amount of the contest, when confined to legal expenses, which I was also informed was the case with the Liberal side at Hull since the Reform Bill; I, however, reckoned on about 1,000*l.*, but certainly I am not prepared to go beyond this sum ; I am therefore in much doubt and difficulty how to act, and I wrote to Mr. Jalland that such was the case ; Mr. Jalland in his reply says, 'I have seen Mr. Galloway and requested him to procure the accounts of Hutt and Wood's election expenses, and ascertain what part of them might be saved, as it is generally believed there was a considerable sum uselessly spent, particularly in printing, and after deducting those items, to endeavour to procure from Stark an idea of the number of persons likely to be employed as runners, and for how long, and then you will come to a tolerable correct idea, &c. &c.' Now my dear Galloway, I beg you, as a favour, to bestow your very particular attention upon these directions, which are of the greatest importance, for my guidance, and when I am in possession of this information, accurately given, I shall fully know my position and my decision will be a work of five minutes. Take care therefore that Stark does not merely give you an off-hand guess of the number of runners, and the time for which they are to be employed, but that he uses his best means of information in giving you a clear and unexaggerated answer." Did you get any further information upon the subject of the number of runners or the probable expenses of printing and so on ?—I have no recollection at all whether I did or not ; I have no doubt I did. That is a letter that Mr. Galloway would naturally answer ; his attention was particularly called to that point to know about how many runners were expected to be employed, and for how many days employed, and I take for granted he would make some inquiries and write to me on the subject.

70,478. We will now proceed, if you please, to what took place upon your arrival in Hull. You continued to act independent of Colonel Thompson ?—Yes.

70,479. Thistleton was one of your electioneering agents upon that occasion ?—Yes.

70,480. He was a sort of general agent. Mr. Galloway was your law agent, was he not ?—Mr. Galloway was the only agent I acknowledged ; but it was known that Thistleton was acting for me.

70,481. You were cognizant of Thistleton's activity ?—Yes ; I knew that he was very active. I do not know whether I knew it at the time, or whether I have heard it accidentally since. I believe that I knew it at the time, and he was the person who managed and set down the runners.

70,482. You had very little doubt, at the time, that he was so engaged ?—I perfectly well knew that somebody was. There was no question about that.

70,483. Was not Thistleton generally employed in setting down the names of the runners ?—I believe so.

70,484. And Jeremiah Stark was also engaged ?—I have always connected Jeremiah Stark with the registration more than anything else.

70,485. On that particular occasion ?—I do not know whether he was or not ; he may have been.

70,486. Were you not aware that the object of the setting down was to secure their votes ?—No doubt. I have not the least question the object was to secure their votes, but at the same time I believed then, and I do now, that with regard to that election those who were set down were employed, and had employment of some kind or another.

70,487. Then, of course, you knew that a large number of voters were employed more than was necessary to carry on the ordinary business of the election ?—Well, I do not imagine that. That number, no doubt, was very much larger than it need be ; to some extent undoubtedly.

70,488. And you also knew that preference would be given to voters ; they would reject the non-voters so long as they could get voters ?—The object undoubtedly was to get voters. Many were employed who were not voters, because they were particularly qualified for the business which they had to do ; but the object undoubtedly of the runners was to find men who had votes.

70,489. A book was prepared in which the names of those parties were set down ?—I never saw one and never had one.

70,490. No, not a particular book ; but you know that some book was prepared ?—I do not know that even. There was no book that I know of.

70,491. Or some paper ?—I fancied Thistleton had lists of them, or some one had lists of them, I know ; but I was wholly in ignorance of the systematic work that took place in the room which you speak of, in Saville Street, at the last election.

70,492. If I understand you aright, you knew the general outline of the system, but you did not know the way in which the thing was carried out ?—Exactly so.

70,493. Now then I draw your attention to the letter of July 4th, which alludes to this class of people, because I want to found a question upon it, whether or no they were called at the time six-day or 30*s.* runners—sometimes one, and sometimes the other. It is this : " I am proceeding to get in the accounts as rapidly as possible, but you can have no conception of the way my office is besieged by the 30*s.* runners, and how to get rid of them I know not. I have put them off from time to time, saying that until the accounts could be made out it would be impossible to settle with them ; but they now press to have a day fixed, and I have reason to believe that if we could fix one, they would remain quiet until it arrived. The object, therefore, in addressing you at this time, is to inquire whether it will be convenient for you to advance cash for the runners, besides the ordinary expenses ; and, if so, whether you can fix a day for payment. Of course I mean to see you before any payments of consequence are made ; but if, in the meantime, anything could be arranged to satisfy the cravings of the free and independent electors, it would be a great relief to me. Will you please to drop me a line on the subject." The question I wish to found upon it is: whether you were aware, before your contest took place, that these people were called 30*s.* runners?—No. All that I am aware of about that is, that it has always been considered that six days was the maximum employment given to any one; but that any class of men expected it as of course—30*s.* for being set down, whether employed or not, is entirely new to me. In my belief, and I cannot refuse my belief from the evidence I have read which has been before this Commission, it is entirely new to me before the last election. I do not believe it existed before the last election.

James Clay, Esq.
2d August 1853.

70,494. Now I will call your attention to another letter?—Before you proceed with that, I wish to say that I had, in 1841, Mr. Galloway's account. I have never had an account, as far as I can recollect, of any other election. I had those accounts in 1841, and I have searched for them very anxiously, but I have been unable to find them. I have seen them within five or six years. I have looked in every conceivable place for those accounts. I mention it only for this reason, that I know there was a list among those accounts which would have shown that the system of 30*s.* runners did not exist at the time. I am entirely confident that the number of runners as presented to me, which, I think, are about something like 180 or 200,—I am quite certain that the majority of those runners were set down as having been employed for one or two days, and some for three, and some for four, but a very small number at the maximum of six.

70,495. All of them were paid six days?—Distinctly not.

70,496. Here is the bill, and I see there is a distinction: some were paid afterwards the difference to make up the six days?—I have never heard of that.

70,497. Every man was paid 30*s.*, distinguishing the number of days: some were employed one day, some more, and very many were paid six days?—May I ask, were they paid at the time, or some subsequent time?

70,498. The evidence is this: in one column there is a certain sum showing the actual number of those employed, and then the deficiency is made up afterwards?—That is the first word I have heard of it.

70,499. It is Thistleton's own book, on which the payments were made. My question is, whether you were aware that they were?—It is the first word I have ever heard of it.

70,500. Then that is the book referred to also?—Yes.

Mr. J. H. Galloway.

Mr. JOHN HEWITT GALLOWAY recalled, and examined.

70,501. What is the paper you produce?—It is a statement of the parties, made in 1847. It has only been discovered within the last day or two.

James Clay, Esq.

JAMES CLAY, Esq., recalled, and examined.

70,502. As I understand you, you were not aware that there were those 30*s.* runners?—Certainly not, as the tariff paid to voters; of course I mean whether employed or not. I was not at all aware of that.

70,503. The expression which I was anxious to come at is this: here is an expression in the letter addressed to you, "the 30*s.* runners," as if it was a familiar term?—I could only take that to mean those were the men among the runners who had full employment of six days.

70,504. Should you not have taken that to mean all the runners?—Certainly not; and the list furnished to me of the runners paid could not be a very few men who were to receive 30*s.* The majority were two or three days.

70,505. Here is a list, every one of which are to receive 30*s.* Look at that book (Book 13)?—I never saw that before.

70,506. Am I to understand you were not cognizant of that book?—Not at all. I never heard of it.

70,507. In that book every party named was to receive 30*s.*, and Thistleton, in his examination, has admitted that they did receive 30*s.*; what do you say is your memory as to the 30*s.* runners; take another thing also, that Mr. Galloway, in his account furnished to you, uses the word six-day runners, as applied to between 200 and 300 persons?—In what account?

70,508. In the account furnished by Mr. Galloway to you for 1841 (handing the paper 14), you will see there are upwards of 200?—I never conceived the runners, as a matter of course, were to be paid 30*s.* I believed that the maximum was 30*s.*

70,509. Here is 374*l.* for six-day runners. Did you ultimately become aware of the expression as obvious, because that is the account furnished to you by Mr. Galloway?—All I can say to that is, that I am entirely certain that the list of runners that Mr. Galloway furnished me with contains the name of each person, and the days for which they were to receive pay; that the majority of them were to receive pay only for two or three days, many of them for one day only, and a small number for six days.

70,510. My question is whether, at the time the election took place, you were aware of the meaning of the use of the words "six-day runners," and 30*s.* runners; obviously you became afterwards acquainted with it, because you hold in your hand the document furnished to yourself by Mr. Galloway?—Is this it, what you have shown to me?

70,511. You see endorsed upon that copy, "Final settlement; copy furnished to Mr. Clay"?—That is the general summary; it is not a particular list of the runners.

70,512. Endorsed upon that very paper I have shown you is Mr. Galloway's receipt for the money, and you observe, during the course of the election, that there were a great number of runners engaged?—No doubt there were a great number of committee rooms, and whenever I went to a committee room I found ten or twenty men upon the stairs, whom I took it for granted were messengers at the committee room.

70,513. We wish you to inform us about the system which prevailed on that occasion among your supporters of sham committees that are alluded to in several of the documents?—I never was consulted about the sham committee rooms. I never was informed that it was the practice to have sham committees; and although no doubt I must have paid accounts the heading of which might be "committee rooms," I certainly was not aware of what I find is the case now, that committee rooms were engaged no doubt without any intention of using them, and for the purpose of securing the vote of the owner.

70,514. You were not aware of that till after the election took place?—Yes, no doubt. I should say the committee rooms are in the account.

70,515. Were you not aware, until Mr. Galloway furnished you with his account, that over and above seventeen committee rooms, which you shared the expense of with Colonel Thompson, and which were necessary for each district, from seventy to eighty sham committee rooms were taken?—No, I was not aware of it at all, and I am very much surprized to hear it now, that there was so large a number.

70,516. Had you forgotten it till your attention was drawn to it by these accounts; till it was mentioned in the account?—I had quite forgotten it, and if anybody had asked me if there were any sham committee rooms in 1841, I should have said, to the best of my belief, there were not.

70,517. Have you got any materials to inform us of the different sums of money that you paid upon that occasion?—Yes. I have gone through the whole of my banker's books. I have my banker's books through the whole of that period of 1839; at least I left them with Mr. Galloway in case he should wish to have them, and also made an extract of all the cheques which appeared in them, which could be in any way applicable to the election expenses, and here is the list for 1841 (handing in a paper).

70,518. I see it is 1,832*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.*, that is the first item?—That alludes to the election of 1841.

70,519. Besides this, we are informed that there were contributions by Mr. Ford and Major Sykes?—Major Sykes and Mr. Ford. I am not aware of any other.

70,520. It was said there was a third gentleman, whose name is not given to us?—I have never heard of it. I think it is a thing I should have recollected, but I have never heard of it. The 100*l.* from Major Sykes was given through Dr. Chalmers, who was a most active electioneerer at that time, and representative of Major Sykes in a great measure.

70,521. Mr. Galloway has put the expenses of the election in your account at 2,400*l.*?—Yes; I went as carefully through my banker's books as I possibly could, and I am quite clear; I paid no one anything in ready money, and I am surprised myself to find that the expenses only come to that which they have put down, and had always believed to be one way or another, in round numbers; the expenses of the election might have been put at 2,500*l.* or 2,000*l.* the election; but where the rest is to come from, or whether it was ever spent, I do not know.

70,522. Do you remember being furnished by Mr. Galloway with an account like that which states independently of the general cost, that there were ninety other committee rooms at two guineas each (referring to the paper marked 16 F)?—I see that this among the committee rooms, includes the Victoria room, which could not have been engaged for a sham committee room.

70,523. First of all: here is a list of the legitimate rooms; be so good as to look at the last page and you will see ninety other committee rooms?—I have no doubt I must have received an account of that kind; I presume they gave it me; but I have no recollection of it.

70,524. I dare say you can have very little doubt about receiving the account which I have already seen, which contains a charge for committee rooms, 278*l.*, and clerks and runners, 675*l.* 10*s.*?—Yes; no doubt I have seen it; but I have no recollection of it. I did see in 1841 the accounts generally.

70,525. Mr. Galloway has stated, and I dare say you will concur in it, that he had an interview with you when he gave you a receipt upon the 26th of July, 1842?—Yes.

70,526. In what was supposed to be then the balance, and upon that occasion, does your memory enable you to state that you went through the account generally with him?—I went through it; but without any care at all.

70,527. Still it is endorsed in this; and therefore probably would be furnished with the account?—My only object in going through the account was this: I saw some evidence previously given, the accounts were subjected to a somewhat minute investigation in the presence of a friend of mine, and who was supposed to be a professional man;

James Clay, Esq.

2d August 1853.

the gentleman is well known to some of the honourable Commissioners, I think,—Mr. Davison, the barrister, upon the South Wales circuit. My object in leaving him there was not at all to scrutinise the accounts simply, but that I should have a witness to them; because I know it is always said, after the election is over, that a candidate has not paid his expenses. I know it is very commonly said, and therefore I wished Mr. Davison to be present as a witness to the account; and I said, "Tell me how much I am to pay and let me pay all;" and I chose Mr. Davison, as a gentleman whose memory is so notoriously of unusual accuracy, that I consulted his memory the other day, and that agreed with mine; that he was present, and that the account was subjected to no examination at all. I asked the question: "Is this to be paid in full, or is any deduction to be made; because I leave myself in the hands of my agents?" Mr. Davison was present; and his recollection, which is well known to some of the honourable Commissioners, agrees with my own upon the subject.

70,528. When you came to the settlement of July, when it was said that you paid Mr. Galloway, you then probably were under the impression that you had cleared off all the accounts?—At this particular interview, decidedly one of my objects was to have Mr. Davison present, that he should be a witness to my being told that it was a receipt in full for everything, and that I was to be called on for nothing more. The receipt which I got at that time is one of the very few documents which I fortunately have, for I have always destroyed everything.

70,529. Produce it, if you please, and see if it corresponds with Mr. Galloway's recollection of what took place on the 26th of July?—I have that receipts somewhere.

70,530. It is 1,031*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*?—Here is the receipt, endorsed at the back you will find the different payments that were made besides, (the receipt was handed in).

70,531. This receipt is: "July 26th, 1842. Received of James Clay, Esquire, by the payments stated at the back hereof, the sum of 1,591*l.* 3*s.*, being the total amount of the election account, as allowed on this and the former settlement in July 1841,—J. H. Galloway." And on the back is endorsed: "Cash 400*l.*; cheque 1,031*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*; ditto 159*l.* 11*s.* 9*d.*; total 1,591*l.* 3*s.*" After that, further claims were continued to be made on you, which caused a correspondence between you and Mr. Galloway: first, there is a letter of the 19th of September, 1841?—I never understood them to be further claims. What I have heard was, that one of the persons entrusted with the payment of the money abused his trust, and that there were a good number of the accounts that were not paid; that person's name was Anderson. I have always been informed, and Mr. Galloway himself admitted, that was the case; that Mr. Anderson had improperly applied some portion of the money, and that bills which I had paid remained to be paid over again.

70,532. This is the letter of the 19th of September, 1841:—"I am very sorry that there should be any claimants to be paid as runners, who were not down on the lists you gave me from Stark and Thistleton; those lists alone could give a claim, and the paying any others would open the door to any who chose to knock. I must therefore at once refuse any claim beyond those I have already satisfied. I forget all about the sheet lists, further than that I agreed to give and gave 50*l.* towards them, when I first visited Hull, and Colonel Thompson promised to give 50*l.* also. Has he paid 50*l.*? This charge I think he would pay, as he could not get out of it with any pretence of honesty." That is the book which Stark produced (handing a small black cover book to the witness, marked No. 15), and the book I showed you just now is the book that Thistleton's produced. Bearing in mind your own letter, that you allude to Stark and Thistleton lists, I should like you to refresh your memory and to tell us how soon you became aware of those two books?—I have never seen that list. I dare say I have had an account of it from Mr. Galloway. I have never seen the book itself, nor the other.

70,533. That is the book produced by Thistleton and this by Stark?—I was not speaking of the books; they were never sent to me.

70,534. I presume you must have been aware of the gross contents of them?—No doubt; I presume they came in in Mr. Galloway's account; that was the great item.

70,535. Do you believe in writing that letter you were speaking of the accounts, the description given of them, and not from the books themselves?—Yes; not from the books themselves.

70,536. Had there been a good deal of discussion between you and Colonel Thompson, or the friends of each of you, as to Colonel Thompson's refusing to contribute?—I do not know that there was any considerable discussion.

70,537. Some discussion?—Yes; some discussion. I think Alderman Jones was his proposer, as far as I recollect; and I think he wrote to me to state his opinion, that he should contribute something, as having been the chairman of his committee. I think Mr. Jalland wrote.

70,538. Then, this further was written: "I am greatly surprised that any party at Hull should have been instrumental in withholding from your hands (its proper destination) the second 100*l.*, which you say Major Sykes has been good enough to contribute; this seems extraordinary, after my having spent so large a sum beyond my agreement. I shall be glad to have our remaining account settled with all convenient speed." Do you remember its being mentioned that Major Sykes had contributed a second 100*l.*?—I think I have some recollection now; that brings it to my mind. I have some recollection of a second

100*l.*, that was said should go to the expenses of the registration. I have some sort of notion; but whether he ever did contribute or not, I do not know.

70,539. There was another letter written I believe by you to Mr. Galloway, of the 29th of January, 1842?—If there should be anything in these letters alluding to any personal difference between Colonel Thompson and myself, as to the expenses, perhaps you will direct Mr. Galloway not to read them. It is a long time since, and I do not wish to rake up any old quarrels at all; it is very painful to me to have it recalled.

70,540. I merely want the fact, that there was some difference between you, which ended by your paying a larger sum than Colonel Thompson?—No doubt, it ended by my paying for the runners.

70,541. I will put the question generally: were there not communications, without going through the correspondence that took place between you and Colonel Thompson; the result of which was, that you had to pay a much larger sum than Colonel Thompson?—No doubt. I wrote once myself, if not twice, on the subject.

70,542. You have read that letter handed to you?—Yes.

70,543. Were you of opinion at that time that Colonel Thompson not paying the same, was injurious to the orange cause?—At the time of the election of 1841, or future elections?

73,544. For the future elections, it was injurious to the orange cause generally?—I do not know that that was injurious to the orange cause, there being any difference of opinion. There is no doubt differences did exist at that time between the two sections of the orange party. I do not think the fact of his refusing to bear any portion of a particular expense would influence it, because it would not become known. I might have my own private feeling as to the standing under the circumstances.

70,545. I will not pursue it further, that is quite a sufficient explanation. I dare say you will remember that demands were continued to be made upon you, notwithstanding the payments you had made. After the date mentioned there, the 25th of June 1842, demands still continued to pour in on you?—Yes.

70,546. That you find from a letter from Mr. Galloway to you?—I would not undertake to say, when I leave this court to walk home to the mayor's house, that a demand may not be made upon me; it is always the case. There are always accounts of this kind, which never seem to be closed. I have always pursued the same system with regard to them. I have requested some of the leading gentlemen of the party to look into those claims and to report to me, and if there were any of the claims, fair claims, that I would pay them.

70,547. Now I will read this letter to you of the 30th of June 1846: "At Mr. Jalland's request I write to you respecting some outstanding debts with reference to the last election; but I am not aware what further information I can give than I rendered to you on the settlement. The enclosed account contains the claims rejected, except Thistleton's and Mr. Lovitt's, which were afterwards paid. You will recollect why the innkeepers' accounts were not paid, viz., that the debts were contracted contrary to express written instructions sent to each district chairman; perhaps in some of the accounts there may be items that ought to be allowed; for instance, the eating and drinking of the clerks employed on the day of election; but at the same time I advised you to reject the accounts. I was not aware of any such items, and even now I don't know that it is so, except upon representation, as I have not the particulars of the accounts. The other items in the account were rejected, as you will remember, because the parties were not authorized to make the advances in question, and your notion was, in which I concurred, that if you paid one you must pay all. As for Grant's claim, he says he was authorized by you to spend the money the night previous to the election; how this may be, whether the money was really spent, is not for me to say. You will remember that Thistleton alone was empowered to engage the men, and limited in point of number; and his engagements, as returned to me, were duly entered and paid subsequently; nay, I may say during the payment it was discovered that there were a great number of claimants beyond those given in by Thistleton, who said they were entitled, because their names had been put down by this body, and that these claims still remain unsettled; and many others who say they were put down by Thistleton though not returned, all returned by Thistleton were paid. Upon inquiry, I found that the gentlemen employed in canvassing had promised to place down the names of several as 30*s.* men; but this they did not do; indeed, they had no authority to make the promise; but having promised, it has led to much dissatisfaction, which it may be very difficult to set right; there is another class who, having got more than six days' pay, fancy they are entitled to other six days, as a sort of bonus; this class however I disregard. In some few instances I have actually paid out of my own pocket, being satisfied that Thistleton had omitted the names." Does not that bring to your mind the authority which Mr. Thistleton had?—I recollect that letter, now that I hear it, very well, and I never doubted that Thistleton had authority to engage runners.

70,548. And to engage those extra sham committee rooms?—I have no doubt he had that authority. I had no knowledge of his having that authority at the time. I have heard and known but very little of those sham committee rooms; it is a thing that has quite gone out of my head. The runners are the things that I recollect. That letter refers to claims of different classes, and a large class of them I believed at the time to be, and I have always believed them to be, claims for the payment of accounts which I had settled, but the money had not reached the parties.

70,549. Observing throughout the whole of the correspondence that the runners are invariably called 30*s.* runners, and that no other term is ever used, does it not satisfy you that all the persons were to be paid 30*s.*, however small their services?—From my experience of Hull, I do not know the term 30*s.* runner, as a common term.

70,550. I draw your attention to this, that it is a term always used by Mr. Galloway in writing to you?—So it appears.

70,551. In all his letters he uses it as if it were a term perfectly well known?—I see he twice mentions it.

70,552. It is all throughout the correspondence; does that bring to your mind that they were all to have 30*s.* apiece?—I do not believe they had 30*s.* as a rule. I make no doubt that they had not all of them as a rule 30*s.*; and as the gentleman is here who paid them, he ought to know whether he paid them 30*s.* or not.

70,553. They were all paid that?—Then all I can say is, that the money did not come from me. I undoubtedly had a test.

70,554. You had the receipt for them?—All I can say is, that I had a test in which the majority of the runners were not put down for six days, and I paid according to that test

70,555. I wish to call your attention to this: all the letters addressed by Mr. Galloway to you call them 30*s.* runners?—He does so in two letters.

70,556. And in others he calls them six-day runners; and if you observe, dividing the number by 30*s.*, it gives the exact number?—It would do that if you did it by five, ten, fifteen, twenty, twenty-five, or thirty; they are all divisible. The same sum is equally divisible by 5*s.*, 15*s.*, or 25*s.* as it is by 30*s.*

70,557. They are all called 30*s.* or six-day runners?—It is five times six.

70,558. I think perhaps that you must be under the misapprehension created by Stark's book. It does draw the distinction between six-day runners and others?—I never saw Stark's book.

70,559. The difference is the same in the account. There is a list of the runners employed at various times who were not called six-day runners?—It is very likely that the list sent to me was a copy of this book, that is very likely.

70,560. Besides that, another list is produced, and here you find a correspondence with that list, of Stark's list, as the general list of runners to be found in that book, and it is entered according to Mr. Galloway's account of it, every one of whom appears to have 30*s.*?—It may be so.

70,561. The two things are kept totally distinct?—It may be so, but it has never been my idea. With regard to the accounts generally, I have really done nothing but pay them. I have really never looked over the accounts at all. I never look through my tailor's bill, much less an election account.

70,562. Is that the solution of the whole difficulty?—The sole thing that I recollect is the test of which I speak, and which very probably is copied from that list of Stark's. It is a very likely thing.

70,563. That makes that book 300*l.* 15*s.*, do you see it?—Yes.

70,564. It exactly corresponds?—This is Stark's book, 300*l.* 15*s.*

70,565. Those are for various periods; now look at that list (handing the list No. 14 to the witness), and compare it with Stark's book?—I have no doubt it is so. Then there is a subsequent sum, called six-day runners, and another called runners, not included.

70,566. That black book is Stark's book, and the other is Thistleton's, which are all 30*s.* runners, whether they did one day's work or more?—Yes.

70,567. Notwithstanding all your anxiety, did you find continually up to the election of 1847 that demands were being made against you?—I think very few demands were made upon me.

70,568. More or less?—There were very few upon me. I know there were demands made upon Mr. Galloway and others.

70,569. I meant ultimately upon you; I was looking at it in that way?—Yes.

70,570. Do you remember the period when the dissolution took place in 1847?—Yes. Before quitting the election of 1841, you will perhaps allow me to state that the representation made to me as to our having nothing to do with anything contrary to law except the engagement of the runners was, as far as I know, strictly carried out. That on the polling day I was ahead early in the morning, that I was passed by my opponents about twelve o'clock, and then some of the principal gentlemen of my committee room told me that the promises made to me were being bought off in the streets, and that I should lose my election unless I authorised them to send out 300*l.* to be spent in the same way. They told me if they did that they would guarantee my success. It is fair to say that the gentlemen who told me said, "We do not recommend it, but we think it our duty to tell you the election will be lost if you do not do it;" and I said, "It must be lost. I will not sanction a sixpence to be spent in that way," and not a sixpence with my sanction was so spent.

70,571. I understand the first proposal to you as to the expense was, that you were to be at the expense of 700*l.*?—750*l.*

70,572. And that gradually rose before you came to Hull to the sum of 1,500*l.*?—Yes

70,573. Was it not in consequence of that difference that you asked for an explanation, and you were given the account of these runners and the system of the runners?—No; the first thing that I did when I came to Hull was, to inquire in what way the money was spent, because I knew that 750*l.* or 1,000*l.* must be spent for some purpose, and the first thing I did was to inquire how it was spent. Representations were made to me as I have represented to the Commissioners, and nothing came to my mind until the proceedings in the committee when Mr. Oliver and Lord Goderich spoke of coming forward; and then I made to them the same representations that were made to me.

70,574. Before the Reform Bill there was a system of paying head money at so much a vote?—Yes.

70,575. Did you understand, from the long explanation they gave you of the messengers and runners, that they were only another way of arriving at the same result?—Only another, and a somewhat cheaper way. The difference was, it was a cheaper way, as much money was not required; and also it was done in a way which, according to their notions, would not leave it possible to unseat the candidates for bribery. The object was the same. It was found that without paying in meal and malt the freemen would not vote.

70,576. The object was to secure the votes of persons requiring the money?—No doubt.

70,577. And the means taken were in order to keep as it were supposed within the strict letter of the law?—Yes.

70,578. To save appearances with the law, but to influence the vote of the party?—No question about it.

70,579. When you came to Hull and were asked to expend 1,500*l.*, you knew it was to be expended in 1841 in carrying out such a system?—No doubt a considerable part of it in the engagement of runners.

70,580. That is to say that an understanding was to be come to with the voter, that he should be employed and paid, on condition that he voted for your party?—It was so understood. It was an accepted understanding in the town.

70,581. Was it not that result that he should be employed and paid, and on condition of his being so employed and paid he should give his vote?—No doubt it was the understanding when a man set his name down as a runner, whether employed, as I believed he was, or not employed, as it appears at the last election they were very frequently not. I do not suppose the question was ever asked, "Will you vote for so and so if we employ you?" the mere fact was understood in the town. It was the custom of the town.

70,582. I want you to state the full import of the question. You knew when you came to Hull, and were asked to expend 1,500*l.* of your money, that it was to be expended in carrying out that system?—Just so. A part of it at least; by no means so large a part as it turned out to be.

70,583. You did not anticipate that 690*l.* would be paid in that way?—Certainly not. I understood they had engaged probably 120 or 150 runners.

70,584. Now, as to the payments for these freemen, did you understand you were to pay the expenses of the men's freedom, and they were to vote according to the directions of Mr. Jalland?—No doubt; but the idea was only to have about forty. Permission was given for the engagement of about forty for a particular purpose.

70,585. I think you said at that time you thought it objectionable?—No doubt.

70,586. On what ground?—Because it is indirectly influencing the vote. It is also objectionable as a matter of policy. It is increasing a bad class of voters.

70,587. Then you acceded to it as far as it would carry out your purpose, and objected to it beyond that?—Just so; and as far as it was carried it was greatly beyond the sanction that was given to it.

70,588. That was what was done directly with regard to the then coming election?—Yes.

70,589. You were securing the votes of certain parties by paying the amount of their freedom?—Yes.

70,590. You mentioned what appears almost to be obvious in this case, that when a man comes to have his name set down, there is no question ever asked?—No doubt.

70,591. On the one side or the other?—I never saw a man set down, and I never gave an order for a man to be set down; those details are always kept from the candidates. It is perfectly notorious, when a man goes to a room to be set down, he receives employment either imaginary or colourably, and it is understood, more or less, that he votes for the candidate who so pays him.

70,592. In 1847 your payments appear to be 2,015*l.*?—That is the sum here. I do not know the sum, but I took out every payment from the banker's book.

70,593. We may take it that it is the sum you mentioned here, 2,015*l.*?—Yes.

70,594. When you became a candidate for the election again in 1847, was there an understanding that the election was to be carried by the same means as you desired it should be done in 1841?—My wish was that a much more severe check should be exercised over the whole of the expenditure of that election. It was for that reason that I was very unwilling to form any coalition; and my intention was, if I had stood myself, to have asked some gentleman, Mr. Carrick or some one of the kind, to look into those matters. I had a strong feeling that way, having served the town for a good many years.

James Clay, Esq.

2d August 1853.

70,595. We are speaking of 1847?—In 1847 I came down precisely with the same idea as I did in 1841, but with a very strong hope that it was to be an uncontested election. Less was thought about expense then, because there was a very strong hope thst it was to be an uncontested election. It ought to have been one. That was the feeling of most of the gentlemen on both sides, that it should be an uncontested election.

70,596. Did it not come upon you by surprise?—The coming forward of Mr. Brown some three or four days before the election came upon me by surprise.

70,597. And when the contest became inevitable you meant to carry the election in the same way as you had carried it in 1841?—I have no recollection that anything was said to me at all about expense. I had a strong feeling about Mr. Brown's coming forward, and I should have been ready to do a great deal more from Mr. Brown's coming forward than I intended. My own principles would have been a good deal more lax, because I thought I ought not to have been opposed by him; and when I understood he came forward to spend a large sum of money, I was determined that he should not beat me.

70,598. You understood that you would have to pay money for the same system as before?—I presume the system was exactly the same, and I have no doubt it was the same. I should fancy there were not as many runners employed, but I really do not know.

70,599. The system was the same?—The system was the same.

70,600. After the election was over, in the course of the year 1847; I see it is all in 1847, except a payment of 100*l.*; you paid all that you thought due from you at that time?—Yes. I should say that in 1847 I never had anything that was called a final settlement. It will be observed that the whole of these sums are in small sums. Mr. Galloway wrote to me, "Pay it by degrees." I think he was not very well at the time.

70,601. After having paid a considerable sum of money, in order to put an end to all further claims, you desired that Jalland and Mr. Galloway should issue a public advertisement calling upon all persons who had claims on you to come in and they would be paid. Do you remember authorising Mr. Jalland and Mr. Galloway to do that?—No, I do not; but it was a very good way to have acted.

70,602. They have stated they did so by your authority?—I have no doubt it is so, but I have no recollection of giving any express authority to do that.

70,603. Was it your desire that everything should be paid?—At the close of an election my desire is to pay everything as fast as possible, and forget all about it.

70,604. Mr. Jalland and Mr. Galloway did, as they state, issue a public advertisement, calling on everybody who had claims to come in; and as they both of them said they paid everybody who had a shadow of a claim, would that be consistent with your desire on the subject?—No doubt.

70,605. However, when you came down here in 1852, did you suddenly hear of a fresh class of claims made upon you in respect of 1847?—That was in 1852; when I began to canvass, I first heard of it. I was continually stopped in the streets by people who had a claim upon me of some kind or other, but they never mentioned what their claim was, or that it was a claim as a runner, which it appears to have been. I was continually stopped and told I was owing this man and that. A canvass in Hull is an exceedingly difficult thing, and I always told these men, "Very well, if there are any claims upon me, I shall ask some one to look into them, and if they appear to be proper claims, they shall be paid." I presume you are now coming to the back payments made in 1852?

70,606. Yes?—I saw that Mr. Carrick, in his evidence, stated he made these payments entirely on his own authority, and quite out of his own head, without any knowledge or sanction from me. My recollection differs from his. My recollection is that Mr. Carrick told me that there were some claims, and I am perfectly confident my recollection is right. Mr. Carrick told me there were claims upon me, not stating what they were; and it was my belief they were the ordinary claims, sometimes for broken windows, and those things. One poor old lady in the town always has a claim for a husband who breaks his leg, and I presume he breaks it at every election. My idea is, the claims are of that nature, and not for runners. Mr. Carrick spoke to me about those claims, and asked me what should be done about them; he thought it would better to have them paid. I told him "First of all you must consult the lawyers, as to whether it is a legal thing to do; they must be consulted; if you will undertake to look into the claims, and see if they be proper, I have no objection to pay them; but this is to be understood, that you do not pay them out of the common fund, available for us both, Lord Goderich and myself, because then it is nonsense to tell me that they are claims upon me; it is money spent in the interests of the election. If there are any bonâ fide claims upon me, look into them, and tell me if they are so, and I will pay them myself." He did do so, and some two or three days afterwards he told me that "Every soul is coming with a claim to be paid as runners; they are coming in in immense numbers, and we do not know what to do with them." I said "If that be the case, the thing must be closed at once; you cannot open the door to anything of that kind; close these payments, and have nothing to do with it till after the election," and he told me that he had already done it.

70,607. I presume these payments were considered in the view of securing their votes against the coming election?—That is a question that really can hardly be answered, yes or no. If those claims were made upon me, and I had no idea whatever of coming to Hull again, I should have acted in precisely the same way. If claims are made upon me to-morrow, and any circumstances should render it wholly impossible for me to stand again for Hull, I shall pursue the same course. I shall ask some of the gentlemen likely to be best acquainted with it to look into those claims, and see what I am to pay. At the same time, there is no doubt, when these gentlemen proposed to me the making the payments at that particular moment, and not waiting till after the election, they thought that was the most advisable course. I presume the man to have a fair claim upon me, and to apply for payment if he has not been paid; and if he should not be paid, of course he will be naturally indisposed towards you at the next election; but as to their being payments made that would not have been made if the election was not pending such is not the case.

70,608. That is the point of view I wish you to consider. The question is this: Whether, bearing in mind the time chosen for making the payments, the demand, and the immediate payment, and the selection of no better document to ascertain the validity of the claim than the poll book to see how they voted before, it was not for their vote?—As far as I was concerned, I had no idea that the claims were of that nature.

70,609. The payment of a valid debt at a particular moment, an actual valid debt, as for instance a bill for printing, which may be made at a particular time, would not that influence a person's vote?—No doubt about it.

70,610. Even supposing them to be perfectly valid claims, does not the time chosen for making the demand, and the immediate determination to satisfy the demand, influence the vote?—I think the time chosen to satisfy the demand is an inaccurate expression. We do not choose the time further than this, that the claims are paid when they are made. It always happens at elections, whenever there are claims, presuming them to be perfectly just claims—putting the runners out of the question,—the candidate hears little or nothing of them until he comes again; it may not be for an election, but until he comes into the place. When he is here, and these claims can be brought personally forward at once to him, the claims are made, and under such circumstances were these claims made; therefore it was not that we chose the time for making the payment, but that the claims being then made they were paid.

70,611. And with less care and attention to ascertain the validity of the claims, than would be paid to them at other times?—That is very probable. I had not the doing of it myself; and if I had had the time to look into these matters myself, as far as I do give any attention to these matters, I should have given as much at one time as at another.

70,612. You did not furnish Mr. Carrick with any materials for investigating the claims?—I had no materials at all. My notion was by no means that these were claims of unpaid runners. I believed them to be claims of this kind: that when bills are brought in at an election it is a very common thing to take off a per-centage, and the person to be paid receives the payment minus the per-centage, and says nothing about it until the next time that the candidate comes near the place. The next time that the candidate comes near the place, he is told. "There was ten per cent. taken off my bill. I do not think it was properly taken off. My bill was a very proper bill, and not an election bill, and I do not think it should have been taken off." They are claims of that kind.

70,613. Bearing in mind that after the election of 1847 a public announcement was made, that everybody might come in and make his demand, and that Mr. Jalland stated that he had paid everybody, to use his own expression—"I paid everybody that had the shadow of a claim?"—I did not hear Mr. Jalland's evidence—but my impression is, that Mr. Jalland must have been alluding, not to the bills of 8147, but to certain claims.

70,614. I will read you his evidence. He is asked, "In investigating those claims did "you endeavour to pay everybody who had anything approaching a fair claim; and he "answers Yes; everybody, who we thought had at all a shadow of a claim"?—It is very easily ascertained. My belief is that evidence would apply to claims in 1841 which Mr. Jalland and some other gentleman with him investigated in 1847, exactly as they did in 1852 investigate the accounts of 1847. They were back claims for 1841, and Mr. Jalland, at my request, and some other gentlemen, one or two with him, formed a committee for the investigation of these claims, and they sent me word what was the amounts of money to be paid for them, as there were some they recognized. It may have been a couple of hundred pounds, or it may have been one; I forget which; whatever they told me I paid at the time. I do not know that Mr. Jalland had anything to do with the accounts of 1847. He may have had.

70,615. Still what we want to know is this: Whether you did not believe that you had paid before you came to Hull everybody who, according to Mr. Jalland's statement, had a fair claim upon you?—I should not have considered it surprising that there might be some few and small claims unsatisfied. Probably many may not have received them.

70,616. Still I ask you, did you furnish Mr. Carrick with any materials whatever, or were there any materials for investigating the validity of these claims?—It is very possible that there might be some materials.

70,617. What materials?—In 1841, there were a variety of claims unsatisfied; no doubt the parties had not been paid whom I had intended should be paid; and after the election of 1847 a committee sat, as I have mentioned just now, to look into these claims; they passed some of them, and they refused others. The parties who were refused did not consider that that ought to be a final settlement; and my belief was, and is, that many of these persons came forward again, and they had documents in their possesssion, bills, or something of that kind, to substantiate their claims.

70,618. In 1852, did not Mr. Carrick tell you, that the claims being made, it was advisable to pay them?—I think he more consulted me than gave me an opinion upon it. If he gave me an opinion, it was not a strong one.

70,619. What was your opinion; that it was advisable to pay the claims that were made?—I myself would have preferred, paying them as I did in 1847, after the election was over. I would have preferred having those persons told, "Mr. So-and-so,—some "gentleman in whom they would have confidence—will look into these claims after the "election is over, when there is more time to do it."

70,620. The claims had slept from 1847 to 1852; but when the election was approaching, and the parties made their claim, at that particular moment, had you any doubt but that they were making the claim as a species of threat that if you did not pay them their claims they would go and vote against you?—All the claims had not slept from 1847 to 1852.

70,621. But those claims which had?—Of those claims I know nothing. All claims had not slept, because I not unfrequently received letters, and I receive them at all times, from some persons who consider themselves aggrieved in matters of payment.

70,622. When you agreed that Mr. Carrick should pay them, was it not with reference to the coming election?—To a certain degree; if their claims had not been attended to no doubt they would have been indisposed to vote; but at the same time, if it had been at any other period of the year than when an election was coming off in Hull, say that I should have done exactly the same thing.

70,623. Will you listen to what Mr. Carrick says he did to carry out your views. "Did you not also understand, in point of fact, that these were persons who had no real "claim, but whom it was considered advisable to conciliate?—I perfectly understood the "men had done no work for it."—If I understood that, I should have said they must not be paid.

70,624. Did you give Mr. Carrick to understand that? This is what is said:—"It was "done as a mode of conciliation?—It was done as a bonus; in fact I thought if they were "not paid it would be detrimental to Mr. Clay's success at the coming election. I have no "hesitation in saying that was my course in paying them." Was that carrying out your instructions?—Did not Mr. Carrick say—I so read his evidence in the newspapers—that he had no communication with me on the subject.

70,625. Still I want to know whether Mr. Carrick in doing so fulfilled your wishes?—If Mr. Carrick had entirely forgotten the communication;—but it certainly strengthens my recollection, that the communication I had with him was very short and very hurried; I might have spoken for half a minute or a minute to him about it; all that I said about it to him is this: If the lawyers are consulted, and say that it is a legal thing to do, it may be done; and if the claims are fair claims, pay them; but take care that it is not paid from the joint fund, which would make it evident that it was for the purposes of the election. That was all that passed between him and me.

70,626. Still I want to know whether you can say this, that you made any communication to Mr. Carrick. Having heard read the evidence which was given by Mr. Carrick, I want to know whether you can undertake to say that it was in disobedience to your wishes?—I certainly gave him no instructions beyond this: If they are fair claims, why pay them. If Mr. Carrick had told me: They are claims for runners, and they have no other claim at all, I should have said, on no account pay them. I will not pay them a sixpence.

70,627. That is not an answer to my question. Mr. Carrick gave us the statement which he did, supposing himself to be carrying out your views. My question is this: Having heard read those two questions and answers, whether you can say you made any communication to Mr. Carrick that will now lead you to say this, that, having heard that read, he disobeyed your instructions?—Disobeyed instructions involves instructions being given much more precise than those I gave; but undoubtedly Mr. Carrick in paying these men went beyond my instructions. If I had known it was men that asked for two days' pay as runners, I should have said, undoubtedly, do not pay them at all. I should want no conjuror to tell me whether that was a legal transaction or not, because it was undoubtedly illegal.

70,628. It has been stated that the amount you contributed towards the election was 2,500*l.*; the election of 1852. How much do you say it was?—In 1852, 1,700*l.* and odd, and some small sum, I think of, 70*l.*, which had nothing to do with Lord Goderich's account and my own, for those back claims. I did not take the trouble of going through my banker's book for that, because I knew that Mr. Carrick had given an account of the cheques for me.

70,629. Have you seen the evidence given by Mr. Carrick?—I have seen generally most of the evidence in the papers, but it is apparently not always correctly given.

70,630. On that occasion you paid 1,000*l.* less than Lord Goderich?—Yes.

70,631. That was under an agreement that has been shown to us, which was agreed to ultimately, after some discussion. Do you recollect there was such an agreement?—Yes; there was very little discussion about it.

70,632. And it resulted in the agreement for you to pay 1000*l.* less than Lord Goderich?—Yes.

70,633. Do you remember at the time, before Lord Goderich's name was mentioned, that other candidates had discussed with you the expediency of coming as a second orange candidate?—No one from Hull has ever done so, as far as I recollect.

70,634. Gentlemen in London; Mr. Oliveria and Mr. Prescott, and other gentlemen?—Whether I heard of Lord Goderich's intention or Mr. Oliveria's first I cannot say exactly; they were within a very short time of one another.

70,635. Did you hear why Mr. Prescott declined to come forward?—I think the great probability was the expense. It may not have been that; but the mode in which the money was to be expended. I did not hear that it was so, but I take it for granted. It was the only reasonable cause for his refusal.

70,636. You had an interview too with Mr. Burgess in London?—The first thing I heard of Lord Goderich's coming forward was through Mr. Burgess, who called on me. I had some acquaintance with him and his family, and he called on me, and said that Lord Goderich was thinking of this. That he had not the least intention of interfering with my chance of success, but he should be obliged to me to give him my opinion and advice upon the subject. I told him, as I told Mr. Oliveria, that it was a subject that I could not give advice to anybody upon, that it was the business of the constituency to select a candidate, and the business of the candidate to take his chance; that I would give to both of them; or to any gentleman who applied to me with that view, any information I possibly could as to the state of the constituency, and as to the probable chance of success; but that I would give advice to no one; and I adhered to that resolution. I gave to both of them every information that I could. I made to them the representation which was made originally to me by Dr. Chalmers as to the system of the runners. I gave them copies of certain analyses that were forwarded to me as to the state of the register. I gave them all the information I could; but I gave no advice of any kind or sort, or exercised the slightest influence, directly or indirectly, to procure one or the other of them to be a candidate.

70,637. Did you not rather tend to throw some damp on their chance of success?—I was less sanguine than other people of success.

70,638. In particular, were you not furnished with an analysis which showed a large number of doubtful voters; 750?—I should have said about 600, from my recollection of it. It may have been 750. My unfavourable opinion was not formed upon any analysis, because all those that were sent to me showed a considerable majority, and more than a reasonable chance of success to a second candidate. I always distrusted calculations of that kind. I judge a great deal more from my own experience; but I now think I was wrong in my notion. I believed then the chance of returning two candidates was not a very good one. I thought it was quite a chance whether we could return two or not. I should, for obvious reasons, have preferred no contest at all; it would have been a matter of less expense to me. I should have preferred standing by myself, instead of a coalition with anybody, because I specially dislike coalitions, and my own feelings would have been to have had no contest at all. I gave as honestly as I could every information to the gentlemen who thought of becoming candidates, and I left them to make up their own minds, and the choice between them I left to the constituency.

70,639. Did you not consider the peculiar circumstances of the election of 1847, both as to the candidates themselves, and the expenditure that took place on that occasion, tended to render it scarcely possible to predicate what success would attend any new candidate standing in the same position?—I do not consider the expense had anything to do with it. What made it impossible to calculate upon any analysis of future votes was, the very peculiar circumstances under which Mr. Baines became a candidate. The blue party at that time was split into two sections,—the Peelites and the old Conservatives; and they selected between them a man that agreed with neither, but from the great respect for his character.

70,640. You did state that you were not sanguine of success?—I decidedly stated that I was not sanguine of success; nor was I.

70,641. Did you continue to be very doubtful of success until the time you came down?—I should wish to explain that. When I say I was not sanguine of success, I mean I was not sanguine of our being able to return two candidates. With regard to myself, if I had stood alone altogether, I never entertained any doubt whatever that I should come in.

70,642. In the interview that you had with Mr. Burgess, what communication did you make to him as to the mode in which money should be spent?—I made both to him, Lord Goderich, and Mr. Oliveria a representation of the system in use at Hull, as nearly as I could; that which I received from Dr. Chalmers, and which I stated to the Commissioners at the commencement of my examination. Nothing had occurred materially to alter my opinion, and I stated to them the system as I then believed it to be.

70,643. Did you mention that also to Lord Goderich?—Decidedly.

70,644. How soon did you mention that to Lord Goderich?—Within a few days.

70,645. Before you came down here?—Yes. He saw me in the lobby of the House of Commons, some two or three days or perhaps a week or more after I saw Mr. Burgess, and I told him everything I believed—I will not say everything I knew—of Hull.

James Clay, Esq.

2d August 1853.

70,646. As nearly as you can, tell us the conversation between yourself and Lord Goderich?—I told him that I thought the chance of returning a second candidate was a somewhat doubtful one, but that he must judge for himself, and in order to assist his judgment I would give him every information as to the state of the registration as I received it, with my own observations upon it; that I would assist him in every way; but that I could not give him any advice as to whether he should stand or not, and, much less, that I could not suggest to our party to invite him or anybody else. I said the party at Hull will settle who is to be the candidate, and that gentleman will make up his own mind as to whether the chances are good or not. I explained to him what I believed to be the practices at Hull.

70,647. Tell us, as near as you can, the words you made use of in explaining to Lord Goderich your view of the practices prevalent at Hull?—It would be impossible for me to attempt to give the words at all. The substance of what I told him is this: that we never spent any money in Hull in open bribery; that the only way in which voters were influenced, as far as I knew, was by employing a certain number of the freemen as messengers, or flag men, or musicians, or something of that kind, and paying them 5*s.* a day during the time they were employed. I gave him that representation, as I got it from Dr. Chalmers. I certainly did not say anything to him with respect to sham committee rooms; I really had known so little about it. If it had come into my mind, I should have told him; but I altogether forgot about the sham committee rooms. I told him what I believed the system of runners to be.

70,648. Did you mention to him, or convey to his mind, that runners were appointed for the purpose of influencing their votes?—I told him, before the Reform Bill there was the practice of paying head money, but that after the first excitement of the Reform Bill a considerable alteration and improvement had been made in the system, but there were a certain number of the freemen who were paid in this way, employment given to them, and they were not over particular whether there were not more men employed than were necessary. I naturally did not make use of the expression, "with the view of influencing their votes;" there was no occasion to make use of it; it stands to reason that it can be for that, and nothing else.

70,649. You speak in language which a reasonable man could not misunderstand?—I spoke in language which no reasonable man could misunderstand, and which, I have no doubt, Lord Goderich will tell you he did understand.

70,650. The contest ultimately proceeded on the understanding that that would take place at the last election that had taken place at all previous elections?—No doubt. I was in great hopes myself that it would not be carried to so large an extent, and with a view of putting a check upon that and the other expenditure I proposed to Lord Goderich to ask two of our friends to form a committee; I asked Mr. Carrick to act for me, and I suggested that Mr. Gresham, whom he knew very well, would be an excellent man on his part; and our intention was that no expense should be incurred without the direct sanction of those two gentlemen, and I believed that would put a very wholesome and severe check on the expenditure. Unfortunately, those gentlemen were perhaps unable to fulfil their mission, or did not exactly understand the nature of their mission, and became, as it were, merely bankers to draw cheques on as they chose.

70,651. It was never understood that the finance committee was to limit the number of runners to be employed from time to time?—I should consider that was within their duty.

70,652. To keep it at as low a figure as they could, but not to dispense with it altogether?—Certainly not, but, with the ideas I had of runners, certainly to take care that no one received payment that had not some employment given him. In fact, up to the time of our being unseated, I was as much in the dark as to what the real case of the runners was as any one could be. It was well known to our three parliamentary counsel that I always advocated the fighting of the petition with the serious belief that there was nothing in this runner system that could possibly cause us to be unseated, and I only abandoned it on finding an expense obviously very illegal in the payment of the Burton runners, the Barton out-voters, and that an expense had been incurred; and seeing that that was a plainly illegal expense, I abandoned the opposition to the petition. But so firmly was I impressed with my own belief as to these runners, that on the morning of our petition coming on I saw Mr. Wilde in the lobby of the House of Commons, and I said I must know the whole truth about these runners; I want to know exactly what is the case; and he told me about 450, I think he said, had been engaged, and about two thirds of those had been employed. I said, "Well, have those men who were not employed been paid?" and he said no, they had not. I took it for granted that was in the carrying out of the system; that those men who were employed were paid, and those who were not employed were not paid.

70,653. You never heard anything to induce you to doubt that the understanding, of which you spoke formerly, that the running system was to form no part of the parliamentary investigation, would be acted on, the last time, as it had been on previous occasions?—I never heard of such an understanding. I should have considered myself quite at liberty to have petitioned against the return of Sir Walter James and Sir John Hanmer on the ground of the employment of runners, if I had thought it was at all advisable; but I did not; I was beaten, and I was content with my defeat. I never heard of any understanding, although I frequently heard it said by gentlemen of our party, "You are quite safe; you will not be petitioned against on the score of the runners; "the blue depend so infinitely more on the runners than we did that they will not be so "foolish as to cut their own throats;" that I have heard over and over again. I never heard of anything like a compact to prevent a petition.

70,654. It was to be this: the object was, not to alter the system, but to limit it?—No doubt.

70,655. When you came in 1852, you had cognizance of every mode of corruption in Hull, had you not?—I had cognizance, no doubt, of this system of engaging the sham committee rooms; that is to say, I had heard of it; but I never looked upon it as a system by which many votes had been got. The thing had so far escaped my recollection that I never said anything to Lord Goderich or to Mr. Oliveria on the subject. If I had recollected it I should have put them in possession of it.

70,656. You seem to throw some little doubt into the last answer. You had no doubt, in 1852, when you came here, that this system of employing runners was just equivalent to paying them head money?—No doubt; except for this purpose, believing they had absolute employment, which could be proved before a committee of the House of Commons, I believed it came within the strict letter of the law.

70,657. You know it was done in order to secure the votes of doubtful persons?—No doubt I knew it, ever since I came to Hull, and it was well known to everybody, that if you determined to have nothing to do with employing messengers,—if you had taken all the messengers from the non-voters,—you might a great deal better have stopped at home; there was no chance of success.

70,658. You knew your money was to be expended in securing the votes of parties who would not vote but for a money consideration?—No doubt.

70,659. Did you say that you understood that that led to no immorality?—No, I did not say that. All I said was, that I see a strong moral distinction between that and bribery, because it is perfectly possible that the runners who receive these payments should at the same time be proof against a very much larger payment from the other side, and I believe that scores of them are so. I believe there are scores of freemen in Hull who would not vote for you if they were refused this payment, which they look upon as a birth-right; so much so, that an insolvent put down his vote in his schedule. It is a thing perfectly well known that they look upon it as a sort of birth-right and; the man who came forward, and refused them what they believe their birth-right, you would be considered a mean man, and they would have nothing to do with you. There are scores of men who I believe would not vote for the other side if you paid them 10*l.* for doing it.

70,660. Did you never hear that it was exceedingly common in Hull for the men to be employed and paid by one side, and then go over and be employed and paid by the other side, and finally vote for whoever they choose? I have never heard of it being common in Hull. I see from the evidence there were cases at the last election; but I do not believe at former elections it was done. No doubt there were instances,—and to that I attribute the loss of my election in 1841,—there were instances where men who had been runners, and were understood to intend to vote for you, had been bought off with ready money in the streets by the other side; there were instances of that kind, and to that I attribute the loss of my election in 1841.

70,661. Did you ever hear that the system was so common in Hull that respectable gentlemen on your committees, knowing that the freemen had promised and been paid by the other side, would countenance and induce them to deceive the other side, and vote for your side?—So I understand. It appears to have been so at the last election; but there is no man in Hull more surprised than I am, and I do not believe it was the case at former elections.

70,662. Did you not hear that the pecuniary cupidity of the voters of Hull was so large, that finding the blues were only paying 1*l.*, and the orange were paying a guinea, a large number threatened to strike and go over to the other side?—If that is on the evidence I have not seen it. That is the first word I have heard of it.

70,663. They heard that the orange party were paying a guinea, and they struck for that?—Yes.

70,664. Taking those three circumstances to have been proved, do you adhere to your proposition, that this employment of runners in carrying out this system in Hull is entirely a moral transaction?—I have never given that opinion. I have only said that I see a strong moral distinction between that and bribery. Of course I cannot refuse my belief to the evidence which has been given before this Commission. It is perfectly clear that the system is infinitely worse than I thought it to be. There is no man in Hull more surprised and shocked by the revelations on this Commission than I am; but, at the same time, I do not believe it has always been the system. I believe the last election to have been infinitely worse. I well know, that when I was returned I believed it was the purest election we ever had in Hull; but it is impossible to refuse belief to the evidence. I believe it now to be the reverse. I do not believe this system of runners was so lax and so bad at the previous elections as it appears to have been in 1852.

70,665. You say now the system not only leads to what is immediately illegal, but also as immediately to what is corrupt and fraudulent?—I may probably best answer your question by saying, if there was an election to-morrow, and a gentleman came to me, as

James Clay, Esq.

2d August 1853.

Lord Goderich did, to inquire the state of the town, and the way in which elections were conducted, I should give him a very different account, and say there is a system which they call the payment of runners in Hull, which they believe to be different from bribery, but to my mind it appears to have hardly any distinction.

70,666. I wish you would go a little further; does it not only lead to illegality, but to corruption and to fraud?—No question about it. When I say I consider it as bad as bribery, that includes it.

70,667. Did not that view of the question strike you at any time before the close of the last election?—No; not until after I was unseated; I did not believe it to be so. I ran a great risk of expending a very large sum of money quite unnecessarily in defending the seat, from my entire ignorance of what was going on. The single case that made me abandon the defence of the seat was, finding the sum of two guineas had been given to certain out-voters at Barton, as representing their expenses,—a sum so exorbitant, as the expense might be well paid by half-a-crown, that I said, this settles the thing; we had better abandon the defence to the petition. The gentlemen who were my counsel on the occasion, Mr. Edwin James, Mr. Davison, and Mr. Skinner, will no doubt recollect, in the conference we had, I was anxious to defend the system of runners, believing it to be that which was represented to me.

70,668. Did you not hear in the course of the election in 1847 that there were a lot of voters who were bought and paid for at the Baltic?—No.

70,669. Did you never hear of that at the election of 1847; that there were a lot there, called Nicholson's lot, a list of 80 who were bought; they polled for you and Brown, and they were paid 2*l.* apiece each?—Those were not men set down as runners.

70,670. No; bought out and out?—Yes; I have heard of that since, and I believe it to be the only exception, and a very disagreeable exception, to the rule made.

70,671. Did you not hear that he had a still larger party at the last election, and tried to sell them, but did not succeed in getting a purchaser?—I have only seen it through the evidence.

70,672. You did not hear it at the time?—I did not hear it at the time; and if anybody had told me of it I would have said, as I did in 1841, I will have nothing to do with anything of the kind.

70,673. Did you not hear there were parties going through the town offering themselves from one side to the other?—No; I never heard anything about it.

70,674. Besides the payment of money, there is another form of making payments in rewards after. Have you ever been the means of obtaining any office or place of any sort or description for any voter as a reward for his services, or the relation of any voter?—Not as a reward for their services, certainly; but I have frequently done it. It is an exceedingly bad system; but I took the system as I found it. I endeavoured to escape it as far as I could. The system you mean is no doubt the appointments in the Post Office and the Custom House. The sitting member has very frequently an intimation that there is such a vacancy, and if there is any one to recommend you may recommend him. When I first became the member for Hull, I wrote to Mr. Galloway and Mr. Jalland. I tried to get this duty taken off my hand, by having a committee of gentlemen appointed here, to have what is called the patronage of the place. However, it was found that system could not be carried out, and I was inundated with applications. There is no part of a member's business so disadvantageous to him as that part; for, for some trifling place, he is sure to have fifty applications, and forty-nine men are disobliged. Under those circumstances, all I could do was, to get as well as I could the best information about the candidates, and to select whoever I thought the most deserving man, and if there were more than one who appeared equally deserving, three or four, I then inquired which man was the most in want of the employment of the kind, and to whom it would be of the greatest benefit, and I appointed them in that way.

70,675. The question is this: I wish to know whether you can undertake to say or to assure us that you have never obtained any place of any sort or kind for any person as a reward for his vote?—That again is a question that it is exceedingly difficult to answer.

70,676. Do you mean you have only gone as far as this: some Government patronage is due to the member of the same opinions as the Government, and they are consulted?—They are only very small places.

70,677. I do not ask you whether you have not given a preference to a person of your own opinions. That is not the question I wish to put; but I ask you whether you have not gone beyond the regular routine of cases?—You probably mean, has there ever been a sort of bargain, I will vote for you if you will do something for me?

70,678. Or your saying, "I have selected you, because you gave me your vote?" One the case of contract; the other reward?—The first thing I inquire about is whether the man is fit for the situation.

70,679. I am sorry to interrupt you; but perhaps it may shorten the answer. Will you undertake to say this: that you never have given any place without a regard to the public service?—Certainly not. I have always had a regard for the public service, and the proof of it is this, with regard to the Post Office appointments, I think I may say invariably, but I have almost invariably, required an assurance that the party is fit for the post, previous to recommending a person. Mr. Mosey, the postmaster, has satisfied himself that he is capable of doing his duty properly. He is a strong Tory, but Mr. Mosey has been kind enough to give temporary appointments in the Post Office to persons whom I was likely to wish to appoint, in order to see if they were fit or not.

70,680. You have always taken the greatest pains to get the best man?—Yes; but very few of the Tories have applied to me. The candidate himself is rarely the applicant; he applies through some gentleman; and very few of the Tory gentlemen ever make any application to me. I have no hesitation in saying, that if I have an application from a Tory gentleman for some candidate of his, and an application from a gentleman of the same way of thinking as myself, for another friend of his, that if it appeared that the Tory candidate was fit for his duty, and the Liberal candidate was unfit for his duty, I should undoubtedly appoint the Tory candidate.

70,681. It has been mentioned to us that you obtained an appointment for Mr. Theophilus Carrick?—It is probably saying too much to say I obtained it. I was consulted.

70,682. You exerted your influence in some way or other; you were instrumental in getting it?—I was anxious at that time to have procured the appointment for another gentleman whose name, I presume, I need not mention. It was Mr. Bowden,—I may as well mention the name; the brother-in-law of Sir William Lowthrop, I think he was. I was anxious to procure the appointment for him. It appeared there were some reasons, I forget what, that made it unadvisable to appoint him; they wished not to appoint him. An application had been made in favour of Mr. Theophilus Carrick. I was then asked, "Have you any objection to make to this gentleman being appointed? If you think he should not be appointed you have only to say so." That was in substance what was said to me. Mr. Theophilus Carrick had been a very strong opponent of mine; but at the same time I believed he was a gentleman wery well qualified for his duties; he was, moreover, the brother of an intimate friend of mine. I should not consider myself at liberty to say I object to his appointment, unless I believed he was an unfit man, and I do believe he was a very fit man.

70,683. He was opposed to you in politics?—Very strongly opposed to me.

70,684. There was a gentleman appointed at Beverley who was opposed to you in politics; do you recollect that you interested yourself for him in getting him a Custom House place at Hull?—I forget about that, I have such a vast deal of correspondence about it. I undoubtedly recollect the having made some appointments; no doubt of men who are either Tories themselves, or whose friends and connexions are Tories. I made them, partly because I was not only satisfied they were capable and fit men, but in many cases because I knew it was a great charity to do it.

70,685. You deny altogether the assumption that you made your position as a member for this borough subservient to any political views?—I entirely deny it; I have never done it.

70,686. It is only right that you should have an opportunity of stating that. You have stated now your views as to the position of persons who are set down, and set down for employment. A list has been handed to us of people who stated that they set their names down for the purpose and under the expectation that after the election was over they would be paid, although they had performed no service; they had their names set down for the purpose, and they voted under the belief that they would be paid. I put to you the same question that I put to Mr. Burgess on behalf of Lord Goderich. Have you come to any determination whether you mean to pay them, or not? It is a most material question in the event of having another election. It is not for a moment to be supposed we are desirous of expressing any opinion as to what ought or ought not to be done; that is quite beyond our province altogether; but, having it proved to us what took place at No. 2, King Street, and in Saville Street, on the last occasion, it is most material for us to know whether a similar scene will be acted over again, if, upon the moment we leave this Court, a new writ should be issued. This book I hold in my hand contains a list of persons who have stated to us that their names were set down in it, for the sole purpose of being paid, whether they did any work or whether they did not; the fact of their names being in that book gave them a right to be paid after the election?—Yes.

70,687. Therefore we wish to know whether they are right in stating that; or, in other words, whether you have at this moment any intention of paying such parties as those? A question something of that form was put toMr. Burgess. At the same time we thought it right that he should have time to consider whether he would answer it or not. I will put it in the very words that I put to Mr. Burgess?—I understand it perfectly.

70,688. We wish you to understand fully what the question is, and to give us an answer to-morrow morning?—I would rather give an answer now. I have never thought of the subject; but it will not take me five seconds' consideration.

70,689. Do you object to answer the question?—Not at all; not the least in the world. You will perhaps allow me to state, before answering, that as you allude to No. 2, King Street, and to the room in Saville Street, that I never heard of either of those places till long after the election. Now, with reference to the question you have put to me, it is one which I shall not undertake to judge of myself. I shall do as I have always done in matters of this kind. I shall consult some of the principal gentlemen of the place, and I shall ask them to take the matter into their consideration, and to tell me whether they consider I am bound in honour to pay or not. If I am bound in honour to pay, I shall pay. If it is their opinion that I am not bound in honour to pay, I shall not pay. But at the same time I shall hardly answer your question honestly, unless I tell you what my feeling upon the subject is. My own feeling upon the subject, if those gentlemen think fit to consult me upon the subject, is, that the money ought to be paid. It is perfectly true that they were engaged without any sanction of mine; it is perfectly true that I was in utter ignorance that men would be set down to receive payment, and do no work; that I was wholly unacquainted with that system, and I do disapprove of it now, and if I had known it I should have disapproved of it then; but at the same time it is perfectly true those men made their promise to a man whom they had reason to believe to be my agent; they made their promise, and they acted upon their promise, in the belief that I was cognizant of the bargain made with them, and I shall fulfil as if it was my own case. It is my fault for not having made proper inquiries, because, if I had made proper inquiries, and made myself master of the real system, the bargain would never have been made. But inasmuch as I did not do that, and left it possible for the men to believe that my promise was given to them, I shall feel myself bound to fulfil it.

James Clay, Esq.

2d August, 1853.

70,690. You say the person who set those names down is no agent of yours?—No, I did not say he was no agent of mine. I certainly have never acknowledged him as an agent, and I have never paid him a sixpence as an agent, but he was a recognised person.

70,691. Would you not say the members of your committees are your agents to conduct the election?—Yes, unless they did anything they were specially forbidden to do. It has been frequently my practice to have a printed notice stuck up in the committee room, that no treating was to be allowed there, and that I would not be answerable for any expenses for anything of the kind; but for all the ordinary business of the election I should recognise the authority of a committee man.

70,692. Are you aware that the persons were sent to Saville Street from every committee, who were canvassed on your behalf?—I have seen it, more or less, in the evidence.

70,693. Is there anything more in setting down the names in Saville Street, and having been set down as applicants for employment—is there anything more in that than carrying out the system of which you have spoken?—I must know whether the chairman of a committee room, who sent a man to Saville Street, knew if he sent him there that he was to be put down for six days, or whether he sent him away in order to get rid of the trouble, because men come and bother them with questions which it is admitted they ought to know nothing about. They would say, go to such and such a place.

70,694. The evidence is, they sent people there with a perfect knowledge of what was being done? Was not that within the scope of their authority?—I do not apprehend their authority has ever been defined. No doubt my wish was to have no authority in anybody except in Mr. Carrick and Mr. Gresham. My wish was that no one should have had any authority whatever to incur any expense of any kind, legal or illegal.

70,695. I have understood you to say that you anticipated the system would be carried on as usual to a certain extent?—No doubt.

70,696. When the committee men did carry out the system, were they not acting in conformity with your understanding?—No. My idea would have been, that any proposition for how many messengers or runners were wanted at the different committee rooms, that it should be made to the finance committee, and that they should have said whether they did or did not sanction the employment of so many men. That was my idea, and it was obviously abandoned, or hardly ever begun.

70,697. Did you ever give instructions that they should not do it?—No; I never mentioned the subject at all, or in any way interfered with the details of the election.

70,698. Did you not appoint your agents to conduct it as they thought best?—No; I never appointed a committee man in my life. I have always understood that my committee consists of every man almost who votes for me. It is of immense size and capacity, is my committee, for everybody almost comes into my committe.

70,699. At the time the gentlemen began to act, did you intend to repudiate their acts?—I should have undoubtedly repudiated such a thing as that, if I had heard of it at that time that there had been a great deal of drinking,—beer and spirits given away. I should have said I would have had nothing to do with that.

70,700. Did you intend to repudiate their acts when they were carrying out this system?—I did not know it. Now I do know it I have no intention of repudiating their acts. I did not know they were doing it.

70,701. They were your agents?—They were my agents, for the election only.

70,702. Carrying it on in the ordinary way?—No. I am merely expressing my surprise at finding that the chairmen of the district committees sent a great many men to be employed as runners. I am not denying it; but I do not say that I shall repudiate their authority at all. I have not at all said that.

70,703. Do you not know that during the election they were carying out the system in the ordinary way?—I did not know what the ordinary way was. I should have supposed that it would be intrusted as it was to one man,—to Thistleton,—that it would be intrusted to anybody,—it might be Mr. Wilde who was selected, but it would be intrusted to somebody to put down the names for employment of such persons.

70,704. Whether it is carried on by one person or many makes no difference?—Not the slightest.

70,705. It makes no difference, if you had a knowledge that the system was being carried out, whether it was by one person or many?—No. I have never denied that knowledge for a moment. The only thing that I repudiated was, or at leastI thought there might be good grounds for repudiating, is the having engaged men as runners with no intention of giving them employment; that I have never known anything about, and I do not believe that used to be the case; and when I say I entered upon the last election with the idea of employing runners, it certainly was not with the idea of putting men down for employment that did not have employment to carry it out.

James Clay, Esq.

2d August 1853.

70,706. You did not understand the fact till afterwards?—Not till I was unseated.

70,707. But finding on coming into the room it was considered almost as amounting to a condition, to a tacit agreement, do you consider yourself bound to carry it out?—Decidedly. Those men who made the promise believed that I was responsible for it. It is my fault that they believed it.

70,708. You consider that they would have deemed it a promise if they had their names put down?—I suppose so; from the evidence I have read, no doubt. Perhaps you will allow me, before you go, to make one observation. There may have been many questions that you have asked me, especially as to the details of carrying out the election, of which I have been in ignorance so entirely as possibly to surprise you. Now, my own explanation for that is,—and you will never thoroughly understand it unless you should happen yourself to be a candidate for Hull,—the explanation of that is, that a candidate while he is in Hull from morning to night is doing nothing but either canvassing or speaking; he never has a moment's consultation with the party upon the most important matters, but they must be taken by snatches of a quarter of a minute at a time between the canvass of the voters. We are so wholly occupied from morning to night in canvassing and speaking that it is less extraordinary than you imagine. We know less about the details of the election than you would conceive.

Adjourned till to-morrow, at ten o'clock.

FORTY-NINTH DAY.—Wednesday, 3d August 1853.

HENRY CARR sworn, and examined.

Henry Carr.

3d August 1853.

70,709. What is your business?—A fireman.

70,710. Where do you live?—In Dagger Lane.

70,711. What rent do you pay?—Five guineas.

70,712. For a house?—Yes.

70,713. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

70,714. How long have you been a freeman?—I took my freedom up in 1846.

70,715. Did you vote in the year 1847?—No.

70,716. Were you not entitled to vote?—Yes.

70,717. Why did you not vote?—I was in Hamburgh.

70,718. You were absent?—Yes.

70,719. Who did you vote for last year?—Clay and Goderich.

70,720. You had your name set down, I believe, at Legitt's, as a runner?—No.

70,721. Was your name set down for the blues?—Not to my knowledge.

70,722. Do you know Legitt?—No, I do not know him.

70,723. Lidgard; do you know him by that name, in Minerva Terrace?—No; I do not know any one of that name.

70,724. Your name is down in his list?—I cannot help that; I do not know his name.

70,725. Did you get any money at the Minerva Terrace from anybody?—No.

70,726. Were you employed as a runner—No.

70,727. Did you get any money?—I never got any money for being a runner.

70,728. Your name is returned from the central committee for Moore and Butler as Henry Carr as having been set down by Legitt; do you mean to say you did not get any money that election?—No; not from that party at all. I was never nigh them.

70,729. For what party?—The name you mentioned.

70,730. Legitt has returned your name as a person who was a runner at his committee room, and as having paid you; how do you account for that?—I cannot tell that. I never received one halfpenny from him. I do not know him.

70,731. Do you know the room in the Minerva Terrace where the runners for the blues were set down?—No; I do not know where it is.

70,732. How much did you get at the last election?—The money I received at the last election I got paid for my expenses to stop at home. I did not get anything for polling.

70,733. How much was it?—50*s*.

70,734. Who paid it?—It was paid in King Street.

70,735. That was by Mr. Bamford, was it not?—I do not know who it was.

70,736. It was a committee of the blues?—No.

Henry Carr.

3d August 1853.

70,737. Whose was it?—For the orange.

70,738. Was it a committee room at all where you were paid?—It was in King Street.

70,739. Who paid it?—I do not know what they call the gentleman, I am sure.

70,740. How came you there?—I was sent there to draw my money there.

70,741. Who sent you there?—Mr. Wells.

70,742. What Mr. Wells?—The barber; I think it is King Street

70,743. Was it in Kingston Street or King Street?—King Street.

70,744. Where did you live at the last election?—Finkle Street.

70,745. Are you sure you voted for Clay and Goderich; because your name is down for Moore and Butler? Do you mean to swear that?—I can swear I did not.

70,746. That you did not vote for Moore and Butler?—No.

70,747. Your name is in the poll book as voting for Moore and Butler?—Then some one has been and polled false.

70,748. Where were you; what distance did you come for your expenses?—I was in the Rotterdam trade.

70,749. And you were paid the 50*s.* to stop at home?—I had to find another man in my room, and then I had to stop at home, and there were my expenses at home.

70,750. Had you been engaged to go out? What was your business at the time?—Fireman on board the Sea Gull.

70,751. Did the steamer go without you?—Yes; I engaged another man.

70,752. What day did she sail?—Wednesday.

70,753. How often do you go in the steamer?—Every week.

70,754. How much do you get paid?—15*s.* a week.

70,755. When did you go in her next?—In the following week.

70,756. And you lost a week?—Yes.

70,757. Did they deduct from you a week's pay?—Yes.

70,758. Who paid the other man? You say you got a substitute; who paid him?—The company paid him.

70,759. He was not paid with your money?—No.

70,760. You say they deducted a week's pay from you?—Yes.

70,761. And they found a substitute?—Yes.

70,762. And the people in King Street gave you 50*s.*?—Yes.

70,763. You lost 15*s.* and got 50*s.*?—Yes; and I was living at home; those were my expenses.

70,764. Do you know which booth you polled at?—Yes.

70,765. Which booth was it?—In King Street, Princes Street.

70,766. That is where you polled?—Yes.

70,767. Are you sure you polled at all?—Yes; another man polled before me in my name, only I proved it.

70,768. Did you poll or not?—I did.

70,769. Then they polled two people in your name?—I polled myself.

70,770. What time of the day?—I could not say the hour what it was now; I did not take that particular notice.

THOMAS WELLS sworn, and examined.

Thomas Wells.

70,771. Were you present when this man polled?—I went with him to the poll.

70,772. Is what he says true, that he voted for Clay and Goderich?—When we got to the booth he tendered his vote. The person there receiving the votes, the representative of the sheriff, said, "You have already voted." He said, "No, I have not; and this is my burgess oath." "Then who do you vote for; which party?" He said, "Clay and Goderich;" and he said, "Well, I must receive it, but we will take the other vote;" and that is the reason, I suppose.

70,773. Then he did not vote?—He tendered his vote, but it was not taken; they merely received it in that way.

70,774. Which party are you; blue or orange?—Orange.

70,775. Do you know whether it was your party who paid him, or the other party?—It was our party.

70,776. Were you there when the other person come up and called himself Henry Carr?—No. I had gone with this witness to get him to vote.

70,777. You were only present when that man came up?—Yes.

70,778. Not when the other came?—No; the other had voted before I went.

70,779. You did not see who it was?—No.

70,780. Did it never strike you that he might have voted before for the blues, and that he went up with you for the orange to account for the money, that you gave him?—The man declared he had not.

70,781. And that is all you know about it?—Yes.

70,782. It is a remarkable thing he should be personated twice over, because they had a Henry Carr a runner for the blues?—This man, I can testify to, only came up once.

70,783. How do you know that?—I was a canvasser for the orange party, and he was in my district where I had to canvass for. The consequence was I was very anxious to see him as soon as he got here.

Thomas Wells.

3d August 1853.

70,784. You inquired for him?—Yes; and his wife told me she would tell him as soon as he came up.

70,785. All that is equally consistent with his being a runner for the blues?—He was at sea; that is all I know.

Henry Carr.

HENRY CARR recalled, and examined.

70,786. Do you get your living besides the 15*s.*?—We did at that time.

70,787. Besides the 15*s.*?—Yes; the wages are now 25*s.*, and find ourselves.

70,788. You would put the living at about 10*s.*?—Yes.

70,789. Will you swear that that was the only time you went to the poll when you went with Mr. Wells?—Yes, I will.

70,790. And you will swear you had not your name set down by the blues at all?—No; I will not swear I had not, because some one might have set it down for me.

70,791. Did they say anything to you about it?—No.

70,792. Were you canvassed by the blues?—No.

J. B. Moore, Esq

JOHN BRAMLEY MOORE, Esq., sworn, and examined.

70,793. You reside at Liverpool?—In the neighbourhood of Liverpool.

70,794. And you were a candidate at the last election for the representation of this borough?—I was.

70,795. When was your attention first directed to the representation of Hull?—I should say in April or May; but I am not sure as to the date.

70,796. A little earlier than that, was it not?—It may be; I am not at all sure about the time when it was first mentioned to me.

70,797. Did you not talk upon the subject with Colonel Forrester considerably before that time?—I should say about that time; I am not sure of the date.

70,798. I think Mr. Ward said he wrote to you in February?—Yes; some time then about.

70,799. Who was it that first brought the subject before your attention?—I think it was Colonel Forrester, in London.

70,800. He is a gentleman who interests himself in procuring or selecting candidates?—I believe he does.

70,801. And in advising your party on the subject of the choice of candidates for different boroughs?—I believe he does; I have no personal knowledge beyond that concerning himself.

70,802. How soon was anything brought to your attention respecting the probable expense of a contest in Hull?—I should say I think in May.

70,803. Were you not aware before that that Hull was considered an expensive place?—No; I knew nothing about it.

70,804. Did you have no conversation with Colonel Forrester as to the reputation which Hull enjoyed?—Not at all.

70,805. Did you not make any inquiries about the expenses?—After I had a meeting with the gentlemen who met me at Normanton, I did.

70,806. Not till then?—Not till then.

70,807. We have heard of that meeting. Was that the first time when anything was said or written on the subject of expenses?—I believe it was.

70,808. What is your recollection of the date of that meeting?—I am not sure; I have no record of the date; but I believe it would be in May.

70,809. Mr. Ward has mentioned the subject of expenses as early as the 6th of April?—Was that prior to the meeting at Normanton?

70,810. He has shown us a letter to you in which it shows a correspondence had taken place between you, and in which you say you are surprised at the largeness of the amount?—I think that is after the meeting.

70,811. Beginning the 6th, and then it is a continued correspondence. Do you remember mentioning to Mr. Ward, in the first instance, that you thought 500*l.* was as much as a candidate ought to pay for the representation of Hull?—I do not remember that; I remember stating that the candidates for Liverpool usually paid 500*l.*

70,812. And that you did not feel inclined to pay more?—I do not recollect saying that.

70,813. We will go on to what took place when you met at Normanton. Do you remember you had a meeting; that some gentlemen came over to you?—I remember it perfectly well, but I do not remember the date of it; that is not material. I met there Mr. Barkworth, Mr. Ward, and Mr. Joseph Pease, and we had a conversation about my becoming a candidate for the representation of Hull, and the result of it was that I finally determined to come forward; that I should pay 1,200*l.*

70,814. Before you arrived at that, was there anything said as to what caused it; what

J. B. Moore, Esq.

3d August 1853.

were the elements of expense to be considered?—We had a good deal of conversation about the expenses, and to the best of my recollection 1,000*l.* was spoken of.

70,815. Tell us the conversation, as nearly as you can recollect it, in the order in which it occurred?—I can tell you the substance of it. 1,000*l.* was mentioned.

70,816. By which party; by you or by them?—By the gentlemen.

70,817. I want to know this; there is no doubt at that time the sum of 500*l.* had been named before in some way or another?—I am not aware of it at all; I should be most happy to give you every information.

70,818. You shall see the letter?—I think when the letter is produced it will correspond with my statement.

70,819. My memory is this, that you mentioned the sum of 500*l.* as the expense which candidates were put to at Liverpool. Of course it would be useless to mention that except as a guide to Hull?—I think when the letter is produced, you will find it will tally exactly with what I state.

70,820. The letter in question was previous to your interview with these gentlemen at Normanton. Do you recollect how that was; the discussion as to the amount preceding the final settlement of the 1,200*l.*?—That letter unfortunately I lost; I destroyed it at the time.

70,821. There is no doubt a discussion took place before the final settlement?—No doubt of it; but there is a second letter, which I have a copy of here, of the 24th of April.

70,822. This letter was after the meeting at Normanton?—I should say after; and I think the letter you refer to is prior to that.

70,823. Does not that remind you that the meeting of which you speak took place in April?—Yes.

70,824. And your interview with these gentlemen must have been between the 6th and the 24th of April?—I think it is very likely; but I do not remember the date at all; I have no memorandum of it.

70,825. Can you remember whether the question of expense was first introduced by you or by the deputation which you met; was it your inquiry?—I do not know; but it would naturally form an element in our meeting; it would be immaterial from which side it emanated.

70,826. Is that the letter of the 6th of April?—Yes.

70,827. It alludes to the sum of 500*l.*, and assigns as a reason that in Liverpool 500*l.* is considered the sum?—I do not think it exactly bears out that. I agreed to give 1,200*l.*, and I only put the 500*l.* in contrast.

70,828. This is the letter: "Liverpool, April 6th, 1852;" it is from Mr. Bramley Moore to Thomas Ward, Esq. "In reply to your letter of the 2d instant, I agree with you that it is better we understand each other clearly before an election comes on with regard to money matters. I stand to my proposition, mentioned to the deputation at Normanton, as named in your letter, viz., to go as far as 1,200*l.* for the legal expenses of the election; not necessarily that this sum be expended, but I will, if this be required, agree to go thus far, and incur no further responsibility. I am wholly unacquainted with what may be required, having no experience in these matters. If the expenditure should exceed the above-named sum, the gentlemen of Hull must undertake to exonerate me from all further demands. Being a stranger in Hull, I could not, with any judgment, select an agent, and would leave this, and the entire management of the election, in the hands of a committee. I think, to provide against a contest (and the surest means of preventing a contest), the electors should subscribe a sum equal to the possible requirements, to enable a good fight. The candidates here are only responsible for 500*l.*"

70,829. Now have the goodness to state what took place at Normanton on the subject of the expenses?—To the best of my recollection, 1,000*l.* was spoken of.

70,830. Do you remember who by first?—I do not remember; and I was then asked, "But suppose it should exceed that; you would not mind something more?" and I answered, that whatever it might be I should prefer it to be fixed and definite, and that I would not incur an unlimited responsibility; and that 1,200*l.* was then the sum agreed upon to be paid.

70,831. Was anything said which led you to understand that it was probable that the 1,200*l.* would be exceeded?—I was certainly let to believe that 1,200*l.* would not pay the expenses of the contest, but that my liability would be restricted to that.

70,832. Did you understand what was the general expense of an election in Hull?—Not at all; I have no idea.

70,833. Did you understand, on that occasion, the probability was that the cost of an election would be about 3,600*l.*?—Not at all; I never heard such a thing mentioned.

70,834. You did not hear that until some few days after?—I never heard it at all; I am not aware of any such sum being mentioned.

70,835. The two candidates, 1,200*l.*, and a subscription of 1,200*l.*?—I do not know what the subscriptions were.

70,836. Did you never hear what the subscriptions were that were entered into on the 20th of April?—No. I heard that the subscription was in progress, but the amount of it I do not know even to this hour.

70,837. Did you inquire what were the elements of expense when you were at Normanton?—No.

70,838. Did you not make any inquiries, coming to a large place like Hull, how your money was to go?—Not at all. I knew perfectly well that a certain sum of money must necessarily be expended in the canvass of a large town like Hull, in printing and other expenses; and the gentlemen that I had to deal with I had perfect confidence in, and in their management, and that everything would be done properly.

70,839. Did you know that the constituency consisted of a considerable number of old freemen, not being householders?—I knew that, as a matter of course; but the subject was not mentioned, to the best of my recollection.

70,840. How came you not to make any inquiries? Was it because you were already in possession of information, living in Liverpool, and knew that freemen were an expensive body to deal with?—I do not know. They are not very expensive there. The worst thing proved against the freemen has been the day's wages there.

70,841. How is it that you made no inquiry, when you came to contest a borough of 5,000 voters, how your money was to be spent?—I made no inquiry whatever. All that I cared about was knowing my own responsibility, and the maximum amount for which I was liable.

70,842. Do you mean you gave a carte blanche to commit all sorts of corrupt practices?—Certainly not.

70,843. I want to see what precautions you took to avoid it?—I took none; but I never countenanced anything corrupt.

70,844. I want to know what precautions you took to prevent it?—The precaution I took, as you observe, in one of those letters was that I would not he a party to anything in the way of bribery or treating; and as far as I know that was strictly carried out.

70,845. You mean the only precaution you took was making a simple declaration, and leaving other people to interpret that as they pleased?—I do not admit that.

70,846. I understood you to say this: you took no precaution except that of making a simple verbal declaration that you would be no party to bribery or treating?—Certainly.

70,847. You took no other precaution?—Personally none; nor do I see that I could take any.

70,848. I understand you, you would say that the reference you made to it is contained in your letter?—It is.

70,849. And you do not remember making any other?—Yes.

70,850. And you made that in writing?—Yes; and also verbally.

70,851. You took no precaution, except that contained in your letter, and a similar verbal declaration?—No, none; and I am not aware that I could take any.

70,852. Did you make any inquiries as to whether corrupt practices had prevailed on former occasions in Hull?—No, I did not.

70,853. Were you aware then that they had been said to prevail?—I certainly was aware that there had been an inquiry some years ago.

70,854. In the year 1837?—Yes; a matter of notoriety; but I made no inquiries.

70,855. You were aware, as a matter of notoriety, that corruption had prevailed in the general election of 1837?—In former years.

70,856. In 1837?—Yes; I suppose so; in Mr. Wilberforce's time. The gentlemen with whom I treated were equally opposed with myself to anything being done in the way of bribery or treating, and we understood ourselves perfectly upon that head, that nothing of that kind should be done, therefore I made no inquiries as to former practices, nor was it necessary for me to take any further precaution with regard to my own election; that was a clear understanding between myself and the gentlemen.

70,857. The understanding was conveyed of course in the course of the conversation?—It was, and subsequent to it also.

70,858. Was the subject of runners ever alluded to?—Not at all.

70,859. Or messengers?—Not at all.

70,860. Or employing people with the purpose of securing votes?—No.

70,861. Neither by one side nor by the other?—Not by either side.

70,862. Are we to understand that there was no particular allusion to any particular character of spending money,—any particular mode of spending money,—but it was the simple general words that there was to be no bribery or treating?—No bribery or treating.

70,863. In general words?—In general words.

70,864. But the specific mode in which bribery might be for the future carried on, or had been said to have taken place on former occasions, was not alluded to?—No; not at all. I never heard the subject alluded to, to the best of my recollection.

70,865. Perhaps it will be a little out of place; but it will come in better here if I ask it. During the course of the contest has there ever occurred any conversation between you and the gentlemen by whom you were supported bearing on the peculiar character of the expenditure in Hull?—No.

70,866. Any way of employing men?—I am not aware of any. In the course of my experience here I observed there were messengers.

70,867. I am coming to that; I am talking at the present moment of what was said?—Nothing.

J. B. Moore, Esq.
3d August 1853.

70,868. It comes to this then, that it was represented in general terms by you, and assented to by them, or, vice versâ, declared by them, and assented to by you, that there was to be no bribery or treating?—Yes, decidedly.

70,869. You have already mentioned that you had heard of the investigation in 1838 relating to the election of 1837?—The subject was never mentioned to me. I knew it as a matter of history.

70,870. Was this merely a meeting of some gentlemen, or did they convey a requisition to you?—I think they had a requisition with them.

70,871. There was a requisition to you at some time?—There was.

70,872. And according to your recollection they brought it with them?—I think so. A requisition was brought, I think, on that occasion, and taken back to Hull, and afterwards forwarded to me.

70,873. They showed it to you, and took it back, perhaps not fully signed at that time?—I suppose that is the reason.

70,874. Up to the time you became a candidate I believe you had no immediate connexion with Hull?—Do you mean political connexion.

70,875. No; local?—No, none; very slight.

70,876. I mean you are not engaged in any matter of business connected with the town?—Not at all.

70,877. You are extensively engaged elsewhere?—Yes.

70,878. Had this deputation only a short conference with you?—Probably only half or perhaps three quarters of an hour. It was so short that the gentlemen returned by the train the same afternoon.

70,879. And have you told us the substance of all that took place then?—I have. I am not aware of anything else that occurred.

70,880. After that you wrote this letter of the 6th of April?—Yes.

70,881. Having heard in the meantime from Mr. Ward?—Yes, of course.

70,882. Have you got the letter to which this of the 24th of April was an answer?—I have not.

70,883. Or the one to which the letter of the 6th refers?—No; I have not.

70,884. They would be respectively of the 2d and 23d of April?—Yes; the 2d of April, and the other would be the 23d of April.

70,885. Can you recollect what the contents of the letter were? It seems to bear upon the subject?—I can say so far, the letter related to nothing else further than the subject of money.

70,886. Perhaps if you hear it read it will bring it to your mind?—"Liverpool, 24th April 1852. My dear Sir,—I acknowledge with great pleasure your letter of yesterday, and coincide entirely with your views about the guarantee fund,—treating, and bribery. I will not be a party to either one or the other. I think you have done very well indeed, and of course the more you get the more you diminish the risk to individuals. I therefore now formally consent to come forward as a candidate on the understanding agreed upon, viz., I hold myself responsible to the amount of 1,200*l.* towards the legal expenses, if the whole of this sum shall be required; and further, that this sum be expended first; say before the guarantee fund shall be called upon. This sum, however, it must be understood, is to be the maximum amount of my liability. Believe me to be, my dear Sir, yours truly, J. Bramley Moore." Now, having heard that, look at this guarantee of the 20th of April, produced by Mr. John Boulderson Barkworth, as to the 1,200*l.* Was the substance of that communicated to you by Mr. Ward in his letter of the 23d?—It is the first time that I have seen this, and the first time I have seen any sums put to the names.

70,887. Never mind the sums. I mean the substance and the terms. Would they not be incorporated in Mr. Ward's letter to you of three days earlier?—No, I should think not.

70,888. It is so much in the very language of your letter that it is almost supposed you had seen that, or something to that effect?—I dare say Mr. Ward's letter would be an echo of part of this.

70,889. You see that this letter of your own obviously must have been drawn with that or the very echo of it before you. I observe there are whole sentences the same?—It is very likely, and the substance of it to me would be this, that a guarantee fund had been formed, and probably mentioned the amount at the time, of which I have no recollection, but I do not know now the amount of that.

70,890. It is a little over 1,200*l.*?—I had no idea it amounted at that time to so much.

70,891. We may take it then that the substance of the document of the 20th of April must have been communicated to you in Mr. Ward's letter of the 23d?—So far that a guarantee fund had been mentioned to me, and probably the amount, and that my money should be expended first before they came on the guarantee fund; but nothing beyond that. I believe the proposition originated with myself to expend my money before they came upon the guarantee fund at all; but it would not go beyond 1,200*l.*

70,892. Was it upon that understanding that you became a candidate?—I did.

70,893. At that time we understand the second blue candidate was not known?—He was not in the field. I did not know anything about him.

70,894. It was known, I believe, that a second blue candidate would come forward, but the name of the gentleman was not known?—Not at that time.

70,895. Was it not known that a second candidate would come forward?—I think not so early as that. I think it was some time after.

70,896. Do you recollect this: whether that was made upon the supposition that there would be only one candidate or two?—It was not decided.

70,897. Not one way or the other?—I knew perfectly well it was not decided at that time whether there was to be a second candidate or not.

70,898. Whether there was or not, this was settled, that it would not make any alteration in your position?—Not the slightest.

70,899. How soon did you hear of a second candidate to come forward in the same interest for Hull?—I do not remember the date at all.

70,900. Was it before you made your entrance into Hull?—Yes, certainly.

70,901. It would be in June, would it not?—On the 10th of June; I think it was Thursday the 10th of June.

70,902. Is that the day that you came here?—Yes.

70,903. Did you remain here from the 10th of June until the election took place on the 8th of July?—No.

70,904. How long did you remain then?—I think that we remained only two or three days, and returned again on the 17th.

70,905. At that time, when you came here, during those two or three days, were the committees then organized to any extent; or not until your return on the 17th?—I should say not, to the best of my recollection; but I was introduced to certain parties the same night.

70,906. Can you give us the date of your introduction to Mr. Wells, the attorney?—No, indeed I cannot.

70,907. Was it during that short visit that you paid? We have him on the 12th making an agreement with the attorney on the other side relating to expenses?—I was no party to anything of that sort.

70,908. It is merely with reference to the date?—I cannot give you the date. I do not know whether I was first introduced to Mr. Wells on my first visit or the second.

70,909. At your first visit nothing very material probably occurred?—No; nothing very particular.

70,910. When did you hear of a second blue candidate coming forward?—I cannot tell you the date.

70,911. Was it before or after?—It was before.

70,912. A day or two, or probably before?—I should say more than that.

70,913. Was it before the 10th?—I say before the 10th; that I am certain.

70,914. When did you meet Mr. Butler first?—We met accidentally, I think, either at Normanton or at the Milford Junction, in the same carriage.

70,915. Was that on the occasion of your coming down the second time or the first?—I think it was the first.

70,916. You were not acquainted with him previously?—No; we became acquainted in the carriage.

70,917. Did you find him here when you returned on the 17th?—That I am not sure of. I think Mr. Butler went away and came back as well as myself.

70,918. Upon your second visit to Hull did you find then that the arrangement of the committees was pretty well organized?—I think what they call the central committee was organized; that there was one formed; but I know nothing about it myself personally.

70,919. You knew the fact that a central committee was organized, did you not?—Yes, I knew the fact; but I cannot speak to the fact at that time.

70,920. You do not fix the exact date?—No.

70,921. How soon was your attention drawn to the runners that were employed?—Never.

70,922. You began just now, and was going to say something about the runners, when I stopped you, because I thought it was premature. You observed some messengers. What is it you were going to tell us just now about your observations on the number of messengers?—I observed at the central committee there were messengers there, as a matter of course, but how they were engaged, or how paid, or anything, I know nothing at all about it.

70,923. Did you make any inquiries?—No, never.

70,924. Did you inquire whether they were voters or not?—No; I never meddled with anything, and made no inquiries.

70,925. Did none of those gentlemen mention it to you?—Mention what?

70,926. Mention to you that the messengers were principally voters, if not exclusively so?—I am not aware that I ever had any conversation upon the subject. It was no business of mine to meddle with their arrangements, and therefore I did not.

J. B. Moore, Esq.

3d August 1853.

70,927. I want to know how far they communicated to you what they were doing?—I do not think the subject was ever mentioned to me. I am not aware of it.

70,928. Did you occasionally go to the other committee rooms?—I never attended any. I might have gone to the central committee room. In fact I was in the habit of going there in the morning frequently to meet my canvassers. We made it a point of meeting, as being central, and then went off for the day, and frequently I got my letters there; they were taken there for me.

70,929. Was your attention ever directed to the names of the persons who were employed about the committee?—No, never.

70,930. Did you hear, for instance, the name of George Steeple mentioned?—As a matter of course he was there.

70,931. You knew his name?—I knew his name; he was in the committee room. I think he was the person that handed the letters to me when I went there in the morning.

70,932. Was your attention ever directed to the character that he bore in the borough?—Not at all.

70,933. I mean his electioneering character?—No, not at all; it was never volunteered to me, and I never made any inquiry; I had no reason for making any inquiry.

70,934. You observed nothing which excited your suspicion?—Not at all.

70,935. In the first instance, did you think there were more messengers than necessary?—I could form no opinion upon the subject.

70,936. Did you observe a change in the messengers; that two or three days there would be one set, and another day they would all be changed?—No, I did not. I know this, that sometimes when I wanted a messenger to send with a note I could not have one.

70,937. Did it never strike you, that the messengers were not always the same; that a change had taken place; one was displaced, and succeeded by another?—I never took the slightest notice. They might be changed or they might not; but I did not notice it.

70,938. It did not attract your attention?—No.

70,939. Did you ever make inquiries as to how the payments were being made?—Not at all. I never made any inquiries about money the whole time I was here.

70,940. And none volunteered?—And none volunteered.

70,941. Did you happen to hear at any time during the election of a person named Lidgard, but sometimes called Legitt?—No; I have no recollection of such a man.

70,942. Or of hearing the name mentioned?—I never heard the name, to the best of my belief, and I have no knowledge now who or what he is. I perhaps ought to state here the reason of having no knowledge of such a man, as his name may have been mentioned possibly in the course of the evidence, that I have read very little of the evidence; in fact, with the exception of Mr. Ward, I think I may say I have not read any on the blue side. I have got it all I believe unopened; I reserve it for a future opportunity.

70,943. I am asking of course as to time. You did not hear it at the time?—No; I never heard his name, to my knowledge.

70,944. Was anything said to you about the mode by which the attendance of any of the out-voters was to be obtained; removed voters is the more correct expression; voters who had ceased to become resident? Was anything said to you as to how their attendance was to be secured?—Not further than this: that I went along with my colleague to Barton, and I think to Hedon, and some other places, to address them. I know nothing about any arrangement to bring them here to vote.

70,945. You canvassed them, being in the neighbourhood, as you would anybody else?—Exactly.

70,946. During the progress of your canvass, had you any applications made to you for employment, or were any made in your presence?—I have had frequent applications to treat, and been asked in the street to give something what they call allowance, but I never in any single instance gave a farthing.

70,947. Independently of that, were you applied to for employment by people who wanted to be employed in or about the committee?—I think it is very possible I may have been asked, but I never gave any attention to it, further than saying, "I have nothing to do with you."

70,948. Did you refer them to the committee, or simply content yourself by saying, "I have nothing to do with you"?—I would not undertake to say whether I referred them to the committee, but certainly no conversation beyond that, or saying, "I know nothing at all about it; you must go to the committee or the proper parties."

70,949. Were you aware at any time during the contest, of the mode in which your committee dealt with applications when made direct to themselves?—No.

70,950. You never heard it?—No; I have only learnt that since from what has taken place here.

70,951. Perhaps you may have heard something of the books? Is it limited to that, that you have only heard it since this inquiry?—I have heard it mentioned since the election, but never before.

70,952. You did not at the time know how your committee were dealing with these matters?—Not in the least, and I am not aware that I ever saw a committee book or the contents of one.

70,953. Were you ever present when discussion arose at the committee room as to how the money was to be paid?—No, never.

70,954. Where you present at any time?—I am not aware that I was ever present at any proceedings of the committee.

70,955. Did you ever become acquainted with the fact, that your committee adopted the plan of withholding a portion of the wages of some of the persons employed by them?—No; I know nothing about their arrangements.

70,956. Never heard that that was adopted by them?—I am not aware that I ever heard such a thing.

70,957. Is it, to the best of your recollection and belief, that you never became acquainted with it, at all events till after the election was over?—I believe not; I do not even know it now. To the best of my recollection, I do not know anything of the sort.

70,958. What was the hour of the day when you used mostly to attend the committee; early in the morning?—I never attended a committee.

70,959. I mean when you went to the central room?—I should say early in the morning, generally by 9 o'clock, I met the gentlemen who were going to canvass with us in the day.

70,960. I will read a particular resolution. If you do not remember this one it will probably suffice. Did you hear this: "Upon the motion of Mr. West it was resolved that the resolution passed yesterday on the subject of the payment of the wages, or the runners or messengers and doorkeepers, be rescinded, and that the wages of the present week be paid in full, but that afterwards three fourths of the wages be only paid weekly until the conclusion of the election, when the balance will be paid; and that the district committees be paid accordingly"?—I never heard, it to my knowledge; but I think it was a very wise one.

70,961. Or the other resolutions to which it refers?—I never heard of any resolution, to the best of my knowledge.

70,962. Or the subsequent resolution, varying that which I have now read?—Never heard of it.

70,963. You know nothing of it?—Nothing whatever; this is the first time I heard of any resolution of the committee.

70,964. Why do you think it was a wise resolution?—To keep back payment to secure the men's services, certainly.

70,965. You paid the sum of 1,200*l.* to your treasurer or chairman?—I paid it to Mr. Ward.

70,966. And I dare say you have also heard that a subscription was also raised, and Mr. Butler contributed a like sum of 1,200*l.*?—Yes; but I do not know the amount of subscription. I know Mr. Butler paid the same sum as myself.

70,967. Do you know that any sum was contributed in London?—No.

70,968. You never heard of that?—I never heard of any.

70,969. You have never heard it said, that a sum of money was to be sent, but it did not arrive in time to be of any service?—No, never.

70,970. Do you believe that such a thing did not occur?—I believe that no such thing ever occurred. I think I should most likely have heard it if such a thing had occurred.

70,971. Supposing then it was said that some gentlemen connected with a club in London had sent down or intended to send down a sum of money in aid of the contest, you believe you would have been aware of that fact?—I think it is very likely that I should have heard it in London.

70,972. And you never heard it?—No, never.

70,973. I suppose you were not conusant of any of the payments made here?—Not a shilling.

70,974. Did you make any payments at all yourself towards the expenses of the election, or connected with the election, beyond the payment of the lumping sum of 1,200*l.*?—Not a shilling, that I know of.

70,975. Were you in any way conusant of a gentleman being sent to Grimsby for the purpose of bringing up some voters from there, and the terms on which he was to go?—No.

70,976. Were you aware of the sum of 200*l.* being placed in the hands of Mr. Bamford by Mr. Barkworth?—No, certainly not, by any other gentlemen. I know nothing whatever of any money payment, or any money transactions of any kind.

70,977. I am alluding to a certain sum that was put in Mr. Bamford's hands by Mr. Barkworth, to be applied in the mode they have described to us. Were you aware that the money was placed by the one in the hands of the other?—No; I know nothing about it; I never heard of it until yesterday.

70,978. You have heard it since, casually?—Yes; yesterday for the first time; I saw it in the paper yesterday.

J. B. Moore, Esq.

3d August 1853.

70,979. Had you ever been a candidate before you offered yourself for Hull?—Never.

70,980. Had you taken part at any time in elections at Liverpool?—Not with the management or working of the election.

70,981. Had you been upon committees at elections at Liverpool?—Not an active member of the committee; my name has been upon it, and I have attended public meetings.

70,982. I may suppose that you have advocated the Conservative interest in Liverpool; it would have been as one of that party?—Yes, certainly.

70,983. Had you assisted at all in elections at any other place previous to your coming to Hull?—Never. I had a proposition made to me before I came to Hull to go to another place, which I relinquished.

70,984. What borough was that?—I prefer not naming the borough.

70,985. Were you not aware as a matter of history,—you put in that shape yourself, I think,—that at most boroughs there was some corruption?—Certainly; as a matter of history it is notorious.

70,986. I think we have heard or read, upon high authority, that probably there is none without it; I dare say you would share in that opinion?—Not exactly.

70,987. Not to the full extent?—No; I may take, for example, Liverpool, where a very large sum of money was expended upon former occasions, and at the last election, although the members were unseated, I think, to the best of my belief, there was nothing intended as bribery.

70,988. But the resolution of the Committee who sat upon that occasion did in fact amount to this, that that money which was advanced by way of head money or customary payment amounted to bribery?—It was thought sufficient to unseat the members; but the real and plain fact, as far as bribery went, amounted to this, that the men had a day's wages given to them to make up for the loss of time in going to vote, and my firm belief is that that was not intended as bribery, but merely to make up the loss of time to a poor man who is to lose his day's wages through coming to vote.

70,989. I have read carefully the resolutions come to as the result of the labours of that Committee, and I am quite aware that it was on the 5*s.* a day payment that the result principally turned, and that that payment was presented to the House as a payment in the nature of a day's wages for loss of time?—It was.

70,990. But the result was that it was sufficient to unseat the members?—It turned out to be sufficient; but I think it was exceedingly hard upon those men.

70,991. Were you aware that such a system as the day's wages for loss of time was prevalent in Liverpool?—I knew that it had been done before.

70,992. Are you aware that there has been a customary payment, or that something which might amount, in the minds of those people, to a legal claim to some sum, had been made and allowed?—I cannot go to that extent.

70,993. In Liverpool, I mean?—I cannot go to that extent,—looking upon it as a legal claim.

70,994. I will leave out the word legal, and say as a claim put forward. Were you aware that for some time in Liverpool at elections, probably upon both sides, the payment of a sum of money in lieu of wages and for loss of time had been sanctioned and made?—I know it had been customary to do it.

70,995. Probably on both sides?—I should say upon both sides; I do not think there is any merit more for the one than for the other.

70,996. When you met these gentlemen at Normanton, did you understand that a contest in Hull was certain?—Certainly not; at that time it was uncertain.

70,997. When the sum of 1,200*l.* as your maximum was agreed to, it had no reference expressly to whether there would be a contest or not?—No; it was to be my maximum contribution in either case.

70,998. Was it represented,—for I do not remember now how the fact was,—that Mr. Clay and Lord Goderich were likely to be in the field, or that they were in the field?—I think not at that time; I think Mr. Clay it was understood was, but Lord Goderich was not spoken of at that time.

70,999. It was thought that he, as the sitting member, would wish to represent Hull again?—Certainly.

71,000. But Lord Goderich, you think, was not mentioned?—I think he was not spoken of at that time.

71,001. Mr. Baines was occupying the other seat at that time, and probably it was not known whether he would offer himself again in 1852; or was that alluded to?—I think not.

71,002. The sitting members at this time would have been Mr. Clay and Mr. Baines. I was merely drawing your attention to whether it was supposed that those two gentlemen would again ask for the seats, or that either would retire, or whether any allusion to a contest was made?—I think it was understood, but I will not be sure about this, that Mr. Baines would go to Leeds.

71,003. Taking it that it might be, from what occurred at Normanton, that there would be no contest at Hull, did it not occur to you that the sum 1,200*l.* was a large sum of money for an uncontested election?—My letter provided for that; it says, "Not necessary that that sum should be expended."

71,004. I am aware if there was any surplus that it would be returned to you?—Yes.

71,005. My question is, whether, supposing there was no contest, it did not occur to you that the deposit of 1,200*l.* was a large sum?—No; I should not say so, because in making an arrangement for an election you must take the contingencies into consideration, that there might be a contest; it does not follow that the money should be expended; but if you ask a candidate to come forward, I think it is reasonable that you should ask that candidate to put down a sum sufficient for the emergencies of the contest 71,006. Whatever it may be?—Yes; and it does not follow that you should spend that money.

71,007. I merely direct your attention to it, whether the sum occasioned any remarks from you in case there should not be a contest?—No.

71,008. Because I understand that an equal sum was to be had from the other candidate, whoever he might be?—The other gentleman was not mentioned.

71,009. But whoever it might be?—It was not understood that there would be another candidate at that time.

71,010. Knowing that corruption to some extent prevails generally, and knowing the system of the customary payment at Liverpool, did it not occur to you, when these matters were being considered, to ask whether there was any class of persons in Hull who come under the character of persons being paid?—I know nothing about the corruption in Liverpool; I was never any party to it.

71,011. I do not know that I said "corruption;" the customary payment, I meant to say. Knowing of the customary payment in Liverpool, and that corruption prevails generally in boroughs, did it not occur to you to make any inquiry as to whether there were any persons in Hull who generally had a payment?—No; I never inquired about the matter.

71,012. You have told me that you did not consider that the payment at Liverpool is at all in the nature of an illegal or an improper payment; I mean the payment for loss of time?—Certainly not given with a view of bribing the parties; certainly not.

71,013. But the payment in Hull being somewhat of a similar character, in the nature of a payment for loss of time, I wish to draw your attention to whether you inquired whether any such payment in respect of loss of time was made to any class of persons?—I never made the inquiry.

71,014. You were made aware, probably, of the extent of the constituency?—Yes.

71,015. The register containing between 4,000 and 5,000 names, I believe?—Yes.

71,016. Did you at all inquire what number of them would be freemen?—Well, I should think I did; I should think so.

71,017. We have ascertained that the old right of voting, before the Reform Bill, of freemen, extends to about 1,800, or thereabouts, at the present time; do you remember whether or not you had information that the old right extended so far?—I will not be sure as to the number, but I thought they were not quite so many as 1,800; but that is immaterial.

71,018. It was considerable?—Yes; it was considerable.

71,019. Did not that lead you at all to inquire whether they received the customary payment for it?—No, it did not.

71,020. Did Mr. Ward, or either of the other two gentlemen who accompanied him, make any statement to you with regard to a customary payment of these freemen?—No, I believe not.

71,021. Any customary payment?—No.

71,022. In the nature of a day or two, as employment, in the character of messengers?—No.

71,023. Not at all alluded to?—No; not at all alluded to. To the best of my belief I never inquired into any details in the management of an election here.

71,024. You were aware, you stated, as a matter of history, that there had been a considerable investigation as to Hull elections in 1837?—Yes; but I have no particulars of it.

71,025. But even that knowledge did not induce you to make the inquiry I have been alluding to?—No.

71,026. You knew that it was a bribery scrutiny which lasted many months?—Yes.

71,027. On passing on from the interview at Normanton, when you came to Hull to make your stay with reference to the approaching election, did you canvass daily?—Not immediately.

71,028. But how soon before the time of election?—After the second time that I came I should say that the canvass was daily, as far as practicable; there might have been days missed, but it was intended to be daily.

71,029. Perhaps that would occupy about a fortnight or ten days?—We never completed the canvass; it was not completed at all.

71,030. You returned on the 17th of June, and the election took place on the 8th of July?—Yes.

71,031. After you returned, your canvass was pretty active and constant?—Constant;

J. B. Moore, Esq.

3d August 1853.

I am not aware that there was any interruption to it; it was daily, or intended to be daily.

71,032. You say your course was to meet your canvassers at the central room at about nine o'clock, and then to proceed to the separate districts to which you were to apply yourselves?—Yes. We did not always meet at the central committee room, because sometimes it was more convenient to meet in another part of the town. If the canvass lay in another district more distant, it was more convenient to meet there; but we met more frequently in the general committee room than anywhere else.

71,033. I think you say that another reason was, that your letters were addressed to you there?—My letters were addressed to the care of Mr. Ward, and were sent there to meet me.

71,034. In the canvass you made some gentlemen would accompany you who had acquaintance with the district through which you were going?—Yes.

71,035. Would they be some members of the committee of that particular district?—Some of them, I have no doubt, would be, but not all.

71,036. They would of course have made to a certain extent a general canvass before you arrived?—I am not able to answer that; I do not know.

71,037. When they accompanied you, had they usually canvass books, and things of that kind, with them, to draw your attention to the persons whom you were to visit and call upon?—Yes.

71,038. Did not those books, as far as your memory goes, show who had promised, who were doubtful, who were against you, and who were neutral, and so on?—Yes.

71,039. And I should presume, where the vote had been promised, you would rather go and apply yourself to those who were doubtful, and see what they would have to say?—Whenever a voter gave me a decided answer, and said, "I have promised the opposite party," we usually said to him, "Then fulfil your promise;" and we passed on.

71,040. I mean when they had promised previously to your canvassers, you would rather pass on, and go to those who were doubtful?—It would be necessary, out of gratitude, to go and thank them for their support.

71,041. I thought you said that you had no time?—In the latter part of the canvass we did pass many who had promised, relying upon their good feelings, to save time.

71,042. I want to ask, when your attention was directed, which it frequently must have been, to doubtful voters, and when you made the canvass of the voters, did you not, in general, if they made application for employment of any kind, direct them to make it to some committee room?—I am not aware that I have; but there may have been one or two instances of that sort, but never entertained in any way by myself or my colleague.

71,043. Did you generally direct them to some committee room; would that have been the course?—I think it would. If it was an application for any sort of employment, the answer would invariably be, "We can do nothing in the matter."

71,044. And "You must apply to the district committee"?—Sometimes a man might ask to be a messenger. In that case we would never say anything about it, but that he must apply to the proper quarter as we knew nothing at all about them.

71,045. That would be your invariable practice?—Invariable.

71,046. You do not remember any single instance of entertaining an application of that kind beyond that?—No, I do not.

71,047. "You must apply to the proper quarter;" meaning the committee?—Yes.

71,048. Of the district in which the man was?—Yes.

71,049. When these persons, or some of them, occasionally made these applications to you, which you did not entertain, had you, not curiosity enough to ask your canvassers what it meant?—Not the slightest.

71,050. You think not?—No. A great many people were out of employment, and nothing could be more natural than that parties out of employment should ask to be employed.

71,051. You would not have need to ask the meaning of the application?—No; not at all.

71,052. You would understand the nature of the application, though you did not entertain it?—In what sense do you mean?

71,053. As being persons whom you have just stated yourself to be out of employment, and wanting work?—Yes.

71,054. You would understand the nature of their application to that extent?—I should understand that they wanted to be employed, and get something to do.

71,055 As connected with the election?—Yes; but about their voting, or being voters, I knew nothing at all; they might be non-voters, or they might be voters; but this occurred in very few instances, such applications to us.

71,056. We have evidence before us, however, I think I may say, from every committee, that applications for employment were very frequent, and that the names were put down to get employment if it could be found them?—I think that is very likely; but I knew nothing about it, and I never even gave a recommendation to a man.

71,057. You have stated that applications of this kind were very few to you?—Very few, indeed.

71,058. Did not some of the persons who you actually canvassed say they wished for employment, or were willing to be employed, or give that sort of answer to your personal canvass?—No doubt some few did.

71,059. And your answer to them would be of the same character you have mentioned?—Yes.

71,060. Directing them to go to your committee?—Yes.

71,061. Did Mr. Butler usually accompany you?—Generally. I should say I believe always. I am not aware that we ever convassed alone.

71,062. You did not go separately into different districts?—No, I think not.

71,063. Did you acquaint Mr. Butler with what had passed between yourself and the gentlemen at Normanton, when you first had the pleasure of meeting him?—I should no doubt make him acquainted with the only part that would concern him, which would be about the contribution of money; I do not think I should trouble him with conversation there; but I may or may not; I do not know.

71,064. Did you learn from him that he had agreed to find a similar sum at your first interview?—I did; but at the first interview I am not prepared to say that I did.

71,065. Not when you first met him at Milford?—No; but afterwards.

71,066. During your stay in Hull?—Yes; certainly.

71,067. During your canvass do you remember at any time any applications being made to you for committee rooms; I mean of the character that received payment of a certain sum of two or three guineas apiece; there has been a good deal of evidence as to them?—I am not aware of such an application being made to me.

71,068. For the employment of a room or the use of a room?—I am not aware of any.

71,069. For the use of rooms offered to you as committee rooms, in which case the sum of two or three guineas seems usually to have been the payment?—I am not aware of any applications ever having been made to me; it is possible they might, but I have no recollection whatever of such a thing; I do not think that ever such an application was made to me.

71,070. I believe after the money that you placed in Mr. Ward's hands came into his keeping, you never inquired at all as to the mode of disbursement?—Never.

71,071. Did you at any time put any limit at all upon the nature or character of his payments?—Not in the slightest; I know nothing about any payments up to this hour; I have never made any inquiry.

71,072. Mr. Ward has shown us a book of his expenditure very carefully kept; did he ever furnish you with a copy or list of payments, or the mode in which the money had been disbursed?—Never.

71,073. Did you never go through the accounts of the election with him at any time?—Never; I never saw an account.

71,074. In what way, if any, did you hear from him, whether the sum advanced had been enough to cover the election, or not?—I do not think that I ever heard from Mr. Ward upon the subject.

71,075. You never, I believe, received any surplus?—No, I did not; I never made any inquiry about it.

71,076. And Mr. Ward never communicated to you that there was none?—No.

71,077. Do you not remember whether, at the final close of the business, he did not communicate to you in some way as to all the accounts being paid, and as to the nature of the disbursements?—No, never; I never had any communication whatever about a single payment, and I knew nothing whatever of how it was expended; I was satisfied that it was expended, and therefore it was immaterial to me to have the particulars; I was perfectly satisfied that I was in honourable hands.

71,078. As a man of business, I would ask you, if you had placed a sum of 1,200*l.* in the hands of an agent, and part of the condition was that the whole of it possibly might not be expended, whether you would not expect to know from that agent at some time or another whether the whole had been expended or not?—Pardon me; I do not think there is any analogy between the two cases.

71,079. If my question is not quite in form, I say "agent," because I suppose you admit Mr. Ward was your agent?—He certainly acted as my agent in the matter; I gave him the money.

71,080. He was your principal agent, I may call him, without mistating his position?—Yes.

71,081. And you had paid 1,200*l.* into his hands?—Yes.

71,082. Coupled with a condition that if all was not spent you were to have an account of the surplus?—I am quite satisfied Mr. Ward would have returned an account.

71,083. Am I not right?—If you treat that as a matter of business, as a mercantile transaction, most undoubtedly I should have an account of the expenditure of every farthing; but I do not think there is any analogy between a mercantile transaction and contributing towards an election. I being perfectly satisfied that the money was expended, and perfectly satisfied of the honour of the parties in whose hands I placed myself, I think it would have been perfectly superfluous in me, and almost an insult, to ask for any particulars for that account.

J. B. Moore, Esq.

3d August 1853.

71,084. Mr. Ward has stated that he was most anxious that all persons connected with the election should see how he had disbursed every farthing?—I have no doubt of it.

71,085. And he had prepared his accounts with the greatest accuracy. We have his book before us, and he said more than once that he was most anxious that everybody should know how he had disbursed everything.

71,086. Therefore it occurred to me, as you were a person intimately connected with that 1,200*l.*, that it would be almost of course that you should be informed, as well as the others, of the mode of disbursement?—I never had any curiosity upon the subject myself, and I never made any inquiry, and I am in perfect ignorance how the money was expended; but I am perfectly satisfied that it was properly expended.

71,087. Tell me how you knew that the whole had been expended?—I do not know that further than this: that I know such a sum would be inadequate for the expenses of a contest in a place like Hull, where there are necessary expenses that must, as a matter of course, involve the expenditure of a great deal of money.

71,088. I asked you that question, because you stated more than once that you were satisfied that all had been expended?—I was satisfied that a large sum must have been expended from that, and I know also, from the first part of this inquiry, that a larger sum was expended.

71,089. That would be knowledge that you had acquired from this inquiry?—Yes; it is so.

71,090. But we are now referring to antecedent times?—I felt satisfied in my own mind,—I had no knowledge whatever of it,—but I felt satisfied in my own mind that that would be inadequate to cover the expenses of a contested election.

71,091. I still must ask you, putting aside the mercantile shape of it, whether in a matter of advancing 1,200*l.*, in which under certain circumstances a portion might be returnable to you, whether you would not expect to know eventually whether there was anything to be returned or not?—I regarded it in this way: as my contribution towards the election, and I never exercised any further curiosity about the matter. I never made any inquiry, and I never wished for any information upon the subject.

71,092. You must allow me to put this question to you: did you think that an inquiry, or an expression of curiosity, if I may say so, of that kind, might have disclosed payments that you would not approve of?—Not in the least.

71,093. You did not think so?—No; what use would it be to me? I was perfectly satisfied of the expenditure of the money, and what use would it have been to me to trouble me with the particulars of it.

71,094. I could suggest several uses; it might be very useful with regard to a petition, and it might be very useful in various shapes to know how the money was disbursed?—Possibly, if I had been returned, and there had been a petition presented against me, then it might have been a reason for my inquiring; but not being in that position, there was no occasion for it.

71,095. You did not think it would be reasonable, in order to guard against a petition, to see how the disbursements were being made at the time?—No; I was perfectly satisfied that the gentlemen would not do anything improper.

71,096. Have you not since learnt in the course of this inquiry that a great deal of money was expended in the nature of employment of runners.?—Yes, I have.

71,097. Perhaps you would think that that would rather class itself under the customary payment, as at Liverpool, than as improper payment?—No; there are no such parties employed in Liverpool.

71,098. Not precisely the same kind?—Certainly not in the manner in which I see they have been employed here.

71,099. You would not class it in the same category with the customary payment at Liverpool?—No.

71,100. Then, without using the word "illegal," would you think that it savoured more of bribery than the customary payment at Liverpool?—That is a matter of opinion. I should say, certainly that it does.

71,101. I ask the question because you put them in a different category yourself?—I heard it stated in the Court yesterday, that a man received 30*s.* pay for one day's work, or two days' work, therefore I cannot class them in the same category; there is a very wide difference between them.

71,102. I may tell you that the evidence before us is this: that on the part of the orange the time was generally six days, and on the part of the blues generally four days; and it has been stated by more than one witness, that that difference of the two days lost the blues the election?—If it was wrong on the part of the blues to pay four days, it was exactly fifty per cent. more wrong on the part of the orange to pay six.

71,103. We are not inquiring which is the worst. I did not ask any questions about that. I merely stated it in that way as showing the nature of the employment and the time of employment, as distinguished from what you said was customary at Liverpool, and as to the complexion that would be put upon that transaction here as distinguished from Liverpool. I understood you to say that it assumed much more the chaaacter of bribery here?—Yes, I should say so; but all this I have only learnt since this inquiry.

71,104. I put it distinctly to you from what you have learnt from the evidence?—Yes, just so.

71,105. When, before the election took place, in conversation or otherwise, you made use of the word bribery, did you mean to include in the word "bribery" the payment to a man of a sum of money for the loss of his time on the polling day?—I never entertained the question at all.

71,106. Was it passing in your mind to include under the words which you yourself used payment of the day's wages to a man for the loss of his pay in going to poll?—No. Allow me to add what I understood to be bribery.

71,107. I merely ask what you did not consider bribery?—That question of days' wages is a question that never passed my mind at all. What I should consider bribery would be giving a man colourable employment, or paying him a sum of money for his vote.

71,108. I purposely put it to you in very precise terms. Did you mean to include, when you made use of the word "bribery" in April last, a prohibition to pay the man his day's wages for the loss of his time on the polling day?—It never crossed my mind.

71,109. We have had evidence that on the day preceding the election there was a plan suggested for getting quick information from the poll to the various districts, by which the employment of a great additional number of messengers would be needed; did you hear of that plan upon the day previous to or on the day of the election?—I am not aware that I did.

71,110. It is called Mr. Wells's scheme, although some other gentleman claimed a share in the merit of the invention?—I do not know anything about it; but I know this, that on the day of election I was told during the day that messengers had been employed by the blue party, and that in the morning they were in great fault, that about sixty in one district had been taken away by the orange party. Of course of the fact I know nothing; but I have no doubt there was a distress that morning for messengers, and that they had been abstracted by some means or another from the service of the blues.

71,111. You do not quite meet my question. Part of this scheme was in the nature of what are called clearing houses; two rooms were taken from whence the information was to be sent to the different districts, of the state of the poll as it could be got from time to time during the day; and the information was to be sent from the clearing houses by means of a considerable number of messengers, who were engaged and actually selected upon the day of nomination. Did you hear of the clearing houses, and the proposed employment of those additional messengers?—I do not remember ever having heard anything about the clearing houses before. I think it is very probable that arrangements may have been made for extra messengers to convey the information; but I know nothing about it.

71,112. Did you hear, independent of that, that a short time previously the number of messengers had been increased by 108?—No.

71,113. And then by the clearing houses it was proposed to increase them by 477 more?—I knew nothing about the numbers. I heard that extra committee rooms had been taken by the opposition party.

71,114. And did you hear that that was retaliated in the same mode?—I was coming to that; that it involved the necessity, in fact a defensive necessity, of having more committee rooms in certain districts.

71,115. Did you hear that those committee rooms were taken by the orange party in some instances for the purpose of obtaining the votes of the parties?—I have heard as much as that.

71,116. You heard it at the time, I mean?—Yes, at the time; not exactly for obtaining votes.

71,117. For the purpose of influencing the vote of the person who was the owner of the house; did you hear that?—I did.

71,118. And did you hear that your own party retaliated by adopting the same measure?—I heard that they had taken extra committee rooms also.

71,119. Did you hear also that the orange party adopted this: that they took extra committee rooms for the purpose of increasing their staff of persons employed?—I did.

71,120. Did you hear that in that respect also the blue party followed the example?—We followed the example of taking extra committee rooms.

71,121. Did you understand that your party were taking rooms as a retaliation?—I only heard of the fact, that they were forced into it by the blue party having taken extra committee rooms.

71,122. I do not ask what you heard, but what you understood; did you understand it was a mode of retaliation?—I should say yes.

71,123. And then it was that your party in their turn were to take rooms in order to secure votes?—I suppose that would be the object.

71,124. Was it your understunding at the time?—I was no party to it in any way whatever.

71,125. I do not ask you that; but was that your understanding of it at the time; was that in your mind?—To increase their staff, no doubt.

71,126. You heard that the blue party were taking rooms to secure the votes of the runners?—I suppose that was the object.

71,127. You thought so at the time?—Yes.

J. B. Moore, Esq.

3d August 1853.

71,128. Did you think, when you heard that your party were taking extra rooms, that they were taking them for the same purpose?—I think it is very likely.

71,129. You did think so then?—I thought so. I had no knowledge that they did, but I thought so.

71,130. You heard also that the orange party were taking rooms for the purpose of increasing the number of their messengers?—Yes.

71,131. And that again was in order to secure their votes?—I suppose so.

71,132. You thought so; that is all?—Yes.

71,133. Did you think that that also was to be retaliated by your party?—I thought so. I thought there was some object, to give them influence in the election.

71,134. Before you came to Hull, had you at all considered what was the machinery of conducting an election?—Not at all.

71,135. Had it never crossed your mind what would be the principal heads of expense? No; I never went into any particulars of any kind.

71,136. I do not ask you as to the amount of those expenses in Hull, but what would be the ordinary machinery of conducting an election?—No; I never gave the subject any consideration, further than a general one, that there would be a great deal of expense in printing, in cabs, and other necessary machinery.

71,137. That is just what I ask you. Give me the other heads of what you suppose would be the ordinary machinery?—I never considered it.

71,138. Did you think that there would be printing, and cabs, and colours?—I never considered the thing in its details.

71,139. Before you came to Hull, you understood that there were to be two candidates?—In the first instance?

71,140. Before you entered finally on the contest, you understood, or you knew, that there were to be two candidates, and that they were each to pay 1,200*l.*?—No.

71,141. Did you not?—No; there was only one, myself.

71,142. That was at Normanton, I understand?—Yes.

71,143. But before you actually began to canvass in Hull yourself personally you knew that there were two blue candidates?—Yes.

71,144. And that they were each to pay 1,200*l.*?—Yes.

71,145. And that there was to be a guarantee fund?—That there was to be a guarantee fund, and that I was not to be liable beyond the 1,200*l.*

71,146. And that the guarantee fund was not to be touched until the money of both the candidates had been expended?—No; I said nothing about the other candidate.

71,147. Did you not know, before you actually began to canvass in Hull, that that was so?—No, I did not. I knew nothing about Mr. Butler's arrangements, except that he had to give 1,200*l.* Any conditions connected with his money I never knew anything about; but I think it is probable it would be precisely similar to my own; but I know nothing of that fact.

71,148. Did you not think so at that time?—I never gave the question a thought. If I did I have no doubt that I should consider it in that light.

71,149. Had you not been informed before that time that if there was a contested election in Hull the guarantee fund would in all probability be touched?—Of course it would; that is, when our money had been expended.

71,150. Therefore at that time your estimate of the expenditure would be that it would be more than 2,400*l.*?—I never made any estimate whatever.

71,151. What was your thought about it?—I never thought of any precise sum beyond the question of giving that money, and if it was sufficient, well and good; all that I was anxious for was that I would not embark in a thing without knowing the extent of it, and therefore, in giving the 1,200*l.*, I knew that that was the maximum sum that I should be called upon to pay, and beyond that I cared nothing at all about it.

71,152. You have told me that you thought the guarantee fund would be touched?—No, I did not say so.

71,153. Would in all probability?—I think it is very likely it might; but I have no means of giving a decided opinion upon that.

71,154. I am asking your opinion and the state of your mind at that time. You told me you thought at that time in all probability that the guarantee fund would be touched?—I think it is quite possible.

71,155. Does not it follow that you thought at that time in all probability that the expenditure would be more than 2,400*l.*?—Yes; but I thought at the same time it might be under that. I had no means of judging of that expense.

71,156. You have given that answer, that in all probability it would be more than 2,400*l.*?—Yes; and there was an equal probability that it might be less. In the first instance there was only Mr. Clay and myself.

71,157. I am asking you at the time you began your personal canvass, and when you knew that Mr. Butler was here, and when you were informed that he was to subscribe 1,200*l.* If I understand you rightly, you thought in your own mind that that 1,200*l.* was given upon the same terms as your own?—I think it is likely, but I do not know anything about it.

71,158. I want to ask you whether at that time it had not struck your mind that in all probability the expenses would be more than 2,400*l.*?—I think it may have crossed my mind that it might be more, but as to any sum, more or less, certainly I never knew of.

71,159. Was not the condition of your mind at that time, that in all probability the expenses would be more than 2,400*l.*?—I think it is probable that might be so.

71,160. Upon that did it never occur to you to consider how that sum of 2,400*l.* was to be expended?—No.

71,161. You have said that you thought the printing was a necessary part of an election; did you ever consider what might be the expense of printing?—Not at all.

71,162. We have heard yesterday that in a contested election, where the candidate put his main influence, as he supposed, in the printing,—that is, Colonel Thompson,—the printing of his speeches and cards,—that it cost him 120*l.*; has it ever occurred to you that the expense could reach beyond that?—I never considered the subject as to an amount; but now, that the question is put to me, I should say that 120*l.* would not pay the immense number of placards that I saw the town covered with, and printing; but I have no means of knowing it.

71,163. Did it ever occur to you that the bare printing bills for the purposes of the election could amount to anything like 400*l.*?—I have no idea, and I am really not competent to give an opinion upon it, as I have never seen any of the accounts.

71,164. You spoke of cabs; did it strike you that 200*l.* would be a fair price for cabs?—I have no idea at all. I do not know how many cabs there are in Hull; but I believe that 800 cabs were engaged on one occasion, at two guineas each, in Liverpool, and there would be 1,600 guineas at once.

71,165. Mr. Ward's account shows an item for messengers or runners, as we call them here, of 1,300*l.*?—I know nothing about it.

71,166. As I understand you, that is no part of the calculation that would be in your mind?—No; I never heard of runners until afterwards.

71,167. I only ask you, as a man of business, how did it strike you that the sum of 2,400*l.* could be expended?—I can only say that I never considered the subject in its details, and, beyond knowing my own liability, I cared nothing at all about it; I was perfectly satisfied.

71,168. We have heard that a contested election in Hull, fiercely contested, cost a candidate 400*l.*; that therefore, would seem to be a sum fit to cover the necessary expenditure?—I am very much surprised at that.

71,169. It never crossed your mind that a sum exceeding that by 2,000*l.* would be excessive?—It is the first time I have heard of such a sum, and I confess it appears to me to be a very absurd sum for a contested election,—400*l.*, judging by analogy.

71,170. You did know that there were certain items on which there is a large expense?—They are palpable.

71,171. What are they?—You cannot have committee rooms without great expense; you require cabs; you require to advertise; you require printing and other incidental expenses, I have no doubt, which do not occur to my mind.

71,172. For what purpose do you consider that those expenses are necessary?—They are usual. I cannot say whether they are useful or not.

71,173. Did you think that there was any use in them?—I never thought upon the subject, because it never concerned me. These are matters done by your committee.

71,174. I understand you had a strong objection to either bribery or treating?—Yes.

71,175. And your objection was expressed in those terms?—Yes.

71,176. Had you an objection to a certain influence being exercised by an expenditure of money?—For improper purposes, certainly; but you must expend money, as I said before.

71,177. But what I want to know is, whether your desire was to keep within the letter of the law, or whether it was to prevent any influence from money considerations in any way operating upon the voters?—That is rather a difficult question to answer. I should say, certainly to keep within the letter of the law.

71,178. Then you did not object to the vote of a person being influenced by a money consideration, provided that could be done within the letter of the law?—I have not said so.

71,179. I ask you that; did you object to it?—I never objected, and I never assented.

71,180. Did you mean the committee and the persons conducting the election upon your behalf to understand that you were objecting to a breach of the law, or to a breach of the morals?—The question was never discussed; and if by any colourable employment of money, I should say I certainly objected.

71,181. Was that on the ground that the colourable employment would be a breach of the law?—The question was never discussed, and never entertained in any way.

71,182. I am asking your intention. When you expressed yourself that you objected to bribery and treating, did you mean that you objected to a breach of the law which would endanger your election, or did you object to the influence of money being exercised upon the voters, so as to influence their votes?—I objected to the employment of the money in any way for improper purposes in influencing votes.

71,183. That is rather too large a term. By "improper" do you mean a breach of the law that would endanger the election?—I do not know anything that is improper that would not be a breach of the law

J. R. Moore, Esq.

3d August 1853.

71,184. Do you consider any influence improper that would not be a breach of the letter of the law?—No, not to that extent, because you might exercise an influence over a man; intimidation; or you might threaten him in the way of advantage in his business, or what not; and certainly I would not countenance anything of the kind.

71,185. Supposing that you could influence a man by pecuniary considerations, so as not to commit a breach of the law, had you any objection to that?—I do not see how that could be done; because if you influence him through pecuniary considerations it must be a breach of the law. I should say so; but you are more competent to give an opinion upon that than I am.

71,186. I am asking for the state of your mind at the time. I want to know what is your meaning by using the word treating and bribery? I want to know whether you meant any influence of money to be exercised upon the voters?—I may answer at once, that I did not.

71,187. Then all you wished to be expended at the election at Hull was the money necessary for the actual machinery of the election?—Yes.

71,188. And that that should be the smallest sum possible?—I cannot say the smallest sum possible, but as small as practicable.

71,189. That is to say, for the necessary machinery, without any regard to the influence it might have upon the constituency?—Yes. It is supposed that placards may have an influence, and therefore money is expended in printing with an object, and for the purpose of influencing voters; but not corruptly.

71,190. Then you intended to convey to your committee by those words that you objected to bribery and treating, that you objected to any influence being used by an expenditure of money?—Yes; any improper influence.

71,191. I do not understand the word "improper;" but any influence arising from the expenditure of money?—Allow me to put this: take distant voters; you cannot bring voters from a distance without providing them with conveyances, and I should say that a conveyance or no conveyance might induce a man in certain circumstances to come and tender his vote or not; therefore the employment of that money, to convey him to town from a distance like Hedon, for example, might decide him, and that would be so far a money influence; but I do not call that an improper money influence.

71,192. Then am I to conclude that the sum of 2,400*l.* appeared to you to be the smallest sum that was necessary for the machinery of an election?—I cannot answer that in that way, because I have no decided opinion upon the subject, as I said before. All I cared about was to know my own liability; it might be too much or it might be too little.

71,193. I only want to understand the state of your mind. You objected to a money influence being exercised upon any voter?—I did.

71,194. And yet, when you heard that the orange party were taking extra and unnecessary committee rooms, for the purpose of influencing the votes of the owners, you made no objection when you thought that your party was retaliating in the same way?—I did not hear so much as that. I heard that the orange party were taking extra committee rooms, and I inferred that their object was of course to extend their influence in the election; it would be unfair in me to say what they did, or what the precise object might be, except by inference; and therefore, whatever it might be, a similar course was forced upon the blue party, to take extra committee rooms also; but this I merely heard casually. I did not hear it from my committee, or from any of the persons connected with me. I heard it casually in the course of conversation.

71,195. You answered before, twice, that you heard and you thought that the orange were taking committee rooms for the purpose of influencing the votes of the owners?—No; not exactly the votes of the owners; yet I think it is a fair inference.

71,196. Then what I say is this, that you thought your own party were retaliating in the same way?—Yes.

71,197. That is, they were taking rooms for the purpose of influencing the vote of the owner?—Yes; a similar course.

71,198. And you made no objection?—I had no means of knowing that was the object; but I certainly heard conversations to that effect.

71,199. And you thought so at the time, in your own mind, that it was the fact?—I think it was.

71,200. And you did not object to it? You did not tell them not to do it?—No.

71,201. Was not that wholly inconsistent with what you now say? Were your instructions to them that they should not use money as a means of influencing any vote?—I never gave instructions of any kind; and if these extra committee rooms were taken, it became a necessity, and it might be for the object of securing the vote of the party who let the room; but of that I have no knowledge at all; none whatever.

71,202. It seems to me that that conduct of yours towards the end of the election was inconsistent with what you say was your meaning at the beginning. Will you explain that? Was it a change of mind upon seeing what the orange party were doing, or do you still say that you did intend that no money influence should be exercised?—I not only intended that at the beginning, but all throughout.

71,203. Then how do you explain it, you did not interfere when you found your parties retaliating upon the orange, by exercising a money influence?—No. I think what I say is this: that extra committee rooms were taken; this is what I heard as mere rumour. I do not think it was for me to go and volunteer to ask my committee, "Are you doing so and so for this object?" I never interfered in anything. I left the thing entirely in their hands. Nor do I know the fact why these committee rooms were taken, except that I infer they were taken for the furtherance of the election by the orange party in the first instance, and then the thing was forced upon the blues also.

71,204. Did you purposely abstain from interfering at all with your committee?—I cannot say that I purposely abstained; the thing never engaged my attention or thought, for we were occupied from nine in the morning generally until ten or eleven or twelve at night, and I never interfered or meddled with anything; it is perfectly compatible that this may have taken place, that it might have crossed my mind, and that I should never take any notice of the subject. I knew nothing of it. I heard such a thing, and that is all.

71,205. You say you thought it would not have been your business to interfere with what your committee were doing?—If I had known that they were doing anything of that sort, I think it would have been my duty to interfere, if they were doing anything improper; but I knew nothing of this, nor do I know it now.

71,206. It having crossed your mind that it was being done, you did not think it right to ask your committee whether it really was being done?—I never gave the subject any further thought. You hear a great many things, and you might do nothing else but occupy the time of your committee by asking questions. I am not aware that I ever brought any subject before the committee, or interfered in any way whatever.

71,207. Did you purposely abstain from interfering or inquiring into the conduct of your committee, or into the amount of expenditure that they were incurring?—Purposely abstained from inquiring. I had no object in inquiring. I was satisfied about their expenditure.

71,208. I put it directly to you: Was any part of the motive for your not inquiring an idea that the candidate had better not inquire?—Please to repeat your question?

71,209. Was any part of the motive which actuated you in not inquiring, an idea in your mind that at elections the candidates had better not inquire?—I think it is possible that that might have operated, with being satisfied also. I think this, that the less a candidate meddles and knows the better, if he is satisfied that he is in proper hands.

71,210. I want to know whether you mean by proper hands, safe hands?—The word "safe" is rather a word that you can put more than one meaning upon. What I mean is, being in the hands of gentlemen who will not compromise you or compromise themselves.

71,211. Compromise you in what way?—By not doing anything that is improper or illegal.

71,212. By not doing anything that is illegal. You knew the 2,400*l.* might be expended —Yes.

71,213. And you thought it better, if I understand you, not to inquire how it was spent?—I cannot say that; you must not put it entirely upon the footing of thinking it better not to inquire. I never gave the matter any consideration. I never wished to know how it was expended, inasmuch as I felt a conviction that if it was not expended that any balance would be handed back to me; and if it was expended, what was the use of my inquiring into particulars? I had no curiosity upon the subject at all.

71,214. Was it because you did not wish to know the mode in which they might have expended that money? Was that any part of your motive?—I cannot say that that was exactly the motive.

71,215. I do not ask you whether that was the sole motive, or exactly the motive, but whether any part of the motive was, that you did not wish to know the mode in which that sum of money had been expended?—I had no desire to know how it had been expended.

71,216. Supposing that this was to be the fact, that, striking out all the money paid to persons for loss of time upon the polling day, either days' wages or anything else, striking that out, and the items of expenditure were reduced below 2,400*l.*, should you consider yourself entitled to claim any money back? Do you understand the question?—Not very well.

71,217. Supposing that a sum of money has been expended in paying voters the day's wages for loss of their time upon the polling day, and supposing that striking off all those sums of money reduced the whole amount expended below 2,400*l.*, do you consider yourself entitled to have any money back?—If the day's wages were struck off.

71,218. I do not know whether I make myself understood. I wish to be very precise in the question, and therefore I will put it again. Supposing that there is an item in the account for day's wages, being the one day's wages for the number of persons who voted for you, and who are paid a reasonable day's wages for the loss of their time upon the polling day, that, striking that item off, the whole amount expended in the election is reduced below 2,400*l.*, then do you consider yourself entitled to the return of a portion of your 1,200*l.*?—If it is struck off of any other item, reducing the sum below 2,400*l.*

71,219. I wish you would answer yes or no, in the form I put it?—Then I should consider that I should be entitled to any surplus to be returned to me.

71,220. I am supposing it has been expended, but if expended without your authority

J. B. Moore, Esq.

3d August 1853.

it must be struck off; therefore the proposition I put to you is this: Supposing in point of fact the expenditure of 3,600*l.* should be thus, 2,300*l.* for various sums of money, legitimate we will say, and 1,300*l.* had been expended in the payment of day's wages of 5*s.* a day, or any other reasonable sum, and consequently by taxing off from the 3,600*l.* that 1,300 it would bring the gross expenditure below 2,400*l.*, do you consider yourself entitled to anything back, considering that you have a right to tax off that item as money expended without your authority?—I should be entitled to any return under 2,400*l.*

71,221. That is not an answer to my question. Should you consider yourself entitled to tax that item off, so as to bring it below 2,400*l.*?—I may or I may not be entitled.

71,222. I will put the question another way. Do you consider, if any money has been paid for day's wages, that that has been paid wholly contrary to your instructions; if it follows that argument, you are entitled to have it back?—If such payment has been made contrary to my instructions.

71,223. If it has been made at all, has it been contrary to your instructions, according to the view you take of it?—I never gave any instructions further than what I have stated.

71,224. I want to know the view that you put upon your own instructions. Therefore take this hypothesis, with a view to test the accuracy of your own instructions?—I never gave any instructions of any kind or description to regulate the committee, further than this, that I would not be party to any bribery or treating, and by that I mean to the improper expenditure of money. If any money has been paid to persons which should be struck off as an improper expenditure, and it brought the sum under the sum which I gave, I should be entitled to claim the difference, whatever it might be.

71,225. Now what I want to know is this; we will reject the words "improper," "illegal," and everything of that kind, I simply want to know this fact: Whether, supposing an item is in the accounts, consisting of a number of men for runners, any number, made up of items of day's wages for the loss on the polling day, has that money, in your view of your own instructions, been expended contrary to your instructions? That is a very simple question, and can be answered yes or no.—It is not so simple.

71,226. Be so good as to answer it yes or no, and then make your explanation afterwards? I do not ask you whether it is legal or illegal or improper?—Your question is, if I understand you right, that any money paid to a man for a day's wages for going to give his vote, if it brought the sum under 1,200*l.*, whether I should be entitled to the balance? Is that the question?

71,227. Yes. Whether you could have turned round to the committee, and said, "You have done this without my sanction or authority, gentlemen; pay it out of your own pockets, and give me back the balance?"—I should say, if I understood your question, I should be entitled to it, if that was an improper expenditure.

71,228. That is not the thing. I do not say "if." That begs the whole question. You leave it to the other persons to decide whether it is proper or not.—I do not know whether it is proper or improper.

71,229. That does not answer the question. I want to know your view of it. It is a mercantile business. As a man of business, perfectly familiar, I take for granted, with these matters, if a man spends your money without your authority you are entitled to call upon him to pay it back again?—Just so.

71,230. And of course you would consider yourself the best judge of your own instructions?—I gave no instructions, as I said before, and this may or not be a proper payment.

71,231. Does it come to this, that you cannot answer the question?—I cannot answer the question.

71,232. You have said the understanding of your committee was that there should be no bribery or treating?—Yes.

71,233. Then, supposing money to have been given, I mean for employment, which may be thought to be within the letter of the law, and yet such a payment as did influence his vote, should you consider that that was beyond the understanding?—We had no precise understanding.

71,234. I will put the question another way. It has been in point of fact decided to be beyond the strict letter of the law to pay a man this 5*s.* or any other reasonable sum for his day's wages. Assuming that, should you consider yourself entitled then to demand it back, or are you prepared to demand it back?—I may be entitled to demand it, but I certainly should not; certainly not.

71,235. Then, as far as this, whether it was or was not legal or illegal you did not understand, not having made up your own mind upon the question, when you gave the instructions; you left the committee to interpret it?—I never considered the question before.

71,236. You left the committee to interpret what was legal or illegal?—I left them to do just what they pleased that was legal or proper.

The Honourable CHARLES LENNOX BUTLER sworn, and examined.

71,237. You were lately a candidate for the representation of Hull in Parliament—I was.

71,238. Had you, previous to becoming a candidate for the borough, any connexion with it; any local connexion with it?—None whatever.

71,239. Your subsequent connexion with it was of a political nature?—Yes.

71,240. When was the subject first mentioned to you?—Early in the month of June 1852. I think it was the 4th or 5th of June; I am not quite sure which.

71,241. Not before that?—No.

71,242. Who was the application to you first made by; do you remember?—I think it was by Mr. Barkworth.

71,243. By some gentleman from Hull?—By some gentleman from Hull. I think the first I heard it from was Colonel Forrester.

71,244. I am taking it in the order of time. Do you think Colonel Forrester's communication was before that of these gentlemen from Hull?—Five minutes before.

71,245. After they arrived?—They arrived, and saw Colonel Forrester, and he saw me, and spoke to me. He mentioned that some gentlemen wished to see me.

71,246. At the time that that occurred, were you aware that Hull was rather an expensive place?—I am not aware that I ever heard of it, except as associated with two other places; Hull, some other place, and Halifax. That is the only knowledge I ever had of it. I do not think that I ever heard of it in any other way.

71,247. Had you much communication with Colonel Forrester before these gentlemen were introduced to you?—Only that he mentioned to me there were a couple of gentlemen below, from Hull, who wished to see me.

71,248. Did he associate it with those two other places?—No, he did not.

71,249. Did he mention to you anything about the expensive nature of the place?—Did who mention it?

71,250. Colonel Forrester?—No, he did not.

71,251. Was it simply a casual conversation?—It was an occasional conversation, that there were two gentlemen below who wished to see me below stairs. It was in the club house; the Carlton Club.

71,252. Nothing upon the subject of expenses was named by Colonel Forrester?—I do not remember that there was.

71,253. Then you had an interview with the deputation?—With the deputation.

71,254. Was the subject of the expense of a contest at Hull alluded to?—It was not only alluded to, but very fully entered upon.

71,255. Just tell us, if you please, your recollection, as nearly as you can at this distance of time, what occurred upon that occasion?—When I went down into the waiting-room, there were these two gentlemen, Mr. Barkworth and Mr. Harris, who stated to me that they had come from Hull, as a deputation, to seek another candidate for the representation of the borough; that they had received a list of names (I do not know exactly how many); but that as soon as they saw my name on it they at once pitched upon me as a fit and proper person, and they asked me if I was willing to become a candidate. I said I should like to know the town, and the expenses, first. They then stated that the expense to a Conservative candidate was limited to 1,200*l.*; that was all they expected a candidate to pay.

71,256. Just tell us the whole conversation, as nearly as you can in the order in which it occurred?—They wished another blue candidate (I mention the word "blue" merely to distinguish the parties); they wished another blue candidate. I asked if there were other candidates already in the field. They mentioned that there were; that Lord Goderich, Mr. Clay, and Mr. Bramley Moore were candidates; Lord Goderich and Mr. Clay in the orange interest, and Mr. Bramley Moore in the blue. I asked why there was to be a contest; and the answer was, it was not the intention on the part of the blues to have any contest, but it was fairly forced on them by the other party introducing a candidate at a late period, when it was not expected. I said, "Are you sure that 1,200*l.* is the sum; "that it will not cost more?" and they said, "Yes, certainly it will not"; that the corrupt practices that prevailed in Hull on former occasions would not, they hoped, be repeated upon the present; and there was a fair probability of a pure election. They also stated that a subscription was entered into by the blues for the purpose of meeting any expense that might be incurred, supposing corrupt practices were adopted by the orange party, to petition against the return of any members that were so brought in. That was the purpose that I supposed and I understood at the time that the subscription was collected for.

71,257. You understood then that it was with that view?—In the event of any corrupt practices and bribery being adopted by the Radical party, that they would petition, and unseat them for doing so. That was the object of the subscription, so I understood at the time; and that the payment by the blue candidates would be sufficient to cover the expenses, and the other was reserved for defending the seats afterwards, in the event of corrupt practices. That was my impression clearly at the time.

The Hon. C. L. Butler.

3d August 1853.

71,258. Not to be called in aid of the elections?—Not to be called in aid of the elections; that for the election expenses one subscription of 1,200*l.* would be sufficient to defray the expenses of the election. In fact, I understood from the deputation that there was a determination to be as pure as an election could be. That certainly is not saying much, according to what has taken place in this Court.

71,259. Just go on, and tell us, as near as you can recollect, the order of what further took place?—I agreed to pay the 1,200*l.*, and became a candidate.

71,260. Before you agreed was there anything else said about the expenses?—I do not remember anything else.

71,261. Did they, for instance, explain to you what were the corrupt practices which had previously prevailed?—No; it was in general terms, as I presume must be understood.

71,262. Corrupt practices are of such various forms; I wish to know whether they told you whether they meant head money, or treating?—No; they did not allude to any one. I included various acts under the head of corrupt practices myself, in my own mind.

71,263. You associated in your own mind and understood them to convey to you that the corrupt practices that had prevailed were of various descriptions?—No, I did not.

71,264. Did you understand them to convey to your mind that there were corrupt practices of various descriptions?—No, I did not.

71,265. Just tell us what it is that you understood them to mean?—They did not talk of corrupt practices.

71,266. They said the corrupt practices of former elections were not to be repeated?—Precisely; they did not enter on what the corrupt practices were.

71,267. I wish to know whether they explained to you what the corrupt practices were?—No, they did not; there was no explanation.

71,268. And you put your own construction, on what they were?—I put my own construction in various ways: bribery, intimidation, lying, slandering, and everything else that can be imagined. I put them all down.

71,269. You did not ask for an explanation?—No, I did not; I comprehended all in one term.

71,270. Is that all that was said?—I do not remember any other conversation upon the subject, beyond the fact that I agreed to become a candidate, to pay the 1,200*l.*, and to go down when called upon, and to canvass the electors.

71,271. Did you consider after these gentlemen having alluded to the corrupt practices as having prevailed at former elections; did you at that time seriously believe, or not, any money would be spent in practices which the law does not approve of?—I sincerely believed at the time that on our side of the question, the blue party, from the statement made to me, that it was the full intention and determination of the blue party to be upright and honest, and not expend money in any corrupt practice.

71,272. If they could, perhaps?—I know nothing about ifs.

71,273. Did you believe that an election was practicable, or that a contest rather—did you believe that a contest was in point of fact, practicable without the expendidure of some money? I do not say large, but some money, in modes which the law in its strictness does not approve of?—Am I bound to say what I believed or what I thought at the time.

71,274. That is the question we have to try?—You want my opinion?

71,275. Yes; what you thought at the time. Did you at the time think it probable that a contest in such a place as Hull could be carried on without some money being expended in practices which the law does not justify?—I did.

71,276. You thought it was possible?—I did.

71,277. According, of course, to your own view of what was justifiable, or not. Did you learn then the number of freemen there were in the borough?—I did.

71,278. What did they tell you about the number?—I am sure I have not an idea. The information I got from a printed book that contains the names of freemen, householders, and all the electioneering particulars. I did not hear of freemen in particular. I heard the constituency was a large one; somewhere about 5,000. I heard the amount of the constituency.

71,279. Did you hear how it was divided?—No, not at the moment. I referred to a book published by Mr. Dod, that gives all the particulars.

71,280. Probably you referred to it at the time?—I did, either at the time, or the following day, or the evening; not immediately.

71,281. Do you recollect whether in the course of that conversation any allusion was made to the number of freemen not occupying houses to the value of 10*l.*?—No; I do think there was anything said about them.

71,282. Do you recollect that you inquired?—No, I did not; for I entertained no idea. I did not trouble myself whether they were freemen or householders.

71,283. Do you think it likely that they had some influence upon the expenditure?—I did not.

71,284. Did it not occur to you at all?—Not at all.

71,285. And you made no inquiry?—Not the slightest, as to the nature of the constituency or the number.

71,286. Do you feel equally confident that they did not communicate to you the fact?—They might or might not; but really I cannot say at this moment, for this reason, I gave no particular attention to the fact, of whether they were freemen or householders, for I really did not know, in point of purity, that there was any distinction. I did not know that there was any difference in the mode of taking the votes or giving them, or of the character of the parties.

71,287. It might be some guide as to whether the whole of the constituency were of that rank in life to live in a house of greater value than 10*l.* or below it?—I never entertained a question about it. I did not think of forming any distinction upon the subject. I think a great many freemen not worth 5*l.* were much more respectable men than many of those that occupy large mansions, and give their votes more honestly.

71,288. Go on, and tell us all that took place. Have you told us the whole?—I was asked to prepare my address, and I did so.

71,289. Then and there?—No; not then and there.

71,290. You were asked to do it?—I was asked at the time; having explained my political views on certain points, and having been approved of by the deputation, as a person that they would be happy to receive.

71,291. Your political views were satisfactory to the parties?—Yes, they were. I prepared the address; and the following morning they called for it; took it to Hull, and there it was published.

71,292. Was anything further said when these gentlemen said they hoped the corrupt practices which prevailed at former elections would not be repeated?—I do not think it was a matter of hope.

71,293. Belief?—I think they said they almost anticipated that the corrupt practices of former elections would not be repeated.

71,294. Did you understand it to this extent, as a pledge on their part that they would not have resort to that?—I did; I clearly understood it as a pledge to that effect; a pledge on their own part; I am sorry to say a mistaken belief in the other.

71,295. It gave you confidence?—It gave me very great confidence.

71,296. I understood you to say that no details were entered into?—So far details, that the 1,200*l.* was mentioned.

71,297. Relating to the corrupt practices?—No, I did not.

71,298. They did not tell you what the corrupt practices were?—No.

71,299. Did you collect from them that these gentlemen were aware from their own knowledge of the corrupt practices that had prevailed formerly, so as to be in a situation to direct your attention to guard against them, if you chose?—They made no statement that they were aware of it from their personal knowledge.

71,300. You had heard, I suppose, from the observations you made before, of the investigation that had taken place at the time?—I did not; I never heard of it.

71,301. Or on the former occasions, confessedly within the memory of the people now voters; no less than three investigations have taken place in Parliament respecting this borough?—I was not aware of it in any way whatever at the time.

71,302. Within the memory of voters who have been three times struck off for bribery; have you never heard that?—I heard more of Hull within the last year,—I did not hear of it previous to that, nor at the time,—I heard more of Hull for the last twelve months than I did for the thirty-eight years before.

71,303. Did you hear at any time before the day of the election, that there had been no less than three investigations?—I did not.

71,304. I am not troubling you with anything that took place after the election. I wanted to know how far parties gave you information as to these things in Hull?—I had no information whatever upon the subject.

71,305. They did not communicate it to you?—No, they did not. I think it was a most charitable thing that they should keep such information away from me; it would have made my mind very uncomfortable if they had.

71,306. It possibly might have resulted in your declining the honour?—When I once embark in a thing I do not give it up very quickly.

71,307. Then you consented to stand, issued your address, and shortly after, I believe, came down to Hull?—Yes, I did.

71,308. Up to that time I believe you had had no communication with Mr. Moore?—None whatever.

71,309. We hear from him that you were not acquainted with him?—I was not acquainted with him. I heard nothing whatever of him.

71,310. Before that did it occur to you, as these gentlemen had talked of the previous corrupt practices in Hull,—did it occur to you to make any inquiries of Colonel Forrester?—No, it did not. I took it as a general term; because I believe all boroughs are more or less corrupt. I did not make any exception in favour or against Hull.

71,311. Did Colonel Forrester make any communication to you upon the subject?—No.

71,312. It did not occur to you to ask it?—He is about the last man I should inquire

The Hon. C. L. Butler.

3d August 1853.

of. What would he know about it? I had not a thought of asking Colonel Forrester for imformation.

71,313. I will call to your mind part of the evidence that has been given, which was this; and I repeat the question again, in order to point to the evidence given before, to refresh your memory. The deputation have stated to us in their evidence, as soon as they saw you, and found from your conversation that you had been with Colonel Forrester, at least they drew from your observation that Colonel Forrester had communicated to you what a corrupt place Hull was, to that extent?—You cannot refresh my memory upon the subject, because I never heard the evidence before. If you tell me it was given in evidence, I must admit it?

71,314. I tell you the deputation has told us that they assigned that as the reason for not entering at length into the matters relating to the corrupt practices,—that you seemed in the interval between their coming away to have been made aware of the fact by Colonel Forrester, to that effect,—that you did not seem entirely ignorant of the system?—I am not responsible for their ideas.

71,315. I think it right to point out to you what was their impression, that you should correct it if it is wrong, or confirm it if it is right?—I am not responsible for their impression. I prefer leaving them to exercise their own judgment on that.

71,316. Are we to understand then, after bearing that in mind, that their impression was an erroneous one?—Certainly erroneous. Colonel Forrester mentioned, I must say, they came from Hull. He did not say two strangers below; he mentioned the fact, and the nature of their business with me.

71,317. You did not learn from Colonel Forrester or from any other source before you saw them that Hull was a place in which money had been spent improperly?—No, I did not; certainly not.

71,318. I only remind you of it?—I never heard it from Colonel Forrester or any one else.

71,319. You agreed to stand, issued your address, and so on?—Yes.

71,320. Before you came down to Hull, did you converse with Colonel Forrester or any other friends in town upon the subject of the kind of place you were coming to?—As to the nature of the place I did not.

71,321. I mean the nature of it, as an expensive place?—No, I did not. When the expense was limited to 1,200*l.* I thought it was immaterial to me what the former practices were, as my expense was limited to 1,200*l.*

71,322. They have stated to us that you seemed by your manner to think it a very small sum. Did you mean to convey any such impression to them?—I do not know what impression they may form upon the subject; but I think 1,200*l.* not so very small a sum.

71,323. Did you mean to convey that; because they may have arrived at a wrong conclusion. They drew from your conversation the inference that you considered it a very small sum to be spent in Hull?—It was very kind; but I do not think I intended them to think that.

71,324. You did not mean to convey that?—Certainly not.

71,325. Did it occur that it was rather a large one?—No.

71,326. Did not the sum of of 1,200*l.* for the two candidates, backed by a subscription, seem to contemplate a large outlay?—Who said it was backed by a subscription?

71,327. I am asking, was it understood or mentioned to you,—did you at any time, during the conversation, understand that any part of the money was to be applicable to the contest?—Certainly not. I was under the full impression that the subscription previously, as I heard at the time, was for the purpose in the event of the orange party resorting to their old practice, to prosecute a petition, and unseat them for it. That was what I understood at the time to be the intention of that additional subscription.

J. B. Moore, Esq.

JOHN BRAMLEY MOORE, Esq., recalled, and examined.

71,328. You stated generally that you did not make any payments. I will put a particular name to you, which has been suggested to us, in order to give you an opportunity of making any statement you desire, because, on the one hand, it is possible, by mentioning a name, it may refresh your memory, and, on the other hand, it may, if you deny it, serve to confirm the general opinion you gave. I will put this question: Whether you did pay Christopher Luccock any sum of money whatever on the day of the election, or within a few days before it?—I most distinctly deny that I ever paid Luccock or any other individual whatever. I do not know the man; I never heard of him.

71,329. You said as much on a former examination, that you never paid any one?—But I deny this in particular, or any other individual; neither at any time, either before or after, even a shilling.

71,330. Either previous or subsequent to the election?—No. I have often been asked for an allowance, but in no single instance have I ever given it.

71,331. On or previous thereto?—No.

The Hon. CHARLES LENNOX BUTLER recalled, and examined.

The Hon. C. L. Butler.

3d August 1853.

71,332. Did they show you any of the copies of the paper that had been agreed to by the gentlemen who had raised a subscription?—No, they did not.

71,333. Did they at at any time show you that paper?—Never.

71,334. There is the original (handing the subscription list, April 20th, 1852)?—No copy of that; I never saw it or anything like it; nothing of the same nature at all.

71,335. Did you never learn that in point of fact the subscription was to be applicable to the election, and nothing else?—No, I did not.

71,336. Did they never tell you that; were you up to the time of the election under the impression that 2,400*l.* was all that was applicable to the election?—I cannot say exactly whether I heard a few days before or a few days after; about the period I heard 2,400*l.* was not sufficient.

71,337. When did you hear that?—I could not say exactly when; it was two or three days before; it was immediately about the time of the election; whether it was just before or after I cannot say.

71,338. Can you say it was not more than a week before the election?—Certainly not; I was not aware of it a week before.

71,339. Up to within a week before the election?—Or perhaps a few hours closer or even after; I cannot tell.

71,340. You were not made aware of there being any fund to supply a possible deficiency up to within a week before the election?—I do not think it was even then.

71,341. If you will confine it to a week I will imply that it was. I meant merely to guard your answer from binding yourself nearer than was necessary. I will take your answer to be that up to within a week you were not even aware of it?—Precisely; that is my meaning.

71,342. That is your view of it?—Yes.

71,343. When, in your judgment, did you hear of any other fund being applicable to the purposes of the existing contest?—I could not state that I ever heard any statement of fact whatever; I could not say I heard any direct statement.

71,344. How soon then was it brought to your attention that 2,400*l.* was an inadequate sum for the purposes of the contest?—Long after the contest was over.

71,345. Not till then?—When the petition was spoken of to unseat the then sitting member, it was by some person or other mentioned casually that there was not money sufficient to prosecute the petition; there was another subscription required for it, the election having cost more than was originally expected.

71,346. It has transpired that a second subscription was got up. I am not going into that?—That is about the period when the petition was talked of, that it first came to my knowledge principally the money had been drawn upon for the purpose of the election.

71,347. And then you learned (am I right in supposing?) that the fund which up to that time you believed was applicable to the petition had been in point of fact spent?—Drawn upon for the election.

71,348. How did you suppose that the deficiency, should one occur, was to be met?—Deficiency, for what purpose?

71,349. Of the contest?—I never contemplated a deficiency.

71,350. Were you always under the impression that 2,400*l.* would cover everything?—I never formed any impression beyond the fact that 1,200*l.* was to cover me.

71,351. Did it never occur to you that in matters of this kind, it is necessary to be fortified by some guarantee?—The guarantee was in the character of the gentlemen whose hands I was in.

71,352. You relied on them?—Yes; that they would do whatever was proper in carrying out the election.

71,353. Did you understand them to pledge themselves that the expenses should not exceed 2,400*l.*?—I understood they pledged themselves that my expense should not exceed 1,200*l.*

71,354. You were not very mindful of where the deficiency should come from if it occurred?—I never thought about it, I did not contemplate a deficiency.

71,355. Were you of opinion, one way or the other, that 2,400*l.* would cover the expense?—I never thought about it; I had too much of other matters to think about.

71,356. When did you come down to Hull first?—I think it was the 10th of June.

71,357. Did you understand their view was they did not intend to get you at the head of the poll?—Certainly not; I understood no such thing. I never expected to be at the head of the poll. I expected to be second.

71,358. Second to Mr. Bramley Moore of course?—I expected Mr. Bramley Moore to be at the head, and myself next to him.

71,359. Did you not contemplate that they meant to play the game of allowing you to be beaten, and then unseat the others, and so long before prepared for a petition?—Certainly not.

71,360. You came on the 10th; how long did you remain then?—I think I remained two or three days.

The Hon. C. L. Butler.

3d August 1853.

71,361. Very little was going on then?—Upon my word there was a great deal going on.

71,362. What did you observe going on?—I observed the warmest possible feeling in favour of Mr. Bramley Moore and myself.

71,363. Upon the arrangements?—Upon the arrangements, I cannot remember anything particular upon that point. We began as most English people do; we began with a dinner. On the day we arrived about eight or ten very agreeable gentlemenlike men sat down to dinner with us, and we had a good deal of joking, and all that sort of thing.

71,364. Speechifying?—Nothing of that sort.

71,365. Were there any of the details of the election mentioned at the time?—The only matter of detail that I remember is, amongst the others we were introduced to we were introduced to Mr. Wells, who was pointed out as our agent.

71,366. On the 10th?—On the day of the dinner.

71,367. You understood he was the solicitor?—Yes.

71,368. Did you have any conversation with him upon the subject of the expenses?—None whatever.

71,369. You made no inquiries?—Not the slightest.

71,370. Did he make any communication to you?—No. We did not enter on electioneering matters at all on that occasion.

71,371. Did you learn from him that he had been engaged in election contests before?—No, I did not. In fact it was a simple introduction, and nothing more. I do not think I exchanged two words with him.

71,372. Did you happen to learn from him that he was also the law adviser of the former candidates?—They mentioned the fact; but I did not exchange two words with him. I could not learn much in that time.

71,373. In that short visit to Hull did you get any insight into what had taken place on former occasions?—No, I did not.

71,374. None at all?—None at all. The only thing that occurred was, that Mr. Moore and myself made two speeches each, and then went to town.

71,375. We hear that you arrived again, about the same time that he did; did you not, though not in the same train?—On the first day we arrived together. On the second day I think Mr. Moore arrived before me; only the morning of the same day; but we did come together; he was in the town.

71,376. In the interval did you learn anything with respect to the mode in which money had been on former occasions expended in Hull?—No, I did not.

71,377. I put the same question to you as I did to Mr. Moore. Did you attend the committee?—No.

71,378. Were you present at any of the discussions of the committee?—No.

71,379. Did you at any time learn, during the progress of the contest, that discussions did take place on money matters?—No, I never did.

71,380. Allow me to draw your attention to one of these resolutions? This resolution appears in the minutes of the central committee:—"On the motion of Mr. S. West, it was resolved, that the resolution passed yesterday upon the subject of the payment of the wages of the runners or messengers and doorkeepers be rescinded, and that the wages of the present week be paid in full; but that afterwards three fourths of the wages be only paid weekly, until the conclusion of the election, when the balance will be paid; and that the district committee be paid accordingly. That is a resolution upon the general committee. Did you ever become aware of the resolution?—I do not remember hearing the resolution till I heard it a few minutes ago. I agree with Mr. Moore; it was a very wise one.

71,381. Were you aware of the subject to which it referred; the discussions that arose on the subject of how the messengers should be paid?—No; I do not think I heard a word about it.

71,382. You agree with him that it is wise?—Quite so.

71,383. Why? Do you think to prevent people running away?—I do not think that exactly; but it is the same in many other things. In the payment of the militia they do not give them all their money in advance.

71,384. That is to secure their services?—Yes.

71,385. You do not agree with the resolution next, "That the resolution just read be rescinded;" for the next day it was rescinded?—I suppose the committee had some wise reason for it, or they would not have done it. I know nothing about it.

71,386. You do not think that was very wise?—That would depend on circumstances If they would go away without it it was wise to rescind it.

71,387. The reason was, it appeared to them that men were going over to the orange party?—Then it was a very wise resolution, that adds to the wisdom of the measure.

71,388. And the folly of rescinding it?—That is a matter of opinion.

71,389. Did you hear anything of another matter of discussion which occurred at your committee or one of the committees, on which a resolution was passed raising the wages from one sovereign to a guinea, in consequence of an opinion entertained by the committee that the difference between a pound and a guinea would turn the election?—I never heard of that. I never heard any such thing. I would have strong doubts about a shilling having such an effect as that.

The Hon. C. L. Butler.

3d August 1853.

71,390. The committee thought otherwise, and acted on it?—Of course they were the best judges.

71,391. My question is whether it was brought to your knowledge?—No; it was not brought to my knowledge.

71,392. Did you make any payments yourself, either on the day of the election or previous to it (confine your attention to that for the present), except the 1,200*l.*?—How do you mean?

71,393. Relating to the election?—None whatever.

71,394. You do not mean any previous?—No; I think I once or twice paid a shilling for a cab to the hotel, and that is about the extent of my outlay.

71,395. Did you pay any sum of money to any voter, knowing him to be a voter?—Never in my life, directly or indirectly, previous or subsequent to the election. I beg pardon; I mentioned the word "subsequent." I paid in London some man, whether he was a voter or not, as he said he came from Hull, and said he was in want of his breakfast. I gave him 5*s*. I knew nothing about him.

71,396. Did it come under your observation that in some districts the messengers, doorkeepers, or runners, as they are variously termed, were engaged sometimes one week one set of men, and another week another set?—No; that could not by possibility have come under my observation.

71,397. It did not fall under your observation?—No; certainly not. It could not do so.

71,398. Did it fall under your observation that the number of doorkeepers or messengers or runners at any time was excessive?—It did not, because I must tell you I did not know who was a runner or a messenger; there was no distinct badge; there were such a number employed, one way or another, I did not know whether they were employed as messengers or not.

71,399. Did it occur that there were a number of hangers on idling about the committee doors?—There were sometimes great crowds about the door.

71,400. On the staircase?—I did not observe any idlers. I did not observe anything particular in that respect.

71,401. I do not mean strangers coming in for the day, but people who made it a practice of attending daily at the committee room?—I do not consider it was excessive. I did not make any particular remark about idlers. I was sorry to find that at that time Hull was quite full of idlers.

71,402. There was no difficulty in finding persons to fill any employment that would be required?—That I had no knowledge of.

71,403. It follows from what you say?—Whether they would work or not was their business.

71,404. Did you during your canvass become acquainted with the fact that in the early period, at all events,—not throughout,—all persons employed were voters?—No; I did not.

71,405. It was not brought before your attention?—It was not in any way brought to my knowledge.

71,406. Can you say you had no knowledge whether they were voters, one way or the other?—Certainly I had no knowledge of it; but I hope the committee were not such muffs as to employ men who had not votes. Where it was necessary, of course they would give the preference to a voter.

71,407. It would be only part of one of the natural modes of carrying on the election to secure messengers out of voters?—No. I do not do such an injustice to the people of Hull as that. I think their votes might be obtained from principle in many cases.

71,408. Still it would naturally occur as the ordinary mode of carrying on an election contest, that they would prefer having a staff of voters, so that you could keep your eye on them?—Do you mean my own eye?

71,409. The eye of the committee?—I never entertained a question about that, one way or the other. A great many shook hands with me, promised me their votes, and said they should be delighted to vote for me, which drew my attention to them.

71,410. Why do you mean they would be muffs if they did not employ voters?—I think it is quite a legitimate and fair thing that a poor man's having a vote should be no bar to his being employed.

71,411. Rather a preference?—They generally are a better class of men; that is one reason; they are a better class of men who have votes to those that have not, and of course more to be relied on.

71,412. Still that scarcely answers the question. Why should you think they were not muffs? You seemed to lay a great stress on that?—They must at that time, if they had done so, considering the franchise is extended to a very low point. They must have taken a low grade of men, and such as would not be depended upon.

71,413. We find, in point of fact, generally, that your staff consisted of a very low grade indeed, and all below 10*l.* a year each?—A man above that I do not suppose would require employment. He would have some other resources.

71,414. The maximum appears to be about 5*l.* or 6*l.*?—I should think those rated at a higher rate would not require that kind of employment. I do not suppose you would get a messenger rated at 20*l.*; they are generally a little above it.

The Hon. C. L. Butler.

3d August 1853.

71,415. During the course of your contest, I dare say you had a good many people asking you for employment?—No; not for employment.

71,416. What did they ask you for most days?—To use their own words, they asked for "'lowance;" not allowance, but "'lowance."

71,417. How used you to deal with those people?—I used not to deal with them at all.

71,418. What answer did you give to them?—Generally, I said I cannot do it.

71,419. Did you refer them to the committee?—No, I did not indeed.

71,420. Do you remember that in no instances you told these people to go to the district committee?—I do not think in a single instance I ever said such a thing. I knew the district committees had quite enough to do without sending these men to them.

71,421. Did they not also come and ask for employment on your canvass?—Such a thing might have occurred; I do not remember it. If they did they got the same answer, "I cannot do it."

71,422. Do you think you ever told them they had better go to the committee?—I do not think I ever gave such an answer. I think the general answer was, "I cannot attend to you."

71,423. Now during the course of your contest did you observe a great many orange flags sticking out of the windows?—Yes, I did.

71,424. A great abundance of orange flags and ribbons, as well as blue?—No; not as well as blue.

71,425. As bad as blue?—As bad as blue; they were worse than blue.

71,426. Do you think the number was very great, the orange?—Yes; excessive.

71,427. Did the exhibition generally of orange symbols appear to you to be excessive? I mean symbols, dresses in windows, cards, flags, ribbons, and all those sort of external demonstrations were excessive?—Do you mean they were in excess of the blue, or that they were unnecessary?

71,428. Unnecessary?—I think every single one of them was unnecessary. If no such things existed it would be much better. I think every single ribbon was unnecessary.

71,429. The blues had a good many also?—Quite as absurd, the one as the other.

71,430. Do you mean that the exhibition of sticking out of window flags would be a profligate waste of money?—I think it is a most improper waste of money, and ought to suppressed in every town in England.

72,431. Apart from that, which is rather matter of opinion (still it is one on which I am very glad to have your opinion),—apart from that did it appear to you that there was a very large exhibition of orange flags, exceeding the blue, I should say?—It did; more particularly in the Market Place.

72,432. You say both were excessive?—When you say both were excessive——

71,433. Both were unnecessary?—Both unnecessary, and the orange were decidedly in excess of the blue.

71,434. Did you learn, during the progress of your canvass, that rooms were taken from voters by the orange party for the purpose of influencing the votes of the persons who were the owners of these rooms?—No; I did not understand it in that way.

71,435. Was not it brought to your attention?—I did not understand it was with the intention of obtaining any undue influence over the parties.

71,436. Did you not hear that a committee rooms were taken when the only or principal object of having the room was the influence it should have over the vote of the owner?—No. I did not hear that.

71,437. You never heard it?—I did not at all understand it in that way.

71,438. Did you hear that an extravagant number of committee rooms were taken by the orange party?—No, I did not.

71,439. For the purpose of enlarging their staff?—I merely heard in conversation that the orange party had a great number of committee rooms.

71,440. In conversation you probably heard what the object was?—I do not know. I did not think there was anything to complain of in that respect. I think the intention was to convey the idea that they were working uncommonly hard for their party.

71,441. Did you hear, as a subject of conversation, that they were working hard in this way; that they were taking rooms?—No; I did not hear that they were taking rooms for any such purpose.

71,442. Did you hear at all that they took a greater number of rooms than was reasonably to be expected?—I do not think I heard it in those words.

71,443. We know the number, and probably you do so?—I really do not.

71,444. The number of committee rooms you had?—I have not the most remote idea. I could not tell you at this moment whether we had five or fifty. I should say we had more than five. We had more wards, and there was a committee room in each ward. beyond that I really do not know.

71,445. You were not at all made aware that the conduct of the orange party in respect to the committee rooms was in any way incorrect? Did you never hear any allusion made?—I cannot say that I ever did. I have heard more since I came into this Court than I ever heard in my life about Hull at the last election.

71,446. Did you hear any animadversions passed upon the orange party for their abuse of the practice of having committee rooms?—I do not think I did, for that purpose. I heard them heartily abused for many things; that might have been amongst them. I cannot say that I heard that in particular.

The Hon. C. L. Butler.

3d August 1853.

71,447. It has been stated to us that complaints were made by you, or rather on your behalf, to the orange party, complaining of this very practice?—I have no doubt our committee would have complained if it was necessary. I was not aware of it.

71,448. Do you know the fact is that both parties did make complaints? Did you not hear that they had complained?—No, I did not.

71,449. Did you hear, during the course of the contest, that Mr. Wells entered into a kind of agreement with the lawyers upon the other side to limit the number of runners?—I heard in conversation that there had been some agreement made between the committees of both parties upon the subject of messengers and committee rooms. I did not hear what the agreement was. I heard that an agreement had been made between them.

71,450. Did you hear that the agreement was an agreement limiting the number?—No; I did not know what the nature of it was. I knew they had arranged between each party. Indeed, I did hear that the orange party broke faith with whatever agreement was made; and they did not in fact adhere to it, and that their words were not to be depended upon at the time.

71,451. You heard the orange party had broken faith?—Yes; I heard upon several occasions that they had.

71,452. That would amount to this: that they had exceeded some special agreement?—You may put it in that mild form. The word I heard was, they "broke faith," and were not to be depended upon.

71,453. Did you understand that they had broken faith, or was it that they had exceeded the number of runners which was agreed on, and the number of committee rooms?—Yes.

71,454. You heard it?—I think I did in conversation.

71,455. That they had broken faith in both those instances?—I cannot say whether they were included, but in a great many instances.

71,456. These are the only two. It has been repeatedly stated to us that your side did complain that faith had been broken with them, inasmuch as the orange party had increased their staff of runners amongst voters beyond what had been arranged, and also that they had increased the number of rooms. I wish to know whether you heard that the orange party had broken faith in those two instances?—I have no doubt I must have heard it at the time; it was a matter of conversation, and might have come to my knowledge; but I really could not say to that.

71,457. Did you not hear also this, that they had broken faith, and that it became necessary for your party to adopt retaliatory measures?—No. I only heard of it to-day in Court. I never heard of it before.

71,458. Understand me clearly? I am putting it with a view of testing whether the party did break faith or not?—I never thought you were doing otherwise.

71,459. You did not hear. Of course if you can throw any light on it, or give any explanation, we shall be most happy to hear it from you in explanation; if you can throw any light on any matters of practice of any sort or kind, we shall be glad to listen to them?—I assure you I have not the slightest wish to conceal any fact connected with the town that has come to my knowledge; but getting up at seven o'clock, breakfasting in a great hurry, going down to the committee room, and spending a hot summer's day in shaking hands with men, women, and children, deprived me of the opportunity of hearing much connected with the election.

71,460. Was anything said by any of your friends as to the discussion, whether it was or was not expedient to have recourse to retaliatory measures?—I never heard it even insinuated. My friends were very sanguine of success up to the day of the election.

71,461. My question was: Whether you ever heard, during the progress of the inquiry, of any corrupt practices of a pecuniary nature, the propriety of retaliating on which was discussed in the committee?—You mean inquiry about the election?

71,462. Yes, I did.—If there was any discussion, of course it was not in my presence.

71,463. You might have heard it afterwards?—No, I do not think I ever did, not at the time of the election. I may have heard a thousand things since the election was over.

71,464. Your answers come to this: whatever you heard with respect to the practices of the orange party in your presence, the subject of retaliation was not mentioned?—Not pecuniary retaliation; no, certainly not.

71,465. Had you never heard that it had been discussed, until after the election was over?—I never heard of any such discussion whatever. I took it always for granted that if the committee met they met to talk about something.

71,466. Did you hear, during the progress of your canvass, anything took place in Lowgate ward about the payment of runners?—No, I did not.

71,467. I put the question generally. You made no payments after the election?—None whatever.

71,468. Did you hear that a sum of 200*l.* was placed, on or before the day of the election, in the hands of Mr. Bamford?—I never heard of the transaction till I heard of it in this Court, or when I saw what transpired in this Court.

The Hon. C. L. Butler.

3d August 1853.

71,469. You did not hear it at the time?—No, I did not.

71,470. That a sum of 200*l.* was placed by Mr. Barkworth in Mr. Bamford's hands for a purpose that was unmistakeable?—I never heard it till it was stated in Court.

71,471. Did you ever hear how many runners were employed?—No, I did not.

71,472. Anything relating to it?—Nothing whatever.

71,473. Did you ever hear of the cheme that has been called Mr. Wells's scheme; a scheme which, had it been carried out, would have required 477 additional persons to be engaged as a staff two or three days before the election?—No, I did not.

71,474. Independently of that, did you hear also that about the time of the dissolution of Parliament, or a day or two before that, the staff mentioned was about 108 messengers or thereabouts—No, I did not.

71,475. 477 would be an addition?—I never heard how many messengers were employed.

71,476. Did you ever hear of the great increase at all?—No, I did not.

71,477. Had you been a candidate at any place before Hull?—I can hardly say that I was. I may or may not say so. I once issued an address, but immediately retired. I can hardly call that being a candidate.

71,478. If it is not a secret, where was it?—Shrewsbury.

71,479. Some time ago?—I think it was in 1847.

71,480. The previous general election?—Yes.

71,481. Is Shrewsbury a large constituency?—It is; it is not so large as Hull. I have not got the number at this moment.

71,482. Had you been anxious for a seat in Parliament before you offered yourself as a candidate for Hull?—No; I had no particular anxiety about it.

71,483. Had you spoken to Colonel Forrester upon the subject?—Yes. I mentioned, I believe, that I would have no objection to stand for a borough, and to devote my time to some useful purpose.

71,484. Before the arrival of these gentlemen as a deputation, did he mention, amongst other boroughs, to you, the borough of Hull?—No; I do not remember hearing of it before. I do not think that he mentioned to me any place.

71,485. When these gentlemen waited upon you, we understood from Mr. Harris, who was one of the party, that amongst other things he stated to you that a good deal of money had been spent at Hull elections, or something to that effect; that bribery had prevailed; that was his evidence as to part of the interview which you have been speaking to?—I think I have stated that before.

71,486. You stated this,—and possibly it is not inconsistent with what you have said: you understood there was a fair probability of corrupt practices at Hull not being repeated?—I think I qualified my statement. I could not vouch for the exact words, but the substance of it.

71,487. Then, having stated their remark was that there was a fair probability that corrupt practices would not be repeated, you would not think it was improbable that they should state the fact that corrupt practices had prevailed in Hull at some period?—I do not remember anything beyond the fact I have stated.

71,488. I think the word "repeated" would hardly seem to have that application?—I cannot say the word used. I can give my impression.

71,489. What you state is not inconsistent with what Mr. Harris stated, that there had been a good deal of money spent in Hull, and that bribery had prevailed, and then stated, "I think there is a fair probability that corrupt practices will not be repeated?—That was the nature of the conversation.

71,490. Mr. Harris said they told you, in consequence of the strictness of the Act against bribery, they thought that much money would not be spent?—Did Mr. Harris? Then I remember the word perfectly; he referred to the recent Act of Parliament.

71,491. In alluding to the practices that had prevailed, do you remember now at all whether he mentioned the character of them?—He did not. I cannot remember anything whatever alluding to the character of the practices.

71,492. Mr. Harris or Mr. Barkworth?—Neither.

71,493. Merely the subject of bribery having prevailed was alluded to?—Yes.

71,494. You stated, I think, you understood from them the election was to be as pure as could be?—Did I make use of the words "as pure as could be?" I understood it was to be a pure election.

71,495. On my own note I have it "as pure as an election could be;" and then you said, "that is certainly not saying much, according to what has taken place in this Court?—Exactly, I have no doubt.

71,496. When you understood the election was to be as pure as could be, I want to know whether you understood from those gentlemen "as pure as could be in Hull"?—No, I did not.

71,497. It was to be an election entirely pure?—Entirely pure; as pure as could be.

71,498. Not with reference to Hull at all?—No.

71,499. When they stated the election was to be as pure as could be, did they tell you there ever had been a pure election in Hull?—No, they did not. They did not say anything, or venture upon the subject; they did not allude to it, one way or the other.

71,500. Do you remember if they made any allusion to the severe scrutiny that took place in 1837 on the ground of bribery?—I do not think they ever said a word about that.

71,501. You contributed, you said, the same sum that Mr. Bramley Moore did; 1,200*l.*?—Yes; 1,200*l.*

71,502. Did you make payments to Mr. Ward also?—I did. I also made my payments to Mr. Ward.

71,503. We understood from Mr. Ward that your payments were made in two sums?—Yes, they were.

71,504. First a sum of 400*l.*, or something of that kind?—It was 200*l.* first.

71,505. And the remainder some short time after?—And the remaining 1,000*l.* some time afterwards.

71,506. Did you accompany those payments with a letter, or how did you transmit the money to him?—The half notes I rather think were sent in a blank envelope from London. I wrote to my agent in town to send it down in half notes; one of the halves to be sent to Mr. Ward, and the others to myself; and when he received his half I handed him the others. It was merely done for post-office security.

71,507. Was the whole sum transmitted in that way?—Yes, it was. Tht first 200*l.* was not in half notes; that was, I think, in notes of various amounts. The other was in half notes, as I have stated.

71,508. Do you remember accompanying the transmission of that money by any letter?—I remember that I did not.

71,509. You merely sent the notes?—Merely the notes.

71,510. Mr. Ward being the general disburser of the payments, did you at any time give him any directions as to how that money was to be disbursed?—None whatever.

71,511. Did you see Mr. Ward, on the subject of his being the paymaster, before those notes were sent to him, when you were in Hull before?—Did I see him about it?

71,512. Yes. I mean was the subject of his being the person who was to be the cashier and the disburser of the money mentioned among you when you first saw Mr. Ward in Hull, before you transmitted the money to him?—No, it was not. I handed it to him as the chairman of the committee. I did not know whether he was paymaster, or receiver general, or what he might be. I gave it him as the chairman of the central committee.

71,513. Had you the same understanding with regard to the money that Mr. Moore has mentioned to us, that in case of there being a surplus the difference should be returned to you?—I had no understanding of the sort.

71,514. But supposing matters should have turned out that in the course of the election it should have cost only 1,200*l.*, each of you gentlemen having advanced 1,200*l.*, should you not have expected to have had 600*l.* back again?—I should have been agreeably surprised and very much astonished if I had.

71,515. There was no arrangement about it?—None whatever.

71,516. Did Mr. Ward at any time furnish you with an account of the mode in which he had disbursed it?—Never.

71,517. Did he ever communicate to you that the whole had been spent, or say anything at all to you on the subject?—I do not think he ever did.

71,518. Will you look at that book (handing Mr. Ward's account book to the witness) that is a book of his disbursements? Did you ever see it before this time?—Never till I saw it in this Court.

71,519. I presume you have never asked for any account?—No.

71,520. And none was ever sent to you?—None was ever sent to me.

71,521. Something must have occurred with regard to your handing over the precise sum of 1,200*l.*?—That was the sum agreed on; and when I came to Hull I said to Mr. Ward, as the chairman, whenever you want the money from me, just mention the fact, and you shall have it. A few days before the election,—I cannot say the day exactly—Mr. Ward mentioned to me "The money will be useful now," and I wrote an order for 1,000*l.* to be sent down.

71,522. That was the second payment?—Yes; the first couple of hundred pounds I brought down in my pocket on coming down the first time.

71,523. I understood you to state that you were engaged pretty much in canvassing when you came down permanently?—I was very much engaged.

71,524. There was a good deal of shaking hands, and various other things of that sort?—Yes; various other things of that kind.

71,525. You said you thought, as far as employment was necessary, that the committee would employ voters, as far as employment was wanted?—Of course, if the electors applied for it.

71,526. They would employ voters in preference to non-voters?—I imagine they would.

71,527. You said you thought the voters generally a better class of men than the ordinary freemen?—I fancy they ought to be.

71,528. Do you apply that to freemen in Hull, or to boroughs generally?—My experience of boroughs is not quite so great as it is of Hull.

The Hon. C. L. Butler.

3d August 1853.

71,529. With regard to your acquaintance with the freemen of Hull, you would apply it to them?—As far as the freemen of Hull go, I consider them a very honest set of fellows, and I think that there is as much principle among them as you will find among any other class of people.

71,530. I am asking for your impression with regard to this class of persons. One of your chairmen told us, that when they wanted confidential men they applied rather to non-voters than to the voters?—I have not heard it, and I do not know it.

71,531. As far as your observation goes, you think that is not warranted?—I have had no experience in the management of elections; I have only had experience in canvassing.

71,532. I am asking you as to the experience you gained during your visit here?—I cannot say that I have formed any opinion on the subject.

71,533. You stated that you thought they were a very honest set of men?—I think they certainly are.

71,534. In addition to the employing those who had votes for the necessary employment, do you not think that the employment of those who had votes would also have some influence on their votes?—I think it is pretty well understood that a voter, if he is in want of employment, will apply to the party of his own political bias, in preference to applying to the other party; and my impression is that his mind is made up as to his political views before he applies for employment, and not afterwards.

71,535. That is, he will have it in his mind at the time he makes the application to give his vote to those to whom he is applying?—Precisely.

71,536. And there would be, probably, a corresponding understanding on the part of those to whom he does apply, that the application carries with it something in the nature of the promise of the vote?—No, I do not think that. I think the understanding would be, rather, that the application of that particular party meant that he was friendly to the party to whom he is applying, and that it was the party of his own way of thinking.

71,537. Friendly to them in the nature of voting for them?—Yes.

71,538. And that would be understood by them to whom he did apply?—Naturally so. Men usually apply to their friends when they are in difficulties.

71,539. You have said in the course of your canvass that some persons might have asked you for employment?—They might, certainly.

71,540. And you said you turned aside, and did not attend to them?—Yes.

71,541. Why did you not attend to their application?—Because I had no employment to give them. I did not interfere with it. I had neither employment to give them, nor time at that particular moment to give them either.

71,542. Personally, no doubt you had no employment to give them?—No.

71,543. But, as a gentleman connected with the party, you had?—Precisely; but in that case I did not interfere.

71,544. Did you not listen to the application?—Very seldom. I knew that it was impossible to comply with it.

71,545. You probably thought the management of the election was in other hands?—I did not think about it; I knew it was.

71,546. Knowing that, should you not direct them to those persons who were managing the election for you?—No; I think it would be very unfair if I did, because they had quite trouble enough without that.

71,547. You stated that you thought employment should be given to voters, as far as necessary?—They would know where to go to, without coming to me in the streets.

71,548. You think that they would know where to apply?—I think they would. The applications to me were more in the way to give them some brandy and water, or something of that sort.

71,549. I think you said that some also applied for employment occasionally?—I think they did; but very, very few; perhaps half a dozen the whole time.

71,550. Would those applications have been made,—as far as you remember any to have been made to yourself or to the canvassers who were with you,—would they apply to them or to yourself?—I can only speak to those who applied to myself.

71,551. Do you not remember some applications of that nature being made to the canvassers, the gentlemen who were with you?—That I cannot remember. The men that were with me would be engaged, perhaps, one with somebody, and I and the others going on or following, and the application would not be mentioned to me of course. I had other things to think of.

71,552. You were endeavouring to get the parties to vote for you,—I do not mean improperly—but your object was to secure their votes?—Yes, it was.

71,553. Should you not listen to applications of that character?—No, not in the slightest. Not to men coming up in the street in that way. I would not listen to him, unless he was introduced to me by some of the gentlemen about me. I should not enter into conversation with him.

71,554. If you did not listen to him in the street, you told him there was some place where he might make his application?—That I know nothing about; that was his own look-out.

71,555. Did you not, with Mr. Bramley Moore, meet at the central committee room generally before commencing your canvass?—Yes, we did.

71,556. And of course you must have become acquainted with some of the leading members of the committee; Mr. Ward, Mr. Harris, Mr. Barkworth, Mr. Yeall, and Mr. Davis?—Yes; all those men I knew.

71,557. Those are prominent names that have occurred to me?—I know all those gentlemen.

71,558. At the central committe room was the subject of retaliation mentioned?—It was never mentioned in any way.

71,559. Were not your friends sanguine of success up to the day of the election?—Yes, I believe so.

71,560. Will you tell me, in your judgment, why you did not succeed?—Because I believe implicitly that about 300 of our men were carried off in the night before, and made to vote before nine o'clock in the morning against us, and that being 300 abstracted from our number and added to theirs made the majority by which we lost the election. I think that was about the number.

71,561. What class of persons do you think that 300 consisted of; because you said they were a very honest body of men?—I should not say they are very respectable men; but I hope they form a class of their own.

71,562. Then I am afraid we must except that 300 from the general character of the freemen of Hull?—I did not say they were 300 freemen. I said 300 voters.

71,563. I did not say freemen either. You must except them, at all events?—Yes, I think you must except them, certainly.

71,564. That must have been a matter very much discussed, and have created great surprise?—It disgusted me very much, and as to being a matter of discussion at the time, of course it was the subject of conversation in every house in the borough.

71,565. I asked you if it was a matter very much discussed?—Yes, it was.

71,566. Being a matter very much discussed, what particular class of persons was it thought that those 300 were from among?—That I do not know. I should say from men to whom money would be an object; certainly not from free and independent voters.

71,567. Was it not considered that they were of the class put down as messengers and runners?—I believe so.

71,568. They were of that class?—They were men that ought to have been in our employment at the time for all necessary purposes.

71,569. Do you think there were 300 of them?—I heard at the time there were 300.

71,570. Who had been on your staff?—Yes.

71,571. For all necessary purposes?—Yes, precisely; perhaps not the whole of them; but they were certainly men who had promised to vote for us.

71,572. I understood you to say they were of the class called runners or messengers?—I cannot say how many of them were; I know a good many were. They were supposed to be 300 men who had promised to vote for us, and who had the honest feeling of breaking their promise before 9 o'clock in the morning, so that there was no possibility of their retracting.

71,573. Had you not heard that a good many of those persons had been engaged on the day before for the purposes of the election, with regard to the clearing house system to which we have drawn Mr. Moore's attention?—No, I had not.

71,574. Was not that deficiency found out very early on the polling day; I believe you said at 9 o'clock?—I believe they all polled before 9 o'clock; all the men who were taken away from us; the deserters were all brought up to the poll before 9 o'clock.

71,575. Did you hear whether they had been locked up, or bottled up, during the course of the night?—No; I did not hear how that was.

71,576. Or how they had been got away?—No.

71,577. Did you hear from what part of the town they had been obtained?—No, I did not.

71,578. Merely the fact?—Merely the fact, and that was quite sufficient.

71,579. You were asked whether you knew anything of any of the committee rooms beyond the one in each ward?—I knew that to be a fact, that there was a committee room in each ward.

71,580. But not beyond that, I think, you said?—I am not aware of any. In my canvass I used to walk into a room, and be told this is a committee room, but where they were I cannot tell; I am not perfectly acquainted with Hull.

71,581. Although you did not hear of any committee rooms except those in each ward, did you hear of any rooms that were not committee rooms, but paid for colourably as such?—No, certainly not.

71,582. Were any applications made in your presence as to such rooms?—No.

71,583. Or as to the use of them?—No.

71,584. Nor in the course of your canvass?—No.

71,585. Now, you have said that a few days before the election Mr. Ward told you it was time for you to pay your money?—No; I did not say that. I said that he said, money would now be convenient.

71,586. You also said, just about the election time you heard that the expenses were likely to exceed the 2,400*l.*; did you hear those two things at the same time?—No, certainly not, nor from the same parties.

71,587. Can you tell me how long it was before the election, if at all, that you heard

The Hon. C. L. Butler.

3d August 1853.

the expenses were likely to exceed the 2,400*l.*?—I really could not say whether it was before the election, at the election, or immediately subsequent; it was about the election time.

71,588. When we say the election we mean the polling day?—That is what I mean. I could not fix that statement to a day.

71,589. You have said that you consider the numbers of colours and ribbons were excessive and useless; did it strike you generally, from what you observed of the election, that there was being incurred a wasteful expenditure of money?—I considered every yard of ribbon shown in the streets was a useless expenditure of money.

71,590. From what you observed at the election, did you at that time come to the conclusion that there was generally an extravagant outlay of money; did that occur to you?—Of course it does at all times. I think an election ought not to cost 200*l.*; but it is a fault in the system, not in the occasion.

71,591. When you were asked for 1,200*l.*, and knew that your fellow candidate was asked for 1,200*l.* as well, did it not immediately occur to you that there was to be an extravagant outlay of the money?—It did not do any such thing.

71,592. What was the use of it, if 200*l.* ought to be sufficient?—I said, on the contrary, that I did not think it extravagant.

72,593. I thought you said just now that an election ought not to cost more than 200*l.*?—It is a fault in the legislature, not in the electors.

71,594. What is there in the law to make it necessary that you should expend 2,400*l.* in a contest in Hull?—Why printing; the system of taking votes; the system of canvassing; the system of bringing voters to the poll; and that last though not least important item, the solicitor's bill. I think if such things will not run away with 2,400*l.* you must apply somewhere else for an explanation.

71,595. Considering it to be legal, you thought it quite unnecessary?—No, I did not.

71,596. What was it necessary for, in your judgment?—The 1,200*l.*?

71,597. Yes?—For the expenses.

71,598. Why did you think it was necessary to expend that sum of 2,400*l.* in printing, in lawyers' bills, in colours, and cabs, and such matters?—Because it is a pretty well understood thing that very few elections cost as little as that; therefore I was not going to set up a new doctrine in an old borough, and to make it a much cheaper thing than it ever was before; I saw it would be impossible to do it.

71,599. Then you thought that unless you did countenance that expense it would be dangerous to your prospects of success in Hull?—I consider that 1,200*l.* for a candidate, with a constituency of 5,000 voters, and a population of 90,000, may be legally and prudently expended, and without in any way demoralising the electors.

71,600. Do you think if you had refused to countenance that it would be dangerous to your prospects of success?—It would be fatal. I need not have come here. They would not have had me. If they asked for 1,200*l.*, and said it was necessary, and I said I will not give it you, there was an end of the matter.

71,601. Had you heard, before you came to Hull, that it is usual for candidates, when a specific sum of money is set down for their expenses, not to inquire how it is expended?—I heard nothing of the sort.

71,602. Have you ever heard it?—No.

71,603. Have you ever heard that it was advisable, as a matter of prudence, that a candidate should not inquire how the money was spent?—I have heard electioneering matters talked over, I suppose as long as I can remember, and I have heard frequently that it is one of those unsatisfactory things, like lawyers' or doctors' bills, and the best way is to shut it up, and have nothing to do with it, because every item would be a matter of great annoyance, and the best way is to pay the money, and not to think about it.

71,604. Was it acting on that idea that you did not enquire into the expenses here?—I did inquire into the expenses; I inquired if the expense was to be 1,200*l.*, and if that was what it was to cost me; and having paid that I thought no more about it.

71,605. Was it following up that idea that you did not inquire as to the way in which your 1,200*l.* was to be expended?—It was not exactly following up that idea; but I suppose it might have resulted from that feeling, that it is always disagreeable to look at unpleasant payments. I undertook to expend 1,200*l.*, and having failed in the object of that expenditure, not having met with a return, I thought it best to pay it, and have no more to do with it.

71,606. Had you come to a resolution from the beginning not to inquire how it was expended?—I came to no resolution about it.

71,607. Was it ever your intention to inquire how the 1,200*l.* was expended?—Certainly not; but I think I should have been very angry if I saw them building a corporation hall or something of that kind with it; but when I saw everything carried on with honour and integrity on our part, there was nothing more to inquire about.

71,608. Did a friend accompany you?—Yes.

71,609. Was he your private solicitor?—No.

71,610. Was he a solicitor?—Yes; he came down with me as a friend.

71,611. Was it to watch the proceedings on your behalf?—It was not; he was a perfect stranger in Hull. I asked him to accompany me, and he came down with me. He is a young and highly respectable gentleman in every way.

The Hon. C. L. Butler.

3d August 1853.

71,612. All I mean to ask is, whether you brought him down on the understanding that he was to watch that nothing unsafe was done?—Certainly not, because I had every confidence in the parties that brought me down, and I believe implicitly they carried out their original intention and my wishes with the utmost honour and integrity.

71,613. Was this gentleman brought down with you to consult with?—He was brought down by me for nothing further than to assist me in my canvass, and certainly not to watch the proceedings in any way, or to interfere.

71,614. Did you ever hear, in the course of your canvass, or in conversation, of a person named William Henry Nicholson, a man well known among the influential voters here?—No, I do not think I did. I might have heard of it, but I do not remember it.

71,615. Do you think you did not hear of him. It is stated that he was known to all the influential men in the town; he is a sailmaker?—I may have heard of him at the time, but I really forget him now; there were so many names at the time that I cannot recollect them.

71,616. Do you recollect hearing that name?—No, I do not. I might have heard it at the time, and been intimate with him; but I really forget it at this moment. I forget whether I ever saw such a person.

71,617. Do you attribute the loss of the election to those people going away in the morning?—Yes, I do; to that and the practices I alluded to before.

71,618. To the illegal practices?—Yes.

71,619. You did not, however, present any petition complaining that those 300 which were abstracted would have gone a long way to set you at the head of the poll—It would have cost me about 30,000*l.*, and I should rather remain at the bottom.

71,620. There was a petition presented?—We did not petition for the seats; a scrutiny is rather a different matter.

Thomas Newstead.

THOMAS NEWSTEAD sworn, and examined.

71,621. Where do you live?—55, Carr Lane.

71,622. What is your business?—Innkeeper.

71,623. What rent do you pay for a house?—£60.

71,624. Are you also a freeman?—No.

71,625. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—At the last election; 1852.

71,626. Who did you vote for?—I voted for Bramley Moore and Lord Goderich.

71,627. Did you receive any money for your vote?—None whatever.

71,628. Did you receive any money at all?—No; not directly for my vote; of course not.

71,629. What did you receive money for?—There was a committee room engaged; it had nothing to do with my vote at all.

71,630. Where was the room?—In the house that I occupy.

71,631. When was that room engaged?—It was engaged nine or ten days prior to the election.

71,632. By whom?—By Mr. Kemp and Mr. Ellerman.

71,633. Did those gentlemen belong to some committee?—I should expect they belonged to the blue committee.

71,634. Did he give you a list of committee men who were to meet at your room?—No.

71,635. Did any committee meet at your room?—Yes; there was a committee there.

71,636. Who was the chairman; do you know?—I really do not know; Munroe was chiefly there.

71,637. What is his other name?—I really do not know; he is generally called Captain Munroe.

71,638. Was he there every day?—I think every day, to my knowledge.

71,639. What kind of business was transacted there, do you know?—I am not aware of the nature of the business; there was paper, pen and ink there, and various other things necessary for doing business.

71,640. Were you present occasionally in the room?—Never in the hours of business.

71,641. Did you keep the door for them?—No; they had their own doorkeeper.

71,642. Is there a private door?—They had a doorkeeper at the room they rented.

71,643. How much were you paid for your room?—Three guineas.

71,644. When was it paid you?—It was paid me on the 3d of August; that was a year ago; nearly a month after the election.

71,645. Where were you paid?—At my own house.

71,646. Who brought you the money?—George Steeple.

71,647. Did you also have your name set down among the runners in Lowgate ward?—No.

71,648. Your name, I believe, is in that list?—Not by my sanction.

71,649. Were you aware at any time that your name had been placed on the list of messengers?—I never gave any sanction to it, at all events.

71,650. Were you ever informed that it had been done?—Never.

Thomas Newstead.

3d August 1853.

71,651. Did you ever receive any payment except the three guineas?—No, none at all.

71,652. At the time your room was engaged, had you promised your vote to either of the parties?—No; not to either party.

71,653. Had you been canvassed by both parties?—No; I had not been canvassed at all by the blue side until the time Mr. Munroe asked me.

71,654. That was when he took your room?—No; some three or four days after.

71,655. Did the orange party canvass you?—There was a person who said he represented the orange party, whose name I did not know, came to me; consequently I told him I did not promise any one.

71,656. At the time that your room was taken you had not promised your vote?—I had not.

71,657. And afterwards you did promise Captain Munroe?—No, I did not even promise him.

71,658. You told me just now you did?—You asked me as to the canvassing, I understood you. I did not promise him even then when I was canvassed.

71,659. Did you offer your room to the orange party?—No, I did not.

71,660. Nothing passed with the orange party about your room?—Nothing, to my knowledge.

William Metcalf.

WILLIAM METCALF sworn, and examined.

71,661. Where do you live?—18, Scott Street.

71,662. What is your business?—I am a millwright.

71,663. What rent do you pay?—I am a freeman; I am not a householder; I do not pay 10*l.* a year.

71,664. How much do you pay?—£8.

71,665. And you are a freeman?—Yes.

71,666. When were you made a freeman?—In 1842.

71,667. At your own expense?—Yes.

71,668. Did you vote at the election in 1847?—Yes.

71,669. Who for?—I voted for Brown.

71,670. Were you employed at all at that election?—Yes; I had my name put down.

71,671. Where was it put down?—At Linwood's, the committee room in Wincolmlee.

71,672. How much money did they pay you?—I had 10*s.* before and 10*s.* after the election.

71,673. Who paid it you?—I got paid 10*s.* at Linwood's, and 10*s.* at Foster's, the Bay Horse, the opposite side of the road.

71,674. At the last election, who did you vote for?—For Moore and Butler.

71,675. Did you get any money for your vote then?—I think I got 6*s.* before and 15*s.* after.

71,676. Who paid it you?—Mr. Murgatroyd paid me the 6*s.* at Linwood's,—at least it used to be Linwood's, at the last election but one,—and the other Legitt paid me.

W. A. Moses.

WILLIAM AGAR MOSES sworn, and examined.

71,677. Where do you live?—Church Street, Drypool.

71,678. What business are you?—Joiner and small tradesman.

71,679. What rent do you pay?—Not any; I am not a householder.

71,680. Are you a lodger?—I am not a householder.

71,681. What do you mean; that you do not pay rent for any house at all?—No.

71,682. Is it your own house?—It is the property of my mother.

71,683. You are a lodger, then?—Yes.

71,684. When were you made a freeman?—In 1844.

71,685. At your own expense?—Yes.

71,686. Did you vote at the election of 1847?—Yes.

71,687. Who for?—Brown and Baines.

71,688. Did you get any money for your vote?—10*s.*

71,689. Who paid you that?—Dr. Twining.

71,690. Where did he pay you?—At the Noah's Ark in Witham.

71,691. After the election?—Yes.

71,692. Was that for Mr. Brown?—Yes.

71,693. Did you get anything for Mr. Baines?—No.

71,694. At the last election, did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes.

71,695. I believe your name was set down in Holderness as a runner?—Not as a runner; I was not in the town.

71,696. Your name was put down?—Not that I am aware of.

71,697. Do you know Mr. Bamford?—I do know him by sight.

71,698. Did you get any money for your vote?—Not for my vote.

71,699. What money did you get?—10*s.* for my expenses.

71,700. Where did you come from?—Ferriby.

W. A. Moses.

3d August 1853.

71,701. What was the 10*s.* for?—For my expenses and loss of time.
71,702. You can come from Ferriby for 1*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes; and there is going back.
71,703. You can go back for a 1*s.*?—Yes; but there is loss of time.
71,704. That is the way you make it out?—Yes.
71,705. When were you paid?—About a week after.
71,706. Who paid you?—Mr. Walker in Drypool.
71,707. How much of that 10*s.* do you think you would have got if you had voted for Clay and Goderich which was paid you by the blues?—I do not know.
71,708. Not a farthing?—I should not have applied for anything.

DANIEL OXTOBY sworn, and examined.

Daniel Oxtoby.

71,741. Did you get 10*s.* for your vote?—Yes.
71,742. Were you paid at the same place?—Yes.
71,743. And at the same time?—Yes.
71,744. Was that all that you got?—Yes; that is all.

THOMAS PARKER sworn, and examined.

Thomas Parker.

71,745. Where do you live?—Junction Dock Street.
71,746. What is your business?—I am an upholsterer.
71,747. What rent do you pay?—£56.
71,748. Are you a freeman?—No.
71,749. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—In 1852.
71,750. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
71,751. Did you receive any money?—No, I did not.
71,752. Was your name set down in the Market Place ward?—Set down as a runner?
71,753. Yes?—Not that I know of; not with my approbation it was not.

Thomas Parker.

3d August 1853.

71,754. Are you sure that you voted?—I voted for Moore and Butler. I attended at the polling booth in Blanket Row, and gave my vote for Moore and Butler

71,755. Did you get any promise of any money?—No.

71,756. Did you let a room?—No.

71,757. Did they have a room at your house?—No.

71,758. Did anybody let them a room, with your knowledge or sanction?—No

71,759. Can you tell us anything about your being bribed?—I never was yet, and I should not like to be.

71,760. Did you receive any money at all at the last election, upon any accoun t, from the candidates, or their committee, or their party?—No. I trust that I am above it.

71,761. You name seems to have got into the book?—No doubt those who put it in are better paid than I am for it.

71,762. Do you know what is your number upon the register?—I do not.

Thomas Peacock.

THOMAS PEACOCK sworn, and examined.

71,763. Where do you live?—No. 14, Silvervester Street.

71,764. What is your business?—None at all.

71,765. What rent do you pay?—£14.

71,766. Are you a freeman?—No, I am not.

71,767. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—At the last one.

71,768. Who did yon vote for?—For Moore and Butler.

71,769. Did you receive any money?—I was upon the committee.

71,770. What committee was that?—In Osborne Street. I did not receive any money for voting; I received a pound for four or five days being on the committee.

71,771. What did you do; did you canvass?—Yes. I went out and distributed cards and bills.

71,772. That is what they call a messenger, is it not, or a runner?—I do not know.

71,773. You were not one of the committee men as distinguished from a runner?—No.

71,774. People who carry the cards about are generally called messengers and runners; were you not of that kind?—I attended the committee room every day for four or five days.

71,775. Your name was set down, I think, in South Myton, as a messenger?—I do not know that.

71,776. Did you not apply for it to be put down; did you not go and say you wished to be employed?—No.

71,777. How came they to find you out?—I have been living in Silvester Street for eight years.

71,778. They did not go to every man who lives in Silvester Street?—I lived there for about eight years. They knew me very well.

71,779. Did you go to the committee room, and offer yourself for employment as a messenger?—I went there, and tendered my vote.

71,780. Did you tender you vote at the committee room?—They asked me if I had a vote and I told them yes, I had.

71,781. What else did you say, that they might put you down for employment?—They put me down for a committee man.

71,782. When did they pay you your money as a committee man?—May be eight or ten weeks after. I never went and applied for it.

71,783. Who brought it you?—Mr. Steeple. Mr. Wells wondered why I had not called for eight or ten weeks. I went there, and he gave me a sovereign. That is the whole truth.

71,784. How many days were you on the committee?—Four or five or six days. I did not keep any particular account. I did not care anything about the election. I do not want to vote again.

John Plummer.

JOHN PLUMMER sworn, and examined.

71,785. Where do you live?—29, Caroline Street.

71,786. What is your business?—Shipwright.

71,787. What rent do you pay?—£11, and the taxes.

71,788. When were you made a freeman?—In 1820.

71,789. Was it at your own expense?—Yes.

71,790. Did you take it up yourself?—Yes.

71,791. Did you vote in the year 1841?—Yes.

71,792. Who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James, I think it was.

71,793. Did you receive any money at that election?—Not at all.

71,794. Nothing?—Nothing.

71,795. At any time?—Not at any time.

71,796. Did you after the election?—No; not after the election.

71,797. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I think Baines and Brown.

71,798. Clay was the other candidate?—I think it was Baines and Brown.

John Plummer.

3d August 1853.

71,799. Did you receive any money then?—No.
71,800. Neither before nor after?—Neither before nor after.
71,801. Did you let them have a room?—No; no room at all.
71,802. At the last election, did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes.
71,803. Your name is down, I think, in the Lowgate list for a messenger?—It is.
71,804. Did you apply to be set down as a runner?—No; I was not a runner.
71,805. How did it come down, then?—I was there, and I used to attend at the room. I was a kind of deputy committee man.
71,806. What did you do as a deputy committee man?—I went and canvassed.
71,807. How long was it before the election that you began to canvass?—I cannot say exactly.
71,808. You can give us some idea?—I do not know at what time the members came down. A week or so after the members came down.
71,809. You did not go round with the members?—No.
71,810. You went another way?—I went another way.
71,811. On your own account, or were you sent out canvassing?—I went out on my own account.
71,812. You kept a list of those you canvassed?—No; I cannot say I canvassed very much.
71,813. How much did you get for doing nothing?—I got nothing for doing nothing.
71,814. No payment?—No payment.
71,815. You received no money at all?—No.
71,816. Did you go with any people to the poll?—Yes, I think I did, with one man.
71,817. Where did you take him from?—I think I picked him up in Lowgate. There was one man in a cab against Lowgate ward.
71,818. Did you give him a little refreshment before you got there?—No.
71,819. How came you to go up with him?—The same as I would go up with any other person.
71,820. Did he not know the way, or what was the reason?—No. I was going up myself, and he thought he would go with me.
71,821. Did you ever receive any money?—No.
71,822. Neither before nor after the election?—Neither before nor after.
71,823. Did you let them any room?—No.
71,824. Did you send them any people to have their names set down as runners?—No.
71,825. When canvassing?—No.
71,826. Did you send any people to the committee room to be set down as runners?—No; I cannot say that I did; not to my recollection.
71,827. Was there not some money left at your house after the election was over, at some time?—No; not a farthing.
71,828. Not at any election?—Not at any election.
71,829. I thought you seemed to know that your name had been set down in Lowgate; you said so?—Yes; it was set down in Lowgate.
71,830. In the committee?—Yes.
71,831. Did you apply to have it set down?—No. I went up into the room, and they asked me if I would have it set down.
71,832. They asked you?—Yes; and I said I did not mind; I could spare a little time in the evenings, but not at other times.
71,833. And you got no money?—No; no money.
71,834. Did you expect that you would get something after the election was over?—No.

James Plummer.

JAMES PLUMMER sworn, and examined.

71,835. Where do you live?—William's Square, Mason Street.
71,836. What is your business?—Shipwright.
71,837. What rent do you pay?—Eight guineas.
71,838. When were you made a freeman?—1845.
71,839. At your own expense?—Yes.
71,840. Who did you vote for in 1847?—For Baines and Brown.
71,841. Did you get your name set down?—No.
71,842. Did you get any money for your vote?—No.
71,842. Did you get any money at all?—No.
71,843. Before or after the election?—No.
71,845. No money at all?—No money at all.
71,846. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
71,847. I believe your name was set down then?—Yes.
71,848. Did you apply to have it set down?—No.
71,849. How did it happen?—I was in the committee room. I had promised my vote before that, and they said if I would assist for two days I should be paid for it; they did not require my labour for nothing.
71,850. As a runner?—As a messenger.

James Plummer.

3d August 1853.

71,851. And then it was put down?—It was put down.
71,852. You told them you should vote for their party?—They knew that before.
71,853. How much did you get?—10*s.*
71,854. Who paid it you?—Mr. Pulleyn.
71,855. When did he pay you?—On the Saturday following.
71,856. Do you think Mr. Pulleyn would have paid you if you had voted for Clay and Goderich?—I do not suppose he would.
71,857. You would not have asked for it?—No; I should not have required it. I should not have required anything if they had not had my services.

Francis Postell.

FRANCIS POSTELL sworn, and examined.

71,858. Where do you live?—Thornton Square.
71,859. What is your busines?—I am a mariner.
71,860. What rent do you pay?—I lodge there.
71,861. When were you made a freeman?—1818.
71,862. In 1841, when Clay and Thompson and Hanmer and James were candidates, did you vote?—Yes.
71,863. For whom?—For Clay and Hanmer, I think; I will not be sure.
71,864. Did you get any money for your vote?—No.
71,865. Did you get any money at all?—No, not any.
71,866. Before or after the election?—No, not any.
71,867. At the next election, in 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines.
71,868. Did you get any money then?—Nothing at all.
71,869. In 1852, who did you vote for; Moore and Butler?—I did.
71,870. Did you get your name set down in the Market Place as a runuer?—Yes; in Humber Street.
71,871. Did you apply to have it set down?—Yes, I think I did, but I will not be too confident.
71,872. Was it at Legitt's?—No.
71,873. What money did you get?—27*s.* 6*d.*
71,874. When were you paid?—Two or three days after the election.
71,875. The whole of it, or were you paid some before?—I think I was paid 10*s.* before, or something of that kind.
71,876. Who paid you that sum before?—Mr. Aitkens.
71,877. Where did he pay you?—At the committee room.
71,878. And where was the remainder paid you?—At the same place.
71,879. By whom?—He gave me the money; it came from Davis in the Market Place.
71,880. Just remember? You were put down as a runner at Brown's election in 1847; did you not get some money then?—I never had any money from Brown that I recollect.
71,881. You think not; you are not quite sure about it?—I am not sure.
71,882. A good many people said they did get some of Mr. Brown's money?—I am sure I did not get a farthing of it.

J. E. Postell.

JAMES EDWIN POSTELL sworn, and examined.

71,883. Where do you live?—In Adelaide Street.
71,884. What is your business?—I am a hairdresser.
71,885. What rent do you pay?—£14.
71,886. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
71,887. When were you made a freeman?—1846.
71,888. Did you vote in 1847?—Yes.
71,889. For Clay, Baines, or Brown?—Baines and Clay.
71,890. Were you employed as a runner for the orange party?—No.
71,891. Did you receive any money at that election?—No.
71,892. Nothing at all?—No.
71,893. Are you sure of that?—Perfectly.
71,894. At the last election in 1852, who did you vote for?—Clay and Gooderich.
71,895. I believe you got your name set down for the blue party?—No.
71,896. Was your name not set down at the Minerva Terrace?—Not that I am aware of; not by my authority.
71,897. Did you never hear of it?—No; I never was canvassed but once by the blues, in 1852.
71,898. What did you say to them?—I gave them a denial; I was asked by Mr. Croft, and I was a second time canvassed by Mr. Claxton and Mr. Mawe, and I gave them all a denial.
71,899. Was your name set down for the orange party as a runner?—No; as a clerk.
71,900. At which room?—In Osborne Street.

J. E. Postell.

3d August 1853.

71,901. How long were you a clerk?—I was four days successively engaged there previous to the election, but I had been there off and on for many days prior to that.

71,902. Would it be four including the day of election?—Yes.

71,903. How much money did you get?—Do you mean altogether?

71,904. I ask you first as to the four days?—I received it altogether.

71,905. How much did you receive altogether?—Either 3*l.* or 3*l.* 1*s.* I received; I would not be positive as to the amount.

71,906. Was it calculated on the same rate per day?—I had some to pay out of that. I paid 14*s.* to a man of the name of Carrall, who I believe explained it to you here.

71,907. Then you received 3*l.* less 14*s.*?—It was either 3*l.* or 3*l.* 1*s.*; I would not be positive as to that amount, and 14*s.* out of that I had to pay to Carrall.

71,908. A man of the name of Carrall you say, who has been a witness, what was he?—He was a runner.

71,909. Who directed you to pay Carrall 14*s.*?—Dr. Hodgson.

71,910. You had the 3*l.* 1*s.* less 14*s.*?—I am not positive as to 3*l.* or 3*l.* 1*s.*, but it was 14*s.* off that amount.

71,911. Was that calculated at any rate per day?—I do not know; the way it was done, was this, I was to make out a note for the days I had been successively engaged. I put it down at Mr. Galloway's office, the amount was put down, and I took it to the central committee, at which Mr. Atkinson paid me the amount, and no more do I know about it.

71,912. When did he pay that?—On the Wednesday after the election.

71,913. Did you not make out the bill yourself?—Only for the amount of days I was employed.

71,914. How many days did you make it out for?—Four days that I was successively employed. I took that to Dr. Hodgson, he signed it. I took it to Mr. Galloway's office, and Mr. Braidy put down what amount I was to receive, and Mr. Atkinson gave me the amount.

71,915. I thought you said you had been engaged off and on several days before that?—Yes, for a month or six weeks on and off.

71,916. And did part of that payment apply to those odd days?—Yes; I expect so.

71,917. It was not upon the note?—I told them the manner in which I had been employed.

71,918. Who fixed the amount you were to be paid?—Mr. Braidy put the amount down that I was to receive.

71,919. I thought you said Dr. Hodgson put it down?—No; Dr. Hodgson put down no amount. Mr. Braidy put down the amount.

71,920. Was that at the same room?—No, it was at Mr. Galloway's office. I told him how I had been employed, the same as I tell you now.

71,921. Was this done after you had voted?—This note?

71,922. Was it made after you had voted?—Yes, decidedly; but I had promised my vote prior to being employed by them, a long time.

Adjourned till to-morrow, at 10 o'clock.

FIFTIETH DAY.—Thursday, 4th August 1853.

The Right Honourable MATTHEW TALBOT BAINES, M.P., sworn, and examined.

The Right Hon. M. T. Baines, M.P.

4th August 1853.

71,923. I believe you were formerly member for this borough?—I was.

71,924. And you are now I believe member for the borough of Leeds, and a privy councillor of Her Majesty?—Yes; I was member for Hull from July 1847 until the general election in July 1852.

71,925. You had been, we understand, recorder of this borough, and resigned that appointment shortly previous to your offering yourself as a candidate?—I had the honour of holding the appointment of recorder of this borough from 1837 to 1847, that is for ten years, and as you are aware, before I could offer myself as a candidate for the borough, it became necessary that I should resign the office of recorder.

71,926. Had you any other connexion with the borough beyond that of your professional character?—Not the least; I was a perfect stranger to Hull, and to all the inhabitants, when I came here in the year 1837; my connexion was entirely of an official and professional character.

71,927. Did it continue merely official and professional up to the time of your becoming a candidate?—Strictly so.

71,928. Had you become in any way acquainted with the circumstance that Hull had not a very good reputation in point of the expenses of its contests?—I had heard generally that there had been petitions against some of the former returns for Hull, but one line of conduct which I prescribed for myself while recorder of the borough was, never to inter-

The Right Hon. M. T Baines, M.P.

4th August 1853.

mix in any way with the politics of the borough, and least of all to interfere or meddle with any of the contested elections which took place during that time.

71,929. You think then that the peculiar position that you occupied rather prevented you from becoming acquainted than associated you with the local history of Hull, I mean with reference to its political history?—I should say so. I assure you I acted strictly upon that rule; I avoided all conversations with reference to Hull politics, and I believe it was by entertaining that view that I obtained the confidence of a great number of the most respectable inhabitants of the borough.

71,930. You had heard that a petition consequent upon the election of 1837, which was heard in the House of Commons in the year 1838, was in a great measure a bribery scrutiny?—Yes, certainly, I had heard of that.

71,931. About how long before the dissolution were you invited to become a member?—I should think that it had been first intimated to me that there was a possibility that I might be invited about the end of June, and it was while I was attending at the York assizes in my professional character, in the beginning or the middle of July I should say, that I received the requisition.

71,932. It has been said that your first visit to Hull as a candidate was only as early as the Friday before the election, which took place on the Thursday?—I am not certain as to the day, but I should think it was about that.

71,933. Allow me to assist you with two or three dates. It has been stated that you came on Friday, and that a deputation went to Mr. Brown on Saturday night or Sunday, and Mr. Brown came on the Monday?—I think I heard of it on the Monday.

71,934. That brings me to the question I was about to put to you: did you in any way anticipate a contest when you arrived here?—Not the least; it had been put to me strongly that my offering myself as a candidate would in all probability avert a contest, which a great many of the most respectable inhabitants were desirous to prevent; and when the requisition was presented to me at York, so little anxious was I to become a member of Parliament, that in the first instance I wrote a letter to my friend Mr. Bright, telling him that I must decline offering myself as a candidate for Parliament. I was convinced, looking at my professional avocations, one of which required that I should absent myself from London two or three times in the course of the year for such a lengthy period, that I could not discharge efficiently those duties that belonged to a member who represented a constituency like this. Mr. Bright returned me for answer, that great pains had been taken to get up the requisition, and many of my friends had made great sacrifices for bringing it to a completion, and that if I would offer myself, there was every probability that there would be no contest, which was what the respectable people in the borough desired; in fact, it was put to me in such a way that I determined to retract the refusal which I had previously given, and I sent an acceptance of the requisition, and by the same post I sent the resignation of my recordership to the Home Office.

71,935. Did you learn when you were first invited that it was a requisition consisting of many names of both of the two political parties called orange and blue, in Hull?—Yes, of all parties.

71,936. Did that lead you to the conclusion that a contest was less likely than otherwise? Certainly. I thought a contest scarcely possible under the circumstances in which I was informed that I stood.

71,937. But in the course of your communications with Mr. Bright, the gentleman you have named, was anything said to you upon the subject of the expenses which you might be likely to incur?—Certainly, nothing further than this, that as there was no probability of a contest, the expenses would be as nearly nominal as might be; I know that idea was conveyed to me, but whether that was said in words I cannot undertake to say at this moment.

71,938. The general result was, that the expenses would be inconsiderable?—Yes.

71,939. Was any sum ever mentioned?—No.

71,940. Was any sum ever mentioned, in any part of the contest?—Never.

71,941. Was any limit ever put by you upon the expenditure in the way of a fixed sum, or was there any limit put upon your liability by your committee?—Certainly not. Having selected an agent, through the kindness of Mr. Bright, who was so kind as to offer to act in that character; having selected an agent in whose intelligence, discretion, honour, and prudence to myself I had the fullest confidence, I certainly did not feel it necessary to mark out any limit to which he ought to go; I put myself unreservedly into his hands, and when he sent in the ultimate account of the expenses which he had incurred, I paid those accounts; indeed, I had paid those accounts before I received them, if I may be permitted to say so; that is, every farthing that he had advanced had been paid before I received the account, but I paid it in the full confidence that Mr. Bright had not done, and would not sanction, knowingly at all events, anything illegal or improper in any way whatever.

71,942. Mr. Bright was a gentleman with whom you were previously acquainted?—I had known Mr. Bright during the whole time of my connexion with Hull.

71,943. Was it at any time, in or before the election, brought to your attention, either by your own personal observation or by statements of others, that there was a class of people in Hull called runners, who were employed for an almost nominal service, and expected to be paid?—Certainly not; I never heard of them until long after the election.

71,944. Or messengers, or any other name, tantamount to that?—You mean persons nominally messengers, but really receiving money for the purpose of influencing their votes?

71,945. Speaking to a lawyer, I use a technical term, whose employment was colourable?—I was not aware that there was any such class.

71,946. I presume that your answer applies to either your personal observation or to information from others?—Certainly, given in the most unreserved way; I had no such knowledge.

71,947. Was it upon the Monday or the Sunday night that you heard the contest would take place?—I think it was on the Monday; I believe I passed the Sunday with my friend and chairman, Mr. Tottie; and I think, upon my return to Hull that night, I received a note from Mr. Bright informing me that there was another candidate in the field; I think on Sunday night or Monday morning.

71,948. At that time had much progress been made in arranging a committee upon your behalf?—I do not know; I knew a number of gentlemen were kindly interesting themselves for me.

71,949. Were district committees appointed; there might be a number of gentlemen sitting in a central committee without districts?—I really do not know whether there were at that time; I may state this, that I positively declined to canvass, and would have nothing to do with any personal canvass when I came to Hull.

71,950. Did you not during the whole time make a personal canvass?—Never.

71,951. Mr. Bright stated that?—That is the fact.

71,952. Upon the Monday, I presume, measures were taken to organize the distribution of the polling cards, and so on?—I understood from Mr. Bright that my friends had now become extremely active, in anticipation of a contest, and perhaps this difference then took place in my own conduct; I went, I think, to more public meetings after that, for the purpose of stating my opinions to the electors, than I had done before.

71,953. Excuse me if I ask the question, whether or not, in point of fact, your opinions were not those which are commonly known by the name of orange in Hull; you did not give a distinctive colour, we are told, in consequence of the union of parties in your favour?—I told every meeting that I addressed distinctly that I was favourable to the political principles of Lord John Russell; I believe that that denoted orange; that is what I said; I did not call myself either orange or blue; I told them that I was not a political follower or adherent, but that I politically agreed with Lord John Russell.

71,954. Pink was the colour that you took?—Yes, pink.

71,955. What other step did you yourself take, beyond that of making your opinions known through the medium of public addresses?—No other; I went about, as I just now stated, more frequently, and addressing the electors, offering myself to be examined and cross-examined by anybody who thought fit to do that; that was all that I did.

71,956. Did you go much to the committee rooms?—No, I never was at the committee rooms, at least that I know to be committee rooms; I have been, as I stated, at places where I was requested to address the electors, and it may be that I addressed them from the windows of some of the committee rooms, but I certainly was not aware that I went to them as committee rooms.

71,957. Mr. Sidebottom, we hear, the solicitor in this town, was employed upon your behalf; was he retained by you or by the chairman?—Certainly not by me; I believe my committee retained two solicitors, Mr. Sidebottom and Mr. William Ayre.

71,958. Had you any acquaintance with Mr. Sidebottom?—A professional one; I had been counsel for Mr. Sidebottom at York repeatedly.

71,959. I mean intimate acquaintance?—No, not at all; it was purely a professional acquaintance.

71,960. Or Mr. Ayre?—Mr. Ayre was clerk to the magistrates, and therefore as recorder I had been brought a good deal in communication with him in the borough.

71,961. Did you go to Hedon at all?—Yes, I accompanied Mr. Charles Whitaker to Hedon one evening, I forget which, but I think some two or three days before the election.

71,962. Did you know Mr. Park?—No, certainly not; I was introduced to a number of gentlemen there, but whether Mr. Park was one I do not know.

71,963. Was Mr. Park one of your agents?—Not that I know of; the committee may have engaged him, but I knew nothing of Mr. Park.

71,964. Did you at the time know that he was engaging himself very actively on your behalf?—I certainly did not know of that, nor did I know that anybody but Mr. Whitaker was taking an active part; I understood Mr. Whitaker to have some local connexion with Hedon, and he was so good as to accompany me there upon one occasion.

71,965. The gentleman I mean is Mr. Godfrey Richard Park, a solicitor?—I do not know his name; I do not know that there was any other agent employed; if there was it was by my committee.

71,966. Did you go with him or with any other gentleman at Hedon to canvass the Hedon voters?—Certainly not; I never canvassed a single voter. Allow me to say, at Hedon I met a number of voters, at least I understood them to be voters, at a public meeting, and addressed them publicly.

The Right Hon. M. T. Baines, M.P.

4th August 1853.

71,967. Did you know in point of fact at that time that the Hedon voters belonged to a class who were desirous of voting for money?—Certainly not.

71,968. And who would not vote otherwise?—Certainly not; I had not the least knowledge of any such thing.

71,969. Did you hear that during the course of the contest a negotiation was entered into upon your behalf, either by Mr. Park or anybody else, for the purchase of the Hedon voters?—Certainly not. I hope I may say, without any improper pride, that I do not think that anybody would venture to submit any such bargain to me at that or at any other time.

71,970. You deny all knowledge of the fact, supposing it to be so?—Certainly; in the most explicit and unreserved manner.

71,971. Because documents have been put in, one of which I will show you?—I trust that the Commissioners will examine me and question me in the most unreserved manner.

71,972. Here is a list of persons who received 10*s.* each for their votes; that is, 10*s.* paid by you, and a pound by Mr. Brown?—I never heard of it, and I was not aware that I was a partner with Mr. Brown in any such speculation as that.

71,973. That would be under the name of travelling expenses?—I never heard of it under any name.

71,974. Did you hear during the course of your contest that there were persons whom I have already mentioned to you, runners; but who, under the name of travelling expenses, asked for money totally disproportioned to their real expenses, leaving a margin for the purchase of the vote?—Certainly not.

71,975. You know where Hedon is?—Yes; six or seven miles from Hull.

71,976. Did you hear that in addition to the two classes that I have named, namely, runners and messengers, that there were a class of people in Hull who also considered that they had a claim to be paid after the election, if they voted for a particular candidate; that claim being created by the simple act, to use a familiar term, of being set down?—No; I never heard that until this inquiry.

71,977. You never heard that as a technical word, which signified that a man is to be put down and paid if he voted?—I assure you I never heard of the expression until I read some of the evidence on this inquiry.

71,978. It appears, by the accounts that have been before us, that considerable expenses were incurred upon your behalf in payment to persons for committee rooms; as much as ten guineas was charged for two or three days. Were you in any way cognizant of the arrangements that were made in that respect?—No; I had not the least knowledge of them.

71,979. A very large sum is put down in your account under the head of printing, advertising, and stationary, 320*l.* Was your observation directed to the fact that very large amounts were being incurred at the time?—I cannot say that I observed anything that appeared to me excessive in that respect; there was a good deal of printing going on; but I cannot say that it appeared to me that there was more than might be fairly termed necessary; how much there was I had not the means of seeing, I could not tell; it appeared to me afterwards, I admit, upon looking at those bills, that they were large and excessive.

71,980. I will put the question another way: when the accounts were furnished to you, did they appear to be larger than you anticipated?—Certainly.

71,981. Allow me to ask to what extent?—I really can hardly say to what extent. I confess I was very much surprised at having to pay so much.

71,982. What in your view would be a legitimate sum?—I am really hardly a judge of that, from never having had any experience of a Hull contest at any time except upon that occasion; because something must depend, and in fact much depends, upon the circumstances of the borough, the extent, and means of communication, and so on; therefore I could hardly form a judgment. I think I have seen it stated here by two gentlemen, I think Mr. Alderman Gresham one, and Mr. Bright another, that 400*l.* would be about as much as was necessary for a perfectly pure election; and I have no reason to doubt it.

71,983. Mr. Bright said that the whole difference between the 400*l.* and the 1,828*l.* which you paid was excessive?—I dare say he is right.

71,984. And Mr. Blundell said that he paid the expenses of Mr. Hill's election when elected, and they did not exceed 400*l.*?—I dare say he is right.

71,985. You had never been in Parliament before?—No. I had never been a candidate for any place before.

71,986. Had you formed in your own mind any idea of what the expenses would come to?—No, I cannot say that I had. I saw, at the time of the election, a good deal of this printing, and a great number of cabs employed. I know that I had myself been at Hedon, and that there must be some committee rooms and all that; but my notion I assure you was extremely vague as to the probable amount of the expenses. I cannot say that I had formed in my mind anything like a probable estimate of what the amount would be.

71,987. I mean at the time when the contest became quite inevitable?—I perfectly understand the question.

The Right Hon. M. T. Baines, M.P.

4th August 1853

71,988. Did you form any judgment as to whether the number of persons whom you saw at the doors where your flags were out, was greater than it ought to be?—No; but as I stated before, I really did not go to any of the rooms, unless they were rooms where I had occasion to address the electors, and there I could not distinguish between the persons there employed or professing to be employed, and other persons, bystanders.

71,989. Had you means of determining, or coming to any opinion, as to the number of messengers that were actually employed?—Not the least.

71,990. Since, of course, it appears by the accounts?—Yes.

71,991. If that be so, it seems to render it unnecessary to put to you the question whether you knew that they were freemen or not?—I have not the least notion whether they were or not, or who they were.

71,992. Did you hear during the course of the contest that a considerable number of freemen were messengers engaged on your behalf?—Certainly not.

71,993. Or voters at all?—Certainly not.

71,994. I have no occasion to be quite so long with you as with gentlemen not so familiar with the law, therefore I put the question to you at once: can you afford us any information at all upon the subject of our inquiry?—I wish I could. I have not the least doubt, as the result of my connexion with Hull, that a large portion of the constituency here is as pure and as honourable as any constituency in the world, but they have the misfortune to be mixed up with an element of a very different character; there are persons, I believe, who, quite irrespective of anything like political principle, are anxious to get up a contest for the sake of the emolument it might bring. I found that on the occasion when I came down upon the second election, the only other election I went through. You are aware that in the beginning of 1849 I had the honour to be appointed by Government to my present office, and it became necessary that I should go through another election, and certainly I believe the leaders of all parties in the town refused to have anything to do with any opposition to me; they stated upon the whole that they were satisfied with my conduct in Parliament, and they thought that I ought to be in Parliament, and I assure you I escaped a contest then by a miracle. I believed down to the very last that a contest would take place in 1849, and I believe a man never had the misfortune to become more unpopular than I did upon that occasion, because nobody could be got to oppose me, and the result of what I saw then and what I had seen before was, I may say, to speak strongly, but not more strongly than I felt, that no earthly consideration would ever induce me to offer myself again as a candidate for the honour of representing the constituency of Hull; and a year before the last general election, and when no prospect had opened of my going anywhere else, I declared my intention of not offering myself again for Hull. I did not receive the invitation from the present constituency whom I represent until ten months after I had declined.

71,995. How soon was it known then that you would not offer yourself again?—It was not publicly known till a year or a year and a half before the general election. I did not immediately after the election of 1849 say that I should not come again, but several of my friends understood that that was my purpose, and undoubtedly it was my settled purpose from the time of that second election.

71,996. Should you now, from the present knowledge that you have of Hull, consider that it would be the duty of anybody bringing forward a fresh candidate to enter unreservedly into the state of the constituency of the borough?—Do you mean to disclose it to him.

71,997. Supposing you were about to introduce a successor, a friend or political adherent, should you consider that it was the duty of a person undertaking such a responsible situation as that of introducing a man to a contest, to make him thoroughly acquainted with all the circumstances?—Surely I should consider it my bounden duty, if I knew that anybody intended to offer himself as a candidate for Hull, to tell him. I think any person coming as a candidate ought undoubtedly to be informed by the person bringing him, if that person has the means of knowledge of the actual state of affairs in Hull, and it would be exceedingly unfair to introduce him without that knowledge.

71,998. Did you happen to hear, during the course of the contest, of a person of the name of William Henry Nicholson?—Never. I do not think I have.

71,999. Did you hear, upon the election day, that there were through the town "lots of voters," are the words, waiting to be bought?—I heard of that fact from Mr. Brown when he came to my committee room, I should say at about two o'clock on the afternoon of that day; and this gives me an opportunity of stating that my recollection of the conversation that took place then differs in one point from that of Mr. Bright. The difference I account for in this way. I need not state to gentlemen of the profession to which I have the honour of belonging, that evidence of conversations six years ago is very apt to be differently recollected and differently represented by the gentlemen who were both present; and then again it may be that I heard a portion of that which Mr. Bright did not hear. I have a distinct recollection that when Mr. Brown came to my committee room between one and two or two and three o'clock in the afternoon, he said this: "I have come to tell you that I am not going to keep this up any longer; but let me tell you that there are a number of fellows," I think that was the expression that was used, "hanging about my committee room ready to be bought if I would only pay them." I said to Mr. Brown that I thought that he had acted very handsomely in coming to apprise me at the earliest time of his intention to resign the contest, and that was all that passed between us. I had no previous acquaintance with Mr. Brown—none.

72,000. In what respect do you think that that substantially differs from Mr. Bright's statement?—In this way. I have read a report of Mr. Bright's evidence, and I understand that Mr. Bright says that he does not recollect anything being said by Mr. Brown about there being people hanging about ready to be bought. I believe you will find that Mr. Bright did say that; now I have a distinct recollection of it, and I mentioned it several times since, as a proof of things that did go on at Hull elections.

72,001. Did Mr. Brown mention Nicholson?—No; I never heard that name. He mentioned no name at all.

72,002. Did you, before the contest terminated, hear the name of Nicholson?—I have no recollection of ever hearing the name.

72,003. He is a sailmaker, and a farmer of votes in this town?—I have not the honour of his acquaintance, nor ever heard of him.

72,004. Is it to that you attribute Mr. Brown's resignation, the circumstance that he would not be a party to such a transaction?—I understood Mr. Brown at that time to say that he would not buy people who were there ready to be bought. That I understood distinctly from Mr. Brown in the course of that day, and I may mention that I had applications made to me from innumerable quarters to coalesce with one or other of the candidates.

72,005. How did you deal with such applications?—I uniformly declined to listen to them. I had come forward upon perfectly independent grounds, and whether the consequence was to be that I was to win or lose my election,—and the loss seemed probable at one time,—I was perfectly determined to maintain that ground throughout, and I did.

72,006. Can you in any way account for the remarkable circumstance that, considering that you were at the head of the poll in the early part of the day, that nevertheless you polled fewer than even Mr. Brown did after his resignation at the close of the day?—So I understood. I understand now that I had a very narrow escape.

72,007. Of being beaten by Mr. Brown, after all?—Yes.

72,008. He actually polled more in a single hour?—Yes; I have read that in the course of the evidence given before the Commissioners, and I dare say it was so. I presume that those were gentlemen who considered they had only an inchoate right up to the time of the voting to be paid by Mr. Brown, and endeavoured to make it somewhat more certain, by giving their vote. That is my impression.

72,009. It has been intimated that part of the reason, either of Mr. Brown's personal visit to your committee room upon the polling day, or the visit made by some one else which has been intimated, that one object of such a visit was, to make a proposal to you or your committee, that this number of persons, who you properly represented were hanging about, should be bought at the joint expense of the two parties;—did you never hear of such a proposition?—No person ever ventured to make such a proposition in my hearing, or to mention it to me, and I was not aware that any such proposition had been made.

72,010. You made no personal canvass?—No, not at all.

72,011. Nor attended any committee rooms?—Certainly not.

72,012. And Mr. Bright has stated, which probably you have in substance stated, that your instructions were very precise, that you placed yourself entirely in his hands, with a strong injunction that no money should be paid for bribery or treating?—Certainly.

72,013. You recollect some such intimation as that?—Yes; permit me to say I do not recollect the precise words, whether bribery or treating, or any other corrupt practices. I meant to assure Mr. Bright that the only principle upon which I would stand would be one of purity of election; that is to say, that I would be no party whatever to any illegal or improper practice.

72,014. I was only putting that with a view of founding another question upon it; having stated something of that kind in substance to Mr. Bright, and Mr. Bright having then asked as to the payment of runners, were you or not aware that among the freemen of Hull there was something in the nature of a customary payment of any kind existing?—I think I had heard that at that election, to which you made a reference just now, Mr. Wilberforce's, that there had been some evidence of that kind, I dare say a good deal of evidence of that kind given. I had heard of that, and it was with reference to what I had heard of corrupt practices formerly prevailing in Hull, that I was particularly anxious to impress upon Mr. Bright my strong wish and determination to have nothing whatever to do with any practice which was not strictly correct and legal.

72,015. You would probably be aware, from the profession to which you allude, and to which we all belong, that in many cases this kind of customary payment is considered almost a legal right?—It is a melancholy fact, no doubt.

72,016. Have you any knowledge of such a claim as a customary payment in Hull; do you remember if you particularly expressed yourself with reference to that to Mr. Bright?—I do not think I did; I believe my injunctions to Mr. Bright were of a general character, and intended to apply to every kind of corrupt practice.

72,017. Mr. Bright says: "I think Mr. Baines' impression was, that money was paid per head in Hull, and he refused to do it; I collected that from him during the contest.

The Right Hon. M. T. Baines, M.P.

4th August 1853.

I said it was customary to pay the voters about 2*l.*, and he said he would be no party to that" ?—I do not remember Mr. Bright mentioning to me any such specific sum as 2*l.*; and all I can say of what I said to Mr. Bright is, that I gave him a very distinct notice, a maybe somewhat general declaration of my own feelings upon the subject intended to apply to every species of corruption, be it what it might.

72,018. I think you have stated that your remittances were from time to time ?—Yes; I think I made four altogether.

72,019. Were they some of them during the contest ?—No.

72,020. None until afterwards ?—No; when I went away from Hull after the contest I said to Mr. Bright: "I suppose you have laid out some money, if you will let me know what it is, I will remit it to you immediately;" and I think within a short time, I forget how long afterwards, Mr. Bright sent to tell me that I had better send 500*l.*, and I sent 500*l.*

72,021. I believe the examination and settlement of the account was later ?—Yes; did not receive the accounts till February 1848, the election having been in July 1847; and in the meantime all the payments had been made.

72,022. The accounts were not finally settled until the following year ?—No; I received them from Mr. Bright, and he stated that they had been in the hands of accountants, who had delayed them; he regretted their delay, and it was not until February I received them.

72,023. He informed us that he had occasion to employ an accountant in the matter ?—I believe so.

72,024. When the contest became imminent and certain, as we have heard there was a great deal of necessary activity and so on, and money must have been necessary too,—while it was going on, do you remember during the three days when the contest was so pressing and imminent, whether during that time Mr. Bright made any representation to you of the disbursements that he was necessarily making ?—No; he did not. I think he stated generally what was self-evident, that it would now cost more, and a good deal more, than had been anticipated. I was told that it would be necessary to engage a number of cabs, and the polling booths, and so on, and such expenses as we had never dreamt of.

72,025. He did not draw your attention to any particular heads ?—Certainly not.

72,026. For instance, the nature of the customary payment to runners ?—No.

72,027. Mr. Bright says: "It was immediately upon Mr. Brown's coming, when I said it would cost him more, that a conversation arose as to the practice at Hull elections"?—I do not remember its being mentioned at that time; you mean about the payment of head money ?

72,028. He rather drew the inference from your language than from anything you said, that you were under the impression that there was a customary payment of that sort; he mentioned 2*l.* as a kind of guess of his ?—I do not think it was mentioned; but I should not like to speak positively to that.

72,029. My note that I took with regard to that was, that Mr. Bright said that he had an impression that you were aware that something in the nature of head money was paid ?—I had no other impression than that I derived from hearing of the former election that I spoke of.

72,030. You would be aware probably, not now, but at the time you made the payments and went through the accounts, that there was a charge of 119*l.* for these runners or messengers ?—I believe for runners or messengers there is.

72,031. But during the contest, I understand you to say that your attention was not drawn in any way particularly either to the number of them or the character of the payments ?—Not in the least.

72,032. I will put one question to you as I put it to Mr. Moore. I will put it in the same form to you. Supposing that an item was to be found in your account to this effect, that a number of voters had been paid a day's wages merely for their labour in going up to the poll, would you have considered that contrary to your instructions that there should be no corrupt bribery ?—Undoubtedly.

72,033. You have been asked about colourable employment, but there has been another part of the custom that has been spoken to, which is for the necessary employment of the election, yet that the voters apply for that employment upon the understanding that if they are employed and paid, they are to vote for the persons employing them. Did you hear of that ?—Certainly not; and I should have entirely disapproved of it; that is buying the vote in another way.

72,034. Then Mr. Bright has told us, from the conversation and intercourse that he had with you, he thought himself entitled to spend the difference between 400*l.* and 1,800*l.*, except in the way of paying head money. Do you agree or deny that that was the import of the conversation ?—I left Mr. Bright a discretion which my experience tells me it is a wise thing to do when you have an agent upon whom you can rely. I told Mr. Bright distinctly that I would be no party to any illegal or improper practice, and with that general injunction I left Mr. Bright, who understood the matter a great deal better than I did, to make the payments which appeared to him to be necessary. When Mr. Bright's accounts came in, I never taxed them; I had not the least doubt that he had done his best, and I paid every farthing that he demanded from me; and I do believe now, although there was much of hurry and confusion at the time, and although some things may have been done, by those who did me the honour to act as my agents, indiscreetly, I am perfectly convinced that Mr. Bright never intended to lend himself to any corrupt practices at all; and I have sufficient confidence in him to say that he never did so.

The Right Hon. M. T. Baines, M.P.

4th August 1853.

72,035. Do I understand you to say that it was not until after the election that you had any idea of what the expenditure was?—Certainly not; in fact I was not aware of it until I made the last of those payments, which was about Christmas.

72,036. In October before the account was rendered to you?—I knew I paid all four.

72,037. You paid more than you were required?—Yes; I know I had some returned to me. I paid 1,900*l.*, three 500*l.* and one 400*l.*

72,038. Tell me in which class of the voters you found a strong desire for a contest, independent of the political motives?—I hardly know how to designate that class of voters.

72,039. Was it confined to the freemen, or was it the smaller class of 10*l.* householders?—I have no means of judging; it was not from coming into personal contact with them, it was from the way that I was met when I came forward, partly by freemen and partly by those who sympathised with the freemen, who might not be electors themselves; but undoubtedly it was the most unpopular thing that a man could do here, to come and find nobody to fight him.

72,040. You cannot say whether that was confined to the freemen?—I cannot say.

72,041. Or whether the more respectable part of the voters took part in that desire?—I do not think that.

William Norton.

WILLIAM NORTON sworn, and examined.

72,042. Where do you live?—In Carr Lane.

72,043. What is your business?—A livery stable keeper.

72,044. What rent do you pay for a house or premises?—I am assessed at 38*l.*

72,045. Are you a freeman?—No.

72,046. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Ever since the Reform Bill.

72,047. Who did you vote for in the year 1841?—I always voted for the blue party.

72,048. Did you vote for James and Hanmer?—Yes.

72,049. Did you get any money on that occasion or afterwards?—No.

72,050. Neither before nor after?—No.

72,051. Did you vote in 1847?—Yes.

72,052. Who for?—It was for the blue party.

72,053. There was no blue?—Then I voted for Mr. Baines only.

72,054. Did you get any money then?—No.

72,055. Were you a runner or messenger?—No.

72,056. A member of any committee?—No.

72,057. Were you in any way engaged in the election except in voting?—No, never.

72,058. Who did you vote for on the last occasion?—Moore and Butler.

72,059. This time your name appears to have been set down at Lowgate committee room for Moore and Butler; is that so?—No; it was in Chariot Street, where I voted this last time.

72,060. But where your name was set down?—I do not know, I am sure; my voting paper is in Chariot Street.

72,061. Did you vote at that election at all?—Yes.

72,062. Before the election day came on, was your name set down at the committee room?—No; I never was applied to for my vote by any person that I know of.

72,063. Were you not canvassed by the blue party?—I do not remember being canvassed at all.

72,064. Not by either orange or blue?—No; there might be some people called, but they were young men, and I took no notice of them. I was not much at home.

72,065. The question is, whether you had your name set down as a runner for pay?—No.

72,066. Did you receive any money at the election?—No.

72,067. Neither before nor after?—No; nor never paid any.

72,068. Not in any way?—No; I never had any money at all.

W. Pounsbury.

WILLIAM POUNSBURY sworn, and examined.

72,069. Where do you live?—In High Street.

72,070. What business are you?—A sailmaker.

72,071. What is your rent?—About 5*l.*

72,072. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

72,073. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1830.

W. Pounsbury.

4th August 1853.

72,074. In 1841 who did you vote for?—I always voted on the orange side before the last election.
72,075. Did you vote for Clay and Thompson?—Yes.
72,076. Were you paid anything at all?—No; nothing at all.
72,077. Were you paid any money that election?—No; nothing at all.
72,078. Not any money coming from the candidates or their committee?—Nothing at all.
72,079. In 1847 who did you vote for?—No person.
72,080. Why not?—I was busy; I had not time to attend upon them.
72,081. Were you paid any money?—No.
72,082. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
72,083. Were you paid for that?—I was paid a sovereign.
72,084. Was that before or after you voted?—After.
72,085. Who by?—By Mr. Charles Wells, in George Yard.
72,086. Was that all?—That is all I received.

JOSEPH POWDRELL sworn, and examined.

Joseph Powdrell.

72,087. Where do you live?—At Wilmington, in the parish of Sutton.
72,088. What is your business?—I am in the buying line for Sheffield shanks and those things.
72,089. What rent do you pay?—£10.
72,090. Are you a freeman?—No.
72,091. How long have you been entitled to vote?—I have voted at two elections.
72,092. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I gave each party one.
72,093. Who do you call the parties?—I do not know them.
72,094. Baines, Brown, or Clay?—I think it was Baines; but I am sure I do not know.
72,095. And Brown?—And the orange, one to each party.
72,096. Were you paid anything for it?—No.
72,097. Did you get any money that election?—No.
72,098. On any account?—Not on any account.
72,099. After the election?—No.
72,100. At the last election who did you vote for?—I voted for the two blues.
72,101. That is Moore and Butler?—Yes.
72,102. Were you paid for that?—Three weeks after that, I received 10*s.*, when I was in the Market, of Samuel Stephenson.
72,103. Was that all you received?—That was all I received from any party.
72,104. Had you had your name set down at the committee room?—No; I am not aware that I had.
72,105. Had you had your name set down as a runner in the Holderness committee room?—No; nothing more than that.
72,106. What did they pay you for?—I do not know; they did not tell me what they paid me for.
72,107. You knew it was on account of the election?—Yes; I dare say. I did not object to it.

WILLIAM JOHN PRANCE sworn, and examined.

72,112. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Ever since 1832.
72,113. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
72,114. Were you paid for it?—No.
72,115. Nothing that election?—No.
72,116. Not from the candidates or any party?—No; not from the candidates or any party belonging to the candidates.
72,117. Not on any account?—No.
72,118. After the election?—No.
72,119. Six months after?—No.
72,120. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I did not vote at all.
72,121. Why not?—It was Brown, Clay, and Baines, and I did not vote.
72,122. Why not?—I was out of town. It was half-past three when I got home, and when I found Mr. Brown losing his election, I found it was no use.
72,123. Were you paid any money?—No.
72,124. Was your name set down?—No.

W. J. Prance.

4th August 1853.

72,125. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
72,126. Were you paid for that?—Yes.
72,127. How much?—Half a guinea, and then a sovereign. That is 1*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* I received.
72,128. When were you paid the first?—On the Saturday of the week previous to the election.
72,129. Where?—At the committee room in Saville Street.
72,130. By whom?—By Mr. George Craven the first payment.
72,131. And the second where paid?—At the same committee, on the Saturday after the election.
72,132. You are not in such good circumstances as you used to be?—No, not exactly.

Anthony Priestley.

72,138. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
72,139. Were you paid for it?—No; I do not know that I was. I got a sovereign for minding the committee room.
72,140. Was that all you got?—Yes.
72,141. Before or after you voted?—I was paid after.
72,142. Who paid you?—Mr. Cattley.
72,143. Did you ask them for employment?—No; they employed me.
72,144. Did you ask them for it?—No.
72,145. How came they to employ you?—They wanted some one to take care of the committee room.
72,146. Did they come to you?—Yes, they did.
72,147 What did he say to you?—He wanted a man to mind the committee room, and to run errands.
72,148. Did he ask you for your vote?—No.
72,149. Who asked for the vote?—Nobody.
72,150. Never at all?—No; they know I am a blue.
72,151. You did not promise?—Not until the last day.
72,152. When they undertook to give you employment, and pay you, you knew they expected you to vote for them?—I do not know for that.
72,153. Do you think they would have employed you, and paid you, if they thought you were going to vote for the orange party?—No; I should think not.
72,154. Did you think they would have paid you if you had voted orange?—I do not know.
72,155. Never mind what you know, what do you think about it?—Yes.
72,156. Have you any doubt that they would not have paid you if you voted orange?—No; I do not think they would have paid me.

72,169. For being check clerk?—Yes.
72,170. Was that all you got?—Yes.
72,171. In 1847 who did you poll for?—Brown.
72,172. Were you paid for that?—I got a sovereign from Doctor Twining.
72,173. Was that all you got?—That was all I got.
72,174. Was that paid before or after you voted?—Before I voted.
72,175. Where?—At Noah's Ark, in Witham.
72,176. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Goderich.
72,177. Were you paid for your vote for the blues?—No; I was not paid from any party.

John Ranson.

4th August 1853.

72,178. Did you get no money at all?—Not a farthing.
72,179. Not before, or after, or during the election?—No.
72,180. Did you get 10*s.*?—No.
72,181. I see your name down with half a sovereign opposite to it?—I did not get it.
72,182. Your name is set down in Holderness?—It is unknown to me: I never received anything.
72,183. Do you know Mr. Bamford; your name is down in his list?—I never received anything.
72,184. Was your name set down?—Not to my knowledge.
72,185. Did you ever ask for anything?—No; and I never promised any one.

72,191. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
72,192. Were you paid for it?—Yes; I think I got 10*s.*
72,193. Was that before or after you voted?—After I voted.
72,194. Where?—At the committee room. I cannot tell where the committee room was, but at some committee room.
72,195. Who paid it, do you know?—I think Mr. Bannister.
72,196. Was that all you got?—Yes, I think so. I do not remember getting any more.
72,197. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.
72,198. Were you paid for that?—Yes.
72,199. How much?—A sovereign.
72,200. Was that before or after you voted?—After I voted.
72,201. Where?—At Mr. Bannister's office.
72,202. At the Blue Bell?—No.
72,203. Was that all you got?—Yes.
72,204. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
72,205. Were you paid for that?—Yes.
72,206. How much?—I got 10*s.* the first time. I was set down for five days.
72,207. How much did you get altogether?—I think about 16*s.* I do not know to a shilling or two; my memory is bad.
72,208. Were you paid before or after you voted?—After I voted.
72,209. Who by?—By Mr. Bannister's brother, at his office.
72,210. Do you know his brother?—His brother-in-law.
72,211. What is his name?—I do not know his name.
72,212. Was it at Mr. Legitt's room?—No; at Mr. Bannister's office.
72,213. How long after the election?—The Saturday night after the election.
72,214. Were there other people paid beside you?—Yes
72,215. How many did you see there?—I did not see anything paid. We went in one by one.
72,216. You do know others were paid?—Yes; because they told me after they came out.
72,217. Did you see them come out?—Yes.
72,218. How many did you see come out?—Two or three. I might have seen more.
72,219. Did you see any waiting about to go in?—Yes.
72,220. How many?—I could not see. I did not take notice.
72,221. About how many did you take notice of?—I took no notice. As soon as I got my turn served away I went.
72,222. Were you waiting for your turn to go in?—Yes; I was waiting till I was called in.
72,223. Was there a doorkeeper?—Yes.
72,224. And you were called in your turn?—Yes.

72,280. How much?—£2.
72,281. Before or after you voted?—After.
72,282. Where?—I believe in the Pottery, at the Baltic.
72,283. You were one of Nicholson's lot?—I do not know; my name was put down, and I was sent there to receive it, and I received it there.
72,284. You were one of Hall, the landlord's, lot?—I cannot tell whose lot I was.
72,285. Was that all you got?—That was all I got.
72,286. Did you get 2*l.* entire, or 1*l.* 18*s.*, or 1*l.* 19*s.*?—It may be 1*l.* 19*s.*
72,287. Hall kept a shilling from you?—I cannot tell who kept the shilling back.
72,288. You do not think it was the man who sold you?—I do not know what you mean. My name was set down. I was not aware of it until I was sent to receive 2*l.*
72,289. What time were you set down?—I cannot tell that.
72,290. Was it the day before?—I do not know.

J. A. Ridley.

4th August 1853.

72,306. How long have you been free?—Since 1839.
72,307. In 1841 who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.
72,308. Was your freedom paid for by the party?—Yes.
72,309. Which party?—The blue party.
72,310. Was it in consequence of that that you voted for them in 1841?—No, I do not think it was.
72,311. When they took up your freedom and paid for it, did you not understand they would expect you to vote for them?—They did not ask.
72,312. Did you not understand when they paid for your freedom that they would expect you to vote for them in return?—Yes.
72,313. In 1841 you did vote for them?—Yes.
72,314. And you kept your bargain, did you not?—Just so.
72,315. Were you paid for your vote as well?—No.
72,316. Did you get any money?—No.
72,317. No money from the candidates or their party at that election?—No.
72,318. Or after it?—No.
72,319. At the next election who did you vote for?—Mr. Baines.
72,320. Only?—No.
72,321. Who else?—Baines and Brown I voted for.
72,322. Were you paid for that?—No.
72,323. You got no money that election?—Nothing.
72,324. Nor after it?—No.
72,325. Not any amount?—No.

72,338. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1821.
72,339. Did you vote in 1841?—Yes.
72,340. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
72,341. Who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
72,342. How much were you paid?—I got 5*l.* 10*s.* I was stopped, in consequence of stopping home from a voyage.
72,343. They asked you to stop at home and vote for them, and they paid you what you lost by it?—Yes.
72,344. And a little more?—No, I got nothing but that. I only got 4*l.* 10*s.* for the voyage, and a sovereign after, I got.
72,345. It was a little more than you lost?—No, I believe I lost a little myself.

W. Robinson.

4th August 1853.

72,346. At the next election of 1847, who did you vote for?—Brown and Baines.
72,347. Were you paid for it?—Yes, I got 10*s.* from Brown.
72,348. Was that before or after you voted?—I got 5*s.* before, and 5*s.* after.
72,349. Who paid you for it?—I am sure I do not know. I was in that committee room in the market. I did not know the gentlemen sitting there.
72,350. Was that all you got?—That was all I got.
72,351. Did you not get anything for Baines?—No.
72,352. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
72,353. Were you paid for that?—Yes.
72,354. How much?—32*s.*
72,355. Were you set down as a runner?—I was set down as a messenger.
72,356. Were you paid before or after you voted?—Part before, and part after.
72,357. Who paid you, do you know?—I think they call him Mr. Elride.
72,358. Where was it paid?—At Minerva Terrace.
72,359. Are you blind?—Yes.
72,360. Have you been unfortunately blind for some time?—No; my eyesight has got worse within the last twelve months.
72,361. Could you see then?—Yes.
72,362. And they employed you as a messenger?—Yes, I did what I could. I used to mind the room, or go out anywhere, and do anything they askedme.

Henry Robinson.

HENRY ROBINSON sworn, and examined.

72,363. Where do you live?—Cogan Street.
72,364. What is your business?—Boat builder.
72,365. What rent do you pay?—£60.
72,366. Are you a freeman?—No.
72,367. How long have you been entitled to vote?—I think from about 1841; I cannot say exactly.
72,368. Did you vote in 1841?—No, I think not.
72,369. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines, I believe
72,370. Were you paid for it?—No.
72,371. Did you get any money that election?—No.
72,372. Not on any account?—No.
72,373. No bill for making flag-poles, or anything?—Nothing at all.
72,374. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
72,375. Were you paid for it this time?—No.
72,376. You got no money?—Not any.
72,377. Was your name set down anywhere?—Not that I know of. I never gave any consent to any such thing.
72,378. Did you go to Legitt's room at all, in Minerva Terrace?—No.
72,379. Did you see him at all?—Yes.
72,380. And talk to him about the election?—Yes.
72,381. What did he say?—He came soliciting to our place for our votes; that is all.
72,382. What did you say?—I told him I thought I should vote for them.
72,383. Did you tell him you were not quite certain?—Yes.
72,384. Did he say anything to you about setting your name down?—No; I did not give any promise to any party.
72,385. I ask whether anything was said to you about putting your name down, in order that you might be employed, and be payed?—No; never such a thing.
72,386. Or in order that you might be paid without being employed?—No
72,387. Did you ask for any money?—No.
72,388. At any time?—Not at any time.
72,389. You say he came to your place to canvass?—Yes.
72,390. Did he canvass only you?—He canvassed only what freemen and electors there were about the place.
72,391. Your workmen?—Yes.
72,392. How many of them?—There were only two, I think, at that time.
72,393. What were their names?—One was George Owbridge, and the other Joseph Drury.
72,394. Did you hear that they were paid for their votes?—I do not know, I am sure; I cannot say; I think there was one of them; as to the other I cannot say.
72,395. Which of them?—Drewey.
72,396. Where does he live?—I do not know where he lives; he has been up. The other, I think, polled for orange.
72,397. Will you undertake to swear you had no money?—Yes.
72,398. Or any expectation of money?—Yes, I will.
72,399. They did not have any rooms of you?—No; I never had any such thing hinted to me at all.

JAMES ERATT sworn, and examined.

James Eratt.

4th August 1853.

72,400. Are you an almsman in the Kingston almshouses ?—Yes.
72,401. Are you a freeman ?—Yes.
72,402. How long have you been a freeman ?—35 years.
72,403. At the election in 1841 who did you vote for ?—James and Hanmer.
72,404. Were you paid any money ?—No.
72,405. Not on any account ?—No.
72,406. By the candidates, or by their committee or party ?—By none.
72,407. In 1847 ?—I was at sea at that time.
72,408. At the last election who did you vote for ?—Moore and Butler.
72,409. Were you paid any money for that ?—None.
72,410. Were you paid any money at all ?—None whatever.
72,411. Are there any other voters in the Kingston almshouses that you know of ?—Yes, there are several present.
72,412. Are you sure you did not get any money after the election was quite over ?—Quite sure.
72,413. Nor in 1841 ?—No.
72,414. Who canvassed you for your vote ?—Moore and Butler.
72,415. Did any persons belonging to your almshouses canvass you ?—None.
72,416. None of the persons in superior offices ?—No ; I gave my vote deliberately to them.
72,417. I ask you if they canvassed you at all ; any of the officers of the establishment ?—No ; we gave our votes to whom we thought proper.

THOMAS HESELTINE sworn, and examined.

Thomas Heseltine.

72,418. Are you in the Kingston almshouses ?—Yes.
72,419. Is that one branch of the Trinity House corporation ?—Yes.
72,420. Are you a freeman ?—Yes.
72,421. How long have you been a freeman ?—About fifty years.
72,422. In 1841 did you vote ?—Yes.
72,423. Who did you vote for ?—Hanmer and James.
72,424. Did you get any money ?—I think I got ten shillings brought to me ; I never solicited it.
72,425. After the election ?—After the election, by the clerk of Mr. Gleadow ; my memory is so bad.
72,426. Mr. Callum ?—Yes, that is his name.
72,427. Was that all you got ?—That is all I got.
72,428. In the election of 1847 who did you vote for ?—Baines and Brown.
72,429. Were you paid for that ?—I think I got 6*s.* ; it was presented to me sometime after. They said, "Here is 6*s.* for you, if you choose to accept it." I did not ask for it.
72,430. Did you accept it ?—I did.
72,431. At the last election who did you vote for ?—Moore and Butler.
72,432. First of all, let me ask you, had you had your name set down ?—No ; nowhere.
72,433. In 1847 ?—No.
72,434. Do you know whether that 6*s.* came from Mr. Baines or Mr. Brown ?—I do not know. I dare say it was from Mr. Brown ; it was not from Mr. Baines.
72,435. I find your name set down in a book of Mr. Baines' ?—I got no money there. I never inquired for any. It was a man they called Collison paid me.
72,436. In that book of Mr. Baines' is your name set down as an applicant ?—I never inquired ; I met them in a carriage, and I went to vote for them. I never was applied to at all.
72,437. You were never applied to by Mr. Baines ?—No.
72,438. By any of his committee ?—No.
72,439. By any of his canvassers ?—No.
72,440. Can you undertake to say you were not set down at his committee room as a messenger ?—I never was at his committee room.
72,441. Or as a runner ?—No, I think not ; I am not sure.
72,442. By any of his canvassers ?—I think not.
72,443. How do you account for his having your name in his book as a runner ?—I was no runner ; I could not run.
72,444. But you might have your name set down ?—I never put my name down as a runner in any place ; never in my life.
72,445. In 1852 you voted for the blues ?—Yes.
72,446. Were you paid for that ?—No ; I do not recollect that. I got my pay for Moore and Butler.
72,447. The last election ? Yes, the last election.

Thomas Heseltine.

4th August 1853.

72,448. You got nothing?—I think I got nothing; I am not sure, my memory is so bad. If I did, it was only 5*s*. I do not know whether I got anything or not. I do not think I did.

72,449. Who were you canvassed by?—Moore and Butler, they called themselves.

72,450. That is the mere formal part of it; who canvassed you?—No one.

72,451. We are told that all the people belonging to the Trinity House always vote blue?—I always did all my lifetime, a long time before I was in the Trinity House.

72,452. The officers of the establishment do not canvass you?—No, they never canvass. We were at liberty to vote for who we liked; they would not canvass any of us.

72,453. They said so?—I did not hear them say so. I heard say we were all at liberty to have our own votes as we liked.

72,454. Was there an understanding in the ward, or whatever you call your house, that the parties were to vote whichever way they liked?—There was no understanding that they were to vote for anybody,—they said not a word about it.

72,455. I thought you said you understood they would not canvass you?—I always understood so, but they always said "Vote for who you like."

Samuel Mason.

SAMUEL MASON sworn, and examined.

72,456. Are you an almsman in the Trinity almshouses?—Yes.

72,457. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

72,458. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1818.

72,459. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.

72,460. Were you paid for it?—No. I have voted since 1818 and never received a halfpenny yet.

72,461. Are you quite sure of that?—Quite sure.

72,462. Have you always voted blue?—Always voted blue.

72,463. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I think I did not vote at all that year.

72,464. Why not?—There was not much opposition; there was only Baines and Clay likely to get in.

72,465. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

72,466. And you never got anything?—Not a farthing.

72,467. Did you get anything after the election was over?—No.

72,468. Was there no money brought to you?—No.

Robert Dring.

ROBERT DRING sworn, and examined.

72,469. Are you an almsman in the almshouses?—Yes.

72,470. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

72,471. How long?—Since 1805.

72,472. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Nobody.

72,473. Why not?—I was not here.

72,474. Were you at sea?—Yes.

72,475. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I will not be certain whether I voted for Mr. Baines.

72,476. Do you think you voted for Mr. Brown?—No; I did not vote for Mr. Brown.

72,477. For Mr. Clay?—It must have been Baines and Clay; but I will not be certain.

72,478. Were you paid anything?—I never received a farthing for forty years from any one, but I have been out of pocket.

72,479. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

72,480. You voted for Clay before, why did you not vote for him again?—I cannot tell you that.

72,481. Did you change your mind?—I do not know that I voted for Clay; you must look and see.

72,482. You are quite certain you never had any of the candidates' money at any time?—Not one farthing; but I have been out of pocket.

72,483. Do you swear you have paid other people?—No. I have been voting as a householder, and they have been charging me so much a year for taxes.

72,484. Did you want them to pay back some of your taxes?—No.

JAMES CREIGHTON sworn, and examined.

James Creighton.

72,485. Are you an almsman?—Yes.

72,498. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
72,499. How long have you been a freeman?—From 1820.
72,500. Did you vote in 1847 for Hanmer and James?—No. I was at Archangel that time.
72,501. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I think I did not vote then either.
72,502. Where do you think you were then?—I cannot say whether I was here or in the country.
72,503. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.
72,504. Who for?—For the two Liverpool men.
72,505. Was that Moore and Butler?—I suppose so.
72,506. Did you get any money?—Not I.
72,507. None at all?—Not anything.
72,508. Do you know a man of the name of Thomas Lindsey?—I cannot say that I do.
72,509. Is he not a neighbour of yours?—I do not know that name.
72,510. Did you hear Mr. Moore or Mr. Butler canvassing anybody?—No; I cannot say that I did.
72,511. Did you hear them ask anybody how much they wanted?—No.
72,512. You are quite sure of that?—Yes, I am quite sure.
72,513. Have you ever said you did hear that?—I never was asked that question before.
72,514. Did you ever say you had heard them canvassing a man and ask him how much he wanted?—No; I never did.
72,515. Did you ever live in Humber Dock Street?—Yes.
72,516. How long ago?—Eighteen months since.

JOHN GELL sworn, and examined.

John Gell.

72,519. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1818.
72,520. In 1841 who did you vote for?—I was at sea.
72,521. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I did not vote at all.
72,522. Why not?—I was not here.
72,523. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
72,524. Did you get any money?—None whatever.
72,525. None at all?—No.
72,526 Neither before nor after the election?—Not at any time.
72,527. You are quite sure of that?—Quite.

WILLIAM DAWSON sworn, and examined.

William Dawson.

72,528. Are you an almsman?—Yes; I live in the Trinity Almshouses.
72,529. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
72,530. How long have you been a freeman?—Ever since Mr. Stainforth first came.
72,531. Did you vote for Hanmer and James in 1841?—No.
72,532. Who did you vote for at that election?—I never voted for any but the blues but once since I was a freeman, and I have been a freeman ever since Stainforth's time.
72,533. Did you get any money in 1841?—I cannot tell the time. I have not had a farthing ever since the last three elections.
72,534. Did you get any money at the last election?—Not a farthing.
72,535. Did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes.

Thomas Lenham.

THOMAS LENHAM sworn, and examined.

4th August 1853.

72,536. Are you an almsman in Ferries' Almshouses?—Yes.
72,537. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
72,538. How long have you been a freeman?—I believe in 1818.
72,539. At the election of 1841 who did you vote for, Hanmer and James?—Of course I would vote for the blues; I always did.
72,540. Did you get any money for it?—I do not know; upon my oath I do not know
72,541. You will not say you did not?—I am sure I did not. I suppose it was got for me, if there was anything to be given; they would look out for me.
72,542. Who would get it for you?—I suppose my wife, or some of them. I know I did not. I believe I did not that election.
72,543. Do you think your wife did?—I think my wife did not, during that election.
72,544. There was money going about?—I heard of it, and she would look out for that.
72,545. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.
72,546. You were paid some money that time?—Yes, I got some money that time.
72,547. How much?—I do not know; I got half a sovereign.
72,548. Was that after you voted?—After I voted. I never got any before I voted.
72,549. Do you know who paid you?—Yes; Mr. Collison.
72,550. Did Mr. Mitchell pay you any money?—Never. I never had any.
72,551. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
72,552. Were you paid anything for Mr. Baines, in 1847?—A long time after the election I got 5*s.* I think, I understood for Mr. Baines, from Mr. Sidebottom.
72,553. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
72,554. Were you paid for that?—No.
72,555. Did you get any money?—No.
72,556. You were set down as a runner, were you not?—No.
72,557. There were some other voters in the hospital where you are?—Yes.
72,558. They voted blue?—Yes; four of us went in a carriage together; two of them are dead, and one is dying.
72,559. Were they not down as runners?—No, I do not think they were. I do not know.
72,560. Were they paid any money, do you think?—I do not. I did not trouble my head about it. I do not know that they were.
72,561. You never heard that they were paid any?—I have heard so; but I do not know. I cannot tell the particulars.
72,562. Did you hear it from them?—No; I never heard anything of the kind.
72,563. Are you quite sure you got nothing yourself?—I am quite sure, and I am sensible of it.
72,564. And you were not set down on a list to get something?—No, on no list.

John Boyden.

JOHN BOYDEN sworn, and examined.

72,565. Are you an almsman?—Yes.
72,566. In the Merchant's Seaman Almshouses?—Yes.
72,567. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
72,568. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1806.
72,569. Who did you vote for in 1841?—I am sure I forget.
72,570. Hanmer and James, or Clay and Thompson?—I have been for the blues ever since I polled.
72,571. Can you recollect?—My memory is gone entirely.
72,572. Can you say whether you were paid any money in 1841?—Yes, I was.
72,573. How much?—£3.
72,574. Were you employed?—No.
72,575. What were you paid the 3*l.* for?—For voting I expect.
75,576. Do you know who paid you?—No; that I am sure I do not, nor I did not trouble myself.
72,577. Why not?—Because I did not receive the money.
72,578. Who did?—My wife.
72,579. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I think it was Mr. Brown. I cannot say exactly.
72,580. Were you paid for that?—No, not a farthing.
72,581. You did not get anything?—Not a doight.
72,582. Did you ask for anything?—No.
72,583. Did you go and look for anything?—No.
72,584. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore.
75,585. Only?—Only.

John Boyden.

4th August 1853.

72,586. Did you get anything for that?—I got a sovereign.
72,587. Who paid you?—That I will not tell you.
72,588. But you must?—I cannot, because I did not see the man's face that paid me.
72,589. Why did you not see his face?—I did not know the man, and as long as I got the money it made very little odds to me.
72,590. Where did he pay you?—At the Shakspeare Tavern.
72,591. Was that after you voted?—After I voted. I cannot say how long.

JOHN HUNTER sworn, and examined.

John Hunter.

72,592. Are you in the almshouses?—I am.
72,593. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1813.
72,594. In 1841 who did you vote for?—I did not vote for any one.
72,595. Why not?—To the best of my recollection I was not on the register.
72,596. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I then did not vote at all.
72,597. Why not?—I was not on the register.
72,598. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
72,599. Were you paid any money?—Not a farthing.
72,600. Did you go to look for anything?—No, never.
72,601. Was nothing said to you about getting any money?—No; there was nothing said to me. I never had any information that I should get any money, therefore I gave it up.
72,602. Was not any brought to you at the almshouses?—No.

JOHN FREAR sworn, and examined.

John Frear.

72,603. Are you an almsman in the Victoria Almshouses?—Yes; in the Trinity Almshouses.
72,604. How long have you been a freeman?—About fifty-nine years.
72,605. In 1841, who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
72,606. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
72,607. How much?—I got a sovereign.
72,608. When did you get it?—I was sent to a paint shop, and I gave a man a card and he put it in a hole, and they took the card, and put a sovereign into his hand, and the man pulled his hand out, and said, "There is a sovereign for you."
72,609. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.
72,610. Did you get anything for that?—I got half a sovereign.
72,611. Where was that paid?—At the Black Horse, in Waterhouse Lane.
72,612. Did you get anything for Mr. Brown?—I believe it was Mr. Brown paid it. It was Mr. Brown's committee.
72,613. Was that all you got?—That was all I got, every farthing.
72,614. At the last election who did you vote for?—Bramley Moore and Butler, and I never got a farthing.
72,615. How came that?—They did not like to pay it, I suppose.
72,616. Your name was set down for money, but you had it not?—No; it was not. I was not set down for any money.
72,617. Did you go and look for some money?—Yes; I must go and look for some.
72,618. Where did you go and look for the money?—Where I could catch it.
72,619. Did you go to a committee room?—No; I never went to a committee room. I went in as I was coming past one at Dock Side, and they said my name was not down, or else I may have got some money if I had my name down, but I had no name set down.
72,620. Was it after you polled?—Yes; it was after I polled a good while.
72,621. Are you sure your name was not set down somewhere; did you not hear they had put your name down?—No; they had not set me down.
72,622. Did you hear they had, and therefore you went to look for some money?—No; I never heard it; I was very ill, and therefore I could not get out.

JOHN HILL sworn, and examined.

John Hill.

72,623. Do you live in the almshouses?—Yes.
72,624. How long have you been a freeman?—Fifty-three years last July.
72,625. In 1841 did you vote for Hanmer and James?—No.
72,626. Who for?—I polled for Thompson.
72,627. Thompson only?—Thompson himself.
72,628. Did you get any money?—No.
72,629. Did you get no money at that election?—I got no money for Thompson.
72,630. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I do not know who I polled for in 1847.

John Hill.

4th August 1853.

72,631. Mr. Brown?—I do not know. I cannot recollect. I received 10*s.* that election, but I cannot say who for. I cannot recollect it.

72,632. You did vote for somebody?—Yes; I polled in 1847.

72,633. John Hill, the elder, of Grotto Square, is that you?—Yes.

72,634. You polled for Clay only?—Yes.

72,635. And you got 10*s.*, where did you get it?—In St. John Street, against the stonemason's yard there.

72,636. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

72,637. Did you get anything for that?—I got a sovereign.

72,638. Was that before or after you voted?—After I polled.

72,639. Who paid it?—I do not know the gentleman. I got it in George Yard.

John Meek.

JOHN MEEK sworn, and examined.

72,640. Do you live in the almshouses?—Yes.

72,641. How long have you been a freeman?—Fifty-one years.

72,642. In the election of 1841 who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.

72,643. Were you paid for it?—I believe I received something, but I do not recollect what it was; my memory is so bad

72,644. Would it be as much as a sovereign?—I think it was more than that; I think so, but I cannot say exactly.

72,645. Was it paid before or after you voted for them?—After.

72,646. Do you know who paid you?—I do not recollect who it was, I am sure, now.

72,647. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.

72,648. Did you get any money for that?—Nothing at all.

72,649. Did not Mr. Mitchell pay you something?—No.

72,650. Did you get some money from Mr. Mitchell?—No; I did not get any.

72,651. Are you quite sure of that; we find your name down in his book?—Very likely, but I did not receive any. There is another John Meek besides me.

72,652. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

72,653. Were you paid for that?—Not anything.

72,654. Had you your name set down at all for any money?—No; I had not.

Charles Robinson.

CHARLES ROBINSON sworn, and examined.

72,655. Do you live in the Carr Lane Hospital?—Yes.

72,656 How long have you been a freeman?—About sixty years.

72,657. Who did you vote for in 1841?—Hanmer and James.

72,658. Were you paid for it?—Yes.

72,659. How much?—One sovereign, I think.

72,660. Do you know who paid you?—No; I do not.

72,661. Did you vote in 1847?—Yes.

72,662. Who for?—Baines and Brown.

72,663. Were you paid anything for that?—Yes.

72,664. How much?—Five shillings a day; 10*s.* for two days.

72,665. Were you paid for Mr. Baines by a man of the name of Goldsmid?—I am sure I quite forget; I do not know.

72,666. Were you paid after you voted?—Yes.

72,667. Did you have a ticket given you to get the money?—No.

72,668. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

72,669. Did you get anything for that?—No.

72,670. No money at all this time?—Not one stitch.

Edward Sutton.

EDWARD SUTTON sworn, and examined.

72,671. Do you live in the almshouses?—Yes.

72,672. How long have you been a freeman?—Fifty years.

72,673. Who did you vote for in 1847?—I cannot recollect that; my recollection leaves me very much.

72,674. Do you recollect whether you got any money?—I never got any money then. I have not got any money for a very long time.

72,675. That is thirteen years ago; did you get any then?—Yes; but I cannot recollect their names then.

72,676. James and Hanmer; you are down in the book for 1841, is that right?—That will be right then.

72,677 Did you get any money for that?—I never got any money then.

72,678 You are quite sure of that?—Yes.

Edward Sutton.

4th August 1853.

72,679. Did you get any money after that?—I cannot recollect; my recollection leaves me altogether.

72,680. At the next election in 1847 did you vote for Mr. Brown?—I cannot recollect.

72,681. Your name is down for Mr. Brown in 1847; is that right; they say you got some money from Mr. Stephenson in Bishop Lane?—I think not.

72,682. Will you say you did not?—I cannot recollect.

72,683. You must try and recollect. Your name is down in Mr. Stephenson's list as paid in 1847 in Bishop Lane. Do you know where Bishop Lane is?—When Mr. Stanniforth was there?

72,684. Did you get any money at the last election?—No.

72,685. Who did you vote for?—For the blues.

72,686. Are you sure you did not get anything of them before?—No.

Thomas Savage.

THOMAS SAVAGE sworn, and examined.

72,687. Do you live in the almshouses?—Yes.

72,688. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

72,689. How long have you been a freeman?—About sixty years.

72,690. Do you recollect voting in 1841?—No; I was away at sea then.

72,691. Did you not vote for Baines?—I do not know but what I did.

72,692. Did you vote in 1847?—I was at sea then.

72,693. Did you not vote for Baines?—I do not know but what I did. I have forgotten now. I have no memory.

72,694. They say you voted for Baines, and got some money for it?—I got 10*s.* maybe. I have no recollection now.

72,695. That is what they say you did get, 10*s.*?—I do not know indeed whether I did get it or not. I cannot tell.

72,696. What do you think about it; do you not think they gave you 10*s.*?—I really cannot say.

72,697. What did you mean when you said 10*s.* just now, unless you got it?—I do not know, I am sure.

72,698. You just said maybe you got 10*s.*?—I said perhaps I might, but I do not know whether I did or not.

72,699. What made you think of 10*s.* more than any other sum; that is the very thing that happens to be opposite to your name. It seems to be right. Do you say that?—I do not deny it, but I do not know whether I did or not.

72,700. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

72,701. Did you get any money for that?—No; not a copper.

72,702. That you are quite sure about?—I am sure of that.

Stephen Pratt.

STEPHEN PRATT sworn, and examined.

72,708. Were you paid for it?—Yes.

72,709. How much?—A sovereign.

72,710. Before or after you voted?—After, for my labour.

72,711. Who by?—I cannot tell you.

72,712. Why not?—You put a stumbling-block before me, and I cannot jump over it.

72,713. Why not?—I never saw the man who paid it.

72,714. Where was it paid?—In Witham.

72,715. At a blacksmith's shop?—Something like the place. I only saw a hand.

72,716. In 1847 who did you vote for?—A plumper for Brown.

72,717. How much did you get?—A sovereign, for my labour.

72,718. Who paid it you?—I was paid at David Ledger's, the Sculcoates Tavern, at Scott Street end.

72,719. After you voted?—Yes; for my labour.

72,720. You asked them to employ you?—I told them to set my name down, because I always voted for that party; and wherever I make a promise I always support.

72,721. You told them to set your name down as a messenger?—Yes; and so I assisted, and did what I could.

72,722. When you asked them to employ you and pay you, you knew they would expect you to vote for them?—Certainly; and so it was my intention.

72,723. And you knew if you did not vote for them they would not have paid you?—Certainly, I would not go and ask them for it.

Stephen Pratt.

4th August 1853.

72,724. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
72,725. Were you paid for that?—Yes; I was a messenger before that election.
72,726. How much were you paid altogether?—Thirty shillings; 10*s.* before the election, and a sovereign after.
72,727. In the same way you asked them to employ you?—I went up to the committee.
72,728. Did you ask them to employ you?—I went up to the committee. They wanted some messengers; they asked me if I had any objection to be set down. I said no; they said, "You are a useful man to us."
72,729. They knew whenever you voted you liked to have a little employment and a little money?—Yes; I was out of employment, and I have to labour for my bread, and their labour is as good as any other to me.

John Roe.

JOHN ROE sworn, and examined.

72,730. Where do you live?—Michael Street, in the Pottery.
72,731. What is your business?—A shipwright.

72,832. Were you paid for it?—No.
72,833. Did you get any money that election?—No.
72,834. Not on any account?—No.
72,835. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
72,836. Blue this time?—Yes.
72,837. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
72,838. How much?—27*s.* for five days.
72,839. Where, in Worship Street?—Yes.
72,840. Who paid you?—Mr. Purdon.
72,841. Had you been set down as a runner?—Yes; I attended five days.

B. Shepherd.

BENJAMIN SHEPHERD sworn, and examined.

72,842. Where do you live?—Daltry's Entry, Mytongate.
72,843. What is your business?—Ferryman.
72,844. What rent do you pay?—Four guineas.
72,845. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1812.
72,846. In 1841 who did you vote for?—I voted for Hanmer and James.
72,847. Were you paid for it?—Yes; I got something, but I am sure I cannot tell what.
72,848. Was it a sovereign?—I am sure I cannot say.
72,849. Was it 10*s.*; as much as that?—I got someting, but I cannot tell you how much.
72,850. More than 10*s.*?—Yes; I should think, maybe, it might be 1*l.*
72,851. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.
72,852. How much did you get?—Nothing.
72,853. Were you paid any money?—No; I do not remember getting anything.
72,854. Not for coming from the ferry?—No.
72,855. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
72,856. You got something this time?—Yes.
72,857. How much?—I think about 24*s.* or 25*s.*; I am not sure what.
72,858. Was that at Legitt's room, in Minerva Terrace?—Yes.
72,859. You were one of his party?—Yes.

W. Silverwood.

WILLIAM SILVERWOOD sworn, and examined.

72,860. Where do you live?—Engine Street.
72,861. What is your business?—Eating house keeper.
72,862. What rent do you pay?—£11.
72,863. Are you a freeman?—No.
72,864. How long have you been entitled to vote?—I think, twice.
72,865. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I did not vote at all.
72,866. Why not?—I think the reason was, I had promised Mr. Brown, and when went up to vote he had given up.
72,867. So you did not vote at all?—I did not vote at all.
72,868. 10*s.* you had before that?—Never in my life, not from them nor from any party belonging to them.
72,869. Did you get any money that election?—No.
72,870. At the last election who did you vote for?—Mr. Butler and Mr. Moore.
72,871. Were you paid by them?—No.
72,872. Did you get no money at all?—No; I never asked them for any money.
72,873. They say your name is set down in West Sculcoates ward as a runner?—No.
72,874. How is that, was anything said to you about it?—No.
72,875. Who canvassed you?—I do not know; there were two or three of them. I went up and voted by myself.
72,876. What did you say to them when they canvassed for the blues?—Both parties canvassed me.
72,877. What did you say?—I said I should go up when I had time and should give my vote.
72,878. You would not promise them?—Yes, I did promise.
72,879. Did you promise the blues?—Yes.
72,880. And did you tell the orange that you would not vote for them?—Yes.
72,881. And you got no money?—And no money; I did not expect to have any.
72,882. Did you not understand you were to have your day's loss of time?—I never got anything from them.
72,883. Did you not understand you were to have it, because your name is set down among those that were to be paid?—No; I never expected anything of the sort; I never asked for such a thing.

THOMAS SIMPSON sworn, and examined. Thomas Simpson.

4th August 1853.

72,884. Where do you live?—No. 2, Salthouse Lane.
72,885. What business are you?—A grocer.
72,886. What rent do you pay?—12 guineas.
72,887. Are you a freeman?—No.
72,888. How long have you been entitled to vote?—The last election only.
72,889. Who for?—Moore and Butler.
72,890. Were you paid for it?—No.
72,891. Did you get any money?—No.
72,892. No money from the candidates or the committee at all?—No.
72,893. Or their party?—No.
72,894. Was your name set down?—Not that I know of.
72,895. Do you know Mr. Bamford?—No.
72,896. Did you never see him?—Not to know him.
72,897. Your name is set down in Lowgate ward; how is that?—I never told any one to set my name down.
72,898. What did you say to them when they canvassed you?—I do not remember seeing anything of them.
72,899. Do you not recollect being canvassed at all?—Yes; several canvassed, but I was not at home.
72,900. Were you on any committee yourself?—No.
72,901. Did you canvass for them?—No.
72,902. You had nothing to do with the election but voting?—That is all.

ISAAC SISSONS sworn, and examined. Isaac Sissons.

72,903. Where do you live?—Scale Lane.
72,904. What business are you?—A cabinet maker.
72,905. What rent do you pay?—I am not a householder; I live with a son of mine.
72,906. Are you a lodger?—Yes.
72,907. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
72,908. How long have you been free?—Forty years.
72,909. In 1841 who did you vote for?—I did not vote; I was not within the limits of the borough at that time.
72,910. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I was not here then, neither.
72,911. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
72,912. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
72,813. How much?—£2.
72,814. Where?—At the Shakespeare Tavern.
72,815. After you voted, or before?—£1 before, and 1*l.* after, in three different payments; two Saturday nights before the election, and one afterwards.
72,816. Were you set down as a runner?—Yes.
72,817. Was that all you got?—Yes.

JACOB SISSONS sworn, and examined. Jacob Sissons.

72,918. Where do you live?—Mytongate.
72,919. What rent do you pay?—£5.
72,920. What business are you?—A tailor by trade.
72,921. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
72,922. How long have you been a freeman?—A number of years; I cannot say exactly.
72,923. Thirty years?—Yes.
72,924. In 1841, who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.
72,925. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
72,926. How much were you paid?—I am sure I cannot say.
72,927. Was it as much as 20*s.*?—Yes.
72,928. Do you recollect where it was paid?—I do not.
72,929. Who was it paid by?—I am sure I do not.
72,930. In 1841 were you paid on the polling day?—I do not know.
72,931. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.
72,932. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
72,933. How much?—15*s.*
72,934. Who paid you?—I am sure I do not know.
72,935. Where were you paid?—The Market Place.
72,936. Before or after the election?—Long after.
72,937. Was that all?—Yes.

Jacob Sissons.

4th August 1853.

72,938. At the last election who did you vote for?—Mr. Moore.
72,939. And Mr. Butler?—No; Mr. Moore, I think.
72,940. Were you paid?—Yes.
72,941. How much were you paid?—I cannot say; I was a runner.
72,942. How long?—About three weeks.
72,943. Was it all at the same committee room, or different committee rooms?—Only one.
72,944. Which committee room was it?—The Shakespeare.
72,945. Were you paid every Saturday night?—No, we were not, every Saturday night.
72,946. Were you paid something after the election?—Afterwards.
72,947. How much after the election?—I am sure I do not know exactly.
72,948. 10*s.*, was not it?—Thereabouts.

Francis Smith.

FRANCIS SMITH sworn, and examined.

72,949. Where do you live?—I live in Thornton Street.
72,950. What rent do you pay?—£5 10*s.*
72,951. What is your business?—I have not any; I have been commissioned off from the Government.
72,952. In 1841 who did you vote for?—I was not a freeman in 1841.
72,953. How long have you been a freeman?—I only voted last election; but I was a freeman in 1818, when I polled for Stanniforth.
72,954. Were you on the register of voters?—Oh yes, of course, as long as I held a commission under Government.
72,955. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
72,956. Were you paid for it?—I was going past the committee room, and there were eight of them going up to get the money, so I went up, and amongst the rest I got a sovereign. I never spoke, nor promised my vote, nor did anything else.
72,957. You got the money?—I got a sovereign after, but I accidentally got it.
72,958. Who paid you?—I am sure I cannot say who it was now. It was there; but it was all accidental, for I did not promise any one who I should vote for.
72,959. Did you tell them your name?—Of course.
72,960. And then they looked which way you had voted?—Of course they would.

George Smith.

GEORGE SMITH sworn, and examined.

72,961. Where do you live?—Osborne Street, Chapel Court.
72,962. What rent do you pay?—£5 10*s.*
72,963. What business are you?—A mariner.
72,964. How long have you been a freeman?—Ever since 1814.
72,965. Who did you vote for in 1841?—Hanmer and James.
72,966. Were you paid for it?—No.
72,967. You were paid no money?—No.
72,968. You had nothing from the candidates or their party at that election?—No.
72,969. After the election?—No.
72,970. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines.
72,971. Did anybody get any money for you in 1841?—No.
72,972. You voted for Clay and Baines?—Yes.
72,973. Did you get any money for your vote?—No,
72,974. Did you get no money that election?—Not a farthing.
72,975. Or after it?—No.
72,976. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
72,977. Did you get any money that time?—Yes.
72,978. How much?—I got seven or eight days' pay.
72,979. At how much a day?—3*s.* 6*d.*. I believe.
72,980. Did you get as much as 27*s.*?—Somewhere thereabouts.
72,981. At Lidgard's?—Yes.
72,982. You were set down at his room?—Yes.

George Smith.

GEORGE SMITH sworn, and examined.

72,983. Where do you live?—Drypool, Medley Square, No. 2.
72,984. What is your business?—A fisherman.
72,985. What rent do you pay?—£5.
72,986. How long have you been a freeman?—I voted the last three elections. I cannot tell you how long it is, exactly.
72,987. Was your freedom taken up for you?—Yes.

Geoege Smith.

4th August 1853.

72,988. It was about 1839 I suppose?—I voted at three elections.

72,989. Was it after you voted your freedom was taken up?—I am sure I cannot exactly say when it was taken up; but Mr. Pochin, of Grantham, was the name of the gentleman; a clergyman.

72,990. Who did you vote for in 1841?—I cannot tell you the names of the gentlemen; it was for the blues.

72,991. Hanmer and James?—Yes, I believe they were the names.

72,992. Did you get any money for it?—I think 2*l.*

72,993. Where were you paid?—It was at a committee room in High Street. I am sure I cannot tell who it was. It was, I believe, Mr. Freebody that paid the money.

72,994. Was it before or after you voted?—I am sure I cannot tell exactly; I believe it was after.

72,995. Did you get any money on the polling day?—That I am sure I cannot tell you, if I was to speak the truth.

72,996. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Brown and Baines, I believe.

72,997. Were you paid for it?—I got a sovereign, I believe.

72,998. Was it for Brown?—It was from both. I only got one sovereign.

72,999. Who paid you?—Down Salthouse Lane, some place. I cannot tell you who gave me the money.

73,000. Was that all you got?—Yes.

73,001. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

73,002. Were you paid for it?—Yes.

73,003. How much?—I am sure I cannot tell you exactly; perhaps from a sovereign to 25*s.*

73,004. Was that at Lidgard's?—Yes. There is one thing I should like to mention: A gentleman came and told you, me and my brother received a sovereign each.

73,005. What is your brother's name?—Thomas Smith.

73,006. Was it at the last election?—Yes.

73,007. Who said you were paid a sovereign?—Mr. West, Mr. Harrison's clerk or something of that—his head book-keeper. He promised me and my brother a sovereign for the detainment of our vessels and our men. He pledged his word and honour that he would give it, if we would do the same. I said, "If I say a thing I will do it, as far as I can." When the election was over he said he would give it, but he never has done so.

73,008. He never did?—No.

73,009. Perhaps he gave it your brother?—No; neither me nor my brother.

73,010. You were to get a sovereign besides the 27*s.*?—Yes; for the detainment of my boat and my men.

73,011. You say that Mr. West promised your brother Thomas and you?—Yes.

73,012. What day was he examined?—I am sure I cannot tell that; I believe about a fortnight or three weeks back.

73,013. What Mr. West was it?—Mr. West, one of Mr. Harrison's clerks or head book-keeper; on the Humber Side.

73,014. Stephen West?—I do not know whether it is Stephen.

73,015. He has been examined here?—Yes. I accused him of it myself, because I thought it wrong for any gentleman to come and say so.

John Smith.

JOHN SMITH sworn, and examined.

73,016. Where do you live?—Trippett Street.

73,017. What is your business?—A seaman.

73,018. What rent do you pay?—I am a burgess.

73,019. Are you a lodger?—Yes.

73,020. How long have you been a burgess?—

73,021. In 1841 who did you vote for?—I have not polled since 1818; Stanniforth and Graham's election.

73,022. Why not?—I was at sea.

73,023. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

73,024. Who for?—Moore and Butler.

73,025. Were you paid for it?—I got a sovereign.

73,026. Where were you paid?—At the committee room in Lowgate.

73,027. Was it after or before the election?—After the election.

73,028. Who paid you?—I am sure I do not know.

73,029. Was that all you got?—Yes.

73,030. Are you quite sure you did not vote in 1847?—Oh yes; I was in China in 1847, and I could not vote, cleverly.

Adjourned to to-morrow, at ten o'clock.

FIFTY-FIRST DAY.—Friday, 5th August 1853.

Mr. W. Croft.

5th August 1853.

Mr. WILLIAM CROFT sworn, and examined.

73,031. Where do you live?—Bank House.

73,032. What rent do you pay?—£40.

73,033. What business or occupation do you carry on?—I am a merchant.

73,034. Are you also a freeman?—No.

73,035. How long have you been qualified to vote?—I think eleven or twelve years, but I am not certain as to the time.

73,036. Were you qualified to vote in 1841?—No, I was not, in 1841.

73,037. Did you take any part in the election of 1841?—None whatever.

73,038. Who did you vote for in the year 1847?—Baines and Brown.

73,039. Did you take any share in the election of 1847, beyond voting?—None.

73,040. Had you nothing to do with the financial arrangements at that time?—Nothing at all. I never was in a committee room, that I am aware of.

73,041. Were you upon a committee?—No. I think I was never in a committee room.

73,042. I thought you might be upon a committee without being in it?—I am not aware that I was in a single committee room.

73,043. You might have canvassed out of doors?—No; I never canvassed.

73,044. Now, in 1842, did you vote for Moore and Butler?—I did.

73,045. You took an active interest in their success?—Yes.

73,046. A list of names that you paid has been handed in to us. Can you recollect what money you paid to any of the voters? Tell us, in your own way, the share that you have had in these transactions?—All the monies that were paid in my committee room went through my hands.

73,047. Which committee was that?—It was called the South Myton Pottery district.

73,048. Were you the chairman?—No; the deputy chairman.

73,049. How much money did pass through your hands?—I cannot tell exactly. I can only tell at a guess, because I kept no account whatever. I think, as near as I can recollect, perhaps 150*l.* passed through my hands altogether.

73,050. Were there many persons set down, as it is called, at that district committee?—Towards the latter end of the election there were; not previously.

73,051. How many, according to your recollection?—Well, I am sure I cannot tell to a dozen.

73,052. It has been stated to be about a hundred; do you agree to that?—No; not a hundred; perhaps sixty. I cannot tell I am sure.

73,053. Were books or pay sheets kept at the time of the payments made?—No; there were no books kept of the payments whatever. The accounts were made out in this way: On the Saturday night the clerk made out the accounts, and I took those accounts on to the central committee, got the money, and came back, and paid the money across the table.

73,054. What you call the pay sheets?—Yes; what we call the pay sheets.

74,055. What became of those pay sheets after the election was over?—I believe they were destroyed every Saturday night, after the accounts were paid, to the best of my recollection, when we had done with them. I never saw them again.

73,056. Did the number of persons to be paid increase considerably as the contest proceeded?—In the last week.

73,057. Before then?—No, I think not; not before.

73,058. It increased to some extent, no doubt?—It might, as far as four or five men may go; I cannot say exactly. Some times we put them on for a few days, and took them off again.

73,059. That is what I am coming to. You changed about your men, in order to give employment to a greater number?—We did not change them. Now and then we put on some. I had a regular set of men all the election time.

73,060. In order to distribute your money among a greater number, did you not change your men about?—I cannot say that I did.

73,061. It was done at your committee?—No; I did not say it was done at our committee.

73,062 I understood you to say so?—What I meant to say was this, when extra work was required to be done I put on extra men to do it, but I did not keep those extra men on after the work was done.

73,063. It has been stated to us very often,—perhaps you may have collected it from the evidence,—that it was made a practice to change the men in order to spread the money over a greater number?—I do not recollect that.

73,064. Do you doubt it?—I doubt that I did it.

73,065. Do you doubt that it was done at your committee?—Yes; I do doubt that it was done in my committee. There might be a few cases.

73,066. Just recollect yourself?—I did not make a practice of doing it; that is what I meant to say.

73,067. You mean to say it was done in some instances, but it was not the universal practice?—That is what I mean.

73,068. And was not that in effect in order to spread the money over a greater number of persons?—Many men might grumble that they were not put upon employment, and it might be done to please them.

73,069. It was done in order to satisfy them, to put an end to that grumbling, so as to give a greater number of men a share of the money?—It was done to a very limited extent at my committee room.

73,070. Was it not, as you state there was grumbling among the men, for the purpose of dividing the money among a greater number of men?—There is no doubt that would be the object of it, if it was done. I beg to say I did not make it a practice of doing it. During the whole of the election I do not think there would be half a dozen changes for that purpose.

73,071. When it was done it was done with that object?—There is no doubt about it.

73,072. Was it not feared that the men would take their votes and their employment elsewhere?—I had no fear of anything of the sort.

73,073. I do not suppose you had; but was not that the fear; did it not influence some of your proceedings; that was the object with which it was done, was it not?—It was to keep them together.

73,074. It was to keep them together on your side?—Of course it was.

73,075. Was it not done lest they should take themselves off to the orange side?—That is a natural conclusion to come to.

73,076. How many men altogether got a share of the money, do you think, at your district?—Do you mean voters?

73,077. Yes?—That I am sure I cannot tell, except at a rough guess.

73,078. What is your rough guess, to the best of your recollection? It is some time ago, and of course we do not tie you down to very narrow hints?—Well, from sixty to seventy. I have no doubt there was that number. I cannot tell, I am sure, to a dozen.

73,079. Do you know a person of the name of Ralph Parker?—No.

73,080. Do you know a person who was a negotiator for votes in rather a wholesale manner; for the men, I mean?—I never heard of such a man.

73,081. Nicholson you heard of?—Yes.

73,082. It was a man of the same description as him?—I know Nicholson; but I do not know this Ralph Parker; I never heard of such a man.

73,083. When did you first hear of Nicholson, during the last election?—I accidentally called at his house among the other freemen and voters; he was in my district; I called at his house to canvass him.

73,084. I dare say you knew that he was a person that negotiated the sale of eighty votes in 1847?—No; I did not know anything of the sort. I never heard of it, except in this Court, that there was such a negotiation.

73,085. You did not hear of it till after the election?—No, I am not aware that I did; I think not.

73,086. You called on Nicholson? What did he say the first time you called?—When I called at his house he was not in. I left word with his wife, that I had come to solicit his vote and interest, and then he called on me at the committee room a day or two afterwards.

73,087. In the Pottery district?—Yes.

73,088. What did you say to him?—I asked him if he would allow me to set his name down as a runner, and if he would have any employment, and he said, no, he would not.

73,089. What further took place on that occasion?—I do not recollect anything further taking place on that occasion.

73,090. Did you learn that he was engaged in rather a wholesale way in selling votes?—No; I did not know that he was a man of that class at all, on that occasion.

73,091. On that day?—No.

73,092. Did you make that proposition, and did he refuse it?—Yes; that is all that took place then.

73,093. Did he mention to you the Pilot Boy?—No; he never mentioned it at all.

73,094. Did he mention John Carter's name?—No, he did not.

73,095. How long do you think this was before the election?—Perhaps three weeks, as near as I can tell.

73,096. How soon did you hear of him again?—I think he called again perhaps a week before the election, as near as I can tell you.

73,097. Had you heard from him in the meantime?—No.

73,098. Did he call at the committee room?—He did call at the committee room.

73,099. And you saw him there?—Yes.

73,100. What took place then?—He intimated that if we wanted any voters that he could procure some.

73,101. You had no doubt, then, who he was?—Yes, of course; then I knew what he was.

73,102. It was to sell a lot wholesale?—Yes, it was.

Mr. W. Croft.

5th August 1853.

73,103. That if you wanted a lot of votes he could get them supplied?—I did not say supplied.

73,104. You understood in plain English that he had got a lot to sell?—No. He begged the question. He put it in this sort of way, that if we wanted any he could get them.

73,105. It was tolerably plain language?—You can put that construction upon it, of course.

73,106. You could put no other construction, that I see?—No; I did not put any construction upon it.

73,107. What did you say to him?—I believe I asked him then what they would cost, to the best of my recollection. I cannot state the fact, but I should probably ask him that question.

73,108. And what did he say?—I think he said they would cost about 5*l.* apiece. I will not be certain as to the sum. I think, to the best of my recollection, they might cost about 5*l.* apiece.

73,109. Did he tell you how many he had to dispose of in that way?—I think he said he could procure perhaps 150.

73,110. And what did you say to the proposition?—I said that I would not have them.

73,111. That you would not have them at that price?—Exactly; they were very dear at that price.

73,112. Did you add that?—No, I did not.

73,113. You gave him to understand that the figure was too high?—Yes.

73,114. Just tell us all that took place? Is that all that then took place?—That is all that then took place. I never was with him above a minute or two minutes at a time.

73,115. How soon did you hear from him again?—I think I saw him again the day before the election, I think it was.

73,116. Had you heard from him in the meantime?—No, I think not; not at that time. I do not recollect hearing from him.

73,117. Where did you see him the next time?—He called at the committee room.

73,118. When he came to the committee room the third time, was he alone?—Yes.

73,119. What took place then? Did he see you alone?—Yes.

73,120. At the committee room?—Yes.

73,121. Just state your own recollection of what passed?—He repeated something that he had stated before. He wanted me, in fact, to make him an offer. He wanted to know what I would give. That was the purport of his visit; and I did not make any offer at all. I did not feel justified in doing it.

73,122. What did he or you say?—He asked me what I would give, or what I could give for them, if he would procure them.

73,123. And what answer did you make?—And I told him I could not make him any offer at all; and I did not make him any offer at all.

73,124. Tell us the whole of what passed?—That is, I believe, the whole of the conversation: I do not think I was a minute with him.

73,125. How much did you bid, if anything?—I never bid anything.

73,126. Why did you not make him any offer? Was it because the price was still kept too high a figure?—I did not make an offer, because I did not feel justified.

73,127. You did not feel justified in giving so much money; was not that the reason?—The reason was, that I did not know whether the central committee would have furnished me with funds to have purchased them.

73,128. Was it not in point of fact this: that you considered the price was too high, and you doubted whether you would be supplied with so much money?—Yes; I did consider them too high.

73,129. Did you communicate that to Mr. Barkworth or Mr. Bamford?—To Mr. Bamford.

73,130. How soon had you any further communication? On the same evening, I believe, again?—With Nicholson?

73,131. Yes?—When I communicated this circumstance to Mr. Bamford, I pressed Mr. Charles Bamford to come down to the committee room, and to speak to the man himself.

73,132. What then took place?—Mr. Charles Bamford then came down in a coach; perhaps about ten o'clock in the evening before the election.

73,133. Where to?—To the committee room.

73,134. Where was it?—It was in Waverley Street.

73,135. What then took place?—Nicholson repeated to Mr. Bamford, that he could procure about 150 votes, as I understood, or 200; I will not be certain as to the number; perhaps it was 150. He said that he could procure them if Mr. Bamford would buy them.

73,136. Tell us all that took place between them?—Mr. Bamford asked Nicholson what they wanted apiece,—the men; and I think he said that they would take 3*l.*, to the best of my recollection, upon condition.

73,137. Was it 3*l.* or 4*l.* he said first?—I think not 4*l.*; I think he said 3*l.*

73,138. You do not recollect an intermediate bid of 4*l.*?—No, I think not; I think it was 3*l.*

73,139. What was the condition?—Nicholson wanted the money to be paid down there and then; I believe that was it, and on that Mr. Bamford said he would have nothing to do with it, and he walked out of the room, and left him. I do not believe they were a minute together. I believe I have now told you everything as to that. There was a coach waiting at the door for Mr. Bamford, and he went away.

73,140. Have you any further communication to make upon that part?—No. He went away, as I thought, very much displeased at the attempt to negotiate having failed.

73,141. Mr. Bamford thought the price considerably too high, did he not?—I considered it very high, certainly.

73,142. And he did as well?—The result showed, I think, that he did, when he turned on his heel and walked away.

73,143. Do you remember writing a letter to Nicholson, or to one of the party, in the course of the night?—No. I never wrote a letter at all.

73,144. Did you make an offer at all?—No, not at all.

73,145. Not at that time?—Nor at any time.

73,146. When did you first go to the Pilot Boy?—I took the committee room there about a week or ten days before the election.

73,147. You had taken the committee room at the Pilot Boy at that time?—Yes.

73,148. But no committee of yours ever met at the Pilot Boy? You never sanctioned the meetings that did take place there? You have heard what they were? Those meetings that took place at the Pilot Boy were without your sanction?—I never knew there were any meetings there. There were no meetings, except at my own committee room.

73,149. We have heard that there were meetings there. There were no meetings sanctioned by you at the Pilot Boy?—None whatever; I never sent any one there except my own runners.

73,150. Was that the object of taking the Pilot Boy, as an extra place to employ runners at, merely to extend the staff?—Well, I did think of having a committee room there, because it was the outskirts of the town; there were a great many freemen in that neighbourhood; but I had reason afterwards not to make use of the room so often as I otherwise should have done.

73,151. What was the reason?—The reason was, I expected the landlord was nothing else but a spy.

73,152. Was not the object of taking the room from John Carter, for the purpose of enlisting him on your side; that was the object of it?—Not when I originally took the committee room; but I expected he would vote for us if I did take the committee room. I do not think I made it a sine quâ non at all.

73,153. You knew that his predilections were rather orange than blue?—Well, I soon found it out.

73,154. He enjoyed the reputation rather of being disposed in favour of the orange party than the blue?—The reason I suspected him was, that he was negotiating with the orange party, even after he had let me the room, to see if he could make more of them.

73,155. And before it too?—And before as well.

73,156. Did you consider that contrary to the agreement with you?—Yes.

73,157. He told us himself, that if you had not taken his room he would have voted for the orange?—There is no doubt he would, I should say.

73,158. You had not been very long in his company before you found that out?—I did not keep his company at all.

73,159. You did, at the time you took the room?—When I took the room, I was not aware so much then that he had a strong predilection for the orange party, or else I would not have had anything to do with him.

73,160. He had some predilection that way?—I did not get much into conversatiou with him. I cannot say that I got particularly into conversation with him upon politics, prior to taking his room.

73,161. Then, suspecting him to be orange, you sent no committee there?—I did not; not regularly sitting there. I used to go there occasionally.

73,162. That was rather to keep a look-out on Mr. Carter's goings-on than anything else; was it not so?—It was certainly to look out; I soon found out that there were more orangemen went there than blues.

73,163. It was to keep a sharp look-out as to what was going on there; you did not go to it as a committee room, but to keep a watch on the enemy? Was not that the object with which you went, to keep a sharp look-out upon them?—Well, it might be so.

73,164. How soon did you see Nicholson there?—I never saw him there but once.

73,165. That was on the polling day?—It was.

73,166. Before I come to that, you had had some communication with him since the meeting that you have spoken of? You went and met him at the Pilot Boy, in consequence of a communication you received?—Not to meet him. I did not know who was there.

73,167. You knew there was somebody there?—About 11 o'clock on the morning of the polling day, this Carter sent me word by one of my messengers, that I was wanted at the Pilot Boy; that there were a great many voters there.

Mr. W. Croft.

5th August 1853.

73,168. Are you sure that you had had no communication with Nicholson or any of his party in the meantime?—No; not from the evening before; I had not seen Nicholson.

73,169. You had no communication or message from him?—I had no communication or message in any way, either direct or indirect.

73,170. He sent you no message, and you sent him none?—No.

73,171. I believe you went there shortly afterwards, on receiving this message?—I did not hurry myself; it might have been an hour afterwards; I expected it was all nothing.

73,172. Do you think it was as much as an hour?—I will not be sure; it might be half an hour; I am sure it was half an hour, if not longer.

73,173. They mustered pretty strong there?—Yes; at least I was told so. I saw that the citadel was taken by the orange party; there was a coach waiting there, and they were treating the voters.

73,174. You saw some of the orange party there?—Yes. In fact I should not have gone, but I saw the coach go past my committee room, and they told me it was going to the Pilot Boy, and as it was my own committee room, I followed them, as I thought they were going to take it by storm.

73,175. Tell us the names of any of the party you saw there?—Of the orange party?

73,176. Yes?—I only know one of them; they called him Edward Best, a ship chandler.

73,177. Did you recognize him as a well know adherent of the orange party?—I knew that he was on the orange side, but I was not aware that he was a violent partizan at all.

73,178. At the time you believed he was orange?—When I saw him there I had no doubt about it. I had doubts before, on canvassing him; but I thought he would have voted the other way, or have been neutral; either one or the other.

73,179. How many did you hear were there?—That I never heard; I have no idea.

73,180. Did you not hear that the number was sixty?—No; I never heard it, except what has transpired in this Court. I see some one has said so; that I believe is the only information I have.

73,181. Did you order the parties some beer?—No, not a drop.

73,182. You paid for some?—Yes; I paid for some, but very much against my own inclination. I think it was some 10*s.* or 15*s.* It was the only tavern bill during the whole election that I paid.

73,183. Mr. Carter has said it was 15*s.*?—Very likely it was; he is more likely to be correct than I am. If he says so it is no doubt correct; but I never ordered it. I knew nothing about it till he came with his bill. I only knew of it after the election.

73,184. You knew that you had ordered some beer?—No, not a drop.

73,185. Do you mean to say that you did not order any beer?—I never ordered a pint of beer or a glass of anything in the house. I knew nothing of it till he brought in his account. I objected to pay it, and he kicked up a row in the office, and to get rid of him I paid it.

73,186. After the election?—Yes; two days after the election, I think; it was on the Saturday. If you will allow me to add, that 15*s.* was the whole that was expended either in eating or drinking, through the whole of the election, for five weeks, in my committee room, and we had 700 and odd voters in my district; that is the whole amount the central committee were charged with, that 15*s.*

73,187. Carter's statement is, that it was beer ordered twice round; that you paid for one, and not for the other; and that that was what the dispute was about, the second?—I never ordered anything. I know nothing about the rounds. In fact I did not know it was for beer. He said it was drink, in the account. I never ordered it, and I knew nothing about it.

73,188. You feel quite confident of that?—As certain as that I am standing here.

73,189. What did take place when you got there; did you see Nicholson?—Yes; he came up stairs into my committee room.

73,190. You went up stairs into the committee room first?—Yes; I went into our committee room.

73,191. Were there any people in the room?—No; no one but myself.

73,192. What then took place?—Nicholson stated that there were a great many voters in the house, and he asked me if I could do anything with them, I think.

73,193. Was the price named then?—No; no price was named. I told him that he had already got his answer from Mr. Bamford, and I would not have anything to do with them.

73,194. Did you see a great many persons there?—No; I did not see them. He did ask me if I would go down, and speak to the men; and I said no, I would not speak to them; I would not ask them for their votes.

73,195. He asked you to go down and see them, and you refused?—Yes.

73,196. Is that all that took place then?—That was all that took place.

73,197. How long did you remain there?—I might be there ten minutes altogether in the room, as near as I can guess.

73,198. When you refused, what did Nicholson say?—He went down stairs out of the room, and spoke to the men, and I did not see him again.

73,199. Did he not come in to you a second time?—No.

73,200. He went down, and said he would speak to the men? What sum did he ask you?—He never named the sum.

73,201. Did you offer him any sum?—No, I did not.

73,202. He went down whilst you waited?—I should not have been there so long as that,—I should not have been there above two minutes, but for the circumstance of the coach being there. I thought I would see the orange gentlemen out of the house.

73,203. You had not bought the whole of the house?—No.

73,204. Then why should not the orange party meet in the same house? I do not understand why both parties could not have rooms next to one another in the same house?—I think it would be very objectionable.

73,205. Why so?—Because the one party would be quarrelling with the other.

73,206. You cannot trust one another; is that it?—There is generally a little bit of feeling shown at elections.

73,207. I do not see why they should not meet at the same public house?—I never heard of such a thing as two committees, blue and orange, meeting in the same house, in my life.

73,208. You did not say that there was an orange committee room there?—No, I did not say so.

73,209. I do not understand why two committees could not meet in the same house, if things were meant to be be conducted fairly?—Such a thing is possible, but it is not very probable, I think. I do not say but what it might be the case; but it is a very unlikely thing; that is all I can say.

73,210. You wanted to see the orange folks out of the house?—Yes.

73,211. Why did you wish to see the orange people out of the house? Did you not want to see this, whether Nicholson carried over his men to the orange party?—I thought I would watch their movements; that is the only reason.

73,212. To watch the movements of this party of Nicholson's, was it not?—Yes.

73,213. And then you went away?—Yes.

73,214. Is that all that you know about that?—That is all I know about the Pilot Boy, that there has been so much talk about.

73,215. Did you wait till they all went away?—No; I only waited till Best, and another person who was with him, left the public house.

73,216. Do you now recollect any other name? If it occurs to you at any moment, and you recollect the name, perhaps you will oblige us by mentioning it?—I will. I believe that Best was giving them something to drink.

73,217. Did he appear to be an active man among them?—He was sent there by his committee.

73,218. Did you collect from Nicholson, during that interview, that he had got an orange ambassador to treat with?—He might have told me that Best was there with the men in the taproom drinking.

73,219. Did he use that as a kind of threat?—I saw that, without his telling me that Best was there.

73,220. Where does this Edward Best live?—He lived in Waverley Street at the time of the election; but whether he lives there now or not I cannot state for a fact.

73,221. Did you understand from Nicholson that there were orange parties there, and did he hold that out as a kind of threat to induce you to come to terms?—No, he did not; he did not press me to come to terms at all, because he had already got his answer from Mr. Bamford.

73,222. The object with which he sent for you was to make another effort?—I do not know that he did send for me.

73,223. You went there under that belief?—I was not sent for by him; I did not know he was there, and I was surprised when he did come into the room.

73,224. When he did come into the room, did you not collect from him that it was at his instance you had been sent for?—I concluded it was at his instance; but I never asked that particular question.

73,225. You collected from the circumstance of his coming into the room; that he was the person who sent for you?—No, I did not.

73,226. Did you think that the meeting was accidental?—The meeting with Nicholson I did. I was not aware, and had no idea that he was there.

73,227. When you got there, did you not believe that this very interview with Nicholson was a plant,—a scheme?—If you understand me, I say that I did not know that any one connected with Nicholson was there when I was sent for.

73,228. When you got there, and found Nicholson there, did you not collect that the message had come from him?—No, I did not.

73,229. We have heard that this man Nicholson was a person who got up lists of people, and sold them as voters; what is called a farmer of votes; you have found that out?—Yes; I found that out.

Mr. W. Croft.

5th August 1853.

73,230. Did you not find out, in the course of your interviews at the Pilot Boy, that Nicholson was endeavouring to make a bargain either with you or the other side for whichever would give the most money?—No, I did not.

73,231. Did you not gather that from him?—No.

73,232. Did you not gather from him that he was endeavouring to treat with Best as well as yourself?—No, I did not.

73,233. That is what I meant when I asked you whether he held it out as a threat. Now, besides that, do you know of another party called Warham's lot?—Yes; by name I know them.

73,234. When did you first hear of that party?—There was a man there called George Brown, and another called Henry Skow; the two together. I have only gathered these names from the evidence. They called on me about ten days before the election, as near as I can recollect; it might be a week or ten days before the election.

72,235, They called on you at the committee room in the Pottery?—Yes; they called on me at my committee room.

73,236. Did you see them?—Yes. They stated that there were twenty-eight of them at Warham's public house, and would I go down and see them.

73,237. Is that all that took place?—I said that I could not go down then, but I think I appointed to go down on the following evening, either at nine or ten o'clock; I forget the exact time.

73,238. Brown was the spokesman?—Yes.

73,239. Did you learn from them what the figure was?—Yes; 10*l.* they asked.

73,240. £10 a head?—Yes.

73,241. Did you say that you could not go till the next evening?—Yes. He did not tell me what the price was when he came.

73,242. You knew very well that he was a man that made no secret of it?—No; he was straightforward.

73,243. He wanted to sell the lot?—Yes.

73,244. But he did not then say the price?—He did not.

73,245. Then did you go there the next evening?—Yes.

73,246. About what o'clock do you remember it was?—I think it would be perhaps nine o'clock. I will not be sure.

73,247. Who did you then see?—I saw the same two individuals in the taproom; Brown and Skow, and I think the landlord.

73,248. Warham?—Yes.

73,249. Which was spokesman of the three?—Brown was the only one I had any conversation with.

73,250. How was the conversation begun?—I am sure I do not know who began first; but I asked him what he wanted? how many voters there were, and what they wanted for their votes; and he said they wanted 10*l.* a piece for them; that there were twenty-eight of them; and I said I thought they were very cheap if they could get somebody to buy them. He said they had had very near the amount offered by one of the orange committee; that he had not been gone ten minutes; and I said I recommend you to stand out stiff for the 10*l.*

73,251. How long did the conversation last?—I do not think I was two minutes in the room altogether. I was so surprised at the price they asked me, that I was very soon off.

73,252. When did you hear of them again?—I do not think that I ever heard of them again.

73,253. Did you write a letter to them?—No.

73,254. Had you a letter from them?—No.

73,255. They did not like writing?—I had neither a letter from them nor did I write them one.

73,256. Did you never go there again?—No.

73,257. Did you never have any other communication with them at all?—None whatever, to the best of my recollection.

73,258. You are sure that they did not write to you?—Yes; I am certain that I never had a line from them.

73,259. Are you sure they did not send you a letter?—I am sure that they never wrote to me a line, and I am sure I never wrote them a line.

73,260. Did you hear there was any letter written on behalf of your party?—I believe it is stated in evidence; some one has stated that he had heard it. I should like to learn from Brown if such a communication took place.

73,261. He has so stated?—I do not think so.

73,262. In point of fact, it is not true?—It was stated that I wrote a letter to Warham's party.

73,263. Yes?—I deny it in toto. I never did anything of the sort.

73,264. If it has been stated by anybody, it is right you should have an opportunity of denying it?—It is a gratuitous falsehood, like many others that have been stated.

73,265. Anything of that kind that you have read as part of the evidence we shall be glad if you will give us any explanation about it?—I have a long list of things stated against me, and there is not a word of truth in any one of them

73,266. We shall be happy to hear the explanation of any particular fact that you complain of?—There is one gentleman that I intend to refer to at the end of my evidence.

73,267. You had no further communication with them, either verbally or by letter?—No, I had not.

73,268. I may take that down as a summary of your statement?—Yes; I think I may go further, and say that I never saw the men afterwards, either Skow or Brown. I have no recollection of ever seeing them again after that evening.

73,269. And this, I think, you mentioned, was about a week before the election?—Yes; I think it would be about a week. I cannot tell to a few days.

73,270. Did you ever go to Warham's again?—No.

73,271. For any purpose?—None whatever. I was at Warham's one day prior to that, in the course of my canvass, to solicit his vote, but nothing more.

73,272. At the time you canvassed first, did you hear anything about his being the head of a party?—No; I had no more idea of it than the man in the moon.

73,273. The whole of your knowledge of Warham's lot is derived from those two interviews?—Yes; entirely. There is one question I wish you would ask me; that is, if I treated those men.

73,274. I was coming to that. I asked you that question for the express purpose. There was a suggestion of that kind?—I can safely say the men never asked me for anything, nor did I give them anythimg. It has been stated that I gave them some bread, cheese, and beer, or the money to get it with, 3*s.* or 4*s.*; and they said that I was a shabby fellow. I can safely say that they never asked me, nor did I give them a penny piece. A great deal of this will suggest itself, as we go on.

73,275. You did not treat them, nor did they ask you?—No, they did not. I only saw Brown, Skow, and the landlord. The other men were in the house drinking. They asked me if I would go in and see them, and I would not.

73,276. Did any other party, besides the two I have mentioned, have any communication with you on the subject, as I will call it, of the purchase?—No; no one else whatever. I never saw any other agent.

73,277. No other person attempted to treat with you, nor did you with any one else?—No; no one else.

73,278. You say you canvassed Warham; did you ever see either of those parties, Brown or Skow, except on that occasion?—No; only when I have canvassed, and on those two occasions.

73,279. Besides those two occasions, you canvassed them for their votes?—It is very probable I did, if they were in my district. I think I canvassed nearly every voter in the district, and if they were in it they would be sure to be canvassed by me; but I have no recollection of canvassing Brown, although it is very probable that I did.

73,280. Supposing that you did, did you make him any offer at all for his own individual vote?—No.

73,281. Nor Skow?—No; nor Skow neither, that I recollect of.

73,282. Do you remember the names of any of the people to whom you paid the money you spoke of, the 150*l.*?—I do not recollect them.

73,283. Did you pay any money after the election?—I paid, I think, the whole of my men on the Saturday after the election. I think it was on the Saturday. I know it was within a day or two after the election that I paid everything.

73,284. Would that be up to the Saturday, or would it conclude with the polling day?—No; we continued on to the end of the week.

73,285. Perhaps some of the men remained there?—Yes, they did, some of them.

73,286. How many do you think might remain after the election?—There would be the doorkeeper and some of the old runners.

73,287. Only a few?—Only a few; the doorkeeper and the old runners.

73,288. Do you know a man named Edward Sidebottom?—Yes.

73,289. Was he a runner?—No; he is a lawyer.

73,290. I do not mean him. Had you any runner of that name?—No; there is not a man, I think, of that name a runner.

73,291. A man of the name of Marshall Dunn?—No.

73,292. Was he one of your runners?—No, he was not; I do not know the man.

73,293. Do you remember saying to anybody that you were giving four days?—Oh, it is very possible. I do not know that I stated it to any particular individual.

73,294. You stated, in answer to a question put to you, that you had a regular set of messengers and runners throughout at your committee room?—What I meant by that was, that we had some, perhaps four or six men, I will not be certain as to the number, from the commencement to the end.

73,295. They were messengers and runners that you had on all the time?—Those were confidential men that we had always about us, and whom we did not change.

73,296. You paid them a weekly sum?—Yes.

73,297. How many were there?—There might be six of them.

73,298. Were those messengers or runners enough for the ordinary work of the committee room?—No. I do not exactly understand what you mean by the ordinary work of the committee room.

Mr. W. Croft.

5th August 1853.

73,299. Were they enough for what you usually had to do in the first instance at the committee room. Of course I do not mean clerks. I mean messengers or runners?—They were not sufficient; but when we had a great deal of work to do we engaged more. We had 600 or 700 circulars to send out in one day. They were not sufficient then; we put on extra men to carry those out.

73,300. The number of letters and issuing circulars would commence at the beginning, directly you began your active canvass?—Yes.

73,301. And with that view you would want the greater number of persons from the beginning?—Yes.

73,302. The work would diminish when you got your circulars out?—Yes; we wanted extra men on those occasions.

73,303. In the beginning, when you were issuing circulars, why did you not have above five or six? Why did you not have more at the beginning, if they were not enough?—We had extra men to carry out those circulars when we required them. It was perhaps only for a day or half a day. We did not call them runners or messengers, when we only took them on perhaps for a day.

72,304. You did that from the beginning?—Yes, occasionally, when we required them.

73,305. As you went on you made a great many additions to your messengers?—No; we did not do that.

73,306. To your runners, then? I do not know what you call them?—We did not make any decided increase till within a week of the election.

73,307. And the names were set down of a great number? A good many of them have told us this, that part of the money was paid to them before they voted; was that so?—That is not true, as far as I am concerned; I am not aware of it.

73,308. I understand you to say you are not aware of any instance in which part of the money was paid to a messenger or runner before he voted? I ask you whether you mean to say you are not aware of any instance in which money was paid to a messenger or runner, whose name was set down to vote for you before he voted? A great many people have told us that they got part before and part after. Tell me whether you are prepared to say you are not aware of any instance in which money was paid to a voter before he voted?—Not in my district, as far as I am concered. I can safely say that there would not be above three or four out of the whole 700 electors paid in that way you state. There might be a single case, or two cases, but not more.

73,309. As there are not in your recollection above one or two cases, perhaps you can mention whom they were?—I do not recollect the names; there was one man they called Wildridge, or some such name; I am not certain that is his name. There were two men I recollect got paid.

73,310. What did you pay them?—I did not pay them individually, although I consider it as bad as if I did. I gave the money to do it.

73,311. What was the complaint? Upon what ground did you pay them; that is what I want to know?—The probability is, that they would not vote without they got the money beforehand. I expect that was the case.

73,312. And upon that ground you paid them before they did vote?—No, I did not. It has been paid in this sort of way: there was a messenger sent with them to vote, and he has brought them back after they had voted, and then they got the money immediately afterwards. I think there are two cases of the sort.

73,313. I understood you, a long time ago, to say that you paid the money to the people?—I should perhaps give it to the clerk across the table, and he paid it. You may consider that I paid it.

73,314. You were present?—I was present.

73,315. Was all the money paid to any messenger or runner all paid in your presence?—Yes; it was all paid in my presence.

73,316. Do I understand you to say that in no instance was any money paid to a messenger or runner, either for three or four or any other number of days before he voted? I want you to give me an answer to that?—I think I have already answered that question.

73,317. Then be kind enough to answer it again?—I stated either in one or two cases it was done. Before he voted, you ask me?

73,318. I have said so several times before he voted?—I do not believe there was a single case; I do not recollect a case where a person was paid before he voted.

73,319. Or any part?—Nor any part. I have no recollection of its being paid beforehand.

73,320. You paid some every Saturday night; you told me so; and I am reminded that the number, as you said, had increased considerably?—Those were for their wages; that is a different thing entirely.

73,321. Will you be kind enough to tell me how many you paid on the Saturday night before the election, for their wages, to the best of your memory?—There might be perhaps eight; I cannot tell to one or two; I am speaking to the best of my recollection.

73,322. You paid them all, or they were paid in your presence?—Yes.

73,323. And then the next payment would not come till the following Saturday?—No.

73,324. Or the day after the election?—No.

73,325. Were some of the messengers or runners paid the day after the election?—It would be on the Saturday.

73,326. Not till the Saturday?—Not till the Saturday; I think not; I will not be sure upon that point, but I think not till the Saturday.

73,327. Were not any of them paid?—I will not be certain on that point. I think it would be on the Saturday they were paid.

73,328. You said that the number of messengers and runners increased considerably in the last week. I took down those as your words?—Yes.

73,329. Was that the week of the election?—Yes.

73,330. And none of them were paid anything till the Saturday?—They were none of them paid anything till the Saturday following, that I am aware of.

73,331. I do not know if the question has been put directly to you; but you are aware, I presume, that a good many persons made applications, and were set down as runners in your district; you are aware of that, I suppose?—Yes.

73,332. Fifty or sixty, I think you said?—Yes.

73,333. I understand you to say, with the exception of those whom you say were continuously employed, that none were paid until the Saturday after the election?—I think not, except the two cases I have mentioned.

73,334. And they were taken up to the poll, and brought back again and paid?—Yes; and paid there and then.

73,335. Did you pay then?—Not individually.

73,336. They were paid in your presence?—The probability is so. I cannot say they were paid in my presence; it is possible they were.

73,337. How much did they get?—I think they got 2*l.* each.

73,338. Surely you can remember the names of the two?—I think they called one Watson; I am not sure what they called the other man.

73,339. Was it Wildbore?—Wildridge, I think it was. I do not recollect. I think Watson was the other name. I believe those two.

73,340. I have one word to ask you with regard to Nicholson's lot?—Will you excuse me half a minute? These men had been put down in my books as runners,—this Wildridge and Watson,—and also in Mr. Yeall's book; but this man Wildridge denied in his evidence that he had ever been put down at all.

73,341. You thought he would run, and you sent somebody else up to the poll with him?—No; I did not think he would run.

73,342. When I say run, that he would run over to the other side?—No; he pressed me hard, and that was the reason I did it.

73,343. You sent somebody up with him to see him vote?—Yes.

73,344. And you paid him the money after?—Yes.

73,345. What sum were you prepared to give or to offer to Nicholson?—I was not prepared to offer anything.

73,346. What sum were you prepared to accept as their offer? You must have gone with some intention to accede to some sum? What sum were you prepared to receive as an offer for Nicholson's party? Suppose they had said, "We will take 10*s.* apiece," would you have closed with them?—I had no authority to do so. I do not know what I might have been tempted to do, undoubtedly.

73,347. When you went there, you must have had something in your mind?—I should have been glad to have got hold of the men.

73,348. Would you have gone as far as 1*l.* a head?—I do not know what I might have been tempted to do. I should have done nothing without consulting the chairman of the central committee, or some party connected with that committee.

73,349. If they had said some sum, you would have gone with that offer to the central committee? What did you think was an offer to take to the central? If they had said 10*s.* apiece, do you think that was an offer you would have carried there?—Yes.

73,350. Or supposing they said a pound?—Or a pound either.

73,351. That is the sum you think you might have carried to the central committee?—When I say the central I should not go and mention it to the gentlemen at the central. I should mention it to Mr. Bamford, confidentially, or to one of them.

73,352. I have the curiosity to know whom you would have selected?—I should have selected Mr. Charles Bamford.

73,353. From what you knew of him, did you not think he would have closed with the offer?—Yes, that he would.

73,354. Those people,—Nicholson's party,—did vote blue?—No; not one of them, in my opinion.

73,355. Nicholson stated that they did?—I do not know that they did.

73,356. My information is that they voted blue?—No; I do not know that.

73,357. Do you believe they did not?—I believe the bulk of the men were on Mr. Wilde's list.

73,358. Can you assist us to find that out; because he has lost all trace of them?—I have very little doubt the bulk of them were on Mr. Wilde's list. They did not vote blue. I think the fact is, they would have left Mr. Wilde if they could have made a better arrangement with the blue. I believe they were all men down on his list, with very few exceptions.

Mr. W. Croft.

5th August 1853.

73,359. They would have come away from him, and have come over to you, if they could have got better terms?—Perhaps on equal terms.

73,360. I have a word to ask you as to the other party, Warhams's. Did you offer a pound each for them?—No, I do not recollect that I did. I do not think I should do it.

73,361. Did you say that you thought a pound a head might be given for them, without making them a distinct offer?—Yes, I think I might.

72,362. That, of course, would be subject to the approval of Mr. Bamford, or somebody else?—Yes; that is merely my private opinion. I do not wish to implicate my party with my private opinion on the matter.

73,363. If there is anything that you wish to add we should be very glad to hear it. Whatever matter you may wish to state we will give you every opportunity of doing so. Is that paper you have in your hand a statement you have prepared?—No. I have been abroad, and this paper has been put into my hand since I returned.

73,364. Containing the allegations made behind your back; all that has been said against you?—Yes; and a pretty long list it is. There is one thing that I wish to name. You had a gentleman here, a young man they called Prissick, who, it appears, has been volunteering evidence of rather an extraordinary nature I suppose he has been employed by Mr. Galloway to get up this evidence against me, from what I have gathered.

73,365. Tell us what part yon wish to contradict?—I will tell you. It appears that he stated that a man called Watson Foster told him that I had made Warham's party an offer on the part of the blues; and that I had given them 3*s.* or 4*s.* for bread, cheese, and ale.

73,366. You cannot say that Foster did not tell him that?—And also that George Brown had received a letter from me, offering a certain sum.

73,367. I have asked you as to both of them?—I wish to know if this came from Mr. Prissick?

73,368. What Prissick said was that it came from Watson Foster?—Watson Foster did not so state here.

73,369. You mean to say that Watson Foster did not tell Prissick so?—I do not believe that he did.

73,370. We have nothing to do with that. Do you mean to swear that he did not? because Prissick has sworn that he did. That statement of Prissick was merely to lay the foundation for calling Foster?—Mr. Prissick also stated that Nicholson's party, as he calls them, had voted blue.

73,371. That is a thing which nobody can tell. Nobody knows who Nicholson's party were. If you can tell us who they were, we will soon find out which way they voted?—It appears from what I see of Mr. Prissick's evidence, it is rather of a vindictive nature, and personal to myself. As to the statement about Warhams's, I wish to deny that I ever bought one.

73,372. You tried all you could to buy them. Do you mean to say that you did not try to buy them?—I never made an offer for them. If I had tried all I could I should have bought them.

73,373. You were treating for them; you have told us so. Do you wish to swear that you did not try to buy Nicholson's lot?—That I, individually?

73,374. That you did not endeavour to buy Nicholson's lot?—I was merely the medium.

73,375. You did wish to secure their votes for money payments. It is impossible to say you did not mean that. Is there anything else that you wish to add?—Nothing else strikes me at present.

Joseph Spring.

JOSEPH SPRING sworn, and examined.

73,376. Do you live in the Victoria Almshouses?—Yes.

73,377. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

73,378. How long have you been free?—I was bound when I was eleven years old.

73,379. When did you take up your freedom?—In 1800.

73,380. Before the Reform Act you got, I suppose, your four guineas and two guineas for your vote?—No; never.

73,381. How much did you get?—Nothing.

73,382-3. Did you not vote then?—I never got anything.

73,384. Did you vote for Hanmer and James in 1841?—Yes.

73,385. And you got a sovereign for it, at the painter's shop?—Yes; at the painter's shop.

73,386. In 1847, did you vote?—Yes.

73,387. Who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

73,388. Did you get any money then?—Not anything.

73,389. Not after the election was over, nor before it?—Yes; I got 10*s.* from Brown at the Black Horse.

73,390. After the polling day?—After the polling day.

73,391. Do you remember who paid it?—No; I am sure I do not know who he was.

73,392. In 1852, did you vote?—Yes.

73,393. Who for; Moore and Butler?—Yes.
73,394. Did you get anything then?—Nothing at all.
73,395. Neither before nor after the election?—Neither before nor after.

Joseph Spring.

5th August 1853.

JAMES ANSDELL sworn, and examined.

James Ansdell.

73,396. Are you in the Beverley Road Hospital?—Yes.
73,397. Are you a freeman?—No.
73,398. Are you a voter?—Yes.
73,399. As a householder?—Yes; I was a householder.
73,400. How much rent used you to pay when you were a householder?—£20.
73,401. Where did you live then?—In Hanover Square, Lowgate.
73,402. When did you become entitled to vote; after the Reform Act?—Yes.
73,403. Did you vote in the year 1841?—Yes.
73,404. Who for?—Hanmer and James.
73,405. Did you get any money on that occasion?—No.
73,406. Not after the election?—No.
73,407. Nor before?—Nor before; nothing.
73,408. Did you vote in 1847?—Yes.
73,409. Who for?—It was for the blue party I know.
73,410. For Baines and Brown, or for both?—I think it was Baines and Brown.
73,411. Did you get any money on that occasion?—No.
73,412. Either before or after voting?—No.
73,413. Did you vote the last time, in 1852?—Yes.
73,414. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
73,415. Did you get any money the last time?—No.
73,416. Was your name set down in any list?—No; not that I know of.

ROBERT ACRID sworn, and examined.

Robert Acrid.

73,417. Where do you live?—No. 3, Robinson's Row.
73,418. What is your business?—Wine and spirit merchant.
73,419. What rent do you pay?—I live on my own property.
73,420. What are you rated at?—At about 40*l.* a year for the house and the premises adjoining.
73,421. Are you a freeman?—No.
73,422. At which election were you entitled to vote?—At the first election after the Reform Act.
73,423. Did you vote in 1841, when Clay and Thompson and Hanmer and James were the candidates?—I voted for Hanmer and James, I believe.
73,424. Did you receive any money then?—No.
73,425. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I voted for Baines and Brown, I believe.
73,426. Were you a runner for Mr. Baines?—No; not exactly. I cannot walk myself now.
73,427. Were you down on any list as a messenger?—I wonder you should ask me the question. I think my station in life would not warrant it.
73,428. I am obliged to put the question from the information I have?—I think it is a great insult to put the question to me.
73,429. I must put the questions; it is my duty. Were you a clerk then?—I never was in a committee room.
73,430. At that election?—At no election.
37,431. Were you a clerk at that election or not?—No.
73,432. In 1852, did you vote?—Yes.
73,433. Who did you vote for?—I voted for Moore and Butler.
73,434. I do not wish to offend you, but I must put the question; did you receive anything from them?—No; not at any time at all.
73,435. And was not upon any committee?—No.
73,436. You did not take any interest in it beyond that of voting?—I took an interest, certainly, for the party I voted for; but I did not interfere with the men who were in my employ. I thought if they had a right to vote they had a right to their own opinion.
73,437. Leaving out the persons that you employ, did you canvass for Moore and Butler?—No; not amongst other people; not at all.
72,438. I do not understand then how you showed your interest; in what way?—I was interested in my opinion for the party I voted for. I had no personal interest.
72,439. You felt an interest?—We all do that.
72,440. You did not act as a clerk at any committee room?—I never was in a committee room at any period.

William Barker.

5th August 1853.

WILLIAM BARKER sworn, and examined.

72,441. Where do you live?—Spencer Street.
72,442. What is your business?—Mast and blockmaker.
72,443. What rent do you pay?—I am rated at 9*l.* a year; it is one of my own houses I live in.
72,444. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
72,445. When were you made a freeman?—I think about thirty years since.
72,446. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Yes.
72,447. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Thompson.
72,448. Were you on any committee?—No.
72,449. Not as a messenger?—I was not a messenger
72,450. Did any money pass through your hands?—No.
72,451. Or come into them?—No.
72,452. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Mr Clay.
72,453. Only?—Only.
72,454. Did you act for him upon any committee?—No.
72,455. Did any money come into your hands or pass through them?—No; I did not want it.
72,456. At the election of 1852, who did you vote for?—I did not vote at all then.
72,457. At the last election?—Not at the last election.
73,458. Were you away?—No; I was in Hull.
74,459. You did not vote at all?—No.
73,460. I suppose that was merely from your own wish?—I should have voted, but I saw that Goderich and Clay were forward enough. I do not interfere with electioneering.

John D. Banks.

JOHN DIXON BINKS sworn, and examined.

73,461. Where do you live?—Pier Street.
73,462. Are you a painter?—Yes.
73,463. You are not the Binks, the painter, of whom we have heard so much?—No; not the same Binks.
73,464. What rent do you pay?—I pay 3*s.* a week.
73,465. Are you a lodger?—Yes.
73,466. When were you made a freeman?—In 1815, I think.
73,467. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—No.
73,468. You were a freeman then?—Yes.
73,469. Why did you not vote?—Because I lived at too great a distance. I was not in Hull at the time.
73,470. You were living away from Hull?—Yes.
73,471. Did you vote in 1847?—Yes.
73,472. Who for?—For Clay and Brown.
73,473. Did you reseive any money at that election?—Yes.
73,474. How much did you get?—Ten shillings.
73,475. Where were you paid it?—In Bishop Lane.
73,476. After you had voted?—No; the night before.
73,477. Is that all that you got?—Yes.
73,478. That would be for Brown, was it not?—For Brown.
72,479. Did you get anything from Mr. Clay?—I got my expenses from Sheffield and back.
73,480. How much?—Ten or twelve shillings.
73,481. Who did you vote for in 1852?—Clay and Goderich.
73,482. Did you receive any money for your vote then?—No.
73,483. No expenses?—No; but I expect some.
73,484. Did you receive nothing for loss of time?—I have received nothing.
73,485. Why do they not pay you?—I do not know.
73,486. Did you apply for it?—No; I never applied to any one; I did not know who to apply to.
73,487. You said you expected it. Who did you expect it from?—I cannot tell you that. I was told that I should have my expenses. That was for my time for coming over from New Holland. I lost my day, and they made me pay my packet too.
73,488. Did you not make any application?—No; I did not know where to apply to.
73,489. Had your name been put down?—No; not that I am aware of.
73,490. Did you live in New Holland?—No; I live in Hull; I work in New Holland; I am only here at night.
73,491. You work over at New Holland, and live here?—Yes.
73,492. What you expected was for your loss of time?—Yes.
73,493. They did not pay it?—No.

John D. Banks.

5th August 1853.

73,494. Did anybody promise you payment? Who talked to you about it?—A man of the name of Clarke fetched me over; but he was not the party to pay me.

73,495. Will you tell me who was the party?—I do not know. He came over on the polling day at noon to fetch me to vote. I told him that I should expect to be paid for my loss of time in coming over, and he said no doubt I should be paid.

73,496. Did he say what committee he came from?—No; that is all he said to me.

73,497. Did he bring some others besides you?—Yes; he fetched another man.

73,498. Only one other?—Yes.

73,499. What is his name?—I cannot recollect his name; he is a cabinetmaker by trade.

73,500. Did you know this Clarke before?—He is a brother-in-law of mine.

73,501. Where does he live? What is his first name?—He is a cabinetmaker; John Clarke.

73,502. Where does he live?—At the Humber Dock Side.

73,503. Did he not tell you where you would get the money?—No.

73,504. Or where you were to apply for it?—No. I suppose he told me this merely for the sake of getting me to vote. I do not think he knew.

73,505. You have talked to your own brother-in-law about it since?—No.

73,506. Have you not?—No, I have not.

73,507. Did not Clarke say what committee room he had come from, or who sent him?—No; he never told me anything about a committee.

73,508. What time of the day was it?—It was noon.

73,509. How came you to rely on Clarke's promise?—I never relied on his promise.

73,510. I thought you came over, relying on his promise that you would be paid for your loss of time?—He desired me to come, and I told him I should expect to be paid for my loss of time. I should not have come over to vote without.

73,511. Did you come over, relying on Clarke's promise?—Yes. I understand you now.

73,512. Expecting from what he said that you would get paid?—Yes.

73,513. You did rely on his promise?—Of his paying me, do you mean?

73,514. You expected to be paid, from what Clarke said to you or promised you?—He said no doubt I should be paid my expenses and loss of time.

73,515. I want to know whether you relied on his promise that he would pay you?—No; I did not rely upon him.

73,516. Do you believe he was authorized to promise you?—No, I do not believe that he was.

73,517. Did he have any authority to promise?—No, I do not think he was authorized to promise any expenses. I took it in this way, that he wanted to have the gratification of having taken a vote, or brought a vote to the party.

William Boyd.

WILLIAM BOYD sworn, and examined.

73,518. Where do you live?—In Church Street, Drypool.

73,519. What is your business?—A millwright.

73,520. What rent do you pay?—£12.

73,521. Are you a freeman?—No.

73,522. At what election were you first entitled to vote?—My memory does not serve me in that respect.

73,523. In 1841 did you vote?—I most likely did; I cannot recollect who I polled for at the time.

73,524. Hanmer and James, was it?—I cannot say.

73,525. Do you remember whether you got anything for your vote?—Never a farthing.

73,526. At any time?—Not at any time.

73,527. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I voted first for Lord Goderich.

73,528. Who did you vote for in 1847?—I do not remember anything at all but the last election.

73,529. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

73,530. Were you on any committee?—No.

73,531. Did you pay any people?—No.

73,532. Did they take your room?—No.

73,533. You got no money?—No.

73,534. Were you employed in 1847 on the part of Brown?—No, not at all.

73,616. How much did you get?—10*s.*

73,617. Who paid you?—Mr. George Steeples.

73,618. He came to your house, perhaps? Where did he pay you?—Paid it at his house.

73,619. After you voted?—Yes.

William Croft.

WILLIAM COOPER sworn, and examined.

73,620. Where do you live?—Air Street, when I voted.

73,621. What is your business; what do you do?—I am a labourer.

73,622. Do you pay rent?—Yes.

73,623. How much?—£4 12*s.* a year.

73,624. When were you made a freeman?—1818, the 2d of June.

73,625. At the election, of 1841 who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.

73,626. Did you receive any money for your vote?—I received 10*s.* a week beyond the election.

73,627. Who paid you?—I cannot tell you. I was fetched from Beverley.

73,628. Do you remember where you were paid?—I cannot remember. I think it was at Mr. Linwood's or Mr. West's.

73,629. You were fetched from Beverley?—Yes.

73,630. What was the 10*s.* for; loss of time?—The time I had to come back again to Beverley. I had a vessel there.

73,631. How did you come over?—I came over in a coach on Saturday night, and polled upon Monday.

73,632. Was it found to carry the voters over?—They were fetching them in; they brought them from Beverley.

73,633. You did not pay anything for the fare?—No.

73,634. At the next election, 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown. I received 10*s.* for Brown.

73,635. Who paid you?—David Key.

73,636. After you voted?—Yes; two days.

73,637. That was for Brown?—Yes.

73,638. Did you get anything for Baines?—Clay and Goderich.

73,639. How much did you get?—Nothing.

73,640. Nothing at all?—No.

73,641. At any time?—Not at any time

73,642. Was your name put down on any list?—It never was. I went into the town on the nomination day, and I had two polling cards.

73,643. You got no money?—No.

Thomas Croft.

5th August 1853.

THOMAS CROFT sworn, and examined.

73,644. Where do you live?—Witham, Wellington Street.

73,711. Are you a lodger?—No; the house is my own.
73,712. What are you rated at?—£10.
73,713. Are you also a freeman?—Yes, I am a freeman.
73,714. When were you made a freeman?—I took up my freedom in 1815.
73,715. In 1841, who did you vote for?—I voted for Clay and Thompson.
73,716. Did you receive any money that election?—No; I did not receive anything at the time; but after the election,—about six months after,—Dr. Chalmers sent for me, and gave me 30*s.* as a present.
73,717. He was one of the party that was active at the election?—It was him that came to solicit me; and he asked me if I had got anything from the orange party, and he sent me down to the office in Bishop Lane. I never got anything, and so he sent it me.
73,718. When did he solicit you; before the election?—He came and solicited my vote.
73,719. Before the election?—Yes.
73,720. And paid you afterwards 30*s.*?—Yes, he did, about four months after the election.
73,721. As a present?—Yes.
73,722. Who did you vote for in 1847?—Brown.
73,723. Did you get any money then?—I got 5*s.*
73,724. Who paid you that?—I do not know; I was paid at the Market Place; at the committee room there.
73,725. When?—Just after the election.
73,726. The same day?—I do not know whether it was ten days or a fortnight; it might be, but I cannot say.
73,727. Do you remember who paid you?—I am sure I do not know,
73,728. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
73,729. Did you get any money then?—Yes. Mr. Cattley came, and wished me to solicit and get what votes I could. I did what I possibly could to get voters, and he sent me 2*l.* about a month after the election.
73,730. Who sent it to you?—Mr. Cattley.

EDWARD FORBES sworn, and examined.

Edward Forbes.

73,731. Where do you live?—No. 1, Smeaton Street.
73,732. What is your business?—I am a shipwright by trade, and I am keeping a shop as a grocer.
73,733. What rent do you pay?—There is a mortgage on the premises. I call the house my own, and there is a mortgage on the property, each side of the shop.
73,734. What are you rated at?—I am rated at 16*l.*
73,735. Are you also a freeman?—I am a freeman.
73,736. When were you made a freeman?—I took my freedom up in 1819, on the 12th of October.
73,737. In 1841, who did you vote for?—I was at sea in the Zephyr.
73,738. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I bulleted Mr. Brown.
73,739. What did you get for your vote?—I got never a penny given me. I always give my vote independent, as a man ought to do. I got the 10*s.*, but I considered it was for actual service. I got it before the election. I promised a bullet, and it was before I received any money. There was 10*s.* to be given; and I thought I might as well have it as the other people.
73,740. Did you apply to be set down as a runner?—I consider it was for running as a messenger; not for my vote, I assure you; that I can say conscientiously.
73,741. You told who you would poll for?—I promised before I knew there was any money, I assure you, to be given. I went the night before the election, and promised Brown a bullet. I did not know there was going to be any money in the way at all.
73,742. You received it as a sort of present?—I received 10*s.* the next day; it was on the polling day.

Edward Forbes.

5th August 1853.

73,743. After you had voted?—No; I got the money before I had given my vote; certainly I did. I consider it was for to make myself useful during the day; to do the best I could for them with regard to Mr. Brown getting the election.

73,744. And part of the best you could do was to go and vote for him?—Yes.

73,745. In 1852, who did you vote for?—I voted for Moore and Butler.

73,746. You said you were to do all you could for Brown; what else did you do?—I ran about, and endeavoured to get the election. I got nothing but the 10*s.* I did not get it for my vote; by no means. I promised him a bullet before I received any money.

73,747. You had promised him the night before?—I promised him the night before, and there was 10*s.* given the next day for them.

73,748. That liked to take it?—For them who rendered assistance. I may call myself a messenger. It was not for my vote, I can say that, if I am to be believed.

73,749. In 1852, what did you do?—I did nothing at all, and I got nothing.

73,750. Did you vote?—I voted. I gave Butler one and Moore the other.

73,751. That is doing something?—I got no money; I received none; I did not want any.

73,752. Are you sure you did not get a little?—I am confident I got no money. All I got is the 10*s.*; that is the money I received.

73,753. Did you get nothing in 1852?—I got nothing in 1852, I assure you. I never asked for any. I never made myself in any way useful in electioneering, because I had some other business to go to.

James Frith.

JAMES FRITH sworn, and examined.

73,754. Where do you live?—No. 23, Osborne Street.

73,755. What business are you?—A master coach painter.

73,756. What rent do you pay?—£20 a year.

73,757. Are you also a freeman?—Yes.

73,758. When were you made a freeman?—The first election I voted was when I voted for Mr. Sykes.

73,759. In 1841, did you vote?—I have voted at every election since.

73,760. Who did you vote for in 1841?—Hanmer and James.

73,761. Did you receive any money?—I do not recollect it. I perhaps might have done so, but I do not recollect the exact sum.

73,762. To the best of your recollection, how much will you say it was?—I do not recollect whether there was any money received or not.

73,763. They say you received 1*l.*?—I might have received it, or 10*s.*, or 12*s.* I know I have received money at different times.

73,764. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

73,765. Did you get a little something then?—My name was put down; I saw it written; and when I went and applied for the 10*s.* there was no name down, they told me.

73,766. Perhaps they gave it you, notwithstanding?—No; I never received anything; not a farthing.

73,767. Neither for Baines or Brown?—No.

73,768. Who wrote it for you?—I believe Mr. Bannister was the chairman.

73,769. Your name was put down, you say?—I saw it written in their book. When I applied for the money, they said they had not my name at all.

73,770. It was put down for 10*s.*?—Yes.

73,771. You believed it was down?—Yes, I did.

73,772. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

73,773. You went over a little?—Quite a different party.

73,774. How much did you get?—Nothing at all.

73,775. Was your name set down this time?—No; I never received a farthing.

73,776. Was your name set down?—No; I never applied.

73,777. Were you on any committee?—No.

73,778. You did not canvass?—No.

73,779. Did you have any room taken?—No.

73,780. Why did you go over to the orange?—I consider I had changed my principles, that was the reason.

73,781. Was it because they had not paid you the 10*s.* in 1847?—Not a bit of it.

John Gill.

JOHN GILL sworn, and examined.

73,782. Where do you live?—Reed Street.

73,783. What is your business?—A shipping insurance broker.

73,784. What rent do you pay?—£18.

73,842. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
73,843. Do you keep the Edinburgh Packet?—Yes.
73,844. Was your room engaged?—Yes.
73,845. As a committee room?—Yes.

James Bycraft.

5th August 1853.

73,846. Who engaged it?—I do not know who engaged it. My wife managed it.
73,847. She has told you?—No. I am not in the house. My business lies out of doors.
73,848. Have you heard since?—No; I do not know who paid her the money.
73,849. Cannot you tell us?—No.
73,850. How much was the money?—£2.
73,851. When was it paid?—It was after the election.
73,852. You keep books, do you not?—Yes; I keep my own books. I do not keep the house books.
73,853. Do you enter these payments in your books?—No.
73,854. Why not?—What was I to do that for?
73,855. Answer the question?—I do not enter such things as these in my book.
73,856. Why not enter a payment for 2*l.* in your book?—I do not think it was worth while.
73,857. Is that the reason?—Yes.
73,858. If you had had your room engaged for an ordinary purpose, and 1*l.* was paid, should you mention it in your book?—Yes, I should.
73,859. If your room is engaged for any time, at a certain time, do you enter it in your book?—No; I never did before.
73,860. If your room is engaged for any purpose, should you make an entry in your book of it as a matter of business?—I might do it after this. I never did so before.
72,861. Did you when the room was engaged at any time before?—It was engaged as a club-room, when I took to the house. They stopped a little while, and then left it.
73,862. What did they pay?—£1 a year.
73,963. Did you enter that payment in your book?—No.
73,864. Did you receive any money besides the 2*l.*?—No.
73,645. What committee met at the Edinburgh Packet?—I do not know; I did not see any that came in.

Thomas Dick.

THOMAS DICK sworn, and examined.

73,866. Did you vote in 1841?—Yes.
73,867. Who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
73,868. Did you receive any money?—10*s.*
73,869. Who did you vote for in 1847?—I have forgotten all about it. I never had anything to do with it. I polled for Hanmer and James, and I never got a farthing of money since. I never would have anything to do with the last two elections. They ran after me, but I never was in any committee room or public house.
73,870. What did you get when Sir John Hanmer was here?—I got 10*s.* when Hanmer was here, but I never received a halfpenny since. Moore and Butler came, and wanted to shake hands with me; but it is all nonsense. I had nothing to do with them.

[The witness, being totally deaf, was examined by written questions.]

Thomas Gilliatt.

THOMAS GILLIATT sworn, and examined.

73,871. Where do you live?—Spring Street.
73,872. What is your busness?—A grocer.

73,876. Have you ever taken up your freedom?—No.
73,877. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—1847; for Clay and Baines.
73,878. Did you receive any money then?—No.
73,879. Before or after the election?—No.
73,880. At any time?—No.
73,881. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
73,882. Did you have a room then?—No.
73,883. Was there not a committee room in your house?—No.
73,884. Was there not a room that was used as a committee room?—A man brought some papers into the room; only one man brought them, and wanted the room for a committee; he left the papers and cards, but I would not let it.
73,885. You let them leave their papers there?—Yes; there were some papers and cards; perhaps half a dozen.
73,886. Did you get two guineas from Mr. Steeple?—£2; he brought it to the shop.
73,887. What was it for?—For the room, perhaps; it might be for the room; he brought me 2*l.*, however.
73,888. £1 19*s.* for your vote, and 1*s.* for the room?—There was only a man in it.
73,889. You got 2*l.* for it?—Yes.
73,890. And voted for the blues?—Yes, I did.
73,891. You kept the 2*l.*?—Of course; they brought it to me. However, if they had not I should not have gone to them for it.

STEPHEN SMITH sworn, and examined. Stephen Smith.

73,929. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines.
73,930. Did you receive any money then?—Not one farthing.
73,931. I believe at the last election you voted for Moore and Butler?—I did.
73,932. Your name was put down at the Minerva?—Not to my knowledge.
73,933. At Lidgard's?—Not to my knowledge.
73,934. At Mr. Bannister's?—Not to my knowledge, I was not.
73,935. Do you know Mr. Bamford?—I know him by sight, but I had no connexion with him at the time.
73,936. Did you receive any money at the last election?—Not one farthing.
73,937. Neither after you voted nor before?—No.
73,938. Did you let a room?—Yes, I did let a room.
73,939. Who to?—Mr. Croft, if I recollect right. My missus got 2*l*. from Mr. Steeple.
73,940. How came you to go and get any money at all?—I was not asked a question about the room at the time.
73,941. You mean you never received the money?—I never received it, nor have I yet.
73,942. But your wife did?—Yes, I acknowledge that.
73,943. What committee met at your house?—I believe there were two gents. I never saw them. I was not at home. My business called me out of the way.
73,944. You meant to vote for them?—I was ready for them when they thought proper to come. When the two gents came, I did not know who they were.

John Stalper.

5th August 1853.

73,945. Who paid your wife?—It was George Steeple.

74,346. Did you get your name put down at Legitt's, in the Minerva Terrace—Yes.
74,347. When did they put you down?—On the Friday. I was twelve days altogether. On the Friday week before the election took place.
74,348. How much money did you get?—About 2*l.* 8*s.* altogether.
74,349. When were you paid?—At different times. I got 10*s.* for the first week; Friday and Saturday.
74,349a. And the rest afterwards?—3*s.* 6*d.* a day for the week following, and four days.

JOHN WHIPP sworn, and examined.

John Whipp.

74,350. Where do you live?—Myton Street.
74,351. What is your business?—A butcher.
74,352. What rent do you pay?—£6 a year.
74,353. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
74,354. When were you made a freeman?—Really I hardly recollect; forty or fifty years ago.
74,355. In 1841, who did you vote for?—I voted for Mr. Clay and Mr. Brown once, and for the other times I polled for the blues.
74,356. Then, the first election in 1841, Mr. Clay was one of the candidates?—He was.
74,357. Did you vote a bullet for him?—No; James and Hanmer. The first election I polled was a bullet for Mr. Graham.
74,358. This election in 1841, when you voted for James and Hanmer, do you recollect if you got some money for your vote?—I got a pound from each party. I divided my voice, and got a pound from each party.
74,359. Were you paid afterwards?—After the election was over.
74,360. At the next election, who did you vote for?—Clay and Brown. Mr. Baines I did not poll for. I thought he had a good situation here, and he did not want it.
74,361. What did you get?—I got a pound from each party.
74,362. That time?—I believe I did.
74,363. Who paid you for Mr. Clay?—I believe there was a Mr. Savage, a tallow chandler, in St. John Street, I received the money from. He was upon the committee at the time. And Mr. Mitchell paid me for Mr. Brown.
74,364. The election in 1852 you voted for Moore and Butler?—I believe I did.
74,365. And you got your name put down at Mr. Bannister's?—I got my name put down in Osborne Street. I believe Mr. Wells was the chairman belonging to that committee in our ward at the time.
74,366. How much did you get?—I received 17*s.* 6*d.* for the last election.
74,367. When were you paid?—I was paid on the nomination day, as they call it. I got half a crown then of Mr. Wells, and George Steeple gave me on the polling day 5*s.*; and then after that I went to Mr. Bannister, and I received 10*s.*; that made 17*s.* 6*d.* I got altogether.

John Whipp.

5th August 1853.

74,368. Your name had been set down at Mr. Bannister's as well as Osborne Street?—Yes. They said I was to go there, and I went from one place to another, by their order. I was as a servant running about for them.

E. Wilkinson.

EDWARD WILKINSON sworn, and examined.

74,369. Where do you live?—25, Dock Street.
74,370. What is your business?—A baker.

74,387. Were you paid for that?—Yes.
74,388. How much?—£1 13*s.* 4*d.* for work.
74,389. Where?—I got 13*s.* 4*d.* of Mr. Pulleyn in this street, at the rooms, and a pound Mr. Purdon paid me in Saville Street.
74,390. Part paid before, and part paid after you voted?—Yes.
74,391. You got 10*s.*, you say, from Mr. Clay?—Yes.
74,392. Was that just before the election?—About a week or ten days.
74,393. And you went straight away from Mr. Clay's to the blue committee with Mr. Clay's money in your pocket?—No; nothing of the kind. It was exactly a fortnight before the election.
74,394. I ask you whether you did not go straight away from the orange committee to the blue committee?—It was an old debt, and had nothing to do with them.
74,395. Answer my question?—I did not.
74,396. How long was it before you went to the blue committee?—I do not know.
74,397. Was it a day?—Yes; two or three days.
74,398. And three days after you got Mr. Clay's money; you went to Moore and Butler?—Very like; I had never promised. I never promised Mr. Clay's party at all, and never was asked.

W. C. Wilkinson.

74,442. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1838.
74,443. In 1841, did you vote?—I think I did.
74,444. Who for?—Colonel Thompson.
74,445. Only?—I am not sure whether I gave Mr. Clay a vote or not.
74,446. Where did you live at that time?—In Catherine Square, Mason Street, I think.
74,447. Were you paid any money?—No.
74,448. Are you quite sure you had no money from the candidates, or the committee or their party?—Quite sure.
74,449. Not on any ground?— Not upon any ground whatever.
74,450. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Mr. Baines only.
74,451. Did you get anything at that time?—No.
74,452. Are you quite sure that you were not paid by Mr. Mitchell any money?—No; I never heard of such a thing. I did not vote for Mr. Brown.
74,453. And you got no money at that time from the candidates, or their committee, or their party?—None whatever.
74,454. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
74,455. Did you get anything of this kind?—No.
74,456. Nothing of any kind?—Nothing.

WILLIAM WOOD sworn, and examined. William Wood.

74,457. Where do you live?—Hall Street.
74,458. What business are you?—A corkcutter.
74,459. What rent do you pay?—Ten guineas.
74,460. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
74,461. How long have you been free?—Since 1826.
74,462. In 1841, who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.
74,463. Were you paid for that?—No.
74,464. Were you paid any money?—I received money for letting my room as a committee room at that time.

William Wood.

5th August 1853.

74,465. Did a committee meet there?—Yes; they met there part of a day, I think, and then they removed, owing to its being too near Colonel Thompson's room. They still paid me for the room.

74,466. How much did they pay you altogether?—I think about 3*l.*; but I am not certain.

74,467. Who took the room?—Mr. Stark, I think, was the chairman.

74,468. Did you apply to have your room taken?—Yes; some time before that.

74,469. Were you canvassed for your vote?—I had been canvassed several times by all parties. I cannot say to a day or two, or to a month.

74,470. This is 1841 you are speaking of?—Yes; in 1841.

74,471. You were canvassed by both parties?—Yes.

74,472. What did you say to them?—I did not promise them.

74,473. Neither of them?—Neither of them.

74,474. You told them you had not made up your mind?—I told them I never did promise, and I never have yet.

74,475. When you offered the room, you knew when they took it they would expect you to vote?—I do not know whether they expected that or not.

74,476. You had no mind about that at the time?—Yes; I had made up my mind for whom I should vote long before then.

74,477. Did you tell them so?—No.

74,478. Why not?—They perhaps knew; they knew I always had voted that way.

74,479. Is that the reason that you told them you could not promise?—No.

74,480. Then why did you tell them that you would not promise?—Because I had not practised doing so.

74,481. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.

74,482. Were you paid for that?—No.

74,483. Did you get any money?—No.

74,484. You got no money from the candidates or their party at that election?—Not a halfpenny before or after, neither directly nor indirectly.

74,485. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

74,486. Were you paid for that?—I suppose I was, indirectly. About six or eight weeks after the election there was 1*l.* 1*s.* left at my house, but by whom I do not know, neither did I inquire.

74,487. You took the money?—I took the money.

74,488. You knew it was for the election?—I was told so.

74,489. And you had done nothing for it?—They said, when they left it, I understand, that it was for my services during the election.

74,490. And your services were voting for them?—My services were voting for them, and doing what I could towards getting votes.

74,491. Did you not have your name set down in West Sculcoates?—Not that I am aware of; I never applied to have it set down.

71,492. Did you tell them again that you would not promise when they canvassed you?—Yes; the same thing.

71,493. Why could you not promise, when you had made up your mind. It is only standing out for a higher price?—It is nothing of the kind. I do not approve of canvassing at all.

71,494. Is not the best way to avoid canvassing to say at once who you mean to vote for?—The best way to avoid it is not to tell anybody until you get to the poll. It is enough to say who you vote for when you come to poll.

Samuel Wray.

SAMUEL WRAY sworn, and examined.

74,495. Where do you live?—Garton's Entry, Market Place.

74,496. What business are you?—A general fruit dealer.

74,497. What rent do you pay?—Fourteen guineas.

74,498. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

74,499. When were you made a freeman?—In 1822.

74,500. In 1841, who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.

74,501. Were you paid for it?—Yes.

74,502. How much?—A pound.

74,503. Who by?—I cannot tell you. I was not at home. It was brought to my house.

74,504. Is that all you got?—That was all.

74,505. Was it after you voted?—After I voted.

74,506. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Brown.

74,507. Only?—Only.

74,508. Were you paid for that?—Yes.

74,509. How much?—One guinea.

74,510. Before or after?—After.

74,511. Who by?—At Bink's shop, in High Street.

74,512. Was that through a window?—Yes.

Samuel Wray.

5th August 1853.

74,513. Was that all you got?—Yes.
74,514. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
74,515. Were you paid for that?—Yes.
74,516. How much?—I was a messenger a fortnight previous to the election, and I was paid at the rate of 3*s.* 6*d.* a day.
74,517. How much altogether?—I think it would be somewhere about 3*l.* 3*s.*, or somewhere thereabouts; I cannot say exactly.
74,518. Was part paid after you voted?—Yes.
74,519. Who paid you?—Mr. Jackson.
74,520. Where?—At the Shakespeare.
74,521. You had your name set down?—Yes.
74,522. How much was paid after?—I got a soveregn after; that included part of the week.
74,523. Did they pay you your full week?—Yes; on the Saturday night.

THOMAS WRIGGLESWORTH sworn, and examined.

T. Wrigglesworth.

74,524. Where do you live?—Jennings Street.
74,525. What business are you?—A labourer.
74,526. What rent do you pay?—None.
74,527. Are you a lodger?—I live with my father.
74,528. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
74,529. How long?—Since 1851.
74,530. Was the last election the first at which you voted?—Yes.
74,531. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
74,532. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
74,533. How much?—I got 27*s.* 6*d.*
74,534. Where was it paid?—In Fish Street.
74,535. Who paid you?—Mr. Sylbon, part of it.
74,536. Who paid the other part?—Mr. Stephenson.
74,537. Part was paid before and part after you voted?—I received five days' pay as a messenger, and half a sovereign.
74,538? Was part before and part after you voted?—The whole of it was paid after the election.
74,539. And you had your name set down as a runner?—Yes.

WILLIAM WROOT sworn, and examined.

William Wroot.

74,540. Where do you live?—George Street.
74,541. What is your business?—A sailmaker.
74,542. What rent do you pay?—£25, my house and shop together.
74,543. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
74,544. How long have you been a freeman?—From 1818.
74,545. Did you vote in 1841?—Yes.
74,546. Who for?—James and Hanmer.
74,547. Were you paid any money?—Yes.
74,548. How much?—A pound.
74,549. Before or after the election?—After.
74,550. Was that all?—Yes.
74,551. Who paid it?—I cannot tell you; it was in St. James's Street, in the Pottery.
74,552. Do you mean it was paid you in a dark room, or something of that sort?—Yes.
74,553. That was after you voted?—Yes.
74,554. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.
74,555. Were you paid for that?—10*s.*
74,556. Before or after?—After.
74,557. For Mr. Brown?—Yes.
74,558. Who paid it?—It was somewhere about the tobacconist's in the Market Place; I cannot say whether at his shop or not.
74,559. Was it Mr. Mitchell that paid you?—Yes.
74,560. Was that all you got?—That was all.
74,561. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
74,562. Were you paid for that?—Yes.
74,563. How much?—From 45*s.* to 50*s.*, I think.
74,564. Were you set down as a runner?—I was set down as a runner at the Minerva Terrace,
74,565. At Legitt's?—Yes.
74,566. Were you paid by Legitt?—Yes; he was there.
74,567. Was that before or after?—Part before and part after.

John H. Young.

5th August 1853.

JOHN HOPPS YOUNG sworn, and examined.

74,568. Where do you live?—No. 7, Garden Square.
74,569. What business are you?—A shipwright.
74,570. What rent do you pay?—£8 10*s.*
74,571. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
74,572. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1839, I think.
74,573. Which party paid for it?—I paid for it myself.
74,574. And have not been repaid?—No; not been repaid.
74,575. In 1841, who did you vote for?—I do not know whether I was at sea that election or not. I think I was.
74,576. Hanmer and James's election?—I think I was at sea. I have been at sea two elections, and I will not be confident which they were.
74,577. In 1847, did you vote?—Yes.
74,578. Who for?—Brown and Baines.
74,579. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
74,580. How much?—I do not know whether I got more than 10*s.* or not; I think not.
74,581. Where were you paid?—At Mr. Mitchell's.
74,582. After you voted?—Yes.
74,583. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
74,584. Were you paid for that?—Yes.
74,585. How much?—I think not quite 30*s.*
74,586. Were you set down at Legitt's rooms?—No.
74,587. Were you paid at his rooms?—No.
74,588. Where were you paid?—I got paid in Worship Street a part, and Mr. Purdon's in Saville Street a part.
74,589. Who paid you?—Mr. Purdon one part, and Mr. Turnbull the other.
74,590. Both paid after you voted?—Both after.
74,591. Were you set down as a runner?—Yes.
74,592. Was that all you got?—That was all.

Samuel Lusby.

74,595. What rent do you pay?—£4 12*s.*
74,596. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
74,597. How long have you been a freeman?—From 1839 or 1840; I do not know exactly.
74,598. Which party took up your freedom?—The blue party.
74,599. Did you vote for them in consequence, in 1841?—Yes.
74,600. For James and Hanmer?—Yes.
74,601. Were you paid besides?—I was a musician, and I received 3*l.* for playing.
74,602. Was Mr. Tadman your chief?—No; Mr. Martin was; but I think Mr. Tadman was in our band.
74,603. You were paid in full; he did not keep back a shilling from you?—Yes; I think Mr. Martin did. I think it was all one concern.
74,604. You think they kept back your shilling?—Yes; very likely they did. I had been in the habit of playing for Mr. Martin for years before that, and he always did so.
74,605. He said he paid the voters in full?—I cannot say. They always curtailed a shilling. I was at three elections at Grimsby before that.
74,606. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.
74,607. Were you paid for that?—Yes.
74,608. How much?—30*s.*
74,609. Where?—Two half sovereigns from Mr. Mitchell, and 10*s.* from, I cannot tell the gentleman's name, at the George Inn, for Mr. Baines.
74,610. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
74,611. Were you paid for that?—Yes.
74,612. How much?—A sovereign, some weeks after; I forget exactly to a week.
74,613. Who paid you?—I cannot tell the person's name; they called on me and left it.
74,614. They left it at your house?—Yes.

Edward Bell.

EDWARD BELL sworn, and examined.

74,621. You took up your own freedom?—Yes.
74,622. And you voted for Mr. Clay and Mr. Baines?—Yes.
74,623. Were you paid any money?—No.
74,624. You got nothing?—No.
74,625. You were not employed?—I was not employed.
74,626. Did you canvass for them?—No.
74,627. Did you take any part in the election but voting?—None whatever.
74,628. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
74,629. You were employed this time?—I was.
74,630. As a clerk?—Yes.
74,631. At the clearing house?—Yes.
74,632. How much were you paid for that?—10*s*.
74,633. When were you employed?—That was the day of polling.
74,634. Did you ask for employment?—No; I was solicited.
74,635. When?—The night before.
74,636. Who came to you?—A gentleman of the name of Bee
74,637. Had you promised your vote before that?—Yes.
74,638. You had been canvassed by the blues?—Moore and Butler called on me.
74,639. Did you promise them?—I had promised them at that time.
74,640. Had you been canvassed by the orange?—No, not at all.
74,641. What did they say to you when they asked you to act in the concern?—Who?
74,642. The people who came to ask you to be employed?—They were short of persons to take the management of the check sheets, and they were pressing for force.
74,643. They said so to you?—Yes.
74,644. And you said you would go and act for them?—Yes; I should have gone, independently of anything being allowed.

G. Hamilton.

George Hamilton sworn, and examined.

74,650. The last election was the first at which you had a vote?—Yes.
74,651. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Moore.
74,652. Were you employed in this clearing house business?—I was.
74,653. When did they come to you, and ask you to take it?—In the afternoon of the day previous to the election.
74,654. Had you applied to be employed at all?—No.
74,655. What did they say to you when they came?—That they were short of hands, and I was pressed by a friend.
74,656. Had you been canvassed before?—I had, by both parties.
71,657. Had you promised?—I had promised neither party.
74,658. Did you get any money from the other party?—What party?
71,659. Mr. Clay's party.—None whatever.
74,660. All the money you got was for this?—Yes; for the seven days' work.
74,661. How much were you paid?—Half a sovereign.
74,662. This was by the blue party?—Yes.
74,663. Did they not expect you were going to give them both of your votes?—I do not know what they expected. I am sure I did not do so.
74,664. Perhaps you meant to give neither?—I meant to vote both ways, before I went.
74,665. Had you meant to split?—I had determined to split before I went to this place.
74,666. Can you tell me whether there was any ground but a political one for your splitting?—None whatever.
74,667. Which room were you at?—I was in the room where the bulk of the clerks were; where the whole of the clerks were, in fact.

D. Wilkinson.

David Wilkinson sworn, and examined.

74,668. Where do you live?—Dock Street.
74,669. What business are you?—A potato merchant.
74,670. What rent do you pay?—£14.
74,671. Are you a freeman?—No.
74,672. How long have you been entitled to vote?—I voted the last election for the first time.

D. Wilkinson.

5th August 1853.

74,673. Who for?—Moore and Butler.
74,674. Were you paid for it?—No.
74,675. Did you get no money at all?—No; I do not want any.
74,676. Did they take your room?—No; I kept my room for myself.
74,677. Did you get no money from the candidates or their party?—No.
74,678. Not on any account?—No.

William Stalper.

74,681. What rent do you pay?—£20.
74,682. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
74,683. How long have you been a freeman?—I took it up in 1846 or 1847; I would not be exact which.
74,684. Did you vote in 1847?—No.
74,685. The last election was the first at which you voted?—Yes.
74,686. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
74,687. Were you paid for it?—I got 17*s.* 6*d.* after the election.
74,688. Who paid you?—Mr. Sylbon.
74,689. What did you do for it?—I spent near a fortnight for it.
74,690. As a runner?—Yes.
74,691. You applied to be set down as a runner?—No, I did not.
74,692. Did they ask you to be set down?—Yes; of course they did. I went up to the committee room in Fish Street.
74,693. And they asked you to be set down?—Yes. They said there was work to do, and I might as well do it as anybody else.
74,694. And you stated you would?—Yes.
74,695. And you got 17*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes.
74,696. Was that all you got?—Yes.
74,697. After you voted?—Yes.
74,698. You went to the committee room, you say?—Yes; I went with Mr. Sylbon.
74,699. Did you not say you wanted employment?—No. I did not want employment.

74,721. What rent do you pay?—£18.
74,722. Are you a freeman?—No.
74,723. How long have you been entitled to vote?—For the election before the last.
74,724. Did you vote in 1847?—I did not.
74,725. Why not?—Because some person personated me, and voted for me.
74,726. You tendered your vote, and it was rejected, in consequence of some person having voted in your name before?—Yes.
74,727. Were you employed as a runner or a messenger?—No.
74,728. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

R. Wilkinson.

5th August 1853.

74,729. Were you paid for it?—I was.
74,730. How much?—Between 30*s.* and 2*l.*
74,731. Are you a runner?—Not exactly a runner, a messenger; one of the committee in Fish Street district.
74,732. Mr. Sylbon took you?—Yes.
74,733. Did he pay you?—He paid me part.
74,734. Who paid you the rest?—Young Ash. I was a clerk the polling day.
74,735. Were you paid part before and part after you voted?—Yes.

John Bulmer.

JOHN BULMER sworn, and examined.

74,736. Where do you live?—Portland Place, Prospect Street.
74,737. What business are you?—At present a schoolmaster.
74,738. What rent do you pay?—About 14*l.* altogether.
74,739. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
74,740. How long have you been a freeman?—Twenty-seven years.
74,741. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
74,742. Were you paid for it?—I was employed as a clerk at that time.
74,743. At which committee?—The South Myton division.
74,744. Had you applied for employment?—Yes; I generally have been at elections ever since I knew anything about them; employed as a clerk.
74,745. Who employed you on that occasion?—A man who is dead now, Mr. Day. I was his clerk at that time.
74,746. Were you clerk to the committee?—Clerk to the committee in South Myton.
74,747. How much a day did you get?—5*s.* a day.
74,748. For how long?—I think, at least between four and five weeks; not quite five weeks.
74,749. Were people paid at your room; runners?—Runners were paid at our room.
74,750. How many were paid at that room?—I think we kept six runners.
74,751. How many were paid during that election in that room?—I do not know; a person paid runners of his own; his name was Waine; he had six runners of his own; there were two that belonged to the chairman, that made eight; and those eight belonged to this place.
74,752. You know what setting down means?—Yes.
74,753. Were they not set down at your room?—Yes.
74,754. How many were set down at that district?—Eight, at that district.
74,755. How many altogether during that election for the district?—I cannot recollect that. I should say between thirty and forty.
74,756. Not more than that?—No.
74,757. Were they set down in order to secure the vote?—They came and got their names set down as runners at the same time that they gave their promise.
74,758. And were paid after the election?—In fact they were paid during the time that they were runners.
74,759. Who paid them?—Mr. Day and Mr. Waine.
74,760. Did you take part in it?—I checked the names off from the pay sheets.
74,761. Is that all you had to do with the election?—That is all I had to do, and making out the lists for the canvassing.
74,762. Have you any of the lists?—No, not any.
74,763. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I was away in America; in fact, I was here; but not on the register. I had only just come home.
74,764. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
74,765. Were you a clerk this time?—I was.
74,766. Had you applied for employment?—
74,767. Who employed you?—I was employed under Mr. Wells, the lawyer, at the central committee.
74,768. You were in the room with Mr. Wells as clerk?—No, I was not in his room at all; there were several clerks with us in the room by ourselves.
74,769. Was Rosindale there?—He frequently came down from up-stairs, bringing sheets to be put down.
74,770. You were a clerk in the room?—Yes.
74,771. And you had to make out the lists?—Yes; the canvassing books
74,772. How much did you get a week?—5*s.* a day.
74,773. Were you paid by the week or the day?—Paid up at the end of the week.

Thomas Jackson.

THOMAS JACKSON sworn, and examined.

74,774. Where do you live?—Excise Buildings.
74,775. What is your business?—A seaman.
74,776. What rent do you pay?—£3.
74,777. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

Thomas Jackson.

5th August 1853.

74,778. How long have you been a freeman?—I took it up in 1842, when I was disabled from sea.

74,779. Did you pay for it yourself?—Yes.

74,780. In 1847 was it the first election at which you voted?—Yes.

74,781. Who did you vote for?—Mr. Baines.

74,782. Were you paid for it?—I was doorkeeper at the central committee five weeks and three days.

74,783. How much were you paid?—I received a guinea a week; 5*l.* 19*s.* altogether.

74,784. Five weeks and three days from Mr. Baines' committee?—Yes; I was there from the committee being formed. I was there after the election as well.

74,785. Did you apply to be employed?—Mr. Reed came for me; Mr. Sidebottom's clerk.

74,786. What made him come to you?—Being acquainted with me. I was along with Mr. Daniels, the sheriff's, officer at the time.

74,787. You were a runner for the sheriff's officer?—I was acting for him at the time.

74,788. At the last election who did you vote for?—For Moore and Butler. I was a doorkeeper at the central committee again, six weeks and three days.

74,789. How came you to be employed this time?—I applied to Mr. Wells, being acquainted with him, and I was employed from the meeting at the Shakespeare, the very night the committee was formed.

74,790. What colour did you take Mr. Baines to be in 1847?—I took him to be a middle way man.

74,791. Did you get the same pay?—No; the first nine days I only got 3*s.* 4*d.* a day, and then our runners were running away and I let Mr. Pease know at the bank, that we were losing the runners; that they were running from the several committee rooms, and he said the wages should be rose to a guinea, the same as the other party; and I received the guinea a week for four weeks, and on the polling day I received four days at 3*s.* 6*d.*, and three days at 5*s.*

74,792. Did you tell them if you were not raised you should run too?—No; we were losing our runners.

74,793. The runners were running from their several committee rooms?—Yes; from two or three; and several of ours had threatened Mr. Wells that if they had not the same wages as the other party they would leave.

74,794. You were a party who was going away?—No; I acquainted him that they were going away.

74,795. You gave the information?—Yes; to Mr. Pease, the banker.

W. Robinson.

WILLIAM ROBINSON sworn, and examined.

74,796. Where do you live?—Old Post Office Entry.

74,797. What business are you?—Foreman at a wharf.

74,798. What rent do you pay?—Six guineas.

74,799. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

74,800. How long have you been a freeman?—I believe I took it up in 1841.

74,801. Did you take it up yourself?—Yes.

74,802. Did you vote in 1841?—No. I think I have only voted at two elections.

74,803. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Clay, I believe.

74,804. Were you paid any money for it?—No.

74,805. Were you paid any money at all?—I was two days running, but I got nothing for it.

74,806. You had your name set down?—Yes; at the Land of Green Ginger.

74,807. Was that in order that you might be employed?—No; I had plenty of employment.

74,808. Was it in order to be paid?—It was because I wished to serve the party.

74,809. Did you not expect after the election you would get something?—Yes; I did expect to get something. I had a man employed at my wharf. I did not want to make anything out of it.

74,810. You had your name set down to have something?—I did not want to be on; it was the wish of some of the party that I should be on.

74,811. And you acceded to their wish?—Yes; I was of that side.

74,812. It was in order to have something for your loss of time?—I did not mean to be out of pocket by it.

74,813. You knew if you did not vote for them they would not pay you?—I did not care whether they paid me or not.

74,814. You would not have expected them to pay you if you voted the other way?—It was not the money I voted for.

74,815. If you had voted the other way you would not have expected them to pay you?—I should not have voted the other way.

74,816. Supposing you had voted the other way, you would not have expected them to pay you?—I certainly expected to be paid for my time when I was employing a man in my place.

W. Robinson.

5th August 1853.

74,817. You would not expect them to pay a man who did not vote for them?—No; I should not have looked for it.

74,818. Where was it you were set down?—In the Land of Green Ginger; a room of Mr. Woolley's.

74,819. For Mr. Baines?—Yes; Mr. Bright was there.

74,820. At the last election who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich, in Humber Street.

74,821. Did you get any money?—No.

74,822. Was your name set down this time?—No.

74,823. Did you do any work for the blues?—No; neither party.

74,824. You did not post any bills for them?—No; I did nothing.

74,825. Did you get no money at all from either party?—No.

H. Richardson.

HENRY RICHARDSON sworn, and examined.

74,826. Where do you live?—In Cook's Buildings.

74,827. What business are you?—A tailor.

74,828. What rent do you pay?—£7.

74,829. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

74,830. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1837.

74,831. Did you pay for it yourself?—Yes.

74,832. Did you vote in 1841?—Yes; for Clay and Thompson.

74,833. Were you paid any money?—No.

74,834. Did you get no money that election?—No.

74,835. Not on any account?—No.

74,836. Nor after the election?—No.

74,837. At any time?—No.

74,838. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines.

74,839. Did you get any money that time?—No.

74,840. Neither before nor after the election?—No.

74,841. Nor during the election?—No.

74,842. Did anybody get any money for you?—No.

74,843. Was any room of yours taken?—No.

74,844. Did you get no money from the candidates or their party?—No; I never got any money in my life.

74,845. Last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

74,846. Were you paid any money?—No.

74,847. Were you set down at all?—No

74,848. Are you quite sure you were not set down as a runner?—No.

74,849. Was any money left at your house?—No.

74,850. And were you not on any committee?—No.

John Caswell.

JOHN CASWELL sworn, and examined.

74,851. Where do you live?—No. 3, North Wall.

74,852. What business are you?—A coal merchant.

74,853. What rent do you pay?—£16.

74,854. Are you a freeman?—No.

74,855. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Perhaps twenty or twenty-five years.

74,856. Have you ever received any money at any election?—I have received money for services.

74,857. In 1841, who did you vote for?—I am not quite sure whether I voted. It was Hanmer and James, if I voted at all. I am not sure whether I voted.

74,858. Do you recollect whether you got money that election?—None.

74,859. Are you quite sure?—Quite sure.

74,860. On no account?—On no account.

74,861. In 1847, who did you vote for?—If I voted at all, it was for Mr. Brown.

74 862. Surely you recollect something?—I do not recollect.

74,863. Did you get any money?—Yes, I did.

74,864. Then I suppose you think you did vote?—No, I do not think I did.

74,865. What did you get your money for?—I was a clerk.

74,866. At which committee?—In Carr Lane.

74,867. Did you ask to be employed?—I might.

74,868. Did you ask to be set down for employment?—I applied, very likely, for employment.

74,869. You are not sure you voted?—I do not think I did.

74,870. Why not?—I do not think I was entitled to vote, on account of removal.

74,871. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

74,872. Were you employed by them?—Yes, as a clerk.

John Caswell.

5th August 1853.

74,873. Did you apply for employment?—I did.
74,874. Generally, or as a clerk?—As a clerk.
74,875. What did you say when you went after employment?—I applied to Mr. Wells for employment as a clerk.
74,876. Had you known Mr. Wells before?—Yes, for years.
74,877. You had your own business to attend to, had you not?—Yes.
74,878. What did you want to be employed as a clerk of Mr. Wells for?—I could do my business and be employed as a clerk as well.
74,879. And get a little money besides?—Yes; to fill up the time.
74,880. How much did you get?—Five shillings a day.
74,881. For how long?—I think there was 1*l.* 10*s.* I received.
74,882. Altogether?—Altogether.
74,883. Was it paid before or after you voted?—After.
74,884. The whole of it after?—After.
74,885. You knew, when you went to ask for employment, that if they employed you they would expect you to vote?—I should have voted whether they employed me or not.
74,886. Attend to my question. You knew if you went and ask them to employ you, if they did employ you, that they would expect you to vote for them, whatever your principles were?—I promised my vote before they employed me.
74,887. How long?—Some days.
74,888. Who canvassed you?—I was canvassed by two or three. I think Moore and Butler.
74,889. Did you promise them at once?—Yes. I always voted that way, except once I voted for Matthew Davenport Hill.
74,890. Were you not neglecting your business that time?—No.
74,891. Were you canvassed by the orange?—No; I do not think I was.
74,892. Were you paid by the week?—I was paid afterwards. I received 1*l.* 10*s.* afterwards altogether.
74,893. Was it from the Monday before the election that you began to be employed?—Before that, I think, about six days, I was employed. I received it on the Saturday night.

C. Luccock.

CHRISTOPHER LUCCOCK sworn, and examined.

74,894. Where do you live?—No. 2, Church Street, Drypool.
74,895. What business are you?—An accountant.
74,896. What rent do you pay?—£ 10.
74,897. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
74,898. How long have you been a freeman?—I took it up in the year 1812.
74,899. In 1841, who did you vote for?—I did not live in this part then.
74,900. You were not on the register?—I was not here.
74,901. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I was still in another part of the country.
74,902. Had you ever voted here before 1841?—Yes; in the year 1812.
74,903. Were you paid for it on those occasions?—Yes; I believe I was, at those times.
74,904. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
74,905. Were you set down as a runner?—I was set down as a messenger.
74,906. Were you employed as a messenger?—Yes.
74,907. How long?—It would be something like nine days, I believe.
74,908. How much were you paid for it?—I believe 2*l.* 5*s.* I received.
74,909. Who paid you?—I was paid at the committee in Bowlalley Lane.
74,910. You were paid by Mr. Steeple, I suppose?—Yes.
74,911. Were you paid before or after you voted?—After.
74,912. All of it after?—The whole of it at one time, after.
74,913. Was that the place where your name was set down, in Bowlalley Lane?—Yes.
74,914. Do you believe they would have paid you if you had not voted for Moore and Butler?—Yes; I promised them long before that.
74,915. You had been paid for your vote in former days?—The fact is, I lived in the country, and 2*l.*, I think, was allowed for expenses.
74,916. How far did you live in the country?—Between forty and fifty miles from Hull.
74,917. It used to be called polling money in those days, was it not?—Yes.

Charles Brown.

CHARLES BROWN sworn, and examined.

74,918. Where do you live?—No. 13, Elm Terrace.
74,919. What business are you?—A clerk.
74,920. What sort of office?—In a merchant's office. At present in an insurance broker's office.
74,921. What rent do you pay?—None at all.
74,922. Are you a lodger?—No. I have a house that I live in, but it belongs to my family; I do not pay rent for it.

Charles Brown.

5th August 1853.

74,923. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
74,924. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1849.
74,925. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
74,926. Were you employed during the election?—I was employed at the West Sculcoates committee room as clerk for four or five days.
74,927. Did you apply to have your name set down for employment?—No; Mr. Cattley asked me to take the management of the books, on account of the other clerk having gone away.
74,928. How long was that before the polling day?—Perhaps it was four or five days.
74,929. What did you say to him?—I told him I should have no objection.
74,930. Did you say anything about what money you would expect?—No.
74,931. You left that to him?—Yes; I left that entirely to him.
74,932. How much were you paid?—After the election I was paid two guineas.
74,933. How many days were you at work?—Four or five days actually at work. I was at the committee from the first opening, as canvasser or committee man.
74,934. What time did you attend; all day?—Generally from about half-past nine in the morning till ten or eleven at night.
74,935. Before he asked you to act as clerk you were on the committee?—Yes.
74,936. Were you to be paid for that?—No, no idea; neither had I for Mr. Clay; and Mr. Richard Cattley gave me two guineas after the election.
74,937. You had promised your vote?—I had promised my vote on the 8th or 10th of June.
74,938. It seems then rather to have been a reward for your vote than for your services?—It was a reward for the services which I had done.
74,939. It was rather a reward for the vote if you never expected to be paid before?—I never had any idea of being paid.

James Johnson.

James Johnson sworn, and examined.

74,940. Where do you live?—Marine View Terrace, Hedon Road.
74,941. What business are you?—Clerk.
74,942. In what office?—In the railway.
74,943. What rent do you pay?—Ten guineas.
74,944. For a house?—Yes.
74,945. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
74,946. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1846.
74,947. Did you vote in the election of 1847?—Yes.
74,948. Who did you vote for?—Brown and Baines.
74,949. Were you paid some money for it?—No.
74,950. Were you paid any money at all?—None, whatever.
74,951. Neither by the candidates nor their party?—No.
74,952. Not on any account?—Not on any account.
74,953. At the last election did you vote?—Yes.
74,954. Who for?—Moore and Butler.
74,955. You were employed this time?—I expect I was.
74,956. Where?—At the West Sculcoates committee room.
74,957. In what capacity?—Clerk, a little bit.
74,958. Anything else?—Nothing else.
74,959. How long was your little bit?—About fourteen days.
74,960. Who asked you to act as clerk?—I hardly know who did ask me.
74,961. Did you apply to be employed?—No.
74,962. Did they ask you to be a clerk, or did they ask you to come to be employed generally?—Of course they asked me.
74,963. What did they say to you?—They asked me if I wished to be employed, and of course I said yes.
74,964. Employed in what way?—Any way they liked.
74,965. What did you do at the committee room?—Just what they liked.
74,966. Did you keep the books?—No.
74,967. You kept the money?—No, nor the money neither.
74,968. How much did you get altogether?—I got about 50*s*.
74,969. Did they pay you before or after the election day?—Before the election.
74,970. The whole of it?—Yes.
74,971. Did they pay you nothing after you voted?—No.
74,972. Did they discharge you at any time from being clerk?—I do not know that they discharged me at any time; I think I discharged myself.

William Purdon.

5th August 1853.

WILLIAM PURDON sworn, and examined.

74,973. Where do you live?—Tynemouth Street.

74,974. What business are you?—An auctioneer.

74,975. What rent do you pay?—£32.

74,976. Are you a freeman?—No.

74,977. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Since the passing of the Reform Act.

74,978. In 1841, who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.

74,979. Did you act in any way in that election?—I did not.

74,980. Did you take any part in it?—No part at all.

74,981. Were you paid any money?—No.

74,982. Not on any account?—Not on any account.

74,983. You did not canvass?—I did not.

74,984. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Clay.

74,985. Did you take any part in that election?—I did not.

74,986. Were you paid any money that election on any account?—None at all.

74,987. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

74,988. Did you take any part in this election?—Yes.

74,989. What part?—I was clerk at one of the committee rooms.

74,990. Which committee room?—The one in Worship Street.

74,991. Who was the chairman?—Mr. Turnbull.

74,992. Did you pay the runners?—I did.

74,993. Did you set their names down?—I did.

74,994. You understood perfectly well the meaning of setting them down?—How do you mean setting them down?

74,995. Did you not know you were setting their names down in order to secure their votes?—No; when any persons applied to be runners, or to have any situation, I merely made a memorandum of the name, and acquainted Mr. Turnbull, the chairman, with it, and he did as he liked about employing them.

74,996. You knew they were asking to be set down in order that they might be employed and paid, that you might have the vote?—That they might be employed, and get nothing further.

74,997. Did it never cross your mind that that would secure the vote?—I did not turn my attention to that.

74,998. It never struck you?—No.

74,999. You were clerk to the committee?—Yes.

75,000. Were you not one of the committee also?—No; Mr. Turnbull ordered me to enter the names of the applicants, and I did so.

75,001. How many?—Several.

75,002. How many during the whole election?—I should say twenty or thirty.

75,003. No more than that?—I do not know. I think my books are in possession of the court, and will tell you.

75,004. Did you ever canvass any people yourself?—I did two or three; I went to one invalid person.

75,005. Did you tell them to have their names set down?—I solicited their votes for the blue interest.

75,006. Did you tell them to have their names set down as runners?—They could not get out.

75,007. Did you tell them to have their names set down?—No.

75,008. Were their names set down?—No.

75,009. Were they paid any money?—Not that I know of; I paid no money.

75,010. Did you pay money at any place not a committee room?—Yes; I paid one or two parties at their houses.

75,011. After the election?—Yes.

75,012. Had you before you paid them ascertained how they had voted?—No; I paid according to the orders given me.

75,013. Were those orders to inquire which side they had voted?—No, it was for some expenses that were due to them.

75,014. Whose duty was it to see which way they had voted?—I do not know, indeed. I know they were persons who voted for us.

75,015. You did know that at the time you paid them?—I did.

75,016. And you knew they would not have been paid unless they had voted for you? I should presume it was money that was due to them.

75,017. Did you know at the time they would not have been paid unless they had voted for you?—I believe they would not.

75,018. That was the same case with all the persons who were paid at your committee room, was it not?—I knew that those I paid were in our interest; many of them were paid weekly before the election.

75,019. Some of them as messengers?—Yes, as messengers; I made the accounts out weekly, and sent them in to the central committee, and they sent the money that was due.

75,020. You knew all the persons whose names were set down for employment were employed at some time or another?—Yes.

75,021. And were all paid?—All paid.

75,022. Were they not all paid something after the election?—Only the amount due to them for their services.

75,023. They were all paid something after they voted?—Yes, because the week had not expired at the time of the election; they were only paid a weekly payment.

75,024. During the time you were at the committee room, was part of the wages kept back from the committee till after the election?—No.

75,025. Can you undertake to say that the men were always paid in full on the Saturday night?—No, I do not say that; the first week the money was kept back.

75,026. To keep the runners from running away, did you not hear at the time the reason why part was kept back?—Yes, I think I did hear some reason given, and I thought it was a very foolish one at the time.

75,027. What was the reason?—I really cannot say now, I cannot turn my attention to it.

75,028. Was it not in order to keep them firm to your side, have you any doubt about that?—I really do not remember what was the reason. I know I stated to our chairman it was a very foolish thing to prevent the men having their pay on Saturday night.

75,029. Why?—Because I thought they would have nothing to eat on Sunday.

75,030. If they got 17*s.* out of 20*s.*, that would enable them to get their dinners?—Yes, but the first week was only three days; we began on Wednesday.

75,031. How much were they to have a day?—£1 a week.

75,032. 3*s.* 4*d.* a day?—Yes.

75,033. If they got two days' pay on Saturday night, you thought that was not enough to get a dinner on Sunday?—They did not get any.

75,034. I thought you said part was kept back?—No, they were not paid at all the first week.

75,035. Do you mean to swear during the election it never struck you in your own mind that it was kept back in order to secure the men?—I understood it was a suggestion of Mr. Davis; I never understood it fully, and never inquired about it.

75,036. Did it cross your mind in any way that that was in order to keep them to your side?—I thought it was for that.

75,037. Who gave you the money to pay the people at their own houses afterwards?—It was Mr Turnbull that gave it me; he generally brought the money from the central committee every Saturday.

75,038. Did he give you a list of persons you were to pay at their own houses?—Yes.

75,039. You think there were some few?—Yes; and when I paid them I ticked them off, and gave a list of them to him.

75,040. You entered the names of persons that applied?—Yes.

75,041. Did you pay those people?—Yes.

75,042. All whose names were set down?—Not the whole whose names were set down. I merely entered them as applicants, and if employed I paid them for their services.

75,043. You paid all who were employed?—Yes.

75,044. Who paid the rest?—I think I paid all.

75,045. Were all employed?—All that were employed I paid.

75,046. All that you set down, were they all employed?—I think not.

75,047. They were all paid?—Only those that were employed.

75,048. Were paid by you?—Yes.

75,049. Could you furnish us with the name of anybody that was not paid?—I think if I had the book I could.

75,050. You have been asked the meaning of setting down, do you think there is any one person out of the 40,000 adults in Hull who does not perfectly well know the meaning of the word "setting down," that it means a man sets his name down promising to vote, and the other party promises to pay?—The statement I have made to you is perfectly true, that is all I can say.

75,051. I want still to know whether you think there is any other individual besides yourself in Hull that does not understand the meaning of the word "setting down"?—The way I set them down was this: Mr. Turnbull said if anybody in his absence should make application to be runners, "enter their names down, and I will select such as I think are suitable." When they made application I entered the names down, and on his returning I informed him.

75,052. I ask you whether there is any one person in Hull that does not know perfectly well that the meaning of that is, that the person whose name is set down promises his vote, and the other side promises if possible to employ and to pay?—All I can say is, that I did it, to obey the orders of Mr. Turnbull, and for him to select such as he thought were suitable.

Henry Shawson.

5th August 1853.

HENRY SHAWSON sworn, and examined.

75,053. Where do you live?—No. 27, Trippett Street.

75,055. What rent do you pay?—£5.
75,056. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
75,057. How long have you been a freeman?—I cannot really say, but the last election was the only one I polled; I have always been at sea before.
75,058. How many years have you been entitled to vote?—I believe there have been three elections.
75,059. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
75,060. Were you paid for it?—10*s.* the Saturday after polling.
75,061. Who from?—The place in Lowgate.
75,062. Who paid you, do you know?—I do not know him.
75,063. Is that all you got?—That is all.
75,064. Is that all you know about the election?—Yes.

Thomas Smith.

THOMAS SMITH sworn, and examined.

75,067. A lodger?—Yes
75,068. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
75,069. What business are you?—A sailor; I served my time to the sea; I am a labourer now.
75,070. How long have you been a freeman?—1839.
75,071. Was it taken up for you?—It was taken up for me.
75,072. By which party?—I cannot tell you that.
75,073. Which party did you vote for in 1841?—I never polled at all only the last election, and that was for Moore and Butler.
75,074. Your freedom was taken up by the blues, and you voted for James and Hanmer?—I never polled at all, only this last election.
75,075. Was your freedom taken up by the blues?—I am sure I do not know that it was; it was in 1839, the 11th of July.
75,076. Was it paid for by the blue party?—I think it was, but I will not be confident about that.
75,077. Samuel Brown was there, was he not; and did they not pay for it in order that you might vote for them at the next general election?—I have never polled, only the last election; I have been away.
75,078. When they paid for your freedom, they meant you to vote for them?—Yes, of course they did.
75,079. And you understood it?—Yes.
75,080. Did they not give you any money to go away?—No.
75,081. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
75,082. Were you paid for it?—I was; seven days' running; I got 10*s.* 6*d.* the first week, and 1*l.* for four days the week following.
75,083. You asked to be set down as a runner?—Yes, I did.
75,084. Where was it?—Our booth was in Charles Street, but I got paid in Saville Street.
75,085. At the committee room?—Yes.
75,086. Who paid you?—I am sure I do not know whether it was the man they call Brown or not.

75,124. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
75,125. How long have you been free?—Since 1839.
75,126. Was it paid for for you?—No; I paid for it myself.
75,127. And it was not repaid?—It was not repaid.
75,128. In 1841, who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
75,129. Were you paid for that?—I got a sovereign after the election; about three months, I should think.
75,130. Who paid it?—Mr. Ullathorne paid me; he is dead now.
75,131. Where?—In the Market Place; in his shop.
75,132. Was that all you got?—That is all.
75,133. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Brown. I bulleted him.
75,134. Were you paid for that?—Yes; I got 10*s.* after the election.
75,135. Where was that?—Mr. Collison paid me.
75,136. Was that all you got?—That is all.
75,137. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
75,138. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
75,139. How much?—30*s.* altogether.
75,140. Where were you paid?—At the Shakespeare.
75,141. Before or after you voted?—10*s.* before,—I was a messenger there for twelve or thirteen days,—and a sovereign after.
75,142. Who paid you?—I do not know the party that paid me.
75,143. Did you apply to be set down as a runner?—I was there; they put me down as a runner, and I did all I could for them.

75,151. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
75,152. How much?—30*s.*
75,153. Who paid you?—I was paid in Blanket Row.
75,154. Do you know who paid you?—I have forgotten now.
75,155. Had Thistleton anything to do with it?—Yes.
75,156. Was that all you got?—Yes.
75,157. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.
75,158. Were you paid for that?—Yes.
75,159. How much?—10*s.*
75,160. Before or after?—It was the day we voted.

Thomas Stamp.

5th August 1853.

75,161. Who paid you?—Mr. Mitchell. We were to have 10*s.* after, but I never got it yet.
75,162. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
75,163. Were you paid for that?—Yes.
75,164. Who paid you?—Mr. Croft.
75,165. How much?—£1.
75,166. After you voted?—Yes; three weeks after.
75,167. Was that all you got?—Yes.

75,172. In 1841, who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
75,173. Were you paid for it?—I was eight days a runner.
75,174. How much were you paid?—£2; 5*s.* a day.
75,175. Before or after you voted?—After you voted.
75,176. Who paid you?—I got it from Mr. Bannister, to go to the central room.
75,177. Who paid you?—I do not know the gentleman's name.
75,178. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.
75,179. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
75,180. How much?—Three days at 5*s.* a day.
75,181. Where were you paid?—I was paid, I think, at a public house in Waterwork Street; Mr. Bannister paid me.
75,182. Was it before or after you voted?—We got it every night after the work was done. I was a runner three days, and we got it every night after the work was done.
75,183. Was that before you voted?—No; two days before I voted; and 5*s.* the day of polling; that finished it.
75,184. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
75,185. Were you paid for that?—Yes; two weeks as a runner.
75,186. Where you set down?—At the Shakespeare.
75,187. You applied to be set down as a runner?—I did.
7S,188. How much did you get?—£1 a week, for two weeks.
75,189. Were you paid before or after you voted?—£1 a week before, and 1*l.* the election week.
75,190. Who paid you?—Mr. Davis gave me a note to Mr. Aitkin of Mytongate; that is all I got of him.

A. C. Smithson.

75,194. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
75,195. How long have you been a freeman?—Three years.
75,196. The last election was the first at which you voted?—Yes.
75,197. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
75,198. Were you paid for it?—I got 7*s.* 6*d.*, I believe.
75,199. Was that all?—Yes.
75,200. Who paid you?—I got it at Minerva Terrace. I do not know who gave it.
75,201. That was at Legitt's?—Yes.
75,202. Was that after you voted?—Yes.
75,203. Are you quite sure that is all you got?—That is all I got.
75,204. Were you at any of the orange committee rooms?—No.
75,205. Were you with your brother at the time he went up to vote?—No.
75,206. Did you see John Walker?—No; I do not know him.

Charles Eaby.

CHARLES EABY sworn, and examined.

75,208. What business are you?—Boarding-house keeper.
75,209. What rent do you pay?—Twenty guineas.
75,210. Are you a freeman?—No.
75,211. How long have you been entitled to vote?—About seventeen years.
75,212. Did you vote in 1841?—I did not; I was from home.
75,213. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I was from home; I did not vote then.
75,214. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

Charles Eaby.

5th August 1853.

75,215. Did you get any money?—Yes.
75,216. How much?—I was a runner for five days, and got 3*s.* a day.
75,217. That is 15*s.*?—Yes.
75,218. Was that all you got?—No.
75,219. How much more did you get?—10*s* ; 5*s.* for the nomination day, and 5*s.* for the polling day.
75,220. Who paid you?—I got paid at our branch committee.
75,221. Where was that?—In Fish Street.
75,222. Who paid you?—I believe it was Mr. Sylbon.
75,223. That was paid part before and part after you voted?—Yes, decidedly. I got 15*s.* before, and I got the other 10*s.* after the election.

Adjourned till to-morrow, at ten o'clock.

FIFTY-SECOND DAY.—Saturday, 6th August 1853.

JOHN FEETAM sworn, and examined.

John Feetam.

6th August 1853.

75,224. What is your business?—A cabinetmaker.
75,225. Where do you live?—22, Passage Street, now.
75,226. Where did you live at the election?—No. 2, Paradise Place.
75,227. What rent do you pay?—I paid then 10*l.* ; now I pay 5*l.*
75,228. Are you a freeman of this borough?—Yes.
75,229. How long have you been a freeman?—I am sure I do not know exactly.
75,230. Is it twenty years?—No. The first election I voted at, was for Clay and Thompson.
75,231. Who did you vote for then?—Clay and Thompson.
75,232. Did you get any money on that occasion for your vote?—No.
75,233. Were you set down or employed?—No.
75,234. Did you vote in 1847?—Yes.
75,235. Who for?—Baines and Brown.
75,236. This time did you get any money?—No.
75,237. Not any from Mr. Brown?—No.
75,238. Was your name set down for Mr. Brown?—No, it was not. I never got any money ; I was set down.
75,239. Was your name set down the day before?—No ; I think it was set down two days before, but I cannot say exactly now, it is so long since.
75,240. You applied to have it set down?—I did not apply to have it set down. I went to a committee room that time. Mr. Brown was coming down to Hull, and they asked me if I would have it set down.
75,241. You said yes, and they set it down?—Yes.
75,242. Were you to have been paid the usual sum of 10*s.* after the election?—I was to have been paid the usual sum of 10*s.* after the election. In fact I am saying more than I know. I do not know what the sum was.
75,243. 10*s.* or a sovereign?—I never understood anything about it, for I was very careless about it.
75,244. We hear everybody got 10*s.* or a sovereign. Were you to have had the same as the others?—10*s.*, I believe, but I did not get it.
75,245. How happened that?—I do not know ; I am sure I cannot say.
75,246. Perhaps you never earned it?—I did not waste a deal of time over getting it.
75,247. Who did you vote for last year?—Clay and Goderich.
75,248. Was your name set down this last time?—No, it was not.
75,249. Did you get any money?—I was brought down from London.
75,250. Who brought you down from London?—I can explain all that. I have it all explained in those papers (handing in some papers).
75,251. What money did you get?—I got three sovereigns altogether, and I was to have had 4*l.* 10*s.*
75,252. How does that appear? Show me the papers that says you were to have 4*l.* 10*s.*?—I have not a paper which says I was to have 4*l.* 10*s.*
75,253. It is not in writing?—No, it is not in writing. Those papers contain all there is in writing belonging to me.
75,254. There is merely a receipt for 2*l.*?—And that is all I know about it.
75,255. Who promised you 4*l.* 10*s.*?—John Walker promised me 4*l.* 10*s.*
75,256. When you got down here?—Yes.
75,257. Do you mean John Walker, the basket maker?—Yes ; that is the man.
75,258. Did you see him before you voted?—Yes ; I saw him when I voted, and I waited until he went to get me the 2*l.*
75,259. Did you get any money also from Messrs. Tilson and Company, the solicitors in London?—That is the money I repaid to Mr. Wells.

John Feetam.

6th August 1853.

75,260. Messrs. Tilson paid you 2*l.* in London, to come down here?—Yes.

75,261. And then you paid that back to Mr. Wells when you got here?—Yes; in the presence of a witness.

75,262. Here is Mr. Wells's receipt for it?—Yes.

75,263. Was that before or after you got the promise of the 4*l.* 10*s.*?—I only got the 2*l.* when I got that.

75,264. Did you pay back the 2*l.* before you got the promise of the 4*l.* 10*s.*?—Yes, I did. I never had any sum of money stated to me at all,—what I was to have in any way.

75,265. You got nothing it appears, if you only got 2*l.* and paid it back?—When I got the 2*l.* in London, it was the same to me as getting 2*l.* here.

75,266. Besides that, you got 3*l.*?—No; with the 2*l.* I paid back again I got 3*l.*

75,267. Then was it 5*l.* you got in London?—No; 2*l.* I got in London, and 2*l.* I paid back again.

75,268. Where did the 3*l.* come from?—£2 from John Walker, and 1*l.* from Mr. Atkinson, after I had voted at the election.

75,269. First the blues gave you 2*l.*?—Yes.

75,270. You gave that back, and promised the orange?—Yes.

75,271. And got 3*l.* from them?—I got 3*l.* altogether.

75,272. You got first of all 2*l.* from the blues?—Yes.

75,273. And when you got here you got 3*l.* of the orange, and paid the 2*l.* back again?—Yes; but I got it at two separate times. I got 2*l.* the day before the election, and the other after.

75,274. You paid the 2*l.* you got from they blues back to them?—Yes; the day before the election.

75,275. And got 2*l.* from the orange?—Yes; and 1*l.* I got afterwards from Mr. Atkinson, which made the 3*l.*

75,276. Why did you not get the other 1*l.* 10*s.*?—Because I could not.

75,277. Where did you apply for it?—I applied to Mr. Walker, and Mr. Walker applied to Mr. Wilde; and between the two applications they were so long that I was losing my employment in London. I was working for 32*s.* a week, for Messrs. Hunter; and I found I was losing more money, and therefore I had to go to London without it; and he sent that to my house.

75,278. How long did you stay in Hull?—From Tuesday night to Saturday night,—to Saturday morning. I went by the packet from here, because I could not get the expenses. I could not go by rail.

75,279. How much did it cost you to come from London and to get back?—With my wages?

75,280. No; they do not pay wages. For travelling in the railway?—I lost that.

75,281. What was the railway fare?—I think 24*s.* coming down, if I recollect right, because I got an order to come down by the night, and there were no third-class carriages that night; that was 24*s.*, and then it cost me 5*s.* to go back again.

75,282 Then it cost you 29*s.*?—Yes.

Viscount Goderich, M.P.

VISCOUNT GODERICH, M.P., sworn, and examined.

75,283. Are you the eldest son of the Earl of Ripon?—Yes.

75,284. You were returned at the last election as a member to serve in Parliament for this borough?—I was.

75,285. Had you or your family previous to that any local connexion with the borough of Hull?—None whatever.

75,286. Can you remember when your Lordship's attention was first directed to the representation of Hull?—I can.

75,287. Will you state it?—I called one morning upon my solicitor in London, Mr. Burges, of the firm of Warry, Robins, and Burges, upon totally different business. He was previously aware that I entertained the intention of coming into Parliament at that election, if I could obtain a seat; and he mentioned to me upon that occasion that he believed there would be a vacancy for a liberal candidate at Hull, in consequence of the retirement of Mr. Baines, the sitting member, who intended to stand for Leeds; and he told me that he had some previous private acquaintance with Mr. Clay, and if I liked that he would see Mr. Clay upon the subject, and obtain information from him as to the chances which such a second candidate would have. I told him I knew nothing whatever about Hull. I never heard anything about it at all in the matter of elections. I did not know Mr. Clay at all. I did not happen to know previously that he was member for Hull; but I thought it would be very well if he was to call upon Mr. Clay, as he knew him, and ask if he knew whether there was a good opportunity for a second candidate.

75,288. Can you fix the date of that?—I am afraid I cannot exactly.

75,289. As nearly as possible?—It would be in the month of March 1852.

75,290. You mentioned that you were ignorant of Hull. Had you never heard that there had been an investigation into the state of the representation of Hull in the year 1838, consequent upon the election of 1837?—Never.

75,291. Are we to understand that you were altogether ignorant of any rumours, good or ill, relating to the constituency?—Entirely. I had never heard any rumour or any opinion concerning the constituency of Hull.

75,292. Were you aware of the nature of the constituency, that it was divided between householders and freemen, and of the latter a large number?—At that time I was not.

75,293. Was that all that took place between you and Mr. Burges then?—That I believe to be all that took place.

75,294. What was the next occurrence?—The next occurrence was this: Mr. Burges, in consequence of that conversation, waited upon Mr. Clay, and he came to me some days after,—I cannot recollect the precise length of time,—and told me that he had seen Mr. Clay, and that Mr. Clay had said that he did not wish in any way to interfere with the selection of a second candidate, or with a determination whether there was to be a second Liberal candidate or not; but that he should be happy to give me any information concerning the chances of a second candidate that I might choose to ask of him; and I think that I settled with Mr. Burges that we would go together and see Mr. Clay. We went, and saw him. I think it would be still in the month of March, as far as my recollection serves me, at the Oxford and Cambridge Club.

75,295. Your second interview with Mr. Burges was merely preparatory to your introduction to Mr. Clay?—Merely. Of course my recollection of these conversations is somewhat imperfect. I will endeavour to give them to you as correctly as I can. He may have told me that Mr. Clay said more to him at the time than I at this moment recollect; but that is my recollection of the second interview.

75,296. Did you collect at the time you saw Mr. Clay that Mr. Burges had been with him twice?—No; not that I recollect.

75,297. Are you sure that he did not upon that occasion tell you something about the state of the constituency in Hull before you saw Mr. Clay?—I have no recollection of his having done so.

75,298. Is that the utmost that you can say upon the subject, that you do not remember it, or that it may be so, and that it has escaped your recollection?—My only reason for thinking that it may be so is, that your question leads me to believe that Mr. Burges has said that it is so; but my recollection is that it did not.

75,299. You do not undertake to say positively that it did not occur?—No; certainly not.

75,300. Your Lordship saw Mr. Clay at the Oxford and Cambridge University Club?—Yes.

75,301. Now, have the goodness to detail, in the order that best you can remember, what took place between you and Mr. Clay?—I stated to Mr. Clay that I was thinking of coming into Parliament, and understanding that there would be a vacancy for a Liberal candidate at Hull, in consequence of Mr. Baines's retirement, I was anxious to ask him to give me some information concerning the probabilities of my success, if I was to come forward as a candidate. He told me that he should be very happy to give me any information upon that subject, but that he could not undertake in any way to interfere in the choice of a candidate, or in the decision, as I have stated, of the question whether there should be another candidate or not. He stated that it would not be at all agreeable to the Liberal party who had elected him, and that consequently he could not think of doing it; and he also said, very fairly, that he was bound to say that it was contrary to his interests, and contrary to the wishes and opinions of his immediate friends and supporters, that there should be a second candidate upon the Liberal side at the coming election. If there was not a second Liberal candidate at the coming election upon that side he believed that there would not be a second candidate upon the other side, and that consequently he and Mr. Moore, who was then in the field, I believe, would be returned without opposition and without any difficulty. He then, as far as I recollect, produced a paper which contained an analysis of the state of the register, which analysis I think he told me, but I am not quite certain about this,—I think he told me that he had received it from Mr. Jalland; it may have been from some other gentleman here; and that analysis appeared to me to shew that there was a probability of a majority for two Liberal candidates, allowing that the second Liberal candidate would have a less number of votes than Mr. Clay; that there was an apparent majority of about 200 votes; that is my impression of the analysis. It may have been 150; at all events it showed a considerable majority. He told me, however, he did not put much confidence in that analysis, for that a large number of the persons now upon the register were new voters, who had never voted before, and whose opinions, consequently, had only been guessed at in making out that analysis, and he thought the chances of a second candidate doubtful, and that if the practice was pursued, to which he informed me he attributed the loss of his election before 1847,—I think it was in 1841,—namely, that if the opposite party were to send money into the streets,—that is the expression, as I understand it, that he used,—that if that was the case there would be no chance for a second Liberal candidate, and, as I think, he told me that there would be no chance for himself; but I will not be perfectly sure about that. We then talked about the subject; and, upon his saying that he thought the chances of a second candidate so small, I suggested to him that he and Mr. Baines had been returned by a very large majority in 1847; and he then explained to me that Mr. Baines's election in 1847, which I was not aware of at the time, was not to be taken as a party election. Mr. Baines had been supported, very mainly I believe, by the Conservative party; at all events by a union of the two parties; and consequently I could not very well argue from his success what would be the success of the other Liberal candidate at this election which was about to come on. We then, I think, as far as I can recollect, having spoken of the chances of a contest, spoke upon the subject slightly at that time of the expenses of a contest, and he told me that Hull he had found a place in which a good deal of money was expended. He did not give me, as far as I have any recollection, in the course of that conversation any impression as to the particular way in which that money was spent. He may have done so; and when I come to speak of the future conversations I may be confounding one with the other; but my impression is, that he told me a good deal of money was spent in the of printing, and what he described as the necessary expenses of the election, in the way of lawyer's bills, in the way of even the polling booths and hustings, and all that had amounted altogether in his case to a considerable sum, and there was no attempt whatever made, of not spending the money of the candidates who went down there; on the contrary, the expenditure was lavish; but, as I told you he said he would see me again if I chose, and that he would give me any information in his power, but that he could have nothing to do with recommending me to the constituency, or with even alluding to me to any of his friends, or have anything to do with introducing me to the constituency. He could do no more than give that information which he told me he had given to Mr. Oliveira, who, I believe, was previously thinking of standing; and after that conversation, which did not last very long, according to my recollection, I left Mr. Clay, and walked down Pall Mall with Mr. Burges.

75,302. In the conversation which you have just described, who began the subject of expense first? Did you or Mr. Clay?—I cannot really recollect that.

75,303. Was anything said about the freemen upon that occasion?—It might have been at that conversation, or it might have been at a subsequent conversation.

75,304. There seems to be something passing in your mind as having taken place upon some occasion, and you are doubtful when it was?—You asked me whether anything passed upon that occasion concerning the freemen. Mr. Clay told me about the freemen. Mr. Clay told me various things which I shall be happy to tell the Commissioners.

75,305. I would rather hear the next conversation?—My own feeling is, that it took place at a subsequent conversation, when I was rather more in the position of a candidate than I was at that moment. I may be wrong; but I was merely going to say, when we left Mr. Clay I went a few steps down Pall Mall with Mr. Burges, and I said, "It is quite clear that Mr. Clay, although he is very willing and very frank to give me every information that he can, will do nothing to promote my candidateship at Hull. I am going out of town for a little while, and it will be better to do nothing further in the matter at present;" and I then went out of town for some time, and the next that I heard concerning the Hull election was, when I was staying in the country I received a letter in the commencement of the month of April, signed E. F. Collins.

75,306. Have you got that letter?—I have not. I think I can give you the substance of the letter almost verbatim; it is extremely short.

75,307. You have not got the letter at all?—No; I have not kept the letter, for I thought there was nothing in the letter of any kind of importance.

75,308. Then will you repeat your recollection of its contents?—I believe the letter to have been to this effect; it was dated quite at the commencement of April. I cannot recollect the exact date; but it was to this effect:—"My Lord, having heard that you are anxious to obtain a seat in Parliament, and that you are in favour," I think,—"that your principles are liberal,—or that you are in favour of Free Trade, and an extension of the suffrage." I know that these two words occurred in the letter,—"I beg to inform you that there is a vacancy in the town for such a candidate, and to ask whether, if you received a requisition from the Liberal electors, you would be willing to offer yourself as a candidate for Hull at the next election. I have the honour to be, my Lord," and so on. I believe that to be entirely the whole of the letter; indeed I am quite certain of it and I wrote an answer to Mr. Collins.

75,309. Had your Lordship heard of the name of Mr. Collins before?—I had never heard of the name of Mr. Collins before in my life. I think I ought to state, that on receiving that letter, before I answered it, I sent it up by the next post to Mr. Burges, to ask him whether he had heard anything about Mr. Collins; and I think his answer was—indeed I am quite sure his answer was—that he had of himself heard and knew nothing whatever of Mr. Collins, and I think he had not time to speak to Mr. Clay, and ask Mr. Clay who he was, which I think, in my letter to him, I had directed him to do; but I am not quite sure of that; but having received Mr. Burges's answer, I wrote to Mr. Collins, to say that, although I felt much flattered by the proposal in the letter, that I could not return him any positive answer until I became more aware of what would be my chance of success if I became a candidate, and whether the Liberal party in Hull were willing to take me as a candidate or not; and I concluded that letter to Mr. Collins by begging him to make any further communication upon the subject which he might be willing to make to Mr. Burges, who was my London solicitor. I think, as I said, I was at that time out of London. I remained in the country until, I think, it was the 17th of April, or some other day about that date; and I did not, as far as I recollect,—I am sure I did not,—hear anything more about the matter while I was in the country. I then returned to London, and some days after I had returned to London I heard from Mr. Burges, I think, that Mr. Collins had written to him to say,—I think so, but I am not perfectly certain whether there had been any communication between them by letter before,—but some time after I came back Mr. Burges came to me one morning before breakfast and told me that Mr. Collins had come up to London, and that he had called upon him (Mr. Burges), and that he would come down and see me at half past ten, or something of that kind, and Mr. Burges came on before to tell me, that I might be prepared to see Mr. Collins. I then said to Mr. Burges, "Of course you will explain to Mr. Collins that if I come forward as a candidate I can only do so upon the distinct understanding that I intend to abstain from any bribery or corrupt practices," which Mr. Burges said he would explain to Mr. Collins. He then left me, and at about half past ten Mr. Collins called upon me at my father's house, at No. 1, Carlton Gardens; and I saw him there, and he asked me a few general questions concerning my political opinions, and he told me he was authorized by a considerable portion of the Liberal party in Hull to ask whether I would come forward as a candidate at the next election; and I told him that I should be very happy to do so if I received a requisition which I thought would justify me in doing so; and at the end of the conversation I said to him, "I hope, Mr. Collins, that Mr. Burges has explained to you that I can only stand upon the understanding that I am not going to be party to any bribery or any corrupt proceedings." I am bound to state that, either then or at some time previous to the election, I no doubt heard from one or two persons those rumours concerning the constituency of Hull, which you asked me if I had heard anything of previous to my having commenced the inquiry, when I told you that I had heard nothing whatever of them.

75,310. I wish to fix the date the 30th of April being the day that you issued your address, we are very anxious to know what was the state of information that had been communicated to you up to that time?—My impression afterwards was,—I think that most probably certainly the greater part of the information that I heard came after my address was issued, because it was the natural result of my having made my address.

75,311. Still you had heard something?—My impression is that I had. I had certainly not heard of that inquiry.

75,312. The inquiry of 1837?—No; I certainly did not, because I never understood, and I do not think that I understood up to the time of the election, that that inquiry had disclosed the circumstances that I now understand it did. I never saw that inquiry to this moment, and I know of nothing that occurred upon that inquiry, except by hearsay.

75,313. Before the 30th of April, you had, I presume, ascertained that the constituency were divided; one part consisting of householders, and the other part consisting of freemen?—Yes; I presume that I had.

75,314. You had made yourself acquainted with that fact?—I am bound to say that I had no previous experience of elections; that I had never engaged in a contested election; and that I had never been in a town where a contested election was going on; and, consequently, that I did not go very systematically to work in making those inquiries.

75,315. Was Mr. Burges present upon the occasion of the interview between you and Mr. Collins?—Yes.

75,316. Then tell us the whole that took place? Your Lordship said you would be no party to corrupt practices? Did Mr. Collins make any answer to that?—I thought I had stated that Mr. Collins told me that Mr. Burges had told him that he understood those were the only terms upon which I could stand; and it was then agreed that a requisition should be sent up to me, and the requisition was sent up to me, signed by, I forget how many people.

75,317. A large number?—A large number, and of course I knew nothing of the names; the names signed to the requisition were entirely strangers to me. I had heard of the name of Major Sykes, whose name was the first signed to it, and Mr. Palmer.

75,318. Up to that time had any particulars been given to you, or had you learnt any further particulars than those which you have said Mr. Clay had given you of previous prevalent corrupt practices?—My impression is that I told you, I think, that I had probably heard rumours of the character of the place.

75,319. What was the nature of the rumours that you had heard?—The rumours that I had heard were purely general, that Hull was an expensive place, and a place in which a man who stood required to be very careful. I think that would be, as near as I can give it you, the general impression upon my mind.

75,320. Had you not heard also that it was expensive in the way of the number of runners employed?—No; unless Mr. Clay told me that, which I shall tell you in a moment. In his first conversation I never heard anything at all concerning that matter.

75,321. Is that all that took place between your Lordship and Mr. Collins?—Except that Mr. Collins undertook to send up the requisition; and it was sent up, and the requisition being sent up, I decided to accept it. I wrote an answer to the requisition, and I wrote my address; and before I decided to send it down I delayed a day before I answered it. I decided to send down both the address and the answer by Mr. Burges to Hull, in order that he might see, as well as he could, what were the chances upon the spot, and what was the state of things here; and I gave him, when I sent him, a discretion as to whether he should deliver that answer to the requisition, and especially as to whether he should issue my address or not. I saw Mr. Clay, I think, for only a minute just before I sent Mr. Burges down, to tell him that I had accepted the requisition, and that it was my intention to become a candidate; and, to the best of my recollection, nothing further passed at that moment, except an impression upon my mind, and what Mr. Clay had told me, that he was sure there was to be a contest. I think I have come to the end of that.

Viscount Goderich, M.P.

6th August 1853.

75,322. To the end of the 30th of April?—Yes. I was going on to say, that Mr. Burges went down, and that in the exercise of that discretion which I had left to him he communicated to me that he had published and printed my address.

75,323. Had not you then learned, either from Mr. Clay or Mr. Collins, something respecting a peculiar class which prevails at Hull; the class of runners?—I am perfectly and entirely certain that I never heard anything of the kind; that the word was never mentioned, or anything about them, in the course of my interview with Mr. Collins. I can answer that most distinctly and decidedly. I am answering one part of your question, I am quite aware. I only wish to answer the first, to this effect, that I may have heard from Mr. Clay that, which I think he afterwards told me, at the first interview, though I do not think I did, and I am almost certain that I had no interview with Mr. Clay before I issued my address, except the first, and the interview of which I have told you. I have no recollection of any; and I am sure at the last short interview nothing of the kind passed between us. After my address was issued, I had several interviews with Mr. Clay, previous to our coming down together to Hull; and in the course of those interviews Mr. Clay stated to me and gave me all the information which I received from him as to the nature of the constituency.

75,324. Will your Lordship be so good as to state as accurately as you can all your recollection as to the information which he gave you in those interviews upon the subject of the constituency?—Certainly. In the first place I told you at the first interview Mr. Clay had told me that if the opposing party,—and I imagined that that applied to either party,—were to send down money, as he called it, into the streets, that the result of that would be that they would win the election; and he stated at the first interview that by that process he had lost the election in 1841. He then certainly spoke of it, and he always spoke of it, as only having been done by the opposite party. I can of course only speak from hearsay, and I do not know whether it was done or not. It was a matter I know nothing about; but he told me that there had existed, previous to the Reform Bill, a practice of paying the freemen so much a head for their votes, varying according to whether the votes were plumpers or split votes, and that that practice had led, in the minds of the freemen, to a sort of opinion that they ought to be paid at an election, and to a desire upon their part to obtain payment. I understood from him that the majority of the freemen invariably voted for what were called the blue candidates; and he told me, of course, the proportion of freemen and other electors in the town; and he told me he thought,—I certainly understood him to state,—that if there was no bribery there would be invariably a majority for the Liberal party.

75,325. A majority of the constituency?—A majority of the constituency. I always understood from him that there was a very large decided majority for the Liberal party of the 10*l.* householders; that I have always understood from him; and, as I told you, he told me there was a majority of the freemen the other way.

75,326. Mr. Clay did not give you to understand that there was a large majority of the whole constituency favourable, as it is called, to the Liberal principles?—No. What I said to you was, that I understood from Mr. Clay that if there was a perfectly fair election the Liberal candidates would be returned.

75,327. Did you learn from him, or otherwise, that there never had been an instance, since the first, which took place after the Reform Bill, of two Liberals, or rather, as we call them, orange candidates, having been returned?—I understood that from him, with the exception of 1847, my notion of which was overturned by what he told me.

75,328. With that exception, there never had been an instance of two orange candidates being returned since the Reform Bill?—I understood that from him. He need not have told me that. I could easily have found it out.

75,329. But you were aware of the fact, either through him or otherwise?—Unquestionably. Mr. Clay also told me concerning the election, that it was the practice in Hull that the persons employed as messengers, clerks, and others about the committee rooms connected with the necessary business of the election were for the most part selected from electors, and not from non-electors; and he told me that there were disadvantages in that course, because that upon a scrutiny their names would be struck off as agents of the candidates who so employed them; and he had given me to understand that a scrutiny was an extremely probable event in the case of an election, because he certainly gave me to understand, in my case, that the election would be a very close one indeed; and I told you he did not think much of my chance, though he thought I had rather a better chance than the opposing candidates; nevertheless, he always gave me to understand, and I always believed, up to the day of the election, that the election would be an extremely close one.

75,330. Did you not collect from Mr. Clay that the selection of these parties from the electors was with a view of influencing their votes? Would you not draw that conclusion?

—If you mean by that, did I understand that a bargain was made with these persons, "You will be employed if you vote," I cannot say that I did. I of course understood that they were always selected, as any other gentleman would be, from persons who intended to vote for us.

75,331. That is not exactly an answer to the question. Bargains, in so many words, are rarely, if ever, made; they are things to be judged of by surrounding circumstances. The question I put to you is this: Whether it was not to be collected from what Mr. Clay told you, that there was a tacit understanding between the employers and the employed that the employed should vote for the employing party?—I certainly understood from Mr. Clay that these persons were always selected from the persons who were going to vote for the candidate who so employed them.

75,332. I am not asking what was said in so many words; but I ask, in the first place, whether you collected generally from what he said, and also when he spoke of an agreement,—there are never agreements in terms——?—I am endeavouring to give you exactly my impression of what passed.

75,333. Did you collect from him that the messengers when employed were employed upon a kind of tacit understanding that the vote accompanied the employment? It may be that it was thrown into the bargain by a kind of tacit understanding?—I do not think I should be saying the truth if I were to say I did understand that in the sense in which I understand you to put it. Of course I understood that the men did vote for the person who employed them.

75,334. Did it not then suggest to you to inquire about that?—No, it did not; Mr. Clay told me——If you would allow me to state the conversation with Mr. Burges it might enable you a little better to see what was my feeling upon the subject. I spoke to Mr. Burges upon the matter, and asked him whether Mr. Clay's representation of the state of the law was correct. He told me that it was. He told me that those persons so employed, provided that they actually did the work for which they were paid, and provided that they were not paid more than what would be reckoned a fair and reasonable remuneration for the work that they did, would still be reckoned agents in the event of a scutiny, and would be struck off from the list of voters; but of course there was nothing in the nature of bribery in such employment; and I am bound to say that appeared to me at the time,—I knew nothing of the law,—but it appeared to me at the time to be reasonable. I was quite aware that legal agents and other people employed by candidates, and who were highly paid, did vote at elections without any objection being made to their votes.

75,335. What I wish to press your lordship upon is this, whether you understood as a fact that the parties so employed were employed with a tacit understanding that the vote of the employed was always given in favour of the employer?—I certainly understood, most undoubtedly,—I do not know whether I understood it at that time,—but I most undoubtedly understood it, that the vote of the employed was always given for the person who employed him. I cannot say that I imagined that was a tacit understanding made with the person at the time of the employment being given, but that that was the result I perfectly admit I always understood.

75,336. Did you understand that was the general practice in Hull?—I did not understand that was the general practice, in the light in which I am now aware that it was.

75,337. Unquestionably not?—Of course we shall come to that in time. I do not mean at all to allude to the practice which did take place at the last election; but I did not understand at that time that it was the general practice, in the quasi legitimate sense, if I may use the expression, even in that narrowed point of view,—I did not understand it to be the practice in the way that I now understand it to be.

75,338. That is the reason I put the question, not exactly in the way it did occur; but did you understand that payments were made to parties in the nature of a day's wages for the loss of time incurred by the voter neglecting his own business in going to the poll?—No; I never understood anything of the sort; I never understood that any payment was made for loss of time.

75,339. You never heard it?—I never heard of any such thing, most distinctly.

75,340. Did you understand from him that the number of parties so employed had always been to some extent greater than the emergencies of the election would require?—I see that Mr. Clay stated it in his evidence; but I have no recollection of his having said that.

75,341. Give us your recollection of it, and we will make the comparison, and suggest to you also where it does not agree? We will draw your attention to it, and see how far your recollection corresponds with his?—I have no recollection of his having stated that there were more persons employed than were required.

75,342. The words that Mr. Clay used upon this subject were that,—after alluding to the general system before the Reform Bill he went on to say, "But there are a certain number of freemen who are paid by employment given to them, and they are not over particular whether there are not more men employed than are necessary." And then he went on to say, "I naturally did not make use of the expression, 'with a view of influencing their votes;' there was no occasion to make use of it; it stands to reason that it could be for that and nothing else." And the question then put to him was, "You spoke in language which a reasonable man could understand?" and the answer is, "I spoke in language which no reasonable man could misunderstand, and which, I have no doubt, Lord Goderich will tell you that he did understand." Now those are the exact words used by him; and, calling your lordship's attention to Mr. Clay's recollection of it, can you pledge yourself to say his memory is wholly wrong, or merely this, that it does not accord with your own?—I merely mean to say it does not accord with mine. I should be extremely sorry to say anything further.

Viscount Goderich, M.P.

6th August 1853.

75,343. You do not pledge yourself to put your own oath in opposition to his?—Certainly not.

75,344. Do you recollect anything being said about the amount of employment?—No, I do not.

75,345. And the words "not being over particular about the number"?—I do not remember those words being used.

75,346. Will your lordship tell us, as nearly as you can, the impression that was left upon your mind? Was there not an impression left upon your mind, to some extent, that this was done with a view of influencing the votes? I put the question in so many words to Mr. Clay, and his answer was, "That was the reasonable inference to be drawn." I ask your lordship whether you drew the same inference as he did, namely, that that was a system done with a view of influencing the votes of the parties so employed?—I should say that certainly before the election was over I was quite aware of that. Of course I wish to make a most distinct and broad difference between the persons who were bonâ fide employed, and the persons who were not bonâ fide employed, because concerning the persons not bonâ fide employed I have something to say whenever you choose to ask me about those persons.

75,347. We are going by steps?—But I have no doubt whatever that the persons who were so employed of course understood, being so employed, that they were bound to vote for the person who so employed them; but I did not understand that persons were so employed who would otherwise have voted against us.

75,348. But who might have abstained from voting altogether?—Yes.

75,349. Did you not understand that persons were sometimes so employed who would otherwise have thought it not worth while to vote?—I think that before the end of the election that would certainly be my impression; and I do not think that was any impression I derived from Mr. Clay; but I may be wrong in that respect.

75,350. Before the contest drew to a close, you came to the conclusion that persons were employed, who, at all events, if they had not voted against you would have abstained from voting at all?—Most probably, in certain cases. The only difficulty that I have in answering your question at all is as to the time at which these conversations or these facts came to my knowledge.

75,351. Before you issued your address on the 30th of April, had any proposition been made by or to you upon the subject of the mode in which the expenses were to be shared?—None whatever; for the plain reason that there was no notion at that time of any coalition between Mr. Clay and myself.

75,352. He was rather discouraging you?—He was decidedly holding off; and I should tell you that in all matters at that period that passed between Mr. Clay and myself I took all that Mr. Clay told me as being said by a person who did not wish me to stand for Hull, and did not wish that there should be any second candidate. Mr. Clay himself most frankly and candidly told me, at our first interview, that he did not wish that there should be a contest; and as soon as I sent Mr. Burges down, and put him in communication with persons here at Hull, I took the whole of my opinion as to the conduct of the election, and the facts concerning it, from the information which I received from him.

75,353. What is the next event which is present to your lordship's mind? You say Mr. Burges came down to Hull?—Yes.

75,354. And he told us that he issued, for reasons of policy, the address immediately?—Yes. I cannot tell you who Mr. Burges saw here, or with whom he had communication.

75,355. For reasons he has given us, he thought it advisable to issue the address immediately?—He returned to me, and told me what he had done. He then told me he thought my chance of success was good, provided the Liberal party acted unitedly; but that there was no present appearance, as I understood him, at that time, upon the part of the immediate friends of Mr. Clay, that they would coalesce with those gentlemen who then stood more particularly, although they were all supporters of Mr. Clay, but who stood particularly as the persons who brought me forward. I put the management at that time,—from that day,—in fact previously, because, as I told you, I referred Mr. Collins to Mr. Burges,—I put the management of the whole election into Mr. Burges's hands, and I left the matter entirely in his hands, and I most distinctly told him that I would not sanction any bribery or any corrupt practices at that election. That I told him on the first occasion on which I placed my election business connected with the Hull election in his hands.

75,356. When you became aware of this point relating to the runners, did it occur to you to ask Mr. Burges's advice distinctly upon the subject as to whether a matter of that kind was merely void as agency, or illegal as bribery?—I do not understand the question.

75,357. Did you then, at any time, draw Mr. Burges's attention to the subject of the runners being employed who otherwise would not vote, so as to get his opinion, as a professional man, as to how closely that was treading on the line that was to be drawn between being void on a scrutiny as agency or illegal as bribery?—I think I have stated already the first time I drew his attention to the fact.

75,358. But subsequently?—Yes, subsequently, most undoubtedly, I mentioned that to Mr. Burges. I beg most distinctly to state that anything I have said is only referable to the persons who were actually bonâ fide employed.

75,359. What took place between that time and the 11th of June? We have now gone through April?—I should imagine it quite needless that I should tell you that I was introduced to some gentlemen connected with Hull, who were up in town upon business at the House of Commons.

75,360. Except this: We wish to know whether they, or any other persons, entered to any extent at all into the subject of the employment of runners, or other practices which are of an objectionable or a dangerous character?—None whatever.

75,361. Did none of them throw any additional light upon it?—The communications which I had with those gentlemen, previous to the matter to which I will come in a moment, were every one of them in the committee room in the House of Commons before which a certain Dock and Dues Bill was at that moment going on, and at a dinner party which Mr. Clay gave, and to which he was kind enough to ask me. I never saw any of those gentlemen. I am sure I am perfectly right, as far as my memory serves me. I do not think I ever saw anybody connected with Hull, except Mr. Collins, in my own house, except the matter which I shall come to in a moment.

75,362. If you please?—I think I heard nothing at all connected with the election, except that I was informed that Mr. Bell had been retained by Mr. Burges to look after the street lists and matters which were to go on here. I do not think I heard anything connected with the business of the election for some time, and during this period perhaps it may seem curious that I did not know more about it; but I should state that Lady Goderich was in very bad health at the time, and for her health I again went out of London, in the month of May, and while I was out of London the only thing that I heard concerning the election, and the difficulties of the election, was the difficulty of obtaining a coalition between Mr. Clay's friends and my friends, and that appeared to me to be the great object to which the wishes of all my supporters were tending.

75,363. Now pass on, if you please, to the time when an interview took place, and the coalition became talked about?—I was coming to that. I was then informed that I was required in London. My stay in the country was cut short, because I was told that some matters connected with the coalition had been decided down here, and that Mr. Gresham had come up to London for the purpose of speaking to me upon the subject. I came up to town in consequence of that summons, and I then saw Mr. Gresham, with Mr. Burges, and he told me it was very important to bring about a coalition, and said that he wished to see Mr. Clay upon the subject, and to talk to him as to the means by which a coalition should be brought about. I said that I felt a coalition was of very great importance, as far as my success was concerned, and that of course I was very anxious about it. Mr. Gresham then told me that it had been considered in Hull that a coalition was of great importance to me, but that it was of less importance to Mr. Clay's chance of success, although I am not sure whether there was a second Tory candidate in the field. Of course if there had, the whole circumstances which made Mr. Clay object to a coalition would have been changed, I think; but they said a coalition was very important to me, and not so important to Mr. Clay; and Mr. Gresham then spoke to me concerning the expenses of the election. I believe that you are acquainted with those facts that I have to state about that; and Mr. Gresham said that he thought it would be fair, in the event of a coalition, that a larger portion of the expenses should be borne by me than was to be borne by Mr. Clay. I stated I was quite sure that that would be a fair proportion; that certainly I should put Mr. Clay, by coming down here as a candidate, to a larger expense than he might otherwise have probably been put to if we both stood alone. The election might, perhaps, cost him more money than it might cost him under those circumstances, because he had everything, as I understood, prepared for the election, which of course I had not; and, under those circumstances, if anybody chose to make any proposition to Mr. Clay of that nature I should not stand in the way of it. I said I did not think Mr. Clay would approve of my making any such proposition to him; and I left the matter to Mr. Gresham to do, as coming from the persons who sent him to London.

75,364. You left Mr. Gresham to see Mr. Clay?—Yes; to see Mr. Clay. I and Mr. Burges went down to meet Mr. Gresham, on that occasion, in the lobby of the House of Commons, he having made some previous arrangement to see Mr. Clay there. Mr. Clay was not in the House at the time, and Mr. Gresham and myself went to the Oxford and Cambridge Club, where Mr. Clay was, and Mr. Gresham had an interview at the Oxford and Cambridge Club with Mr. Clay. About that, of course, I knew nothing; but the result of it was that nothing definite whatever was decided concerning the coalition. Mr. Clay admitted there was some just ground why a larger portion of the expenditure should be borne by me than should be borne by himself; but, as far as I can recollect, no distinct arrangement whatever was made upon the subject at that time. Mr. Gresham and Mr. Clay came out of the Oxford and Cambridge Club together, and Mr. Burges, Mr. Clay, Mr. Gresham, and I, spoke for a few minutes together in the street.

75,365. Mr. Burges stated that?—Yes.

Viscount Goderich, M.P.

6th August 1853.

75,366. Mr. Gresham saw Mr. Clay in the Oxford and Cambridge Club, and then they came out together, and saw you and Mr. Burges?—Yes; in the street; in Pall Mall.

75,367. What did Mr. Burges say then, or any of the parties say to you?—That which I have just stated to you. Mr. Clay admitted,—that is, Mr. Clay himself said,—that he saw just reasons why I might fairly pay a larger proportion of the expenditure than he himself should pay, but nothing definite was settled at that time. That is my recollection of the interview. It was exceedingly short, as such a conversation in the street naturally would be. It must have been quite towards the end of May that that took place. You may have the date of that.

75,368. We have not got it exactly, but it is somewhere towards the end of May.?—Yes, near the end of May; and very shortly afterwards, at least not very long afterwards, there took place a meeting, I believe, down here, at which the coalition was agreed upon.

75,369. That was in June?—Yes. A meeting of which you no doubt have all the particulars.

75,370. We have heard that the friends of both parties had a meeting in this town?—Yes; that is what I understood to have been the case. Of course I understood a coalition with Mr. Clay's friends, an intimate coalition of that kind, would be very advantageous to my interests; and it was after that, that that arrangement was made between Mr. Clay and myself, of which you, I believe, have heard, concerning the payment of the expenditure.

75,371. Who was that arrangement, which was reduced to writing, prepared by?—That arrangement was prepared, and the actual form in which it now stands was drawn up, by Mr. Clay, in my room at No. 1, Carlton Gardens, certain of the terms having been previously agreed to.

75,372. Was Mr. Burges present?—No, Mr. Burges was not present when that agreement was drawn up and signed. A previous communication concerning that agreement was made by Mr. Burges, I think, to Mr. Clay himself. At least that is my recollection of it.

75,373. We have heard that some discussion took place as to the form of it?—Yes.

75,374. In particular, was the original proposition that you were to pay two thirds, and Mr. Clay only one?—No; I do not recollect having heard that that was the original proposition.

75,375. That it was telegraphed up by Mr. Stephenson to Mr. Burges, and the answer came immediately from him? You might not have had an opportunity of seeing him?—I am speaking of the agreement as it was dealt with by Mr. Clay and myself.

75,376. Do not you remember whether anything was said, before it was reduced to the form it now is, that those expenses ought to be contributed in the way I have mentioned; namely, one third and two thirds?—My impression is, that I did not hear of that proposition. I may have heard of it.

75,377. Do you remember what was said about the probable expenses of the election at or previous to the execution of that agreement?—I recollect that the probable expenses of the election were, I think, estimated at somewhere between, as far as I can recollect, 2,000*l.* and 3,000*l.*

75,378. Between you both?—Between us. I beg to say, with regard to that agreement, that I never looked at the question of what were my own particular interests about the matter. I was quite prepared to come to some agreement; and I did not debate the question as a question of pounds, shillings, and pence for myself in any way. I wished the agreement, as far as money was concerned, to be settled by the parties; and I did not care what the agreement was in that particular respect. Of course, as to the amount, that is a different question. I only mean as to my proportion of the charge.

75,379. Was it not then considered probable that the expenses might exceed 3,000*l.*?—Certainly not by me.

75,380. By either party?—I know nothing about that; but by me it was certainly not.

75,381. Were there any details entered into of the mode or any detail of the items in which this money would be expended?—I recollect no details being entered into, excepting those general details to which I think I previously alluded, of the great expense of printing a large number of cards which it was the custom here to print and distribute; the expenses of the machinery of the election; and Mr. Clay told me then, and it was perfectly natural and reasonable, as it seemed to me, that as there was a considerable time before the election would probably come on, that as some expenses were even at that time incurred, that the expenses of the election would of course be greater, and naturally would be greater, than if the writ had gone down, and there had been an election immediately afterwards, without this long anticipation of an election.

75,382. Did Mr. Clay, at any time before or on the occasion of this interview when this was alluded to, mention any details of his own expenses upon former occasions?—No. Mr. Clay, I think, indeed I am sure, never entered into any details of his former expenses. He told me he had spent 2,000*l.* at the election of 1847; and he was not altogether satisfied with having spent that sum; that he thought it had been lavishly expended. I did not understand him to say any of it had been in an improper manner, but that he thought it was lavishly expended, and he hoped to devise means at this coming election by which money would not be expended in that manner; and I always understood it was for that purpose, and the purpose of keeping a control over the expenditure, that the finance committee were appointed. Mr. Clay suggested the idea to me as soon as he began to talk about the expenses.

Viscount Goderich, M.P.

75,383. Was it then the original intention that the finance committee were to have the power, and the sole power, of issuing orders?—So I understood it.

75,384. Did it occur to you that it was perfectly impracticable to have a separate committee managing the election, if they were to send to a second committee to know if they might employ an additional messenger or not?—The difficulty of that did not occur to me. I am perfectly sure that Mr. Clay intended that that finance committee should have the control of all the money that was expended.

75,385. Down to the employment of the messengers and doorkeepers throughout the seventeen or eighteen different districts in the town?—I imagined that the employment of such persons would be a matter extremely simple to settle. You were to say so many committee rooms, and each committee room would require a doorkeeper, and so many messengers, and so many clerks; and the finance committee would issue a general order for the employment of so many persons for each of those committee rooms; and if they chose to take on any additional persons that they might apply to the finance committee.

75,386. You feel confident that Mr. Clay did not mention the details of his election of 1847?—Certainly.

75,387. Did he of the election of 1841?—No; I do not think he told me what he spent at the election of 1841. I may be wrong there. He very likely did tell me that.

75,388. You do not remember?—He certainly entered into no details about it.

75,389. It has transpired here that it cost Mr. Clay 2,400*l.* in 1841. Did he mention that?—My impression, I confess, up to this moment,—if you had asked me what I thought he told me, I should have said 1,500*l.*, which was the amount just on my tongue when you mentioned it, and I have no doubt if he mentioned it he told me that sum, but I have no distinct recollection.

75,390. I do not think Mr. Clay said it cost him 2,400*l.*, but that the expenses of that election upon his side were 2,400*l.* by subscription?—I never heard anything about subscriptions at the Hull election at all.

75,391. Were you at all aware, at the time he mentioned the expenses of the contest of 1847 to be a sum of 1,800*l.*, that the contest only lasted three or four days?—I was not aware of that, in connexion with the expenses, in any way whatever. I do not think I was aware of it until later; I may have been.

75,392. You entered into no detail at all as to how the money was to be expended?—No, none.

75,393. Did it not occur to you, if the contest was to be a serious one, that there would be likely to be more than 3,000*l.* spent?—It did not strike me that there would be more than that sum. I always anticipated that there would be less than that sum expended.

75,394. Your lordship has told us all that took place upon that occasion?—Yes.

75,395. Did anything material occur before the day that you came down?—It was either the day before or the day we came down to Hull.

75,396. The agreement is dated the 11th, on Friday, and you came down it is stated on the Monday. I think that agrees with your memory?—It does not agree with my recollection. I thought it was the Saturday or Sunday that the agreement was signed; but I have no doubt it was the Friday.

75,397. We have the date of it. It is dated on the 11th, which was on the Friday, and your lordship believes it bears date on the correct day?—Yes, I believe so. My impression is that Mr. Clay took a sheet of paper off my portfolio, and wrote the agreement there.

75,398. Mr. Burges has said that he saw it before it was signed. There must have been some previous paper?—Yes. I told you that there was a previous paper that had been negotiated between Mr. Burges and Mr. Clay. It is possible he may have seen one of the copies. There were two copies of the agreement signed at my house; one by Mr. Clay and one by myself.

75,399. Was Mr. Clay, when the ultimate agreement was made at your house, in possession of the paper that previously had formed the subject of discussion with Mr. Burges?—I should think that he was.

75,400. Probably that has been destroyed; the previous one?—I really do not know; it may be one of the agreements.

75,401. You do not know what has become of that paper?—No, I do not.

75,402. It is said that the first ageeement mentioned the difference of two-thirds and one third?—Then that agreement I never saw. The two thirds and one third I never saw; at least that is my impression. I may be wrong; but that is my impression.

75,403. Then I believe it was arranged that you should come down together?—Yes.

75,404. And you did come down together?—We did.

75,405. Before I take you into Hull, I wish to draw your lordship's attention to the names of some persons who have been often mentioned, Hart, Moat, Bezer, and Goddard. I first begin with Hart. He came down to Hull at your instance?—Yes.

75,406. Be so good as to state the origin of his coming down?—Long previous to the coalition between Mr. Clay and myself, and very shortly after the issuing of my address, at the time when I thought that a coalition between Mr. Clay and myself was not very likely to take place, and when I was anxious to ascertain what chance I had, if any, of valuable independent support,—of course I do not mean support hostile to Mr. Clay, but support which I could count upon as my own if I was a second Liberal candidate,—it struck me that Mr. Burges, being only in communication with what might be called the leaders of the party who had brought me forward in this town, might have very little opportunity of ascertaining at all what was the general feeling of the town, whether there was any independent desire that I should stand and get in, or whether there was not; and it was in consequence of that that I originally proposed to Hart that he should come down here for a short time, to give me information as to the feeling of the town among the electors generally.

Viscount Goderich, M.P.

6th August 1853.

75,407. What had you known of Hart before; what was he?—He was the secretary of a joint stock company of which I was a trustee.

75,408. Did you understand that he had any knowledge of Hull?—None whatever. I merely sent him down. I thought he was a clever intelligent person, who might be likely to get this information well; and he came down as the result of that request. The report he brought back to me was I cannot say very favourable as to my chance independently of Mr. Clay. He did not seem to think that there was any strong feeling,—which was natural enough—in my favour; that I was a perfectly unknown person down here. The only thing that he recommended was, that I should, as soon as I could, come down here, and make myself known by making an address or speech. I saw him again after that. I think he stated that he would go down again, and see in a little while how things were; and I believe he did go down, and that he again brought me very similar information; and that I then put him at once in communication with Mr. Burges. I had no more dealings with him concerning this election.

75,409. I presume your lordship arranged with him about his expenses?—I paid his expenses, of course.

75,410. Do you remember how much?—I gave him 5*l.*, I think, upon the first occasion; and I think all his other expenses were paid by Mr. Burges. That is my impression.

75,411. Did any letters pass between your lordship and him?—I think not; but that I am not quite sure of. It is possible he may have written me one of these opinions.

75,412. Nothing beyond that?—No, he did not.

75,413. Do you know whether he is a person who can write in cypher?—I never imagined that he could.

75,414. Some cypher letters have been produced?—I never heard of his being able to do so.

75,415. Did he mention to your lordship, before you came down, the name of a person called Moat here?—He did.

75,416. What did he say about that man?—He said that he had got acquainted with this man, and that this man was give in him information as to the opinion of the town, and as to my chance of success.

75,417. Did he describe what sort of a person he was?—I really forget. He described him as the son of a working man in the town, I believe.

75,418. One of the things that Moat did was to enter into communication here with one of the largest farmers of votes in the town. Was your lordship cognizant of that?—Certainly not.

75,419. Your lordship of course has heard of William Henry Nicholson?—I have heard his name.

75,420. Since, at all events?—And I heard his name at the time; not then, but I did in the course of the election. I never heard of him in connexion with that in any way whatever then.

75,421. Did your lordship hear of him as a person whom Hart would employ Moat to negotiate with?—No, certainly not.

75,422. I will put the question to you distinctly. Had Hart any authority from your lordship to negotiate for the purchase of a number of a number of votes from Nicholson?—Not the slightest in the world.

75,423. Did your lordship give him anything from which he could reasonably draw any such inference as that belief, that he was authorized to do it?—Most undoubtedly not.

75,424. Did you give him any authority to feign to do any such thing?—Certainly not.

75,425. Neither to purchase them for yourself, nor to ascertain whether there was such a marketable commodity?—I never spoke to him upon the subject of purchasing votes, or votes being purchaseable.

75,426. Or anything from which he could, as a reasonable man, assume that your lordship would sanction it?—Nothing from which anybody could, by any such possibility, draw any such conclusion.

75,427. Did you ever, during the progress of the election, learn that Moat had been in communication with Nicholson upon the subject at all, one way or the other, for the purchasing of votes?—Certainly not.

75,428. Or with anybody else, for the purchase of votes?—Certainly not.

75,429. You learnt nothing from Hart, or Moat, or anybody else, that Moat had resorted to such an attempt as that?—Certainly not.

75,430. Had you any further communication with Hart beyond what your lordship has stated, until the time that you came down?—After the time I put Hart in communication with Mr. Burges, I had no further communication with him whatever.

75,431. Had your lordship ever, throughout the whole of the contest?—I met him once in the committee room on the day of election, but I did not speak to him, or have any communication with him. Or, somewhere on the day of the election, I recollect seeing him, but I cannot say where.

75,432–33. In any way was your lordship cognizant of the fact that he was in the town?—I understood that Mr. Burges was employing him to watch the proceedings of the blues.

75,434. Was not that in consequence of your lordship's suspicions being roused that improper practices might be had recourse to?—No; it had nothing whatever to do with any suspicion of that kind.

76,435. It was merely with a view to ascertain the temper of the town?—It was merely with a view to ascertain the temper of the town, and particularly upon this point: I had obtained, from some little efforts that I had made in London, a certain popularity with the working classes in London, and I wished to know whether that popularity would be at all available in Hull, as a source of independent support; and that was the only ground upon which I sent Hart down here, or had any communication with him.

75,436. Did you learn what Moat was?—Not what his employment was. I do not know now.

75,437. Did your lordship ever hear from Hart of the proceedings that were carried on at the Manor House Tavern by two persons of the name of Stone and Craig?—Never.

75,438. Did you hear of their proceedings from Hart or otherwise?—I heard of those two persons in the election, and I had seen them. I knew them.

75,439. Previous to coming down?—No, never.

75,440. What did your lordship hear of them during the time of the contest?—My recollection, as far as it serves me, is, that I had seen Craig; that I was with Mr. Clay, and that I saw him for the first time, I think, as we were going into the Cross Keys.

75,441. Did you understand that he was the recognized head of a committee?—I was going to state to you that I saw him then, and he asked to have a committee room; and Mr. Clay told me,—that is particularly my impression,—"That is a very honest man; that is one of the best men we have." I may be wrong about that; but that is my impression. I always had the impression that he was a very honest man, I admit; and I believe that he had a committee room.

75,442. His colleague has been here, and told us already. Did your lordship hear of his doings on?—No. I looked upon him as a sort of deputy to Mr. Craig. I saw them together, and I knew nothing more about them; and I never heard of Craig till I saw him then and there.

75,443. You are under the impression that his application to have a committee room was granted?—Yes.

75,444. Did your lordship hear how he went on when he got it?—Not the least in the world. I am under the impression that his application was granted.

75,445. Was your lordship ever at the Manor House Tavern while the proceedings were being carried on?—I have not an idea where the Manor House Tavern is. I think I once spoke from the window.

75,446. Were you ever in the committee room, to see the proceedings?—No, I never was.

75,447. It is in evidence that your lordship did speak from the window of the Manor House Tavern?—Yes, I did.

75,448. That would scarcely answer the question, whether your lordship knew the mode in which they were carrying on the business there?—No, I did not.

75,449. And whether you were aware that they were incurring very large expenses?—No; I was perfectly ignorant of that.

75,450. Do you remember what answer was given, when the question was put, and Mr. Clay said he was an honest man, and when he asked for the committee,—at the time; was there any answer given?—I really cannot recollect.

75,451. Did your lordship express an opinion, one way or the other, that the application should be granted?—Not that I have any recollection of.

75,452. Do you remember whether Mr. Clay did?—My impression is that Mr. Clay said the application should be looked to; and I think he said to me that it should be granted; that is my impression.

75,453. We will pass on to another man of the name of Bezer, who has been mentioned as having been one of your lordship's employés. What did you know of him previous to the election?—I knew of him previous to the election, that he was a bookseller in a small shop in Fleet Street.

75,454. You had some acquaintance with him?—Yes. I will go through the whole.

75,455. You had some acquaintance with him in his business as a bookseller?—Yes.

75,456. Did he come down with your lordship's sanction; and if so, for what purpose?

Viscount Goderich, M.P.

6th August 1853.

—Distinctly not with my sanction, nor with the sanction of any person connected with me.

75,457. How soon did you learn that he had come to Hull? You found him here, probably, when you came down?—By no means.

75,458. When your lordship was here you found he had arrived, somehow or another?—I cannot recollect the date exactly; but some time after I arrived here, on returning home from canvassing one evening, which was always late, I was told by my servant that he had called in the morning, and that he was in Hull; at which I was extremely surprised, never having wished him to come here in any shape or way whatever; and my servant told me he would call again the next morning.

75,459. Your lordship paid him, for some purpose or another, the sum of 50*l.*—I did.

75,460. Will you be good enough to explain how your lordship came to give him that sum, and the date of it?—I am afraid that the exact date is more difficult. He came to me the next morning after this, when I was first told that he had arrived, and he told me that in the course of the day, which I understood him was the first day he had been here, that he had gone to what was called the working man's committee, and they had asked him to make a speech for them, I believe the following night; but I cannot recollect exactly that.

75,461. We hear that he is a person who speaks very well?—He does; that was my first introduction to him; that was the first reason that I took any notice of him, in consequence of hearing him speak, as it struck me that for a person of his education and position he did so remarkably well. I said of course there he was. I never wished him to come. I was very sorry he was there. I regretted it much, because I thought he might make a more violent speech than I should be inclined to agree to.

75,462. Your lordship knew that he was a man of what we call extreme opinions?—Yes; and that is the reason why I regretted his appearance here, otherwise I should not have cared whether he came or not. He then made a speech upon some occasion, I forget what, on which occasion, I think, Alderman Palmer was in the chair; and I heard from Mr. Palmer, and from various gentlemen upon whom I could rely, that the speech was an extremely good one, and that it was calculated to have, and that they thought that it had had a very good effect. I should tell you, from my previous acquaintance with him, believing that he was a man considerably improved in character, and from the circumstances of my original introduction to him, I had taken some interest in the success of his setting up in his shop, which had been partly done through the interest of some friends of mine; and that I had, previous to the date of his coming down here, not merely purchased books of him, and employed him to get books for me when he had not the books in his shop, but I had assisted him with some small sums of money to enable him to carry on his business, a portion of which sums of money he had repaid me.

75,463. He made a speech? How long was that before the election?—That you can find out better than I can.

75,464. It is stated at about a week?—I dare say it was a week.

75,465. How soon after that was it that he wanted money?—My impression is that he came to me the day after the speech, and he stated that he was going back to London immediately; and I understood him to say that he had been asked to come down the day before the election, and make another speech. I then said to him, "I am much obliged to you for what you have done; I understand it has been of use, and I cannot allow you to go back to London without paying you your expenses." Of course I intended to give him more than would cover his expenses. He then said he did not want his expenses paid, but his business was in a bad condition; and he then asked me to lend him a sum of money, which sum of money I lent him.

75,466. That was 50*l.*?—It was 50*l.*

75,467. Was there any understanding, either direct or indirect, that any portion of that money should be expended in any purpose connected with the election?—There was the most distinct understanding that it was not; that is to say, I did not say in so many words, "You are not to employ it for the election;" but I understood I gave it him for a definite and special purpose connected with his own private affairs. Perhaps you will allow me to state this: there was a report that I gave him two 50*l.* cheques.

75,468. Yes; one of which was afterwards cancelled?—Yes; I wish to state that was the case. I drew him a cheque without the name of the banker upon a blank piece of paper, which he brought me back, and I tore it up, and drew him another cheque in my own banker's book.

75,469. You drew it upon your banker's in London?—Yes, upon my banker's in London.

75,470. Had your lordship any account with a banker here?—None.

75,471. Was there any understanding that he was not to have that cashed in Hull?—There was this understanding: I said, "You are going to town to day, and you will get that cashed at my banker's opposite to your house."

75,472. Was it said that he was not to have it cashed in Hull?—I said, "You had better do it that way, and not have it cashed here, because it may lead to some misunderstanding concerning the election."

75,473. Had your lordship any further connexion with that man Bezer, so far as the election was concerned, to which we limit our inquiry?—I saw him after that some days,—

Viscount Goderich, M.P.

6th August 1853.

The occasion on which he brought me back the wrong cheque that could not be cashed anywhere,—the occasion upon which he brought me back that cheque, was some days after this had occurred, and I said to him then, "What, are you not gone? I thought you were gone." He said no, he had not gone; that he had been asked to remain here to watch the proceedings of the blue party at some tavern or other, which I do not recollect, and he then pulled the cheque out of his pocket and said, "This is of no use to me." He unfolded it, and I saw it was not, and I gave him another.

75,474. Is that the whole that took place between you?—That is the whole. I never said a single word concerning the election. He told me he thought the thing was going on well; but I never employed him in any way whatever myself concerning the election, and I was very anxious to get rid of him.

75,475. You have mentioned the name of Mr. Alderman Palmer. You were staying at his house, I believe?—I was.

75,476. Does your lordship know anything of any voters supposed to have been bottled-up in Mr. Palmer's house?—As far as I know I can swear that there were no voters bottled-up there.

75,477. You can swear that there were none to your knowledge?—Most unquestionably.

75,478. Can your lordship go further, and say that could not have happened without your knowledge?—I should say that it was utterly impossible.

75,479. Upon the night before the election, were there many people at Mr. Palmer's house?—There was not to my knowledge a living soul beyond my own family the night before the election.

75,480. Were there people going in and out?—Certainly not. I was out the night before the election canvassing, until as late as eleven o'clock; I came home at eleven o'clock and went immediately to bed. There was not the sign of any person whatever about the house when I came in. There was not the slightest noise in the house, and I was in the house from eleven o'clock that night until eight the following morning.

75,481. During the progress of your lordship's canvass had you persons who asked you for employment?—Yes; persons asked to be employed as messengers,—"runners" was the expression they used.

75,482. Did your lordship find that the word "runner" was a word of familiar use?—Certainly, undoubtedly.

75,483. Had many persons applied to your lordship to be employed as such?—Yes.

75,484. How did you deal with those applications?—I told them the selection of the persons who were to be employed was a matter with which I had nothing to do, and I referred them, I believe, to the central committee room.

75,485. These were voters of course?—Yes.

75,486. In answer to your canvass they would retort upon you that they wanted employment?—No; I do not think that.

75,487. How then?—They said they wanted employment, but I do not think they gave me that at all as an answer to my question "Will you vote for me?"

75,488. Was that at the same time?—Yes; at the same time.

75,489. Did your lordship not find occasionally that you met with that answer?—When I met with that answer, I have always said, "That is a question with which I have nothing to do, and I cannot entertain it."

75,490. Did your lordship find that there was a reluctance with that class of people to make any promise?—Undoubtedly.

75,491. They seemed to canvass you as much as you canvassed them?—I do not quite understand your question.

75,492. They canvassed you for employment as much as you canvassed them for their votes?—I should not say that.

75,493. To some extent?—There was a considerable number of applications for employment among a certain class of voters.

75,494. Did you find when you were in company with Mr. Clay that there were persons also applying to him for back money?—Yes.

75,495. That is to say for money which they stated was due to them for the last election for services rendered?—I always understood the application to be as of course.

75,496. Many of those?—I should not say that those applications were very numerous, that is not to my recollection.

75,497. How do you recollect that subject being dealt with?—I recollect the answer that Mr. Clay gave was, "You must speak to Mr. Carrick." Of course, if any person applied to me, which one or two did, that they were not paid for the previous election, I always, of course, said, "That is no affair of mine. I have nothing to do with that." And you are probably aware that any money that was paid to those men in that way, was paid perfectly distinct.

75,498. A separate account was kept distinct?—Entirely distinct.

75,499. All money relating to the previous election was kept separate?—Yes.

75,500. Do you know whether any of the persons who asked for employment as runners were subsequently employed?—I cannot tell.

75,501. How soon did your lordship become aware that people were employed upon your behalf who otherwise would have contented themselves by abstaining from voting altogether. Do I make myself understood?—Yes; I quite understand the question. I really cannot give you any positive answer as to the period at which the impression came upon my mind, that a person who if he voted, was willing and prepared to vote on the orange side, that he might occasionally be, if I may use the expression, brought up to the poll by having one of these appointments, because that is the utmost of the impression that I ever had upon the matter.

Viscount Goderich, M.P.

6th August 1853.

75,502. You cannot give me the exact time that that came to your mind?—I cannot give you the exact time. I am bound to say that in course of my canvass I found there was a great desire on the part of a great class of the electors to make money out of the election, and I very soon found I was in very great danger in consequence of that feeling. I was in great danger. I mean that money would be given improperly to those persons.

75,503. And employment also?—I look upon the objection to the employment to be the money. When I use the word "money," I mean that some corrupt and improper practice would be resorted to.

75,504. Colourable?—Precisely.

75,505. How did your lordship deal with that?—Of course, I dealt with it, as far as the people were concerned, by, in one case, referring them to the central committee, and by,—in the other case, if they talked about money or employment as a bargain for a vote,—by telling them I could not entertain that idea, but I had distinctly impressed upon Mr. Burges, in whose hands I left the whole management of the matter from the beginning to the end, that I would not be party to any bribery, colourable or otherwise. or any treating.

75,506. Still the particular form, at all events the doubtful practice, having occurred to your mind, what I wish to know is whether your lordship gave any special directions applicable to that class of people?—I do not think that I gave any special directions beyond the general direction which I had given, and I repeated that general direction more than once to Mr. Gresham, who had been the person selected by the central committee to sit upon the finance committee, Mr. Carrick being specially Mr. Clay's friend. I repeated those directions to Mr. Gresham as well as to Mr. Burges.

75,507. Was your lordship under the impression at that time that Mr. Gresham really was exercising any control over the expenditure?—I was under that impression up to the end of the election, that Mr. Gresham and Mr. Carrick really were doing so.

75,508. That there was some specific control being exercised over the expenditure?—I was under that impression, undoubtedly.

75,509. Your lordship observed, during the course of the canvass, that the expenses going on were somewhat lavish; did it not strike you in passing through the streets that a very large number of orange flags were being exhibited?—Yes; it struck me that the expenses were in those respects lavish.

75,510. In what respects do you allude to?—I meant in the matter of cards, flags, printing, and things of that kind.

75,511. Did it not call to your attention, that either the finance committee were doing nothing at all, or that they were very greatly mistaking their duty?—I thought that they were lavishing the money of the candidates upon those kind of matters, but I took no objection to that course.

75,512. We have heard, I do not know whether your lordship recollects it, that upon one occasion the subject of expense being brought to your attention, that you made use of the expression that it would not do to be niggardly, or something to that effect?—As far as my recollection serves me, I never remember making use of such an expression; my object was to give a contrary impression to all the persons who were engaged in managing the election.

75,513. Still your impression was that your instructions were not being carried out?—Yes.

75,514 Did it not excite your lordship's suspicion that your directions being glaringly contravened in one respect, they would not be very particularly observed in others?—I confess I thought that there was a very great difference between spending my money in cards, flags, printing, and those sort of things, and spending it in improper practices.

75,515. Improper practices is quite a question of opinion in Hull?—I never expected that money expended in printing would be considered as an improper practice.

75,516. "Improper practice" is a term now of very doubtful import; therefore, did it not occur to your mind, when you found how lavishly they were acting, contrary to your instructions, that they might be not very rigid in their construction of your lordship's directions?—No; it did not. The difference appeared to me very marked between the two cases.

75,517. Did it not occur to your lordship's mind that if they misunderstood their duty in one respect that they might not be very particular in another?—I confess I thought the difference between the two cases was so great, that in the one case Mr. Burges would not interfere, and in the other he would.

75,518. Mr. Burges would not be cognizant of what was going on in King Street?—I beg your pardon; I believed he had the general superintendence over the whole matter.

75,519. Would it not occur to your lordship's mind, that having employed an excesssive number of yards of calico, they might also employ an excessive number of runners?—It did not occur to my mind that the one followed from the other, or that there was any connexion between the one and the other.

75,520. No; but that a person who does one would be likely to do the other?—I thought the distinction was so great; but it did not appear so.

75,521. Did it not, during the election, appear that the number of persons employed was excessive?—Not to my mind.

75,522. Did it not strike you?—I did not know that any persons were employed during the election excepting those persons whom I saw about the committee rooms, and who I understood were employed for the necessary work at the committee rooms, and I cannot say that I saw anything that appeared to me to be like an excessive number of persons so employed about the committee rooms.

75,523. Was your lordship's attention drawn to the circumstance—I come now to use the expression well known—of persons being set down?—My attention was never drawn to that circumstance.

75,524. Did your lordship at any time become acquainted with the proceedings in Saville Street?—Not until I went into the committee room in the House of Commons. I had heard it previous to that but a very short time before.

75,525. I will not trouble your lordship with that time.—During the election I never heard of that committee room in Saville Street or anything of the proceedings that went on there.

75,526. Or Chapel Lane?—No.

75,527. Had your lordship heard of the committee room called X Y Z?—Never.

75,528. Or P Q?—Never; until I heard it in the committee room in the House of Commons.

75,529. Did you hear the name of Wilde mentioned?—I heard the name of Wilde mentioned, and I knew Wilde; but I never was aware that Mr. Wilde was employed at all at the election.

75,530. Did you learn from Mr. Clay or from any other source, that he had been for many years confidentially employed by or on behalf of the orange party?—In the course of the election I did hear that. I heard from Mr. Clay that he had been employed occasionally by him; not in any kind of bribery, or any kind of improper practice.

75,531. It depends upon what Mr. Clay's opinion is. Did you hear that he was a person who had been employed as far back as 1839 in taking up freedoms?—I think, if you will allow me to finish the sentence, I can make it clear to you. I meant this, that Mr. Clay had been in communication with Mr. Wilde from time to time between the elections while he was member for Hull; what I mean is, I heard that Mr. Clay had various communications with him at that time, and I have heard, not from Mr. Clay, but from other sources, that Mr. Wilde had at previous elections been employed and done more or less of that, but not in the systematic manner in which it now appears; for I never had heard of that before, but that he had been more or less eagaged in improper practices.

75,532. You heard that he had been upon former occasions?—I did.

75,533. Then what steps did your lordship take to prevent him resorting to them again?—I took no steps whatever. Mr. Burges told me, and I said, "We must be very careful of that sort of thing." I was perfectly unaware that Mr. Wilde was employed, and I believe he was not employed at that election.

75,534. I am not using the word "employed" in the nature of a paid agent, but in the sense of a member of a committee. Did not your lordship know that he was busying himself with a tacit approbation at all events?—I was aware that he was. I do not think I knew that he was a member of any committee.

75,535. I put it in as remote a way as I can; that he was busying himself about the election with the tacit consent of the members of the committee?—I certainly believed that Mr. Wilde was busying himself about the election in the same manner as an independent elector who was anxious for the success of the candidates.

75,536. With the general knowledge and sanction of the committee?—Certainly; but not more. I never understood that he had more of the general knowledge and sanction of the committee than any other person who might be zealous in their own particular quarter or in their own particular ward. I can only tell you that which I knew at the time.

75,537. Did you meet him occasionally during the progress of the canvass?—I did.

75,538. Did you not collect that he was rather more active than most men?—I thought he was a zealous partizan; but my impression is that I only met him chiefly in the ward to which he belonged, and I saw him at the central committee room where I saw almost everybody.

75,539. As the election drew near, did you not find that he was a person looked upon in rather a confidential light?—No; I did not observe any change in the manner in which he was treated or looked upon as the election proceeded.

75,540. But still, knowing he had been engaged in practices which the law does not permit, what I want to know is whether you took any steps to caution either the members of the committee or Mr. Clay against him?—No; I certainly took no pains to caution Mr. Clay against him.

75,541. Or your own committee?—No.

75,542. You merely made the general declaration to Mr. Burges?—That is all.

75,543. Did you mention his name to Mr. Burges?—I really do not recollect that I did. I have spoken of Mr. Wilde to Mr. Burges.

Viscount Goderich, M.P.

6th August 1853.

75,544. Did you mention him as a person whose proceedings it was Mr. Burges' duty to guard against?—I do not recollect that I did.

75,545. I mentioned the room X Y Z. I will put it a little wider. Did your lordship hear that there was a common room in Saville Street, or some other part of the town, which Mr. Wilde attended?—I never heard anything of the sort.

75,546. Did you hear that there was such a room engaged for confidential purposes, without knowing what the nature of those purposes were?—Never.

75,547. Either in Saville Street or elsewhere?—Either in Saville Street or elsewhere.

75,548. Was your lordship ever in the committee room in King Street?—Yes; on one occasion. I think I may have been more, but I think only once.

75,549. Of course I am talking of previous to the election. Did you learn any of the proceedings that were going on in King Street?—Not the least.

75,550. Did you hear what business was being transacted there?—Not the least. I think there was nobody there but Mr. Carrick and Mr. Atkinson, and nothing was going on. I was only there for an instant.

75,551. Did persons come in and ask for money?—Not while I was there.

75,552. Did your lordship at any time hear the extent to which money was paid for back claims at King Street?—My impression is I was told 50*l.* or 60*l.* was paid. Mr. Burges communicated the fact to me that such money was going to be paid almost as soon as it was talked of, and he told me he considered the payment of it improper. I said, "You must take care I am not in any way connected with it; it does not concern me, and I am sure Mr. Clay does not wish me to be connected it; if you think it is improper you must take care that we have no possible connexion with it."

75,553. Did you make any complaint to Mr. Clay of the danger that your seat would be involved as well as his?—I was told as long as I kept myself perfectly clear of the matter my seat would not be involved either on that day or the day afterwards. I remember Mr. Clay mentioning to me and saying he did not intend that I should have anything to do with that payment, and it should be kept quite distinct from me, and I believe I said, "I am not certain, do you think it is a right payment to make? do you think it is a payment you may be taken in about, and you may not in fact be paying for this election?" But I will not be quite sure about it.

75,554. What did he say?—I think he said the claims were to be investigated, and he believed that no money would be paid except for services rendered at the last election.

75,555. Did it not occur to your lordship, that supposing these claims had been actually bonâ fide debts, that the time selected was such as to give them the character of an improper payment?—Undoubtedly.

75,556. Did Mr. Burges ever mention to you his suspicion that the proceedings were not quite as correct as they ought to be?—No.

75,557. Did you learn, in the progress of your canvass of any other matters of a suspicious nature, besides what you have mentioned at King Street, and of the danger respecting runners?—None.

75,558. Your lordship met Walker I believe once?—I am told that I did; that is, I heard Walker swear that I did in the committee room of the House of Commons; it is very probable that I did, but I have no recollection of his face, or having seen him at all before I saw him there.

75,559. Did your lordship hear that he was a person also who had been somewhat notorious in being concerned in improper practices?—Certainly not. I never heard of his name until I heard of him just before the petition was tried.

75,560. Your lordship was occasionally, I suppose, in the central committee room?—I was.

75,561. Did your lordship hear there that the subject had been matter of discussion as to the number of runners that should be employed?—No.

75,562. Did you ever hear that complaints had been made by your party, the orange party, of the excessive employment of runners by the blues?—It is possible that I may, but I do not recollect it.

75,563. Do you think that that would have escaped your recollection, supposing complaints of a breach of faith had been made by your party?—I think if complaints of breach of faith had been made that I should have heard of it.

75,564. Here is an entry or two upon the subject in the minute book; do you think that those entries were brought to your lordship's attention?—I never saw the minute book.

75,565. It is in consequence of that that I put the question, whether your lordship remembers hearing that some of your party made complaints?—I do not recollect it.

75,566. Do you remember hearing complaints were also made by the blues?—I do not recollect it.

75,567. Counter complaints?—No, I do not recollect it.

75,568. That both parties were complaining of one another of an excessive number of messengers being employed?—I do not recollect those complaints.

75,569. Either one way or the other?—Neither one way nor the other. I recollect a complaint being made about the blue band, because it was agreed that no music was to be employed at the election.

75,570. Did your lordship hear at all that complaints were made?—Perhaps I ought to be allowed to state that that blue band was put down at once; it would be but fair to the other side that I should state that.

75,571. Did you hear during the progress of the contest that complaints were rife among the orange party that the proceedings of the blues were not quite correct?—Yes.

75,572. You did hear that?—I did.

75,573. Did you not also hear it suggested that recriminatory efforts would be made use of?—Certainly not 75,574. Did you never hear that suggested as a mode of meeting the difficulty that had occurred?—Certainly not.

75,575. How did your lordship hear the subject of the improper proceedings was to be met and overcome?—By their being matched with reference to ulterior proceedings; I never heard of their being contended against at the time except by increased diligence in the canvass.

75,576. Did your lordship ever hear,—I put it in a general way,—of the system being had recourse to of engaging a larger number of rooms than were required for the purposes of the election?—I never heard of that until I heard it in Mr. Serjeant Wrangham's opening speech in the House of Commons as having been done.

75,577. Either upon this or the former occasion?—Either upon this or the former occasion.

75,578. Did Mr. Clay never mention to you a fact which is undoubted, that he himself had paid for some seventy or eighty, if not ninety rooms engaged for the mere purpose of influencing the votes of the owners of them?—Certainly not.

75,579. Did you hear from any other source that that was a practice that had been had recourse to by the orange party upon the former occasion?—No, certainly not; I never heard any word said about it.

75,580. Not either then or at any other time?—No.

75,581. I mentioned the name of Wilde more than once; did you hear it mentioned who was to take care and bring the Barton and other voters residing at a distance?—No, I did not.

75,582. Did you hear none of the arrangements contemplated for bringing up the distant voters?—No, I did not.

75,583. Did your lordship hear whether, in point of fact, any arrangements were made? I imagined that those voters who came from a distance, not from Barton, but from a considerable distance, would have their legitimate expenses paid.

75,584. Did you ever hear, during the contest, that they had had a somewhat liberal allowance always for their expenses?—Never.

75,585. Did you hear that the persons in the surrounding villages usually voted all one way?—Yes; I understood that the Hedon voters voted mostly for the blues.

75,586. And the Barton for the orange?—No, I did not understand that; it may have been so; I may have heard that that was the practice.

75,587. Did you hear how it was that the Hedon voters voted all one way?—The reason given to me was, that Hedon had been disfranchised by the Reform Bill.

75,588. Did your lordship hear that they had usually, in a very unreserved way, sold themselves in a lot?—No, I did not hear that.

75,589. You might have heard it said of them?—I quite understand that, but I do not recollect having heard it said of them.

75,590. It has been said that the Hedon voters sell themselves one way and the Barton voters the other?—Certainly not. I never heard anything specially connected with the Barton voters until after the election. I was told that they received their legitimate expenses.

75,591. Did you hear during the course of the canvass, that there were in the town persons who banded themselves together for the purpose of seeing how much they could get?—Yes.

75,592. Did your lordship hear of Wharam's party, Jefferson's party, and Nicholson's party?—The only name that suggests itself to me is Nicholson.

75,593. What did you hear of him?—I heard that they had banded themselves together very greatly; certain lots of people at the election, I think, of 1847, and I heard towards the end of this last election, or late towards the end of the canvass, I should say, that they were doing the same thing again, and I believe I stated to Mr. Burges, "Of course we do not deal in any way, we have nothing upon earth to do with such lots of voters."

75,594. I must direct your lordship's attention to specific things. A gentleman, an undoubted agent of the orange party, did wait upon Nicholson's party. I will put the question in a most clear and explicit manner, whether your lordship had any knowledge of that person or of any agent, a member of the committee or other person waiting upon Nicholson's party?—None whatever.

75,595. I will mention the name; Mr. Prissick I mean?—I never heard of Mr. Prissick waiting upon them in my life; I was told this which may be the story to which you allude; I was told that they had found out at the election of 1847; this is, of course, all hear say, that Nicholson had obtained a certain sum per head for the voters, and that he had paid over to the voters a lesser sum per head, and I was informed that information of that fact had got to that lot of voters, and in consequence of that information they had been all broken up and dispersed.

Viscount Goderich, M.P.

6th August 1853

75,596. Did not your lordship also hear that he had got a new lot?—Certainly not.

75,597. Did you not hear that he had acquired a new lot, and that an agent, one of the members of your committee, Mr. Prissick, an active partisan of yours, paid them a visit with a view to treat?—Certainly not; I never heard it.

75,598. Did you authorize anybody to treat with them?—Certainly not. I distinctly stated we could have nothing to do with them; I most distinctly stated that.

75,599. Or Jefferson's party?—I do not recollect the names of any other lots except Nicholson's.

75,600. Although you may not have heard them, did you collect in the course of your canvass, that there were other persons very much inclined to do the same thing?—No, I do not recollect that in the course of my canvass; I was told that such was the case, but it was from no circumstance that came across my own observation.

Mr. T. B. Prissick, jun.

Mr. THOMAS BUTTERWORTH PRISSICK, jun., recalled, and examined.

75,601. Have you anything to explain?—I had an interview, but I never had any idea of treating with those men at all, as far as regards the purchasing of the votes. I never had authority to do so, and I never intended to do so. My object was to see what they were doing in the other party.

75,602. But supposing that they had stated to you a low figure, say 10*s.* apiece, would you not have felt it, as a matter of prudence, worth while to close with them?—Certainly not; decidedly not; I had no authority to do so, and that was not the object of my visit.

75,603. You mean distinctly to give us to understand that under no circumstances whatever, supposing that you had found that the whole success of the election might depend upon them, that you would not have rather paid 10*s.* apiece or 5*s.* apiece for them than have lost the election, and run the risk of its being adopted afterwards?—I never had authority to do so.

75,604. But you might have done so and run the risk?—I should certainly never have done that; decidedly.

75,605. Not for the sake of saving the election?—I should have considered it too great a responsibility to take upon my own shoulders.

Viscount Goderich, M.P.

Viscount GODERICH recalled, and examination resumed.

75,606. Before you came to Hull you had an opportunity of seeing several persons connected with the borough, Mr. Collins: your own solicitor, who had been twice down; Mr. Alderman Gresham; Hart, who had been twice in the borough, according to your account, before you came down; and others during the course of March, April, and May. Did you hear from any of them, or was the impression left on your mind from seeing them, that there ever had been in Hull such a thing as a pure election?—An election strictly pure on both sides?

75,607. I mean a pure election in Hull; whether you gathered that from the persons to whom I have alluded?—I do not think I understood that there had been an election pure upon both sides in Hull since the election of 1832.

75,608. Was not the impression conveyed to your mind from the information from those quarters rather that impurity,—I mean improper payments had extensively prevailed at many elections?—I understood bribery had prevailed at many elections.

75,609. Extensively?—Yes; but I am bound to say that the representations that were made to me were that the bribery was upon the other side.

75,610. I do not wish to draw any invidious distinctions between colours, but your impression was that the blues were very bad, and the orange were not quite so bad?—Most undoubtedly that was my impression; I never understood that practices of bribery had habitually prevailed on the orange side in Hull.

75,611. But sometimes even on the orange side?—I use the expression habitually, because of course I did not enter into the details of past elections, and I was not told much detail concerning past elections. I beg distinctly to say, when I say that about the blue side, I only say what I was told; I do not want to cast the slightest imputation.

75,612. Your statement then is, that the result of the communications that you had received, and the impression that they conveyed to your mind, was that there had not been an entirely pure election since 1832?—Yes.

75,613. Did the information you received at all extend to elections prior to that time?—No, I never asked about those elections. I think I have told you what Mr. Clay stated to me as to the practice of paying freemen previous to the Reform Bill.

75,614. Before you came to Hull you had by some means or another acquired information that improper expenditure at elections had prevailed?—Yes.

75,615. Considerably, at some times?—Yes.

75,616. Allow me to draw your attention to a part of Mr. Clay's evidence. He said,

Viscount Goderich, M.P.

6th August 1853.

speaking of his interview with you, "The substance of what I told him is this: that we never spent any money in Hull in open bribery; that the only way in which voters were influenced, as far as I knew, was by employing a certain number of the freemen as messengers, or flagmen, or musicians, or something of that kind, and paying them 5*s.* a day during the time they were employed." Do you recollect whether Mr. Clay conveyed the substance of that to your mind?—I do not think Mr. Clay did convey the substance of the whole of what you read to my mind. In the first place, I think I can swear Mr. Clay never said they were paid any particular sum.

75,617. Do you recollect whether he said no money was spent in Hull in open bribery?—As I said before, he said it was spent by the other side, in the election in 1841.

75,618. But whether he used the words, "It was not customary money should be spent in open bribery"?—On the orange side. I only state this in order that I may be perfectly accurate.

75,619. No money was spent in Hull in open bribery. "The only way in which voters were influenced, as far as he knew, was by employing a certain number of men as messengers, musicians, flagmen, or something of that kind, and paying them 5*s.* a day during the time they were employed?"—I have no recollection of his having connected the payment of messengers, flags, or musicians, as far as I recollect, with the practice previous to the Reform Bill. I have no recollection of his having connected the two together.

75,620. Do you know whether he contrasted the mode of employment before the Reform Bill with that which prevailed since?—That is what I say I do not recollect.

75,621. It is suggested I did not put that question quite so clearly as I might. When I speak of contrasting the mode of employment and payment before the Reform Bill with that since, it is in evidence before us that the employment, if any, before the Reform Bill, was of the slightest possible kind; that the payment was generally in the character of head money; four guineas for a plumper, and two for a split vote?—I perfectly understood the question.

75,622. Does what I now state bring anything more to your recollection?—No, it does not. I quite understand the question.

75,623. You have been asked about the agreement that was made with regard to the proportion of the expenses. Did it not occur to you to consider if the money far exceeded the amount subscribed, on whom that would fall?—I certainly did not expect the expenses to reach 3,000*l.*, but my interpretation of that agreement is, that under that agreement we should have divided all that excess between us.

75,624. Was there any other fund of any kind to which you had reason or a notion of looking in case that sum of 3,000*l.* should be exceeded?—Certainly not.

75,625. Was there any sum in any way subscribed or agreed to be raised, in case of needing a surplus, that you are aware of?—Not to the best of my knowledge and belief.

75,626. Mr. Burges stated to us, I think, the mode in which your lordship supplied the money you had to furnish?—Yes.

75,627. Principally in gold?—Yes; I believe he did.

75,628. Did you furnish him directly with that money;—I furnished him with a cheque.

75,629. Did he state to you, at any time, his intention to bring it down in specie?—I do not recollect that he did.

75,630. Were you aware, before he came down, he intended to do so?—No, I do not think I was. I was aware afterwards he had brought some of the money down in that way.

75,631. Did he state to you at any time, according to your memory, any reason why it was all brought in gold?—No; I have no recollection of that.

75,632. Did it not occur to you as something ponderous, to bring several bags containing 500 sovereigns down, as part of a gentleman's luggage?—I cannot say it struck me in any way. I perfectly see the impression that might be given to it now, but I cannot say that it ever entered into my head that it was for an improper purpose.

75,633. It is quite fair I should state the reason Mr. Burges gave. I think his only reason was, that the bankers of the town were adverse to his colour, and that was the reason for bringing the money as he did; but you are not aware that anything of the kind passed between you?—I do not recollect; it may possibly have done so, but I do not recollect it.

75,634. Mr. Burges stated to us that, in the course of his interviews with Mr. Galloway and others, he became acquainted with the fact that it was an understood thing in Hull that in case of a petition against the return there was an agreement that the employment of runners should not be made the ground of a petition against the return?—Yes.

75,635. Do you remember whether he communicated, at any time, that fact to your lordship?—I do not think he did.

75,636. Or anything in the nature of an understanding in Hull that the employment of runners should not be made the ground of a petition?—When I first spoke to Mr. Burges as to the legal question of employing as messengers persons who were electors, and when he told me that they would be struck off upon a scrutiny, I believe he said it would not signify, because there would be an equal number upon both sides. That was long previous to his having any connexion with Hull, and is no answer to your question; otherwise, he made no communication at all upon the subject.

Viscount Goderich, M.P.

6th August 1853.

75,637. The employment upon both sides would not be important unless the petitioners were asking for the seats; you are aware of that?—Of course. I was speaking in the event of a scrutiny. I was distinctly told that the employment, as I understood it, could not be made the ground—not that it would not, but that it could not be made the ground—of a petition for bribery.

75,638. Besides the money that Mr. Burges stated had been brought to Hull, making altogether the sum of 2,700*l.* upon your lordship's part, was there any money in any way brought into your house, or into Hull, with your knowledge, upon the night of the election?—Certainly not.

75,639. Tell me, if you please, how long in your memory Hart stayed the first time he came to Hull?—I am afraid I cannot tell you.

75,640. Should you think a week?—I should think some three or four days.

75,641. The first time?—Yes.

75,642. And upon the second visit; what should you state was the length of it?—I should say towards the same length of time.

75,643. The evidence has shown us that Hart was a man busy among the lower classes of voters?—Yes.

75,644. He was constantly in those places; he was among the lots of men and persons, who, I may say, the evidence has shown us were generally open to a money influence?—Yes.

75,645. I wish to ask your lordship whether, upon his return on either of those occasions, he did not communicate to you that he had found out part of the constituency of Hull was of that character that there were persons, to a large number, who were open to a money influence?—I think he did, but I am not perfectly certain.

75,646. You think that that communication would be made at the end of the first or second visit?—I should think the second, but I am not certain. I say so, because I think it is more probable that he would mention it.

75,647. He was greatly among them, and if he did not mention it he did not communicate all that he knew?—I think probably that he did mention it, but I could not swear that he did.

75,648. Will you be kind enough to state, as far as you remember, what his general instructions were?—I told him I wished him to go down to Hull, to ascertain and look about him among persons quite unconnected with the leading men of the party generally, in the town, and see whether he could find out whether I had any independent chance; and especially whether he could find out that that popularity to which I have alluded, —you know what I mean—would be any service to me here in an election or not.

75,649. I think, on the two first occasions, you had not mentioned it to Mr. Burges?—No, I think not.

75,650. Not until after his return?—I think it was after the second return?—it may have been after the first, but I think it was after the second.

75,651. Do I understand your lordship, that in the progress of the election you had information from various quarters, and thereby became acquainted with what I think you call the colourable mode of employment; had you become acquainted with that fact?—If you mean was I acquainted throughout the election that any employment was given upon my behalf, and that any money was paid as for employment on my behalf, which was not paid for services actually rendered, I say I was not aware of that fact.

75,652. I did not at all intend to put the question to that extent, but whether your lordship was aware of the existence of the fact that there had been colourable employment frequently given, and that it was to influence votes; not that your lordship had personally?—No; I became aware of that fact while I was down here.

75,653. I wish to ask you whether at any time, either at the central committee room or at your finance committee, you subsequently to acquiring that knowledge, gave any more special directions as to the non-employment of a particular number of runners at the committee rooms, or the non-payment of any such at the finance committee rooms?—I have no recollection that I did. I saw Mr. Gresham, I think, some few days previous to the election, and I then repeated to him what I told him before, that I could not sanction anything like bribery or treating.

75,654. You do not think, if I understand you, that after you had met these people in your canvass, and after you had heard of this quasi colourable mode of employment, you gave any special directions?—No; I do not think I did. I did not.

75,655. Did your lordship at all make any inquiry at the central committee room, or at any of the committee rooms, as to the number of runners at any time actually employed?—No, I did not.

75,656. Or colourably employed, if there were any?—No, I do not. I never meddled with the management of the election at the central committee room directly, by myself. I left the whole in the hands of Mr. Burges.

75,657. What was your object and intention in sending these occasional persons who applied for employment to the central committee room?—To get rid of them.

75,658. To get rid of their personal applications?—Yes.

75,659. We understand from Mr. Clay that the usual course was, after the canvass became very active, to proceed on a daily canvass, I think, in different quarters of the town?—I do not think Mr. Clay or I proceeded separately, except the last day.

75,660. Generally together?—Yes.

75,661. I wish to ask do you remember whether it was part of the arrangement that these disagreeable,—perhaps I may call them disagreeable applicants,—should be referred to the central committee room?—I think I referred them to the central committee room, because I thought they would be there safely and properly dealt with.

75,662. I ask whether your lordship remembers it was any part of the arrangement that they should be referred to that place, rather than to any other committee room?—I do not think it was. My reason was, because I had more confidence in the central committee than anywhere else.

75,663. Your lordship stated that you were acquainted with the man of the name of Moat?—Yes.

75,664. He stated to us in the course of his examination that he had occasion to have some communication with your lordship in writing. He stated he had written three letters to your lordship; two to Knocton, in Lincolnshire, and one to Whitehall?—You mean after the election?

75,665. I do not remember the exact time; I should have thought previous to the election?—I had never the slightest communication with him previous to the election. He did write to me some time after the election.

75,666. Do you recollect whether your lordship did, according to his statement, receive three letters from him?—I think so.

75,667. All subsequent to the election?—All subsequent to the election.

75,668. I believe Moat was a person with whom you had some communication, personally and verbally, while you were in Hull?—Yes.

75,669. Did you see him much at Alderman Palmer's house?—He called there once.

75,670. Did he accompany you in your canvass?—No, I think not. I think I may positively say no; but so many people accompanied me upon different occasions, that I do not wish to be too positive.

75,671. Do you recollect whether he, as he stated in his evidence, was a good deal in communication with a class of voters, freemen and others, who would be affected by a money influence; did he make any communication to your lordship with regard to that class of persons?—Certainly no communication in regard to them as to money. He was secretary of the Working Man's Committee, and he may have generally told me that the working classes in the town were favourable to me; but beyond some such general communication he made none.

75,672. My question is only directed to the fact of the communication; not suggesting the idea that he suggested the purchase, but merely that he made the communication?—That is my answer.

75,673. You think with regard to the fact, that he did?—Probably he did, as he was the secretary of the Working Man's Committee; meaning by a class of voters the poorer class of voters, not especially freemen.

75,674. Whom I describe?—Yes, in their capacity of working men.

75,675. Did he state them to be a numerous party, do you remember?—No; I do not recollect that. I consider that he chiefly dealt with non-electors himself.

75,676. In what way?—Merely in the usual way in which non-electors give an advantage at an election. The popularity with the non-electors is of course of advantage with those of their own class who may be electors.

75,677. I must state to you all we know regarding Moat. He stated that you had asked him what your chances were, and that he told you that those whom he had canvassed wanted paying, and then your lordship had said, "Well, if that is so, I will not pay a man"?—I have no doubt if he said that, that that was my answer.

75,678. Does it bring the fact of making any such statement to your lordship's mind?—No; it does not.

75,679. He stated he told you so upon a particular occasion, at Alderman Palmer's house?—Of course it would be in my favour if I said so, but I cannot say that I recollect it. I have no doubt if he said that to me, that I should have made that answer.

75,680. Your lordship has stated that you were aware, in point of fact, or had learnt from Mr. Burges, I think, that payments were being made on behalf of Mr. Clay for the back election?—Certainly,

75,681. Was that after you coalesced?—Oh dear, yes; after I had been down here some time.

75,682. Did it ever occur to you that those payments might affect your lordship's election?—Of course it occurred to me; but I told Mr. Burges to take all the necessary precautions to prevent that, and he told me that he had done so.

75,683. Did your lordship at all interfere at the finance committee, with regard to stopping those payments yourself?—I believe I told Mr. Gresham that I would be no party to them; but I certainly sent him a message to that effect by Mr. Burges.

75,684. To the finance committee?—Yes.

75,685. There is another name that was mentioned to you, a man of the name of Goddard; did he come at all to Hull with your knowledge?—Goddard came down to Hull upon the order of Mr. Burges, he being an ex-Bow-street officer, for the purpose of watching the proceedings of our opponents; and I believe Mr. Clay employed a similar person, for a similar purpose.

Viscount Goderich, M.P.

6th August 1853.

75,686. These people were in the nature of spies?—They were.

75,687. And we hear that they dressed up in fantastic shapes?—I knew nothing of that. I never saw Goddard until long after the election was over, when the petition was pending.

75,688. Did your lordship hear that there were parties upon the other side, keeping a look out?—No, I did not.

75,689. You did not hear that these people met?—I heard a story afterwards; that Mr. Clay's man, whoever he was, had met Mr. Goddard, and I believe there had been a fight between them, they not knowing each other; but that is all I heard,

75,690. Was Warrener Mr. Clay's man?—I know nothing about his name. I will not be perfectly certain whether that is the man I allude to; but that somebody met Goddard and had a fight with him, and that it was somebody upon our own side, I know.

75,691. Did Alderman Gresham tell your lordship that he had paid for an election in Hull only 400*l.* on behalf of the candidate?—Yes; the election of Mr. Hill.

75,692. Do you recollect his saying that, in his judgment, an election in Hull ought not to cost much more?—I do not recollect that he told me that, but it is very possible that he may.

75,693. Was that at the time that you agreed to go to the extent of 1,500*l.*?—I cannot say at what time that was. I merely recollect the circumstance of his mentioning the fact to me, but I do not recollect the date.

75,694. It was called to your attention, that an election in Hull had been conducted for the sum of 400*l.*?—Mr. Gresham mentioned that.

75,695. And it was after that that you had agreed to advance 1,500*l.*?—I do not recollect the date, therefore I cannot say whether it was after or before; it was in a casual conversation. I should not speak the truth if I was to say I recollect when the conversation took place. I saw Mr. Gresham at various times while I was down here, and whether the conversation took place here or in London, upon that subject, I do not recollect.

75,696. Do you recollect his calling upon you during the election, and remonstrating as to the amount of money that was being expended?—I cannot say that I recollect that.

75,697. Do you recollect his calling to your lordship's attention during the election, that there was a large sum of money being expended?—No, I do not. I think I recollect his calling upon me two days prior to the election, and saying that he knew the fact, but he wished for a confirmation of it from me, in case any difficulty might arise on the day of the election, that I was determined to resist anything like bribery, treating, or corrupt practices, which I told him, and that was, as well as I can recollect, on the morning of the day, or two days before the election.

75,698. A number of persons were set down, as it is called, in Saville Street; a term that your lordship has acquired the meaning of by this time?—Yes, since the election I have.

75,699. I wish to know this: whether your lordship has at the present moment arrived at any determination as to whether you will pay them or not. I simply ask you this, without the slightest intention, or the least intention at all of supposing or wishing to guide you in any answer. I simply wish to know if you have arrived at a determination, if you think fit to do so, or if you think it prudent to abstain from giving an answer, say so; but I ask if you have come to a determination upon the subject, as I put the question to Mr. Burges, your legal adviser, and to Mr. Clay: have you any objection to state whether you have come to any determination?—I am perfectly willing to answer the question.

75,700. It is not a question whether you think it prudent, but whether for any reason in the world you object to answer?—I am perfectly ready to answer; and inasmuch as I know the question was asked of Mr. Burges and Mr. Clay, I am perfectly prepared to answer it. Any sum of money concerning the last election which may have been legally incurred, by which I mean may have been incurred for lawful purposes, I do not know that any such sum is unpaid by me; but whatever that amount is proved to be, I shall be willing to pay; but I should not feel it my duty to pay that sum of money which was incurred in a manner which I can only consider to have been bribery, and which was so incurred directly contrary to my most express and often-repeated orders.

75,701. You consider yourself, having wholly forbidden any corrupt practice, and deeming this to have been a corrupt practice, that you are in no way bound to it?—It is not a question whether I am bound or not, but it is a question, as far as I understand the law, I believe that I am not bound to pay it; otherwise, as far as the amount is concerned, or any legal binding upon myself, that is not the question. I wish to make it distinctly clear to the Commissioners, that any payments of any kind that were made to any electors at the last election, except for services actually rendered, or which were made in excess of the amount to which they were entitled for such services, was made without my knowledge, and contrary to my most express directions.

WILLIAM HALL sworn, and examined. William Hall.

75,706. How long have you been a freeman?—Perhaps eighteen years.
75,707. Did you pay for it yourself?—No.
75,708. Who paid for it?—The blue party.
75,709. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
75,710. Were you paid for it?—No.
75,711. Were you paid no money that election?—No.
75,712. Or after the election?—No.
75,713. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I think Mr. Clay.
75,714. Were you paid for it?—No.
75,715. Did you get no money that election?—No.
75,716. Or after it?—No.
75,717. Were you employed at all?—No, not at all.
75,718. Had you nothing to do with the election but voting?—None.
75,719. At the last election who did you vote for?—Goderich and Moore.
75,720. Are you sure you did not vote for Baines at the former election?—No, I did not.
75,721. Were you not a messenger or a runner for him?—No.
75,722. Did you get any money at the last election?—Not any.
75,723. Not from either party?—Not from either party.

THOMAS HALLER sworn, and examined. Thomas Haller.

75,727. Are you a freeman?—No.
75,728. How long have you been entitled to vote?—The first time was 1847, I think.
75,729. Who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.
75,730. Did you get any money?—I was employed as a poll clerk.
75,731. A check clerk?—Yes; I got one sovereign for that, and a dinner.
75,732. What else?—Nothing.
75,733. Did you get anything for Baines?—Yes; I was a check clerk for Baines.
75,734. Did you get anything on account of Brown?—Not any.
75,735. Did Mr. Mitchell pay you anything?—Nothing.
75,736. Did you ask for employment at the committee room?—No, I think I saw one of the solicitors, and he offered to put my name down as a check clerk.
75,737. You did not put your name down generally for employment?—No, nothing of the kind.
75,738. Did he ask you to be a check clerk?—Yes.
75,739. At the last election who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.
75,740. Did you get any money this time?—Not any.
75,741. You were not employed?—Not at all.
75,742. Was your name set down?—No.

75,747. How long have you been a freeman?—I cannot tell exactly; I think about eighteen years.
75,748. Who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
75,749. Were you paid for it?—No, I do not know that I was; I did not get anything except——I do not know whether I did or not now, I am sure.
75,750. Except what?—I might have got something. I think there were 15*s.* given. I think I got 5*s.* from one and 10*s.* from the other.
75,751. After you voted?—Yes.
75,752. Who paid you?—I was paid in the committee room in the Market Place.
75,753. You were paid when the others were?—Yes.
75,754. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Brown and Clay.

Thomas Hanson.

6th August 1853.

75,755. Were you paid for it?—I got 15*s.* there.
75,756. How was that paid?—I got 10*s.* for Brown and 5*s.* for Clay.
75,757. Who paid you for Brown?—I got it at the committee room.
75,758. At Mr. Mitchell's, the tobacconist?—Yes.
75,759. Where did you get the 5*s.*?—I got that against the Monument.
75,760. The Blue Bell?—Yes; the Blue Bell.
75,761. In Prospect Street?—Yes.
75,762. At the last election who did you vote for?—Goderich and Clay.
75,763. Were you paid for that?—No.
75,764. Did you get no money?—No.
75,765. Was your name set down?—I was put down as a runner.
75,766. Where?—In one of the committee rooms in Saville Street.
75,767. Mr. Wilde's committee room?—No; I think it was not Mr. Wilde's.
75,768. 21, Saville Street, was not it?—I am sure I do not know; it was in a committee room.
75,769. You were set down as a runner?—Yes.
75,770. You were to have been paid after the election was over?—I expected to be so; but I never received anything.

75,777. Who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.
75,778. Were you paid for it?—I was not.
75,779. Who was?—My missus received 5*s.*
75,780. Who did she receive it from?—Mr. Brown.
75,781. Did she receive anything else?—No.
75,782. Did anybody else receive any money for you?—No.
75,783. At the last election who did you vote for?—I was from home.
75,784. You did not vote at all?—No.
75,785. You got no money?—No.
75,786. Nor did you have your name set down?—No.

William Job.

WILLIAM JOB sworn, and examined.

75,787. Where do you live?—Neptune Street.
75,788. What is your business?—A shipping clerk.
75,789. What rent do you pay?—£8 10*s.*
75,790. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1840.
75,791. In 1841, who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
75,792. Did either of the parties pay for your freedom?—I will not say; I cannot remember whether they paid for it or not.
75,793. Did you vote for Hanmer and James?—Yes.
75,794. Who paid it?—I received 12*s.* about a month after, four days' expenses coming from Hamburgh.
75,795. Did they send for you to Hamburgh?—Yes.
75,796. Was 12*s.* all the money you got?—That was all I got.
75,797. Did you claim it as travelling expenses?—I claimed it for the time I was here. I had nothing to do with the coming across.
75,798. Why not?—Because they found me all the passage and everything.
75,799. Who paid you the 12*s* ?—The master belonging to the ship when he paid me my wages.
75,800. They found you passage?—Yes.
75,801. And your food?—Yes.
75,802. And gave you 12*s.* besides?—Yes.
75,803. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.
75,804. Were you paid for it?—I got 7*s.* a month after.
75,805. Did you come from Hamburgh again?—No.
75,806. What did you get that 7*s* for?—Work done.
75,807. As a runner?—Yes; night and day.
75,808. Who was it for?—Baines.
75,809. Who paid you?—The man is in America now.
75,810. What is his name?—Peat.
75,811. Where did he pay you?—On the Dock Side.

William Job.

6th August 1853.

75,812. Did you get any more at that election?—No.
75,813. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
75,814. Were you paid for it?—Yes.
75,815. How much?—£4.
75,816. How did you get that?—For work done.
75,817. You were a runner?—Yes.
75,818. Were you paid each week?—No; after the election was over.
75,819. The whole of it?—Yes.
75,820. Where were you a runner?—The Shakspeare and Minerva.
75,821. You were one of Legitt's runner?—Yes.
75,822. How did you get the 7*s.* in 1847?—On the Dock Side. It was sent to me. The man that paid me my wages gave me that. He said he had received it for me that day, and he gave it to me at night.
75,823. Had your name been set down?—My name had been set down at Mr. Baines' committee.
75,824. How many days were you employed?—Only that night and the next day.
75,825. The polling day?—Yes.

William Mawmill.

6th August 1853.

75,922. When the orange paid for your freedom you knew that they did so in order that you might vote for them at the next election?—I did not vote for them; I voted for Hanmer and James.

75,923. Did you not know they were paying for your freedom in order that you might vote for them at the next election?—No.

75,924. What did you think they paid for your freedom for?—They were paying many more at the same time.

75,925. What for?—I did not ask them.

75,926. What did you think they were paying it for?—I did not think anything about it.

75,927. You thought they had taken a fancy to you?—Yes.

75,928. Do you swear that?—I do not swear it.

75,929. Tell me what you thought they were paying your freedom for; the orange party?—They might think I should vote for them.

75,930. Have you any doubt that you meant so?—No.

75,931. You had no doubt about it?—No.

75,932. And that they paid for it with that intention?—I should suppose so.

75,933. And you took their money?—Yes.

75,934. You voted against them the first opportunity you had?—Yes.

75,935. You voted for the blues in 1841?—Yes.

75,936. Were you paid for it?—No.

75,937. Did you get any money?—I was paid afterwards a sovereign.

75,938. What was it for?—I suppose for voting for them.

75,939. Who paid you?—I do not know.

75,957. What rent do you pay?—£7.

75,958. How long have you been a freeman?—I was born free.

75,959. When did you take your freedom up?—The first time I voted was for Hanmer and James.

75,960. Was your freedom taken up for you?—Yes, it was taken up.

75,961. By which party?—By the orange, but I polled opposite to the party.

75,962. You knew, when the orange took up your freedom, that they did it in order that you might vote for them?—Yes, that is why it was done; that is right.

75,963. And you voted for the blues?—Yes; I voted for Hanmer and James.

75,964. Were you paid for it?—Yes, I was paid for it; oh yes.

75,965. How much?—£3 10*s*. I was set down as a runner

75,966. Who paid you?—At Binks's, in High Street.

75,967. Through a window?—Part of it through a window, and part otherwise.

75,968. Were both the sums you got paid at Binks's?—I got all at Binks's; Mr. Freebody paid me the best part of the money, excepting the pound.

75,969. Was it paid at the same time?—No; after the election I got the pound.

75,970. Through a window?—Yes; after the election.

75,971. You do not know who paid you through a window?—I do not.

75,972. Did you ever hear?—No, I never could hear; I never knew whether it was a woman or a man.

75,973. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Brown and Clay.

75,974. Were you paid for it?—Yes, I was paid for it; I got 4*l*.

75,975. When did you get that?—I got it in about a fortnight.

75,976. Where were you paid, at the Baltic?—Yes.

75,977. Were you a runner?—Yes, I was a runner.

75,978. For which candidate were you paid?—I was paid for Clay.

Thomas Mortson.
6th August 1853.

75,979. You do not recollect the committee room?—No, I have forgotten the name of the place, just now.

75,980. Do you recollect who paid it?—No; I do not know his name.

75,981. Who was it?—I cannot think of the name at all. I received the money from the parties.

75,982. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

75,983. Were you paid for it?—Yes

75,984. How much were you paid?—£1 19*s.*

75,985. Where were you paid?—At the Manor House Tavern.

75,986. Who by?—By Mr. Craig, who is dead.

75,987. Were you one of his messengers?—Yes.

75,988. How long had you been a messenger there?—I was there ten days.

75,989. He set your name down, I suppose?—Yes; he put it down of course.

75,990. And it is there?—I cannot say.

75,991. You were employed and paid, and you were to vote for them?—Yes, of course.

Matthew Newlove.

MATTHEW NEWLOVE sworn, and examined.

75,992. Where do you live?—St. Mark's Square, Pottery.

75,994. What rent do you pay?—£10.

75,995. Are you a freeman?—No.

75,996. How long have you been entitled to vote?—About fourteen years. Ever since 1841.

75,997. Did you vote in 1841?—Yes.

75,998. Who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.

75,999. Were you paid for it?—Yes.

76,000. How much were you paid?—5*s.* a day.

76,001. For how many days?—I cannot tell; a fortnight or three weeks; that is my best recollection. I was paid for running. I was at work from morning till night for them.

76,002. You got about 4*l.* 10*s.*?—I cannot say exactly the amount. I was employed from morning till night.

76,003. You knew if they employed you as a runner you were to vote for them?—They did not ask me particularly. I went for employment, and they gave it to me.

76,004. And you gave them your vote?—Yes.

76,005. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

76,006. What were you paid that time?—I think, to the best of my recollection, that I got about 10*s.*

76,007. Did you not get 1*l.* 19*s.* when you were paid at the Baltic?—That had nothing to do with it; that was a chance one.

76,008. You were one of them?—They told me it was not my own.

76,009. You were one of Nicholson's and Brown's men?—No; I did not belong to them.

76,010. You were paid by them?—I was told they were giving money away upon the landing, and I said, "Perhaps they would give me some as well as the rest." I ran up and said "You will not forget me." They said, "Have you not got any?" I said, "No," and I held my hand out and he gave me a sovereign. The next morning I went as usual; I understood they were giving another away, and I thought I would take another turn. They told me I was to return it. Then I asked why I was to return it; they said it did not belong to me. I said, "Why did you give it to me." I said, if they had given it me wrong, and they would give me a right understanding that they had done so, and why they had done it, I would. They said no, they would play the devil with me.

76,011. You did not give it back?—No.

76,012. You got some money besides?—Not any more.

76,013. You got some as a runner?—Next morning I got a sovereign, but they did not say what it was for; I got the other for running.

76,014. How much was it?—10*s.*

76,015. Who for, was it?—I think Brown.

76,016. At the last election who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

76,017. Were you paid this time?—Yes.

76,018. How much?—3*s.* 6*d.* a day.

76,019. For how many days?—I cannot say. I was employed as a runner.

76,020. Where?—At the Osborne Street committee room.

76,021. Dr. Hodgson's?—Yes.

76,022. Did you apply to be set down as a runner?—Yes.

76,023. Were you paid anything after the election?—Nothing.

76,024. Nothing at all after the election?—Not a penny.

76,025. Did you not get something for the polling day?—I believe I am telling a falsity; I got paid 3*s.* 6*d.* a day, and I got 3*s.* 6*d.* for the polling day

Matthew Newlove.

6th August 1853.

76,026. Did you not get 10*s.* for the polling day?—3*s.* 6*d.* I got more for the polling day than the other days.

76,027. When was it paid?—I believe it was the next day.

76,028. How much were you paid?—At the time when I was paid 3*s.* 6*d.* a day the eleven days. I was paid 3*s.* 6*d.* a day every day I was on; for the polling day the same as the other days. I was not paid for the other time.

76,464. Did you know him before?—I did not much; I knew him by being a draper in the Market Place.
76,465. Did you trust to him for the money?—Yes; he took the room of me.
76,466. Did you make an agreement as to the price?—I asked 6*l.* for the room at the time of the election.
76,467. Had you promised your vote to them?—No; I did not.
76,468. Who told you the chairman's name?—I applied to him.
76,469. You say he was the chairman of the committee?—He was at one room.
76,470. Who told you his name?—Mr. Helas.
76,471. Yes?—I am sure I cannot say.
76,472. How do you know that was his name?—I believe that was his name.
76,473. How do you know?—He was called by that name.
76,474. Had you been canvassed before they took your room?—No.
76,475. Had you never been asked for your vote?—No.
76,476. Not by either party?—I believe I was asked for it, but not before they took the room.
76,477. Who called this man by that name, Helas, or whatever it is; who did you hear call him by that name?—I am not able to say.
76,478. Do you know where he lives?—He used to be the proprietor of the Kingston coffee house.
76,479. What has become of him now?—I do not know, I am sure.
76,480. Did you ever see him before?—No.
76,481. Or since?—No, I do not think I have.
76,482. Have you seen any of the people whom you saw there before or since?—Yes.
76,483. Who?—I have seen some of them since.
76,484. Tell me the names of any of them?—A man they called Ray.
76,485. How long did he stay?—I do not know.
76,486. Five minutes?—Backwards and forwards several times.
76,487. A messenger?—Something of that sort.
76,488. How came you to let Helas into the room?—I did not let him in.
76,489. Did you let everybody in that came?—When they took the room they took the key of it.
76,490. Mr. Davis took your room?—Yes, he did.
76,491. Did Helas take the key away when he went?—He locked it up.
76,492. Did he always do that?—I cannot say he always did.
76,493. Did you see that they did not get into your house; is there an outer door, and did he take the key of the room?—He had the key to come in and out when he liked.
76,494. Was it the key of the outer door?—No, the chamber door; it is a large club room.

Edward Shearn.

EDWARD SHEARN sworn, and examined.

76,495. Where do you live?—Pier Street.
76,496. What is your business?—A currier and leather merchant.
76,497. What is the rent you pay?—I occupy my own premises.
76,498. Do you know what you are rated at?—I think about 15*l.*, somewhere about that.

Edward Shearn.

6th August 1853.

76,499. Do you vote as a 10*l.* householder?—I do.

76,500. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Since the Reform Bill.

76,501. In 1841 who did you vote for?—I really cannot recollect, I have taken so little interest in the elections; I have always voted for the Liberal interest till this last election; I thought they were going too fast, and I went over.

76,502. In 1841 you voted for Clay and Thompson?—I cannot say; I cannot speak to that.

76,503. You took no part in it?—I never took any part in it; I never was on any committee.

76,504. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Moore and Butler.

76,505. There is a payment put against your name of three guineas?—That was for coming from Birmingham to vote; one of the committee called on me a few days before the election; I told them I should be from home, and I could not attend; they begged that I would; I said it would not be worth the expense of my coming; I had no intention of coming; they seemed very strenuous about it, and I parted with the understanding. I said I hoped they would not be so closely run as to make a vote any object, and I said, "If you are you must let me know." When I was in Birmingham the day before the election, I got a letter, begging that I would come over. They had previously said they would pay my expenses; I said I did not think it worth while incurring the expense. The day previous to the election I got a note, saying they would be exceedingly obliged if I would come over; I left Birmingham by that night's mail and got here in the mornnig and gave my vote and returned immediately to Birmingham.

76,506. What was the money you received?—About a month ago. I never expected any. I had no intention. About a month after Mr. Bamford sent to ask what my expenses were; and I told him my fare was 3*l.* or 3 guineas, I am not sure which. I have it down in my cash book. I said I did not want it, and I am sorry you have not succeeded. He said Mr. Bamford promised it, and he would rather I took it.

76,507. That was the price of the fare?—The price of the railway tickets.

James Shaw.

JAMES SHAW sworn, and examined.

76,508. Where do you live?—Hessle Road.

76,509. What business are you?—A licensed victualler.

76,510. What rent do you pay?—£25.

76,511. Are you a freeman?—No.

76,512. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Nine years; I came to Hull in 1843.

76,513. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines.

76,514. Did you get any money that election?—No.

76,515. Not on any account?—No.

76,516. You sent in no bills?—I had none to send in.

76,517. Did you take any part in the election besides voting—No, I did not.

76,518. At the last election who did you vote for?—Goderich and Clay.

76,519. At the former election did you have anything to do with Mr. Sidebottom?—No, I did not know him.

76,520. At the last election you voted for Clay and Goderich?—Yes.

76,521. Were you paid any money the last time?—No.

76,522. Did they take a room of you?—No.

76,523. At the time of the election?—No.

76,524. Did you receive any money from the candidates or their friends?—I received 10*s.* for refreshment at the last election from Dr. Hodgson.

76,525. Do you mean that they paid for your own refreshment?—Part of it; on the day of polling some of them got refreshment.

76,526. Do you mean that he gave you that to go and get refreshment?—No; he paid the bill for what had been had.

76,527. Was it for drink you had part of it?—I had part of it during the day, it was very hot.

S. Stephenson.

SAMUEL STEPHENSON sworn, and examined.

76,528. Where do you live?—Cleveland Street, Groves.

76,529. What business are you?—A cooper.

76,530. What rent do you pay?—I am rated at 25*l.*

76,532. How long have you been a freeman?—I took up my freedom in October, 1839.

76,533. Did you take it up yourself?—Yes.

76,534. Who did you vote for in 1841?—James and Hanmer.

76,535. Were you paid any money?—No.

76,536. Not on any account?—Not on any account.

S. Stephenson.

6th August 1853.

76,537. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.
76,538. Did you get any money that time?—No.
76,539. Had you nothing to do with the election but voting?—I had a little.
76,540. What was that?—During the election day I assisted for Mr. Brown.
76,541. In what way?—Fetching up voters.
76,542. Were you paid for that?—No.
76,543. You mean you took the voters to the poll?—Yes, I assisted.
76,544. Did you pay them anything?—No.
76,545. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
76,546. Were you paid any money?—Yes; I received money and I paid money.
76,547. How much did you receive?—I cannot say the amount exactly; I assisted Mr. Oxtoby in paying the voters in Holderness ward. I was one of the Holderness ward committee. I assisted him in paying. Several voters had not got paid, and of course he gave me the money. I think there were some four or five.
76,548. They gave you the money to go and pay?—To go and pay them.
76,549. Did you take it to their houses?—I took some to their houses, and some I paid in the street.
76,550. That was after the election?—After the election.
76,551. You knew at the time it was a payment for their votes?—No.
76,552. What did you think it was being paid for?—There is one party that you have had here, a man of the name of Hender. He stopped his sloop and his men for two days, and he demanded pay for them of course; I paid 10s. for that.
76,553. Had you a list?—I believe there was a list.
76,554. You had a list at the time you paid?—No.
76,555. How did you know who they were?—Mr. Oxtoby gave me the money to pay these parties.
76,556. Did he not give you the names of the men?—I believe not.
76,557. Did you know these men were men whose names had been set down?—No.
76,558. Some of those you would?—Not any.
76,559. Not any?—I do not know the names of any of those that were set down. I do not understand this setting down. They had been set down, as promised, but not for employment.
76,560. Do you not know that they were set down as promised, and who would not give their votes unless they got some money?—I do not know any one I paid any money to.
76,561. What do you think they were being paid for?—For attendance. It so happened that one clerk got into York Castle. Me and Mr. Oxtoby were two young men not much up to electioneering at all, and we took it upon ourselves; the money was sent down, and Mr. Oxtoby said to me, "We will take it upon ourselves to pay these voters, or runners, or messengers, or whatever they are called." Of course he had all the books, and everything, and I assisted him; that is all I did.
76,562. Did it ever strike your mind that you were not to pay the orange colour?—I should have been very sorry.
76,563. You were paying all those voters who voted blue?—Just so.
76,564. You would not have paid anybody else?—Decidedly not.
76,565. Did it not strike you that the way they had voted was a very essential part of the matter you had to consider?—I must say it was.
76,566. You did not think much about anything else, I dare say?—Oh, yes; a little about something else.
76,567. Did you pay yourself any of it?—Not a farthing; I was out of pocket.
76,568. When you had the money did you pay yourself back again?—Not a farthing; I was out of pocket.

W. G. E. Stockdale.

William George England Stockdale sworn, and examined.

76,569. Where do you live?—Church Street.
76,570. What is your business?—A wood turner.
76,571. What rent do you pay?—I live with my brother-in-law.
76,572. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
76,573. How long have you been a freeman?—Ten years.
76,574. Did you vote in 1847?—Yes.
76,575. Who for?—Baines and Brown.
76,576. Were you paid any money?—Half a sovereign.
76,577. After the election?—Yes.
76,578. Who were you paid by?—Conkerton.
76,579. Did you have your name set down?—No, I do not know that it was.
76,580. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
76,581. Did you get any money that time?—Not any.
76,582. Was your name set down?—No.
76,583. They have put, "What is the tip?" against you; what is the meaning of that?—I do not know.

W.G.E. Stockdale.
6th August 1853.

76,584. You did not see any money at all?—No.
76,585. You did not expect any?—No.
76,586. Did you take any part in the election?—No.

Charles Plaxton.

CHARLES PLAXTON sworn, and examined.

76,587. Where do you live?—No. 37, Great Thornton Street.
76,588. What is your business?—An accountant.
76,589. What rent do you pay?—£18.
76,590. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
76,591. How long have you been a freeman?—Two years.
76,592. At the last election you voted?—Yes.
76,593. Were you employed at the last election?—Yes.
76,594. In what capacity?—Clerk and secretary.
76,595. Where?—South Myton ward.
76,596. Who was the chairman?—Dr. Bell.
76,597. For Moore and Butler?—Yes.
76,598. Did you ask for employment generally?—I am sure I do not remember any asking on either side.
76,599. You were to be paid 5*s.* a day?—Yes.
76,600. How long did you attend?—I cannot say exactly; about three weeks I suppose.
76,601. Did you set down some of the names?—No; not one.
76,602. Who set them down?—I do not know who set them down.
76,603. Did you never hear of such a thing whilst you were at the committee?—I knew such a thing as men being engaged as runners.
76,604. What did you do?—I was merely keeping the books, and assisting in canvassing.
76,605. Was there not a list made out of the men who came and asked to be set down?—Many asked to be set down that were not set down.
76,606. Did you not put their names down?—No; they were merely told we could not engage them at all.
76,607. How many were set down do you think, of the applicants?—I do not remember
76,608. You set none down yourself at all?—Not one.
76,609. Have you any books or papers?—Not one.

Adjourned to Monday at ten o'clock.

FIFTY-THIRD DAY.—Monday, 8th August 1853.

Mr. S. Brown.
8th August 1853.

Mr. SAMUEL BROWN sworn, and examined.

76,610. What business are you?—A political agent.
76,611. Do you not follow any other business?—General agency as well, that is my profession.
76,612. What do you do?—I attend to matters of this nature; I attend to election business, and things of that nature.
76,613. At times when elections are not going on, what do you do?—I am a general agent, that is my answer.
76,614. Where do you live?—My private residence is No. 2, Mitre Terrace, Downham Road, Kingsland.
76,615. Near London?—Yes, in London, you may call it.
76,616. Did you ever live in Hull?—I did.
76,617. How long is it?—I can hardly fix the date.
76,618. Fifteen years?—Within fifteen years.
76,619. Were you carrying on the business of a political agent then?—Yes; I was the secretary of the Conservative Association of this borough.
76,620 Perhaps that is what you meant?—That is not what I meant, that is not what I am now, although I was for years in the same capacity for the City of London, and I attend to the registration for more boroughs than one now.
76,621. And at that time, in the year 1841, were you a voter for this borough?—I was.
76,622. As a freeman, or merely as a householder?—As a householder.
76,623. Who did you vote for in the year 1841?—I really cannot say that I voted at all; if I did vote, I think I voted for Hanmer and James; but I think that I was so much occupied during the day that I forgot most likely.

Mr. S. Brown.

8th August 1853.

76,624. Samuel Brown, of English Street, is that you?—That is not me. It would be of the Anlaby Road, if I am there at all.

76,625. I believe you were employed to pay the money for taking up the freedoms of some persons in this borough in the year 1839?—I had quite forgotten it; but now you remember me, I believe it is right. I recollect being here one evening very late at night with a great number of freemen who were admitted; the date of it I cannot remember.

76,626. Who paid the money for it?—I did, unquestionably; I remember that.

76,627. Whose money was it?—I really do not know.

76,628. Who did you receive it from?—I really do not know.

76,629. Do you mean you have forgotten it?—I mean exactly that I have forgotten it, and I should wish to premise, before you question closely as to the details of any acts of my own, that you would be kind enough to furnish me with any evidence you have received, documentary evidence; I have had to do with such a variety of things since then.

76,630. It has been proved that you were the party in this place that paid the money for the blues?—Quite so; I remember the circumstance very well.

76,631. At whose instance did that occur?—I really cannot tell, if you will refresh my memory, and say A B gave me the money ——

76,632. We rather expect that gentlemen will be so good as to tell us their own view of the case, because other things may not be correct?—If you take my impression, I will give it.

76,633. Speak to the best of your belief?—Then the best of my belief is, being the secretary of the Conservative Association, the funds I raised on that occasion were obtained from the members of that association by contributions; that is the best of my belief. I know I said what I wanted to get the money for.

76,634. Can you tell from whose hands you received it?—I cannot, indeed.

76,635. Who was the treasurer of the association?—There was no treasurer; I think Mr. Barkworth took the position of seeing we were always in funds, and when we were not, he made us right.

76,636. The society is called the Conservative Association?—Association or society, I do not know which, for registration purposes, and to prepare for the elections.

76,637. Who was the chairman?—That I do not know. I was connected with the association some years, and we varied. I cannot fix any year, but I think perhaps Mr. Barkworth or Mr. Beadle, or some of those gentlemen would be in the chair.

76,638. Probably there was a chairman?—The minutes will show, because I kept minutes, which, whoever possesses the books, will show what transpired at the meeting, and who was in the chair; I always kept a record.

76,639. What became of the minutes after you parted with them?—I left them in a box or two belonging to the association.

76,640. Who did you give the box to?—No one; I cannot fix any one particularly. I left the borough.

76,641. Tell us as near as you can recollect?—I gave it to no one; I locked the office door, and perhaps left the key at Mr. Goddard's printing office.

76,642. Say to the best of your recollection?—I can say nothing but this, that after the election I think in 1841 of Messrs. Hanmer and James, a short time afterwards I determined to leave the town, and I should just leave that as I should my own house, except in the one case I should fix, I gave the key to my landlord, and in the other I could not.

76,643. Was it a matter of perfect indifference into whose hands the papers fell?—I should say they were so well guarded, it was a matter of indifference to me.

76,644. Tell me how guarded?—The office was over Mr. Goddard's shop, he having a shop below, and offices and premises all over the house, permitted us to use that room. I am sure I forget whether we paid rent for it or not, the door was always open.

76,645. Did you leave the box in the room?—I have stated a thing which I must fall back on my want of memory for; we had left Mr. Goddard's shop, and we were in Bowl Alley Lane then.

76,646. Your attention has been drawn to the fact for some time that you were coming here, I am sorry you have not given your mind to it?—If I commit myself in this as I have once, you must forgive me; I have been trying to put it right.

76,647. You think you had left Mr. Goddard's?—I am quite sure of it now.

76,648. Where did the association move to?—In Bowl Alley Lane, when I left Hull.

76,649. Is it your impression it was taken to Bowl Alley Lane?—It was there when I left.

76,650. Whose house was that?—I cannot say.

76,651. Were you the landlord?—No.

76,652. Can you tell us what number it was?—It was exactly opposite Mr. Thomas Ward's office; I know the place, and I can take you into it.

76,653. Did you leave it at this house in Bowl Alley Lane?—Decidedly.

76,654. Do you remember what your salary was then?—Yes, I do.

76,655. How much was it?—£150 a year.

76,656. How soon after going to this place in Bowl Alley Lane did you leave?—I think a short time it appears to me; I fancy we had only one revision there, I think so.

76,657. Who succeeded you as secretary?—I do not know.

Mr. S. Brown.

8th August 1853.

76,658. Did you never hear?—I never heard. In fact I do not believe there was any secretary appointed, not to my knowledge.

76,659. Was the society dissolved then?—I do not know; when I left the town I was done with its politics and everything.

76,660. How came you to leave the society; was it the society left you, or you left the society?—No; if you wish to be personal, I can give you the answer at once.

76,661. I merely wish to know, because the society may have become dissolved.—No.

76,662. Or you may have resigned and left the society?—That is quite right, I resigned and left the society.

76,663. Who was the most active gentleman in that society at the time you left it?—Do you mean who was connected with the committee?

76,664. Yes, with the management, whether of the committee or otherwise?—I have mentioned some names, I think Mr. Thomas Ward, Mr. Beadle, Mr. Barkworth, and Mr. Sleight.

76,665. What is Mr. Sleight's Christian name?—Robert Peasegood Sleight.

76,666. Was that the elder Mr. Barkworth?—Yes.

76,667. The gentleman who is dead?—Yes; and Mr. Theophilus Carrick was another; there may be others, but I forget them at this moment.

76,668. Had the society a banker?—No, they had not.

76,669. Whose care were their funds in?—My own.

76,670. That answers the question; I wanted to know first whether there was a treasurer?—That hardly does. I might nominally be. I do not know that there was. There might be a nominal treasurer.

76,671. I meant who kept the funds?—I did; I kept all the funds.

76,672. Was there a balance in your hands at the time of your resignation?—No.

76,673. Was there something coming to you?—Yes, in fact, that was generally the reason why I was the treasurer; we were always in arrear a little, as political associations generally are.

76,674. Who paid over the balance that was due to you?—That I forget, I cannot say; I almost imagine it was Mr. Barkworth; I know I went to see him and have just a few words with him before I left the town, and I forget what that balance was, but I think it was between 20*l.* and 30*l.*, how I got it I do not know.

76,675. At that time Sir Walter James was member for the town?—Yes.

76,676. Do you remember whether he was consulted in any way as to the taking up of those freedoms?—I do not.

76,677. Can you undertake to say he was not consulted?—I would not undertake to say he was not consulted about the taking up of those freedoms.

76,678. You do not undertake to say he was not?—Of course not; that would be undertaking to say Mr. Barkworth or Mr. Beadle did not.

76,679. So far as you are concerned? I do not remember the slightest communication I ever held with Sir Walter James on the subject as to those freemen.

76,680. As secretary, the correspondence would naturally take place between you and any person?—If it was official, as from the association itself, doubtless.

76,681. Can you undertake to say that there was no communication took place between you as secretary and Sir Walter James?—I cannot undertake to say that there was any, but if you have those minutes before you I can undertake to say, if such communication took place, it will be there.

76,682. We have not got them?—I think so; I should not like to fix such a thing on you; I say if it occurred, you may have them before you at a subsequent period of the inquiry.

76,683. You do not remember any correspondence?—I do not.

76,684. Do you know whether he was a contributor to the funds of the society?—He contributed certainly, but whether in one sum or annually I forget, or how often his subscription was paid; I think it was a donation when we required aid.

76,685. With whom did the idea of taking up this number of freedoms originate?—I do not know.

76,686. According to your recollection, who did it originate with?—I could not at all either recollect, believe, or dream, or think.

76,687. Did it with you?—Not at all, to my knowledge; it might.

76,688. How long was it before the 11th of July, the day of admission, that the subject was mooted in the society?—I think I may say a very short time, a very few days.

76,689. Can you tell in what circumstance it originated?—Yes, I think I can; I think I heard that a great number of Radical freemen were to be admitted on a given day and for certain purposes.

76,690. What purpose?—To get them upon the register for that year.

76,691. You heard that?—I remember it now particularly, as you call the date of the admission to my mind.

76,692. Do you remember hearing that there were a great number of Radical freemen to be admitted?—Yes; and I remember waiting on some gentlemen connected with the party, with a view of asking them if they did not consider it desirable that that should be counteracted. I remember now the circumstances.

Mr. S. Brown.

8th August 1853.

76,693. Having heard that, you communicated it: who to?—I cannot fix that. I may say generally to the leaders of the party, but really to say I spoke to one man of the party or not I do not know.

76,694. Had you a meeting?—I think we had a meeting in consequence. I ran round to some half dozen gentlemen to mention the circumstance, and ask if we ought not to counteract it.

76,695. And there was a meeting?—I believe a meeting was the result.

76,696. And at that meeting what took place?—At that meeting or at a subsequent period, in consequence of what transpired at that meeting, a certain amount of money, which I thought would be necessary, was provided for me.

76,697. To take up the freedoms in order to counteract the number which had been taken up on the orange side?—Exactly.

76,698. How much money was it?—That I forget.

76,699. Was it as much as 2*l.* or 3*l.*?—It was more than ten times that.

76,700. How much according to your memory?—I think, according to my memory, I must have handed over, and did, in one sum to the town clerk, 50*l.* or 60*l.* It might have been 70*l.*; it was under 100*l.* I think I could swear to under 100*l.*; from 60*l.* or 70*l.* to 100*l.*

76,701. Who handed the money to you?—I believe I collected it.

76,702. Who from?—The party; and I believe I have no record of it. I held it quite a matter which did not come within the jurisdiction of the association itself, and you will find no minute of that.

76,703. Do you remember the names of any of the parties who contributed?—No; I could not remember one name.

76,704. Your memory seems to revive just now?—That is true, and it may again. I tell you the first mentioning the date opened up the whole circumstance to my mind.

76,705. Tell us the names of some of the people; 60*l.* or 100*l.* is a large sum?—I cannot.

76,706. Not one?—I cannot one. I can say this, that I believe I should call upon gentlemen that I was in the habit of calling upon; say Mr. Barkworth, Mr. Beadle, Mr. Ward, and a number of others as well known to gentlemen in this Court. I got the money so much apiece, but that I can remember at this moment going into one man's office to get a 5*l.* note, or a cheque, I cannot.

76,707. You believe you called on Mr. Barkworth, Mr. Beadle, and Mr. Ward?—I believe I should call upon them.

76,708. Do you believe you did?—I believe I did.

76,709. Do you believe any of them contributed?—I do.

76,710. Did you contribute yourself?—I did not, except in the way of labour.

76,711. How long did it take you to collect this sum of money?—I should think it would be done in twenty-four hours after it was determined upon.

76,712. Had you anybody to assist you?—That I cannot say; my impression is that I must, because I remember it caused a sensation in the town among the carpenters and that class, as to which party they should join, and the office was open to receive applicants, and to put down persons' names who would be here with a view of their freedom being paid for.

76,713. The number appears to be considerable; what means were taken to find out they were persons you could rely on?—We did not do that at all.

76,714. How was that scheme carried into effect?—There was no scheme in it.

76,715. The plan?—It hardly amounts to a plan. Certain freemen understood as I told the Court, that the Radicals were going to admit a large number.

76,716. Be so good as to call them by the names of the orange and blue respectively?—The orange gentlemen had made it tolerably well known that they were to do this, and I had heard it among the rest. I had heard from some of the parties that they had canvassed, and having set myself to work to counteract it, as I have said, it soon got abroad among those who wished to have their freedoms taken up, that I was about to do the same, so that they came to me, and I took the act of their coming to me as an indication that they wished to be with me politically, because the other party were open to them, and I made no inquiry beyond that.

76,717. Then the plan that was had recourse to, and the course adopted, was tolerably notorious?—Quite so.

76,718. On both sides?—Yes; they were here till nine o'clock at night.

76,719. It was known that there was an intention?—Beforehand it was quite understood.

76,720. By both sides?—Yes; I do not mean to say that the orange party intended it should ooze out, but it did ooze out, and the result was it became well known on both sides.

76,721. On the other hand did you mean that yours should be quite public?—I did not seem to care about it.

76,722. You thought they had some object, but you had none?—I did not see any occasion at all; perhaps I met an old freeman who had been in the habit of voting for the party, and I asked him if he had any sons.

Mr. S. Brown.

8th August 1853.

76,723. Did it occur to you to advertise in the newspapers?—We did not intend it should be exactly so public as that.

76,724. A sort of intermediate kind of publicity that you did not mind it being talked about, although it did not appear in the newspapers?—Quite so.

76,725. Was there any canvass made to them to increase the numbers?—That I am not quite sure about; I may say no, there was no canvass to increase the numbers. I say no at once to that, excepting in the manner I say. If I met an old freeman in Lowgate or passing through the town, I said, "Hallo, old fellow! how are you; have you got any sons?" And so I increased my list of partizans. There was no personal canvass.

76,726. I mean were people solicited?—By myself I dare say.

76,727. You solicited parties when you met them in the street?—Yes.

76,728. How many do you think you solicited yourself?—A very limited number; within half a dozen.

76,729. Four or five perhaps?—Yes, perhaps.

76,730. About that?—I will guard it, if you please, as you have with "perhaps." I really do not know.

76,731. What is the nearest number?—I cannot fix any number. I know I did meet one man, that is fixed on my mind. If you want me to fix a number, I fix one. I do not remember his name, but I remember a circumstance of the sort at the time.

76,732. You say less than six, and you can only remember one?—That is all.

76,733. It was perfectly understood as well, between you and them, that they were to vote for the blue candidates at the first opportunity?—If you mean that it was distinctly understood in terms that they were to vote for the blues, I say no.

76,734. You would have no objection if that is so. You admitted probably as many orange as blue?—No; you are wrong there. I know a little better than that, but I had no understanding with them; that is fixed upon my mind from another circumstance, which arose again out of your question, that the other party had a certain understanding which each man signed. We had none.

76,735. We are quite aware of both those, but do you think the party was considered quite at liberty to vote orange?—Quite so.

76,736. Without any breach at all?—That is matter of opinion.

76,737. That is what I ask?—If I traced a man voting at the subsequent election for the orange party I should have held it personally to have been a breach of political honour; at the same time there was no understanding, not one word.

76,738. What do you mean by understanding?—I mean simply if a party volunteered to come to me rather than go to the other, I took it for granted his political inclination was that way, without any bond or understanding.

76,739. What you said was, "The parties came and applied to me, and I understood from that that they meant to be with us"?—Quite so.

76,740. What I meant by understanding was, whether there was a corresponding understanding or impression upon your mind that you considered that they would vote for you?—I thought they would.

76,741. You would not have paid the money unless you believed they meant to have done so?—I should not have paid the money unless I believed that.

76,742. They would vote blue the next time?—I had no belief at the moment with reference to any one man. I took it for granted that a man's application to me was an indication of public feeling, and I let it rest there.

76,743. Suppose from something that had occurred that it would have crossed your mind that his coming to you was, I will say, a plot, a trap, would you have taken his freedom up?—Oh dear, no.

76,744. Then you would not have taken up anybody's freedom unless you believed him to be a thorough blue?—Yes; I may go that length.

76,745. Did you make any record or minute of the proceedings?—No; that is what I think I told you.

76,746. I only ask a question as to what was done at the Mansion House?—I had a list.

76,747. Was that entered in a book?—No; it was a list of names, and an amount to each. As I paid the amount, that is, as the amount was settled, I paid it in one sum, but as the amount was settled by the town clerk or treasurer, I placed the sum to the man's name as he was admitted, and paid it all at the close.

76,748. You made no inquiry?—No; I am satisfied it was not a part of the business of the association or recognised as such.

76,749. It was rather an irregularity?—I think it was an irregularity, and one of those hasty things that is done in five minutes, and of course could not be recognised as part of the business of the association.

76,750. Still I suppose you drew the attention of the society to it afterwards?—At the moment I dare say I might have held a meeting of the committee on the subject.

76,751. You have told us a meeting took place?—Whether a meeting of the committee or of a few friends, I do not know; if of the committee you will find it on the minutes, but you will not find a list of the names on the minutes.

76,752. How many were there?—I do not know. I am afraid when I come to that part, about the list of names, that the amount must be larger than I mentioned. I do not think there could be less than fifty or sixty.

76,753. 108 is the exact number given to us?—Were they all blues?

76,754. Yes?—Then I must have had more money. I know the cost varied.

76,755. I wished before putting the number to see how far it corresponded with your memory?—It is possible it might be 108, but in that case, I am quite sure, I am wrong as to the amount, because I remember that the bulk of them cost about 30*s.* ahead.

76,756. It is 108?—Then I am wrong as to the amount.

76,757. It is 108?—Then I certainly am wrong as to the amount.

76,758. A witness has been called, who proved the exact number; does your memory agree with that?—If he has proved the exact number he knows it. I speak from memory, and I felt when you came to the list I was wrong.

76,759. I would rather that you would rely on your own memory?—It is possible it might be 108. I know there were a very large number, and we did not get through till midnight.

76,760. Do you believe that is a correct statement?—I believe that, if it has been given in evidence here, for no other reason.

76,761. Does that refresh your memory?—That does refresh my memory as to there being a large number of persons. Have you the number on the other side, that would refresh it still better? I know we had not so many.

76,762. Do you think you had half as many?—Yes. We had not so many, but we had more than half as many; I think we had two-thirds, that would be about the comparative number.

76,763. 236 by the orange. There are 108 by the blues taken up certainly, and the ninety-six doubtful must have been by that taken up by the blues?—Quite so; there were a great number paid for themselves on that occasion.

76,764. You say yours would be about two-thirds of what the orange did?—I think about.

76,765. You took up as many as you could in a short space of time?—It was a very short space of time, they were all thrown together.

76,766. You took up as many as you could find?—Yes, and they came up to the latest hour. It was in order that we might get them through that night. I think a person of the name of Thistleton sat in one place, and I in another, and the official to represent the town clerk took down their names, and there was such a mob that the man had himself to say "blue" or "orange." Then I looked at my list and if I had him down I ticked the man off.

76,767. If he said blue, you paid for him?—Yes; I put him down on my list. We had a means of recognizing them, or a great number of them, because of our prepared lists.

76,768. Who was the gentleman that assisted you?—I had no one there to my knowledge. Whether I had a youth assisting in the office taking the names of persons down, I do not know.

76,769. A man of the name of Pimcey, or Pœmsey, or Podsey has been mentioned as having been associated with you?—No; I remember a Pudsey, a tailor in Hull, but I do not remember anybody of that name as a clerk to me.

76,770. His name has been mentioned as your assistant?—I do not remember any one of that name.

76,771. It lasted a considerable time?—I think we hardly got through by twelve at night.

76,772. What means did you take to ascertain that these were persons whose professions you could rely upon?—Their political professions?

76,773. Yes?—I always relied on the professions of any freeman in Hull, and I never found in six cases that a freeman of Hull failed to fulfil his promise.

76,774. Perhaps you have not seen the mode in which your 108 voted?—I did see that. I kept my minutes until after the publication of the poll book, and I tried it myself, and I think I did not find half a dozen defaulters, I fancy so.

76,775. A great many on the other side defaulted to you?—Then they must go from the cross number; I do not remember from my analysis of the list and the poll book that there were half a dozen that failed me. I remember one man coming and saying he should, I said: "You are all right, go and do as you like." And I did not make any stipulation with him. If you have gone into an analysis of that nature, and you have made a large number fail, I am quite sure you are going wrong; about the number of those that paid for themselves, I speak from memory now, I know there were many men walked into that room and walked out again, rather than they should seem to be identified with one or other party, lest they should be considered to be of the party.

76,776. The information we have comes from the orange party, you may not agree with it. It comes from Mr. Wilde, and it may be you do not agree with his figures?—I do not know where Mr. Wilde obtained his information, but he had nothing to do with that, I think.

76,777. If you have any information as to figures, will you give it us?—I have no information as to figures.

76,778. Mr. Wilde stated 236 were taken up by the orange, 108 were known to have been taken up and paid for by the blues, and 96 either took up their own freedoms, of which two-thirds are supposed to be blues; and then we have an exact analysis of the names of the 108 known to have been taken up by the blues, and the number of defaulters? —May I ask what that number is?

Mr. S. Brown.

8th August 1853.

76,779. Did you examine the poll book after?—I have some recollection that I did.

76,780. Do you recollect this, if you examined the poll book, asserting if all the orange voted orange, and all the blues voted blue, that Mr. Clay would have been returned?—No; I am not aware of anything of the sort, nor do I believe it.

76,781. Can you furnish us with any of the figures?—I cannot; to the best of my recollection and belief, my impression is quite the opposite of that.

76,782. Can you furnish us with any figures to enable us to come to that?—Not the slightest; I speak from memory.

76,783. At present we have it name by name proved. If your memory had been equally good, it would have of course assisted us in correcting the error; but it seems you cannot? —From memory I cannot, I cannot go through them name by name; from documents, I have none.

76,784. It has been done?—It is inaccurate.

76,785. Can you point out the inaccuracies?—I cannot point them out, but I speak from a very strong recollection that the men had done so for the opposite of that that I had hardly a failure.

76,786. Do you believe the orange had hardly a failure?—That I do not know; I never tried that, because I had not an orange list. I speak of the blues, and I speak very fairly too.

76,787. Your opinion is, if it is so, that a considerable number of the orange must have gone over to you afterwards?—That is probable and possible, but of that I know nothing. I have no memory or no knowledge.

76,788. I believe you were very actively engaged on the part of the blues in the election of 1841?—I was.

76,789. Did you hold any office, secretary or clerk to any committee?—I as secretary of the association felt that I was secretary to the committee or something quite equal to it; we had no formal sets of resolutions.

76,790. To the central committee?—Yes.

76,791. Was it there that your duty was carried on?—Entirely.

76,792. And you had minute books and other books?—No. I had not a minute book for election purposes, nor resolutions passed. I believe the plan adopted was, that we should convene a meeting of the association, and that the members of the association present at that meeting should resolve themselves into an election committee and do it forthwith; but I do not believe, speaking from memory, that any of the records of the proceedings were kept in the shape of a minute book, or a committee book.

76,793. There were district committees?—Yes.

76,794. And the chairman and deputy chairman of every district committee was a member of the central committee?—I think not, except as ex-officio they might attend any meeting.

76,795. They did attend?—Occasionally.

76,796. Nearly every day?—No; they were attending to their duties every day, very few of them came.

76,797. Were not some of them there every morning?—I do not recollect one man that came every morning.

76,798. Some came?—There never was a day passed but what certain persons connected with the committee met.

76,799. I ask you generally whether there did not some of the chairmen and deputy chairmen of the districts meet every morning so as to make themselves acquainted with the general nature of the proceedings?—As a rule, I should say no. They might be invited, but as a matter of practice I should say it was very little attended to.

76,800. The chairman did not attend, that is your impression?—That is, regularly. I quite understand what you mean; you mean every morning the chairman and the deputy chairman of the district came to see the course of the previous day's business and to take instructions for that day?

76,801. No; I mean one or two might come one day, and one or two might come another? —Yes, the committee was attended, if that is what you mean by some one or other daily.

76,802. There was a book, we hear, in which the names of runners were set down?—Knowing something of elections and knowing nothing of the proceedings of this Court, may I ask to what the term runners is applied?

76,803. No; I beg you will answer my question. I ask you whether there was not a book kept in which the names of runners were set down?—I do not know.

76,804. Do you mean you have forgotten it?—I have no recollection of keeping such a book, or ordering such a book to be kept.

76,805. I ask whether a book was kept?—I do not know.

76,806. I must ask you to exercise your memory as far as you can. I am asking you about things, about which nobody else has had the slightest hesitation?—They have been connected with the borough since that time; I have not.

76,807. That is the more reason why you should have thought of it, not having your attention distracted by other elections here?—Not here, but I have elsewhere.

76,808. All those questions have been put before to other gentlemen?—I do not know, and therefore I am guarded.

76,809. I do not mean to impute any intention on your part to conceal anything?—I would not on any account. I have come here to do quite the opposite and give you every information I can. I must have your aid, or else if I answer strictly as a question before any other Court, I must answer Yes, or No, to any question as you put it.

76,810. You are asked as to the best of your memory and belief?—If you put me in competition with other witnesses you have had before you, I say I do not know anything about them, or who they are.

76,811. I put the question again, and ask you whether you will undertake to say this, that there was not a book kept within your knowledge in which the names of the runners were set down?—Within my knowledge, belief, and recollection, at this moment—no.

76,812. You believe it is untrue?—Within my knowledge, I speak within my knowledge, and I say—no.

76,813. You never saw such a book?—That is my present feeling, that I never saw such a book; that I paid the messengers I employed, is the fact.

76,814. Messengers I mean?—I employed messengers at my central committee, as many as I thought necessary, and paid them.

76,815. Were not the names returned in a book?—I should certainly keep a record of the payments.

76,816. Would not the payments have the names who paid?—Yes, so far as my messengers are concerned. I took the liberty of interrupting the Court for the purpose of asking in what manner that term was used; the word "runners."

76,817. Messengers if you like?—I use the word messengers. I say at once all the messengers employed by me in active operation at the central committee were paid by me.

76,818. And their names set down by you?—I took every man's receipt and signature.

76,819. Before he was employed was his name set down in a book or on a piece of paper in a list of applicants for employment?—Doubtless I should keep a separate book for that as I always do. I have gone through an election for the City of London, when I have kept a clerk to enter applications for employment and they came to 2,500*l.*

76,820. You did keep a book in which you entered the names of applicants for employment?—All applications and by whom they were sent.

76,821. Had you many applicants?—I think I may answer generally, yes, about the ordinary number.

76,822. For employment generally?—For employment generally.

76,823. Messengers?—Messengers and clerks too; check clerks.

76,824. How long were you employed at this before the election took place?—That I cannot fix my memory to.

76,825. Were you employed as much as a week?—Quite.

76,826. Two?—I think so.

76,827. Six weeks?—I think not.

76,828. Five?—About; not quite, I should think.

76,829. About five weeks?—I should think about four or five weeks.

76,830. Did you pay both before and after the election, or only before, or only after, which?—Both.

76,831. Did you enter any of the names of applicants who were not voters?—I made no distinction.

76,832. Do you think you entered two applicants who were non-voters?—I should think so.

76,833. Three?—More.

76,834. How many?—I cannot say how many.

76,835. How many more than three, can you swear?—I swear to none at all.

76,836. Will you swear you made a single entry?—From memory, I say no. If you ask me what my impression is, I should say a great number.

76,837. You will not swear you put down one?—I will not. And, by the same rule, I will not swear I put down a voter, because I do not know it.

76,838. Do you mean you never asked and ascertained whether a man was a voter?—No.

76,839. Who is the person who would ascertain that?—I suppose the person whose name you will find, if there is such a book in existence, attached to the name in a column which will represent by whom recommended, or by whom sent.

76,840. Now, I ask you, was there not a column for entering the number on the register?—That I do not remember.

76,841. I wish you to refresh your memory?—I do not know if there was.

76,842. I ask you, upon your oath, whether there was not a column for it?—Then I answer upon my oath. I know no such thing; I have no memory at all about it.

76,843. Have you any doubt about it?—I have great doubt, and my doubt rests on one thing. I have no recollection that I ever did such a thing, or allowed it.

Mr. S. Brown.

8th August 1853.

76,844. Did you ever see such a book at Hull, in which there is such a column?—If it is so, I say it is the only book of the sort I have ever seen with the number of the register attached to it.

76,845. Will you pledge your recollection that there is no such column in it?—Oh dear, no. I have no recollection whatever as to the book.

76,846. Have you any reason acting upon your own mind why those numbers should not be put?—Decidedly.

76,847. Will you tell us what it is?—It is this: that the same position I held in that election I have held in many other places, and I never allowed, and I have not done since, (it is true I was very young then), any person to have the power of recognizing whether a man is a voter or not, because in some boroughs it is notorious that they never ask for employment but for their friends.

76,848. It happens to be notorious here that there never was any such thing employed as a man who was not a voter?—I do not know. I took care that the messengers all about me were voters.

76,849. Were they not selected from the voters for the express purpose of influencing the election?—It was understood that they never would take a man in such a capacity unless he was a voter; but if you ask me generally, and our election is mainly dependent upon clerks——

76,850. And others in your own interest?—Quite so.

76,851. Would you not consider it a justification for entering a man in the promise book, that he had made an application for employment to you, and you got his name set down as an applicant for employment?—No. I should consider it a justification for entering a promise in the promise book, if he had applied and been employed, but not if he had only applied.

76,852. Do you remember a person of the name of Newton being one of the persons about your committee?—No, I do not. If you remind me in what capacity he was, I might remember him.

76,853. Can you remember, at the central committee, about how many of such names were so entered in the promise book, in consequence of their being employed?—I do not.

76,854. I can give you the number; upwards of 100?—I think not, unless it included the district.

76,855. No; it included merely that one. I mean the central committee only?—I think not. I think I could swear there was no such number.

76,856. Will you undertake to swear there was not?—I think I can swear there was no such number.

76,857. How many will you pledge your remembrance to?—I speak from memory, and you see how far I am wrong about those admissions to freedoms. But I should think, as far as my memory will serve me, that I never did, or never saw,—and I have seen three elections in Hull,—I never saw more than fifty or sixty employed at the central committee room; and I may add to that, as far as my recollection leads me to give evidence,—and I should like to go to the fullest extent,—and I believe those parties were, as nearly as possible, every one of them employed in one way or another, and always expected to be ready.

76,858. A good deal of trouble, we understand, was taken in finding employment for them?—Very likely you would have had to do so occasionally.

76,859. And that was so in 1841?—Yes.

76,860. A good deal of ingenuity was displayed for that purpose?—Yes; perhaps so, upon some occasions.

76,861. As far as possible, you endeavoured to find employment for every applicant?—Quite so; but they were not strictly looked after. I mean, if you had a pencil at hand, you put a certain number down, and if they were at hand you did not care who was employed and who was not.

76,862. You meant to employ everybody who was an applicant?—Yes; as far as they could within reasonable limits employ them.

76,863. Give us your idea of reasonable limits; was there any limit at all?—I have given you from fifty to sixty; in fact, I know there was a limit. I have rejected the putting down the names of scores of parties, and sent them to their districts for the purpose, and I believe, if anything colourable existed with reference to those lists, it was done by the district committees, and not by the central.

76,864. When you used the word "reasonable," did you mean safe?—What do you mean by "safe"?

76,865. You really must answer the question put to you?—I cannot answer what I do not understand.

76,866. When you made use of the word "reasonable," did you not mean safe, in order that it might not be so apparent that more men were employed than were wanted?—Quite so, if you want it in that way. I thought you meant with reference to men being safe.

76,867. Is that what you meant?—Yes, that is quite right, if that is what you want.

76,868. Of the applicants, you either employed them all or sent them to the district committees?—That was my practice.

Mr. S. Brown.
8th August 1853.

76,869. And returns were made, were there not, as soon as the election was over, of the number of persons who you say were employed and to be paid, made to you?—I remember paying a large number of persons, both attached to the central committee, and, I think, from many of the districts, sent by the authority of the chairmen for that purpose.

76,870. And that were paid at the central committee?—Who were paid at the central committee. I do not say that that was uniform.

76,871. How many did you pay?—That I will not trust to memory to say.

76,872. How many hundreds?—Under a hundred.

76,873. Under 100?—Yes; under 100.

76,874. How many?—I really cannot say; there might be 100.

76,875. 300 you might have paid?—No; I think it might, but I believe I did not.

76,876. 200?—No; I believe I did not pay 200.

76,877. Can you swear you did not pay 200?—I will not swear that. I will swear I did not pay 300, and I believe it was above 200.

76,878. But you will not swear that you did not pay 200?—No.

76,879. You paid all that were paid at the central committee room, did you not?—I believe I did, and that is why I should not like positively to swear, because I might have adopted some persons.

76,880. Have you heard the whole amount of money that was spent?—I do not want to hear that; I know that.

76,881. How much upon that election?—Between 5,000*l.* and 6,000*l.*

76,882. Close upon 6,000*l.*?—Yes.

76,883. On your side?—Yes; just under 6,000*l.*, if my memory serves me right.

76,884. I rather think it came to 6,500*l.*?—I think not.

76,885. Is that so?—I think not. I may be wrong. It is not a matter of very much importance when you come to such heavy numbers as that. I know it was considerable.

76,886. It is over 6,000*l.*?—I believed it to be a little under. I know I made up the accounts, with the total.

76,887. The amount given to us is 6,580*l.*, the question is whether you agree to that?—I thought it was about 3,000*l.* for each of the candidates; my impression was there was 50*l.* or 100*l.* left under the 6,000*l.*

76,888. Was there not a subscription of 800*l.*?—No; I think that is what makes the discrepancy in my mind. I think I closed the accounts with the 5,700*l.*, and I have no knowledge of a subscription at this moment. The subscriptions would be after that for something outstanding, or something of that sort, which was not in my time.

76,889. Do I understand you rightly, when I understood you to say you remained in the town of Hull till some time in the month of October?—I believe so, rather until December.

76,890. How late did your share in the paying continue after the election?—I believe you have had the candidates here, and I think I may answer it in this way: that my share of the payments extended up to their connexion with the election, that is to say, up to the time at which they paid their balance.

76,891. You continued to pay?—Yes.

76,892. That was on the 14th of October?—Yes; I dare say it would be, but I had then done with the association.

76,893. Where else did you pay besides at the central committee?—I should pay bills at the office of the association unquestionably, and the tradesmen's accounts.

76,894. Besides tradesmen's accounts where else did you pay?—I have no knowledge of paying at any other place than at the office of the association, unless you mean by where else did I take the money to certain tradesmen.

76,895. Did you take money for the purpose of being paid to voters?—I have no recollection of doing it at any other place than at the central committee, which was at the George Inn, and at the office of the association.

76,896. I want to know whether you did not pay money at other places besides the office of the association, and at the central committee?—To the best of my recollection and belief, no. If the Court can refresh my memory with any circumstances, I will instantly give all the information that I can.

76,897. I have a list of the money paid at other places?—I see you have, and I have no recollection of any other place myself.

76,898. Will you undertake to swear that you did not?—No; if the Commissioners will pardon me the expression, I really think, seeing that I have no wish to be obtuse, that the best way you can get information from me is not to drive me into swearing, because I swear to nothing hardly; I have no recollection or very little recollection. You put to me certain events, and it will arise in my mind. I have no wish to run counter to the Commissioners at all, but to give every information in my power; but I do not like questions to be put to me that way, as if I did intend to conceal, and had a knowledge beforehand.

76,899. Do you know of the house of Thomas Dalton?—No; unless you give me the whereabouts, I cannot say where it is.

76,900. Do you remember paying him some money?—I do not.

76,901. Do you know Linwood?—No.

Mr. S. Brown.

8th August 1853.

76,902. Did you pay any money there?—No.

76,903. Linwood the plumber?—Do you mean to pay persons at his house?

76,904. Yes?—No.

76,905 Did you pay him any money?—I will not swear; it is possible. I paid a great many persons.

76,906. Do you know that persons were paid at Linwood's?—No, I do not.

76,907. You never heard of it?—No; I never heard of it, to my knowledge.

76,908. Did you never hear till to-day that persons were paid at Linwood's?—To the best of my belief, never.

76,909. Where were the voters paid, in Wincolmlee?—I really do not know; that would be the work of the district committee.

76,910. I should not have pressed you so much, only I thought you were a person who had taken some active share in the election?—I took an active share in the election, but I did not go to Wincolmlee and pay everything that was paid by the district committee. I know very little of the details; I know that the chairman was provided with certain accounts from time to time, and I dare say they returned such accounts as were satisfactory; but as to the bulk of the money, with the exception of the tradesmen's bills, I may say nearly the whole went through the district.

76,911. You may have heard through the district chairman where the money was paid?—It would be paid at the district committee room; at whatever sign it was the East Sculcoates committee sat at, it would be paid there; I paid at the George. No; not to my recollection.

76,912. Have you never heard of such a thing?—I have never heard of such a thing. I don't even know where Linwood's the plumber's is.

76,913. You have never heard of such a thing?—Not to my knowledge.

76,914. Could you hear of it without knowing it?—Yes; I could hear it without knowing it. I heard a great many things about the election at the time, but I have no knowledge of it at all at this moment.

76,915. You may have heard it?—Yes.

76,916. And have forgotten it?—Yes.

76,917. You will not undertake to say you have not heard it?—I have not the slightest hesitation in saying that I have not the slightest recollection of it; but I do not know it. If I recollected it, I would communicate it at once.

76,918. Or at Binks's the painter's; did you pay any money there?—No. Is that in High Street?

76,919. Yes.—Then no, I did not.

76,920. Did you pay any money to anybody?—Not that I know of.

76,921. Your book shows that you paid bills to him?—Yes, a good many bills I paid; publican's balances.

76,922. I only want to know whether you include in your answer that you paid all?—If you ask me if I paid Binks a bill I say I have no knowledge of it. Give me my accounts and examine me upon them, and I say I did not pay that bill. You can examine me at any length, if you give me the account books; then I can fresh my memory.

76,923. In the first place, I do not know that they are your accounts?—Then I do not know. I paid all the moneys, and therefore the chances are that they would be my accounts.

76,924. Was all the money that was paid paid by you?—I believe so, the bulk of it. When I say, that you must take in connexion with my answer that I gave you just now, that it was paid by me to certain persons, named district chairmen, and large payments were made by them; speaking generally, I did pay all the money.

76,925. Do you know the Bay Horse in this town?—I do not.

76,926. Then I need scarcely ask you whether you paid any money there; I mean a public house, the Bay Horse?—I quite understand by the sign that it is a public house; and I answer generally that I paid no freeman for any purpose at any public house; if anybody keeps the Bay Horse and has a bill against the committee, I paid that account and it would be in my account.

76,927. Binks's is not a public house, it is a painter's?—Quite so, and if I saw any memorandum about Binks, that might call it to my mind, I should at once reveal it.

76,928. The question is, whether you paid the voters at Binks's shop?—No, I did not; most certainly.

76,929. Or at the Bay Horse?—No.

76,930. Or at Saville Street, at Mrs. Hopper's?—No.

76,931. Did you ever hear of that lady?—No.

76,932. You know her, perhaps?—I cannot say; I should not know her if I was to see her; but I think I have seen her once or twice.

76,933. You saw her in 1841?—I believe I did. I remember being in the house once; but I cannot call to mind the purpose. I might know her.

76,934. Do you not remember the purpose you went for?—No; I knew Mr. Hopper. I think it was just subsequent to his death. I think he was killed by a fall from a horse.

76,935. It has quite escaped you, the purpose for which you went there?—If you mean was it anything connected with the election, I say, I think not.

76,936. It was about the election time?—It is possible; but I really do not know that.

76,937. Thomas Dalton, whom I spoken to you about, is a teacher of navigation and nautical astronomy, and he lived at No. 7, Mason Street?—I remember, not the person, but the house. I believe it was the West Sculcoates committee room.

76,938. Did you pay money to voters there?—Not to my recollection, I believe not, positively.

76,939. Will you swear you did not?—I want you to avoid that if you please. I am upon my oath, and it makes one feel a little criminal; and although I know your powers, and quite understand that I do not come here ignorant of the nature of an oath, and I quite understand the case; although perfectly prepared, if you will enable me to do so, to give you every information I am in possession of, and therefore I am rather indignant at the way you are putting the questions to me.

76,940. I am obliged to put the questions to you in that form, because your memory is not so good as that of the thousand other witnesses whom we have examined?—As one act of courtesy, may I beg the Court not to remind me again that I am upon my oath?

76,941. What I wish to know is, whether you remember paying any voters at No. 7, Mason Street?—No.

76,942. Will you undertake to pledge your oath, you did not?—No.

76,943. Did you supply the money for the purpose of paying the voters at Linwood's?—It is very likely.

76,944. Did you then pay money for the purpose of paying the voters at Binks's, the painter's?—I do not know that I did; I believe not. If I did, I made a record of it.

76,945. Is it merely that you do not remember, or that you will undertake to pledge your oath that you did not?—I pledge my oath to every word I utter.

76,946. I want to know whether you can pledge your oath simply to that?—As a matter of memory, I have no recollection.

76,947. Still, I want to know this: will you pledge your oath to the fact that it may have occurred, and you have forgotten it?—Oh, dear no.

76,948. Then it may have occurred and you have forgotten it?—It is quite possible; I pledge my oath that I have no recollection of it; but I am quite ready to give every information as far as I know it.

76,949. Did you pay any money in Binks's shop in Witham?—No.

76,950. That you are certain of?—Positive.

76,951. Did you supply any money for the purpose of it being paid at Binks's shop at Witham?—To my knowledge I never did. I supplied money to the district committees, and to such persons as the committee thought well to give it to; and if anybody has said that they got money from me, and that they paid it at a blacksmith's shop, you have it in evidence; but I had no knowledge of it, and I had nothing whatever to do with it.

76,952. It is but right that you should have an opportunity of stating your recollection of it?—I have none.

76,953. If you were to say as positively that it did not occur, as other persons say it did occur, we should have a greater amount of difficulty?—I assert positively that I never paid money in a blacksmith's shop.

76,954. Did you supply the money for the purpose?—Not to my knowledge. I believe not.

76,955. It may have occurred and have escaped your memory?—Quite so.

76,956. Did you supply money for the payment of the voters at Thomas Dalton's, in Mason Street?—Not to my knowledge.

76,957. Here again I observe: do you mean to pledge your oath that it did not occur, or merely that it has escaped your memory?—I believe that I supplied money to the chairman of the district committee, which was held there, and he did as he thought proper with it.

76,958. Did you supply it for the purpose, knowing it was to pay the voters?—I do not understand what you mean by that; you are here to inquire into corrupt practices.

76,959. It has been stated by the candidates themselves with the greatest frankness, that an enormous sum of money was spent for the express purpose of bribery; that has been made no secret of?—I am very sorry to hear that the candidates should know that. I now see how you are driving me, if I have a knowledge of anything of that sort. I pledge my oath I have no knowledge of large sums being applied for bribery.

76,960. Not large, but small?—No, neither large nor small; and I never was directly or indirectly concerned in paying any voter in this borough as a bribe for his vote, that is my answer; therefore, if we can get out of this money groove and into the right one, I shall be glad.

76,961. I am not talking of a bribe; but sums of money to voters after they had voted?—I did not make the payments there.

76,962. As rewards we will call them?—No; I recognize no such thing as a money payment as a consideration before or after to any voter by my hands within this borough; that I positively state.

Mr. S. Brown.

8th August 1853.

76,963. Did you give any money to Mr. M'Cullum, who was formerly a clerk of Mr. Gleadow, the brewer?—It is very likely I did give him money; if I did it must be in connexion with some committee which Mr. Gleadow, the brewer, was connected with as chairman or something of that sort; but I do not know that I did.

76,964. Did you supply Mr. Freebody with any money?—It is very likely. Mr. Freebody was very active in Sculcoates or North Myton, I do not know which.

76,965. £200 to Mr. Freebody?—No, I believe not; that seems rather too large a sum for me to give to Mr. Freebody, either before or after the election; speaking from memory, I should say not.

76,966. You say not as much as that?—I do.

76,967. How much in your memory?—I do not remember giving him any money or cheque or anything of the sort.

76,968. No cheque or money?—No.

76,969. Can you undertake to say you did not give some money to Mr. M'Cullum or Freebody?—I think it is very likely I did to M'Cullum; but I think it is more than likely I did not to Freebody; I think I should have had memory enough to recollect giving him 200*l.*

76,970. Who in your belief is the person that Mr. Freebody had the money from?—I do not know that he ever had any.

76,971. Assuming that fact?—That I cannot tell.

76,972. What is your belief upon the subject?—I have no belief; I should not dream of any belief; where Mr. Freebody got the money from, I do not know; he did not get it from me if he got 200*l.*

76,973. Can you say positively that he did not get it?—I do distinctly. I never gave Mr. Freebody 200*l.* in my life.

76,974. Did you hear who he got the money from?—I never heard of such an event in connexion with any election in Hull, until it was put to me by yourself.

76,975. As what?—As his having or making use at any election of 200*l.* I never heard of such a thing until this instant.

76,976. Not any money at all?—That is another thing.

76,977. How much is it?—I do not recollect that he ever had 5*l.* from me for any purpose.

76,978. £5 from you?—No.

76,979. But as much from other persons interested in the election?—I do not believe that any person would give him money, and I have no knowledge of it. If any money is set down in my account as being handed to Mr. Freebody, it has been from some other member of the committee and not from myself; but if it comes from the election money, cognizance would be taken of it and it would be in the account.

76,980. Who would be the person to pay Mr. Freebody?—I do not know of any person who should do it.

76,981. All that you can speak of is, with respect to Mr. Freebody, about 5*l.*?—I do not speak to that as the sum; and therefore I beg that you will not be very nice about matters of that sort. If I recollected that I gave him 5*l.*, or 10*l.*, or 50*l.*, or 100*l.*, or 200*l.*, I would say so at once. I have no knowledge. I never did give Mr. Freebody such a sum as 200*l.*, and I could not give it without recollecting it.

76,982. £50?—I have no recollection of anything of the sort.

76,983. Nor 200*l.*?—No; nor 5*l.* in fact.

76,984. Do you remember handing over any money to Mr. Mitchell for the purpose of paying the voters?—I do not know him unless you can refresh my memory about him, unless you bring him up like Dalton.

76,985. A tobacconist, in the Market Place?—I do not think I should give him any money for election purposes; Mr. Mitchell, if I remember Hull when I was in it, was decidedly opposed to me in politics.

76,986. Do you know any Mr. Mitchell who was a blue?—I do not; unless you can refresh my memory who he is and what he is. I think it might very much shorten your questions, if you were to put that book in my hands; I could give you all the information.

76,987. Is that in your handwriting (H. J.)?—Yes; that is my writing.

76,988. Does that book contain all the payments made except the payments made to the messengers and runners?—I think that ought to contain all that I thought my book contained; everything that I did pay; here are the publicans and sundries. I believe that book contains all the payments I made in respect of the election, with the exception of the messengers; and when I say messengers I do not see that here unless it is in the sundries.

76,989. Under what head would it come?—They would come as a separate class.

76,990. Be kind enough to look through and see if they are excluded?—They are excluded.

76,991. Are you satisfied about that?—I believe they are not here; I think I should take the signature as one, and put the voucher alongside the payment.

76,992. What runners do you mean?—Messengers.

76,993. All employed at the election?—Yes; all employed at the election at the central committee; that is, I should pay them separately; they would be paid immediately on the close of the poll and be discharged on the night of the poll, that is my habit, whether 40*l*., 50*l*., 60*l*., or 100*l*.

76,994. Were there any entries made in any book at all of the payments made to the voters after the election?—I think I may say no, unless it was in that book, it would be on a sheet of paper; I should take the signature, perhaps, of each man.

76,995. There were a great number of payments to make?—Yes. I beg pardon, I can refresh my memory—this is a sort of ledger of events subsequent to the election. I should have a small cash book of all cash paid by me, perhaps I received 100*l*. on account. I paid the messengers on Saturday night of the week following—clerks and so on; that book would be kept by me as a record of the messengers; final payments would be entered in that book as against me as a private matter of my own to the central committee.

76,996. In what book would there be any entry of the sums disbursed for the purpose of being distributed amongst the voters after the election was over?—I know of no such distribution; I took no part in any such distribution; I never heard of it.

76,997. Would you enter in any book money that passed through your hands, and the names of the persons to whom you made those payments?—No.

76,998. Not in any book?—Not the names, certainly.

76,999. Not the names of the persons to whom; I do not mean the names of the voters, but the names of the persons who are to dispense it?—I should not at all. I should have vouchers for what I should call the petty cash book; if I had 100*l*. to pay the messengers with on the Saturday night I should take a voucher from each.

77,000. Assuming we are satisfied with the evidence that money was distributed here or there by somebody who must have had large sums of money, not by you, would you enter in a book the sums given for that purpose, of being distributed among the voters in small sums?—No; and if they were I never saw such sums except as are in this book.

77,001. I thought you said that the whole of the money passed through your hands?—That is true, I believe; and when I say the whole, pretty nearly the whole.

77,002. Assuming, I do not say whether it is so or not, but assuming that subsequently to its passing through your hands, a large portion of it was distributed among the voters; I want to know whether you have any entry of it?—No; it would not be distributed through my hands, and whoever it was that governed the election in the particular district would do it.

77,003. Look at that book, there are no payments to chairmen in that, it is made up of balances?—There must have been separate payments to chairmen, which would be a small amount kept by the chairman, Mr. Clifford Pease.

77,004. What are those?—This is Austin Trinity ward.

77,005. Is the book kept by you?—No; it is not payments by me; allow me, I will give you an explanation: after the election is over the chairman of the Austin Trinity ward presents to me his accounts for payment. I collect them and put them under this head, and I put each of the accounts down here, and when and how they are paid I put on this side as you see it here; but in some cases if the chairman of Sculcoates district committee required during the election 50*l*. or 100*l*. he walked down to the chairman of the central committee, and in some cases, from memory I say it, the chairman of the central committee would give a cheque for 100*l*. on account.

77,006. Mr. Ward would do that?—No, I think Mr. Clifford Pease.

77,007. Your recollection is that Mr. Clifford Pease made payments to the district committees?—Upon account; and I may put in truth with reference to my payments in the same way, and you will understand it better, if not the outset of the election, Mr. Clifford Pease gave me 100*l*. I kept a book of the payments made by me at the central committee, whether of the clerks, messengers, or finally of the check clerks, and put it in a book and we should balance it.

77,008. I am asking you now of payments that were made after the election?—This book I believe contains the whole.

77,009. I am not talking of bills incurred during the election, I am talking of payments made in the different wards to the voters at various intervals during the election?—That I never knew anything of; I never knew anything of such payments.

77,010. How did you distribute sums of money that came into your hands from the candidates after the election was over?—It did not come into my hands from the candidates.

77,011. How did it come into your hands?—Through the chairman, Mr. Clifford Pease.

77,012. Did you have money continually coming into your hands?—For these purposes, and this is the account.

77,013. You had money coming into your hands for sometime after the election was over; as long as the candidates were paying, the money passed through your hands?—Yes.

77,014. You say whether an amount of 6,000*l*., or nearly so, passed through your hands, there are 3,298*l*. only in that book accounted for; what I want to know is, whether you entered in any other book the difference between these two accounts?—No; my reply is this: you seem to express a little surprise at it, but that book only contains balances of bills, publicans' bills and that sort of thing, which is to be accounted for in this way: each chairman would come to the central committee, and ask for a cheque for

Mr. S. Brown.

8th August 1853.

50*l.* or 100*l.*; those were written and handed over to the chairman, and we had an account other than this from the chairmen after the election, showing that there are certain bills left to pay, and I take a record of those bills here.

77,015. I want to know to whom did you distribute the money that came into your hands from time to time, from the termination of the election up to the time that you closed your accounts some months after?—To the present moment these are all contained in this book generally, I know of no others.

77,016. Am I to understand that you made no payments after the close of the election except what are entered in this book?—Yes; with the exception of what I have spoken of, and that is, the clerks and messengers, and others at the central committee, who would be cleared off upon the night of the election or the day following.

77,017. What I want to get at is this: whether you made any payments, whether it was at the expiration of three or four days after the termination of the election, at the ultimate close of the account, except what appears in this book?—You ask me the question again and again, and I must answer: I paid the messengers, perhaps the band, flagmen, or anything of that nature, and I cleared all off within two days of the election; so far as the messengers and clerks, the polling clerks are not entered in that book; every one employed in the election were paid and are entered in the book.

77,018. I exclude those two days, and I say commencing at the interval of two or three days after the election?—I speak from memory when I speak of two days; it is possible some of that class might have been paid after; for instance, the check clerks might have been left, and the band might have been left for four days.

77,019. Shall I say after the following Saturday?—That may be so.

77,020. And you paid no sums of money from the expiration of the election week until you concluded your labours, except what are mentioned in this book?—I believe not; I have no knowledge of anything of the sort.

77,021. But that you did pay in the election week probably from day to day?—Yes.

77,022. And kept finishing up the messengers' accounts which are entered upon some paper?—Yes.

77,023. What became of those papers?—They would be with all the vouchers; there are vouchers for every one of those amounts.

77,024. Why were they not entered in this book?—Because it was for a separate purpose; it was for the bills and district accounts. I will tell you why they were not: when the election was over the chairman would know what money was gone out of his hands, and he would know what residue he had, and he would so calculate the matters and see how he stood and get it cleared off.

77,025. Did you take any part in the admission of the freemen that took place on the part of the blues, immediately after the election of 1841?—No; I do not recollect anything occurring, not one in my life of that nature.

77,026. Upon the 1st of July there were some blue freedoms taken up in the year of the election?—I have no recollection of it.

77,027. You have no recollection upon the subject?—Not any; I had nothing whatever to do with it, and I never heard of such a thing; there must have been very few, perhaps more imaginary than real.

77,028. You did not take any share in it?—No; if it was anything like bordering on what I have spoken of already.

77,029. No; it is not anything like the number, it is very small?—What number?

77,030. It is very immaterial if you do not remember it?—No; I have no knowledge of it at all.

77,031. Did you return to this place on the election business at any time, after you left it at the time you speak of?—No.

77,032. You never came back?—Never at any time; I came back to Hull, but I never was connected with the political affairs.

77,033. On no political matters?—No.

77,034. You had nothing to do with the payments of arrears?—No, touching this inquiry.

77,035. You ceased to have a vote before the next election?—Yes.

77,036. Had you anything to do with the election of 1847?—Oh no, not at all.

77,037. Or 1852?—No.

77,038. I believe when the freedoms were taken up in 1839, an election was immediately pending?—We expected it.

77,039. Immediately?—At the close it was anticipated as being so near, that I said it would be useless to take up the freedoms, for they would not be eligible to vote.

77,040. The object of taking them up was for the direct purpose of securing the votes?—Yes; as far as my recollection is concerned.

77,041. Did you not understand the object of taking up the freedoms was for the direct purpose of securing the votes?—Securing a certain number to counteract the influence of a certain number of others.

77,042. Was it not for the express purpose of securing votes?—Such votes as I paid for?

77,043. Yes?—Decidedly it was.

77,044. And you paid for them yourself?—Yes.

77,045. That is the blue party?—Yes.

Mr. S. Brown.

8th August 1853.

77,046. Who was the principal professional man at the election of 1841?—If I remember rightly it was Mr. Roots; he came from London at the instance of Mr. Quin to watch the interest of Sir Walter James—he was about the town; but when you say professional man, I think it was a mere friend; he took no part in the election, he walked about the town, dined with Mr. Barkworth, and so on.

77,047. Was he an attorney?—No; Mr. Roots of the Temple, a barrister.

77,048. When I used the words "professional man," I mean a solicitor; do you know anybody who was the principal solicitor at the election?—There was a solicitor; Mr. Rollit took part in the election I think; I fancy he did; I think he looked after us a good deal, and Mr. Dryden, and all the solicitors in the town; I know Mr. Dryden took a very active part upon the petition matter.

Mr. JOHN ROLLIT recalled, and examined

Mr. John Rollit.

77,049. Did you take any part in that election?—No; neither Mr. Dryden nor myself took any part in the election.

77,050. But you took an active part in the scrutiny, and Mr. Digby too?—Yes.

Mr. SAMUEL BROWN recalled, and examined.

Mr. S. Brown.

77,051. You have not read Sir Walter James's evidence?—No.

77,052. He stated to us on Tuesday last that he was aware of a certain number of the poorer electors, who chose to come, that were allowed to put their names down in a book, and were allowed 5*s.* a day on both sides, which was not confined to either party; have you not a general knowledge also of that?—No; if I may be allowed to give my opinion, I would give it as fairly as Sir Walter James seems to have done. I dare say he might from certain matters that reached his ears imply that; but I believe, being engaged in all the elections, that it was not done with the view of bribery, not done largely in that way at the central committee; if it was done so it was done in the districts.

77,053. Do you agree with Sir Walter James in another matter in which he said no doubt there was a good deal of colourable employment?—Doubtless; I think that is the fault of the borough; that is the only thing you can well find against it.

77,054. Such as might perhaps implicate persons employed as agents but not as being bribed?—Quite so.

77,055. And render them liable to be struck off as agents, but not as being bribed?—Yes, which would render the election exceedingly doubtful, if evidence were procured of that nature before a committee of the House of Commons, if done by certain parties.

77,056. And was it your wish and endeavour in employing messengers or runners, to whom you alluded, to give some such employment as would keep them out of the terms of it?—Yes, it was done. I remember ordering them to appear at nine o'clock in the evening, whether I had anything for them to do or not.

77,057. You said sometime ago a good many remained about the room?—Yes, we had always plenty about.

77,058. And if you could get a job for them you did?—Yes; I paid the most of them. I sent them to every district to see how they were going on, and things of that sort.

77,059. Sir Walter James also added, "You could not go round Hull without noticing that such a practice prevailed"?—Quite so; it has been the prevailing practice in the borough, and was so at that time.

77,060. And he also said it was the mode adopted by both parties to procure votes for colourable employment?—It was so, I believe. Direct payments for votes, I do not believe, existed very largely at that time.

77,061. And Mr. Clay informed us he did not think the practice of open bribery prevailed, but colourable employment to a very great extent?—That is my idea.

77,062. Who supplied you with money?—I believe Mr Clifford Pease.

77,063. All of it?—Yes, entirely; I think he took charge of it.

77,064. In making your payments to the district committees, had you directions to pay the sums that they asked for, during the time of the election?—I believe the chairmen made personal applications to the chairman of the central committee, and I sat alongside of him upon his left hand.

77,065. You paid under his directions?—No, he drew his own cheques, and handed them over; those were payments by cheque; all my own were cash payments.

77,066 Was it the course for the chairman of the district, or some one from him, to make an application to the central committee?—It was.

77,067. And then the money which was needed was supplied?—Yes, it was supplied directly to his own hands.

77,068. And probably he would have to exercise his own discretion in the disbursement of it?—Quite so; that is one thing that makes one appear so ignorant as you seem to imagine.

Mr. S. Brown.

8th August 1853.

77,069. Your attention having been drawn to your own book, I understand you to say, with regard to the payments of the district committees, that the book would not show what payments they had made, but it would show balances remaining unpaid?—Precisely; I say in reference to that, it does not show the whole amount spent in either of the districts of Sculcoates.

77,070. I understand the book seems to have reference to each district committee?—Yes.

77,071. But with regard to balances unpaid, rather than the payments that they have made?—Yes.

77,072. There would be a considerable item of the expenses that that book does not furnish, namely, the amounts that the committees did pay?—Precisely.

77,073. That would be certain payments, which accounts were furnished to them for payment?—Precisely.

77,074. That would very materially fill up the gap between what the book shows and the actual amount?—Yes, I account for it in this way. I was glad to know what the account represented, and it instantly called to my mind the manner in which it was paid.

77,075. We make the sum by this book under 3,000*l.*?—Then the difference will be disposed of in the manner I say, to the different parties during the election.

77,076. I think I understood you to say you thought you paid about 200 men at the central committee?—No, I think not.

77,077. Altogether?—No; not so many.

77,078. Without regard to the number, although the course was to pay them each week?—Each week we should not have money. This borough is not like many others; we did not have 50, 60, or 100 messengers, or as many as might be imagined; in this borough we do not supply them with basket money, that is 30*s.* a week for doing nothing,—we only paid such men as were actually necessary for the business of the committee up to the last week, and when the business decreased, we decreased them without reference to whether there were 30, 40, or 50.

77,079. Exclusive of the last, would the payments be weekly payments?—Yes, for services positively performed.

77,080. Why would those names not appear in that book?—Only that I account for it in this way. I had a small memorandum book, in which I gave credit to the chairman for 100*l.* for running expenses, and I go on with my payments to the end of the election. This book is merely drawn out to show the balance that was outstanding against the candidates at the close of the election in the different districts.

77,081. I speak of your own payments?—That would be personal; it would be a small memorandum book; my memory serves me to that extent, that I can give a voucher for every penny that was expended by me as against the sums received from the chairman.

77,082. Does your recollection furnish you to this extent, whether that book would be confined to those payments, such as payments of messengers and clerks?—Yes, with the exception of the ordinary petty cash items.

77,083. That book has been carefully made under different heads, that made up your vouchers which you had at some time or other?—Quite so; and I supplied the vouchers for every one of them.

77,084. Would not the messengers be equally mentioned as a total?—That book was not commenced till after the election, and no more related to the matter during the course of the election, than the payments of the district messengers.

77,085. But the total that it shows was collected before the end of the election, of course?—That is true.

77,086. But the book was not entered or made up till after?—Not until after.

77,087. Have you had the materials before you, the vouchers and so on, of who made the payments?—Yes.

77,088. And you would have had the petty cash book with the vouchers also before you?—Yes, done with.

77,089. Still why were they not entered in the book with the rest?—It was not intended to show the total.

77,090. I am merely speaking of the runners of your own district?—I do not call that my own book; my book would be the current payments and petty cash.

77,091. If I understand the book right, it is one that you made up from materials furnished to you?—From the district chairmen mainly, and from the general accounts, that is, for fly hire and such things under the sanction, and supplies under the direction of the central committee as well.

77,092. I do not mean to draw your attention to anything done in the district committees, but merely as having reference to the messengers and so on, employed and paid at your own place by yourself?—No; that book was commenced after the election. My book would be the small cash book showing the payments with vouchers as they went along.

77,093. Tell us what the extent of your acquaintance with Mrs. Hopper is?—I do not remember at all.

77,094. We have been told that she sat very well dressed behind a screen, and that she made payments to the voters in the nature of messengers and runners; sitting behind a door, and putting a delicate hand forward with money in it, and a person took it; that lady was known to be Mrs. Hopper, and the payments were made in that way. Is that the first detail you have heard?—It is the first thing bearing on anything of the nature that I have heard. I thought Mrs. Hopper's name had been mentioned in connexion with some corrupt practice or other I never heard of; I was very sorry she committed herself to such an extent.

77,095. I merely ask if you heard it?—Not at all. I think I may say now, having heard it, I went in with a friend of hers, in consequence of the death of her husband; he went to sympathize with her, and I went with him.

77,096. Did you give up all your books to Mr. Sidebottom?—No.

77,097. Who did you give up the books to?—No one; I left them in the office.

77,098. You left them in the room?—Yes.

77,099. You have a distinct recollection of the little petty cash book?—Yes, I have a distinct recollection of a small red book, that I kept from the first to the last.

77,100. Something of the same sort or character as the little book produced by Mr. Ward?—Yes; I believe it was a red covered book.

77,101. This belongs to Mr. Ward, and shows the nature and the mode that he made the payments. I is not handed to you in any way as connected with the election?—Mine would be quite of another character. This is rather general for the expenses of the entire election; mine is quite in the nature of a cash book for payments to messengers and clerks.

77,102. It was left with the other payments in the committee room?—Yes, it was; it would be left with that book and vouchers.

77,103. There are some other voters whom some reference is made to in Hedon, Cottingham, and Barton. Do you know anything of paying them?—No, not at all. I must correct you in that. I saw the names who may be identified with those, or something of that sort, but I cannot say.

77,104. And some money was furnished to Mr. Grayburn?—I do not remember him.

77,105. We have had evidence that he was an agent at Barton for voters there; and I see you make an entry, "Grayburn, Barton, 31*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.*"?—There is no doubt I paid some to Mr. Grayburn of Barton, but for what purpose I cannot say; it would be under authority.

77,106. "Mr. John Stubbins' bill, Hedon, 50*l.* 17*s.*" a brewer at Hedon?—Yes, it is a large sum. I remember the gentleman.

77,107. Do you know whether he managed the Hedon voters?—I believe he took some interest with the parties down there; he was requested to have them up at the poll.

77,108. And look a little after their expenses?—Yes.

77,109. And keep them in good humour?—Yes. You will see many entries of publicans' bills; that was one of the things to keep them in a good humour.

77,110. £25 12*s.* to Mr. James Robinson, of Hedon?—I do not remember that, I think; although the nature of the entry seems to imply that it would be the Hedon voters too.

77,111. The entry with regard to Robinson is, "Publicans: James Robinson, Hedon, 25*l.* 12*s.*"?—Then Robinson's would be a bill incurred doubtless by Mr. Stubbins, or some one for the Hedon voters at Hedon.

77,112. The other does not so easily explain itself; it is under the explicit heading of "Sundries." "Mr. John Stubbins' bill, Hedon, 50*l.* 17*s.*"; and again, "By Hammond, 11*l.* 16*s.*" We understand the Hedon voters are not above twenty?—Yes, they were always rather expensive; I do not believe they had any money payments.

77,113. But a liberal allowance for their expenses?—Yes, quite so. Hedon, before the Reform Bill, was exceedingly notorious for very heavy payments; and having decided to take in kind, they were rather more extravagant than voters generally were.

77,114. A liberal payment for the purpose of refreshments?—Yes; refreshments before they went, and after they came back; they are accustomed to it.

77,115. There is direct evidence of their payment in 1847; direct money?—I do not know of it.

77,116. We understand that the old custom was four guineas and two?—I believe that was so for Hedon, and I believe it was so for this borough also.

77,117. Tell us what the course was with regard to the out-voters in 1841?—There was no system of payment; there might be certain invitations issued by a certain party that they should meet at a certain house in Hedon, and a certain amount would be spent without limiting that it should be brought under the head of treating; they would be provided with conveyances to bring them to town in tolerable style, a pair of horses and flags, and that sort of thing would seem nothing; it would cost 2*l.* or 3*l.* a head, and it would be covered in that way; it was not a money payment.

77,118. It would come to something pretty considerable for loss of time in fact?—Yes; I should not wonder if some of the lower classes of voters would not make a direct application to receive a certain sum for their loss of time for the day; it is quite probable, if they came over without a conveyance being provided, something in the form of compensation would be given them.

Mr. S. Brown.

8th August 1853.

77,119. If they were provided with eating and drinking, and being carried to the poll, there is not much left to account for?—Loss of time makes a great item in election matters.

77,120. Was that the system, to bring them here, feed them well, and give them something for loss of time?—I think that was the system.

77,121. About a pound a head?—I think it would be less; but I think the Barton and Hedon voters would require to receive something for loss of time for that day.

77,122. Something about a pound a day?—I think it would be less.

77,123. Did you not give them a good supper at Christmas?—I do not know; that would be a local act.

77,124. Let me ask you, with regard to the actual payment of these persons, by whose authority would that 50*l.* be paid by you?—I believe there would be no authority; I believe Mr. Stubbins would receive general instructions to see after the Hedon voters, and say he had done this, and done that, and make a great parade, and the Hedon voters would cost him so much, and we should try and get it for so much less.

77,125. And then you would say, "Show us your vouchers"?—No, we could not do that.

77,126. You gave him a liberal agency?—We should take it for granted, and take as much off as we could.

77,127. I think you said you left here about October?—I corrected that; it was about the month of December.

77,128. Some of the payments are as late as November?—Yes, in the month of December I paid it.

77,129. You have stated that is the way you deal with Mr. Stubbins; is that the way in which other agents are employed to get up voters in different places?—Do you mean different boroughs?

77,130. I mean in Hull?—Oh dear, no; if you take that as the practice of the borough you are wrong; you must take that as referring to the out-voters, such as Barton, Hedon, and outlying within the seven miles' range.

77,131. You have stated that Mr. Stubbins was the agent to deal with the Hedon voters?—Yes, to the best of my belief.

77,132. And that he came after the election to you and said, he had expended a large sum of money to get the voters, and you gave him the money?—I believe so.

77,133. You struck off a certain sum, and paid the remainder?—Yes.

77,134. Is that the way you dealt with other agents in Hull, who stated to you that they had procured voters?—No.

77,135. Then you confine that to Hedon?—Yes, I do, and to Barton.

77,136. And Cottingham and the outlying places?—You may say no other place, because there is no other place where there is any considerable number.

77,137. You have had a great deal of experience as a political agent?—Yes.

77,138. Tell me as shortly as you can, what in your understanding was the system of employment at Hull in 1841; how was it worked out?—I will tell you; although I have not seen the evidence of any person in this borough, my own recollection, from what experience I have had elsewhere is, that bribery in Hull will not come under that direct head of bribery; you will not find, I speak with submission, that you can report that persons are found universally open to corruption by direct money offers; if so, the constituency is very much changed since I knew it; the system prevailing at the two elections which I have known in Hull, has been, that certain influences have been brought to bear, both in business and everything of that character, upon certain parties employed by certain other parties; that those parties all expected the lower orders,—and I do not confine myself to the freemen,—because the lower orders of householders were infinitely worse than some of the freemen; the lower orders were in the habit of requesting to be employed, and that employment was not given from the central committee, as you seem to imply, but it was given by the districts; if any extra number had been paid, other than those who were actually employed, the employment was given in the districts to which they belonged, and it was with a view of their being more immediately looked after by the district committee, and the more readily taken to the poll, that they had those lists; if they were colourable and large, and the lists were numerous from the central committee, it would not have done; they never knew anything about it, and the payments were made from the districts at 5*s.* or 10*s.*, I do not know what it was that used to prevail. There is another thing, which is the opening of public houses.

77,139. The system was, that the parties should be set down in each district?—Quite so.

77,140. And up to the last week only a limited number should be employed?—Quite so.

77,141. And during the last week the whole of those who were willing to be employed should be?—That is hardly within my knowledge to say so. You ask me what was previous; my impression is that each district would use its own discretion as to the number; I do not say they would employ the whole whose names were down, perhaps one half might have gone to the other side that were put down for employment, and during the last week a certain number would be put down knowing they would vote for them.

77,142. Did they not in the last week employ all they could get to be employed?—No, I do not think it prevailed to such an extent.

77,143. Why not?—Because they would not be open to anything like what I have seen in other boroughs, take Nottingham for instance; I know in some boroughs it prevails that parties shall go and have their names set down to receive money first from one and then from the other. I do not believe that did prevail here; therefore my answer is, I am quite satisfied they would be sure of their men out of the number.

77,144. Would they not find some employment for all who were on?—No doubt.

77,145. Besides this mode of employment, was there a means taken of giving orders to people for goods?—Do you mean publicans?

77,146. To anybody?—I believe the district committees exceedingly foolishly permitted certain parties to have a certain quantity of drink. If it was in the neighbourhood of a ship yard for instance, a beershop keeper would be told generally by the chairman of the district, "Supply your customers whom you know connected with the ship yard to the tune of 5*s.*"

77,147. You are confining it to 1841?—I think so, from looking at that book; I think it would prevail largely in 1841.

77,148. There was a large sum of money expended at the publicans'?—Yes.

77,149. What in the ordinary course of a Hull election are the expenses at a committee room?—At the central?

77,150. No, at a district committee room?—My answer to that is, that they vary with the extravagance of the chairman, it just depends on that; you may have a very injudicious chairman, or a very temperate one; and I have known a district committee's expenses vary eighty per cent. at least.

77,151. Would they generally consist of the payments to messengers?—No, I do not think they would. I am afraid you a little misunderstand that. I am quite satisfied, from my own experience in this borough, that it never prevailed in the manner in which we have had the evidence out before the Liverpool committee.

77,152. Will you tell me what are the items of expenditure at a district committee?—They are before you, and you will see they vary both as to the magnitude of the items and the kind of items; they vary in their kind, and they vary in their magnitude.

77,153. The amount accounted for in that book seems to be about 3,300*l.*; the whole expenses of the election, as far as the evidence has gone, seems to be about 6,500*l.*; will the difference between the two sums represent the amount that was paid to the messengers?—No.

77,154. What would it represent besides?—The current expenses of every committee room during its existence, other than those that appear in that book as bills left unpaid.

77,155. In that book the sum of money paid to the different district committee rooms amounts to 1,250*l.*?—Yes.

77,156. Besides that, there is to be accounted for at that election the sum of 3,300*l.*, making the money paid to the district committees on that occasion 4,500*l.*?—That is not so.

77,157. It is according to the evidence that I understand you have given as to that book?—No.

77,158. You have said, that the money that does not appear in that book, was money paid by the chairman of the central committee to the chairmen of the district committees?—Yes.

77,159. That sum amounts to 3,300*l.*?—That is another amount, you did not say so before.

77,160. Taking the whole expenses of that election to be 6,500*l.*, there is a sum expended upon that election, according to the evidence, not accounted for in that book, amounting to the sum of 3,300*l.* There is in your book the sum of 1,250*l.* paid to the district committees?—Yes.

77,161. Those two sums together make up 4,500*l.*, that will therefore be the sum paid to the district chairmen according to your evidence. Can you at all explain how that money was spent in 1841?—Now I understand the manner you put it to be this: you bring the total expenses up to 4,500*l.*, as against 6,500*l.*, and you ask has the difference of 2,000*l.* gone into the hands of the district chairmen during the election; I say, yes; about that sum would.

77,162. There is a sum of 4,500*l.* given to district chairmen; can you, with your experience, tell me how that sum would be spent in 1841?—Yes; current expenses during the election, which the chairmen of the district committees would receive from the chairman of the central committee.

77,163. Your book contains items for cabs, colours, flagstaffs, and publicans, amounting to 233*l.*?—Is that all?

77,164. And for printers 274*l.* I want to know, those items being accounted for in your book, how the sum of 4,500*l.*, the difference, would be expended in the districts?—You said 2,000*l.*

77,165. I have told you 4,500*l.* remains to be accounted for in the districts?—No, I think you are getting wrong; there is in that book you tell me in the whole 3,300*l.*

77,166. Yes?—That can but leave 3,000*l.*

Mr. S. Brown.

8th August 1853.

77,167. I have told you 1,250*l.* of that is money paid for the district committees?—Quite so.

77,168. Then there is also 3,300*l.*, according to your evidence, gone to the district chairmen during the election, which is not in your book?—I think you are wrong; I think about 2,000*l.* would be the sum paid.

77,169. What is it expended for?—I can only deal with impressions, and I should say one item that you mentioned appears for the entire borough to be very small; that is 270*l.* for publicans' bills; I should say that the bulk of that money was spent. There are district publicans' accounts; perhaps there were advances made, and those may be the balances.

77,170 May we take it, that the whole sum expended in the districts, was expended either in treating or in payment of messengers?—I should not like to go so far as that. I think what you call paying messengers would be exceedingly limited; it would not at all be confined to that; how it was spent would be known to the chairmen.

77,171. Colours, cabs, printing, and all those ordinary expenses being accounted for, I want you to tell me how the money was spent, in your judgment?—As to the colours, and things of that nature, which seem to be there, it does not follow, although that seems to be large, that there were not district accounts of the same nature. I believe there were many paid by district chairmen.

77,172. Did you at that election know or hear during the election, or after it, that money was paid to the voters in the streets, or in any place where concealment was used by the persons paying it?—I never did. I never heard it intimated till I heard it in Court to-day.

77,173. How much were you paid that election?—I really forget whether it was 100*l.* or not.

77,174. Would it be more than that?—I think it would not. I think it was about 100*l.*

77,175. Do you mean paid to you as one fee?—Yes.

77,176. 100*l.*?—Whatever the amount was.

77,177. Would you have any account to render besides that?—No, certainly not.

77,178. Would all the money that came to you personally be 100*l*?—That would be all I should get.

Mr. H. Gibson.

Mr. Henry Gibson sworn, and examined.

77,179. Where do you live?—In Prospect Street.

77,180. What is your business?—A surgeon.

77,181. What rent do you pay for a house?—I live in my own house.

77,182. What are you rated at?—£40.

77,183. Are you a freeman?—No.

77,184. Are you a voter?—Yes.

77,185. At what election were you first entitled to vote?—1841.

77,186. Who did you vote for at that election?—Hanmer and James.

77,187. Did you take any part as a committee man?—No.

77,188. Did you do anything more at that election for those gentlemen?—No.

77,189. Did any money in any way pass through your hands, if not before, at the election?—Not a shilling.

77,190. At the election of 1847 who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown

77,191. A bullet, as it is called?—Yes.

77,192. Were you on his committee?—Yes, at North Myton.

77,193. Very active business during a short time, we hear?—Very.

77,194. Did you take any part in making payments?—Yes; after the election, with Mr. Bannister, I was with him when he paid the voters.

77,195. Where was that?—At the Blue Bell, in Prospect Street.

77,196. What part did you take in the payments?—I was a witness to his paying the money, but I merely went as a friend.

77,197. Did you vouch the payment in any way by your signature?—No, I never wrote anything.

77,198. You sat with him?—I sat with him.

77,199. And perhaps you had the bag?—No, I do not think I did; I sat with him.

77,200. Did you see that he paid the right sum, or what did you do?—I do not know; it was rather that I acted with him on the occasion, and I solicited during the canvass along with Mr. Bannister. I was with him when he engaged the voters.

77,201. You were aware there were people who were put down as runners?—Exactly.

77,202. Had you a list of them?—Yes.

77,203. You were partly active perhaps in preparing it?—Never. I never had a pen in my hand.

77,204. I mean in calling the names over?—I might call them out.

77,205. Previously to their coming for payment, had you been partly active in securing them as voters and getting their names set down at the committee?—Yes; when parties came into the room I was present when they were put down; I do not say I put them down. I never did; I was a party to it.

77,206. You took care they were of the right colour?—I might have asked a few questions.

77,207. When the payment day came; what day was it that you particularly alluded to?—I think it would be a week after Mr. Brown left; the week after the election.

77,208. Were the funds furnished directly to you?—They were furnished directly from the central committee.

77,209. To you?—To Mr. Bannister. Not a shilling came into my hands.

77,210. Your presence was during the time of payment?—Yes.

77,211. You engaged some of them I think?—Yes, popping in occasionally during the day.

77,212. Just tell me, when the payments were going on, what was the course: did the men come into the room, and you ask their names?—A man came into the room and asked to have his name put down; then the question was asked who he intended to vote for; Brown or Baines, and the name was put down.

77,213. If he said "Lord Goderich" you made a bow to him?—Exactly.

77,214. Brown or Baines would do?—Exactly.

77,215. The list having been made in that way, that went on several days?—It might be three or four days.

77,216. A week after came the pay day?—I think about a week.

77,217. Were the payments confined to those persons who had been set down?—Yes.

77,218. You would have the list before you?—Yes.

77,219. When they came in, what would be done?—Their names were called out to see if they had been engaged, and how to be paid.

77,220. Engaged to go to the poll, I presume you mean?—Engaged as runners.

77,221. No question was asked as to whether they had polled or had worn out their shoes and hands in the service?—No.

77,222. If they were down there, and the names identified, the payments were made?—Exactly.

77,223. What amount was it?—As near as I can tell, about 250*l.*, it might be. I do not think more than 300*l.*; it might reach 300*l.*

77,224. Was it generally a fixed sum to each?—No, it depended on the agreement made with the parties. Some would take 1*l.*; some 30*s.*; and some 2*l.*

77,225. Was it an agreement that had been made with the parties beforehand?—Yes.

77,226. When they were first set down for so much?—Yes.

77,227. They were paid upon the sum against their names?—Yes.

77,228. How long did the payment continue?—I think it extended from about one or two o'clock in the afternoon to dinner time, about half-past four or five.

77,229. The fixed sum was about 200*l.*?—I think more than that.

77,230. It might run up to 300*l.*?—Yes, it might.

77,231. Can you give any guess at the number of persons?—They might be 200; no, I would not say so many as that, 150.

77,232. How were they got together?—They were not sought for; they came voluntarily.

77,233. How would they know that was to be the day?—On meeting Mr. Bannister in the street they made a point of seeing him, or by going to the central committee room to ask when they were to be paid.

77,234. Do you think they were paid on an average 2*l.* a piece?—I think most of them would be 2*l.*

77,235. Were you a member of the committee?—I think there was a committee, not of Mr. Brown's; he came a short time. Mr. Bannister and myself almost formed it. We were the only individuals in North Myton who acted.

77,236. You assisted in setting down?—Yes.

77,237. Were you there on the day of payment, in order to check them?—Yes.

77,238. You were there merely as a friend to see it?—I went in, as I thought I should like to see them paid.

77,239. You helped and assisted in paying?—No, I did not; I think Mr. Bannister was going to do it himself; I happened to go there that afternoon.

77,240. Being there, you did help him?—I did.

77,241. At the election of 1852 for whom did you vote?—Moore and Butler.

77,242. Do you know Mr. Wilkinson?—Yes.

77,243. I believe he was active?—He was the chairman of the North Myton district.

77,244. Were you on that committee?—Yes.

77,245. What part did you take?—There were two deputy chairmen; Mr. Jackson was one and I was the other.

77,246. You are probably aware of what we have heard, that applications were made for employment, and names received as runners; that seems to have been the general course?—Yes.

77,247. Did you set the names down of applicants when you were the vice chairman?—No, we had a man of the name of Steeple who acted in every capacity. He took on himself the putting down. I certainly say I never put one down.

77,248. Did any money pass through your hands at that election?—Not a penny.

77,249. You did not make any payments?—Not a penny.

Mr. H. Gibson.

8th August 1853.

77,250. Or sat by when anybody else did?—No. I beg pardon, I saw Steeple on the Saturday afternoon, the week of the election. I went in where he was paying the runners; that was after the election.

77,251. On the Saturday afternoon?—Yes, the end of the week.

77,252. Where did you see Steeple paying them?—At the committee room, in Prospect Street; Stephenson's.

77,253. Did you check them by anything?—No, I do not think I was ten minutes in the room.

77,254. Were those runners?—They were all runners.

77,255. You mentioned the name of Jackson?—I think he has been examined.

77,256. What is his Christian name?—John Gildard Jackson.

77,257. Where does he live?—Spring Bank.

77,258. Beyond the payments you mention, did you say you took part in any other payments at the last election?—No, I never saw a shilling of money during the election, excepting on one occasion.

77,259. Did you yourself engage any committee room?—I engaged one. I engaged the one in Prospect Street.

77,260. I mean sham committee rooms?—I think the day before the election I engaged one of a man of the name of Clappison.

77,261. For the purpose of securing his vote?—Yes.

77,262. What was he to have?—He made repeated applications to the central committee; he wanted 10*l.* or ten guineas.

77,263. What did you get him at?—I think he held back until about two days before the election, and he came and said he had had 6*l.* or 7*l.* offered by the other party, I forget which, and we gave him 1*l.* more.

77,264. 7*l.* or 8*l.*?—I think 7*l.* I think he had had 6*l.* offered by the orange, and we gave him 7*l.* I think he had the command of two or three votes.

77,265. That sum was for himself?—For the room. A committee sat there of 25, I believe, three or four times.

77,266. Did you say it was the day of the election?—Two days.

77,267. Who was the chairman that sat there?—Mr. Wilkinson.

77,268. He was not to pay anything out of the 7*l.* or 8*l.* to those two or three men that were under his command?—No; he got no other sum but that; it was paid directly to him.

77,269. You understood that?—I do not know whether he was a voter or not, but three or four of his family were voters.

77,270. You understood that would bind these two or three as well as himself?—Exactly.

77,271. Have you any other communication to make to the Commissioners respecting any matter either on your side or the other?—No, I do not know anything else. I would have great pleasure in telling you what I do know.

Joseph Revell.

JOSEPH REVELL sworn, and examined.

77,272. Where do you live?—Sykes Street.

77,273. What is your business?—A seaman.

77,274. Do you pay any rent for a house?—Yes.

77,275. What rent do you pay?—Eight guineas.

77,276. When were you made a freeman?—I am sure I do not know when it was. I was born a freeman.

77,277. When were you made a burgess?—It was at the time of O'Neil's election.

77,278. In 1826?—Yes.

77,279. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Sir Walter James.

77,280. A bullet?—Yes.

77,281. Did you get any money?—No, I did not get a halfpenny.

77,282. What makes you smile?—Because I got nothing, and I wanted nothing.

77,283. Are you sure?—That I am.

77,284. Quite sure?—Quite sure.

77,285. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Mr. Clay.

77,286. What did you get?—Nothing.

77,287. Are you sure of that?—I am sure of that.

77,288. You changed sides completely?—I did as I liked. I am quite at liberty.

77,289. I thought there might have been a reason?—I just did as I thought proper. I am a freeman.

77,290. Some people go the way the money goes?—I went voluntarily; nobody came to press me. I volunteered for the party.

77,291. Did you get any money?—Not a halfpenny.

77,292. Are you sure of that?—I am sure of that.

77,293. At the last election, 1852, who did you vote for?—Bramley Moore, a bullet.

77,294. You were set down as a runner?—Yes.

Joseph Revell.

8th August 1853.

77,295. How much money did you get?—£1.

77,296. When did they pay you?—I am sure I do not know how long after. George Steeple paid me the 1*l.*

77,297. That was afterwards?—Sometime afterwards.

77,298. Did you apply to be set down as a messenger?—Yes.

Henry Leeson.

HENRY LEESON sworn, and examined.

77,299. Where do you live?—No. 16, Hill Street.

77,300. Are you a seaman?—Yes; second mate on board a vessel.

77,301. What rent do you pay for a house?—I live in a house of my own.

77,302. What are you rated at?—£9.

77,303. When were you made a freeman?—About 1846.

77,304. At your own expense?—Yes, at my own expense.

77,305. At the last election did you vote?—No, I was at sea.

77,306. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

77,307. I believe you got your name set down at Minerva Terrace?—Yes.

77,308. When did you apply to have that done?—I think about four or five days before the election.

77,309. How much money did you get?—17*s.* 6*d.*

77,310. Who paid you?—Legitt.

77,311. After the election?—Yes.

Alexander Carr.

ALEXANDER CARR sworn, and examined.

77,312. Where do you live?—Winter's Place. I am a pilot.

77,313. What rent do you pay?—£11 a year.

77,314. Are you also a freeman?—Yes.

77,315. When were you made a freeman?—In 1839.

77,316. At whose expense, the blue or the orange?—The orange.

77,317. In consequence of that did you vote for them at the next election, 1841?—Yes.

77,318. Who did you vote for?—I think for Mr. Clay. I voted for the orange.

77,319. Did you get any money?—Not any that time.

77,320. Neither before nor after the election?—No, not any.

77,321. Are you sure of that?—Yes, I am.

77,322. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Brown.

77,323. Were you a runner?—No; I do not know that I was.

77,324. Did you not receive some money from Mr. Collison?—Yes.

77,325. How much did he pay you?—10*s.*

77,326. When did he pay you?—After the election.

77,327. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

77,328. Did you apply to be a runner that time?—Yes.

77,329. Where was your name set down?—At the Shakespeare.

77,330. How much money did they pay you?—I think I received about 27*s.*

77,331. Before or after the election?—10*s.* before, and 17*s.* after.

W. S. Barron.

WILLIAM STEPHENSON BARRON sworn, and examined.

77,332. Where do you live?—Hope Street.

77,333. What is your business?—A mariner.

77,335. Are you also a freeman?—Yes.

77,336. When were you made a freeman?—In 1817.

77,337. At the election of 1841 did you vote?—I was not at home.

77,338. They did not send you away with money?—No.

77,339. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Clay and Brown.

77,340. Did you receive any money for your vote?—5*s.*, I believe.

77,341. Who was it for, Clay or Brown?—Brown's committee, at the Blue Bell, in Prospect Street.

77,342. Did you receive anything from Mr. Clay?—Not a farthing.

77,343. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

77,344. Did you apply to be set down at any committee?—I was on as a runner, or a messenger, as they call it.

77,345. Where did you get set down?—At Mr. Bannister's house yonder; Legitt was the man that set me on.

77,346. How much did you get?—I think about 35*s.* altogether.

77,347. When were you paid?—Before and after the election.

W. S. Barron.

8th August 1853.

77,348. Just divide the money, will you?—I got 15*s.* one week, and 10*s.* another, and 17*s.* 6*d.* after the election was over. When I went to poll, in King Street, I was detained in custody, in the charge of a policeman, an hour and a half on a false charge, by the orange party; they were glad to get me out, and pay me a sovereign. I might as well have had 10*l.*

T. Weatherill.

THOMAS WEATHERILL sworn, and examined.

77,349. Where do you live?—Harwood's Place, English Street.
77,350. What business are you?—A cooper.

77,485. Who did you vote for?—Mr. Clay.

77,486. Were you set down as a runner?—No.

77,487. Did you receive any money?—No.

77,488. Neither before nor after the election?—No.

77,489. Were you not acting in West Sculcoates?—No; I never took any part in any election further than voting.

77,490. At the last election who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

77,491. Were you on any committee?—No.

77,492. Did you receive any money at all then?—None whatever.

77,493. Did any pass through your hands to pay to others?—No.

77,494. Was any room taken in your house?—Never.

77,495. Can you explain how it is your name is set down in West Sculcoates district?—No; I am not aware of that.

77,496. You are set down in the book of the West Sculcoates committee for the orange party at that election?—I am not the individual, it is a mistake.

77,497. Did you not run or do anything?—No.

77,498. Did you stand still and have some money?—I stood still, except tendering my vote.

77,499. You got no money?—No.

WILLIAM ATTLEY sworn, and examined.

William Attley.

8th August 1858.

77,500. Do you keep the Paragon?—Yes.
77,501. You are a publican, I suppose?—Yes.
77,502. Are you also a freeman?—No.
77,503. What rent do you pay?—£271.
77,504. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—This.
77,505. Did you vote for Moore and Butler?—I did.
77,506. Was there a committee room at your inn?—Yes.
77,507. Was there a regular committee appointed there?—Yes.
77,508. Who was the chairman?—Mr. Wilkinson.
77,509. Mr. Charles Wilkinson?—Yes.
77,510. When was the committee room taken?—They entered on the 5th.
77,511. The election was on the 8th?—I had four days.
77,512. Your room seems to have been taken a little late?—It was.
77,513. Just before the election?—Yes; but my vote had been given previous to Moore and Butler; it would have been just the same suppose I had not had the room at all.
77,514. Did you make an application?—I did not.
77,515. Who asked you if you would let it?—Mr. Steeple.
77,516. What did Steeple say to you?—He asked me what I wanted for the room, and I said if they chose it I would let it at 1*l.* a day; at the same time I should vote for them, because I had promised before any inquiry was made.
77,517. What day was it Steeple asked you?—Sometime previously.
77,518. Was it a day or more?—Perhaps a day or two.
77,519. At 1*l.* a day?—Yes.
77,520. Did he accept it on those terms?—He said he should report it to the committee, and they and he came back and took the room.
77,521. You received 7*l.* 19*s.* 4*d.*?—Yes; I received more than that.
77,522. Steeple paid you 7*l.* 19*s.* 4*d.*?—He did.
77,523. What was it for?—It was for the liquors.
77,524. And the room in?—Decidedly so. I have brought my book with me, and you can look at it.
77,525. You have entered it in the book in the ordinary course?—Yes.
77,526. When did you give these refreshments?—A day or two before the election, if not after.
77,527. Who sent the voters to your place?—I do not know.
77,528. Were they voters?—They were chiefly committee men and some runners; I saw no voters, at least none that I knew as voters.
77,529. You did not look to the people who had the refreshment for the money, but to the committee?—I looked to the committee.
77,530. How would you know who were of the committee?—Because they were the parties that gave the orders that such and such things were to be put down; what was sent in was to be put down to their own names.
77,531. Did you receive any more than the 7*l.* 19*s.* 4*d.*?—Yes, 16*s.*
77,532. What was that for?—Refreshment the committee paid for themselves.
77,533. Who did you make out your bill to?—I made it out to Mr. Steeple, and he paid me.
77,534. Did he come to your house and pay it?—Yes, he did.

EDWARD BEST sworn, and examined.

Edward Best.

77,535. Where do you live?—In the Pottery.
77,536. What business are you?—A shipchandler.
77,537. What rent do you pay?—I pay 15*l.* the house, and 18*l.* the shop.
77,538. When were you made a freeman?—I am not a freeman.
77,539. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—The last one.
77,540. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.
77,541. Were you on any committee?—No; I was not.
77,542. Did you get your name put down anywhere?—Not that I am aware of.
77,543. Did you take any interest in the election?—Yes; I did.
77,544. Did you get some men to vote?—Yes; all that I could.
77,545. Do you know any man of the name of Horsley?—I do not.
77,546. How did you get them to vote; did you send them to get their names set down?—Yes; I went about canvassing for them, and got names put down if I could.
77,547. Set down as runners?—I had nothing to do with that, only for the vote; I canvassed for the district.
77,548. Where did you send them to?—To the central committee.
77,549. Who asked you to do that?—I think Mr. Galloway, from that office.
77,550. Do you recollect sending a man to Spurn?—I do not remember. I do not know the name.

Edward Best.

8th August 1853.

77,551. I ask you if you remember the name of Horsley?—I do not remember the name.

77,552. Do you remember Horsley being engaged to go to Spurn, and you giving a man some money to go instead of him?—I never remember such a thing.

77,553. Did you employ a man of the name of William Worth?—Yes; I believe I did

77,554. And a man of the name of John Frith?—Yes; I believe I did.

77,555. How much did you pay them?—I think it was 5*s.* or 10*s.*, I have not kept any account.

77,556. How many days?—Something like four days.

77,557. Were they votes for the blues?—For the orange party.

77,558. What did you give them to do?—I am sure I cannot exactly say.

77,559. Did you give them anything to do?—Yes; to solicit for votes, and anything they could do. I cannot say exactly what they did do, but to solicit.

77,560. They were voters themselves?—The vote was the bond no doubt with me. Worth is a waterman. I was engaged for the shipping department; I had a boat and several men; I cannot exactly say how many; I had many engaged.

77,561. I suppose you meant to secure their votes?—Yes; I did, if possible.

77,562. And paid them with that understanding?—I believe I paid them afterwards, to satisfy them.

77,563. They did vote for you?—Some of them did, but some when it came to the time had not a vote..

77,564. You did not pay them perhaps?—I paid them that had votes.

77,565. You did not pay them that had not votes?—To the best of my knowledge I did not.

Robert Oxtoly.

ROBERT OXTOLY sworn, and examined.

77,566. Where do you live?—Colonial Street.

77,567. What business are you?—A cornfactor.

77,568. What rent do you pay?—I live with my father.

77,569. When were you made a freeman?—I am not a freeman.

77,570. Have you a vote?—No.

77,571. I believe at the last election you took some part in the payment, did you not?—Yes.

77,572. You assisted Mr. West I think, did you not?—Yes, at the Holderness ward committee.

77,573. And Henry Whyttal Walker, was he there?—Yes.

77,574. Those were payments made for the blues, I believe?—Yes.

77,575. Where was it you made the payments?—We paid part at Mr. Stephenson's, and part at Mr. Bayley's.

77,576. After the election?—After the election.

77,577. Were the payments made on the same day?—No; separate days.

77,578. Which was paid first?—I think at Mr. Stephenson's.

77,579. What was the course of payment there?—I paid men who had been employed as runners from 10*s.* to 30*s.* each.

77,580. Did they come in separately?—Yes.

77,581. Had you some check?—Yes, I had a list.

77,582. You ascertained if they voted blue?—No doubt.

77,583. If so, they were paid?—Yes.

77,584. According to the scale they were on?—Yes.

77,585. Did some come who had not voted?—None, I think.

77,586. None who had not voted blue?—No.

77,587. About how many do you suppose there were present to be paid?—Between forty and fifty.

77,588. At both places?—At both places.

77,589. I suppose it was ascertained that they had all voted blue?—Yes. I believe we knew that they had voted blue.

77,590. Have you a list of the names now?—I have no list.

William Ayre.

WILLIAM AYRE sworn, and examined.

77,591. Where do you live?—Wellington Lane, Sculcoates.

77,592. What is your business?—A solicitor.

77,593. Are you clerk to the magistrates of the borough?—I am.

77,594. What rent do you pay?—I live upon my own freehold.

77,595. What is it rated at?—I think that I am rated at 42*l.* or 45*l.* a year.

77,596. How long have you lived in Hull?—I have lived in Hull thirty-five or thirty-six years.

77,597. Did you take part in the election of 1841?—I did not, excepting as a friend to the party; officially I did not.

William Ayre.

8th August 1853.

77,598. What party did you vote for?—I voted for Mr. Clay.

77,599. Only?—Clay and Thompson.

77,600. What part did you take as a friend?—I furthered the interest of those two parties, as far as I could.

77,601. Did you canvass for them?—Not regularly; professionally I did.

77,602. Were you acquainted at that time with the system of employing men in order to secure their votes?—No; I was not.

77,603. Did you take any part in any method of procuring men's votes by the payment of money?—Certainly not.

77,604. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I was one of the attorneys for Mr. Baines, at his election.

77,605. Were you a partner of Mr. Sidebottom?—I was not; Mr. Sidebottom and I were joint attorneys for Mr. Baines.

77,606. How soon before the election were you engaged?—I should think a fortnight. I had a communication with Mr. Baines in London; in point of fact, I was the first to suggest his becoming a candidate for Hull.

77,607. Did you receive any instructions from Mr. Baines as to the manner in which the election was to be conducted?—Mr. Baines stated to me that he would not be concerned in any way with bribery, and he would have nothing to do with Hull, unless it was a pure election.

77,608. Did he state that to you in London?—No; not until he came down to Hull, because in London he had not made up his mind to become a candidate. I think he stated it first to me at York.

77,609. Before he stated that, had you began to act in the election?—Certainly not.

77,610. What reply did you make?—I told him I had not been concerned in any election where there ever was bribery, and I never would.

77,611. Had you been concerned in any election in Hull before then?—I had, several.

77,612. That was before 1841?—Yes.

77,613. Did you, from your experience of those elections, know of the system of employing persons, and thereby securing their votes?—I did not, prior to that time.

77,614. So far as you knew before that time, was the influence in Hull merely a pure influence?—No; I do not say that. The first election I was concerned in, was Hill's election; so far as our party was concerned, it was a pure election. I was aware Mr. Hutt paid money during the election.

77,615. You were aware at the time Mr. Baines spoke to you, that money had been illegally employed in Hull elections?—Most decidedly.

77,616. Did you tell him that?—I have no doubt I have done so, and that it has been the topic of conversation with us.

77,617. Did you tell him so at the time?—I have no doubt at the time, or previously; that there had been a great deal of corruption in Hull, it was notorious.

77,618. He gave you instructions that he would be no party to it?—Decidedly.

77,619. Had you any opinion as to the probable chance of any one who came to Hull, intending not to bribe?—I told Mr. Baines I had no doubt from his popularity with all parties, that he would succeed without any corrupt means whatever.

77,620. After he came to Hull, after seeing Mr. Baines, did you begin to act with Mr. Sidebottom?—Not immediately.

77,621. How soon did you begin to act?—I think I got Mr. Baines' address at the York assizes, and brought it over and then commenced to act with Mr. Sidebottom. I think it would be a fortnight or ten days before the election.

77,622. Were any means taken to secure votes by employment or money payments before the contest began with Mr. Brown?—I believe not.

77,623. Before Mr. Brown was in the field the canvass was a mere ordinary canvass?—It was a mere ordinary canvass.

77,624. When Mr. Brown was in the field was the system altered?—Not to my knowledge.

77,625. Do you mean in your belief, at the time, that Mr Baines' election was being carried on upon the mere influence of words without money?—Yes, I do believe so; and I did believe so.

77,626. Did you hear at any time persons were being set down as runners or messengers, on behalf of Mr. Baines?—No; I did not. I knew there were many applications to us to have the names put down; I invariably said, "No; if Mr. Baines knows there is a single farthing given in bribery, he will not sit if elected." I firmly believe that was Mr. Baines' determination.

77,627. You were aware after the election that considerable sums of money were given on Mr. Baines' behalf?—Yes; I was.

77,628. Were you aware that during the election the expenses were likely to be very large?—I was aware, from the appearances, that a great deal of money was about to be fooled away, and I protested against it when I saw that course.

77,629. To whom did you protest?—To the company about me; it was followed up by sending bands of music and colours round the town, and having a great many committee rooms and flags of every description. Processions are very expensive affairs during an election. I made those about me know what my opinion was upon the subject more than once.

William Ayre.

8th August 1853.

77,630. What was their answer?—They did not see it in the same light that I did. I recollect, more than once there was a great crowd about the George; we attempted a procession with a view to get rid of it.

77,631. Did you consult with Mr. Sidebottom about the matter?—I believe he was of a similar opinion to myself, though he was not so averse to processions as I was. I do not think he was aware of the expense they would lead to.

77,632. Did you understand from any parties that they thought that expense necessary? That was the first procession that was sent round to get rid of the crowd that was assembled about the George.

77,633. Did you hear from any one that they thought that large expense was necessary?—Certainly not; when we began to take people on, we began to take people who were not voters, in order that the election might be perfectly correct.

77,634. Some of the out-voters and the Hedon voters, voted for Mr. Baines, did they not?—Yes.

77,635. Did you pay, on behalf of Mr. Baines, those persons?—I did not individually.

77,636. Did you give instructions?—Nor did I give instructions.

77,637. What part did you take in it?—I took no part in the payment whatever.

77,638. What part did you take with regard to the Hedon people?—I had nothing to do with the Hedon voters, nor with the out-voters.

77,639. Were you not aware of the method in which they were treated?—I heard afterwards that they had been paid; in fact, I know they were paid for coming over, probably for the loss of their day.

77,640. What voters were those, the Hedon only?—I think I understood it applied to Hedon and Barton voters.

77,641. How soon did you know it?—I learnt it about that period.

77,642. During the election?—Probably during the election.

77,643. What did you do on that?—It did not fall within my part of the business.

77,644. You did nothing?—I did nothing whatever.

77,645. Did you acquaint Mr. Baines with that?—No; it was the act of the committee who were in communication with him as much as I was.

77,646. You did not make any remonstrance on that?—I do not recollect doing so now.

77,647. Did you have any communication with Mr. Bright?—Mr. Bright was an active member of the committee. I do not recollect upon that subject. I think Mr. Bright was the finance manager.

77,648. Did you at all remonstrate with him as to the expense?—I recollect perfectly well the great expense of the procession, and so on.

77,649. What did he say to that?—He said on one occasion it was necessary to get rid of the men, and therefore he would send a procession round.

77,650. Did it appear to you that during the election Mr. Baines' instructions were being disobeyed?—I am quite satisfied that those processions were sent round not to secure the votes.

77,651. Did it appear, during the election, that Mr. Baines' instructions were being obeyed?—Yes, generally they were being obeyed.

77,652. That was taking Mr. Baines's instructions to be that no money influence should be exercised?—Yes, I think so.

77,653. In any way?—Yes.

77,654. Was it your impression throughout the election that his instructions in that sense were being obeyed?—Most decidedly.

77,655. Did you take any part in the election of 1852?—I did not. I was the solicitor for Colonel Thompson in his first election. I was requested to see if any bribery took place there without his knowledge.

77,656. Will you tell me if you were paid yourself?—On which occasion?

77,657. Mr. Baines'?—Yes; 50*l.*

77,658. Was that all?—Yes; that is all; except that some few payments were included in the bill.

77,659. £50 for yourself and some for small payments?—I believe 50*l.* was all I charged him.

77,660. A list of Mr. Baines' runners has been shown to us, and it contains a singularly small number of voters, about one-fifth or one-sixth; I do believe it is not more than one-tenth; how did that occur; try it in this way: for the first twelve taking them accidentally, we cannot find any corresponding names on the register excepting these first?—As I said before, all those who were employed to go round as runners were selected as far as possible non-voters, and we selected as far as possible non-voters for clerks, and so on.

77,661. Why?—In order that their votes might not be impugned in case of a scrutiny.

77,662. Are you not aware that the contrary is the usual practice in Hull?—Most decidedly.

77,663. Are you not aware that a totally opposite course was pursued by Mr. Clay in 1841, and the same course was pursued by Colonel Thompson?—Colonel Thompson's election in 1835 was the same.

77,664. Are you not aware that Mr. Clay took a totally opposite course?—Certainly I am; but still it appeared to me that every voter who was paid, my own self included (who was an agent), was a bad vote, provided there was a scrutiny.

77,665. What was your opinion upon the subject; was it that the employment of voters in that way was indirectly bribery?—Decidedly.

77,666. I do not ask whether any money was expended for the purpose of influencing the election; but are you aware of any money being expended for the purpose of influencing voters to whom the money was paid?—I am not aware of a single farthing being so expended.

77,667. You have had an opportunity of examining the accounts; can you undertake to say that no bill was incurred or money paid in which the vote of the party with whom the expense was incurred was not considered one element for considering whether you would employ him or not; you say you paid no money to anybody without taking into consideration as an element of calculation whether or no there would be a probability of securing the vote?—I am not aware that one single vote was so obtained.

77,668. Will you go further and say, not a single order was given for the purpose of influencing a voter?—To the best of my knowledge, I believe not one single order was so given.

77,669. How soon did you hear of the arrangement having been made for the Hedon voters coming over to vote?—I think I did not hear of it until either on the day of the election or after the day of the election. I did not.

77,670. Did you hear it before they voted?—I should think not. I knew nothing of the arrangement.

77,671. Did you know Mr. Pack was engaged in it?—Yes; he is a solicitor at Hedon.

77,672. He has sent in a bill for procuring the Hedon voters; were you in communication with Mr. Pack?—I was not.

77,673. Not at all?—Not in the least.

77,674. From whom did Mr. Pack receive his instructions?—I cannot tell you.

77,675. Have you not heard?—I have not indeed.

77,676. It is no secret that he acted on Mr. Baines' behalf, and bought votes wholesale; that is notorious?—I have heard so; no doubt of it.

77,677. It appears from the papers that have come out of the custody of Mr. Baines' committee, the receipt of these voters for the money has been produced, signed by them?—I do not know of the arrangement, nor did I know it at the time.

77,678. I want to know whether you heard of the intention of such an arrangement mentioned?—I did not.

77,679. Where was it Mr. Pack received a retainer or employment?—I think Mr. Pack was retained some few days before the election.

77,680. Who gave him his instructions; did you?—No; certainly not.

77,681. Have you heard since who communicated the instructions to him?—No, I have not indeed.

77,682. Professional gentlemen do not act except they are put in motion?—I am not aware who gave him his instructions; I certainly did not.

77,683. You say he was employed two or three days; I suppose you knew at the time of the election he was making some arrangement for bringing over the Hedon voters here?—I think I heard on the day of the election he was making some arrangements.

77,684. You heard it before the poll; did you not hear it the day before?—My impression is, they came over the first thing in the morning of the polling day, and that they voted early, and therefore I should not hear it till after they voted. My impression is, I heard that day that some arrangement was made.

77,685. Did you hear then for the first time that Mr. Pack was confidentially arranging the bringing up of these voters?—I did not know that Mr. Pack had made an arrangement at the time, nor did I know till you have mentioned it now.

77,686. But that somebody was doing it, did you not?—I knew that some arrangement had been made whereby the Hedon voters and the Barton voters were brought over here.

77,687. Did you hear the instructions?—I did not hear.

77,688. Did you hear some one had a carte blanche to make such arrangements as he thought fit?—No; I did not indeed.

77,689. Do you remember the payment to Mr. Pack of his bill?—I know I took no part whatever in the payment.

77,690. Did you not assist Mr. Sidebottom in the final requisitions?—No, I did not. As soon as the election was over I retired; I had public business to attend to, and I left them to settle all the accounts.

77,691. Did you know that the gentleman, whoever he was, that made an arrangement with the Hedon voters on behalf of Mr. Baines, was in communication with the agent of Mr. Brown?—No, I did not.

77,692. You never heard of it?—No.

77,693. Not even on the day of the election?—No.

William Ayre.

8th August 1853.

77,694. Did you hear he was in communication with any of Mr. Brown's agents?—No, I did not.

77,695. Were you in any communication with Mr. Brown's agents?—No.

77,696. Or the agents of Mr. Clay?—No.

77,697. Did you hear of William Henry Nicholson?—I do not know him.

77,698. I mean the sailmaker and farmer of votes?—I do not know him.

77,699. Did you hear of him at Mr. Baines' committee room?—No; I do not recollect the name. I do not know the man.

J. W. Smithson.

JAMES WILLIAM SMITHSON sworn, and examined.

77,700. Where do you live?—I lodge in Waterworks Street.

77,701. What business are you?—I am at present out of business.

77,702. Do you pay any rent?—No.

77,703. When were you made a freeman?—I am not one.

77,704. Were you entitled to vote as a householder at the election of 1841?—Yes.

77,705. Who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.

77,706. Did you get some money at that election?—Yes; for goods delivered.

77,707. What did you deliver?—Such commodities as I had for sale in the house; refreshments.

77,708. Not voters?—No; different parties that came to my place.

77,709. I want to know whether the goods meant voters?—Such as were sent to me.

77,710. Did you pay any money to any voters?—No.

77,711. Did you receive any money excepting for what you call for refreshments?—No.

77,712. Did they pay you all your bill?—Yes; the bill that was charged I received the money for.

77,713. You claim a balance still?—There is a slight balance I claim, which ought to have been paid before by Mr. Farthing.

77,714. At the election?—Yes.

77,715. Why is it not paid?—I cannot tell you; he made a dispute about the names.

77,716. He is a committee man?—He is.

77,717. He made payments that election?—I am sorry to say I never received any from him.

77,718. What did you receive?—What I did receive I received from Mr. Conkerton.

77,719. Was this entirely for refreshment?—Yes.

77,720. Did Conkerton give you any money to pay voters?—No.

77,721. Did you pay any?—No.

77,722. How much was your bill?—My bill at the Saville Street committee room was 3*l.* 15*s.*

77,723. Who sent the voters to your house?—I am told Conkerton and Mr. Farthing sent them.

77,724. Why did he not pay the whole of the bill?—He disputed it, saying that he had done so.

77,725. Had not sent them?—No.

77,726. He would not pay any of it?—He paid none.

J. H. Ellerman.

JOHAN HERMAN ELLERMAN sworn, and examined.

77,727. Where do you live?—No. 2, Regent Street, Anlaby Road.

77,728. What business are you?—A merchant.

77,729. What rent do you pay?—I am in lodgings.

77,730. When were you made a freeman?—I am not a freeman.

77,731. Are you not a voter?—No.

77,732. Were you interested in the last election in canvassing for the blues?—Yes, I was.

77,733. Did Mr. Kemp employ you?—No; Mr. Kemp and I were together in a committee room. Mr. Kemp had to leave, and he left it entirely to me.

77,734. Were you deputy chairman?—Yes; I was deputy chairman of the committee.

77,735. At which committee?—It was at the Black Horse, in Carr Lane.

77,736. You paid some of the parties I believe?—I paid nothing but three runners that were at our committee. They wanted something extra; they wanted 5*s.* a day; the central committee would not allow more than 3*s.* 6*d.* I think it was three days or four days.

77,737. Who were these men?—One was called Millbank, and the other was Robinson. They would not stop, they said; the orange party had offered them 5*s.* a day if they would come. I wrote to the central committee room for instructions; I said I should not interfere, but leave it to them; and so soon as I saw Mr. Wells, of the South Myton district committee room, he said the fact was they would not work any more, and they could not get any more. I thought I had better not let them go, and I paid 1*s.* 6*d.* a day myself, out of my own pocket. If I did not get it from the committee room or Mr. Wells I should pay them. That is all I did.

77,738. In order to prevent their going over to the orange?—In order to prevent their running away; I was so hard worked I could not go myself.

77,739. Were they blue voters?—Yes; I presume they were. I did not inquire into that.

77,740. You knew it?—I had reason to believe, because they were sent to me from the central committee room.

77,741. You gave them one shilling more and got them to stop?—18*d.* a day I think I paid for three days.

77,742. You mentioned those two names, what is the other name?—I really cannot tell you, I was so very much at work that I took no particular notice.

77,743. Where does he live?—I do not know that even.

77,744. Were you once clerk to Mr. Bright?—Yes.

77,745. Did you pay any money away for him for the election?—No, not any.

77,746. You canvassed?—Yes, I canvassed.

77,747. Did you send people to have their names down?—I was not aware of that till the last election. I merely went round with another gentleman. I canvassed at the previous election.

77,748. Do you know if Millbank voted for you?—I know he had not voted till eleven o'clock in the morning, and one of them never did come back. I said to him, "Millbank, how is it you have not voted?"

Timothy Maloney.

TIMOTHY MALONEY sworn, and examined.

77,749. You are a seafaring man, are you not?—Yes.

77,750. Where do you live?—No. 17, Castle Street.

77,751. What rent do you pay?—£30.

77,752. Are you a freeman?—No.

77,753. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—Before this last.

77,754. Did you vote in 1847?—Yes.

77,755. Who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

77,756. Did you receive any money at that election?—No.

77,757. Nothing?—Nothing.

77,758. Before or after?—All I received was when I voted in Mytongate, from Thistleton. John says, "Thankee, Maloney;" that is all I received for that election.

77,759. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

77,760. You got your name set down at Lidgard's?—Yes; Mr. Bannister's.

77,761. How much money did you get?—After the election they made me a present of 15*s.*

77,762. For your vote?—No; it was for placing a blue flag at the masthead. I hoisted it in the morning, and pulled it down at night.

77,763. Where did you splice it?—I do not know where it was spliced.

77,764. You did not?—My wife did.

77,765. You got how much?—15*s.*

77,766. Did you get any more money that election?—No.

77,767. You pulled a rope and sent it up to the masthead?—Yes.

77,768. You got 15*s.* for that?—Yes.

77,769. Was it before or after you voted?—After I voted, and after the election, a fortnight.

77,770. When did you hoist the flag?—A fortnight or three weeks before the election commenced.

77,771. Where did you hoist it?—At the mainmasthead.

77,772. That was a signal for all people at sea that you were of the blue party?—Yes.

77,773. Did a good many rally round your flag?—No; there was rather a deficiency; there were not so many had the same principle as myself.

77,774. Those who sailed under your flag, what did you promise them?—Nothing. There were four voters in our ship, all for the blues.

77,775. You told them it would be all right?—I never asked one for a vote.

77,776. Did they come to you and say they were all blues?—I never took any interest in that at all. It was independent of me what they did.

77,777. How much did they get?—I never inquired.

77,778. Did you help the blues?—No; I was not employed.

77,779. Not employed at all?—No; I was not.

77,780. You got some money, did you not?—I cannot inform you about that.

77,781. Did they not tell you that they had?—No.

77,782. Not one?—No.

77,783. Did they not go and vote on the polling day?—Yes.

77,784. And came back again?—Yes.

Timothy Maloney.

8th August 1853.

77,785. Did they not tell you that they had a little money?—No; they did not.
77,786. I do not mean that day?—They did no such thing.
77,787. You never heard them say?—No.
77,788. Any of them?—Not one.
77,789. Where they got the money?—I had nothing to do with it.
77,790. When did you lower your flag?—After the election.
77,791. On the same day?—The same day.

Richard Bower.

RICHARD BOWER sworn, and examined.

77,792. Where do you live?—Air Street, Sculcoates.
77,793. What is your business?—A blockmaker.
77,794. What rent do you pay?—£5 10*s.*
77,795. When were you made a freeman?—1825.
77,796. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Yes.
77,797. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Thompson.
77,798. Did you receive any money that election for your vote?—No.
77,799. No money at all?—No money at all.
77,800. At the next who did you vote for?—Mr. Clay.
77,801. Did you receive any money that time?—No.
77,802. At the last election who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.
77,803. We were told you got some money then?—No.
77,804. Do you know a man of the name of Warrener?—No, I do not.
77,805. Are you sure you got no money at the last election?—Not a halfpenny.
77,806. Neither before nor after?—No.
77,807. Was your name set down?—I believe it was set down at the last election, at the committee room.
77,808. What for?—For a messenger; but I was not employed, therefore I never got any.
77,809. Did you go and apply to have your name set down?—They set me down, and said I was to act as a messenger.
77,810. Did you go and ask to be set down?—I went to the committee room, certainly.
77,811. You asked them to set you down?—Yes; I did.
77,812. For employment?—Yes.
77,813. What room was it at?—Chapel Lane.
77,814. When you found that they offered you employment you offered your vote at the same time?—I promised my vote before then.
77,815. They knew it probably?—Yes, I dare say they did; I promised my vote when I was canvassed before.
77,816. Did you get any money?—No.
77,817. Did you ever apply for any?—No.
77,818. Do you believe that others had been paid?—I do not know; I had nothing to do with those people.
77,819. Did you expect to be paid after the election?—I did not do any work.
77,820. Should you expect to be paid?—I do not know that I should. If my name had been down to be paid, and they gave it, I should have taken it.
77,821. Suppose they were to get paid the day after to-morrow. Your name is set down to get something?—I should, if they set my name down.
77,822. You say your name was down?—Yes.
77,823. And put down at your request?—Yes.
77,824. At the time when you voted did you not expect that, if you voted for Clay and Goderich, sometime after the election you would be paid?—No; I should not know that I should get anything.
77,825. Did you not expect, in consequence of having your name set down, that you would be paid after the election was over?—If the other parties had been paid, most undoubtedly I should look to be paid as well.
77,826. Did you not expect that other parties, and all parties, would be paid whose names were down?—I do not know; if I had been employed I should apply most decidedly.
77,827. When you gave your vote did you expect that all the persons who like yourself had had their names put down, would be paid after the election was over?—My impression would be, perhaps they would be.
77,828. Warrener has sworn that he paid you some money?—I do not know; I never received any.
77,829. You had no money?—I told you before I had not received a halfpenny.

RICHARD CLAPPISON sworn, and examined. Richard Clappison

8th August 1853.

77,830. Where do you live?—At Trippett.
77,831. What is your business?—A clerk.
77,832. To Mr. Barkworth?—Yes; Messrs. Barkworth and Spaldin.
77,833. Are you a voter?—No; I am a freeman. I have not had a vote yet.
77,834. Did you take any interest in the election of 1841?—No.
77,835. Did you in 1847?—No.
77,836. In 1852 you did?—Yes; a little.
77,837. I believe you set down names for Mr. Bamford, did you not?—Yes.
77,838. Where did you set their names down?—At the Kingston.
77,839. For Mr. Bamford?—Yes.
77,840. That was in the Market Place?—Yes.
77,841. Where were those persons who applied to be employed?—I do not know where. Mr. Bamford merely told me to put them down; I never saw the men.
77,842. Did you not take the names from themselves?—No.
77,843. How did you know them?—Mr. Bamford told me the names; they did not come into the room; Mr. Bamford came into the room and told me.
77,844. You did not see the parties?—No.
77,845. Did you make any payments?—No.
77,846. Did any money payments pass through your hands?—No; none at all.
77,847. I ask you whether any of the people came into the room in which you were?—Not that I am aware of.
77,848. Were you sitting in the room by yourself?—I was sitting in the room, and some gentlemen came in.
77,849. But, applicants to have their names set down?—No; not at all.
77,850. Did Mr. Bamford give you a paper to copy?—He would come in and mention a man's name, one at a time, and say "Put them down."
77,851. You never saw the men?—I never saw them at all.
77,852. How many days were you there?—Only the election day.
77,853. How many did you set down?—About two dozen.
77,854. Did you keep a list?—No; I left it with Mr. Bamford.
77,855. Were they on separate pieces of paper?—They were on a sheet of paper.

RICHARD CARTER CATTLEY sworn, and examined. R. C. Cattley.

77,856. Are you a voter?—No.
77,857. I am told you paid some money to a man named Conkerton?—I daresay I did; I paid several people; I do not remember the names.
77,858. At the last election?—Yes.
77,859. Had you a room at which you made the payments?—I paid two or three at my office; to the others I sent the money by Brown, a clerk.
77,860. When did you make any payments?—A few days after the election; the next day and two or three days after; some rather later than that.
77,861. Who supplied you with the money to make the payments?—I got the money from Mr. Ward, the chairman.
77,862. Were those persons that had been down?—Yes.
77,863. Had you a list of them?—We had directions to take down names of the runners.
77,864. Prior to the election?—Prior to the election.
77,865. And the payments you made at the same room where they had been taken down?—The names were taken partly in the Saville Street room, and partly the Charles Street committee room.
77,866. Where were they paid?—Some I paid at my office, those that came; to the others I sent the money by Brown.
77,867. Do you know about the number you paid?—Brown and I paid together, I suppose, about thirty-five, or something of that sort.
77,868. Was it a fixed sum?—Generally 30*s.*, some 1*l.*, and some 10*s.*, according to the time employed.
77,869. Had you a list of the names?—I had one small list my father sent in.
77,870. You had no further list?—No further list.
77,871. Had you a separate room besides that of Page's?—No; it was his room I was at.
77,872. The room for the committee?—Yes.
77,873. Was there a regular committee there?—Yes.
77,874. Was it not principally for the purpose of receiving names as runners?—Not at all; it was to work the district. We divided the West Sculcoates into two.
77,875. One division met at this house?—One in Saville Street, and the other at Page's, in Charles Street.
77,876. Applications were made?—Men came and said they wanted employment. We told them we would take their names down, and when we wanted their services we would send for them.

R. C. Cattley.

8th August 1853.

77,877. Those persons who were paid by you and Brown after the election I suppose were paid with reference to their colour?—I do not suppose we should have paid them unless they had voted blue. I believe some were paid that had not voted blue.

77,878. Paid by mistake?—Yes; we did not check some of them.

77,879. Were you the chairman or vice chairman?—I was chairman.

77,880. When you found the mistake out you did not pay them?—Certainly not.

77,881. You were chairman. Had you a staff of the ordinary kind?—Yes; I had several to assist me.

77,882. Runners and messengers?—Runners and messengers, and committee men.

77,883. I suppose during the latter part you made what employment you could for them?—We had orders to take a much larger number of men than we could get. The orders came too late. We had orders the day before to take on sixty runners for the clearing house; we did not get above two or three.

77,884. That would have no reference to your need of them?—It was Mr. Wells' need of them at the clearing house.

77,885. You could not get enough?—I do not know that we took one on after the orders came to take sixty.

77,886. Did you agree with Page for the room?—My father and Mr. Ward agreed with him; I did not take it; he had two guineas.

77,887. As far as you are aware, is it always understood when a person gets employment he means to give his vote into the bargain; that it is made part of the special contract?—Yes; there were various bargains at the last election.

77,888. It has been repeatedly stated that a great number of your runners ran away from you. It is an assertion easily made, but nobody can prove it, further than it is said the first hour no less than 200 ran away?—I cannot say; we were much disappointed, and I believe they were; I have no doubt they were.

77,889. We found that many did?—We found some men had actually applied to both committees.

77,890. Have you heard of a large number of persons?—I heard in the course of the election; I cannot speak of my own knowledge.

77,891. Who was the gentleman so active as to be able to vote both sides at once?—I cannot mention his name; there were more than one in the same way. We found we had taken men on as runners, and after that they were standing at the orange committee room door.

77,892. You considered that breaking faith with you?—Decidedly.

77,893. You consider they should have done the work if engaged by you?—If they applied to me for us, and took our money, they ought to have voted for us.

Mr. JOHN ROLLIT recalled, and examined.

Mr. John Rollit.

77,894. Did you hear when you were about getting the case for the petition, that 300 men who were promised to you had gone over to the orange, and had voted orange the first hour in the morning?—I heard that a great number from the different committee rooms had forfeited their promises, and had gone over to the other side; early in the morning, I did not hear that.

77,895. Did you endeavour to have that out?—No; I did not.

77,896. Did you think it was rather one of those vague surmises that were afloat?—It did not become necessary for me to have it out; I had other evidence on which I relied.

77,897. More trustworthy evidence?—Yes; and not exactly so; I had other evidence for supporting the case.

77,898. Evidence which was less doubtful?—Not less doubtful, but which was less trouble to get up, as well as less expensive. My view was to contract the expenses as much as I could.

77,899. I thought one of those solutions was more likely to be the case?—I heard of it in many quarters; but as this was not a scrutiny of votes, it was not necessary for me to carry the inquiry further.

77,900. It caused a strong suspicion it was attained by unfair means?—It raised a strong suspicion in my mind that there had been corrupt practices, and if I had traced it out in detail in the particular cases, it would have involved a great number of witnesses to have proved it to support our case.

77,901. You had better evidence, and of a more cogent character; more easily obtained and less expensive?—Yes.

HENRY FRENCH sworn, and examined.

Henry French.

77,902. I see you are orange?—Ay, to the back bone.

77,903. What business do you carry on?—I am a seafaring man.

77,904. Where do you live?—I live in Neptune Street.

Henry French.

8th August 1853.

77,905. What rent do you pay?—£11.
77,906. Are you also a freeman?—No.
77,907. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—Hutt's, in 1832.
77,908 Did you vote in 1841?—No; I was not at home.
77,909. At the last election I believe you took an interest in it for Mr. Clay?—Mr. Clay.
77,910. Alone?—Alone.
77,911. Were you on either of the committees?—Yes; I was appointed chairman for one at the Whittington and Cat, Wood's.
77,912. Did you attend as chairman?—Oh, strictly.
77,913. Had you a good many applicants for employment?—A great many vagabonds, that got much more than I got.
77,914. Did you employ them?—I had several applications, to the tune of twenty or thirty men at the Baltic Tavern; some came, and it was privately spoken; they said they would take 3*l.* apiece, so I said, "You may take yourself off." They came back again, and they said they would take 1*l.* apiece, and I said, "You take yourselves off," again. Then they said they would take less and less. I wrote to Mr. Galloway, and said they would take a day's work. Mr. Galloway gave me orders to give them a day's work, and I gave them two or three days' work.
77,915. Perhaps it was rather high; how much was it?—I suppose about 10*s.* each.
77,916. A good day's work for a vagabond?—Oh! too good, a great deal.
77,917. Do you remember their names?—No; I do not.
77,918. They voted all right, I hope?—No; a parcel of them ran away, and I put the broad arrow before those gentlemen.
77,919. There were only three that did vote?—Only three did vote; the rest all ran away.
77,920. How many had you promised?—I daresay about twelve.
77,921. Can you tell us what made them run so quick?—For want of more cash, I think.
77,922. Did you hear from them that they got money from the other side?—Yes; they went to Mr. Brown, poor man, to get some of his browns.
77,923. Did you hear that they got some?—I am not aware of it.
77,924. Did you make any payments besides?—None whatever, excepting that man's bill, Wood's.
77,925. Can you tell us anything else about 1847?—Nothing particular, excepting there were a variety of proceedings in 1847; places looked sharp after by people that changed their colour for the purpose of getting places.
77,926. In 1852 did you do anything?—I had nothing to do particularly in 1852.
77,927. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich, I suppose.
77,928. Were you on any committee?—I was not.
77,929. Did any money pass through your hands?—None whatever. Yes; there was, too; I was authorized by Mr. Galloway to keep the election matter alive, but not by any means to promise money on account of votes. I had strict orders from Lord Goderich and Mr. Clay that they would rather stay out of Parliament altogether than run any personal risk, or buy any vote.
77,930. How did you keep them alive?—I had to visit various societies; there was a fine promise made by a gentleman, who forgot to fulfil it.
77,931. You did not pay any money?—Oh yes; I bribed a good deal; I did, I can assure you.
77,932. What for, and who?—A parcel of poor old women that were promised to have a tea party given to them by Mr. Blundell, and they never got it. They plagued my life out, and I was glad to get clear of them by giving them 15*s.*
77,933. The tea party was after the election?—After the election of course, but the promises, like piecrust, were broken.
77,934. Did you not preside over the ladies?—I provided a little gin, and they gasped at it like frogs in an air pump.
77,935. Did you assist at Saville Street?—I do not know it; it belonged to Serjeant Wilde.
77,936. Did you assist the serjeant?—No; oh dear forbid.
77,937. Are you sure of that?—Quite sure.

J. W. Holmes.

JOHN WARD HOLMES sworn, and examined.

77,938. Where do you live?—No. 47, Mill Street.
77,939. What is your business?—A shoemaker.
77,940. What rent do you pay?—£6.
77,941. When were you made a freeman?—In 1839.
77,942. In 1841 did you vote?—Yes.
77,943. Who for?—Hanmer and James.
77,944. Did you receive any money for your vote?—I received it for employment.

J. W. Holmes.

8th August 1853.

77,945. How much?—Two weeks; I believe 30*s.* a week. I am not certain what the amount was.

77,946. Did you apply to get your name set down?—Yes.

77,947. You applied for employment?—Yes, I did.

77,948. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I did not vote at all.

77,949. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

77,950. Your name was set down, I believe?—Yes.

77,951. At Mr. Wilkinson's?—I was doorkeeper from the 10th of June till the election was over.

77,952. Did you apply for it?—Yes, I did.

77,953. What were you, as doorkeeper, to do?—I had messages to run as well as keeping the door.

77,954. How much were you paid?—£1 a week for the first two weeks, and a guinea afterwards.

77,955. How much would it be?—£5 as near as I can tell.

77,956. What directions were given as to the doorkeeper, what has he to do?—A doorkeeper has to remain at the door to see people go in and out, but I was sent out as a messenger.

77,957. You were not the doorkeeper?—We had one man that could not read the papers, that had to go out, so he remained at the door while I went out.

77,958. Who paid you?—It was Mr. Stephenson.

77,959. After the election?—No, every week; every Saturday night.

William Horner.

WILLIAM HORNER sworn, and examined.

77,960. Where do you live?—Fish Street Court.

77,961. What business are you?—A plumber and glazier.

77,962. What rent do you pay?—None.

77,963. When were you made a freeman?—In 1835, I believe.

77,964. In 1841 did you vote?—Yes.

77,965. Who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.

77,966. Did you receive any money for your vote?—No.

77,967. Did you receive any money at all?—Not at that time.

77,968. Did you afterwards?—Yes; at Brown's election.

77,969. But not at that election?—No.

77,970. The next election; who did you vote for in 1847?—Baines and Brown.

77,971. Did you receive any money?—10*s.*

77,972. Where were you paid?—In the Market Place; Stamps's, Hales Entry.

77,973. After the election?—Yes.

77,974. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Moore and Butler.

77,975. Did you apply for employment?—Yes.

77,976. Where did you apply?—At the central committee room.

77,977. Did they employ you?—Yes.

77,978. How much money did you get?—I got at the rate of a guinea a week, and 10*s.* extra.

77,979. How many weeks?—A fortnight and a day.

77,980. Did the orange try to get you?—They solicited, but it was of no use.

77,981. You stuck to the blues?—Yes.

William Jackson.

WILLIAM JACKSON sworn, and examined.

77,982. Where do you live?—In the Beverley Road.

77,983. What business are you?—A soap manufacturer.

77,984. What rent do you pay?—Thirty guineas.

77,986. You are a voter?—Yes.

77,987. At which election did you vote first?—Thompson and Clay's, in 1841.

77,988. Did you receive any money?—No.

77,989. Were you on any committee?—No.

77,990. Did you make any payments?—No.

77,991. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Clay; a plumper.

77,992. Did you receive any money then?—No.

77,993. At the last election you voted for Clay and Goderich?—Yes.

77,994. Were you present with Mr. Wilde when he paid the Barton men?—Yes.

77,995. He has told us where he paid them?—At the Royal.

77,996. Did you make any other payments?—No.

77,997. What else did you do connected with the last election?—I went down to Wharam's with Mr. Walker to look after Wharam's lot.

77,998. John Walker, the Barton Walker?—Yes.

William Jackson.

8th August 1853.

77,999. What passed about them; did you engage them?—No, I did not see them; they were in another room, and Walker went in to them.

78,000. Did you go to help to buy them?—I went to see that Mr. Walker did not buy them.

78,001. Why should you do that?—I went at Mr. Walker's suggestion.

78,002. Did you see Mr. Wilde there?—Yes, I went with him.

78,003. Did you go to see whether they were willing to be bought, but he was not to buy them?—Not to buy them.

78,004. What did you want to know whether they would be bought for without buying them?—We thought we had sufficient to gain the election without them; they wanted too much money; something like 100*l.*

78,005. How many of them?—Twenty or thirty.

78,006. You were to make some sort of bargain, but not to close it?—We were to make no bargain at all; we were not to have anything to do with them.

78,007. To keep them in check in case you wanted them?—Yes.

78,008. It was left open to the following morning, the morning of the poll, because you had thought you had got enough?—Yes.

78,009. Mr. Wilde thought them too dear?—I believe he did. He thought he had got to the end of his purse.

William Leake.

WILLIAM LEAKE sworn, and examined.

78,010. Where do you live?—Atkinson Lane, Anlaby Road.

78,011. What business are you?—A shoemaker.

78,019. Where were you set down?—I was set down in Scale Lane.

78,020. Who paid you?—A man of the name of Beuls, who kept the Bonny Boat; the landlord.

78,021. After you voted?—Yes; after the election.

78,022. Who did you vote for in 1847?—Clay and Brown.

78,023. Did you receive any money at that election?—10*s.*

78,024. Who for?—Mr. Brown.

78,025. When?—The night before the election.

78,026. Who by were you paid?—A man of the name of Norris, of the Yorkshire Grey.

78,027. At the last election who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

78,028. You applied to be set down in South Myton?—No, I did not.

78,029. Were you set down there?—No.

78,030. Were you set down nowhere as a runner?—I have made a mistake. I did not vote for Clay and Goderich; I voted for the Tories.

78,031. Moore and Butler?—Yes.

78,032. How much money did you get?—20*s.*

78,033. Who paid you?—Mr. Wells.

78,034. How came the blues to take up your freedom; were you asked by Mr. Brown; did he tell you he would pay for it if you liked?—No.

78,035. How came the blues to pay for your freedom?—Two gentlemen came down to our house, and told me I was to go down to Mr. Hammond's, at Witham, and he was there.

78,036. Charles or Thomas Hammond?—An old gentleman.

78,037. And he sent you up to the Mansion House to have your freedom taken up?—He came with me.

78,038. Do you know Mr. Wilde?—No.

78,039. Look at him?—I do not know him.

78,053. Are they your relations?—Yes.
78,054. You got your name set down?—Yes.
78,055. Did they get their names set down?—No.
78,056. Did you see Mr. Wells yourself?—No.
78,057. Did Samuel, John, and Charles tell you they had had their names set down?—No.
78,058. Did you apply to Mr. Wells?—No.
78,059. Who to?—West; Mr. Stephenson's clerk.
78,060. At the time you made application for employment, did he say anything about the way in which the others gave their vote?—No.
78,061. Are the others your brothers?—Yes.
78,062. You applied to West?—Yes.
78,063. How much money did you get?—30*s.* before the election.
78,064. How much afterwards?—I got 10*s.* afterwards.
78,065. Did you ever tell West your brothers would vote if you were employed?—No.
78,066. Did you ever tell Mr. Wells so?—No.
78,067. Did you ever tell West or Mr. Wells anything about your brothers?—No.
78,068. Are you sure of that?—Yes.
78,069. Did they go with you when you applied?—No.
78,070. Did you hear them say that they had applied at any time?—No.
78,071. Where are your brothers?—They are away.

78,076. Are you also a freeman?—No.
78,077. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—1847.
78,078. Who did you vote for?—I did not vote at all.
78,079. At the last election who did you vote for?—Lord Goderich.
78,080. Did you attend at the committee room in Minerva Terrace?—No.
78,081. Do you recollect paying a man named Whitaker?—No.
78,082. A runner for seven days?—No.
78,083. At 3*s.* 6*d.* a day?—No.
78,084. Do you know the man?—No.
78,085. Did you pay any man 3*s.* 6*d.* a day for running?—For the last election?
78,086. Yes?—No one.
78,087. At the former election did you pay a man named Whitaker?—No.
78,088. Any man?—I do not know that I paid any man.
78,089. Did you make some payments at the election of 1847, in Waverley Street?—No.
78,090. Do you know Mr. Pulleyn?—No.
78,091. Do you know the Baltic?—I do; I went down to the Baltic.
78,092. Did you make some payments there?—No.
78,093. When did you go to the Baltic?—The day before the election.
78,094. What did you go there for?—There were eighty men lodged there. I saw the landlord, and agreed with him that those were to be paid 5*s.* a man; 5*s.* a day, and put on as runners. He sent the bill to the general committee, and it was paid by Mr. Burstall.
78,095. How long was it before the election?—It was to be eleven days.
78,096. 5*s.* a day for eleven days?—Yes.
78,097. Eighty of them?—Eighty of them.
78,098. The landlord made the bargain with them?—Yes.
78,099. Were they upstairs?—Yes, upstairs; somewhere in the house.
78,100. Did you see any of them?—No.
78,101. Did the landlord give you a list of them?—No.
78,102. Who authorized you to go and make that agreement with them?—It was some of the committee.
78,103. Who was present?—Mr. Digby was one I saw; my father was another.
78,104. What were you to do?—To go down and canvass them, and do the best I could for them.
78,105. To secure them with money?—Yes.

E. H. Mitchell.

8th August 1853.

78,106. You promised them?—I promised the landlord. I made the bargain with the a ndlord. Mr. Pulleyn was with me.

78,107. You made the bargain with the landlord, at 5*s.* a head, for four days?—Yes.

78,108. Do you call that securing votes for money?—It is if they paid them, it was not paid till after they had polled.

78,109. I ask you whether you call that securing votes for money?—No.

78,110. What do you call it?—Paying the money for the runners; putting them on as runners.

78,111. If you engage a man on the election day, and pay for four days on the polling day, that is paying for labour?—No; unless you engage him.

78,112. Explain what you mean by saying if you engage eighty men on the polling day, at 5*s.* a head, for four days, you consider that as labour?—It is paying them for their votes.

78,113. You say you call it paying a man for his vote. Did you pay for Mr. Pulleyn any money?—No.

78,114. What did you do for him?—Nothing.

78,115. What did you do with him?—I did not know he was there. He said he went down in the cab with me to bargain.

78,116. Did you pay any money in Waverley Street?—No.

78,117. You made no payments there?—None at all.

78,118. Do you know a man of the name of John Barker?—No. Several parties made applications to me, and I said I would get their names put down.

78,119. I believe your father was active?—He was.

78,120. He is not alive?—He is not.

78,121. Did you live with your father at that time?—No; my father lived in Sutton, and I lived in Hull.

78,122. Have you looked to see if you can find any papers?—I have searched all over the house, and I cannot find anything belonging to it.

78,123. You are his executor?—I am now

78,124. You cannot find anything belonging to the matter?—No; I have searched for them.

78,125. Tell us who else was in the committee room when you received this direction; you think Mr. Digby was there?—I believe I got it from Mr. Digby and Mr. Burstall. Mr. Lockwood was there, I think; there were three.

78,126. What time in the day was it?—As near as I can tell, it would be nearly twelve o'clock.

78,127. On the polling day?—On the polling day.

78,128. Did the landlord come to the room?—He did.

78,129. And stated that the men were there?—I went down to the Baltic; saw the landlord; brought the landlord back with me, and he received the money, to the best of my knowledge, of Mr. Burstall.

78,130. How did you know they were there?—The landlord came previous to that.

78,131. The landlord came to the central room and said the men were there?—Yes; to make the best he could of them.

Richard Mitchell.

RICHARD MITCHELL sworn, and examined.

78,132. Where do you live?—Manor Street.

78,133. What is your business?—A hairdresser.

78,134. What rent do you pay?—Six guineas.

78,135. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

78,136. When were you made a freeman?—In 1818.

78,137. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Yes.

78,138. Who for?—James and Hanmer.

78,139. Did you get any money then?—No.

78,140. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines.

78,141. Were you on any committee?—No.

78,142. Did you receive any money at that election?—I got 5*s.* about six months after the election.

78,143. Who for?—Mr. Baines.

78,144. Who paid you?—Mr. Sidebottom.

78,145. What was it for?—I do not know. They were paying 5*s.* apiece for those that gave a split vote, and those that gave a bullet, 10*s.*

78,146. Did you receive nothing from Mr. Clay?—No.

78,147. At the last election did you get your name put down?—Yes.

78,148. Who was it for?—Moore and Butler.

78,149. Did you take a note with you from Mr. Wells to Mr. Gleadow?—Yes.

78,150. Did he put down all the names that were mentioned in the note?—No, not all. I did not see Mr. Wells write the note, nor could I read it.

78,151. You took it with you?—I did.

Richard Mitchell.

8th August 1853.

78,152. The others went with you and got their names put down?—They went to Lowgate. I was put down at the central room.

78,153. Yourself and your son and John Johnson?—Yes.

78,154. What is your son's name?—Richard.

78,155. Where is John Johnson?—Some one came for him last week, but he has left the town. I do not know where he is.

78,156. Have you a son who is a voter?—Yes.

78,157. A brother?—No.

78,158. What is your other son's name?—James Henry.

78,159. Did Mr. Gleadow give you employment at the time?—He gave me employment.

78,160. I believe it was considered enough to secure all your votes?—I do not know for that; of course I polled for him, so did my son. I do not know whether the others did or not.

78,161. Your two sons?—No, only one; the other had nothing to do with it.

78,162. John Johnson, he voted?—He got on at the other committee room, therefore I never saw him after.

78,163. How much money did you get?—24*s.*

78,164. Did Mr. Gleadow give you the choice of which should be set on; you or your son John?—No; when I went into the room there was Mr. Ward there, he said, "Here is Mitchell, you may put him on this committee room." I had been with Mr. Ward four elections, and he wished to have me there.

78,165. When were you paid?—Saturday week after the election.

78,167. Did you receive money for anybody else?—No.

78,168. Only for yourself?—Only for myself.

Charles Ware.

CHARLES WARE sworn, and examined.

78,169. Where do you live?—No. 74, Osborne Street.

78,170. What business are you?—A hairdresser and furniture broker.

78,171. What rent do you yay?—£12.

78,172. Are you a freeman?—No; I have not taken it up. I am a householder.

78,173. Were you entitled to vote in 1841?—I almost forget. I think I split my vote for the first election. I voted blue and orange. I have voted twice for Mr. Clay.

78,174. That is in 1847?—Yes.

78,175. Did you receive any money?—Not a farthing.

78,176. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

78,177. Was your room engaged?—No; it was not engaged. Dr. Bell came down to my house and asked if I had a room to let. I told him I could let him have one, and he agreed to give me 2*l.* for the use of it, and they never occupied it.

78,178. You got two guineas?—Two guineas, I think it was.

78,179. Did you have any list of a committee?—No.

78,180. Nobody ever attended it?—No.

78,181. You intended to vote for them?—I did.

78,182. Dr. Bell understood that, probably?—No, he did not. I did not promise any one till the election day.

78,183. Did you tell him you always intended to vote for him?—I did.

78,184. When were you paid?—About a fortnight after the election.

78,185. Had you got a chair you wanted to sell?—I had plenty of chairs.

78,186. You do not deal in chairs?—Yes; I am a furniture broker.

78,187. Did you offer the blues a good chair?—I might offer many a good chair.

78,188. Did you offer the blues; Dr. Bell?—I do not know that I did.

78,189. Did he buy one of you?—He has bought many things of me.

78,190. Did he buy a chair?—I do not think he did.

78,191. Did the committee ever meet at your place?—Not one.

78,192. You never expected them there?—I did not know. I made the room ready for them, but they never came to it.

78,193. When was it taken?—About a week or ten days before the election.

Adjourned to to-morrow, at ten o'clock.

FIFTY-FOURTH DAY.—Tuesday, August 9, 1853.

[The Chief Commissioner stated that they had had a communication from Mr. O'Neill, with respect to some statements which had been made in the course of Captain Walton's evidence, with regard to his election for Hull; certain observations had been made which they had directed to be expunged from the notes, but they having found their way into the newspapers, Mr. O'Neill had written to the Speaker of the House of Commons, and also to them, two letters to the following effect] :—

"In great haste. "Anderton's Hotel, Fleet Street, London, August 8th, 1853.

"Gentlemen,—I have the honour to submit to you the enclosed copy of a letter I this day caused to be laid before the Speaker of the House of Commons, who informed me through his secretary that he could not in his official capacity interfere. The secretary added that he advised my sending a copy of the letter to the Commissioners, and that it would certainly be a case of great hardship if I either were not examined, or that my letter contradicting the statements made by Mr. S. Walton were not annexed to your report, in order that it might appear with it on record.

"I am ready to enter into the fullest details, and shall by to-morrow's post, D.V., write more fully; meantime, I pray that this letter may be acknowledged.—I have, &c.,

"To the Honourable the Commissioners." "J. A. O'NEILL."

"London, August 8th, 1853.

"Sir,—I saw by mere accident, on Saturday morning, the 6th instant, a report of evidence alleged to have been given on the 25th ult., at Hull, by one of the witnesses examined before a Commission, which I conclude (but did not before hear of) was issued by the House, to inquire into the Hull election matters.

"In the report, the witness is made to state that a peer of the realm, whom he named, bore the expenses of my election for Hull in 1826; that some other peer sent down 1,000*l.* during the election, and that the expenses for my return amounted to above 12,000*l.* There is not one fact in these three statements, and I submit to you that they ought not to be placed uncontradicted on the records of Parliament.

"In justice, therefore, to the cause of truth, to my own character, and to that of peers charged with unconstitutional proceedings, I respectfully solicit that my evidence shall be received.

"I am ready to depose on oath that the expenses of my election were under 4,700*l.*, and that they were at my sole cost; and that neither peer, peers, nor commoners bore one shilling of these expenses, save a sum which my agent stated he had expended out of his own pocket, for which I settled with him, as well as for his services and that of his staff, immediately after the election.

"The same witness is represented as saying that I had no property (though I took the oath); I am ready to swear and to prove that this assertion is utterly untrue; but attribute error, not intentional misstatement, to the witness.

"I do not know who form the Commission, my appeal is to you, and through you. I earnestly entreat it may go to the Commisssioners,—I have, &c.,

"JOHN A. O'NEILL, formerly member for Hull,
"Anderton's Hotel, 164, Fleet Street."

"To the Right Honourable the Speaker of the House of Commons."

[Having received those letters and made this public statement, the Commissioners had sent a telegraph message to Mr. O'Neill, stating what they had done; and also that if Mr. O'Neill wished to be examined upon the matter, they would be prepared to examine him on his presenting himself before them.]

Sir JOHN HANMER, Bart., M.P., sworn, and examined.

Sir J. Hanmer, Bart.

9th August 1853.

78,194. You are now a member of Parliament, I believe?—I am at present a member of Parliament.

78,195. And formerly represented this borough?—I was for six years the representative of this borough.

78,196. Having been elected in 1841?—Having been elected in 1841.

78,197. After a very severe contest?—Yes.

78,198. I believe that previous to that time, you were a stranger to Hull?—I had never been in Hull before that time.

78,199. And the proposal that you should become a candidate was probably due only to political reasons?—The proposal; if you wish to have the particulars, I can give them.

78,200. No; merely that it should appear upon the minutes that you are not a merchant or carrying on business here; but that you came merely as a political candidate to represent certain political opinions?—A bencher of one of the inns of court had some connexion with this town; he was a friend of mine, and through him I became introduced here.

Sir J. Hanmer, Bart.

9th August 1853.

78,201. How long before the dissolution was your attention called to the representation of Hull?—You are aware that when one speaks of matters that happened twelve years ago, it is not always quite easy to give an accurate answer; but to the best of my memory it was some time in the early part of the month of May, or the latter part of the month of April, 1841.

78,202. Did you receive a requisition?—Yes; I believe I did.

78,203. I believe you were not acquainted with Sir Walter James at that time; you had no personal acquaintance with him in the first instance?—My personal acquaintance with Sir Walter James undoubtedly arose out of the proposal that I should stand for Hull; it was necessary, before I acceded finally to that proposal, that I should see Sir Walter, and that we should become acquainted with each other, and personally ascertain whether we were likely people to stand in a friendly manner together in a candidateship which was one and indivisible.

78,204. At that time, had you heard that Hull was, to use a common expression, rather an expensive place to represent?—I had not.

78,205. Or had you heard that the representation of Hull had become the subject of Parliamentary inquiry?—I was aware of that.

78,206. Were you aware to any extent that the inquiry extended over many days, and that there were allegations of bribery, corrupt practices at all events?—The Hull committee to this day is a committee well known among members of the House of Commons.

78,207. For its almost unparalleled duration?—I do not know about the duration; I know it is a leading case, you are not to follow any decision that is generally urged upon you, if you sit upon an election committee yourself, by the counsel,—that you are not to follow any decision that was come to by that committee; but I did not know that at the time.

78,208. You knew that such an inquiry had been, and was tolerably notorious?—I did not know that at the time.

78,209. You knew there had been an inquiry?—Yes; I knew there had been an inquiry. Sir Walter James told me so, I have no doubt.

78,210. Your attention being drawn to the representation, you had an interview, I suppose, with Sir Walter James?—I had an interview with Sir Walter James, but not for the purpose of receiving a carte du pays for this town, but for the purpose of receiving personal information from Sir Walter James with regard to the affairs of the town; because my decision to stand, subject to finding Sir Walter James a gentleman with whom I could stand satisfactorily, was formed upon the representations made by Mr. Barkworth and Mr. Ward.

78,211. What brought you into communication with those gentlemen; Mr. Ward came to town and saw you at your hotel?—He did.

78,212. At Hanover Square?—Yes.

78,213. Do you recollect what took place then, if anything, upon the subject of the expenses?—Yes; I can say that I remember, but I am afraid that I cannot give any very definite answer; but I will give you the best I can. I perfectly remember this, that the expenses of the election were discussed, as I think was very natural they should be discussed between us; it is a very necessary thing, before you go down to an election, that you should know what expenses you are likely to be put to; and it was stated to me that the return of two candidates on the interest prepared to support Sir Robert Peel,—supposing two candidates could be found who would agree with each other and were eligible in all respects, and likely to be accepted by the town,—this position was in the first place offered us to the best of my remembrance. I believe it was stated that the expenses should be 1,400*l.*, with some liability beyond.

78,214. £1,400 each?—£1,400 each, with some liability beyond; but I have ransacked my memory in vain to light upon what that liability was; but if we did not choose to accept 1,400*l.*, and some further liability, we were to be guaranteed all expenses whatsoever for the payment of 1,600*l.* each; that I most perfectly and distinctly remember. I am prepared to depose it, and I do depose it.

78,215. Before you finish this interview, was there not something said as to the mode in which that money was to be expended?—That is one of the questions that it is so difficult to answer after a lapse of twelve years; but to the best of my recollection and sincere belief I cannot say that I think, upon that occasion, anything was said which would give me a definite idea of what was the mode of elections in this town. I was simply to pay my money, and take my chance, I believe.

78,216. Do I understand you that it is more than probable some conversation did take place, but that it has escaped your memory after the length of time that has elapsed?—That is a very difficult question to answer. I must have asked questions, of course.

78,217. It is more than probable that you would, before undertaking to pay so large a sum of money, enter into a more minute inquiry?—As to a large sum of money, I have known a very pure election cost a great deal more. My opinion is this: that the sum of money did not appear to me to be a very large one for a contested election, and that my questions, I should say,—but really, I say it with all the deference that one ought to give to any evidence as to what happened twelve years ago,—my questions, I think, rather related to the prospects of the election and to the strength of the blue party, than to how the 1,400*l.* was to be expended; and it was my belief, that although no doubt candidates at elections are apt to draw upon their imaginations rather than upon their reason, when one has a retrospect one looks at a thing in a different point of view than when one has a prospect. I did believe that I was to have an honest honourable election; and I do believe, notwithstanding any defects that attached to it, that I had one,—that it was an honourable election, of which I was proud at the time; and although I cannot appear here without some degree of regret, I think, upon the whole, I am not sorry that I represented the town, and I hope it will mend.

78,218. I believe, in point of fact, you paid 2,800*l.*?—The sum I ultimately paid was 2,890*l.*

78,219. You preferred the 1,600*l.*?—Yes.

78,220. But no fixed agreement was come to at that time?—There was nothing like writing, or anything of that sort. I considered I was dealing with gentlemen, and I am sure I was; and I never saw a better specimen of a mercantile gentleman than the late Mr. Barkworth; he was a good man if there ever was one, and I am sure that any guarantee that he gave, or that Mr. Ward gave, was with good faith, and if it fell through it was owing to the chapter of accidents, and I did not scrutinize too strictly what the cause was.

78,221. Your impression is that no definite arrangement was come to then?—I came down to Hull with the impression and understanding, and an arrangement, as far as words went, that I ought not to pay more than 1,600*l.*; that is what I understood.

78,222. You were under the belief that 1,600*l.* was to be expended?—Yes.

78,223. And the rest was to be guaranteed?—Yes; and the rest was to be guaranteed.

78,224. In case there was a surplus?—Yes; in case of a surplus that the rest was to be paid from a fund derived from other sources in the town.

78,225. Did you understand upon that occasion it was more than probable that some additional aid would be required, over and above the 1,600*l.*?—Yes; I think I did, certainly. I think that follows as a matter of course; I think so.

78,226. Do you remember whether anything was said as to the amount of the subscription?—Yes; to the best of my remembrance—I state it with doubt—but to the best of my remembrance I think that it was said that 1,000*l.* had been subscribed, or was to be, or something of that sort.

78,227. Had been, or was to be?—Yes; there was to be, but I never saw any subscription list.

78,228. Was there any alteration made about this sum of 1,600*l.*, before your arrival in Hull?—No.

78,229. I believe you came down to Hull something like a month before the election?—From a memorandum which I casually found in an old almanack, I find that I came to Hull upon the 31st of May, 1841, and the election was the 1st of July.

78,230. The usual preliminaries were made, I believe, of committees being formed?—Yes. When I came down into the town,—I never saw such another town, excepting a French town just after the French revolution,—it was strewed with banners and flags to such an extent. I was in France after the revolution, and I compared Hull to that the moment I saw it; there were flags out of almost every other window.

78,231. Did it not then strike you that you were entering upon rather an expensive contest, or rather a lavish expenditure of money?—No, it did not strike me in that point of view. I did not think about the money; I wanted to get elected. Do not think that I came down to spend money; but I mean that money was not the prominent consideration in my mind.

78,232. It might have struck you that more than usual energetic measures were being adopted?—No. I said before one's imagination rather than one's reason is active upon those occasions, and I do not think one scrutinizes and looks into things as clearly as you may do now, in the position that you occupy.

78,233. It is a very different thing to look back?—It is. I deny, in the strongest manner, that I came down to this town with a view of becoming its representative mainly, or prominently, or particularly by dint of money. It would be perfectly contrary to every view which I have ever entertained; and I would not take the trouble of sitting in Parliament if I did not think it an honourable position, and I should not think it an honourable position if it was due to money; at the same time I did not scrutinize the expenditure very strictly at that time, but I have since.

78,234. How soon was your attention called to a class of people in Hull, called runners or messengers?—There again I have some difficulty, and I will give you the best answer that I can. I have read Sir Walter James' evidence, and for Sir Walter James no man can have a greater respect or friendship than I have, and I am perfectly certain that his evidence is as good as any man's can possibly be; but if he means to say that he told me before I came down to Hull, or if any inference is drawn from any part of his evidence that he told me before I came down to Hull anything about these runners, or anything about the machinery of elections at all, I can only say that my remembrance does not correspond with his, and I do not believe that he did tell me; and I come to that conclusion for this reason: that my interview with Sir Walter James was not upon the subject of the machinery or business. I wanted to see what sort of a man he was, and he wanted to see what sort of a man I was; we wanted to see if we were persons who could stand together in a friendly manner, and I am proud and happy to say that we were.

Sir J. Hanmer, Bart.

9th August 1853.

78,235. I have it "That Sir Walter James did not communicate to me, to the best of my recollection, any details"?—Yes; before I went to Hull. I think not.

78,236. I observe that you particularly guard yourself by saying fairly that your memory does not agree with Sir Walter James's?—I know nothing of Sir Walter James's deposition or evidence excepting what I saw in the newspapers; but I read it in the newspapers, and I should say, to the best of my remembrance, that an inference was drawn from Sir Walter James's evidence rather more than he might have intended. I think that the gloss was a little more than the text; at any rate, my belief is that Sir Walter James did not communicate with me upon the subject of the machinery of the election before I came down to Hull, but rather our conversation ran upon such matters as two gentlemen might talk about; I dare say the public politics of the day more than anything else. We trusted to our committee, who were gentlemen of the highest respectability, and several of them much better capable of representing this town in Parliament than either of us were.

78,237. How soon was your attention drawn to the machinery; I mean, as part of the machinery, the pratice of securing votes by means of employing people?—When one is asked a question of that sort, going back to so remote a period, one strives, if one can, to light upon something that is definite, and my definite recollection, I am afraid, must commence at a later period than 1841. I remember, in 1842, when Lord John Russell brought in that bill which passed on the 10th of August, 1842, and which I know very well, because ever since I have always given a copy of it to my agents as their instructions at the election,—I remember saying to Sir Walter James, in private conversation in the House of Commons, "Unless our friends at Hull alter their mode of election, we shall never be able to stand for Hull again under this bill;" and I should say that it was highly probable that I must have known something or another about the runners during the contest. I do not want at all to fence off any knowledge of that sort, but I cannot strictly say that I did know it. I dare say I did know it, and if I did, I should think I derived it more from my eyesight and hearing than anything else.

78,238. The practice detailed to us is a practice of engaging a large number of runners, and it is an understood thing that part of the bargain is the vote; and that is understood on both sides?—All that would be understood much more between the committee men and the runners, than between the candidates and the runners.

78,239. What I wish to know is, whether at some time or another you became pretty well acquainted with the circumstances that that was one of the modes of electioneering tactics in Hull?—I think I must repeat what I have said, that I have no doubt, and I think there is no reasonable doubt but what I must have known it, and I do not wish to defend myself from the imputation, if imputation there be, of having known it. I cannot say that I exactly did know it. I am sure that no member of my committee, or any person engaged in the machinery of the election ever communicated one bit of it to me; not the least upon earth; but if you go about the streets you hear and see many things.

78,240. Sir Walter James stated that you could not go round Hull without observing it?—I should think so.

78,241. Without noticing that the system prevailed?—Yes.

78,242. The note I have is, "I have no reasonable doubt that I became aware of the system, although not mentioned to me by my committee"?—I give you evidence that I did know it in 1842, and I must have known of it some time previous, and I suppose that must have been in 1841; but nobody ever made to me a business communication of the machinery of the election. I never had a map of the proceedings.

78,243. I have it down, "I have no reason to doubt that the system became known to me during the contest, although it was not communicated to me by any of the committee"?—Yes; I think that would convey my meaning. I would not say that I did not know it on any account; but I believed that it was legal in those days, or at any rate a very questionable illegality. I beg to refer to Lord John Russell's Act, which distinctly lays down that, and I distinctly deny that it was a clearly illegal practice in those days. I say it is now, and has been ever since the 10th of August, 1842. I say to the best of my knowledge and belief it was before that time, at the most, a questionable illegality.

78,244. You put it upon the same ground as head money?—If it had been there would be no necessity to declare it was illegal.

78,245. I believe that on the 10th and 14th of June, respectively, you paid to the credit of your committee the two sums of 500*l.* each?—Yes; I have got an account from my banker's. I think it was on the 10th and 14th of June that I paid 500*l.*

78,246. On each of those days?—No; it all came in half notes for the security of the post. I paid 500*l.* between the 10th and 14th of June.

78,247. On the 10th you sent one half, and on the 14th you sent the other half?—Yes.

78,248. You remitted these to Mr. Barkworth?—Yes.

78,249. On the 29th of June the first half, and on the 5th of July the second half of another 500*l.*?—Yes; that made 1,000*l.*

78,250. Then on the 20th and 22d of July?—He had 1,000*l.* in half notes.

78,251. And on the 19th of November 890*l.*?—Yes, on the 19th of November, 890*l.*; that was in a cheque.

78,252. How soon did you become aware that you were likely to be called upon for a larger sum than 1,600*l.*?—To the best of my judgment, and speaking as nearly as I can, —I have not the least memorandum of it,—but to the best of my judgment, I should say that I had been in Hull ten days or a fortnight; I should think so; perhaps a little more, because I seem to have been here ten days when I paid the first 500*l.*

78,253. Between ten days and three weeks?—Yes; I should think so. About a fortnight you may say.

78,254. About a fortnight after your arrival you became aware that you were likely to be called upon for more than 1,600*l.*?—Yes.

78,255. Can you remember any of the communication that took place between you and any of the gentlemen here upon that subject?—The communication did not occupy five minutes, and perhaps not two. It took place between me and Mr. Barkworth, in a room I know very well, in the George Inn in this town, where I was then staying. Mr. Barkworth told me with some degree of hesitation and evident regret, that the guarantee which he had given me could not be fulfilled; and I had that degree of regard and respect for Mr. Barkworth that I asked no more questions, because I thought he was in a personal difficulty. He had undoubtedly given me as strong a guarantee as one man could give another, in words, that I should not be called upon for more.

78,256. You drew the conclusion from that communication of Mr. Barkworth's, that in all reasonable probability you would have to pay something more?—Certainly; he told me so.

78,257. Did he give you to understand how much more you were likely to be called upon for?—It seems curious that I should be able to depose with accuracy to some sums and not as to others. Sir Walter James says he understands it was 2,000*l.* at first. He is quite wrong there, that I can declare most positively. I have a remembrance, but I should not like to depose to it strictly, that 2,000*l.* was mentioned as something like the sum; but there is a difference as between the 1,600*l.* and the 2,000*l.* There is this difference, that the 1,600*l.* was mentioned to us as strictly a thing not to be exceeded and a guarantee beyond; and when the 2,000*l.* was mentioned, the guarantee had vanished into thin air.

78,258. Was it at this time that Mr. Barkworth communicated that you were likely to be called upon for more; that, according to your memory, the circumstance of the 2,000*l.* was mentioned?—According to the best of my remembrance I should say so. I never consulted any other person about it. Sir Walter James was present; in fact, we lived in the same room.

78,259. Do you recollect anything more that took place upon that occasion between you and Mr. Barkworth?—Nothing. I dare say I might have told him to take care not to spend too much money, or something of that sort, but I do not remember anything about it. I certainly did not want to spend any more money than I could help.

78,260. During the course of the contest, up to the day of the election, was anything definite stated to you by any member of your committee, or by Sir Walter James to you, upon the subject of the previous practices; the practice which has been described here as the setting down practice?—That is the same as the runners, is it not?

78,261. Yes; runners?—I really think that there was as little said as you can imagine about the former elections, and for this reason, I think there must have been a general reference to the previous election. It had cost Sir Walter James, as he told me, what between the election and the petition, 8,000*l.*; and we naturally neither of us wanted to run into that sort of expense again, and we had every desire to avoid it; but we brought down, I think you have heard, a professional gentleman for the purpose of keeping us clear of scrapes as well as he could.

78,262. That was for the sake of being upon the safe side if possible?—If possible, certainly; we were in the condition of the captain of a ship who takes a pilot on board.

78,263. And the scrapes that were apprehended were the scrapes of getting on the wrong side of the law?—That is a scrape that any gentleman will be very right to take into his consideration at any election whatever, whether at Hull or anywhere else. It is a very hard thing to do to keep the right side of the law, very hard indeed, and I doubt whether anybody ever did it; but I hope they will. I think we were exactly in the condition of the captain of a vessel who takes a pilot on board. The captain does not trouble himself about the shoals and rocks. He says to the pilot, "Take me into Hull, and mind you do not run us against the Spurn Sand;" and so we took this pilot and said, "Run us into Hull."

78,264. Then did you consider that you threw yourself in a great measure into the arms of your committee and the professional gentleman?—Not as to the professional gentleman, because it was perfectly evident he could do no good. He had not been in Hull a day, when I say, with great respect to him, he was perfectly useless. He had nothing to do. He was misplaced, poor man, but I dare say he is a good and honourable gentleman.

78,265. Was it that the committee would have it their own way?—Yes; I think it was. We had nothing to do with the committee's proceedings.

Sir J. Hanmer, Bart.

9th August 1853.

78,266. Did he attend the committee?—Oh no, certainly not; and they would have turned him out if he had, I have no doubt.

78,267. You do not know whether any questions were put to him at all?—No. I remember this about him, that on the day of the election it had been a very rainy day, and there was a quantity of mud in the front of the hustings, and we were very much pelted; and our friend would not come upon the hustings, and I thought that was very hard. I thought he ought to have taken his share of the pelting.

78,268. Did they consult him at all?—Not the least. They had nothing at all to do with him.

78,269. Did the committee make any remarks about his being of no use?—I thought they seemed to consider that we had no business to bring him; it was a highly unpopular act. No doubt they managed their own affairs, and we could not interfere with them.

78,270. Your committee seemed determined to win at all events?—Yes; I have no doubt they were, and so was I too.

78,271. I dare say the employment of these extra runners was one of the means that they used?—Really, Sir, I must repeat what I said before. You may think it rather a paradox, but upon my word, I do not think that the main character of the Hull election of 1841 was a corrupt character; I do not think it was.

78,272. We are talking of minor details. A very small number would have turned the election?—I have no doubt in the world that it would. It was a very hot contest,

78,273. I mean to a limited extent?—It was an ardent, hot, violent contest, as ever I saw in my life.

78,274. And in so near a contest, so closely matched as you were, it was one of the systems that would be resorted to, to employ runners for the sake of securing some votes?—I was not a member of the committee, I was a candidate, and I did all I could. All things in the world go by division of labour. I did my part and they did theirs.

78,275. Still I understand you became aware that that was one of the means resorted to by the committee to some extent; I do not mean that they told you, but that you became aware of it?—I think that would be an erroneous inference to draw, if you think at any time that I considered with myself,—"Now I am fifty short, or 100 short, or any number short, and I want so many runners to be employed,"—I do not think anything was ever so definite in my mind.

78,276. I do not put anything so definite as that; but that in a contest, obviously a very severe one, likely to terminate one way or other by a very small majority, that that was a mode of securing success which would not be neglected?—I have no doubt it was resorted to, not the least in the world.

78,277. How soon did you become aware that 2,000*l.* would not cover the expenses?—I should think the 16th or 17th of November.

78,278. Upon the 17th you sent the balance; you had then paid 2,000*l.*?—I had then paid 2,000*l.*

78,279. I will put the question this way: when you paid the sum of 1,000*l.* by the remittances of the 20th and 22d of July, were you then under the impression that you had covered it?—I should say I was much more under that impression than not.

78,280. You did not feel yourself quite safe?—I should have said, if anybody had asked me, that I had paid the expenses of the election. I should have said so.

78,281. But had some little doubt that probably you might be called upon for something more?—I do not think the doubt was present in my mind at all. My opinion is, that I considered that the 2,000*l.* covered everything; but, as I think I have stated to you before, it is not like a mercantile transaction, or a transaction with your banker, where everything is reduced to the most definite amount.

78,282. You were under the impression that you had covered it?—Yes; more so than not.

78,283. How soon were you made aware that you were to be called upon again?—I should think on the 19th; that was the day I received the letter.

78,284. The day you made the remittance was the 19th of November?—I made the remittance upon the same day that I received the intimation that I was to pay more money. I did not make more work about it; I did not hesitate half an hour, I am certain, upon the subject, that is to say, to the best of my remembrance.

78,285. On or about the same day?—On or about the same day, I think. I cannot remember that anybody said anything to me about money until then, and I was not very well pleased with it either.

78,286. Did you hear, shortly after the election was over, that a large number of men called runners had been paid at the rate of 1*l.* apiece?—I did not.

78,287. Did you authorize that payment?—As a special payment? If you speak of a special payment, or if you speak of a special authority, certainly not; I considered I was merely bound by the act of the friends who were acting for me, which I showed by making the payment when I was asked for it. I did not like to make any work about it.

78,288. We wish to call your attention to these payments. It is proved that these payments continued after the 22d of July, and up to the very time that your 800*l.* was paid. I wish to know whether you knew the purpose for which your money was to be specially applied; whether it was for the payment of these sums of 1*l.* each?—No, I did not; I paid the money and left Mr. Barkworth to appropriate it as he liked. You see the fact is, I had a perfect and thorough confidence in Mr. Barkworth. I am sure he did the best for me that he could.

78,289. Did you at any time learn that a considerable sum of your money was expended in the payment of 1*l.* each to the voters after the election, at intervals, from the polling day, and continued for some months?—I have heard from your lips, for the first time, that that is the fact.

78,290. I am obliged to state what is given in evidence?—I have not the least doubt that it was done.

78,291. You did not sanction it before it was done?—I did not.

78,292. And at the time, I understood you to say, when you paid the 890*l.* you were not aware of the details?—Most undoubtedly I was not, but the details were sent to me. I received a packet of papers by that same post; I cannot tell you from whom I received it, or to whom I sent it; but I remember being displeased at two things: first of all at the money being demanded from me, and, in the second place, at the particulars being sent, because I thought I had nothing at all to do with it. If the money had been spent, and anybody had anything like an honourable claim against me, I might shrug my shoulders and pay the money; but I did not want to look into the details.

78,293. These would show that that large number of voters had been paid 1*l.* apiece?—I assure you I did not open the papers, and I would not.

78,294. Sufficiently to see what they were?—It was a roll of paper, and I received a letter from somebody or another; whether Mr. Barkworth or not, I do not know, but I received a communication that I was to pay 890*l.* The roll of paper was sent purporting to be the accounts. I said, "What have I to do with the accounts; I will pay the money if I must, but I will not look into the accounts." None of the things were done with my particular and special sanction, and I did not choose to give a sanction afterwards; at the same time, I did not wish to be in anybody's debt.

78,295. Do you remember what you did with those accounts?—I sent them back to the gentleman who sent them to me; whether it was Mr. Barkworth, or any other, I cannot tell, but I sent them back by the same post; the whole thing; cheque, drafts, and everything by the same post. Those were only the accounts for the 890*l.* I never in my life saw an account for the 2,000*l.*

78,296. It was that 890*l.*, judging from what has been detailed to us, which was the sum expended in paying the 1*l.* apiece?—It is very likely, but I know not half as much as you what was in the 890*l.*

78,297. All that you remember of it is, that these accounts were stated to be the accounts relating to the 890*l.*?—The fact is this; if it had not been a gentleman who asked for the 890*l.* I would not have paid a farthing; but it being a gentleman, and a man in whom I had the greatest confidence, and to whom I felt obliged, I did not want there to be any question of money between us, and when he said, "You will do me the favour to pay 890*l.*," I paid the 890*l.* I had no particulars; at least they furnished me with those things which I refused to look at.

78,298. It has been stated in evidence to us, that a person came down from London, who made payments at the house of a person named Dalton?—I saw that stated in the evidence in the newspaper.

78,299. I mention it for the purpose of drawing your attention particularly to the fact, in order to know if you can throw any light upon the subject?—I assure you I can depose most distinctly and positively, that I never heard of that person, or of any similar transaction, until I read it in the newspaper last week; and I do not know either that it was done, or by whom it was done, and that no person having any connexion with me did it.

78,300. The man is described as having appeared to be a lawyer's clerk?—Very likely; it was not any lawyer of mine.

78,301. Did you instruct any solicitor?—I never spoke to my solicitor in my life about any election whatever, either Hull or any other.

78,302. That brings me to ask the question, did you employ a solicitor to conduct this election?—No, I did not. There may have been solicitors employed by the committee, for anything I know to the contrary, but I employed none at all; my whole consultations were with Mr. Barkworth, who, as I say, was my pilot.

78,303. Probably you knew to some extent that Mr. Sidebottom had the management?—I had no doubt that he had; he frequently came in with Mr. Barkworth, and his manner was that of a man in confidential relation with Mr. Barkworth and other people; but he was not employed by me. He would have had no legal claim against me, I am sure.

78,304. A person of the name of Samuel Brown was examined yesterday, and described himself as a political agent; did you know anything of him?—Not the least in the world. I remember seeing such a man in the town, and he seemed to me as if he had had something to do with the former election; that was my notion of him. I remember there was such a person, but I had nothing at all to do with him individually; if anybody had anything to do with him, all I can say is, that that was entirely without my knowledge, the least in the world.

78,305. Did you sanction the employment of a person calling himself a political agent?

Sir J. Hanmer, Bart.

9th August 1853.

—No; I did not indeed; I did not sanction any employment of Mr. Brown, or anybody else in that capacity.

78,306. He described himself as secretary to a Conservative association?—I remember Mr. Brown quite well.

78,307. You did not employ that person?—No; indeed I did not.

78,308. I will ask you, having called your attention to one; I must, as a matter of duty, put the question in a general way. Did you sanction, or were you aware of the payments that were made after the election, in several places in the town of Hull, to persons who voted for you; such payments being made in secret places, through holes in doors, behind screens, and by hands put through windows?—I have read with some amusement those statements in the newspapers, but I assure you that the secrecy of the transaction is perfect as far as I am concerned; I knew nothing at all about them.

78,309. Did you authorize beforehand, or sanction afterwards, such a mode of dealing with the voters?—No, I did not; I did not know of it.

78,310. Just after the election, a small number of freedoms were taken up and purchased, as the people have described it, by the blue party; were you in any way cognizant of the purchase of those freedoms?—I cannot remember that I ever was, and I do not believe that I was.

78,311. Have you any recollection of contributing money for such purposes?—I think while I was member for Hull, I used to pay 50*l.* a year for the registration. I think Sir Walter and myself paid 100*l.* a year between us for the registration, for keeping up the voting lists. I have no remembrance, and I do not believe I ever contributed to the taking up of any freedoms, and I do not think that the question was ever mentioned to me, directly or indirectly. I certainly have no remembrance of it.

78,312. I believe Sir Walter James had been elected as representative of this borough at the election of 1837?—He had, I believe.

78,313. He was the sitting member at the approach of the election at which you were to be a candidate?—He was.

78,314. Sir Walter James stated to us, that previous to the Reform Bill, a custom had prevailed in the borough, of giving four guineas for plumpers and two guineas for a split vote; and after the Reform Bill, something like a commutation of 5*s.* for a day's work?—That is, the runners?

78,315. Do you remember whether he made any communication in substance, like that to you?—I have already answered that question, I believe.

78,316. I think the system previous to the Reform Bill has not been alluded to?—I knew nothing about the system. I remember hearing people rather regret it; some of them; which is very contrary to my view.

78,317. Sir Walter James informed us, that previous to the Reform Bill that had been the custom?—I have heard it, but no communication of that kind was made to me, as a matter of business, connected with the election, not the least in the world.

78,318. But whether it was one of the matters of information that you received about the borough previous to your election?—I do not think that that was mentioned; I have the greatest confidence that it was not.

78,319. Sir Walter James also spoke of the system of employing the runners, and that it was a mode adopted by both parties of securing votes; and he went on to say: "I communicated that to Sir John Hanmer, that he might know what he was about"?—I have already stated, I think, Sir Walter James is in a complete error about that. I do not think that anything like a formal communication between Sir Walter James and myself ever did take place, and I feel the greatest possible confidence that before I went down to Hull it did not take place.

78,320. I do not think Sir Walter James states that it was before you came to Hull?—When you live in the same room and dine at the same table with a man for a month, and are engaged in the same undertaking with him, and when the candidateship is one and indivisible, it is almost impossible but what if one man has some knowledge the other gets it; therefore, I feel very little doubt, that while Sir Walter James and myself were standing here as candidates, that I must have known something about it; but that I knew anything about it with anything like precision or distinction, or made it the subject of anything like a formal or definite conversation or communication as a matter of business, I cannot admit at all. As I have already stated, we were in the hands of our committee, and the machinery of the election we entrusted entirely to them; and one of the former members for this town, who was my opponent, Mr. Clay, has stated that which is perfectly true, which is, that the life of a candidate for this town is one of incessant labour; that you have to get up with the daylight, and go out as early as you can find people in their shops canvassing, until your tongue sticks to the roof of your mouth, and make speeches until you have not an idea left in your head; so that you have not time for these matters that arise in retrospect.

78,321. Mr. Clay also stated, that in his judgment, the system of open bribery had not prevailed, but a system of employment, of the kind we have alluded to, had extensively prevailed?—I should think that was the correct estimate, as far as I can judge.

78,322. You concur in that observation of his?—Yes.

78,323. You have said there was a good deal of communication between yourself and Sir Walter James?—The most perfect and unreserved.

78,324. In order to see if you could, if I may use the expression, pull together?—No; there was a good deal of communication, that lasted perhaps for a quarter of an hour.

78,325. You had frequent communications, I understood you to say, to see whether you were persons likely to act together?—No; that is just the mistake. We had not frequent communications, we had one communication. We had frequent communications afterwards, but being both of us men of the world, and gentlemen able to come to a conclusion, I could see what sort of a man he was, and he was satisfied with me, and we settled our matters in less than ten minutes I have no doubt.

78,326. I am not at all confining my question to the time before you came to Hull?—When we once came down to Hull, we were absolute and indivisible. We stood to win both seats or neither; and the same people acted for both of us.

78,327. A joint committee and joint management throughout?—Yes. That which was done for me was done for Sir Walter James, and that which was done for Sir Walter James was done for me.

78,328. Did you become aware at any time that a considerable number of committee rooms were engaged?—Yes; I became aware of it by my own eyes.

78,329. Did you think more than would be necessary for the proper conduct of the election?—I was not a good judge of that; but I should think that the committee rooms was a mode.

78,330. A mode of securing votes?—I think it was a means or appliance; but I was not a good judge.

78,331. A means and appliance for what end?—Towards winning the election. I have not the least doubt that committee rooms were engaged, to secure the interest. There is one thing that makes pure elections very expensive now; you are obliged to employ all the lawyers in the county, in order to be able to come in and neutralize their opposition; so everybody who had a room for a committee, you were obliged to take it.

78,332. To neutralize the opposition, and secure their support?—Just so.

78,333. And their vote?—Yes.

78,334. You have stated that the only accounts that were ever sent to you, were those relating to the 890*l.* extra?—They were.

78,335. Was it by your direction that no other accounts were sent to you?—I never gave any directions about it; and never asked a question. I was in the hands of gentlemen, that is the long and short of it. I was in the hands of men in whom I placed the most implicit confidence; and I did not ask any questions at all; and I would much rather that nobody would ask me any.

78,336. Did you at any time see those accounts relating to the 2,000*l.*?—I never did; I never saw one single article for the expenditure of 5*s.* of the whole of that 2,890*l.*; and I only saw the outside of the roll of paper of the 890*l.*, because I refused to look into it, and would not have anything to do with it.

78,337. Can you tell me why you so carefully shunned the sight?—Because I thought it was no business of mine.

78,338. Supposing it amounted to 10,000*l.*, should you have paid it, and returned the papers just the same?—Yes, I should.

78,339. I would not pursue the thing to any amount, but I suppose there is some limit to which you would not go?—Limitations are very hard to place to anything. I think I did do the best I could to put a limit. I said, "I will not spend more than 1,600*l.*," and before I came down here I found these gentlemen, honourable good men, had got into the extra expenditure. I was very sorry for it, and I had much rather not have spent 2,890*l.*, but when they asked about it, I did not want to make any work about it, and I gave them the money.

78,340. Do you think, in any other transaction but an electioneering one, you would not have been rather curious about it, to see these papers?—If you ask me my opinion now, it is totally different. I draw the widest distinction, and I ever have done, between the state of the law, the duty of a candidate, and the duty of a member before 1842 and since that period. It is well known I gave up the representation of this town, which I took pride in, and which I felt honoured by; in which I had taken the greatest possible interest, and busied myself very much, for the special reason that I would not be engaged any further in matters which were clearly, by the law of 1842, illegal. But in 1841 the matter stood as I have already represented it to you.

78,341. I understood you to say that you thought the electioneering accounts stood upon a different footing from others?—I think they do; but I beg you will not draw too much of an inference from that.

78,342. I draw no inference, but I shall be very happy for you to give an explanation?—I think that they do stand alone. I think that they did rather stand upon a different footing; and I think in the circumstances in which I was placed when the application for the 890*l.* was made to me, it was an exercise of a wise discretion in me not to look at the time, because I did not wish to know anything at all about it. The expenditure had been incurred without my authority; it was perfectly certain that not one single penny of it could be reduced. I was quite sure that it had been placed at the lowest figure that these gentlemen could put it at; and I should not like it any the better by looking at the figures. The question was entirely for me, "Will you pay the money or not?" and I decided, rightly or wrongly, that I would pay the money.

Sir J. Hanmer, Bart.

9th August 1853.

78,343. You placed unlimited confidence as to the payment in the hands of Mr. Barkworth and the other gentlemen?—I did.

78,344. Did you in any way, or at any time, put any restriction upon them as to the character of those payments?—I do not think I did.

78,345. Did you at any time in the course of the election, when money was being disbursed, at all inquire into the nature of the disbursements?—I did not.

78,346. Did you, when the further demand of 890*l.* was made upon you, at all inquire as to the character of the disbursements of the previous 2,000*l.*?—I did not.

78,347. I do not know whether I am drawing an unfair inference, correct me if I am; whether you considered that placing yourself in the hands of these gentlemen as you have done, and if you had chosen to look at the papers connected with the ulterior sum of 890*l.*, I ask you whether, whatever the character of the payment had been, you would not have thought yourself bound, in the way that you had placed yourself in the hands of these gentlemen, to have made the remittance?—I think the fact that I made the remittance clearly proves that such was my opinion.

78,348. Except that you cautiously abstained from looking at the character of the payments which you had the opportunity of seeing?—The question was really for me, whether I would raise a work about the expenditure. It had not been incurred with my consent, it had been incurred, on the contrary, quite contrary to the best precautions that were in my power to take; but it had been incurred, and I chose, whether discreetly or indiscreetly, to pay the money. I did not at all pay it with any pleasure. I had much rather not have done it.

78,349. I understand from your evidence that you say, at all events in your judgment, that previous to 1842 a payment of this kind was merely questionable as to its legality?—When you say "this," you mean the payment of the runners?

78,350. Yes, in the nature of head money?—Yes. When I gave you the opinion, I with great deference submitted to you the grounds of it.

78,351. It was merely for the purpose of founding another question upon it that I alluded to it. Having that opinion with regard to the payments to which I have alluded, I put the question in this form: whether you had any suspicion during the progress of the election that money was being extensively paid to secure votes in any other way?—No, indeed I had not; and indeed with regard to that, although one cannot say that one did not know it, I am quite sure I must have known it; but it was not a thing that was before one's eyes night and day.

78,352. Sir Walter James stated that you could not go round Hull without noticing that the system prevailed?—No doubt.

78,353. And probably the system of committee rooms would also be forced upon your eyesight in the same way?—I am quite certain that I knew more about the committee rooms than about the runners. I saw them, and I am not at all certain that I did not hear people ask to have their rooms made into committee rooms.

78,354. While you were canvassing?—I think it is very likely that I did.

78,355. I wish to put the question distinctly to you. Did you, during the election, either by observation or conversation, understand that employment was given to secure the vote?—I should say, as I have already said, that I have no doubt I must have known it, but I cannot call to my mind any day or occasion, or any person who told me so; but I have no doubt that I must have known it.

78,356. Then when you agreed to pay 2,000*l.* as your share, and when you knew that Sir Walter James was to pay 2,000*l.* as his share, in all probability you knew or understood that part of that money would be expended in that way?—You may draw that inference if you like, no doubt.

78,357. I wish you to draw the inference?—Yes, I suppose I did. I paid the money for the general expenses of the election, which I had taken pains to keep as far in a legal form as I could. No doubt the bounds of legality were overstepped; not a doubt about it.

78,358. When you agreed to pay the money, you understood part of it would be expended in the way of giving employment, in order to secure the vote?—I should like to answer that question a little more precisely, if you please. First of all I was asked to pay 1,600*l.*, and I was to give 1,600*l.* into the hands of my committee, to employ it in the best way they could. At that time I did not know anything about runners, as I do now. I feel confident I did not; and when Mr. Barkworth came to me and said that more money would be required, I had a sort of a vague and general idea of it, rather than anything else. I do not want to be put in the position of a man who comes with malice prepense to bribe. I came here to stand an election in the best way I could, and I was not very particular about the money. I wanted to spend as little money as I could, and to spend it in as legal a manner as I could; but I was not by any means so precise and particular as I have been ever since, and I hope I always shall be. I consider that one is bound in these days to take a very different view of things than in those days; besides, I am twelve years older now.

78,359. Still I do not think you have quite answered my question. Without reference to bribery or not, did you, when you agreed to pay that money, understand that part of it would be expended in paying for employment which was given to secure the voter?—I hope you will not think I am fencing with your question for a moment. I only want, if I can, to convey to you my impression in the best manner that I can.

Sir J. Hanmer, Bart.

9th August 1853.

78,360. I want you to give me your impression at that time?—My impression is that I paid Mr. Barkworth so much money towards the election. It was not as if a man came to me, and said, "I have so many quarters of wheat to sell; and here is the wheat, and "here is so much money for it;" in that precise and distinct manner. The election was expensive, I had no doubt. It was stated the expenses were increasing; the contest was very severe and very long, and the canvass very protracted; and a great number of modes of expense were resorted to. I remember one now, particularly. I remember that a steamboat was sent to the North Sea, or the Baltic, to pick up voters. I think there is a considerable expense at once. I remember that, which was rather an uncommon thing; it would not happen at another time. I remember that was particularly impressed upon my mind. I do not think that that acted with that force and precision with which you, pardon me for saying so, want to attribute; or rather I do not say "want," but "think" should be attributed to it. I do not think I had the employment of these voters in my mind so much; no doubt I knew that they were employed.

78,361. I do not ask whether you knew of the particular employment of any voters or class of voters, but whether you did not feel at that time that the money you were going to pay would be expended upon that system which you understood would be employed for the purpose of securing the votes?—I deny that that system was ever presented to me in a prominent point of view, and what I knew of it I must have gathered from my own observation, and I dare say from casual conversation with Sir Walter James. I have no doubt I was fully acquainted, and must have been,—when I say "must have been," I draw an inference,—of course I must have known the money I paid, would go towards expenses of that kind; I dare say I knew it. If I was to go and buy 100 quarters of wheat from a man, that would be a definite transaction, and this would not. I never said to a man, "Go and employ 100 runners."

John Brown.

JOHN BROWN sworn, and examined.

78,362. Where do you live?—Prospect Street.

78,363. What business are you?—A joiner.

78,364. What rent do you pay for a house?—£16.

78,365. Are you also a freeman?—No.

78,366. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—The first election I voted was for Mr. Brown.

78,367. That was in 1847?—I think that would be.

78,368. Who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.

78,369. Did you get any money for your vote at that election?—Nothing.

78,370. At the last election you voted for Moore and Butler, I believe?—I did.

78,371. I have a letter before me, in which your son made application to the committee to have your name set down; was that done?—No.

78,372. Henry Brown?—No.

78,373. Is he your son?—Yes.

78,374. I have a letter before me which he addressed to the candidates, Messrs. Moore and Butler, in which he says that they may depend upon your voting for them at the next election?—It is unknown to me.

78,375. You did vote for them?—Yes; I voted for Mr. Moore.

78,376. And Mr. Butler, did you not?—No; for Mr. Moore alone.

78,377. A bullet for Moore?—Yes.

78,378. Did you receive any money?—Nothing.

78,379. Neither before nor after the election?—No, never. I never received anything for voting.

78,380. Did your son tell you he got some money for them?—I never knew he did; I never heard of it before; I never heard that he applied.

78,381. Did he come and tell you that you might get something if you voted for them, or anything of that kind?—No; I never knew that he wrote to any gentleman of the kind.

78,382. And your name was not set down anywhere?—It was not. I was canvassed by Mr. Cattley and Dr. Craven. Those were the two gentlemen I saw.

78,383. You got no money?—No.

78,384. Or any promise?—No promise.

78,385. Did you let them any room?—I did not.

John Newbald.

JOHN NEWBALD sworn, and examined.

78,386. Is your name John Newbald?—Yes.

78,387. Does it appear as William Newbald on the register?—Yes.

78,388. Do you live in Salthouse Lane?—Yes.

John Newbald.

9th August 1853.

78,389. What are you?—An engraver.
78,390. What rent do you pay?—£20.
78,391. Are you also a freeman?—No.
78,392. At which election were you entitled to vote first?—1852.
78,393. The last election?—Yes.
78,394. Who for?—Butler and Lord Goderich.
78,395. I believe you were canvassed by both parties?—Yes.
78,396. Did you promise either?—No.
78,397. Did you allow your name to be set down on any list?—No.
78,398. I have a note, which I will read to you, from Mr. Brodrick, the chairman of one of the committees: "Please send an order for some cards to John Newbald, Salthouse Lane. I am just going to solicit for his vote, and it is of no use without we order some of him immediately." Do you recollect Mr. Brodrick coming?—Yes; Mr. Brodrick called twice or three times on me, as well as other parties.
78,399. And then we find there is an order of a good many cards from you, of the same date?—Yes.
78,400. When he asked you for your vote, did you, in any way, make any promise contingent on getting any employment of that kind, or an order for cards?—No, never.
78,401. Did you ask to have an order for cards?—Certainly I did; both at the central committee and at the Lowgate committee.
78,402. You applied that they would have cards struck off at your place?—That is quite a natural thing for a tradesman to do.
78,403. Did you also make the same application to the orange party?—No; I never asked them at all.
78,404. When you made the application to Mr. Brodrick, I suppose it was well understood between you that you would vote for that party?—I had never made them a promise.
78,405. What did you say to him when he promised you?—I said I would do the best I could.
78,406. Doing the best you could was voting for him, according to what he wished. He wished you to vote for them, and his application was of that nature. You said, "I will do the best I can;" is that what you said?—Yes.
78,407. Does not that amount to a promise to vote?—I do not know; I never gave a definite answer, whether I would vote for them entire or not.
78,408. You did not think doing the best you could would be afterwards abstaining from voting, or voting for the orange; you would not think that was doing the best for the blue party?—No.
78,409. Then did you say, "I must have an order for cards"?—No, I think not; I did not say so.
78,410. "Will you send me an order for cards?"—I merely asked them if they would be kind enough to give me an order to print.
78,411. Did you ask that of Mr. Brodrick?—Yes.
78,412. What cards did you print?—I think the amount was something like 14*l*.
78,413. Perhaps you think Mr. Brodrick fully understood you were to vote for them?—It was not all an order that I got from Mr. Brodrick. I had it both from Lowgate and the central committee.
78,414. Which was Mr. Brodrick's?—The Lowgate.
78,415. Did you make a distinct application also to the central committee to print cards?—I sent in specimens of the cards.
78,416. A sort of invitation?—Yes.
78,417. And I dare say they accepted your invitation?—Yes, they did.
78,418. And you printed something for them?—Yes.
78,419. Should you not have thought it contrary to the understanding on both sides if you had voted otherwise than for them after that employment?—Of course.

Henry Newton.

HENRY NEWTON sworn, and examined.

78,420. Where do you live?—No. 1, Alicia Street.
78,421. What is your business?—A smith.
78,422. What rent do you pay?—£7.
78,423. Are you also a freeman?—Yes.
78,424. At the election of 1841, who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.
78,425. Did you get some money for your vote?—£1.
78,426. Who paid that?—I cannot tell you.
78,427. Why not?—I saw nothing but the hand I received it from.
78,428. Where was the payment?—In Witham.
78,429. At a blacksmith's?—I am sure I cannot tell you where it was.
78,430. Was it at night?—Yes; I got paid after I left my work.
78,431. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Brown and Baines.
78,432. Did you receive any money that time for your vote?—10*s*.
78,433. For Brown or Baines?—For Brown.

Henry Newton

9th August 1853

78,434. When were you paid?—About an hour after the election.
78,435. Who paid you?—Mr. Middleton, I believe.
78,436. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
78,437. You got your name set down, did you not?—No.
78,438. Here is a note about you, addressed to Mr. Ward, the chairman. Do you know Mr. Cattley?—Yes.
78,439. Did you get any money?—No.
78,440. Do you mean you were paid no money at the last election?—No.
78,441. Nor after?—Neither before nor after.
78,442. Was your name set down?—No.
78,443. Listen to this note: "Please recollect Thomas Newton to be set down, also his brother Henry; both vote for us; he will call on you on Monday morning?"—My brother Thomas applied; he was out of employment; that was on the Saturday night, and he got orders to go to work on Monday morning, and he withdrew it; but he did not poll for Moore and Butler.
78,444. And he got your name put down?—No.
78,445. Did not Thomas tell you of that?—No.
78,446. Did he not tell you he put your name down?—I never was put down, to my knowledge.
78,447. You are sure you got no money?—Not a farthing.
78,448. You are speaking on your oath?—Yes.

John Pellett.

JOHN PELLETT sworn, and examined.

78,449. Where do you live?—Botanic Terrace.
78,450. What is your business?—I am a clerk.
78,451. What rent do you pay?—I am not a voter at all, neither by rent or otherwise.
78,452. Were you at the Fleece Inn in High Street, a little before the last election?—Yes.
78,453. Two or three days before the last election?—Yes; three or four.
78,454. Did you see a man of the name of Henry Skow there?—Yes.
78,455. Did you throw a sum of money down for him on the table; 2*l.* or 3*l.*?—I will not be certain whether I did or not; but if I did not put it down, I joked him, pretending to offer him a sum of money; but I never intended him to have it.
78,456. £3 was it?—Yes.
78,457. When you say you never intended him to have it, did you not throw it down on the table?—I did not.
78,458. Will you swear you did not?—I will not swear I did not.
78,459. I must ask you these questions in this way?—The same landlord is at present in, and I think he was there at the time. I never asked him a question; but perhaps he will recollect it. I will not be certain whether I might not by chance put it down. If I did, I did not intend him to take it up. It was only to see how far he would go.
78,460. Did you not intend him to believe it was money for his vote?—No.
78,461. What was your intention in throwing it down?—To weigh with him; to see whether he was to be bought at such a price or not.
78,462. That is what you intended him to believe? Was it that that might be had for his vote; that is my question?—I intended him to think so, but not that he could have that money for his vote.
78,463. I did not ask you that, but whether you intended him to think he could have that money for his vote?—I intended him to think so.
78,464. Did he refuse it?—He did.
78,465. For Moore and Butler's party was it?—Yes.
78,466. You meant him to think he might have that money for his vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes.
78,467. You laid before him a temptation of 3*l.* for his vote? It came to that?—I will not be certain whether I put that down or not.
78,468. If you held it in your hand, you laid before him a temptation for his vote?—I do not mean that I held it in my hand.
78,469. You showed him the money?—I do not know that I showed him the money.
78,470. Did you tell him you had 3*l.*?—I do not know whether I told him; but I just made him an offer that way, to see whether he was to be bought or not.
78,471. Then I repeat the question. You offered him a temptation of 3*l.* for his vote?—I did in words, not intending him to have it.
78,472. He refused it?—Yes.
78,473. Did you see him again at the same place afterwards?—No.
78,474. Be careful. Do you mean to say you did not see Skow afterwards, at the Fleece?—Not that I recollect.
78,475. I want you to recollect?—I cannot recollect seeing him at the Fleece after.
78,476. Did you see him anywhere afterwards before the day of voting?—I did see him again, but not at the Fleece.

John Pellett.

9th August 1853.

78,477. Where did you see him again after that?—In Salthouse Lane.

78,478. When did you see him in Salthouse Lane?—On Monday.

78,479. Previous to the election?—Yes.

78,480. Did you go with him into Mr. Barkworth's?—No. There is not a Mr. Barkworth's there.

78,481. Mrs. Barehead's?—Yes.

78,482. Did you go with him to Mrs. Barehead's?—Yes.

78,483. Did you give him 1*l.* there?—Yes.

78,484. When was it you gave him the 1*l.*?—It would be on the Monday.

78,485. Did you talk to him then about his voting?—Yes.

78,486. What did you give him the 1*l.* for?—He was decided to vote for the orange party. He said he was one of a party of about thirty, who, as he said, were undecided as to who they should vote for; and they were undecided whether it was better to go and offer themselves to any one of the parties, either blue or orange, as runners, so as to ensure something, or whether they would wait until the time of the election, and see what they could get as a body; and I gave him a sovereign, to use his influence with them, to go to the blue party, if possible.

78,487. That was Wharam's lot?—It was.

78,488. You told me he said he had decided to vote for the orange?—He had.

78,489. And then you went on and said he was still undecided?—I did not say he was undecided, but that the party was undecided.

78,490. And that he was one of the party?—That he was one of the party; but still he was decided to do so, but the others were not.

78,491. What was he to do with the 1*l.*?—To make the best use of it he could, and to influence them, if he possibly could, that instead of going to the orange party that they should go to the blues.

78,492. Was he to tell them that they might be set down for the blues?—Yes; as runners.

78,493. And to use his influence to make them do so?—To induce them to do so.

78,494. Did you say to Skow you admired his having decided to vote for the orange?—I recollect reading the evidence, but I cannot recollect that I heard him say anything of the kind, or that I made use of any such expression.

78,495. As what?—As that which you said.

78,496. I have not said anything?—As that I valued his principles, and there was something for it.

78,497. I ask you whether you stated to him that yoa gave him the 1*l.* because he was a man of good principles?—I do not. I do not recollect saying so.

78,498. Will you swear you did not?—I cannot swear positively that I did not, but to the best of my belief I did not say so.

78.499. You will not go further than that?—No. It is possible that I might joke him in such a manner, but I think not.

Robert Rowen.

ROBERT ROWEN sworn, and examined.

78,500. Where do you live?—Vincent Place.

78,501. What is your business?—Master rigger.

78,502. Do you pay any rent?—Yes.

78,503. How much?—£5 15*s.*

78,504. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

78,505. When were you made a freeman?—In 1841.

78,506. Or 1839, which was it?—1839.

78,507. There were a great many freemen made in 1839 by both parties; were you made at that time?—I think it was 1841.

78,508. Did you vote in 1841?—No.

78,509. Did you vote in 1847?—Yes.

78,510. Who for?—Brown and Baines.

78,511. Did you receive any money that election?—Not a farthing.

78,512. Did you receive any money at all that election?—Not a screw.

78,513. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

78,514. Did you go with some other people to Legitt's, and get your name set down?—Yes, I did.

78,515. How many of you went together?—I cannot say,

78,516. Forty?—No.

78,517. Twenty?—No; I do not suppose above two or three of us when I went.

78,518. Then you can tell me who they were?—No, I cannot.

78,519. Did Mr. Edwin Davis tell you you might go there?—I do not know, I am sure. My ward was in Saville Street, and I did not know it.

78,520. You got your name put down?—Yes.

78,521. And you voted for Moore and Butler?—Yes.

78,522. Did you get paid there?—No; I got paid in Saville Street.

Robert Rowen.

9th August 1853.

78,523. I believe you stood out for being paid the whole of it beforehand?—No.
78,524. In full; I mean before you voted?—No.
78,525. Did you not ask for all the money before you voted?—I did not.
78,526. Did anybody ask for it in your presence for you?—I cannot say that I ever heard it.
78,527. Just remember whether you and others did not go and insist on being paid the whole before voting?—No.
78,528. How much were you paid after?—£1.
78,529. Who paid you?—I cannot tell you. It was a young gentlemau.
78,530. Where did he pay you?—He paid me at home.
78,531. At your own home?—Yes.
78,532. Did he come to your home?—Yes.
78,533. How long after you voted?—About a week.
78,534. Who was he?—I do not know.
78,535. Have you traced since?—No.
78,536. Never?—Never.
78,537. Did you see him pay any others?—No.

Francis Wride.

FRANCIS WRIDE sworn, and examined.

78,538. I believe you were a clerk of Mr. Bannister's?—Yes, I am.
78,539. And you are still, are you?—Yes.
78,540. Do you pay rent for a house?—Yes.
78,541. What rent do you pay?—£28.
78,542. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
78,543. When were you made a freeman?—In 1827.
78,544. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Yes.
78,545. Who for?—Hanmer and James.
78,546. Had you any employment in any capacity at that election?—None.
78,547. You took no part?—I took no part whatever.
78,548. The next election, in 1847, who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.
78,549, Alone?—Alone.
78,550. Were you on any committee?—I took no part whatever there.
78,551. None at all?—None at all.
78,552. Did no money pass through your hands?—No money.
78,553. In 1852, did you vote for the blues?—I did.
78,554. Moore and Butler?—Yes.
78,555. At that time you were acting as clerk to Mr. Bannister?—Yes, I was.
78,556. You were at Mr. Davis's, and paid some money in sums of 5*s.* to different parties?—Legitt paid them, and I checked the list over, to see the men answered to their names.
78,557. Were those payments made at the Minerva?—The Minerva Terrace.
78,558. When were the payments made?—The first payments I attended were the week before the election, and the last were the week after the election. I only attended two.
78,559. Were the persons then paid in the character of messengers and runners?—Yes.
78,560. How many do you suppose were paid the first occasion?—Fifty or sixty; I cannot say the number.
78,561. Were they paid in full?—No; there was a deduction, and they were paid the deduction after the eletion.
78,562. You did not think it quite safe to pay all?—Legitt made the bargain; I did not.
78,563. Did you understand why the deductions were to be made?—Yes; to secure the votes at the election.
78,564. And afterwards you continued those paymeats?—The week after the election.
78,565. Was that paying up the arrears?—It was paying up the arrears of what was due to them at the time of the election.
78,566. And some others also?—No; only those that had their names set down.
78,567. Was that the same lot you had paid in part?—Yes.
78,568. And no more?—There may be more; I cannot exactly say.
78,569. There would be probably some set down after the first payment?—Very probable.
78,570. And they would not be paid the first?—Yes.
78,571. Did you have the money?—I had the money, and put it in a bag. Legitt took charge of the bag, and I called over the names.
78,572. Who did you have the money from?—Part Mr. Wells and part Mr. Steeple.
78,573. How much?—The first payment was 50*l.*, and I cannot say what the other was. Mr. Steeple brought the balance after the election.
78,574. What amount do you remember?—I cannot say.
78,575. Did you also pay for sham committee rooms?—I paid for one in Fish Street. It was not a sham committee room; the parties were there. I never was in it.

Francis Wride.

9th August 1853.

78,576. Mr. Sylbon's?—Yes.

78,577. If I understand you, Legitt was present when these payments were made?—Yes.

78,578. Did the men come in singly as they were called?—They assembled about the door; three or four came into the room at a time.

78,579. I suppose, before the election and after, you would not have paid any who you did not expect would vote?—They were expected to vote blue.

78,580. Or you would not have paid them?—Or they would not have been paid.

78,581. And after the election you ascertained they had voted blue?—I made out a list of the mames, and sent it to the central committee, to be checked over, and then the money was paid.

78,582. On the list did you find some who had not voted blue?—I believe there was.

78,583. And they were not paid?—They were not paid.

78,584. The vote was naturally a matter you looked to in making the payment?—Yes.

78,585. I understand you to say you had not paid at any former election?—No; I took no part in any election previous to that.

78,586. Did you understand Sylbon's was a place to appoint extra runners to?—Yes.

78,587. Not for a committee to meet at, but for runners to assemble at in order to increase the staff?—Yes.

David Sigsworth.

DAVID SIGSWORTH sworn, and examined.

78,588. Where do you live?—Blanket Row.

78,589. What business are you?—A grocer.

78,590. What rent do you pay?—£12.

78,591. Are you a freeman?—No.

78,592. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—1847.

78,593. Who did you vot for?—I voted for Baines and Brown.

78,594. Did you receive any money at that election?—Not a farthing.

78,595. Neither before nor after?—No; I never received a farthing for what I did at all; not an iota.

78,596. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

78,597. I believe your room was taken for a committee room?—It was not.

78,598. You sent a note by Mr. Wells, to say you would not vote unless you had three guineas for your room?—Nothing of the kind. I never sent such a word, or anything of the kind.

78,599. Did you get any money at the last election?—I got one sovereign.

78,600. What for?—For applying about. I was a messenger, or something of that kind.

78,601. Was your name set down anywhere?—Not that I am aware of.

78,602. You did not carry any messages?—Yes, I did. I carrried messages to several parties.

78,603. At what room were you a messenger?—I was at the Shakespeare.

78,604. In the Market Place?—In Humber Street.

78,605. Did you apply to have your name put on the list as a messenger?—I did not apply at all.

78,606. How came you on the list?—Knowing Mr. Watkinson, he being a friend of mine,—in fact he is a brother of mine,—he said, "What a chap you are; you ought to be here, and do all the good you can." I said I would do what good I could, and so they acknowledged me with a sovereign.

78,607. Did they say they would put your name down as a runner?—No.

78,608. Was this after the election that he said this?—Yes.

78,609. Then the sovereign was paid you afterwards?—Yes; a mere gratuitous acknowledgment.

78,610. No engagement or application was made by you before?—No.

James Smith.

JAMES SMITH sworn, and examined.

78,611. Where do you live?—Southcoates Old Town.

78,612. What is your business?—A cowkeeper.

78,613. What rent do you pay?—£63.

78,614. Are you also a freeman?—No.

78,615. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—At the election before the last.

71,616. In 1847?—Yes.

78,627. Who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

78,618. Were you a runner for Brown?—No.

78,619. I am told you were?—I was not.

78,620. It was a mistake?—Yes.

78,621. Did you receive any money that election?—Yes.

James Smith.

9th August 1853.

78,622. How much money did you get?—A sovereign.
78,623. Who paid you?—I really do not know.
78,624. When were you paid?—The day of the election.
78,625. What for?—I do not know.
78,626. Do you think it was for your vote for Mr. Brown?—I do not know
78,627. What do you think it was for?—I was never asked a question.
78,628. A man in business, who keeps cows, does not put 1*l.* into his pocket without knowing what it is for?—I do not know. I applied at the committee room for a voting card,—the first election I was not aware I wanted it,—I applied for a card, and it was given to me in one hand, and a sovereign in the other, and I took it.
78,629. In 1852, at the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
78,630. Did you get anything then?—No.
78,631. Nothing at all?—No.
78,632. Did they not send a man to help to make your hay while you were away?—No.
78,633. Did you get any promise?—No.
78,634. Did you go and apply to have your name put down?—No.
78,635. Do you know Turner?—No; I cannot say that I do. I do not know that I do.
78,636. Have you been examined here before?—No.

E. Stephenson.

EDWARD STEPHENSON sworn, and examined.

78,637. Where do you live?—Hodgson Street, Groves.
78,638. What business are you?—A manure merchant.
78,639. What rent do you pay?—No rent.
78,640. What are you rated at?—£21.
78,641. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
78,642. When were you made free?—In 1818.
78,643. Did you vote in 1841?—Yes.
78,644. Who for?—Hanmer and James.
78,645. Did you receive any money that election?—No.
78,646. Did any pass through your hands?—No; not to my recollection.
78,647. Did you make any payments?—No; I do not recollect that I did.
78,648. After the election was over?—No, I think not.
78,649. A month or two after, did you not get a sovereign?—No.
78,650. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.
78,651. Did you receive any money then?—No.
78,652. Either at or after the election?—No; I was generally money out of my own pocket.
78,653. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
78,654. Were you on any committee?—They did fix me on a committee; but, my not being a scholar, I said I objected to it.
78,655. Did you canvass out of doors?—Yes; I took a part in the canvass; my sons and all.
78,656. Did you send people to get their names set down who wanted that sort of employment?—If they applied to me, I recommended them to the committee room.
78,657. You met them in the canvass?—Yes. I had no power to set them down.
78,658. What district did you canvass for?—In the Groves and Drypool.
78,659. Did you make some payments afterwards? You paid a few?—Yes; I had some money handed over from Mr. Oxtoby to me.
78,660. How much money did he give you?—I cannot tell you to a trifle. It would not be many pounds.
78,661. Did he give you the names of persons who were to receive it?—Yes. He did not know them, and I was to give it to them.
78,662. How were you to find them out?—They lived in my neighbourhood.
78,663. How came you to know them?—Because I lived in that part for fifty years.
78,664. How did you know these were the people who were to have the money, if Mr. Oxtoby did not know?—I knew they had been employed that way.
78,665. Were those persons who you had sent to be set down?—I did not send them all; but I knew when I was at the committee room they were running about with different things.
78,666. You knew they had been employed?—Yes.
78,667. How many did you pay?—Not above two or three.
78,668. Not above two or three?—No.
78,669. Was Charles Stephenson one?—No. I lent him some.
78,670. Why do you wink your eye? Do you know anything more?—You will find him out to be a very false man. I lent him and another man 30*s.* apiece. The secretary had not paid them the money for their wages.
78,671. Was the money due to them as runners?—Yes, it was.
78,672. You paid them?—I lent them it, and I got the other man's returned. I never got his. He voted the other way.

E. Stephenson.

9th August 1853.

78,673. Your nephew ?—Yes.

78,674. You gave them the 30*s*., to get repaid at the committee room ?—I did not get Charles's ; the other man returned it, and I made him a present of 5*s*. because he was an honest man.

78,675. How did Charles get his money ?—I lent him it in the Black Horse in Witham.

78,676. You did not receive any money to pay him, because he voted against you ?—No.

78,677. Therefore you could not keep his money back to pay yourself again ?—No.

78,678. You were 30*s*. out of pocket ?—Yes.

78,679. And you made the other man a present of 5*s*. for his honesty ?—Yes.

78,680. Did you pay John Young ?—I think so. I was there present when he was paid.

78,681. How much did he get ?—I do not recollect.

78,682. Thirty shillings ?—I think so.

78,683. And his father ?—I am sure I do not know what he got.

78,684. And Robert Cousins ; was he one ?—Yes ; he would get 30*s*.

78,685. From you ?—Yes.

78,686. These were runners, who were paid for their votes for Moore and Butler, were they not ?—Yes.

R. Sutherland.

ROBERT SUTHERLAND sworn, and examined.

78,687. Where do you live ?—No. 8, Great Union Street, Drypool.

78,688. What business are you ?—A painter.

78,689. What rent do you pay ?—Seven guineas.

78,690. When were you made a freeman ?—In 1846.

78,691. Did you vote at the election of 1847 ?—Yes.

78,692. Who for ?—Mr. Clay only.

78,693. I believe you got 10*s*. for that ?—I did.

78,694. When were you paid ?—Shortly before the last election.

78,695. In King Street ?—Yes.

78,696. At the last election, who did you vote for ?—Clay and Goderich.

78,697. Did you get your name set down in Witham as a runner ?—No.

78,698. Were you set down ?—No.

78,699. Were you employed as a runner ?—No.

78,700. You are put down as a runner for the orange committee in Witham, at the last election ?—I never had it put down.

78,701. Did you have any employment ?—No. My father was here once, I think.

78,702. Were you on a committee ?—No.

78,703. Did you receive any money at all at the last election ?—I received the 10*s*. in King Street.

78,704. For the last election ?—No ; not for the last election.

78,705. Did you receive any money at all for the last election ?—I received 35*s*. in the whole ; but it was not understood for any election at all,—the last part of the money.

78,706. When did you get the 10*s*. ?—I cannot say to a few days. It was a few days before the last election.

78,707. Was that all the money you got at that time ?—Yes, it was.

78,708. When did you get the other 25*s*. ?—I cannot say to a day or two.

78,709. Was it after ?—No, it was not ; it was before.

78,710. Where did you get the 25*s*. ?—I got it of Mr. Boulter.

78,711. Where ?—In Drypool.

78,712. At a committee room ?—No.

78,713. Tell me how it was ?—I got it from him at his own house.

78,714. What for ?—It was was quite of a private nature. It was not on election matters at all. I was never asked by any one to vote or not to vote. The fact was, I was in difficulties in that present moment, and I borrowed the money of him.

78,715. Have you paid him back ?—No ; I have not paid him back,

78,716. Did you not say you would not serve on any committee unless you were paid for it ?—No ; I was never asked the question.

78,717. Your name was put down on the committee ?—No ; not that I am aware of.

78,718. Is your father's name Robert ?—Yes.

78,719. Mr. Boulter told us that Robert Sutherland was put on a committee ?—Not me.

78,720. I do not understand what you got 25*s*. for yet. What did you get it for ?—Not on account of the election ; I told you before. I had been ill a long time, and in difficulties, and I asked Dr. Boulter if he would relieve me in this part. It was not on election matters.

78721. To relieve you in what ?—Would he lend me the money.

78,722. Was that shortly before the election ?—Yes.

R. Sutherland.

9th August 1853.

78,723. Do you mean to say nothing passed about the election?—Not a word.

78,724. Did you know Mr. Boulter before?—Yes.

78,725. How came you to ask him at the election time? You knew he was on a committee?—I will tell you why: this thing occurred at that time; that is the reason I asked him. I was never canvassed by any one for my vote.

78,726. Is your father a voter?—Yes.

78,727. Where does your father live?—In Drypool.

78,728. Not in the Hedon New Road?—Yes.

78,729. Is that the same place that you do?—It is called Great Union Street where I live; but it is in a line with it; in the same place.

78,730. You never attended a committee, I believe?—No.

78,731. Or your father either?—I do not know what my father did. I was never asked for a vote.

78,732. Mr. Boulter said you were ill, and applied to him for money, and he gave you 25*s.*, being about the election time, and knowing you would vote if you got a little money?—I believe they knew I would vote for them.

78,733. It was perfectly understood? You went to get Mr. Clay's money just before?—I never expected to get a farthing for Mr. Clay's election at the time.

78,734. You would not have went and got Mr. Clay's money a week before you voted if you had not been going to vote for him?—No, certainly not; I should never have got the money from him without I intended to vote.

78,735. Do you believe that Mr. Boulter thought you would vote at the time of the election for him?—Yes; I do really believe that.

78,736. Do you think he would have lent you the 25*s.* if he had not thought so?—Yes, I do believe he would.

R. Stephenson.

ROBERT STEPHENSON sworn, and examined.

78,737. Where do you live?—No. 7, Prospect Street.

78,738. What business are you?—Greengrocer and fruiterer.

78,739. What rent do you pay?—Thirty guineas.

78,740. Are you a freeman?—No.

78,741. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—Mr. Brown's.

78,742. Who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.

78,743. Alone?—Alone.

78,744. Were you employed at all at that election?—Yes, I was, for two days.

78,745. Running about, or what?—Assisting them to bring up voters, and soliciting the day before.

78,746. Did you receive any money?—No.

78,747. Nothing at all?—No; nor did not wish.

78,748. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

78,749. Were you at Mr. Wilkinson's committee room?—Yes, I was.

78,750. Did you receive some payment for you services?—I received nothing for my services.

78,751. For your vote?—Not for my vote.

78,752. What did you receive?—I received for my committee room.

78,753. How much?—£10. Two rooms they had.

78,754. When were they taken?—I am sure I cannot say; six weeks before the election. I cannot exactly say; I made no memorandum.

78,755. I believe you paid some man that Mr. Steeple gave you the money for?—I did not.

78,756. Did you not pay anybody?—Yes; but not for their votes.

78,757. Why do you tell me that?—I thought you were alluding to it.

78,758. I ask if you paid any one?—Not for their votes. I paid some money. I gave two men 5*s.* apiece.

78,759. Who gave you the money?—A gentleman.

78,760. Who was that?—The chairman.

78,761. Tell us his name?—Mr. Wilkinson.

78,762. Mr. Wilkinson gave you 10*s.* to pay the two men?—I will tell you how he gave me the money. About twelve o'clock, the election day, we had no refreshment in the committee room——

78,763. I want to know what he gave you the money for?—He gave me a sovereign to get refreshments, and said these were two men, one of the name of Wilson, and the other Wetherell, I was to give them 5*s.* apiece.

78,764. What day?—The election day.

78,765. Did you see Wilson and Wetherell?—I saw them both.

78,766. Had they voted?—I will not swear to that.

78,767. What is your belief?—I do not know whether they did or not; I cannot say.

78,768. I ask if they had voted?—I cannot say; I did not know. That was not my business; I had nothing to do with that.

R. Stephenson.
9th August 1853.

78,769. What did you do with the other 10*s.* ?—It was spent for refreshments; biscuits and cheese.

78,770. Who for ?—For the committee and the cabmen.

78,771. Where at ?—At our house.

78,772. Did Mr. Steeple at any time give you any money ?—He did not; not until after the election; he paid me the money for my room.

78,773. Did he ever give you any other money ?—No.

78,774. Not before or after ?—He settled the accounts there were for the candles and those things. He paid me no money to pay anything more.

78,775. Did you pay any other money at all ?—I paid 10*s.* after the election, but it was a mistake.

78,776. Will you explain it ?—Mr. Wilson gave me 1*l.*, and said I was to give 5*s.* each to these men. And after I had done, young Mr. Steeple told me to give 10*s.* apiece to the Grovers.

78,777. How many Grovers ?—Two of them; father and son. And Mr. Wilkinson did not tell me so. I said it was a mistake. I should not give them the money unless I knew it. I would not give the money to them, and I did not give it for a week after that. They generally tormented me for it. I gave them 5*s.* apiece to satisfy them. I did not feel satisfied in giving it at all. I did not feel justified in doing it.

78,778. When did you pay the Grovers ?—Perhaps a week after; I cannot say to a day.

78,779. What was the payment for ?—I do not know. Mr. Steeple wished me to pay.

78,780. Did he not tell you what for ?—For being a runner, I dare say. It is stopped in the accounts, I dare say.

78,781. What did you do with the other 10*s.* ?—I had no other 10*s.* left. I laid the money out of my own pocket for the cheese and bread.

78,782. I thought you said Mr. Steeple wished you to pay the Grovers 10*s.* each ?—I could not give it, without I gave it out of my own pocket.

78,783. What were their Christian names ?—I do not know their names; I only know they call them Grover.

78,784. James Yeall Grover; was that one ?—I do not know their names. I know their names are Grover; I do not know any other.

78,785. You have made some payments; did you make any others ? Do not limit yourself to whether it was for their votes ?—I paid no other voters whatever. I did not pay any other money.

78,786. Any more money ?—No more money to any voter at all.

78,787. Did you pay any other men ?—Only for the cheese and bread and biscuits. I paid no other men that I know of.

78,788. Did you see Mr. Steeple about that payment ?—Several times. They were frequently at me, and I was not agreeable till I saw Mr. Wilkinson; and at last I paid, because he was not in the town.

78,789. You knew they were runners ?—Yes, they were.

78,790. And that they voted blue ?—Yes; I expect so.

78,791. Have you anything else to say ?—I want to say, I think it is not confirmed that there were sixty runners to breakfast at Hewson's.

78,792. What election are you speaking of ?—The last election.

78,793. What do you say to it ?—He had sixty runners to breakfast before the poll.

78,794. I suppose all the runners had a breakfast ?—Some of us had to go without.

78,795. Did you give them a breakfast ?—No. I mean to say it was the other party.

78,796. Where did they breakfast ?—I believe at Mr. Hewson's.

78,797. Where is that ?—I do not know. Mr. Christie told me. He said there were sixty altogether, and that they could not accommodate more than thirty at a time.

78,798. Do you mean Mr. Christie, the wine merchant ?—Yes.

John Turpin.

JOHN TURPIN sworn, and examined.

78,799. Where do you live ?—No. 2, Russell Street.

78,800. Are you a captain in the Navy ?—No. I have declined going to sea. I am a retired master mariner.

78,801. Do you pay rent ?—No; I live in my own freehold.

78,802. What are you rated at ?—I do not know, for I compound for thirty-eight houses together, pretty well; but my rent would be about 12*l.* or 13*l.*

78,803. Are you also a freeman ?—Yes.

78,804. When were you made a freeman ?—In 1814.

78,805. Did you vote at the election of 1841 ?—No.

78,806. You were at sea, perhaps ?—I have been from home the greater part of my lifetime.

78,807. In 1847, were you absent ?—I was not here at the time.

78,808. In 1852, I believe you voted ?—Yes; I believe that is the first time.

78,809. For Moore and Butler ?—Yes.

78,810. Did that party have a room at your house ?—They did.

John Turpin.

9th August 1853.

78,811. When was the room engaged?—It was engaged on Monday.

78,812. Before the election?—Yes; before the election.

78,813. Did Mr. Cattley engage it?—Yes. He said, "You have got a shut-up house. Will you allow us to put a flag up there? It will perhaps be useful, with your attendance." And I said I was agreeable.

78,814. Did he give you a list of committee men to meet there?—No. He asked me if I would go to the Saville Street room, and assist them; and I suppose they put me down as a committee man. I am not certain, however. I took an active part in running about.

78,815. Did any committee meet at your house?—Mr. Ward and Mr. Cattley occasionally came to see if anything had been transacted, or if any one had got any information.

78,816. There was not a committee sitting at all?—No.

78,817. Did you receive some money for that?—Some time after that Mr. Cattley, I believe, sent me 2*l.*

78,818. That was for the room, I suppose?—It was.

78,819. And your services, I suppose?—No; they would have had my services without.

78,820. They paid it afterwards, in consideration, though you thought you had rendered your services by your attendance to the committee?—It appears, by their being so kind as to give me the 2*l.*, that they thought I had worked well.

78,821. And your vote?—It was the first I had, and I did not sell it. It was the first I had. I had been at sea as the master of a ship for forty years, and they generally act for the blues.

78,822. It was a reward for your services?—I did not ask what it was for. He sent a young man of the name of Brown with 2*l.*, and of course I took it.

78,823. You understood it was for your vote and services?—Perhaps it was for the use of the room.

78,824. It might be for the whole three?—Yes; perhaps it was so.

78,825. Was the sum fixed for the room when it was taken?—No. I knew nothing about any money. He merely asked me if I would allow it.

G. H. Atkin.

George Hall Atkin sworn, and examined.

78,826. Where do you live?—Chariot Street.

78,827. What business are you?—A tobacconist and baker.

78,828. Do you pay rent for a house?—No; it is my own.

78,829. What are you rated at?—£12.

78,830. Are you also a freeman?—Yes; but my freedom is not taken up.

78,831. Then you are not a freeman, in fact?—No.

78,832. At the election of 1841, who did you vote for?—I never took it up. In 1851 I had my right to vote. Not till 1852 I voted.

78,833. At the election of 1841, which I speak of, was there a room engaged at your house after the election, or at the election time?—No. I was not in England.

78,834. Had you a house at that time?—No.

78,835. You do not know of any room? You did not leave a house behind you when you went away?—No.

78,836. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I was not in England.

78,837. In 1852, did you vote?—Yes.

78,838. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

78,839. Did you receive any money?—Not a farthing.

78,840. Did any pass through your hands?—Never; not the value of a penny.

78,841. Nor made any payment?—No; nor was there anything offered to me.

T. Champney.

Thomas Champney sworn, and examined.

78,842. Where do you live?—No. 4, Osborne Street.

78,843. What business are you?—A boot and shoe maker.

78,844. What rent do you pay?—£18.

78,845. Are you a freeman?—No.

78,846. Which election were you first entitled to vote at?—1847.

78,847. Did you take any interest in the election of 1841?—Yes.

78,848. Who for?—Hanmer and James.

78,849. You had not a vote?—No.

78,850. Did you make some payments that election?—Not any.

78,851. What interest did you take? In what way?—I only solicited persons to vote for them; that was all.

78,852. And sent them to have their names put down?—No.

T. Champney.

9th August 1853.

78,853. When they asked for employment, what did you do?—I said I had nothing to do with it.

78,854. If a man said, "I want to be a runner," what did you do?—I said nothing at all about it.

78,855. When you asked a man to vote, and he said, "I wish for employment"?—I do not recollect anybody asking me that question.

78,856. You went among the higher class of voters?—I have been among all.

78,857. But never went to a man that asked for employment?—I have no recollection of meeting a man that asked for employment.

78,858. Did they ask to be runners?—No.

78,859. Did you make any payments that election?—No.

78,860. Did any money pass through your hands?—Not any.

78,861. The next election, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

78,862. Did any money pass through your hands?—I had nothing much to do with it, beyond voting.

78,863. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

78,864. Were you on any committee?—I believe my name was put down, but I did not serve.

78,865. Did you canvass?—No.

78,866. Did you have any names set down?—Not any.

78,867. Did any money pass through your hands?—Not any.

William Hitchin.

WILLIAM HITCHIN sworn, and examined.

78,868. Where do you live?—Chariot Street.

78,869. What business are you?—Tinplate worker.

78,870. What rent do you pay?—£12.

78,871. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

78,872. Where were you made a freeman?—At O'Neil's election.

78,873. In 1841, who did you vote for?—I was not in Hull; I was without the limits.

78,874. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Clay.

78,875. Did you receive any money at that election?—No; I did not get a single glass of grog. I know it was very hard; it was a dry concern.

78,876. Did you get any?—I got no money or anything.

78,877. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

78,878. Did you come from Cottingham for that election?—Yes.

78,879. Did you receive any money at Cottingham?—No.

78,880. Did you receive any money afterwards?—No.

78,881. Did you never pay anything?—Never paid anything.

78,882. Did you get your expenses?—I got no expenses, or nothing to do with money at all.

78,883. Did you come at your own expense?—Yes. There was a coach provided, but I came the day before.

78,884. And never received any money at all?—No.

78,885. Did you have breakfast and dinner at Cottingham?—No. There was a dinner after it was all over.

78,886. Did you get any of it?—Yes, I did.

78,887. You came the day before?—Yes.

78,888. And stayed in Hull?—Yes.

78,889. You were not here in 1841?—No.

78,890. Are you sure of that?—I was living at Pattrington.

78,891. Were you here at the election?—No; I was without the limits; sixteen or eighteen miles off.

78,892. You might have been there, and not living there?—I lived there.

78,893. Do you know a man named Conkerton?—Yes.

78,894. Did he pay you any money in 1841?—Nobody paid me any money. I never received money, and nobody could pay me any.

George Hudson.

GEORGE HUDSON sworn, and examined.

78,895. Where do you live?—Hatfield Terrace, Spring Street.

78,896. What business are you?—A hairdresser.

78,897. What rent do you pay?—£21 18*s.*

78,898. Are you also a freeman?—Yes.

78,899. When were you made free?—In 1846.

78,900. In the 1847 election, who did you vote for?—I did not vote in the 1847 election. I was clerk to Mr. Yeall in East Sculcoates.

78,901. Were you not on the register?—No; I took my freedom up too late.

78,902. Did you assist in making payments there?—Before the election?

78,903. For that election?—Yes.

78,904. Who did you assist?—Mr. Yeall gave me some 17*l.* or 18*l.* to pay.

78,905. Who paid besides you?—I do not know who paid after the election. I think Mr. Wright.

78,906. Did he give you 17*l.* or 18*l.*?—Yes.

78,907. To make payments with?—Yes; to pay the actual runners, the men that did actual work.

78,908. For which candidate?—Brown. I paid some 5*s.*, and some 10*s.*

78,909. Did you have a list of them?—I had a list then.

78,910. And you made the payments to them?—I did.

78,911. When was it?—That was on the polling day.

78,912. Before or after they voted?—Some before and some after.

78,913. Did you pay them all the same sum?—I paid some 5*s.*, just as they were engaged, and some 10*s.* Those that were employed the Tuesday I paid 5*s.*, and those employed the Monday I paid 10*s.*

78,914. Where had they been employed?—At the committee room.

78,915. There were several committee rooms?—At the East Sculcoates ward committee, by Mr. Yeall.

78,916. Did you know them all?—I knew some of them.

78,917. How many were there in number?—I cannot say. I cannot tell now how many there were.

78,918. Can you tell me about the number?—I should think I paid about fifty.

78,919. About fifty that were in this list?—Yes.

78,920. Did you finish the payment on that day?—I gave it them all. I paid them in the morning before their dinners.

78,921. Did you finish the payment on that day?—Yes.

78,922. Did you pay any others afterwards?—No.

78,923. Did you pay any others before or after?—No.

78,924. That was all the money that passed through your hands?—That was all.

78,925. Did you assist Mr. Steeple at the last election?—No.

78,926. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

78,927. Who for?—Moore and Butler.

78,928. Did you look after some voters at the Shakespeare?—I was on the committee at the Shakespeare.

78,929. Were any voters put under your eye?—No.

78,930. Any people who were a little doubtful?—No.

78,931. Was your attention directed to any particular number of voters?—No; I went out canvassing.

78,932. Was it with Mr. Steeple?—No; it was with Mr. Mushelt, a tobacconist.

78,933. When people wanted to be runners you sent them to the committee room?—Yes.

78,934. To be set down as messengers or runners?—Yes.

78,935. Did you make any payments that election?—On the polling day I laid out between 6*s.* and 7*s.* for cabmen. I took precautions to know whether they were voters or not before I did pay it.

78,936. You took some up to vote?—Yes; I took many persons up.

78,937. Why did you take them up to vote?—I went for them.

78,938. I suppose it was doubtful whether they would vote?—Not at all.

78,939. People can walk up to vote?—Some of them cannot.

78,940. Were these of that class?—Yes.

78,941. Do you mean to say all the people you took up were unable to walk?—Many of them.

78,942. All?—No; but many were.

78,943. How many did you take up?—Perhaps 150.

78,944. Now, I ask you a little more carefully, how many do you mean to tell me out of the 150 you took up were unable to walk, to the best of your recollection?—Thirty or forty, perhaps.

78,945. Thirty or forty could not walk?—They were lame and ill, and suchlike. Many would not go to vote without being fetched, so I fetched them.

78,946. Would there be as many as 100 that would not go to vote unless fetched?—Perhaps there are 400 or 500 would not go without being fetched.

78,947. Out of the 150 which you took up were there 120, in your judgment, who would not have gone unless they were taken up?—I should think near upon it. I had to go and look after them, and I went in cabs to look after them.

78,948. Remember I asked you if you looked particularly after some voters, and you told me you did not?—Only as fetching them to the poll.

78,949. Is not that looking after them?—Certainly it is, in one sense.

78,950. Do you mean to tell me you did not understand my question when I asked that?—I did not. I thought you meant before the polling day.

78,951. I did not say so?—I understood you so.

78,952. How long were you engaged in taking up the 150 men to the poll?—I started at about half-past seven in the morning, and finished at about a quarter to four in the afternoon.

George Hudson.
9th August 1853.

78,953. Did you pay anybody any money?—No; they never asked for any.

78,954. Upon your oath, did you not pay any of these men any money?—None.

78,955. Upon your oath, you did not pay one of them?—No.

78,956. Did you pay any money that day?—Some 6*s.* 9*d.* or 7*s.*, you have a note of. Those paid were cabmen, but I took the precaution to know they were non-voters. They got refreshments; they said it was impossible to drive cabs all day without something to eat or drink.

78,957. Did you pay any of those you took up afterwards?—No.

78,958. Did you receive any money yourself?—No.

78,959. At any time?—No.

78,960. At or after the election?—No.

78,961. I suppose you knew in 1847 that the principal part, if not all the people, whom you say were employed at the committee room, that one of the pieces of business they were to do was to vote, they were always chosen from voters?—Yes; I only paid them that were actual runners. Mr. Yeall told me not to pay any other way.

78,962. A part of the duty of a runner is not to vote any other way?—There are two that I paid before they polled, and they voted against us.

78,963. They are paid with the understanding that they will vote or have voted for the candidates?—I did not ask that.

78,964. Did you understand it?—I expected they would vote for Mr. Brown when I paid them.

78,965. And you understood they were employed partly because they were to vote?—Yes; and after I had a doubt I did not pay them. When I knew they had voted I paid them.

78,966. Did somebody else attend to your shop when you were engaged in the committee?—Yes, sometimes; and sometimes not.

78,967. Did your brother attend your shop while you were engaged in the committee in 1852?—Yes.

78,968. Did you not get some sums of money for your absence from your business, while at the committee?—I did not.

78,969. Not at any time?—Not at any time.

78,970. Did the committee pay your brother for attending to your work?—No.

William Milner.

WILLIAM MILNER sworn, and examined.

78,971. Where do you live?—In Grimsby Lane.

78,972. What business are you?—A poulterer.

78,973. What rent do you pay?—Twelve guineas.

78,974. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

78,975. When were you made a freeman?—In 1839.

78,976. At the expense of either party?—Yes.

78,977. Who took it up for you?—The blues.

78,978. Did you vote for them in consequence at the next election?—Yes.

78,979. Did you receive any money besides?—I received 1*l.*

78,980. When were you paid?—A fortnight after the election.

78,981. Who paid you?—Mr. Bannister, I believe. I think so.

78,982. At the next election of 1847, who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.

78,983. Did you receive some money then?—Yes.

78,984. When were you paid?—A fortnight after, or something of that sort.

78,985. How much did you get?—£1.

78,986. At the election in 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

78,987. Did you receive some money then?—No.

78,988. Nothing at all?—No.

78,989. Were you at any committee in Chariot Street?—No; I had nothing to do with it; only just going to vote and coming back again.

78,990. You did not get anything before or after?—Nothing.

William Jones.

WILLIAM JONES sworn, and examined.

78,991. Where do you live?—Regent Street, Anlaby Road.

78,992. What business are you?—A commission agent.

78,993. What rent do you pay?—None.

78,994. Is it your own house?—Yes.

78,995. What are you rated at?—£9.

78,996. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

78,997. When were you made a freeman?—In 1825, I believe.

78,998. In 1841, did you vote for the orange party, Clay and Thompson?—I forget now. I think it was James and Clay.

William Jones.

9th August 1853.

79,999. Did you get any money at that election?—No.
79,000. Were you employed at all?—No; I believe not.
79,001. In 1847, the next election, who did you vote for?—Clay and Brown.
79,002. Did you receive any money then?—10*s.*
79,003. Who for?—Mr. Brown.
79,004. When were you paid?—After the election.
79,005. Who paid you?—I am sure I do not know who he was.
79,006. Where was it?—It was in Bond Street, at Mr. Holme's room.
79,007. At the last election you voted for Moore and Butler?—Yes.
79,008. Were you set down as a runner?—I was.
79,009. Did you get any money at that election?—Yes.
79,010. How much?—£1 a week.
79,011. For how many weeks?—Four weeks.
79,012. Were you paid 4*l.*?—Yes.
79,013. Is that all?—That is all.
79,014. Did you apply to be put on?—No, I did not apply; they sent for me.
79,015. Were you a regular messenger?—I was. I worked hard, too, from nine o'clock in the morning until eleven o'clock at night.
79,016. How came you to vote for Moore and Butler when you voted for Mr. Clay before?—I do not know.
79,017. Was it because they employed you on the committee?—Yes; I believe it was, partly.

Thomas Jarratt.

THOMAS JARRATT sworn, and examined.

79,018. Where do you live?—In the Market Place.
79,019. What business are you?—Woollendraper and tailor.
79,020. You are not a freeman, I believe?—No.
79,021. Were you entitled to vote at the election of 1841?—Yes.
79,022. What rent do you pay?—£95.
79,023. Who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
79,024. You took some interest in that election?—Yes, I did. I was deputy chairman of the Market Place ward.
79,025. Did you distribute some 30*s.* tickets?—No; not that I know of.
79,026. Do you remember a man of the name of Tadman?—I remember the man; I know the man. I saw his evidence in the paper given here. I distinctly wish to say he is mistaken as far as I am concerned. I never had a shilling in my hands, as far as I remember.
79,027. The substance of his evidence is that you gave him some 30*s.* tickets to take to Risdale's at that election?—Which I distinctly deny. I do not mean to say the man might not have gotten a 30*s.* ticket. I have no doubt he would; but as far as I am concerned in paying, he has made a mistake.
79,028. Did you give him a ticket?—I had no tickets passed through my hands at all.
79,029. In his evidence he said you gave some 30*s.* tickets?—I had no tickets passed through my hands. I do not know whether the chairman had. As far as I am concerned I had not.
79,030. Were there any tickets given at the committee over which you presided?—I have no recollection of any tickets of that description being given.
79,031. Do you know a man of the name of Risdale?—I do not remember him at all.
79,032. You swear, as far as you are concerned, it is a mistake?—Quite a mistake.
79,033. As to your giving tickets?—Yes.
79,034. Do you recollect whether anybody else did at your committee?—No, I do not; it is a long time, and I should not like to swear positively to it.
79,035. Have you a recollection of the fact of such tickets?—No. I have no doubt that there might be such things; men expected them; some were paid as much as 2*l.* I am not aware it was through tickets; it possibly might be.
79,036. Did you know that the men had the money?—Yes; I believe so.
79,037. Had you anything to do with it?—Not with regard to paying them. I was at the central committee.
79,038. Did you set their names down?—We had clerks. I merely sat as deputy chairman.
79,039. Hid you instruct the clerks?—I referred them to the chairman or the central committee. I think the most business I did was to refer them to the central committee.
79,040. The clerks were in your employ?—In the employ of the committee. I was only the deputy chairman; no party who took a share in that business.
79,041. What is the deputy chairman?—He is merely to superintend when the chairman is not there.
79,042. When he was not there the clerks acted under you?—Yes.

Thomas Jarratt.

9th August 1853.

79,043. And you knew they were setting down runners under your authority?—Yes.

79,044. They were under your authority?—They were acting under general authority. It was a general authority to the district committees so to do.

79,045. They were acting under you?—Yes; I sat there in the absence of the chairman.

79,046. The central committee instructed the district committee, and the district committee instructed the clerks?—Yes.

79,047. They came to the district chairman?—Yes.

79,048. And the district chairman or the deputy chairman instructed the clerks?—Exactly.

79,049. Did you know that the clerks paid them?—No. I believe the money was paid at the central committee room, but I wish distinctly to deny having paid Mr. Tadman or any other man. I wish distinctly to deny that.

79,050. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I was not in town at the time.

79,051. You did not vote at all?—No.

79,052. Were you on any committee?—I was not in Hull.

79,053. I understood that might refer to the election day?—No; I was away. I had taken my daughter into the south, to school, and was away for three or four weeks.

79,054. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

79,055. Were you on any committee?—No; I refused to act. I believe they wanted me to act, and take the chair in my own ward. I declined to do so; a Mr. Davis ultimately took it, and they put me nominally as a vice chairman on the central committee. I never acted; I went up several times.

79,056. Did you take any part in the payments?—No.

79,057. Did you send any of your friends to be set down as runners?—No; I canvassed once or twice, and on the polling day I paid a little attention to it, but as far as money matters, I had nothing at all to do with them.

79,058. Did you send any runners?—No.

79,059. Did you engage any sham rooms?—No; I declined acting, except just as I felt inclined, and had the convenience.

James Taylor.

JAMES TAYLOR sworn, and examined.

79,060. Where do you live?—No. 29, Sykes Street.

79,061. What business are you?—A baker.

79,062. What rent do you pay?—£20.

79,063. Are you a freeman?—No.

79,064. At the election of 1841, who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.

79,065. Did you get any money for your vote?—I rather think I did.

79,066. How much?—A sovereign.

79,067. Who paid you?—I was paid in this way: the election took place in the summer time. I recollect about the month of November or December, I was sent for one night, to go to a certain house in Mason Street; I went; it was Mr. Dalton's. I rapped at the door, and I said, "Am I wanted here?" They said, "Yes;" and somebody held out his hand and put a sovereign into my hand. I was taken somewhat unawares. A sovereign is a pretty thing; but as I went on I thought it was for election purposes. I had voted two or three elections before, and never asked anybody to give me anything. I said to my wife, "It must be for electioneering purposes; I do not like to have money for such a purpose." I, however, thought the best way would be to dispense with it as honourably as I could. At that time Mr. Keary was the minister of the Sculcoates church, and was in the habit of giving bread to people; and he gave the people tickets to come to me: "Give the bearer a sixpenny loaf;" and then he came and reckoned with me, when he thought proper. When he came, I said, "Here, Mr. Keary, is a sovereign, that has not cost me a deal of labour, and the next time you reckon you can give forty sixpenny tickets." And I dispensed with the sovereign that way. I expected it was for electioneering purposes; that is all the moneys I ever received or handled since I went to that place, twenty-one years ago.

79,068. Were there any tickets for bread independent of what you allude to?—No; they are for charity. He gave them regular all the year round.

79,069. Why did you not take it back to the place you had it from?—I thought it was as safe in my hands as theirs when I took a second consideration.

79,070. Do you know who the man was?—No. I think it was Dalton or Watson; the hand was held out, and I was taken at a nonplus.

79,071. Did you see the man?—No; it was at candle light.

79,072. Dalton says he was not the man, and he does not know who was?—I cannot say who it was. I dispensed with it.

79,073. You did not try to find out who gave you the money?—No; it is long since.

James Taylor.

9th August 1853.

79,074. I mean at the time?—I cannot say; there were three or four of them, and I could not say which man it was.

79,075. Instead of taking it back you dispensed it?—Yes.

79,076. That was in 1841?—Yes; it was at Hanmer's election. I do not know what year it was. I had voted two or three times previous to that.

79,077. And afterwards?—Yes.

79,078. Who did you vote for at the next election in 1847?—I generally vote for the blue party.

79,079. Clay, Baines, or Brown?—I should vote for Mr. Baines; but I do not know whether I voted for Baines separately.

79,080. Did you get any money that election?—Not a farthing. It is the only money I ever handled, and I was rather sorry I handled that.

79,081. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

79,082. And did no money pass through your hands?—No such thing.

79,083. You did not pay any other people?—No.

79,084. You made no payments?—None whatever.

79,085. And they did not engage your room?—No; no such thing. I did not want them. I would not have them.

G. G. Kemp.

GEORGE GOODDY KEMP sworn, and examined.

79,086. Where do you live?—West Parade.

79,087. What rent do you pay?—£50.

79,088. Within the borough?—£250.

79,089. What business are you?—A merchant.

79,090. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Since the Reform Act.

79,091. You are not a freemen?—No.

79,092. In 1841 who did you vote for?—I think at that election I did not vote at all; at one I did not, and I think that was the one.

79,093. You were not in the town?—Yes, I was in the town; but I did not choose to vote.

79,094. Did you take any part?—No; at that particular election, at which I did not vote, I took no part.

79,095. In 1847 who did you vote for?—I think Clay and Baines.

79,096. Did you take any part in that election?—None.

79,097. No part but voting?—None whatever.

79,098. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

79,099. Did you take any part in this election?—Yes.

79,100. In what capacity?—I was a member of the committee.

79,101. Of which committee?—First Osborne Street, and afterwards another that met, which was drafted from it, at Carr Lane, at Newstead's.

79,102. Was that at a public house?—Yes.

79,103. What is the sign?—The Black Horse.

79,104. You were the chairman of that committee?—No, I was not.

79,105. You were appointed on that committee?—Yes.

79,106. Who was there with you; many?—Several. Captain Martin Munroe was the chairman. Mr. Ellerman was also there, and some others, whose names I do not recollect.

79,107. Did you attend the meetings frequently?—No. In consequence of the death of a relation, I was obliged to leave the town three or four days before the election, and returned only the night before the polling day.

79,108. Did you attend there that night?—No, the next morning.

79,109. The polling day?—Yes.

79,110. Were there persons set down as runners?—Yes. There was a staff of runners, doorkeepers, and so on; drafted from the Osborne Street committee.

79,111. Were there persons set down that day?—No, they had all ran away; we had not one left that morning.

79,112. Did you take any part in the payment of any person on or after the election?—Never.

79,113. Were you present at Carr Lane when any one was paid?—No; I never in my life saw any money paid to any man on account of the election.

79,114. Were you aware that persons were having their names set down in Carr Lane, as runners?—No, nor was it so. The men that we had there were drafted from the Osborne Street room.

79,115. Did you at all understand that your room was taken in Carr Lane for the purpose of your enabling the committee to increase the staff of runners as one of the objects?—Not at the time that it was trken; for I, in conjunction with Mr. Ellerman, took it myself. We complained that the Osborne Street room was too far from our work, from the place where we canvassed, and they said we had better take another more conveniently situated, and they told us we might give three guineas for a room, and I made that bargain.

G. G. Kemp.

9th August 1853.

79,116. Did you take it at all in order to satisfy the landlord?—Not in any way or manner.

79,117. Then you took it entirely to suit your own purpose?—Yes; but in fact he voted against us; his vote was not considered.

79,118. You knew nothing of the system of setting down?—Nothing whatever.

79,119. And you had nothing to do with any payment?—No.

79,120. And never assisted in any?—No; nor did I know of any.

John Biggins.

JOHN BIGGINS sworn, and examined.

79,121. Where do you live?—Driffield at present. I was in Hull at the last election, but I was summoned last night to attend to-day.

79,122. What business are you?—A pipe maker.

79,123. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

79,124. What rent did you pay?—I was paying ten guineas when in Hull.

79,125. Where did you live when in Hull?—In the Pottery.

79,126. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1839.

79,127. Was it taken up for you?—No.

79,128. Did you pay for it yourself?—Yes.

79,129. And you were not repaid?—No.

79,130. In 1841, who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.

79,131. Were you paid for it?—Yes, afterwards.

79,132. How much?—£1.

72,133. Where were you paid?—In St. James's Street.

79,134. Who paid you?—That I cannot tell you.

79,135. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Brown and Clay.

79,136. Were you paid for that?—After voting I was.

79,137. How much?—£1 each.

79,138. Were you one of the men paid at the Baltic?—Yes.

79,139. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

79,140. At what time in the day were you paid at the Baltic?—There was a party there before they went to vote, and we received £1 on behalf of Mr. Brown before going to vote; and the other was paid in London, after returning from voting.

79,141. How soon in the day did you hear you were to have the second pound?—The landlord had it in his hands at the time, and would not entrust the whole of the parties till they voted.

79,142. What time in the day did you hear that?—It was known before dinner. I could not tell you exactly the time, but I was paid immediately after voting; but for Mr. Brown I was paid before.

79,143. Before voting?—Yes; by the party who paid for Mr. Brown, but the individual I do not know.

79,144. Was the first sovereign paid before twelve o'clock?—No; it would be after dinner, I think.

79,145. What time were you paid the sovereign for Mr. Brown?—I could not say exactly; it was after dinner, and the voting closed at four o'clock.

79,146. I want to fix the exact time of the day if we can?—I should say, as nearly as I can remember, it could not be much short of three o'clock in the afternoon.

79,147. When did you know first of all you were to have the payment; was it that morning or the day before?—It was the same day.

79,148. Early in the morning was it?—It was not known they were in possession of the money an hour before it was handed over. There were negotiations going on with one party and the other for a long time previous respecting the party.

79,149. In 1852, you voted for Moore and Butler?—Yes.

79,150. Were you paid for them?—Yes, after.

79,151. How much?—30s.

79,152. Were you set down as a runner?—Yes.

79,153. Where?—Mr. Croft set me down, and I was paid.

79,154. Was that all that you were paid?—Yes.

Mr. J. Mackrill.

Mr. JOSEPH MACKRILL sworn, and examined.

79,155. Do you live at Barton?—I do.

79,156. Are you a solicitor?—I am.

79,157. And a voter for this borough?—No.

79,158. At which of the elections did you take part first?—In 1847, I believe; in fact, that was the only one.

79,159. You took no part in 1841?—No.

79,160. In 1847, were you engaged for the blue party?—No; for neither party.

79,161. Were you not to manage the Barton voters on behalf of one party?—No. I might have had a retainer on the part of Mr. Brown, and have received ten guineas for a retaining fee, to pay some attention to the Barton voters. That I declined, because I had made up my mind to interest myself for Mr. Baines, unasked by his party.

79,162. Did you interest yourself for Mr. Baines?—I did.

79,163. And took an interest yourself in the way of getting the Barton voters?—For him; some of them I did.

79,164. How many did you get?—I called upon ten or twelve, and I obtained the promises of either five or seven; I do not exactly remember the number at present.

79,165. Did it appear to you that they had a common agreement as to the terms on which they came?—With some it did. Three or four gave me their promises at once on behalf of Mr. Baines. Some of the others declined giving any promise; and the subject of money was mentioned by me in order to see whether there was any importance attached by them to it; and in two or three instances I thought there was a feeling, and therefore I made my bow and retired, telling them I had no instructions to pay any money, or to promise any; and I understood from Mr. Baines' committee there was to be no money paid.

79,166. Did you agree with any one that he should be paid in any way?—I did not. I wish to draw your attention to a statement which I saw in the papers. One of the parties called upon was Joseph Siddons. He asked if his expenses would be paid. I told him I thought not; that is, I could give no guarantee, but that there might be some few shillings to cover his expenses, but as I could give him no promise, I would name the subject to Mr. Henry Smith Bright, an active member who was on that committee, and whatever was done with respect to the others would doubtless be done by him. I gave him no promise to see him paid. I named the subject to Mr. Bright afterwards, and left the matter entirely with him. Mr. Bright's reply was, "It was a delicate subject. I know he applied to me, but I can give no promise, but he shall have the same attention as the other voters."

79,167. Did you tell the man that?—Yes; and during the next month or five weeks I saw Mr. Bright occasionally once or twice upon that.

79,168. Had you ever heard before that there was a custom at Barton for the men to be paid a certain sum, which was called for their travelling expenses?—Yes, I knew it as a notorious fact. I had heard of it that the men had for the previous twenty or thirty years received something like head money,—1*l.*, 2*l.*, 3*l.*, and sometimes more.

79,169. When you told him he should get the same as the others, did you tell him anything by which he should know he would only get his travelling expenses?—The amount he seemed to measure was about 5*s.* or 10*s.*, as he was going to divide his vote with Mr. Clay, and he hoped to get something from his committee.

79,170. Did you lead him to understand that?—I left him, as I stated, that I would name the subject to Mr. Bright, and I did so.

79,171. Did you afterwards state it to Siddons?—I named to Siddons what I had said to Mr. Bright, but gave him no promise.

79,172. Did you leave him with the impression that he should be paid as usual?—I thought from Mr. Bright's answer to me that he would receive 10*s.* by-and-by.

79,173. And you gave Siddons to understand that?—I gave him to understand so much as Mr Bright had said; in those words, nothing more.

79,174. Was he the only person with whom you came to an agreement?—There was no agreement; no other party mentioned the money at all. They seemed to understand when they came to give their votes, that they would receive so much money from each candidate.

79,175. Did you leave those men with the understanding that they would have that as usual?—They had formed their own judgment and opinion upon my words, and therefore I gave them no promise.

79,176. And your impression was that they did expect the usual payment?—Entirely so.

79,177. You induced them to come to Hull, knowing they expected that?—They had intended to come to Hull.

79,178. You canvassed them to come?—I canvassed them to come on the part of Mr. Baines.

79,179. Knowing that they had that expectation you let them come?—I let them come; at least, I expect they came. How they came I do not know.

79,180. Did you have anything to do with satisfying them afterwards?—Never.

79,181. You knew nothing of it?—Never anything of it.

79,182. Do you know whether they were paid?—I do not, except some time after Siddons told me he had received from Clay's party a sovereign.

79,183. Did you know if any of the others were paid?—I do not know of my own knowledge.

79,184. Did you hear?—I heard it stated that the men were not paid then, but they had been promised by-and-by shortly afterwards.

79,185. Did you hear it from them?—I heard it from one of them at the last election, in which I took no part, except occasional conversation.

79,186. At the last election I mean?—No, certainly.

79,187. At the last election did you take any part at all?—I did not with regard to the Barton voters. They are brought up by Mr. Hall, of the Ropery, and it is talked of largely that they are bought and paid.

Mr. J. Mackrill.
9th August 1853.

79,188. Did you canvass the Baylisses, father and son?—I did.

79,189. You found the son made a bargain for his father and himself?—You are referring to the last election?

79,190. No; they seem to have done so with regard to every election?—William Bayliss had promised me on the part of Mr. Baines, but no promise was made on the part of his father.

James Cumming.

JAMES CUMMING sworn, and examined.

79,191. Where do you live?—I live at Grimsby, where I am at work.

79,192. Where did you live at the last election?—I was at sea. I lived in Chapel Street.

79,193. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

79,194. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1826.

79,195. In 1841, who did you vote for?—No person. I was at sea.

79,196. In 1847, who for?—I was at sea.

79,197. And in 1852?—I was at sea in the Rose, in Davis' Straits, until November.

79,198. Then you had nothing to do with any of those elections?—No, nothing at all.

79,199. Not the last three elections?—Not the last three elections. I voted for O'Neill and Villars in 1826.

79,200. Are you quite sure you had nothing to do with the last three elections?—Yes.

Joseph Dibb.

JOSEPH DIBB sworn, and examined.

79,201. Where do you live?—Beverley.

79,202. What rent do you pay?—£5 10*s.*

79,203. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

79,204. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1841 I think it was. I do not remember exactly.

79,205. Was it taken up for you?—No, I took it up myself.

79,206. Did you vote in 1841?—No.

79,207. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines.

79,208. Were you paid any money?—No.

79,209. Not on any account?—Not on any account; nor was asked for my vote neither.

79,210. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

79,211. Were you paid any money this time?—Yes.

79,212. How much?—10*s.*

79,213. What was that for?—Expenses in coming from Beverley, voting, and back again.

79,214. How did you come from Beverley?—By the railway.

79,215. Which class?—Third class.

79,216. How much did it cost you?—One shilling.

79,217. And back?—I took a day ticket.

79,218. What was the other 9*s.* for?—I got the money of Mr. Atkinson and Mr. Gresham in King Street. I told them my expenses would be my day's wages, 3*s.* 6*d.*, and a shilling my railway fare.

79,219. It was for loss of time?—Yes; loss of time, and so on.

William Burton.

WILLIAM BURTON sworn, and examined.

79,220. Where do you live?—Barton.

79,221. What rent do you pay?—I live in my own house.

79,222. What is it rated at?—£10.

79,223. What business are you?—Brick and tile maker.

79,224. Are you a freeman of this borough?—Yes.

79,225. How long have you been free?—Upwards of thirty years.

79,226. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.

79,227. Were you paid any money?—No.

79,228. Neither before nor after the election?—No.

79,229. Nothing in the way of travelling expenses?—No.

79,230. Did you take any part in the election besides voting?—No.

79,231. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Mr. Baines.

79,232. Baines only?—Only.

79,233. Were you paid any money?—No.

79,234. Not on account of your tavelling expenses?—No; not anything.

William Burton.

9th August 1853.

79,235. Did you receive no money at all from the candidates or their committee?—No.

79,236. At the last election, who did you vote for?—I did not vote at all.

79,237. Why not?—Well, I scarcely can give you what may be termed a definite reason—what may be satisfactory to you.

79,238. If it was any political reason you need not state it?—It was a matter of opinion; about twelve o'clock I thought the thing was decided, and one or a hundred votes would be of no consequence, and therefore I did not vote at all.

79,239. Did you canvass for the parties at any one of these elections?—No; I have not taken any interest in the elections, for I think I may say since 1841.

79,240. Did you canvass any men in your own employ?—No, I did not; I was a clerk in the firm in which my father was a partner.

79,241. Did you canvass any?—No, I did not; nor my father either.

79,242. Did you ever promise any of the men payment, if they came over to vote?—Never in my life, for the last thirty years.

JOHN GREEN sworn, and examined.

John Green.

79,243. Where do you live?—Barton.

79,244. What business are you?—Chemist and druggist.

79,245. What rent do you pay?—I do not pay any, I live in my own house.

79,246. What are you rated at?—£8.

79,247. You are a freeman of this borough?—Yes.

79,248. How long have you been a freeman?—From 1818.

79,249. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.

79,250. Did you get paid any money?—Yes.

79,251. How much?—I cannot exactly say.

79,252. About how much?—I should think 5*l.*

79,253. On what occasion?—I was put on as a runner for each party.

79,254. You mean for Hanmer and James?—Yes.

79,255. Not for the orange party?—No.

79,256. You were paid 5*l.*?—Yes, there was that. I do not know exactly; I think there would be that.

79,257. In 1847 who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines.

79,258. Were you paid any money that election?—A sovereign.

79,259. Were you set down as a runner that time?—No, I was not set down as a runner; it was the expenses.

79,260. Did you get it as for travelling expenses?—Yes; I was paid by Mr. Wilde.

79,261. You came from Barton?—Yes.

79,262. That cost you 8*d.*?—I do not know what it cost.

79,263. It does not cost much more?—No; not a deal.

79,264. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

79,265. Were you paid any money?—Yes; 2*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*

79,266. Was that as for your travelling expenses?—Yes.

79,267. You came from Barton and went back again?—Yes.

79,268. And got two guineas?—Yes.

WILLIAM RUSSELL sworn, and examined.

William Russell.

79,269. Where do you live?—No. 11, Manor House Street.

79,270. What business are you?—A seaman.

79,271. What rent do you pay?—£13.

79,272. Are you a freeman?—No.

79,273. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Since last year.

79,274. Who did you vote for?—Bramley Moore and Butler.

79,275. Moore only?—Only.

79,276. Were you paid any money?—Not for my vote.

79,277. Were you paid any money?—I was paid for the expenses coming up to vote.

79,278. From where?—From the Bull Sand, Light Vessel, off Spurn.

79,279. How much were you paid?—15*s.*

79,280. What did it cost you to come?—I think altogether it cost me 10*s.* there and back, and the time I was here, I was three days altogether.

79,281. Did they send you a letter down?—Yes; they sent me a letter down if I wished to come.

79,282. How much did it cost you, the fare?—I came up by the vessel.

79,283. You paid nothing?—I paid nothing.

79,284. Did you pay anything going back?—No. And then I had to give my shipmates something for doing my work at the time I was away.

William Russell.

9th August 1853.

79,285. You stayed here three days?—Yes; one day coming up, one day staying here, and one day going down.

79,406. Did you canvass?—Yes.
79,407. Did you get people set down on that occasion?—No.
79,408. Nor get them any money?—No.
79,409. Did people never ask you during your canvass?—Many of them. It cost me a good deal out of my own pocket.
79,410. What did you say to them?—I could not give them anything. I had no authority.
79,411. Did you always tell them so?—Yes.
79,412. They did not promise you to vote?—I got many voters.
79,413. Among those persons?—Certainly not.
79,414. Did you leave them to do as they thought fit?—Of course.
79,415. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.
79,416. Did you canvass in the same way?—Yes.
79,417. Were you paid anything?—No.
79,418. Did you get persons set down this time?—No.
79,419. Did you send them to Saville Street?—No; I did not know of Saville Street at the time.
79,420. Or of Chapel Lane?—No.
79,421. Did you act in the same way at the last election?—Just the same.
79,422. Were you a mere volunteer?—Yes, I was.

Joseph Dawson.

JOSEPH DAWSON sworn, and examined.

79,423. Where do you live?—In Humber Dock Street.

79,428. In 1841, who did you vote for?—The orange.
79,429. Clay and Thompson?—Yes.
79,430. Were you paid any money?—No; I never received a halfpenny of money of any of them.
79,431. Will you swear you were paid no money by the candidates or the committee, or any of the party?—By no party.
79,432. On account of any election?—On account of any election.
79,433. Do you swear the same of 1847?—Yes.
79,434. And also of the last election?—And of the last election.
79,435. Neither directly nor indirectly?—No way at all; neither interest nor anything at all either way.
79,436. And do you mean to say that you did not expect there would be money coming?—I did hear say they were paying, but I never had any promised.
79,437. Had you not your name set down for the purpose, that if any money was paid, you would get a share?—I never heard talk of anybody being paid.

JOHN LYON sworn, and examined. John Lyon.

9th August 1853.

79,438. Where do you live?—Humber Dock Street.
79,439. What business are you?—Furniture broker.
79,440. What rent do you pay?—£20.
79,441. Are you a freeman?—No.
79,442. In 1841, who did you vote for?—I should think it would be the orange interest.
79,443. That is Clay and Thompson?—Yes.
79,444. Were you paid any money?—No.
79,445. Were you set down at all?—No; I have never interested myself in elections. I never required any candidates to call upon me. I never gave them any sort of engagement.
79,446. Did you vote orange at that election?—At all elections.
79,447. Was your name set down as a runner?—Never.
79,448. Not in Saville Street?—Never.
79,449. Or in Chapel Lane?—Never; and no one knew how I intended to vote until I recorded it.
79,450. Were you canvassed?—No; the candidates passed my door; they knew my sentiments. I do not like it.
79,451. You do not like to promise?—I never do promise.

JOHN FRANCIS SMITH sworn, and examined. John F. Smith.

79,452. Where do you live?—Myton Place.

79,454. What rent do you pay?—£15.
79,455. What business are you?—A plumber.
79,456. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
79,457. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1839.
79,458. Was it taken up for you?—I took it up myself.
79,459. Did you pay for it?—I paid for it.
79,460. And were not repaid?—And was not repaid.
79,461. In 1841, who did you vote for?—Clay and Thompson.
79,462. Were you paid any money?—No money at all.
79,463. Not by the party?—Not by the party.
79,464. At any time before or after the election?—Not at any time before or after the election.
79,465. You are quite sure you are not down on Thistleton's list?—Quite sure.
79,466. And you did not get the sum of 30*s.*?—No.
79,467. Were you set down to get it?—I am sure I cannot say I was. I know I did not get anything.
79,468. Did you hear anything about it?—No.
79,469. Or expect it?—No.
79,470. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines.
79,471. Did you get any money that time?—Not any then.
79,472. Not on any ground?—Not on any ground.
79,473. At the last election, who did you vote for?—I did not vote at all. I was from home.
79,474. Where were you, a long way?—No; I was not a long way off.
79,475. Were you paid any money at the last election?—Not any money.
79,476. Did you abstain from voting, or was it only inconvenient?—It was through not being at home that I did not vote.
79,477. You were not induced to stay away?—No; I was not induced to stay away.
79,478. Did you see Thistleton in 1841?—I do not remember that I did.
79,479. Or Mr. Stark?—No.

BENJAMIN COULLEY sworn, and examined. Benjamin Coulley.

79,480. Where do you live?—Staniforth Place, Hessle Road.
79,481. What rent do you pay?—£4.
79,482. What business are you?—I am a mariner, but have left off the sea.
79,483. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
79,484. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1826.
79,485. In 1841, who did you vote for?—I was not at home. I believe I was at sea.
79,486. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.
79,487. Were you paid any money?—Yes; after the election.
79,488. How much?—I think 15*s.* altogether.

Benjamin Coulley.

9th August 1853.

79,489. Was that for Baines or Brown?—I think it was for both.
79,490. Part for one and part for the other?—Yes.
79,491. 10*s.* for Brown?—Yes.
79,492. And 5*s.* for Baines?—Yes; that was it.
79,493. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
79,494. Were you paid any money for it?—I lived in Hessle at that time, and after the election a gentleman called and left me half a sovereign for my expenses.
79,495. You came from Hessle and back?—Yes.
79,496. How did you come?—I rode to Hull, and walked back.
79,497. It cost you nothing?—No; it cost me nothing.

John Campbell.

JOHN CAMPBELL sworn, and examined.

79,498. Where do you live?—Hessle.
79,499. What business are you?—I have always polled as a shipwright, but I am now a grocer and farrier.
79,500. What rent do you pay?—Ten guineas.
79,501. Are you a freeman of the borough?—Yes.
79,502. How long have you been a freeman?—I cannot say exactly. I polled for Staniforth and Mitchell, and they took my freedom up.
79,503. In 1841, who did you vote for?—I am sure I really do not know.
79,504. Did you vote blue or orange?—I think I should be blue.
79,505. That would be James and Hanmer. Were you paid any money?— No; I never received a halfpenny, that I know of.
79,506. Not at any election?—Yes, I have.
79,507. At that election you did not?—I did not.
79,508. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I think I gave Mr. Brown a plumper.
79,509. Were you paid any money?—Yes; I got 10*s.*
79,510. On what ground?—I did not get it at the committee room, nowhere there. It was brought to my place at Hessle.
79,511. On what account did they pay it you; did they call it expenses, or what?—Travelling expenses.
79,512. And loss of time?—Yes, I believe that was it.
79,513. The travelling expenses to which you were put were nothing; you did not pay anything for travelling, did you?—No, I did not.
79,514. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
79,515. Were you paid for it?—I never got a halfpenny or a penny piece.
79,516. Did you come from Hessle this time?—I did.
79,517. Why did you not ask for it this time?—I never asked for anything of the sort that I know of, of anybody.
79,518. Who canvassed you at Hessle?—I think Mr. Pearse, of Hessle Wood.
79,519. Did they bring you to Hull?—Yes.
79,520. In a carriage?—Yes, in a carriage; and they took me back, but I never received a halfpenny piece, nor a glass of grog, nor anything.
79,521. Did they give you any breakfast or dinner?—I never got a farthing piece.
79,522. Did they give you any dinner?—I never got anything at all. They brought me here and took me back.

William Warden.

WILLIAM WARDEN sworn, and examined.

79,523. Where do you live?—Hessle.
79,524. What business are you?—A plumber.
79,525. What rent do you pay?—£15.
79,526. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
79,527. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1839.
79,528. Did you take up your own freedom?—Yes.
79,529. It was not paid for for you?—No, it was not.
79,530. In 1841, who did you vote for?—Thompson and Clay.
79,531. Were you paid any money?—No.
79,532. Before, or after, or during the election?—No.
79,533. Not by the party at all?—No.
79,534. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.
79,535. Did you get any money on that occasion?—No.
79,536. Not on any account?—I should not be exactly satisfied if I did not state it. I got nothing before, and I was not even aware I was to have some; but a week or so after the election I met a gentleman on quite another business, and I was given something.
79,537. How much?—I am not able to state whether he gave me a sovereign or half a sovereign; it was one of the two.
79,538. Was it for the election?—I judged so, but I had no idea that I should receive one penny.

William Warden.

9th August 1853.

79,539. Did you come from Hessle that time?—Yes.
79,540. You kept the sovereign?—Yes; and spent it among a few of my friends at night.
79,541. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
79,542. Did you get any money this time?—No.
79,543. Not as for travelling expenses?—No.
79,544. Were you brought here?—No; I rode on my own horse here.
79,545. What gentleman paid you 10s.—Mr. William Burstall, of Hessle.

GEORGE HENRY HOLMES sworn, and examined.

G. H. Holmes.

79,546. Where do you live?—At Cottingham.
79,547. What rent do you pay?—£5.
79,548. What business are you?—A hairdresser.
79,549. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
79,550. How long have you been free?—Since 1840.
79,551. Did you take it up yourself?—No.
79,552. Which party took it up for you?—The orange party.
79,553. That was in 1839?—No, in 1840.
79,554. Did you vote for them in consequence in 1841?—No.
79,555. Did you vote for them?—No.
79,556. Who did you vote for?—Not for any one. I was not on the register at the time.
79,557. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Brown and Clay.
79,558. Were you paid any money?—No.
79,559. Not by the committee?—No.
79,560. Or by anybody?—No, not by any one.
79,561. As for travelling expenses, or any other?—I lived in Hull at that time.
79,562. At the last election who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.
79,563. Were you paid any money this time?—No.
79,564. Were you promised any?—No.
79,565. Were your expenses paid?—The omnibus was paid there and back.
79,566. Were you brought from Cottingham?—Yes, and taken back clear of expenses.
79,567. Had you entered into any agreement before you came that you would not vote unless you were brought?—No; no agreement whatever.
79,568. Had that been at all said in Cottingham?—I never promised any one.
79,569. Had you heard it said among the voters in Cottingham they would not come unless they were brought free of expense?—No; I never heard anything of the sort.
79,570. Did you ever say so?—No.
79,571. Did you get any breakfast?—Yes.
79,572. And the other voters had a breakfast?—Yes; I was invited to both breakfasts, the blues and the orange.
79,573. Did you have a dinner here at Hull?—Yes.
79,574. What else did you have that way?—Refreshments.
79,575. Besides?—Yes.
79,576. And a dinner after, or a supper, at Cottingham?—Yes.
79,577. All the voters had that?—Yes.
79,578. Was it understood among them before they came that they should have that?—No; a dinner or supper was not promised at Cottingham until after the election.
79,579. Who promised it?—Mr. Richardson.
79,580. Was he the person who had canvassed you?—Yes.
79,581. Had there been any understanding between you and Mr. Richardson that you were to be brought to Hull, and have your breakfast, luncheon, and all these things?—It was understood we should have our breakfast by both parties, irrespective of who we promised; I promised no one.
79,582. You said you would not promise?—Yes.
79,583. When they undertook to give you a breakfast and bring you in an omnibus, you did promise?—No; I did not promise any one.
79,584. You did not eat the breakfast, and then not vote for them?—I was invited by the parties to go to breakfast and ride in the omnibus.
79,585. And you chose the orange party?—Yes.
79,586. You said nothing had been said at any time that you would not vote unless you were brought and paid?—No; I never heard anything, and I was never promised anything of the sort myself. I have got a misstatement to correct: Mr. Colbeck, the solicitor, has stated before you, I asked him for money before the election; I asked neither him nor any man for money, and it was reported in the newspapers that I asked him for money.
79,587. You did not ask him for any?—No; because if he had I would not have taken it; I did not mean to vote for him.

Samuel Watson.

9th August 1853.

SAMUEL WATSON sworn, and examined.

79,588. Where do you live?—Cottingham.

79,589. What business are you?—A surgeon.

79,590. What do you pay for your house?—£50.

79,591. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

79,592. Who did you vote for in 1841?—I never did vote.

79,593. Never, at any election?—No.

79,594. Have you taken part in canvassing the Cottingham voters?—I did the last election, a little.

79,595. Was that at all with Mr. Richardson?—No.

79,596. For which party did you canvass?—For the blues.

79,597. Did you find that they were unwilling to vote unless they had some advantage by the election?—No; I did not find anything of the kind.

79,598. Did you find they insisted on being brought to Hull?—No; I do not recollect anything of the kind; they expect it; it was always usual. I did not take any active part in it. I canvassed a few persons, but not the whole of the electors of Cottingham.

79,599. Has it been usual that they should be brought here free of expense?—Yes.

79,600. Always?—Yes.

79,601. And be fed?—Yes; brought from Cottingham to Hull and back.

79,602. And to receive money besides?—I cannot say; I never took part in the previous elections.

79,603. When you canvassed the people, was there any inquiry made with reference to being brought and fed?—No, not of me.

79,604. Did they promise you at once?—No, they did not promise at all; I got no promise.

79,605. What did they say when you canvassed them?—They said they had not made up their minds; and some would vote as I wished, and some would vote the other way, and some had not made up their minds.

79,606. Did you not get a single promise?—I cannot say that I did.

79,607. How many voters are there in Cottingham?—Perhaps about a couple of dozen.

79,608. About twenty to thirty?—Perhaps so; I should think so.

79,609. You were engaged with Mr. Bamford to canvass them? Had you not agreed with him that you would canvass them?—Mr. Bamford asked me to canvass any that I thought would be likely to serve the cause.

79,610. Did you hear it had been the custom to pay the men money, and at the last election they were to be persuaded, and to be brought and fed instead of being paid money?—I heard nothing of that.

79,611. Had you heard that?—I cannot say that I did. I know at all elections it is customary to pay the men and feed them at the place they reside. There are generally gentlemen come over and pay their expenses, and feed them well at the town they are to vote at. I do not know what they get.

79,612. Did you make that agreement or understanding with them?—Nothing of the kind; I had no agreement to make.

79,613. Did anybody tell you they must have it or would have it?—Nothing of the kind.

79,614. Do you attribute your very unsuccessful canvass, as you did not get a single promise, to your not promising them any money?—No; I think not.

79,615. I cannot understand a gentleman's canvassing twenty-four or twenty-five persons and not getting one promise?—Yes, it is very possible; the men are all pretty decided, and one might know pretty well in which way they would vote. In one or two instances the men voted the orange side, who had been in the habit of voting blue.

79,616. You said they would not promise any one?—No; in fact they seemed to be very cautious about what they did.

79,617. What did you attribute that to?—I cannot say; I took no notice of the motives.

79,618. You must have had a great deal of labour for nothing?—No, not a great deal; I did not call on many.

Benjamin Laming.

BENJAMIN LAMING sworn, and examined.

79,619. Do you live at Cottingham?—Yes.

79,620. What rent do you pay?—I do not pay any rent at all.

79,621. What business are you?—A gardener.

79,622. Do you live in a house as part payment for your employment?—No; I am my own master.

79,623. What is your house rated at?—I think it is rated at 11*l.*

79,624. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

79,625. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Moore and Butler.

79,626. You did not split your vote?—No.

79,627. Who did you vote for in 1847?—I only polled at two elections, and those were for Baines and Brown.

Benjamin Laming.

9th August 1853.

79,628. Were you paid any money for that?—No, never a farthing.

79,629. Were you not paid any money at that election?—Never a farthing in my life.

79,630. At the last election were you paid anything?—Not a farthing.

79,631. Were you brought free of expense in an omnibus?—I was brought in a phaeton; I could not walk, I was lame.

79,632. You got no money?—No; I never got a farthing.

79,633. What did you do in 1847, the first election?—I never got a farthing.

79,634. How did you come over?—I came over in a coach; there was a coach to convey us freemen.

79,635. Who paid for it?—I am sure I do not know.

79,636. You did not?—No; I did not pay for it.

R. Conkerton.

RICHARD CONKERTON sworn, and examined.

79,637. Where do you live?—At Cottingham.

79,638. What business are you?—A painter, and publican likewise.

79,639. What rent do you pay for your house?—£12.

79,640. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

79,641. How long have been a freeman?—Since the year 1825.

79,642. Have you always lived at Cottingham?—No.

79,643. In 1841, who did you vote for?—I voted for James and Hanmer.

79,644. Where did you live then?—In Medley Street, Sculcoates.

79,645. Did you live with your father?—No; I was a 10*l.* householder at the time, but a freeman likewise.

79,646. Were you paid any money that election?—No; I was not paid any money in a direct way. I took an active part in the election. I was on a committee, and took an active part in the canvassing at that election. I had a district, and no doubt in the course of that election some money would perhaps pass through my hands; but of course those accounts were always given up to the chairman, and after that I had nothing more to do with it; it is possible that money might have passed through my hands, I cannot possibly say, nor have I any account of what was done at the time.

79,647. Were you paid yourself anything?—No.

79,648. You canvassed a great many people?—Yes.

79,649. You set their names down as runners?—Yes.

79,650. How many?—In going about canvassing we should come to certain parties who might apply to be set down, and no doubt some few would be set down, not many; we perhaps might have about a dozen about the committee room.

79,651. You knew when the men asked you to set them down that they wanted some money on account of their votes?—It was understood that if they were employed and attended to their duty, they would have been paid what was usual, that is 5*s.* a day.

79,652. They were bound to vote for you if they were employed?—Yes; they would come over to the side they had already promised; the canvass took place first, and the parties would be set down during the canvass, or they would come to the committee room afterwards and apply to be set down.

79,653. Did you know those were men who were hesitating which way they should vote until they were employed and paid?—I could not say they were hesitating; we generally found that the parties that were set down were parties who were decided.

79,654. Would they have been satisfied if they had not been employed and got something?—I should say they would not have been satisfied if they had not been set down.

79,655. You would not have thought it safe, so far as the vote was concerned, without you gave them some employment?—It would be generally thought proper to give the men employment if they thought them in such a situation as to need employment.

79,656. Setting them down as runners made them safe?—Yes; but there is a mode of setting them down without setting them down as runners; a person may come and promise, and his promise would be set down.

79,657. I am asking you whether setting them down as runners would not make them safe?—Yes, it is possible they might run; and they would not vote for the party that has set them down; there have been instances where that has occurred.

79,658. And then they are not paid?—Yes.

79,659. You set them down knowing that?—Certainly.

79,660. Did you afterwards pay any of those men?—I should suppose I should pay some part of them, but I really could not point out to you what part I had paid.

79,661. I ask you whether you had paid some of them?—Yes; I should either pay or be present during the payment.

79,662. Were there not a great many paid at your house in 1841?—Yes; I believe there were.

79,663. Was that before or after the election?—It would be after the election.

79,664. What was the mode taken of paying them?—I believe there were tickets issued in the first instance. I suppose I, as a canvasser, would be supplied with a certain number of tickets to give to parties in the district that I knew, and I should take care and give them to those parties who I thought were entitled to any payment that was made.

R. Conkerton.

9th August 1853.

79,665. And after the election they came to your house and were paid?—Yes.

79,666. Was there a committee room at your house?—No.

79,667. How many were paid at your house?—I am sure I cannot tell. I believe there were not only the West Sculcoates men, but also parties from other districts that I had no cognizance of.

79,668. But who had tickets?—Who had tickets? whatever district these tickets came from, of course it was considered that they were right and entitled to be paid.

79,669. Were there 200 or 300 paid?—No; perhaps they would be paying from seven or eight o'clock until ten or so, consequently there could not be so many paid.

79,670. How many?—I am sure I could not be safe in saying any number. I should say fifty or so, but I do not think more.

79,671. Were you present at the payments?—I was present at one or two of the payments, not all.

79,672. Who paid them?—A gentleman who was quite a stranger to me.

79,673. What was his name?—I do not know his name, we never were informed.

79,674. Did he come from London?—I think he did; we understood he came from London specially for the purpose.

79,675. You had nothing to do with the money?—No.

79,676. He brought the money and paid the men?—He brought the money and paid the men.

79,677. How did the men get notice that he was there?—I think by those tickets.

79,678. But how did they know that the pay day was come?—No doubt at the time we should tell them where to go to.

79,679. Did they all get the same sum?—Yes.

79,680. How much?—I think it was a sovereign.

79,681. How long after the election was it that this gentleman came from London?—It would be upwards of six months, I should think, after the election; I should think so, but I am not certain as to that.

79,682. Do you know whether that gentleman paid at any other place in the town?—Yes; I knew he paid at other places.

79,683. Where?—I was only aware that he paid at one place in the Pottery.

79,684. What was the name of it?—I fancy at the school room; in consequence of some of the parties neglecting to attend, they were transferred there. They afterwards applied, and I said, "We have no more payments here; you must go to the other district."

79,685. Were you not paid yourself anything for all the trouble that you took?—No; I was not paid anything at all.

79,686. Was there a bill run up at your house?—No; there was no bill at all.

79,687. Was there a considerable bill run up at your father's house?—I am not aware; there might possibly be.

79,688. He kept a public house, did he not?—No; he was a baker.

79,689. Where did the gentleman pay, except in the Pottery, and at your place?—I am not aware of any other part. I have only heard that other parties were paid.

79,690. In Mason Street?—Yes; I should think in Mason Street.

79,691. The same man paid in Mason Street?—Yes; this man would go from district to district.

79,692. And you never heard who he was at all?—I never heard who he was.

79,693. You never heard whether he came from any lawyer in London?—No; I never heard any particulars of him whatever.

79,694. At the next election, in 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

79,695. What part did you take in that election?—I took a part again in that.

79,696. In the same way?—As a member of the committee.

79,697. Was it for Mr. Brown?—Yes; Mr. Staniland was the chairman.

79,698. Did you canvass and get money?—Yes; I took a part in canvassing.

79,699. Did you get men set down in the same way as you had done before?—Yes; I did.

79,700. Did you take part in the payment of them?—Yes; I should pay some of them.

79,701. Where did you pay?—I would pay them more in this committe room along with the chairman; those men would be set down as runners in the course of the canvass, and they would attend and make their statements so many days, and so on, and they would be paid.

79,702. Which committee room was it?—In Waterworks Street.

79,703. How many were paid?—I think we should only pay out of our own district. There would perhaps be thirty or so.

79,704. Was that all that you had to do with that election?—Yes; I think that was about all that I had to do with it.

79,705. Were those men paid before or after they voted?—Some men were paid previous to the election; the night before.

79,706. And some after?—Some after.

R. Conkerton.
9th August 1853.

79,707. You did not pay them all?—No; I think a portion of the payment was given to them previous to the election, and it caused considerable dissatisfaction among them, I dare say.

79,708. And the rest was made good afterwards?—Yes.

79,709. Did you ever keep a public house?—I keep one now.

79,710. Were you ever a party to paying men, when the person who paid them was disguised or hidden?—No; I never took any part in that.

79,711. You never saw that done?—There was no disguise when the money was paid at our house.

79,712. You do not know who the man was that paid and who was disguised?—I did not hear of any one; there was a sort of screen placed, it might be looked upon as a disguise. I think the man who paid the money ascertained from a card if it was correct, and a sovereign was given; it was quite possible for anybody to see him, but still it was possible that it might be considered as a disguise.

79,713. Who was he?—I do not know who he was; it was the same that we spoke of before as coming from London.

79,714. Did you pay any money in 1847?—Yes; I should say I paid some money.

79,715. How was the man recommended to you who came from London?—I believe in the first instance I was sent for by Mr. Sidebottom, and informed that such and such a thing was going to be done, and I should have to select from the district that I belonged to the number of men entitled to be paid for the four days or whatever it was.

79,716. And Mr. Sidebottom told you that a gentleman was coming to make the payments?—Yes; and I think I was supplied with a sort of blank card, or some sort of card at Mr. Sidebottom's office

79,717. In 1847 you got no money for yourself?—No.

79,718. In 1852 who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

79,719. You keep a public house now?—Yes.

79,720. You did have a bill against the committee this time?—A small account.

79,721. How much?—I think there were refreshments at three different times, that amounted to 2*l.* 3*s.* or 2*l.* 4*s.*

79,722. Was it at your house that the Cottingham voters were all fed?—They had their breakfast in the morning.

79,723. And were then taken away in a carriage?—Yes.

79,724. Did you canvass them?—Mr. Mason did, I think. I accompanied him once, in the canvas, but not more.

79,725. Do you know if any of them were paid money?—I do not think any of them were paid money.

79,726. Did you understand that they were unwilling to come to Hull to vote, unless they were brought here and had their breakfasts?—No; I did not understand that. I really think they would have come notwithstanding the payment.

79,727. There was no agreement among themselves to stand out as a body?—No, nothing of that kind; they might as individuals say, "I will not go," but there was nothing of that kind in particular.

79,728. They generally had money?—I believe they have sometimes been allowed for travelling expenses in coming from Cottingham to the election, but I am not aware that it was allowed at this election.

79,729. Do you think that there was any difference between this election and the preceding ones?—I think perhaps there was. I know they did not get paid at this election, at least they complained so, saying that they had been paid at previous elections, and of course I considered that there would be that difference in the election of 1852.

79,730. They complained of that difference at the last election?—They did not complain of any difference, but I heard say that they had been allowed some travelling expenses when they voted before.

79,731. Which they had not got this time?—They got nothing this time.

James Lyth.

JAMAS LYTH sworn, and examined.

79,732. Do you live at Cottingham?—Yes.

79,733. What is your business?—A hairdresser.

79,734. What rent do you pay?—I am living in a small cottage now, since I lost my wife I took a small cottage, about 3*l.* a year it is.

79,735. How long have you been a freeman?—Ever since 1826, Mr. O'Neill's election.

79,736. Did you always live at Cottingham?—Yes; I went to Cottingham at Mr. O'Neill's election or immediately afterwards.

79,737. From Mr. O'Neill's election, at all elections that you have been present at, it has been usual to pay the Cottingham voters some money?—Generally; I believe 4*l.* for some that gave a bullet. I never received anything myself.

79,738. It was the custom that they should be paid some money?—It seems to have been a regular thing formerly.

79,739. In 1841 who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.

79,740. Did you get any money?—No; not a farthing.

James Lyth.
9th August 1853.

79,741. Not as for travelling expenses?—I did not even get that. I was brought in by the omnibus, but I got not a single farthing.

79,742. Have you never received any at any of the elections?—No; not at any election at all. I bulleted O'Neill, and I never got a farthing for it.

79,743. You say that the Cottingham voters usually were paid?—They usually were paid, but I was not voting that way at all.

79,744. Were they paid at the election in 1847?—There were none paid to my knowledge.

79,745. In 1841?—In 1841 neither.

79,746. What do you mean by saying they were usually paid?—It was the former elections they had been in the habit of paying, the old elections before 1841.

79,747. Have you never known the Cottingham people receive any money since the Reform Bill?—No; not to my knowledge.

79,748. That goes back to 1832?—I do not think anything of the kind. I never received anything myself, and I cannot say that they did.

79,749. The others I mean?—Not to my knowledge. I do not know of any of them getting anything particular.

79,750. Not on either side?—Not on either side to my knowledge.

79,751. What is the talk about it in Cottingham; is the talk about it that they do not get any money in these latter days?—I cannot say. I very seldom trouble myself with it.

79,752. Such things are always a matter of conversation among you?—I very seldom have anything to do or say in or about the elections at any time. I am very seldom canvassed. I generally come on my own account.

79,753. When an election is coming on, such matters are talked about?—Yes, they generally are.

79,754. As to whether any money is afloat?—I have never heard or seen any. I am positive of that.

79,755. Have you never known any of late years?—No, not any.

79,756. What has been the custom with regard to the Cottingham voters, of late years?—For the last three elections I do not remember anything being done but their being brought into town in an omnibus. That is all that I know from any of them.

79,757. Does that apply to the orange and the blues?—Generally.

79,758. To both of them?—Yes.

79,759. Do you have an omnibus for each party?—Yes, that is the regular system.

79,760. Would they get their breakfasts and dinners?—Yes, I dare say they would. Most of them have a breakfast on both sides.

79,761. But no money?—No, not from the blue side. I do not recollect a farthing being given.

79,762. You have always been blue?—Yes, and shall always remain so, I hope.

79,763. How many blues besides you are there?—I could not say exactly.

79,764. Eight or ten?—No, I think not.

79,765. Six or eight?—I think they are nearly half-and-half, but I could not say.

79,766. We understand that there are 25 altogether?—Yes, taking Skidby in, I think there are 25.

79,767. You know who vote for the blues?—I never took any part in it.

79,768. I do not mean that you canvassed them, but you know them, living in the same place?—I cannot say exactly. There are five to my knowledge that poll blue.

79,769. And that five, do they get money or not?—I do not think they do. That is my opinion.

Mr. W. B. Carrick.

Mr. WILLIAM BALDWIN CARRICK recalled, and examined.

79,770. You have some statements to make with regard to settling the accounts by arbitration?—Yes, while we sat in arbitration in 1847, we paid some accounts that had been incurred in 1841.

79,771. That accounts for why it is sometimes called an arbitration in 1841, and sometimes in 1847?—Yes, that accounts for it; but there was only one arbitration that sat.

John Padley.

JOHN PADLEY sworn, and examined.

79,772. Do you live at Cottingham?—Yes.

79,773. What rent do your pay?—I live in my own house.

79,774. What is it rated at?—When I used to let it, I let it at 16*l.* a year.

79,775. What is your business?—A licensed victualler.

79,776. Are you a freeman?—No.

79,777. You are not a freeman of this borough?—No.

79,778. In the election of 1841 you voted as a householder?—No, I did not.

79,779. In the election of 1847, did you vote?—Yes.

79,780. Who for?—Brown and Baines.

John Padley.

9th August 1853.

79,781. Did you live in Hull at that time?—Yes.

79,782. Were you paid any money for your vote?—No.

79,783. Did you get any money at all?—Yes; the Cottingham voters came to put up at my house, and I got 1*l.* for refreshments; twelve of them. I then kept the Golden Gallon in Mytongate.

79,784. You were then paid a bill for refreshments supplied to the Cottingham voters?—Yes; twelve of them. I got 1*l.* My bill was 1*l.* 0*s.* 6*d.*

79,785. Is that all you got?—Yes; that was all I got.

79,786. Were the Cottingham voters paid at your house?—No.

79,787. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Moore and Butler.

79,788. Were you paid any money for it?—No.

79,789. Paid no money at the last election at all?—Not for voting.

79,790. For anything?—I was paid for refreshments. They had a dinner at our house after the election was over, and I got paid for that, and that was all I got.

79,791. For the Cottingham voters again?—Yes.

79,792. Where; at your place in Hull?—No; at Cottingham; the last election.

79,793. Did you understand that there was any agreement with the men about their being supplied with refreshments?—No. This was after the election was over.

79,794. In 1841 you voted for Clay and Thompson; so you are put down, and you are upon Thistleton's list?—Yes; I voted for Thompson and Clay, I believe.

79,795. And you got some money, I dare say?—Yes, I did that time.

79,796. How much?—One sovereign.

79,797. You are quite sure that you have got nothing of the same kind since?—No; nor before. I got one sovereign, and I spent three or four.

Joseph Westerman.

JOSEPH WESTERMAN sworn, and examined.

79,798. Where do you live?—At Cottingham.

79,799. What business are you?—A cabinet maker.

79,800. What rent do you pay?—I live in my own house.

79,801. What is it rated at?—At about 6*l.* a year.

79,802. Are you a freeman of this borough?—Yes.

79,803. How long have you been a freeman?—From 1818 or 1819.

79,804. How many years have you lived at Cottingham?—I never lived but about six or eight months out of it.

79,805. In 1841, who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.

79,806. Were you paid any money?—Yes; but not at that time.

79,807. How long after?—Six or eight months after I got half a sovereign.

79,808. At Hull, or at Cottingham?—At Cottingham. It was brought to my house.

79,809. Was that all you got?—That was all I got.

79,810. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines.

79,811. Were you paid any money at that time?—I got a sovereign.

79,812. Who paid you?—I am sure I cannot tell. I got it at the Cross Keys.

79,813. Did Mr. Wilde pay you?—I do not know the man.

79,814. Was it before or after you voted?—It was after.

79,815. Was it for Mr. Clay?—It was for both the parties, I understood.

79,816. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

79,817. Were you paid any money this time?—None at all.

79,818. Who canvasseed you?—I cannot tell. Most of the Cottingham gentlemen came round, I think.

79,819. Did you at any time say you would not vote unless you were brought here free?—No.

79,820. You got no money?—No.

79,821. But you were brought in the omnibus?—Yes.

79,822. And had your breakfast?—Yes.

79,823. And a dinner?—I did not call it a dinner. We did not hear tell of any dinner.

G. Westerman.

GEORGE WESTERMAN sworn, and examined.

79,824. Where do you live?—At Cottingham.

79,825. What business are you?—A gardener.

79,826. What rent do you pay?—£4.

79,827. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

79,828. How long have you been a freeman?—Since the year 1841, I think.

79,829. Have you always lived at Cottingham since then?—No; I lived at Hessle at the time I took my freedom up.

79,830. Did you vote in 1841?—No.

79,831. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines.

79,832. Were you paid any money?—Yes.

79,833. How much?—A sovereign.

G. Westerman.

9th August 1853.

79,834. Where at?—At the Cross Keys.
79,835. After you voted?—After I voted.
79,836. Did you know who paid you?—I did not know the man at the time; I have heard since. I believe they call him Wilde.
79,837. At the last election, were you paid any money?—No.
79,838. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
79,839. You were brought here?—Yes.
79,840. And had your breakfast and dinner?—I got a breakfast, but as for dinners I cannot say anything about it. I got a refreshment.
79,841. But you got no money?—No money.

John Westerman.

JOHN WESTERMAN sworn, and examined.

79,842. Do you live at Cottingham?—Yes.
79,843. What business are you?—A gardener.
79,844. Do you pay any rent for a house?—No.
79,845. Were you entitled to vote as a freeman in 1841?—For Clay and Baines I polled.
79,846. Was that the first election you voted at, in 1847?—Yes.
79,847. Did you live at Cottingham then?—Yes.
79,848. Were you paid any money?—Yes.
79,849. How much?—A sovereign.
79,850. At the Cross Keys?—Yes.
79,851. By Mr. Wilde?—Yes.
79,852. Who did you vote for at the last electioa?—Both the blues.
79,853. Were you paid any money?—No.
79,854. You were merely brought and fed?—I got my breakfast.

Mr. C. Simpson.

Mr. CHARLES SIMPSON sworn, and examined.

79,855. Where do you live?—Albert Street.
79,856. What business are you?—A shipping agent.
79,857. Do you pay any rent for a house?—Yes.
79,858. How much?—£24.
79,859. Are you a freeman?—No.
79.860. A householder?—Yes.
79,861. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Only the last election.
79,862. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
70,863. Were you paid any money?—No.
79,364. What part did you take in the election?—None whatever.
79,365. None besides voting?—No.
79,866. And did not canvass at all?—No.
79,867. And no money passed through your hands?—No.
79,868. You had nothing to do in any way with promising any money to any parties?—No.

Richard Train.

RICHARD TRAIN sworn, and examined.

79,869. Where do you live?—In English Street.
79,870. What rent do you pay?—9*l.* 10*s.*
79,871. What business are you?—A sailmaker.
79,872. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
79,873. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1837.
79,874. In 1841, who did you vote for?—Thompson and Clay.
79,875. Were you paid any money for it?—No.
79,876. Were you down upon Thistleton's list?—No.
79,877. Or Stark's?—No.
79,878. You were not set down at that election?—No.
79,879. You are quite certain of that?—Yes.
79,880. You were not paid any money after the election?—No.
79,881. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I voted for Clay and Brown.
79,882. Were you paid any money that time?—Yes.
79,883. How much?—A pound.
79,884. Before or after you voted?—Before.
79,885. Where?—At the Baltic.
79,886. Were you one of Nicholson's party?—I was one that got a sovereign.
79,887. Were you not paid 2*l.*?—No.
79,888. How came that? The rest got 2*l.*?—Yes, but I did not.
79,889. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

Richard Frain.

9th August 1853.

79,890. Did you get any money this time?—No.

79,891. Your name was set down as a runner?—No, decidedly not.

79,892. Was it not set down at No. 21, Saville Street?—No; I was on the committee for a month.

79,893. How do you mean on the committee? Were you one of the messengers?—Yes.

79,894. Had you applied to be employed?—No.

79,895. Did they tell you you should be employed?—No.

79,896. How came you to be employed?—By being one of the same party a long time. I was one of the original lot; that is, one who had not applied for it, but I was one picked out by the party.

79,897. How many weeks were you employed?—Four weeks,

79,898. How much were you paid altogether?—A guinea a week.

79,899. At which committee room?—I was at three committee rooms; two in Saville Street, and the one in Dagger Lane; and the one in Dagger Lane I did not get paid for.

79,900. Were they all orange?—All orange. I asked them why I should not be paid for the last four days?

79,901. Were you paid four guineas?—Yes; it might be three or four.

79,902. And did you expect to be paid anything after the election?—No; decidedly not; only for the work that I did.

79,903. You said you were not paid for one week?—That is the last four days. It was Mr. Prissick. I was asking him for the four days that I was not paid at all for.

79,904. Did not Stark pay you in 1841 any money?—I think not.

79,905. Are you down upon his list as being paid in 1841?—I think not.

79,906. You think you did not get it?—No.

79,907. Are you sure?—Yes, certain.

79,908. Did you not understand that you were to be paid for the last four days when the election was over?—Yes, I did expect it; and I took a great interest in the election.

79,909. You understood that the committee were to pay you those four days?—Yes. Mr. Prissick engaged me, and I should like to get the money now.

79,910. Did you know Thistleton?—Yes, very well.

79,911. Did he put you down in his list in 1841?—I do not know. I never received any money. I knew him very well indeed.

79,912. Did he tell you or speak to you about setting your name down?—No. I knew him very well indeed, 79,913. But you remember that he did not pay you?—Yes, I am sure.

79,914. Were you not paid at Mr. Galloway's office after the election was over? No; I never received a farthing.

Mr. W. Ward.

Mr. William Ward sworn, and examined.

79,915. Where do you live?—Kingston Terrace.

79,916. What business are you?—A merchant and agent.

79,917. What rent do you pay?—£65.

79,918. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Since the Reform Act.

79,919. In 1841, who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.

79,920. Did you take any part in the election besides voting?—Perhaps I might canvass a little, but nothing beyond that.

79,921. Do you think you did canvass?—I dare say; I believe I did.

79,922. Did persons apply to you for employment or to be set down?—No. I was not connected with any committee room in such a way as to be asked.

79,923. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

79,924. Did you take any part in that election?—Not any.

79,925. Were you not on any committee then?—No.

79,926. And you did not canvass at all?—Not at all.

79,927. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

79,928. Did you engage a room from a man of the name of Edward Smelt?—No; but I accompanied Mr. Cattley when he did.

79,929. Were you one of the canvassing party?—I occasionally went round with him as a friend.

79,930. Were you on any committee?—I do not know. I sometimes went into Mr. Cattley's room. I do not know whether I was put down as a committee man or not.

79,931. Did Mr. Cattley take it?—I was with Mr. Cattley when he engaged Smelt's room.

79,932. Was that in order to secure Smelt's vote?—It was understood that he would vote when his room was engaged, but there was no promise made.

79,933. And was his name to be set down for a certain number of days as well?—I think not.

79,934. Was he to get 5*l.*?—No.

79,935. How much was he to get?—No sum was mentioned in my presence.

Mr. W. Ward.

9th August 1853.

79,936. Do you know whether he was paid afterwards?—I do not; I believe he would be.

79,937. Did you canvass other parties?—Several.

79,938. Did they apply for employment;—Yes; and I always referred them to Mr. Cattley the chairman.

79,939. Did you refer them with an intimation that it would be done, or that he was to do as he liked?—I told them to go and see Mr. Cattley, but I did not promise.

79,940. Did you make them understand that it would be done?—I said it was probable if they applied to Mr. Cattley it would be done.

79,941. You left them to understand it would be done if they went to Mr. Cattley?—Not exactly, because I thought that Mr. Cattley might question them.

79,942. Might ask them how they intended to vote?—Yes; very likely; and he did.

79,943. Had it been understood between you and Mr. Cattley that they should be sent?—Not at all.

79,944. You canvassed with him?—I walked round, perhaps, half a dozen times with him.

79,945. Did you understand if you sent a proper person to him that the name would be put down?—I did not take such trouble. If any person asked me to have his name set down, I said, "Go, and see Mr. Cattley."

79,946. I want to know whether you considered that you had authority to send them?—I had no kind of authority but what I took upon myself.

79,947. Did you pay anybody?—No.

79,948. Did you take any part?—No; except in this way: two or three weeks after I was told by Turpin two of the runners had not been paid; I said I would speak to Mr. Cattley, and get the money, if I could, and I did. He gave me 2*l.*, and I handed the money over to Turpin, and he paid it.

79,949. What were the names of those two runners?—I do not know. Turpin had employed them in some way.

79,950. You knew they were voters who were to be paid?—I handed it to Turpin.

79,951. They were to be paid with it?—I handed it over to Turpin for the purpose.

79,952. But you knew that they were to be paid for their votes?—I did not understand anything about it.

79,953. Did you not understand that it was in reality a payment for their votes as runners?—I do not know beyond this, that they were upon Turpin's list.

79,954. You understood, with regard to the committee room, that it was taken to influence the man's vote, and to secure it?—This was Turpin's room, that I alluded to; Turpin's and Smelt's were distinct rooms.

79,955. Did you take a room from Turpin?—I was with Mr. Cattley when he took Turpin's room, and sent him a flag.

79,956. You understood the meaning of taking a man's room, that it was to secure his vote?—Yes; it was quite expected.

79,957. Did you not understand that the employing a man as a runner was to have the same effect?—Yes.

79,958. And you knew that when Turpin asked for the 2*l.* to pay the two runners?—This was some time after the election.

79,959. You knew that at the time?—I knew that the men had been employed.

79,960. You knew they were employed upon the implied understanding that they were to vote?—I do not know any further than that Turpin said that they had been employed, and not paid.

79,961. You knew that they were of the ordinary class of runners, that they would be paid in the usual manner?—Yes, I thought so. Beyond that nothing passed through my hands at all.

79,962. When you sent a man to have his name set down, if his colour was right you knew that that would secure his vote?—I thought it was probable.

79,963. And you did not trouble yourself to canvass him any more?—No.

79,964. If his colour was right he was set down?—Yes.

Samuel Robinson.

SAMUEL ROBINSON sworn and examined.

79,965. Where do you live?—Ocean Place.

79,966. What is your business?—Clerk with Mr. Egginton.

79,967. What rent do you pay?—I am not a householder.

79,968. Are you a lodger?—A lodger.

79,969. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

79,970. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1821.

79,971. In 1841, who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.

79,972. Did you take part in the election? Were you on any committee?—I was vice-chairman to Mr. John Tall in the East Sculcoates district.

79,973. At his committee room?—Yes.

79,974. Did you canvass people?—Yes.

Samuel Robinson.

9th August 1853.

79,975. Did they ask you to have their names set down, or to be employed?—In many instances they did.

79,976. And did you do it?—Yes.

79,977. That was on the understanding that they should be employed, and paid if they would vote for you?—Certainly.

79,978. Were you any party to the payment of those persons?—No.

79,979. Who paid them?—I believe they were paid at the central committee; but I had no management of any money.

79,980. Was there a great deal of refreshment given to the voters on those occasions?—Yes, there was.

79,981. A great deal of money expended?—Yes. They had breakfast at the public houses in the neighbourhood.

79,982. Generally?—In the district, they had.

79,983. Was that the polling day, or what day?—On the morning of the polling day.

79,984. All the voters in the district who would vote for the party were at liberty to go?—Yes.

79,985. I believe you presided there, did you not?—No, I did not.

79,986. Where was it?—At half a dozen different places.

79,987. Do you know how much money would be spent in your district in that way?—I do not.

79,988. Do you know how many persons were paid and set down in your district?—I do not.

79,989. About how many, do you think?—On that occasion, I should think, upwards of 100.

79,990. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

79,991. Did you take any part that election?—I canvassed; I was on the same committee.

79,992. Did you canvass in the same way?—Yes.

79,993. Was that for Mr. Brown or Mr. Baines?—For Mr. Brown; indeed for both.

79,994. You set men's names down again in the same way?—Yes.

79,995. And with the same understanding?—Yes.

79,996. Did you take any part in the actual payment?—No.

79,997. Where were the men paid from your district upon that occasion?—Some of them were paid in the committee room before and some after voting, and some I believe at the central committee room in the Market Place.

79,998. You had nothing to do with the payment?—Nothing at all to do with it.

79,999. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

80,000. Were you on any committee this time?—I was not; I was absent for three months, until the nomination day, and therefore I took no part.

80,001. You did not canvass?—I think I called on two or three persons on the nomination day, but did not meet with them.

80,002. Then you had no part in setting the names down upon this occasion?—No part whatever.

80,003. And no part in the payment afterwards?—No; no part whatever in the payment.

80,004. In no respect?—No.

Mr. W. Pim.

Mr. WAKEFIELD PIM sworn, and examined.

80,005. Where do you live?—In Coltman Street.

80,006. What business are you?—An engineer and ship builder.

80,007. What rent do you pay?—I am not a householder.

80,008. Do you pay for your offices or premises?—No; not for the premises.

80,009. Do not you pay any rent?—No, not any rent.

80,010. What are you rated at?—The rates are above 250*l*.

80,011. How long have you been a voter for the borough?—Since 1845.

80,012. You are not a freeman of the borough?—No.

80,013. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

80,014. Did you take any part in the election?—I did not.

80,015. Did you canvass any person?—I did not.

80,016. Did you at all canvass the persons in your employ?—No.

80,017. Did you take no part in any payment of money?—No; I have not anything at all to do with it.

80,018. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

80,019. Did you take any part in this election?—Not any.

80,020. You were not on any committee?—I was not on any committee, nor had I anything to do with it.

80,021. Had you a workman of the name of Gibson Featherstone?—I had some time since, but he has left me some time.

80,022. That was in 1841?—Yes; in 1841.

Mr. W. Pim.

9th August 1853.

80,023. Did you canvass him in 1841?—Yes.

80,024. He has told us that you sent him into the country, in order that he might not vote on the opposite side to you; is that so?—That is correct.

80,025. Did you pay him to go?—He went to Mr. Horner Reynard's at Sunderland Wick near Driffield.

80,026. You did not mean him to get back in time?—He could have got back.

80,027. You did not wish it?—He did not wish it.

80,028. And you did not wish him?—I did not.

80,029. You agreed to send him?—The foreman sent him. I did not speak to him about it.

80,030. It was by your instructions?—It was by my instructions.

80,031. Was he paid his regular wages?—Yes, for going.

80,032. Was he regularly in your employment?—Yes, and had been for years.

80,033. You paid him so much a day?—Yes.

80,034. You understood he was going to vote contrary to your politics?—Yes, I did.

80,035. And you sent him for that reason?—I wrote to Mr. Reynard to find some work for him.

80,036. Mr. Reynard was not there, and I dare say you knew that?—He did some work.

80,037. He waited until Mr. Reynard came back?—Yes.

80,038. You were in the habit of paying him wages by the day?—Yes; so much a week.

80,039. On this occasion you paid something more?—Nothing more,

80,040. Did you not pay for his board and lodging?—No; he lodged at Mr. Reynard's

80,041. Did you agree with him that he should go there?—No, I did not.

80,042. Did you send him?—I sent him there.

80,043. As if to fulfil an order?—Yes.

80,044. As your servant, and paid by you, he was bound to go?—Yes, he was bound to go; but he might have come back if he had thought proper.

80,045. According to the ordinary course of your business, if you told him to go to Mr. Reynard's to do a job, he was bound to go?—Yes.

80,046. And that was all you did upon this occasion?—Yes.

80,047. Before he went, did he say he should like to vote?—No; he said he did not like to vote against me.

80,048. Did he suggest that you should send him?—No, he did not.

80,049. You said it was his wish?—I said it was his wish not to vote against me.

80,050. Did you send his brother after him?—No; it was his own party sent him.

80,051. Do you know anything about that part of the arrangement?—No, I do not, except that they arrived too late. I suppose they found they found the beef and ale at the hall too strong for them.

John Young.

JOHN YOUNG sworn, and examined.

80,052. Where do you live?—Hodgson Street, Groves.

80,053. What business are you?—A shipwright.

80,054. What rent do you pay for your house?—£5.

80,055. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

80,056. How long have you been a freeman?—About eleven years.

80,057. Who took up your freedom?—I did myself.

80,058. Did you pay for it yourself?—Yes.

80,059. Did you vote at the election in 1841?—No. The first I voted at was Mr. Brown's election.

80,060. Did you vote for Mr. Brown in 1847?—Yes.

80,061. Brown only?—Brown only.

80,062. Were you paid for it?—Yes; I was paid by Mr. Brown.

80,063. How much?—30*s.*

80,064. Was that before or after you voted?—I got part of it before the election came on, and part after; but I have forgotten how it was.

80,065. Who paid you?—Doctor Twining.

80,066. Did he pay you both?—Yes.

80,067. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

80,068. Were you paid for it?—Yes.

80,069. How much?—30*s.*

80,070. Who paid you?—Edward Stephenson, in the Groves.

80,071. Was that before or after you voted?—After I voted.

80,072. Was that all you got?—That is all I got.

Mr. WILLIAM GRAYBURN sworn, and examined.

80,073. Are you a solicitor at Barton?—Yes.

80,074. Are you a voter for this borough?—No, I am not.

80,075. In 1841, did you at all act for the blue party?—Yes.

80,076. With regard to the Barton voters?—Yes, I did.

80,077. What was the arrangement that you made with regard to the Barton voters upon that occasion?—Several of the Barton voters called upon me, as the agent on behalf of the blue party, and I arranged that those who voted for the blue party should be put on as runners.

80,078. And how much were they to be paid?—There was no agreement or arrangement of any description, beyond the mere fact of their being put on as runners, at that time.

80,079. Did it seem to you that they had been combined together as a party?—Yes.

80,080. The understanding in those days was a sovereign?—No; I think it was more than that.

80,081. How many of them did you send over to vote for the blues?—I cannot exactly recollect; but I should say half a dozen; not more.

80,082. By whose instructions did you act in 1841?—I quite forget the number of gentlemen; but two, or three, or four gentlemen came over to Barton, and instructed me so to act.

80,083. They came from Hull to Barton?—Yes.

80,084. Was Mr. Richard Cattley one of them?—Yes, he was.

80,085. Did he instruct you to procure the votes of these Barton men?—Yes, he did. I found the Barton men would have nothing to do with Mr. Cattley or his party. They said they had been done by some party before, and unless the arrangements were through me that they would have nothing at all to do with it.

80,086. Had you at all seen them before the election?—I had seen them during the election; not before.

80,087. There had been no arrangement made at Barton that you should be the person to act for them?—No; not previously.

80,088. Before Mr. Cattley came, I mean?—No, certainly not. The voters fixed upon me, and then Mr. Cattley came.

80,089. Do you think there were any more than six eventually that you sent over?—I do not recollect.

80,090. Did you afterwards send in an account to the committee?—Yes, I did.

80,091. Can you recollect what the amount of that account was?—Yes.

80,092. How much was it?—£31 3*s.* 6*d.*

80,093. Does not the amount of that bill rather lead you to remember that there was more than six voters?—No, it does not, inasmuch as I reckoned in that bill that there were items for a band I had instructions to get, to meet the two Conservative candidates.

80,094. When they came into Barton?—Yes.

80,095. Was this all to get six votes?—It was an endeavour to get more; but only six voted, I think.

80,096. Did you pay the men afterwards yourself?—Yes, I did.

80,097. Do you recollect their names?—Yes, I think I do.

80,098. Was any objection made to your account?—Decidedly objection was made to it. It has never been paid yet.

80,099. Not any part of it?—Not one farthing of it; that is very certain.

80,100. Can you give us the names?—Aaron Johnson was one; David Fisher was another.

80,101. The two Baylises?—No, I think not. I can give you the names in the course of the afternoon.

80,102. How much did you pay them?—I paid them 3*l.* 2*s.* a vote, and that was the market price of that day; that was in 1841; I know 3*l.* 2*s.* was paid, because I paid 6*l.* 4*s.* for the double vote.

80,103. Was the objection taken to your bill an objection as to the amount or as to the authority?—No objection as to the amount or the authority. I never got paid from that day to this, and I see no reason why I should not have been paid.

80,104. Here is a letter. Does that recall it to your mind; whether they took objection to the authority given to you, or to the amount of the bill (handing a letter to the witness)?—This is a letter addressed to me, certainly. This gentleman here, Mr. Richard Cattley, told me very plainly that I was to do the best I could to succeed in getting these votes; and doing the best I could I made this special arrangement, and that was the objection afterwards.

80,105. In 1847, did you take part when Mr. Brown was a candidate here, and Mr. Baines?—No; I do not recollect interfering in 1847.

80,106. At the last election, did you act for the blue party?—I did.

80,107. From whom did you receive the instructions, if any, this time?—I received instructions from Mr. Wells.

80,108. Robert Wells, the solicitor?—Yes.

Mr. W. Grayburn.
9th August 1853.

80,109. What were your instructions upon this occasion?—To do the best I could generally, but to avoid anything in the shape of bribery, or payment of any description. Those were my distinct instructions.

80,110. Did you obtain any voters in Barton upon this occasion?—Yes.

80,111. How many?—I obtained the promises of upwards of twenty; but they did not all vote as promised.

80,112. How many of those did vote blue?—I think only seven; but I am only speaking from recollection.

80,113. What arrangement did you make with them?—No arrangement, beyond the simple statement of the fact, that I should not give them a single sixpence, only their bare expenses of going over.

80,114. Did you pay them afterwards?—I never paid them a farthing. They never asked for a farthing.

80,115. Did you let them understand that it would be 8*s.* or 10*s.*?—I am not certain. I paid their expenses. Further than that I never paid a single sixpence to them.

80,116. There is a voter of the name of Burnham?—Yes.

80,117. Did you canvass him?—Yes.

80,118. He had always voted orange before?—Yes.

80,119. How did you induce him to vote blue?—I think he gave a vote each way.

80,120. Did you give him any promise?—None whatever.

80,121. And no money?—None whatever.

80,122. Did you tell him that you would pay nothing but his expenses?—I told him distinctly so. He is a man that works for me, and I have the opportunity of doing certain things for him in his business, and he might think fit to do it for me.

80,123. There is one way of telling a man, and another of giving him to understand what you mean?—I distinctly told them there was a Bribery Act, and that I would not give them a farthing. This was the first election that it would be brought into operation, and there is not one who voted for the blues who made any inquiry from that day to this.

80,124. Joseph Toynbee Long; did you have anything to do with him?—Yes.

80,125. What was he?—He voted for the blues, and he told me he could not go under any circumstances. He was obliged to be at Wooten on some business, and I lent him 10*s.*, or gave him 10*s.*, for his expenses and his day. It would be hardly enough to say I lent it him. I put it down as money paid upon account of his bill. He generally has a bill against me every year. I told him at the time I would give him nothing, but I lent him 10*s.*

80,126. Did you ever take it off his account?—I have had no opportunity yet. He has not sent in his bill. But I do not think that I should.

80,127. Did Mr. Cattley come this year to Barton?—Yes, I think he did.

80,128. Did you, in company with him, canvass a man of the name of Edward Thompson?—I do not recollect. If so, it was in a crowded room, and Mr. Cattley might have been present.

80,129. Did you or Mr. Cattley promise to give him four days, or a pound?—Certainly not; I never did.

80,130. Not anything at all?—Not one farthing. I do not know the man even.

80,131. He has said in Court that Mr. Cattley, and I think he said that you were present, promised him a pound?—He is decidedly wrong. I never heard Mr. Cattley to have been in communication with the man. He may have been.

80,132. Are you sure it was not done in your presence?—Quite sure.

80,133. Had you any account against the committee this time?—I had.

80,134. How much was the amount?—10*s.* or 12*s.* that I paid at the Swan Inn, when the members came over; and I think I charged five guineas for my professional interest.

80,135. Did you canvass Aaron Johnson?—Yes, I think I did.

80,136. Was he one of the thirteen?—He would not give a promise at all. He said he was for the orange party.

Joseph Willson.

JOSEPH WILLSON sworn, and examined.

80,137. Where do you live?—Prospect Place, Holderness Road.

80,138. What business are you?—Coal and corn merchant.

80,139. What rent do you pay?—Nothing.

80,140. Are you a lodger?—No.

80,141. What is your house rated at?—Altogether between 70*l.* and 80*l.*

80,142. Are you a freeman?—No.

80,143. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Ever since the Reform Bill.

80,144. Who did you vote for in 1841?—I believe I should vote for James and Hanmer.

80,145. Were you paid any money?—No.

80,146. Not on any account?—No, never in my life.

80,147. Did you take any part in the election?—No.

Joseph Willson.

9th August 1853.

80,148. You did not canvass?—No.

80,149. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Nobody, I believe; I do not believe I voted at all.

80,150. Did you take any part in the election?—No.

80,151. The last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

80,152. Did you take any part in this election?—Very little.

80,153. What was that for?—I went to one man.

80,154. Who was he?—Smith, who has been examined to day.

80,155. Did he ask you for employment?—No.

80,156. Which Smith?—Smith of Southcoates.

80,157. Did you make any agreement with him, that he should be set down or paid?—No. His wife was very ill, and died a few days after. He did not wish to come if he could help it; and they wished me, as I knew him, to go to him. You put it to him, if any body went to make hay for him. He was coming off the hay. I took a cab for him, and I said he should have a cab to come home directly.

80,158. Were you paid any money yourself?—No.

80,159. Was that all you had to do with the election?—That is all. I was on the committee; but I told them I would not act.

80,160. Did you pay anybody in company with Mr. Charles Hammond in 1841?—No.

80,161. Were you with him at all at the election?—No; I do not know that I was. I had nothing to do with him, because I would not take any part.

80,162. Did you pay a man of the name of Pitt?—No.

80,163. Did you pay William Oliver?—No; it is all false.

Abraham Webster.

ABRAHAM WEBSTER sworn, and examined.

80,164. Where do you live?—In High Street.

80,165. What business are you?—A coal merchant.

80,166. What rent do you pay?—£18.

80,167. Are you a freeman?—No.

80,168. How long have you been entitled to vote?—This is the first time in Hull.

80,169. Who for?—Moore and Butler.

80,170. Was a room taken at your house as a committee room?—Yes, I believe there was.

80,171. Who took it?—I do not know. I was not there.

80,172. Did anybody ever come to it?—I believe not.

80,173. How much were you paid?—I believe my wife got 2*l.* about three weeks after the election.

80,174. And you allowed her to keep it, or did you get it?—She got it, of course.

80,175. Did she keep it?—Yes; I have never seen it.

80,176. You had no list of any persons who were to come?—No, not at all.

80,177. Your wife got it as a little perquisite?—I was not in when the person applied for the room.

80,178. It was on the part of the blues that your room was taken?—Yes.

80,179. And you afterwards voted for them?—I made up my mind before they came for the room at all to vote for Moore and Butler.

John Stromah.

JOHN STROMACH sworn, and examined.

80,180. Where do you live?—Reform Place, Francis Street.

80,181. What business are you?—A shipwright.

80,182. What rent do you pay?—£6 4*s.*

80,183. How long have you been a freeman?—Since July 1839.

80,184. Which party paid for it?—The blue party paid for my freedom.

80,185. Did you vote for them in consequence, in 1841?—Yes.

80,186. For Hanmer and James?—Yes.

80,187. Were you paid for the vote besides?—Yes.

80,188. How much?—£1.

80,189. After you voted?—Yes.

80,190. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Brown and Baines.

80,191. Paid for it?—Yes.

80,192. Who by?—I believe it was Mr. Yeall.

80,193. How much?—A sovereign.

80,194. After you voted?—Yes.

80,195. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

80,196. Were you paid for it?—No.

80,197. Did you get no money that election?—Not a farthing, and I never was asked.

80,198. And never set down?—Never set down.

John Johnson.

9th August 1853.

JOHN JONHSON sworn, and examined.

80,199. Where do you live?—At the Ship Inn, in Prospect Street, Drypool, now.
80,200. Are you a publican?—Yes.
80,201. What rent do you pay?—£16, and all the other little rents besides.
80,202. Are you a freeman?—No.
80,203. How long have you been entitled to vote?—I never voted but once.
80,204. Who did you vote for in 1847?—Brown and Clay.
80,205. Did you get any money at all?—Yes.
80,206. How much?—10*s*.
80,207. Where was that paid you?—I got twice 10*s*.; 10*s*. from Mr. Anthony Bannister, and 10*s*. in Bishop Lane. I do not know who gave it.
80,208. Was one before and one after you voted?—No; both before, I believe.
80,209. Was that all you got?—That was all I got.
80,210. They did not take a room at your house?—Nothing of the sort,
80,211. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
80,212. Were you paid any money this time?—They gave my missus 2*l*. I never saw it.
80,213. For the vote?—Yes; she smuggled that 2*l*.
80,214. They never came to the room?—I do not know.
80,215. Two guineas?—It is more than I know.
80,216. When did you first hear of it?—Never until a fortnight after. I did not know she got it.
80,217. You did not take it back?—Not I.
80,218. That is all you got?—All I know about.

W. Beautiment.

WILLIAM BEAUTIMENT sworn, and examined.

80,219. Where do you live?—3, Kingston Place, Sykes Street.
80,220. What business are you?—A shipwright.
80,221. What rent do you pay?—£5 10*s*.
80,222. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1839.
80,223. Which party took it up?—The blue party.
80,224. Did you vote in consequence, in 1841?—Yes.
80,225. Were you paid besides?—Yes; I got a sovereign.
80,226. Who paid you?—Paid in Witham. I do not know the person's name.
80,227. Was that all you got?—Yes.
80,228. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.
80,229. Were you paid for that?—Yes; I got 10*s*. before the election and 15*s*. after.
80,230. Who were they paid for?—Mr. Yeall paid me the 10*s*. at the Sculcoates Tavern, Wincolmlee.
80,231. And who the 15*s*.?—Mitchell, the tobacconist in the Market Place.
80,232. That was for Mr. Baines?—Both for Brown. I bulleted Brown.
86,233. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
80,234. Were you paid for it?—Yes. I was an out-town voter.
80,235. You were at Wisbech?—Yes.
80,236. How much were you paid?—£3 10*s*.
80,237. How much did it cost you for your travelling expenses?—I came by the rail, second-class. 12*s*. each way. My week's wages and the other expenses.
80,238. Then you were paid for your loss of time?—Yes; I was paid for my wages.

Norrison Levett.

NORRISON LEVETT sworn, and examined.

80,239. Where do you live?—Coltman Street, at present.
80,240. What business are you?—A wine merchant and cork cutter.
80,241. What rent do you pay?—I am assessed at 158*l*.
80,242. Are you a freeman?—No.
80,243. Did you vote in 1841?—Yes.
80,244. Who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
80,245. Did you take any part in that election?—No.
80,246. Were you not paid any money?—Certainly not.
80,247. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.
80,248. Were you paid any money at that time?—Certainly not.
80,249. Did you take any part in that election?—Certainly not, except voting.
80,250. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
80,251. Were you paid any money or anything before this time?—No, certainly not. I never took any active part in the election in my life.
80,252. There were voters employed at your place?—Several of my men were voters. I never influenced them. In fact my men have generally voted against me.
80,253. There were not voters in and out of your office being supplied with liquors?—Certainly not. At that time I was managing Mr. Dyke's business. I never gave them a drop of drink in my life.

GEORGE SOWTER sworn, and examined.

George Sowter.

9th August 1853

80,254. Where do you live?—Anlaby Road, near Coltman Street.

80,255. What business are you?—A cornfactor.

80,256. What rent do you pay?—About 23*l.*

80,257. Are you a freeman?—No.

80,258. Are you a voter for the borough?—Yes.

80,259. How long have you been a voter?—I have been on the register about nine years.

80,260. Did you vote in 1847?—Yes.

80,261. Was that the first time you voted?—Yes.

80,262. Who did you vote for?—Mr. Clay.

80,263. Only?—Only.

80,264. Did you take any part in the election?—Upon the polling day only.

80,265. What part did you take?—Assisting to bring up voters to the poll, and canvassing a few that had been overlooked.

80,266. Did you pay any of them any money?—Not any.

80,267. Did you understand that they had had any money in any way?—No; not any.

80,268. Have you said that a man of the name of Johnson of Drypool received 2*l.*?—I am not aware that I have. I do not know such a man.

80,369. Do you know that he did?—I do not know the party.

80,270. Not at any election?—Not at any election.

80,271. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Clay and Goderich.

80,272. Did you take any part in this election?—Yes.

80,273. What were you?—Actively canvassing during the whole period.

80,274. Were you on any committee?—On the central committee, and also the district of South Myton.

80,275. In your canvassing, did persons apply to be set down?—Yes; some; not to any very considerable extent, 80,276. What did you do with those that did apply?—Sent them on to the room, and told them to see us there.

80,277. And then did you see them afterwards?—I saw some of them; and if I did not see them other parties would.

80,278. You sent them in order that they should be satisfied?—I sent them in order that they should be satisfied.

80,279. You knew that that would be by getting their names down?—Yes, I was quite aware of the system.

80,280. And you were carrying it out?—I did not carry it out in my own person.

80,281. You were setting them down?—Yes; but I did not carry it out in that way.

80,282. Did you make any engagement with anybody at that committee room?—Not any one.

80,283. You do not know Johnson?—I do not know him at all.

80,284. Do you know a person of the name of John Little?—No. I merely know there was a John Little got money from the other side.

80,285. Did you make any payment yourself?—No.

80,286. Did you canvass the sailors at the Trinity House?—I did; that is, not at the Trinity House; at the Carr Lane Hospital.

80,287. Can you tell us anything about these men that you know of?—I only know that we obtained the votes of two of them, and both I believe without any payment; certainly without any promise; and the others I believe voted against us.

80,288. You do not know anything about them?—I only know by report that they were all paid, every one of them.

80,289. That is because they voted against you?—The fact is I knew it from parties that heard them say so.

80,290. You never heard any of them state it?—I never had any conversation with any of them, excepting when canvassing them.

80,291. Is that all you know about that election?—Except what you have generally heard. I can throw no fresh light upon it.

80,292. You know of Mr. Wilde's room in Saville Street?—I did, on the second day after it was opened; but I had nothing to do with it. You said, did I receive any money in any way upon the polling day? I had charge of the check room which adjoins the Castle Street polling booth, and I was requested by the central committee to provide a little refreshment, if it was necessary, in the middle of the day, for the clerks in the polling booth, and also for the messengers and others under me.

80,293. Were you paid for it?—Yes; I received the money back, which amounted to 20*s.* I did not consider that was a money payment in any way.

Mr. J. Wilkinson.

9th August 1853.

Mr. JOHN WILKINSON sworn, and examined.

80,294. Where do you live?—Holborn Street.

80,295. What business are you?—I am no business.

80,296. What rent do you pay?—I am rated at 24*l.*

80,298. How long have you been a voter?—Since the Reform Bill.

80,299. Did you take any part in the election of 1841 and 1847?—In 1841, I did.

80,300. What part did you take?—As chairman of the Holderness ward.

80,301. For which party?—The blue party.

80,302. Did you vote for the blues?—Yes; I voted for the blues.

80,303. Hanmer and James?—Yes.

80,304. As chairman, did you canvass?—No; it was not my province.

80,305. Were you aware persons were set down at your committee?—Decidedly.

80,306. It was done under your authority and superintendence?—Decidedly.

80,307. How many were set down?—It is a long time ago.

80,308. I ask about?—Perhaps one to two hundred. I cannot say exactly. I should almost think so.

80,309. They were set down in order that they might be employed, and paid at one time or another?—Perhaps I may be allowed to say I have heard the evidence of Sir John Hanmer and Sir Walter James, and of course, being chairman of the Holderness ward committee, I also was a member of the central committee, and it was agreed between both parties, the orange and the blue, that the freemen or householders of the lower class should have two and four days' pay, if they required it. Of course the canvassers, who are called committeemen, they took their regular work, and it was a very tedious, long, hard-working election, for upwards of six weeks. Of course the expenses were more than they should have been, and as chairman of one of the wards I took every pains to keep it under. Still, from the time it took it was expensive. Those men that required to be put down; men with large families; they were put down, and I did not consider it at all as bribery. The fact is, my opinion was that the burgesses of the town of Hull really expected it as a privilege and a right. Therefore, in placing them down as runners it was left to the discretion of the chairman, particularly after they were placed down as runners, to decide whether they were to receive two or four days, according to the votes they gave. If a man voted for Hanmer and James it would be four days.

80,310. But you understood that the men were to vote as employed?—I did expect so; but you cannot make men do that.

80,311. It would be contrary to the understanding of both parties, if it was not so?—Decidedly.

80,312. They considered it so much aright that they would have beeen disappointed if they had not got it?—Most certainly.

80,313. And in many instances you would not feel sure without it?—Yes.

80,314. From 100 to 200 you set down?—It is a very extensive and a very poor ward.

80,315. According to you, who did not think it was bribery, a general warning against bribery would have no effect?—Not one way, I should not have thought it.

80,316. That is, according to Hull in those times, the prohibition of bribery would not be considered as a prohibition to deprive the freemen of that which was considered their usual privilege?—Undoubtedly.

80,317. Were the parties paid at your committee room?—No.

80,318. Where were they paid?—I do not know.

80,319. You did make payments?—All the payments that I made I made prior to the nomination day. Any debt that I incurred as chairman of the committee I paid prior.

80,320. What was the nature of the payments you made?—I cannot tell you. They are various. It is impossible to say, it being twelve or thirteen years ago.

80,321. Just look at that account, and see if it assists you [H. J.]?—Yes; some of these I had to do, and some I had not.

80,322. Look at them first, and tell me the general nature of the expenditure?—I should say this expenditure is after the nomination day.

80,323. What would there be there?—I should think from 50*l.* to 60*l.*

80,324. What would it be for?—I declare I do not know.

80,325. It is represented to us it was not paid after the election?—I do not know what it is.

80,326. Can you tell me how much money was given to you to expend?—I did not expend more than 50*l.* or 60*l.* What has been paid after I know nothing about.

80,327. Were the men fed—given breakfasts?—No; there was no breakfast. There was a good deal of drink given which I know nothing about. The fact is my hands were so busy, and there were several gentlemen, the Hammonds, and other parties, Mr. Thomas and Mr. Charles. My part was in the chair, and I never left my chair, and had no time to leave it.

80,328. The public houses were open a good deal?—I gave no authority for it.

80,329. Not on the polling morning?—Not the least.

Mr. J. Wilkinson.

9th August 1853.

80,330. In the election of 1847, did you take any part?—I took no part.
80,331. Did you vote?—Yes; I voted for Mr. Baines only.
80,332. At the last election, who did you vote for?—I was out of town. I took no part. I was so tired and fatigued with the 1841 election, that I determined that I would take no part at all.

James Stubbs.

James Stubbs sworn, and examined.

80,333. Where do you live?—Scott Street.
80,334. What business are you?—A painter and yeast merchant.
80,335. What rent do you pay?—No rent at all.
80,336. Is it your own house?—Yes; it is my own, and others as well.
80,337. What are you rated at?—I do not know exactly what they are rated at; altogether fourpence in the pound, or something of that sort.
80,338. What are they rated at? What is the value you put upon them?—I do not know.
80,339. What are your premises worth?—£30.
80,340. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
80,341. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1839.
80,342. Which party paid for you; the orange or the blue?—The orange, I believe.
80,343. Did you vote for them in consequence, in 1841?—Of course I did.
80,344. Were you paid for it besides?—No.
80,345. Did you get no money that election?—No.
80,346. Not on any account?—No.
80,347. Did you get a ticket for money?—No.
80,348. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay and Brown.
80,349. Were you paid any money at that election?—No; none at all.
80,350. Nor after it?—No.
80,351. Did you get no money on any account?—No.
80,352. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Mr. Clay.
80,353. Did you get a ticket given you this time?—I got a letter sent to me. I was out of town, and if in case I was to come to poll they would pay any reasonable expenses,—30*s.*
80,354. Where were you?—Pocklington.
80,355. How far is that? Did you come by rail?—I came by the carrier's cart down. I thought that was good enough for me.
80,356. How much did you pay the carrier?—3*s.* 6*d.*
89,357. How did you go back?—I paid them the same going back again.
80,358. That was all it cost you?—Then there was the day coming and the day going.
83,359. You were paid 30*s.*?—Yes.
80,360. Was that all the money you got?—That is all I got in any election in my life.
80,361. Who agreed with you that you should have 30*s.*?—I have a note in my pocket that I got from Mr. Blundell, the chairman.
80,362. Does it say you are to have 30*s.*, or your legal expenses?—It was my legal expenses.
80,363. You asked 30*s.*?—No; I asked nothing; they gave it me.
80,364. In King Street?—Yes.

Adjourned to to-morrow, at ten o'clock.

Fifty-Fifth Day.—Wednesday, 10th August 1853.

[Mr. Commissioner Deedes stated, in consequence of the indisposition of the Chief Commissioner, the proceedings must be adjourned; and requested of Major Sykes and Mr. Joseph Robinson Pease that they would furnish the Commissioners with the amount of subscriptions that they themselves had subscribed or were aware of being subscribed towards any fund for electioneering purposes in or subsequent to the year 1841.

Adjourned till Monday next, at ten o'clock.

FIFTY-SIXTH DAY,—Monday, 15th August 1853.

Mr. Joseph Sykes.

15th August 1853.

Mr. JOSEPH SYKES sworn, and examined.

83,365. I believe you live at Kirkella?—At Raywell.

80,366. Are you a voter for this borough?—Yes.

80,367. Have you taken an interest in the elections that have taken place for some time past?—Very slight, for some lengthened period.

80,368. With regard to the election of 1841; did you take any particular interest in that election?—Not much. I voted for Clay and Thompson, to the best of my recollection.

80,369. Were you on the committee?—I was not on the committee at that election, or any other Hull election.

80,370. In the year 1847, the next election, when Clay, Baines, and Brown were the candidates, did you interest yourself for either of those gentlemen?—Nothing more than voting for Clay and Brown.

80,371. We hear that you have upon occasions subscribed money for the purposes of the elections?—Never a farthing; nor never was asked.

80,372. Not at any election?—Not at any election; nor never was asked. I have subscribed to the registration, but never to any election; nor never was asked at Hull.

89,373. We mean to any fund for the aid of either party?—Never.

80,374. At the last election you voted for Clay and Lord Goderich?—I did.

80,375. We have heard, in the course of the evidence that has been before us, that prior to that election taking place there were some meetings at your house connected with the interest of those candidates?—There were.

80,376. At any of those meetings were the financial arrangements considered at all?—None whatever.

80,377. State, if you please, the object of the meeting with regard to the election that was coming on?—To the best of my recollection, it was for selecting a candidate in the Whig interest, the Liberal interest, in addition to Mr. Clay.

80,378. Where the meetings principally holden before Lord Goderich was announced as the co-candidate?—Yes; for some short period prior to Lord Goderich being announced I think there were two or three meetings held, to consider who was the most eligible man that the Liberals could get to represent them.

80,379. I believe you have considerable knowledge of Hull election?—I am considered to have, but I know very little.

80,380. I mean, by living in the neighbourhood or town for many years?—I was born in this neighbourhood, and I have lived here ever since. I have been upon half pay. But I have not taken that part in them that people imagine.

83,381. Having a general knowledge, can you remember if on the occasion I have last alluded to it was considered what sum of money the candidates should furnish?—I never heard anything alluded to as to the expense at any of the meetings held in Bowl Alley Lane.

80,382. In considering the candidate who would be a coadjutor of Mr. Clay, would not the consideration partly turn upon the candidate having money?—I think it is very little use anybody coming to Hull on what you call the strictly purity system.

80,383. What sum do you think would be requisite for a person coming under the circumstances that Mr. Clay's coadjutor was to come?—I cannot say.

80,384. Was not the sum considerable?—I cannot say that it was.

80,385. Would not the item of expense with reference to elections generally be a matter of consideration?—I cannot say it was, in my house; but I should imagine it was well known to everybody in Hull that it is requisite for the candidate not to confine himself to the strict legal expenditure that is allowed.

80,386. I want particularly to direct your attention to the fact of whether any sum which should be forthcoming from either candidate, Mr. Clay or Lord Goderich, was considered at the meeting to which I have adverted?—I never heard any sum mentioned.

80,387. Would not the matter of some sum be rife among you?—I never heard of it. But now that you bring it to my recollection, I think they thought that any person uniting with Mr. Clay ought to bear more than an equal proportion of the expenditure that might be incurred.

80,388. You do not remember that any specific sum was mentioned?—There was none.

80,389. Was there any consideration of a guarantee fund, beyond a certain sum?—I never heard of it; and I know I never was asked to subscribe, nor did I know that there was any subscription going on.

80,390. I think you state that you have been in the army?—I am on half pay. I belong to the navy.

80,391. Were you a commander?—No; a lieutenant.

80,392. Were you the person who originated the second candidate? Did you originate the idea of Lord Goderich coming?—No.

Mr. Joseph Sykes.

15th August 1853.

80,393. Did you hear whether there was a subscription in 1841?—No; I never heard that there was one.

80,394. You never heard it?—I never did, upon the Liberal side. What I heard was the report from the blues.

80,395. Did you hear that there was a subscription in 1847?—No; none whatever. I have not been asked, directly or indirectly, to subscribe; and I never heard of a fund before, on the Liberal side.

80,396. Did you not hear that Major Sykes had subscribed 100*l.*?—I never knew of it until the other day.

80,397. Have you heard at any time up to this day what the subscription was in 1847?—I have never heard that there was a subscription in 1847.

80,391. Nor in 1841?—No; nor in 1841. I have never heard of any subscription on the Liberal side since I have been on shore.

Mr. Shaen stated, that Mr. Beadle had handed in a list of subscriptions on behalf of the blues in 1841, which amounted to the sum of 1,005*l.*, of which 950*l.* went towards the election expenses, and 55*l.* towards the registration. Major Sykes had also handed in a statement, that on the 6th of July 1841 he paid 100*l.* towards the expenses of Mr. Clay's election, and in July in the same year he paid 20*l.* towards Mr. Hutt's expenses at the previous election, and some other sums paid previous to the election for other purposes; in 1847 he had paid nothing, nor in 1852; and Mr. Joseph Robinson Pease had also handed in a paper, stating that on the 14th of July 1841 1,000*l.* passed through his bank for Sir Walter James, and upon his private expenditure he found on the 18th of September 1841 he paid Mr. Beadle 100*l.*

G. H. Colley.

GEORGE HENRY COLLEY sworn, and examined.

80,399. Where do you live?—West Parade, Spring Street.

80,400. What business are you?—A cooper.

80,401. What rent do you pay for a house?—Nine guineas.

89,402. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

80,403. When were you made a freeman?—In 1847.

80,404. At the election in that year, did you vote?—No.

80,405. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

80,406. I believe you applied to be put down as a runner with Mr. Wilde?—It is unknown to me.

80,407. I ask you whether you applied?—Not that I am aware of.

80,408. Do you mean to say that you did not?—No.

80,409. I ask whether you applied?—No.

80,410. Did you authorize anybody to have your name set down?—No one.

80,411. Did you hear that it had been set down?—No.

80,412. When did you first hear that your name was down for two days upon Mr. Wilde's list?—It is unknown to me.

80,413. When did you first hear of it?—I did not hear that it was down.

80,414. Do you mean to say that you hear of it now for the first time?—It is the first time. I have no knowledge of it.

80,415. This is the first time?—Yes.

80,416. Were you a messenger at the last election?—No; I was not employed at all upon any account.

80,417. Did you receive any money?—No.

80,418. Either before or after the election?—No.

80,419. None at all?—No.

John Pape.

JOHN PAPE sworn, and examined.

80,420. Where do you live?—Marine Row.

80,421. What business are you?—A smith.

80,422. What rent do you pay?—£13.

80,423. Are you a freeman?—No.

80,424. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—1847 was the first election.

80,425. Who did you vote for?—Baines and Clay.

80,426. Did you receive any money for your vote?—No.

80,427. Did you receive any money at all?—No, not any at all.

80,428. Were you employed in any way at that election?—No.

80,429. At the last election in 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

80,430. You were set down as a runner, I believe?—Yes.

80,431. Where were you set down?—In Osborne Street.

80,432. Did you receive any money?—Yes.

80,433. How much?—A sovereign.

John Pape.

15th August 1853.

80,434. When did you receive it?—A week or ten days after the electio
80,435. Who paid you?—I do not know the man.
80,436. Where was it paid?—In George Yard.
80,437. What was it for?—For attending as a runner.
80,438. Did you apply to be set down?—Yes.

John Gilder.

JOHN GILDER sworn, and examined.

80,439. Where do you live?—Mary's Place, Osborne Street.
80,440. What business are you?—A cabinet maker.
80,441. What rent do you pay?—£7.
80,442. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
80,443. When were you made a freeman?—In 1826.
80,444. At the election in 1841, did you vote?—Yes.
80,445. Who for?—Clay and Thompson.
80,446. Did you receive any money for your vote?—Not for voting; I received a sovereign for services, as a check clerk at the booth.
80,447. What booth?—No. 8, Osborne Street.
80,448. When were you appointed?—The night previous to the election taking place.
80,449. Did you apply for the employment?—Yes.
80,450. Who to?—To Mr. Galloway, to the best of my recollection.
80,451. When were you paid?—Shortly after the election, I believe. I could scarcely tell you to a day.
80,452. Were you employed all day?—Yes; from eight in the morning till four in the afternoon.
80,453. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay alone.
80,454. Did you receive any money that time?—Yes.
80,455. What for?—For a similar employment.
80,456. Were you a check clerk again?—Yes.
80,457. Were you employed upon the same day?—Yes.
80,458. How much did you get?—A sovereign.
80,459. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.
80,460. I believe you got your name put down as a runner?—Not to my knowledge.
80,461. Did you apply for employment, and did you get any employment?—Yes; I was engaged at a committee room to assist in what I could do, along with Mr. Pentith, who you have had before you.
80,462. What did you do?—Carried out voting papers, and assisted in getting up voters.
80,463. You were a messenger or a runner?—Yes; you may term it so.
80,464. How much money did you get?—I got a sovereign, paid by him.
80,465. By whom?—Pentith.
80,466. When did he pay you?—I think on the eve of the election day, or the day after. I can hardly say which.
80,467. Besides being a check clerk in 1841, were you not also set down as a runner?—No; not to my knowledge.
80,468. Are you sure of that?—Yes.
89,469. How did you apply for employment in 1841?—I went to Mr. Galloway's office in Bishop Lane.
80,470. What did you say?—I asked him for a situation as clerk to the booth.
80,471. And how did you apply in 1847; the same way?—Yes.

Mr. W. Kirk.

Mr. WILLIAM KIRK sworn, and examined.

80,472. I believe you are a surgeon, living at Hedon?—I am.
80,473. How long have you lived there?—Twenty-six years.
80,474. Are you a voter for this borough?—No.
80,475. Did you take any part in the election of 1841?—None whatever, beyond merely asking, if I met a person, "Who are you going to vote for?"
80,476. Did you take any part in making arrangements for the Hedon voters?—None whatever.
80,477. You took no part?—Merely what I heard in the streets. I was not at any committee.
80,478. At that time, in 1841, did you hear that there was an arrangement made with them?—No, I did not. I knew nothing about the election at all.
80,479. In 1847, did you take any part?—None whatever.
80,480. Did you not hear what arrangement took place then?—No. I have never interfered beyond what I tell you.
80,481. Did you not hear it was the custom to pay the Hedon voters a certain sum of money to come and vote?—I have heard so, but who told me I cannot say. I certainly took a voter from Preston. It was a matter of convenience. I was coming in a gig to Hull, and I gave him a ride. Mr. W. Kirk. 15th August 1853.

80,482. At the last election, I believe you did take part?—Not the least.

80,483. Were you not with Mr. Stubbin's and Mr. Iveson?—Never. I had nothing to do with any election whatever.

80,484. Have you never taken any part in them, in paying the Hedon voters?—None whatever. I never paid a farthing in my life; and how my name has got down I can give no information. I was not aware what information I had to give. I was not at the Hull election last time at all.

80,485. You say you never took a part, and know nothing about it?—I know nothing about it.

WILLIAM WOODCOCK sworn, and examined. W. Woodcock.

80,486. Where do you live?—Drypool.

80,487. What is your business?—A master mariner.

80,488. What rent do you pay?—£7 10*s.*

80,489. Are you also a freeman?—Yes.

80,490. When were you made a freeman?—In 1830, I believe.

80,491. At the election of 1841, who did you vote for?—I did not vote at all.

80,492. Why not?—I was not at home at the time.

80,493. Were you away from home?—Yes.

80,494. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines.

80,495. Did you receive any money for your vote?—None.

80,496. Did you receive any money at all?—No.

80,497. Were you employed in any way?—No.

80,498. At the last election, who did you vote for?—I was at sea, from home.

80,499. Did you get your name set down before you went?—No.

WILLIAM BURRILL sworn, and examined. William Burrill.

80,500. Where do you live?—On the Sutton Bank.

80,502. What rent do you pay?—£5.

80,503. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

80,504. When were you made a freeman?—In 1818.

80,505. In 1841, did you receive any money from Mr. Stark as a runner?—No, I did not.

80,506. You are on his list?—The money I received was, Mr. Thistleton gave me 15*s.* before the election, and I got 15*s.* at the Durham Ox, after that.

80,507. In 1841?—Yes; that is all the money that I ever received.

10,508. At any time?—Yes, at any time, for that election.

80,509. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Mr. Clay and Mr. Brown.

80,510. How much did you get?—I got a sovereign from Mr. Clay and two from Mr. Brown.

80,511. At the election of 1852, who did you vote for?—Clay and Lord Goderich.

80,512. How much money did you get then?—£2.

JOHN VARLEY sworn, and examined. John Varley.

80,515. What rent do you pay?—£5.

80,516. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

80,517. When were you made a freeman?—Fifty-one years since.

80,518. In 1841, who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.

80,519. Did you receive any money for voting that election?—Yes.

80,520. How much?—As a runner, I think, I received four days, or six days; I cannot call to mind; it is one of the two.

80,521. How much money?—30*s.*

80,522. At the next election, in 1847, were you a runner for Brown?—For two days.

80,523. Did you vote for him?—I voted for him and Baines.

80,254. How much did you receive for Mr. Brown?—10*s.*

80,525. How much for Mr. Baines?—Nothing.

80,526. At the last election, in 1852, who did you vote for?—Lord Goderich alone.

80,527. Did you get any money then?—Not a farthing.

80,528. Was your name set down?—Yes.

80,529. Where was your name put down?—Mr. Wilde put my name down.

John Varley.

15th August 1853.

80,530. You had your name set down at the last election, I suppose, for the purpose of being paid after the election, or whenever they were paid?—Yes.

80,531. You knew the object of the book was to get your name set down, and to be paid for it if your name was in the book?—Yes; but I had not much faith in it.

80,532. In what?—In their paying me.

Robert Watson.

ROBERT WATSON sworn, and examined

80,533. Where do you live?—In Catherine Street.

80,534. What business are you?—A currier.

80,535. What rent do you pay?—£5 10*s.*

80,536. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

80,537. When were you made a freeman?—In 1847.

80,538. Did you vote at that election?—No.

80,539. Did you take up your freedom yourself?—Yes.

80,540. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

80,541. I believe you got your name set down in the East Sculcoates, South.

80,542. Was it set down?—It was not set down, to my knowledge.

80,543. Were you employed as a runner?—I was not.

80,544. Did you get any money?—10*s.* after the election. A man called at my house, and told me to call on Mr. Purdon.

80,545. I suppose you considered that as a reward for your vote?—Yes.

Henry Creighton.

HENRY CREIGHTON sworn, and examined.

80,546. Where do you live?—Mulgrave Street.

80,547. What business are you?—A shipwright.

80,548. What rent do you pay?—I am a lodger.

80,551. Did you vote at that election?—No.

80,552. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

80,553. You were set down as a runner, I believe?—Not that I know of; not to my knowledge.

80,554. Were you paid any money?—Yes.

80,555. What for; was it for your vote?—I suppose so.

80,556. When were you paid?—Two or three days after the election.

80,557. How much?—A sovereign.

Charles Jackson.

CHARLES JACKSON sworn, and examined.

80,558. Where do you live?—Pleasant Place.

80,559. What business are you?—A labourer.

80,560. What rent do you pay?—£8.

80,561. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

80,562. When were you made a freeman?—In 1838, I think it was.

80,563. At your own expense?—Yes.

80,564. In 1841, did you vote?—Yes.

80,565. Who for?—Hanmer and James.

80,566. Did you receive any money that election?—I received a sovereign, I think, to the best of my knowledge.

80,567. Were you put down as a runner?—Not to my knowledge.

80,568. What was the sovereign for?—For the vote.

80,569. In 1847, who did you vote for?—For Baines and Brown.

80,570. Did you receive any money then for your vote?—15*s.*

80,571. Afterwards?—Yes.

80,572. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

80,573. Did you receive any money then for your vote?—Yes; I received 27*s.* 6*d.*

80,574. Who paid you?—Mr. Steeple paid me 17*s.* 6*d.*, and Mr. Pulleyn paid me 10*s.*

I. S. Wood.

80,577. What rent do you pay?—£11.

80,578. Are you also a freeman?—No.

80,579. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—The last one.

80,580. Who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

I. S. Wood.

15th August 1853.

80,581. Did you receive any money for your vote?—No.
80,582. Did you receive any money at all at that election, or after it?—No.
80,583. Were you paid nothing?—I was paid for services.
80,584. Were you a clerk?—I was a poll clerk.
80,585. You were a check clerk on the polling day?—Yes.
80,586. Were you a clerk only on that day?—I was previously a clerk at the central committee.
80,587. When were you made a clerk, and for how long?—A few days; it may be a week.
80,588. A week when?—Perhaps a week previous to the election.
80,589. Did you apply to be employed as a clerk?—I did.
80,590. At the central committee room?—Yes.
80,591. Were you to have a certain sum a day?—Yes.
80,592. How much?—5*s*.
80,593. Did you attend?—I did,
80,594. Every day?—Every day.
80,595. All day?—All day.
80,596. Where was it?—At the central committee room in Bowl Alley Lane.
80,597. Where; at Mr. Fowler's room?—Yes.
80,598. When were you paid?—Shortly after the election.
80,599. Who paid you?—Mr. Wells.
80,600. Did you say you should vote for them?—I promised my vote previous to the employment.
80,601. Who to?—To a friend of mine, Dr. Bell.
80,602. What did you do with your business in the meantime? Who attended to it?—I had none to attend to then.
80,603. You were out of business?—No, I was not; but I had nothing to do about that time.
80,604. Had you a shop as a broker?—No.
80,605. Do you mean you are a share broker?—A general broker.
80,606. You had no employment, excepting this, at that time?—At that time I had not.
80,607. Did you apply for employment before you were put on as a clerk?—Yes, I did. I applied previously.
80,608. Had your name been put in some book?—Not that I am aware of.
80,609. You applied for it?—I made but one application.
80,610. Did they send for you?—Yes.
80,611. I understood you to say you were employed five or six days previous to the election?—Yes.
80,612. You also said you had applied before?—I applied before I was sent for, of course.
80,613. You were sent for?—I was.
80,614. And then they gave you employment at the election time?—Yes.
80,615. They paid you a few days after?—Yes.
80,616. Had you applied to the orange party?—No.
80,617. Had they applied to you?—They called, to ask if I would vote for them.
80,618. What did you say?—I said no.
80,619. As you had no employment at all why did not you try to get employment of the orange party?—I had nothing to do with the orange party.
80,620. You might have taken their employment?—Yes; but I did not think it proper to apply there for employment.
80,621. Did you only mean to be employed by those you voted for?—My friends, of course, I should look to.
80,622. You would not have taken employment from the orange?—No.
80,623. Why? I do not understand, if you wanted something to do, and wanted employment, why you should not take it from whoever would give it you?—I made application to the blue side for employment, and I obtained it.
80,624. They had not got any for you at first?—I did not apply to the orange party, because I should not vote for them.
80,625. You thought that the employment and the vote were to go together?—No. I promised my vote before I made any application for employment whatever.
80,626. You would not have employment from the orange, because you should not vote for them?—I consider I did not belong to the party. It would have been strange to apply for employment to the party I intended to vote against.

JAMES HANLAN sworn, and examined.

James Hanlan.

80,627. Where do you live?—I am in the poorhouse.
80,628. How long have you been a freeman?—Since Sir James Graham's election.
80,629. In 1841, who did you vote for?—I voted for the orange.
80,630. Did you get any money for it?—No.

James Hanlan.

15th August 1853.

80,631. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I always voted orange.
80,632. For Mr. Clay?—Yes.
80,633. Did you get any money?—No.
80,634. At the last election, did you vote for the orange again?—Yes.
80,635. Clay and Goderich?—Yes.
80,636. Did you have your name set down?—No; I did not have my name set down.
80,637. Did you expect to have something after the election was over?—No; and never was promised.
80,638. Did you ask for anything?—No.

George Tune.

GEORGE TUNE sworn, and examined.

80,639. Where do you live?—Waterworks Street.
80,640. What business are you?—A butcher.
80,641. What rent do you pay?—It is my own property.
80,642. What are you rated at?—Above 20*l.*
80,643. Are you also a freeman?—Yes.
80,644. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—Yes.
80,645. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Thompson.
80,646. Did you take any part in a committee?—None at all.
80,647. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Clay.
80,648. In 1841, did you know Mr. Thomas Freebody?—Yes, I did.
80,649. Did you act at all with him at that election?—Not at all. Merely a conversation passed in my shop at the time.
80,650. Was it relating to the spending of 200*l.*?—Yes.
80,651. Tell us what it was?—Merely that he went out on the election morning with 200*l.* in his pocket, and at breakfast time he had not a shilling left.
80,652. Did he say what he had done with it?—He had it buying votes in 1841.
80,653. For the blue party?—Yes.
80,654. When did he tell you that?—After the election of 1852.
80,655. How did this matter come up about spending the 200*l.*?—It was merely talking something about the petition that was presented against the sitting members. I said I did not think there had been the same bribery and drunkenness as at previous elections. He said "Nothing like what 1841 was." That was all the conversation.
80,656. He seemed to think the blues had the better of the orange?—Oh, quite so.
80,657. He spent 200*l.* all on one day?—From six o'clock in the morning till breakfast time.
80,658. Did he state the largest sum that he paid?—No; nothing further than that.
80,659. Nor the smallest?—That was the only statement that he made.
80,660. Did he state whether he paid them at a certain rate?—No; he did not say what.
80,661. At one rate?—No; at no rate.
80,662. Did he say anything about payments at any other election?—No, not at all.
80,663. Did he show you a list of the names?—No. It was merely common conversation in my own shop.
80,664. When was that conversation?—After this last election.
80,665. You understood he was giving a reason for thinking the last election not so bad as in 1841?—Yes.
80,666. And he gave you that instance?—Yes.
80,667. Did he say who gave him that 200*l.*?—No, he did not; we had nothing of that kind.
80,668. Have you anything else that you can tell us?—No.
80,669. Do you know where Mr. Freebody is now?—I do not.
80,670. He is not in Hull?—No; he is not in Hull.
80,671. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Clay and Goderich.
80,672. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines.
80,673. Have you always voted orange?—Always; ever since Mr. Sykes's election in 1826.
80,674. It was a little rash of Mr. Freebody making this statement to you?—It was merely conversation, being friendly, and all that.
80,675. It was a good while ago?—I have known him many years.
80,676. The matter we are speaking of occurred a long time ago?—In 1841.
80,677. He thought it was a byegone?—A byegone, and never would be heard of more.
80,678. Was he speaking seriously?—I believe he was. We had a conversation together.

HENRY LEE sworn, and examined. Henry Lee.

15th August 1853.

80,679. Where do you live?—At the Charter House.
80,680. When were you made a freeman?—About fifty years ago.
80,681. At the election of 1841, who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
80,682. Did you receive any money at that election?—After the election,—perhaps five or six months,—I cannot say exactly,—a gentleman met me in the street, and he said, if I had a mind to have a sovereign, if I would call at his house I should have it.
80,683. Did you call?—I did.
80,684. Was it a reward for voting?—I cannot say.
80,685. You have no doubt about it?—I have none, in my own mind.
80,686. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay and Brown.
80,687. How much did you get?—Nothing.
80,688. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Clay and Moore.
80,689. Did you receive any money?—No.
80,690. Nothing at all?—No; I never had a chance.
80,691. Was your name set down?—No; not to my knowledge.
80,692. Why had you not a chance?—No one offered me anything.
80,693. Were you paid any money through a hole in a door in 1841?—I was told I should not see the party.
80,694. Was it when you got the pound?—Yes.
80,695. Where was it?—Mr. Margison's house in the Pottery.
80,696. You could not see the person; but you took all the pains you could to see him?—I was a little curious; but I did not see who gave me the money.
80,697. Were you set down at the last election?—Not that I am aware of. I never applied, and I know nothing at all about it.

CHARLES HAMMOND sworn, and examined. Charles Hammond.

80,698. Where do you live?—In the Charterhouse.
80,699. What is your business?—A druggist.
80,700. What rent do you pay?—I do not pay any rent.
80,701. When were you made a freeman?—I am not a freeman. I was a householder.
80,702. What rent did you pay for a house?—It was my own house, rated at 40*l.* a year.
80,703. In 1841, were you a voter?—Yes, I was.
80,704. Who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
80,705. I believe you were chairman of the ward?—I was.
80,706. The Holderness ward?—Yes.
80,707. We hear that people got their names set down at that election?—They did.
80,708. And got money for it?—Yes; they were paid afterwards.
80,709. You paid some people yourself?—A few individuals, occasionally.
80,710. Was it afterwards?—Yes.
80,711. Where did you pay them?—I do not remember the place. Sometimes I paid them in the street.
80,712. After the election?—Yes.
80,713. Not at the committee room?—No; there might be some paid at the committee room; but the men generally were paid two or three months after the election.
80,714. You paid about the streets?—Occasionally.
80,715. You took care to find that they had voted for you?—I knew the men generally.
80,716. Some were paid through holes in doors?—Never.
80,717. Not by you?—Not to my knowledge. I do not believe the system prevailed in our district. I never heard of such a thing before this Commission.
80,718. You would have known it?—I think I should; I do not know.
80,719. We have heard of a blacksmith's shop in Holderness?—There was a blacksmith's shop in our neighbourhood.
80,720. Was it not a secret place for payment?—I do not know.
80,721. Was it a place for payment?—I do not know that it was; I do not believe it was. I never heard of it before this Commission.
80,722. Many people have told us they got money there?—I have heard of it. Now I can tell you how it happened. It was my nephew, Thomas Hammond. There was a blacksmith's shop close to our back door; and I have reason to believe that he paid the money there, unknown to me; but I never heard of such a thing before.
80,723. The blacksmith's shop was close to your house?—Yes. I understood my nephew paid there. I never knew or heard of such a thing previously.
80,724. It does not make much odds whether they were paid in a blacksmith's shop or in the street?—I was in the habit of meeting occasionally people who were voters; poor men; and I would say, "When are you going to vote?" They said, "I do not know." they looked for pay, and I paid perhaps eight or ten; more, perhaps, out of a kindly feeling on my part; I had no system of paying men.

Charles Hammond.

15th August 1853

80,725. It was for their votes?—Yes, I believe it was.
80,726. Your nephew is away?—He has left the country five or six years.
80,727. You said you paid some individuals? What are their names?—Thomas Dalton Hammond.
80,728. Did you pay John Wilkinson?—I do not remember the name. What was he?
80,729. I cannot tell you what he was. Did you not pay him 25*s.*?—I might; but I do not remember the name.
80,730. William Oliver?—Yes.
80,731. What did you pay him?—I think I paid him 1*l.*
80,732. Did a man of the name of Wilson help you make those out-payments?—I do not remember such a man.
80,733. Do you know William Brewster?—Yes.
80,734. How much?—I fancy 1*l.*
80,735. William Marley Brewster, I think, you paid?—I probably might.
80,736. And William Peacock?—I do not know.
80,737. Do you not remember him?—I know such a man, but I do not know that I ever paid him in my life.
80,738. At the next election were you on a committee?—Yes.
80,739. Who did you vote for?—Baines and Clay. I was not sure of Mr. Brown's politics, therefore I voted for those two.
80,740. Were you on the committee of either of those gentlemen?—I was on it, but I did not take any active part.
80,741. Did you make any payments?—No.
80,742. Did any money pass through your hands?—No.
80,743. Did you employ people?—No.
80,744. In 1852, who did you vote for?—I did not vote at all.
80,745. Did you act at all?—No; I took no part whatever. In the forenoon of Saturday, previous to the election, I was sent for by the committee. I went into Drypool for about an hour and a half.
80,746. On the canvass?—It was on the Saturday morning.
80,747. Did you send people to have their names set down?—No.
80,748. Did you ever pay any money at that election?—Not a farthing; I never received a farthing in my life from any one; I neither paid nor received any on that occasion.

William Major.

WILLIAM MAJOR sworn, and examined.

80,749. Where do you live?—Great Union Street, Drypool.
80,750. What is your business?—A publican.
80,751. What rent do you pay?—Nineteen guineas.
80,752. Are you also a freeman?—No.
80,753. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—The last.
80,754. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.
80,755. I believe they took a room of yours?—No, they did not.
80,756. Was there not a committee room at your house?—No.
80,757. No room there?—No.
80,758. Your name is returned as having had a room engaged?—I put a flag out. The room was there, but they did not engage it.
80,759. They paid you for it?—No, they did not.
80,760. What do you mean by the room being there?—It was at liberty if they liked to have it.
80,761. You hoisted a flag, but they did not think much of that?—No.
80,762. They never did take your room?—No.
80,763. Did you receive any money?—No.
80,764. Were you not paid for the room?—No.
80,765. Are you sure of that?—I am sure of that.
80,766. Did the blues canvass you?—Yes.
80,767. Perhaps they took your room?—No, they did not.
80,768. Are you sure of it?—Yes.
80,769. Did they pay for it?—No.
80,770. Did you receive any money at all?—Not any.
80,771. Who sent the flag to you?—Mr. Boulter.
80,772. Which side was it for?—The orange.

Richard Clappisar.

RICHARD CLAPPISAR sworn, and examined.

80,773. Where do you live?—North Street, Prospect Street.
80,774. What business are you?—I keep a beer shop.
80,775. What rent do you pay?—£18.
80,776. Are you also a freeman?—No.

Richard Clappisar.

15th August 1853.

80,777. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—1841.
80,778. Who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.
80,779. Did you receive any money at that election?—I had a bill against them of 20*l.*
80,780. What for?—I had a public house at that time in Bridge Street. I received 20*l.* for my bill.
80,781. What was the bill composed of?—Ale, liquors, and eating.
80,782. For the voters?—Yes.
80,783. How long did they frequent your house before the election?—Perhaps a week.
80,784. Did anybody tell you they would be answerable for your bill?—Mr. Freebody.
80,785. Did he put any limit on the amount?—No.
80,786. But all blue voters that came in were to have enough to eat and drink?—There was nothing particular mentioned about that.
80,787. When did he pay you?—Perhaps a month or six weeks after the election, or two months; I cannot say to a week or two.
80,788. You were to accommodate all the blue voters that came in?—Yes.
80,789. You voted for that party?—Yes.
80,790. I suppose they understood that you would vote for them?—Yes.
80,791. Was it mentioned when you received the order?—I promised them I would vote for them.
80,792. Then they gave you the order?—They gave me the order before I had promised.
80,793. Did you tell them you were doubtful?—No; nothing of the sort; I was not doubtful at all.
80,794. When they gave you the order, they knew very well you would vote for them?—I should have been very sorry if I had not. I would not have done such a mean action as to run from them.
80,795. You had promised?—I had, before they gave me the order.
80,796. You would not have got the order if they had not known you would have voted for them?—I cannot tell that.
80,797. What do you think about it?—I am sure I do not know.
80,798. Suppose you had said I am going to vote orange?—I never have.
80,799. If you had been an orangeman, and had said I am going to vote orange, would they have sent a blue voter to your house?—I should think not.
80,800. You voted for them probably in consequence of having this little business at your house?—Yes.
80,801. In 1847, who did you vote for?—I was not in Hull at the time.
80,802. At the last election, who did you vote for?—The blues.
80,803. I believe you had an old score with them?—Yes; there was a trifle left on it.
80,804. How much was it?—Somewhere about 5*l.*
80,805. You mentioned it, did you not, just then?—I made mention of it.
80,806. You gave them to understand that you expected to be paid?—I should like to have had it.
80,807. You did not get it?—No.
80,808. Did you say you wanted the money to be paid?—I asked for it.
80,809. Did they promise to pay you?—No, they did not.
80,810. What did they say?—I cannot bear in mind exactly now.
80,811. What did they say?—They said they should not have anything to do with it.
80,812. You made up another score against them?—No, I did not.
80,813. A new bill?—No.
80,814. Had you nothing of the kind at the last election?—No.
80,815. No voters at your house then?—Not at all.
80,816. Did you receive any money at all at the last election?—Not a penny.
80,817. Has the 5*l.* ever been paid?—No.
80,818. They canvassed you of course?—Yes.
80,819. Did you not say you would vote for them if they would pay you that money?—I did not.
80,820. They refused to pay it?—Yes.
80,821. And have refused?—Yes.
80,822. When was this score run?—In 1841.
80,823. You got 20*l.* then?—Yes.
80,824. Why was not the 5*l.* paid?—I am sure I do not know.
80,825. Did you send in a claim?—The bill was made out.
80,826. And they struck off 5*l.*?—Yes.
80,827. The bill was 25*l.*?—And they paid 20*l.*
80,828. You accepted that in full?—Yes; I was forced to do it. I was afraid of not getting anything at all.
80,829. You told me you had an account at the last election?—Not at the last 80,830. Were you paid any money at all?—No; not a farthing.
80,831. You never got the 5*l.*?—No.
80,832. Nor any part of it?—No.

Samuel Southwick.

15th August 1853.

SAMUEL SOUTHWICK sworn, and examined.

80,833. Where do you live?—At Beverley.
80,834. What business are you?—A tailor.
80,835. What rent do you pay?—I did not pay any rent when I was in Hull; I was in lodgings.
80,836. When were you made a freeman?—In 1850.
80,837. At your own expense?—Yes.
80,838. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Clay and Goderich.
80,839. Did you receive some money?—Yes; after I had voted I received 10*s.* to pay my expenses.
80,840. Where was it?—I think in King Street.
80,841. Did you come from Beverley?—Yes.
80,842. How much did you pay; what did your expenses cost you?—I do not know.
80,843. Two shillings?—Two shillings coming, and what it cost me when I was here.
80,844. For a carriage?—I took a day ticket for a shilling.
80,845. Did it take you there and back?—Yes.
80,846. You got 10*s.* altogether?—Yes.
80,847. Was it for your loss of time and your vote?—I suppose so.
80,848. Partly for your time, and partly for your vote?—I never was asked for my vote by the orange party. I went to vote, and I applied for my expenses afterwards, and they gave me half a sovereign.
80,849. How did you make it out?—I did not ask any sum.
80,850. How was it made up?—They did not say; they gave me that.
80,851. Did you not think some of it was a reward for voting?—I do not know. I know I had a good deal of trouble to get anything at all.
80,852. What did you say?—I told them I had come from Beverley, and I had voted for that party; would they allow anything for expenses? They asked if half a sovereign would pay me, and I said yes.

W. Parkinson.

WILLIAM PARKINSON sworn, and examined.

80,853. Where do you live?—At New Holland.
80,854. What business are you?—A cabinet maker.
80,855. What rent do you pay?—I pay ten guineas.
80,856. Are you a freeman?—No; but when I lived in Hull I paid 18*l.*
80,857. At which election did you first vote?—It is a long time since I first voted; I cannot remember exactly.
80,858. In 1841, who did you vote for?—Clay and Thompson.
80,859. Did you receive any money at that election for your vote?—No.
80,860. Where did you live at that time?—Humber Dock Wall.
80,861. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay and Brown.
80,862. Did you receive any money then?—No.
80,863. Nothing from Brown?—No; nothing at all.
80,864. At the last election, were you living in New Holland?—Yes.
80,865. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.
80,866. Did you receive any money?—Not any.
80,867. Did you not receive something for your expenses?—Not a farthing. I paid my own.
80,868. Were you not a runner for Brown?—No.
80,669. You were living in Hull at that election?—Yes; I was living in Hull at the last election.
80,870. You were down on Brown's list as a runner?—I do not know. I never got anything, if I was a runner. They had no business to put me down.
80,871. Did you ask to be put down?—No.

Charles Barnett.

CHARLES BARNETT sworn, and examined.

80,872. Where do you live?—Barton.
80,873. What rent do you pay?—£25 a year.
80,874. Are you a freeman?—I am.
80,875. When were you made a freeman?—I think 1837.
80,876. At your own expense?—Yes.
80,877. At the election of 1841, who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
80,878. Did you receive any money at that time?—I got a sovereign afterwards.
80,879. What was that for?—It was some time afterwards.
80,880. Who paid you?—I do not know.
80,881. Where were you paid?—Mason Street.
80,882. At Dalton's?—I do not know.

Charles Barnet
15th August 1853.

80,883. How came you to find yourself in Mason Street?—I was told by a man named Peterson if I went there I should get some money; they were paying freemen for voting.
80,884. Who did you vote for at the election of 1847?—I voted for Clay.
80,885. Did they pay you at that election?—No.
80,886. Nothing at all?—Nothing at all.
80,887. You got no money?—I got nothing.
80,888. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
80,889. You shifted about a good deal. Did you get any money then?—No.
80,890. Did you get your expenses paid?—No.
80,891. No money at all?—No.

William Hilton.

WILLIAM HILTON sworn, and examined.

80,892. Where do you live?—Goxhill, Lincolnshire.
80,893. What business are you?—A commercial traveller.
80,894. Had you used to live in Hull?—Yes.
80,895. Until recently?—I left four months before the last election.
80,896. What rent did you pay in Hull?—£11.
80,897. Are you a freeman?—No.
80,898. Did you vote at the election of 1841?—No; I was not in this neighbourhood.
80,899. In 1847?—No.
80,900. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.
80,901. You got some money for your expenses?—I got 10*s.*
80,902. How far is Goxhill from here?—About three miles.
80,903. How did you come?—By train to New Holland, and across by steamboat.
80,904. How much did the journey cost you, if you paid the carriage for getting here?—I think it cost me a shilling.
80,905. Who paid you the 10*s.*?—Mr. Atkinson.
80,906. Was the 9*s.* for loss of time, and for your vote?—I suppose it was not for the vote. I should not want it for my vote; merely for loss of time.

James Watson.

JAMES WATSON sworn, and examined.

80,907. Where do you live?—Cottingham.
80,908. What is your business?—A miller.
80,909. What rent do you pay?—£5.
80,910. When were you made a freeman?—In 1802.
80,911. In 1841, did you vote?—Yes.
80,912. Who for?—Hanmer and James.
80,913. Did you receive some money at that election for your vote?—I received 10*s.* about five months after.
80,914. Who paid you?—It was sent to my house at Skidly.
80,915. What was it for?—I do not know.
80,916. For your vote, we shall suppose?—For my expenses, I suppose.
80,917. What were your expenses?—I do not know, I am sure; it is so long since that I have forgotten.
80,918. Did you walk over?—No.
80,919. Did you take your own poney?—I walked to Cottingham, and then went by the coach. I only came to Cottingham in November last.
80,920. The money was for your vote?—I did not know what it was for.
80,921. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay and Brown.
80,922. Did you receive any money then?—I got a sovereign.
80,923. Who paid you it?—I was paid at the Cross Keys committee room.
80,924. After you had voted?—After I had voted.
80,925. Did you live at Cottingham?—No; I lived at Skidly.
80,926. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.
80,927. Did you receive any money then?—Not one halfpenny.
80,928. Not for your expenses?—Not a halfpenny.
80,929. Did Mr. Richardson look after you?—No.
80,930. The doctor, I mean?—No.
80,931. Did you not see him before the last election?—I did see him, but he never came after me.
80,932. He canvassed you?—No; he did not.
80,933. Did he speak to you?—Yes; he spoke to me.
80,934. Did he not speak about coming here?—He spoke to me about voting for Butler and Moore. I told him I should not poll for them.
80,935. Do you mean Moore and Butler, or Clay and Goderich?—Yes; Moore and Butler.
80,936. Did you receive any money at all at the last election?—Not a halfpenny.

J. B. Collison.

15th August 1853.

JAMES BESWICK COLLISON sworn, and examined.

81,050. Were you paid the fare besides?—Yes, it was paid. It cost me nothing in the train.
81,051. Where was the 2*l.* paid?—Paid in a cab.
81,052. Where?—Witham.
81,053. As you were going to vote?—No; after I had done voting.
81,054. Who else was with you?—Three or four more of us from Grimsby.
81,055. Did you get 2*l.* each?—Yes; I believe we did.
81,056. Who paid you?—I do not know what they call him.
81,057. I want to know his name?—I do not know his name.
81,058. It was the last election?—Yes.
81,059. You had all come from Grimsby together?—Four of us.
81,060. Your fare had been found for you?—We were fetched. We did not pay anything.
81,061. Have you all been working there?—Yes.
81,062. How long have you been working there?—Two years.
81,063. These men with you?—Yes.
81,064. What are their names?—Thistleton, one; Robinson, and Harper.
81,065. And yourself?—Yes.
81,066. You four came from Grimsby, did you?—Yes.
81,067. Do you know where they are to-day?—Yes; two of them are here.
81,068. Was it one of Mr. Barkworth's men that paid you?—May be it was one of his men.
81,069. Do you know?—I do not know for a fact; I do not know his name.
81,070. You believe it was?—Yes.
81,071. Who were you working for at Grimsby?—Mr. Weaners, at the Jetty.
81,072. Has Mr. Barkworth any work at Grimsby?—He has a deal yard; but I was not working for him.
81,073. Did Mr. Barkworth's clerk come for your vote?—I do not know. One of them said it was a clerk. I do not know what they call him, whether he was a clerk or not.
81,074. Did he come over with you?—He came over with us.
81,075. He fetched you; brought you over, and paid you?—Yes.
81,076. The same money?—Yes.
81,077. That was the morning of the election?—Yes.

81,087. At the last election, did you vote for the blue party?—Yes.
81,088. For Moore and Butler?—Yes.
81,089. We hear you got 2*l.*; is that so?—Yes.
81,090. Is that all the money you got?—Yes.
81,091. Who paid you?—William Harper paid me mine.
81,092. Who gave him the money?—I do not know; he did not tell me.
81,093. Was not it given you there?—It was not given to me in a cab. He gave me mine as soon as I had done polling. I was out of the cab when he gave me the money.
81,094. You were one of the men that came with the last witness from Grimsby?—Yes.
81,095. You did not go back in the cab from the poll?—No. We went with him to Witham; we went and polled somewhere against Christ Church.
81,096. Did I ask you about 1841?—I did not poll in 1841.
81,097. Do you know Mr. Barkworth's clerk?—Yes.
81,098. He brought you ovee?—Yes; I only know him by seeing him.

John Robinson.

15th August 1853.

81,099. Do you know the clerk that came over?—Yes; I know him very well.
81,100. What is his name?—I do not know his name. I have seen him. I know him by sight. I have seen him several times.
81,101. Is he tall or short?—A tall man,

HENRY THISTLETON sworn, and examined.

Henry Thistleton.

81,102. Where do you live?—Hodgson Street.

81,105. When were you made a freeman?—1847.
81,106. Did you vote at that election?—No.
81,107. At the last election you came with the last witnesses?—I did.
81,108. And got 2*l.*?—Yes.
81,109. You voted for Moore and Butler?—Yes, I did.
81,110. Do you know Mr. Barkworth's clerk?—I know him by sight, that is all.
81,111. You never asked his name?—No; I had no occasion to ask his name.
81,112. Did you get any other money?—None at all.
81,113. They have got you down as a runner in a good many places?—They might have me down. There are other names as well as mine.
81,114. Did you get any money?—Not a farthing.
81,115. You got 2*l.*?—Yes, I did.
81,116. Were you paid in a cab?—Yes, I was.

HENRY CAMMELL sworn, and examined.

Henry Cammell.

81,117. Where do you live?—At Grimsby.
81,118. What is your business?—Harbour master at Grimsby.
81,119. What rent do you pay?—At the last election I lived at Hull.
81,120. What rent did you pay?—£15.
81,121. Are you a freeman of Hull?—Yes.
81,122. When were you made a freeman?—In 1825.
81,123. In 1841, did you vote?—No.
81,124. Were you not entitled to vote?—Yes. I was not at home.
81,125. In 1847, did you vote?—No.
81,126. Why not?—I was not at home; I was at sea.
81,127. At the last election did you vote?—Yes, I did.
81,128. For whom?—Moore and Butler.
81,129. Did you canvass at the last election?—I did.
81,130. For the blue party?—Yes.
81,131. Did you get persons to have their names put down?—Yes.
81,132. What did you say to them?—I used to send them to the chairman, Mr. Turnbull, if they applied to me.
81,133. At which committee?—Mr. Turnbull's, 17, Worship Street.
81,134. Did you get your name set down?—Yes.
81,135. Were you on that committee?—Yes.
81,136. Did you take any committee rooms?—No.
81,137. Did you ask people if they wanted their rooms taken?—No.
81,138. Did persons apply to you to have their rooms taken?—No.
81,139. Did you send any persons to get their rooms engaged as committee rooms?—No; I cannot remember that I sent any one: I cannot remember any such thing.
81,140. I must ask you, did you not make applications to parties to have their rooms taken?—I do not remember.
81,141. As committee rooms?—I do not remember making any applications.
81,142. It is a very short time ago?—There was a baker; I forget his name; the chairman sent him to me; he had made an application for a committee room. That is the only remembrance I have. A baker of New George Street.
81,143. Who is it?—Hughes, I think, they call him.
81,144. Did you not wish to secure his vote by taking his room?—No. The chairman sent me down to inquire about the room.
81,145. Did you take the room?—No; we did not take it.
81,146. Why not?—I really cannot tell you the reason of that.
81,147. Did he not vote for you?—No. He voted against us.
81,148. That was the reason, I dare say?—Very possibly it might be. I really cannot say.
81,149. Of course that was the reason. You would not take his room if he would not promise to vote?—I think I should be wrong if I was to say that.
81,150. Can you give me any other reason?—No, I cannot.
81,151. The room was not too small; that was not the reason?—No. I do not remember.
81,152. Or too large?—I do not remember.

Henry Cammell.

15th August 1853.

81,153. Perhaps the money was not enough?—Possibly it might.

81,154. What were you giving for rooms at that time?—I never had any engagement of any one at the time.

81,155. Did you receive any money?—I did. I let them a house at No. 17, Worship Street, for a month, for which they paid me 10*l.*

81,156. Was it where the committee met?—Yes.

81,157. You were on the committee?—I was.

81,158. Was it part of the engagement that you were to canvass for them?—No. It was a business transaction altogether; nothing relative to my vote.

81,159. Was that all the money that passed through your hands?—All.

81,160. When were you paid?—About three weeks after the election. Mr. Steeple paid me.

81,161. What did you say to the people when you sent them to Mr. Turnbull?—To get their names set down?

81,162. Yes?—I told them they were to apply to him; I could not do it.

81,163. You told them it would be done by Mr. Turnbull?—No; I told them to apply to see if they could get down.

81,164. Did Mr. Turnbull do it?—No.

81,165. Why did you not do it?—I thought it was possible they might get their names down.

81,166. You knew they set down names with a view to secure their votes?—I thought we might be wanting runners.

81,167. Had you any doubt when you sent them that Mr. Turnbull would set them down?—I did not know whether he would or not.

81,168. You mean to say you did doubt whether he would?—I did

81,169. Did you know that they were set down afterwards?—I knew there were a many set down.

81,170. Those that you sent?—I knew that I could not do it. I did not pay that attention after they left me, whether it was or was not done.

81,171. You mean to swear that you, who were canvassing for the party, doubted whether the men would be set down or not?—I really did doubt it, because I heard Mr. Turnbull was very particular about setting down.

81,172. Will you swear you really doubted it?—I have declared the truth as far as I know. I have no reason to keep anything back.

81,173. Did you tell them it was doubtful?—It is very possible I did.

81,174. I ask what you did tell them?—I cannot tell.

81,175. Did you lead the men to understand it was doubtful whether their names would be set down?—When they applied, I may have told them they had better go to Mr. Turnbull, to see whether he would set them down or not; I could not.

81,176. Did you put them down in a book yourself as having promised?—I had no book.

81,177. You knew they were setting them down?—I did.

81,178. So you sent them there to be set down?—Yes, certainly, if they could get set down.

81,179. You went and reported, now and then, the result of your canvass?—I did.

81,180. You would see some of your friends' names down, I dare say?—I did not look at the book. I had no business with the book where those names were down.

81,181. There was a particular book for that, I suppose?—Yes.

81,182. You did not care to look at that book?—I did not think anything about it.

81,183. You had no doubt, if they would vote for your party, their names would be put down in the book if they applied?—I should be very wrong if I said that, because I really did not know that they would.

81,184. You said you knew there was a book there?—Certainly, I did know it; I knew there were names set down.

81,185. You did not know each individual?—No, I did not.

Timothy Darley.

TIMOTHY DARLEY sworn, and examined.

81,186. Where do you live?—Waverley Street.

81,187. What business are you?—A sailor.

81,188. What rent do you pay?—Eight guineas.

81,190. At your own expense?—Yes.

81,191. In 1847, did you vote?—No; I was at sea.

81,192. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

81,193. I believe you were a runner for the party?—I was.

81,194. Did you apply to be set down?—Yes.

81,195. How much money did they pay you?—I received 1*l.* a week; 5*s.* a day for the nomination and polling days.

81,196. £4 5*s.*?—£4 10*s.*, I think, it amounted to.

Timothy Darley
15th August 1853

81,197. Mr. Wells paid you?—Yes; Mr. Charles Wells.
81,198. Were you paid by the week?—Paid by the week; every Saturday night.
81,199. Were you paid the whole?—No; I had 1*l.* a week.
81,200. Were you paid the whole, or was it kept back?—The whole, 1*l.*
81,201. When were you paid the last money?—The Saturday night after the election.
81,202. And 5*s.* for those two days?—Yes.
81,203. When you applied to be set down, they knew you would of course vote for them?—Yes.
81,204. You meant them to understand that?—Yes.

81,222. In 1841, did you vote?—Yes.
81,223. For whom?—Hanmer and James.
81,224. Did you receive any money at that election?—Yes; I was a runner.
81,225. How much did you get for being a runner?—About 30*s.*
81,226. Did you get your name set down?—Yes.
81,227. You applied to be put down as a runner?—Yes.
81,228. At the next election, in 1847, who did you vote for?—Brown and Baines.
81,229. Were you a runner at that election?—No. I was only here a day; I was fetched from a float belonging to a light vessel.
81,230. Where were you floating?—Abreast of the Spurn.
81,231. How much money did you get?—10*s.*
81,232. What was it for?—To cover my expenses for the day, I expect.
81,233. It did not cost you anything to come here?—It did not. I should have had to pay my passage up and down if I had not begged it.
81,234. I suppose you call it for loss of time?—Yes, of course.
81,235. For vote and services?—Yes.
81,236. At the last election, who did you vote for?—The two blues.
81,237. Did you apply to have your name set down?—Yes.
81,238. Where did you get that done?—At the committee of Humber ward.
81,239. Did you get some money?—Yes; I got paid my running money, 3*s.* 6*d.* a day.
81,240. How much altogether?—About 30*s.*

JOHN OSBOURNE sworn, and examined. John Osbourne.

81,246. Who took it up for you?—The Reform party took it up for me.
81,247. The orange party?—Yes.
81,248. In 1841, did you vote for them, in consequence?—I voted for Clay and Thompson.
81,249. Were you set down as a runner?—Yes.

John Osbourne.

15th August 1853.

81,250. What money did you get for that?—30*s.*
81,251. Who paid you that?—I was paid by Mr. Anderson, at the Durham Ox.
81,252. At the next election, in 1847, who did you vote for?—Mr. Clay.
81,253. I believe you were a runner for him at that time?—Yes.
81,254. How much money did you get?—14*s.*, I believe.
81,255. Where were you paid?—At the Wilberforce Rooms.
81,256. At the last election you voted for Clay and Goderich?—I did.
81,257. Did you apply to be set down by Mr. Wilde?—I did not.
81,258. But your name is down there?—My employer, who I was working for at that time, got me put down.
81,259. He told you he had done it?—Yes.
81,260. You did not send to have your name struck out?—No.
81,261. Who did it for you?—Robert Foster of Scale Lane.
81,262. And you expected to be paid some money, either at or after the election?—Yes, I did.

William Smith.

WILLIAM SMITH sworn, and examined.

81,263. Where do you live?—Adelaide Street.
81,264. What is your business?—A painter.
81,265. What rent do you pay?—£5 10*s.*
81,266. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
81,267. When were you made a freeman?—I think it was in 1839.
81,268. At the expense of the blues or the orange?—The orange.
81,269. Did you vote for them, in consequence, at the next election?—No; I did not vote for them at the next election.
81,270. Did you not vote for Clay and Thompson?—No; Hanmer and James.
81,271. Why was that?—I was working with an employer.
81,272. The others paid for your freedom?—I was working for my employer, who was on the other side, and I felt rather bound to do it; that is all.
81,273. Did you pay back your freedom money?—I never was asked for it.
81,274. But you might have gone and offered it?—I never knew where it was paid.
81,275. You knew when they paid it that they meant you to vote for them?—I never asked any one for it.
81,276. You signed a paper, did you not?—I do not know; I will not be sure. If I did it is out of my memory.
81,277. And you voted against them?—Yes.
81,278. What money did you get for that?—£2 10*s.*
81,279. At the next election, in 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay and Brown.
81,280. How much money did you get for that?—£2 9*s.*
81,281. Were you a runner?—Yes.
81,282. Who paid you?—I am sure I do not know. I got it at two different places.
81,283. Were you of the party at the Baltic?—Yes.
81,284. At the last election you were down as a runner?—Yes; on Mr. Hodgson's list.
81,285. Who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.
81,286. How much money did you get for that?—Nothing. I was set down as a runner.
81,287. You were set down to be paid?—Yes.
81,288. And expected to get some money at or after the election?—Yes.

J. B. Spencer.

JOHN BARKER SPENCER sworn, and examined.

81,289. Where do you live?—New George Street.
81,290. What is your business?—A labourer.
81,291. What rent do you pay?—About 7*l.*
81,292. When were you made a freeman?—I never was a freeman.
81,293. You have been a voter?—Yes.
81,294. How do you vote, if you only pay 7*l.* rent?—I was placed in different circumstances at that time. I paid a larger rent.
81,295. At the election in 1841 did you vote?—No; I never was able to vote before the last election.
81,296. Then I believe you went to get put down on Mr. Wilde's list?—I never went at all.
81,297. You authorized somebody to do it?—No. The man that solicited my vote told me—after I had promised—told me he would get my name set down. He told me he had, and I know nothing at all further about it.
81,298. He told you that he had done it?—Yes.
81,299. Was that before the election?—After I promised my vote.
81,300. Who was it?—John Roberts.

J. B. Spencer.

15th August 1853.

81,301. Then you voted for Clay and Goderich?—Yes.

81,302. And at the time you voted you expected to be paid at or after the election?—I was not acquainted with the voting proceedings, as I had only been four years in Hull, and from what I learnt about putting down as a runner, I expected there was something for me. I never was called on, and never knew anything about it.

81,303. You expected there would be something for you?—Yes.

81,304. Where did you live when you voted?—At York Street.

81,305. What rent did you pay then?—£12.

William Turvey.

WILLIAM TURVEY sworn, and examined.

81,306. Where do you live?—No. 12, Adelaide Street.

81,307. What business are you?—A pianoforte maker.

81,308. What rent do you pay?—I am paying 16*l.* now.

81,309. Are you also a freeman?—Yes.

81,310. When were you made a freeman?—In 1826.

81,311. In 1841 did you vote for Clay and Thompson?—I believe I voted singly for Thompson, to the best of my recollection.

81,312. You were a runner for him, were you not?—No.

81,313. Were you not a runner at that election?—No, not to my knowledge.

81,314. Did you receive any money?—Not one farthing.

81,315. Neither at nor after his election?—No; none at all.

81,316. At the next election, in 1847, who did you vote for?—Singly for Brown.

81,317. Did you receive any money then?—No, not one halfpenny. I have two wages tickets in my pocket; presents that were presented to me by Mark Duffill. (Handing in two cards.)

81,318. 5*s.* tickets?—Yes.

81,319. What did you get them for?—I never got a halfpenny.

81,320. What did you get the tickets for?—I did not interfere at all in that election. I was not even canvassed by any one until about noon of the election day, when I was going to tender my vote. I met Mark Duffill, and he asked me who I was going to vote for. I said I was going to give a single vote for Brown.

81,321. What did you get those tickets for?—I got them expecting that they would pay me. If they offered to pay me 5*s.*, I should receive it.

81,322. Why did you not receive it?—Because they refused it. It is natural to make some little inquiry about it—about the 5*s.* I never got a halfpenny, and I thought it was no use making much bother about it.

81,323. I suppose the inquiry you made was after you voted?—Yes. I did not get the tickets until after I voted. Mark Duffill went with me to vote; he saw me vote, and afterwards he took me to the Bull and Sun, and John Walker presented me these tickets.

81,324. Had not Duffill spoken to you about them when you went up to the booth?—I did not understand the nature of what he was speaking about. He said, after I voted, "Come along with me."

81,325. What did he say before you voted?—Nothing at all with reference to any payment or tickets whatever. I was acquainted with the man. I had frequently seen him, and I thought merely it was a casual interest which he possessed, which caused him to go to the polling booth and see me vote.

81,326. How long after you voted did he give you these tickets?—Immediately. We went from the polling booth down to the Bull and Sun, and they were given to me.

81,327. I do not understand why they did not pay you?—Nor I either. I have no notion of men making propositions and not fulfilling them.

81,328. You voted the right way, did you not?—I voted according to the dictates of my own conscience, fancying, from what Mr. Brown spoke in a few words, that he appeared to be a most straightforward candidate, as far as I could judge.

81,329. Did you vote in accordance with these tickets?—I voted for Mr. Brown, but not in accordance with these tickets.

81,330. The tickets are for Mr. Brown?—Yes.

81,331. As you went up to poll did he not say it would be all right afterwards?—No; I do not recollect any such expression.

81,332. Something of that kind?—No; I do not recollect any such expression.

81,333. You say Mark Duffill spoke to you?—He spoke to me in passing over Mytongate Bridge. He says, "Mr. Turvey, have you voted?" I said, "No; I am just going to vote." "Who are you going to vote for?" That is the first time I saw any one connected with electioneering matters.

81,334. He asked, "Who are you going to vote for"?—I told you before, he said, "I will go with you;" and he took me from the polling booth to the Bull and Sun, and John Walker gave me these two tickets.

81,335. When you voted, did you expect to have anything at all?—Nothing at all. I had no notion.

81,336. Did that take you by surprise?—Yes; I must confess I felt somewhat surprised.

William Turvey.

15th August 1853.

81,337. Did you take those tickets anywhere to get the money?—Yes.

81,338. Where did you take them to get the money?—I made an application at some room; I think somewhere in Chariot Street, where they told me they were paying the men. I never could find any gentleman of the committee paying money, consequently I put them in my pocket, and they have laid in a drawer ever since.

81,339. Did you know Mr. Mitchell, the tobacconist?—Yes.

81,340. He paid those tickets, I believe?—I do not know.

81,341. Did you apply to him?—I do not recollect applying to him personally.

81,342. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

81,343. You were put down as a runner in one or two places, I believe?—Yes; I was put down, I believe, in two places. I found I was on Mr. Wilde's list, and I was on the list for Osborn Street.

81,344. When you got down on those lists you expected you would be paid for it at some time?—Yes.

81,345. That was not against your conscience?—No.

Robert Watkinson.

ROBERT WATKINSON sworn, and examined.

81,346. Where do you live?—Wentworth Street, Drypool.

81,347. What business are you?—A shipwright.

81,348. What rent do you pay?—Six guineas.

81,349. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

81,350. When were you made a freeman?—In 1841.

81,351. Or 1839?—No; 1841, I believe.

81,352. At whose expense?—My own expense.

81,353. Did you vote at that election?—No.

81,354. In 1847 who did you vote for?—No one. I was not at home.

81,355. At the last election, in 1852, who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

81,356. And I believe you got your name set down in Mr. Wilde's list?—I got my name set down in Bishop Lane.

81,357. And you expected to get some money at or after the election?—I was set down as a runner.

81,358. And you expected to get some money for it?—Yes.

John Butler.

JOHN BUTLER sworn, and examined.

81,359. Where do you live?—Dock Street.

81,360. What business are you?—A master tailor.

81,361. What rent do you pay?—£11 10*s.*

81,362. Are you a freeman?—No.

81,363. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—I cannot remember.

81,364. Did you vote in 1841?—Yes.

81,365. Who for?—I think it was for Thompson.

81,366. Did you receive any money for your vote?—No; not a farthing.

81,367. Did you receive any money at all?—No.

81,368 At the next election, in 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay and Baines, I believe.

81,369. Did you receive any money then?—No, nothing.

81,370. At or after the election?—No, nothing.

81,371. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

81,372. Had you got your name set down at Wilde's?—No.

81,373. Did you get your name set down as a runner anywhere?—No.

81,374. Nowhere at all?—I never got my name set down for anything this last election.

81,375. Were you paid any money?—Nothing.

81,376. Did you get any money in 1841, from Stark?—I got 5*s.*; that is all I ever got at Mr. Clay's election.

81,377. How does that agree with what you swore just now; that you never got a farthing?—I never got anything that last election.

81,378. I asked you distinctly as to 1841, just as well as the last election, and you said positively you got nothing?—I never got anything but 5*s.* I got set down as a runner.

81,379. And you got paid 5*s.*?—Yes.

81,380. Who by?—Some one in Parliament Street.

81,381. Who did you run for?—It was for Mr. Clay.

81,382. And you voted for Mr. Clay, did you not?—Yes; Clay and Baines.

81,383. You are upon your oath, remember?—I have not kept account of any of them, and I do not remember.

81,384. Perhaps you can remember whether you received any money at any of the elections?—I never received anything but 5*s.*; that is all that I ever received.

John Butler.

15th August 1853.

81,385. You said you were not set down for the orange at the last election; were you set down for the blues?—Yes; for the blues I was.

81,386. As a runner?—No; I was set down for a clerk.

81,387. At the last election did you vote for Moore and Butler?—No.

HENRY HARGRAVE sworn, and examined.

Henry Hargrave.

81,388. Where do you live?—Parker Street.

81,389. What is your business?—A silk mercer.

81,390. What rent do you pay?—£15.

81,391. Are you a freeman?—No.

81,392. At the election of 1841, were you entitled to vote?—Yes.

81,393. Did you vote for Clay and Thompson at that election?—Yes; I think I did.

81,394. Did you get some money?—Yes. I was put on at a committee room; to attend a committee room at Bramham's, in Whitefriars Gate.

81,395. Did Mr. Stark put you on his list?—I do not know who sent me. I was sent by the committee to take charge of the committee room in Whitefriars Gate, and there was a runner with me. We had nothing to do. The people came up, and applied to know if their names were here and there.

81,396. And applied for their names to be set down?—Yes.

81,397. Did you put them down?—No.

81,398. What did you do?—I sent them up to the central committee room.

81,399. What did you get paid?—5*s.* a day.

81,400. For how many days?—Six days, I think there was.

81,401. What room was this?—A man of the name of Bramham kept it at that time; he is since dead.

81,402. Was it a public house?—Yes.

81,403. And you and the runner sat there?—Yes; we sat in the room.

81,404. And nobody else?—No; not a soul, except any person came up to see what we were doing; but no persons came up, scarcely.

81,405. Were you on the list of six day runners?—No; I was on no list as a runner. I was clerk there, if there was any clerk wanted.

81,406. Who employed you?—I think Mr. Jones and Mr. Galloway.

81,407. At 5*s.* a day?—Yes.

81,408. Were you paid?—Yes.

81,409. You got 30*s.* altogether?—Yes; from Mr. Galloway.

81,410. At the next election, in 1847, who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.

81,411. Did you receive any money that election?—Yes.

81,412. How much?—15*s.*

81,413. What was that for?—For being on the committee next door to us. There was a person of the name of Wharam kept a public house, and I was to be one of the committee, I suppose.

81,414. And you got 5*s.* a day?—Yes.

81,415. They do not generally pay the committee men, do they?—I do not know; I was paid; I did nothing at all; I was clerking a little there.

81,416. At the last election, who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

81,417. Did you get any money then?—Yes; Mr. Hodgson sent me for three weeks, and afterwards he said he would give me a sovereign out of his own pocket.

81,418. I suppose you did not care what pocket it came out of?—I did not ask him.

81,419. What was it for?—For canvassing. I was three weeks canvassing for Clay and Goderich.

81,420. Who set you on to canvass?—I set myself on to canvass.

81,421. And then you were rewarded with 1*l.*?—Yes; Mr. Hodgson said I was highly entitled to something, and he said, "Here, Hargrave, I give you this out of my own pocket."

JAMES HILTON BERNARD sworn and examined.

J. H. Bernard.

81,422. Where do you live?—No. 27, Windsor Street.

81,423. What business are you?—I am superintendent of the marine telegraph here.

81,424. Do you pay rent for a house?—Yes.

81,425. What is it?—£17 per annum.

81,426. Are you also a freeman?—No.

81,427. At which election were you first entitled to vote?—1847 was the first.

81,428. Who did you vote for?—Brown and Baines, I believe.

81,429. Did you take any part as a committee man?—Not the slightest.

81,430. Or receive any money in any way?—No.

81,431. Did any pass through your hands?—Not the slightest.

81,432. Did you pay any voters?—No, I did not.

J. H. Bernard.

15th August 1853.

81,433. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
81,434. Were you on any committee?—No.
81,435. I believe you managed one of the clearing houses?—I was there.
81,436. Did you understand the scheme?—No, I did not; only from what was explained to me.
81,437. Did you receive any money?—I did.
81,438. What did you get?—I believe it was 1*l.* I received for the day's service. I was only there one day; the day of the election.
81,439. I suppose you can hardly tell what you did?—Yes; I know well what I did.
81,440. What did you do?—The form of proceeding was, a lot of runners came to the room and brought the reports.
81,441. Who appointed you to this place?—I believe I first applied to Mr. Ash.
81,442. What for?—I was not particularly engaged at the time, and I heard there were lots of situations, or not exactly situations, but employment, and I thought I might as well have some.
81,443. Was that a little before the election?—I believe it was a day or two only before the election.
81,444. Mr. Ash was one of the committee?—Yes, I think he was.
81,445. Did he send for you, and offer you this place?—I believe he did.
81,446. And you promised your vote to them, I suppose?—I had promised previous to that to Mr. Bramley Moore and Mr. Butler, when they called to solicit.
81,447. When did you get paid the 1*l.*?—A few days after the election; perhaps ten days.
81,448. Where were you paid the 1*l.*?—At Mr. Ash's office.
81,449. Did you receive any other money?—Five shillings, which I paid for getting two flags made, and they paid me afterwards.
81,450. I suppose the flags were blue?—Yes.
81,451. They were made by some of the ladies in your house?—Yes.
81,452. Were you the superintendent of the telegraph at that time?—Yes, I was.
81,453. How did you manage the business?—We were repairing one of the stations, and were interrupted.
81,454. You could not use it?—No, we could not.
81,455. And so you applied for employment?—Yes.
81,456. You applied some days before?—Yes.
81,457. They might have sent for you?—Yes, they might.
81,458. I want to know whether you paid anybody to take your place?—No, I did not; the communication was interrupted at that time in consequence of a warehouse being built between the two stations. It is a semaphoric telegraph.
81,459. I suppose that you receive from it a regular pay:—Yes.
81,460. By the week?—No; I get it annually.

John Smith.

JOHN SMITH sworn, and examined.

81,461. Where do you live?—Kingston Court, Blanket Row.
81,462. What business are you?—A messenger for the Bankruptcy Court.
81,463. What rent do you pay?—£10.
81,464. When were you made a freeman?—I never was a freeman.
81,465. At which election were you first entitled to vote as a householder?—I never did vote.
81,466. Did you make anybody else vote?—No.
81,467. Did you pay any money to anybody?—No.
81,468. Did you take any people up to vote?—No.
81,469. Was a room taken at your house?—No.
81,470. Cannot you tell us something about the election?—I was not engaged in the least with it.
81,471. Not at all?—No.
81,472. Either of the others?—I was messenger at the other, for the South Myton committee.
81,473. But had no vote?—No.

G. P. Bell.

GEORGE PARKINSON BELL sworn, and examined.

81,474. Where do you live?—Upon the Hessle Road.
81,475. What business are you?—A coal dealer.
81,476. What rent do you pay?—I am in lodgings at present in Alfred Street.
81,477. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
81,478. When were you made a freeman?—In 1818.
81,479. At the election of 1841 did you vote?—Yes.

G. P. Bell.

15th August 1853.

81,480. Who for?—The blues.

81,481. Did you receive any money for your vote?—Six months after I had a sovereign brought to my house by a gentleman of the name of Milner.

81,482. In 1847, who did you vote for?—The blues.

81,483. Mr. Brown, do you mean?—Mr. Brown and Mr. Clay, I believe; but I am not certain.

81,484. Did you not receive some money from Mr. Brown?—Yes; 10*s.*, a fortnight after.

81,485. Did you receive any from Mr. Clay?—I got that 10*s.*, about a fortnight after, paid by a man of the name of Conkerton, a painter.

81,486. In 1852, who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

81,487. Were you set down as a runner?—No.

81,488. Did you get any money?—No.

81,489. None at all?—Nothing.

81,490. Did you get any promise?—No; I considered myself an independent burgess, and I voted so.

Mr. J. Stubbing.

Mr. John Stubbing sworn, and examined.

81,491. Are you a brewer living at Hedon?—Yes.

81,492. Have you lived there many years?—Fourteen or fifteen.

81,493. Are you a voter in this borough?—No.

81,494. Have you never been?—I was at one or two elections; I think as a householder, when I lived in Hull.

81,495. Were you in 1841?—No, I was not.

81,496. Then it was before 1841?—Yes.

81,497. Have you taken an interest for the blue party at the elections in Hull?—A little; not a great deal since 1841.

81,498. Did you take any part in the election of 1841?—Yes; I took a little.

81,499. Did you make the arrangements for the Hedon voters in 1841?—Not the whole of them.

81,500. For some of them; for such as voted for the blue party?—No; I did not make the whole of them. I began with them, and some other parties began to interfere, and then I gave up, and did nothing more in it.

81,501. Can you tell me what the arrangement was in 1841 with them?—As to what?

81,502. As to the payment of money?—There had been no arrangement whatever with the voters, as to the payment of money.

81,503. Do you mean that they were not paid money, as for travelling expenses?—No, decidedly not; they never were dealt with in that way at all. The practice always has been, that these men have been pretty well treated, and after the election they sometimes had half a sovereign, and sometimes a sovereign a man; but there was never any arrangement made previous to the election.

81,504. Has it been the usual course that men should be treated, that is, given refreshments and brought to Hull?—Yes.

81,505. And after the election, that they should receive a sum of money?—Generally they have some, but there never has been any arrangement; it has always been left to the committee to settle after what they should have, and upon some occasions they have had 10*s.* a man, and some others 12*s.* a man.

81,506. Then they have been treated, not individually, but as a party?—Yes; as a party.

81,507. Were they so treated in 1841?—Yes, they were.

81,508. Were they upon that occasion treated and brought to Hull, and did they after the election receive a sum of money?—I believe so. I did not pay the men in 1841.

81,509. What part in that arrangement did you take?—I am sure I am not able to say what part in the arrangement I should take; I should take the principal part in the commencement of the arrangement.

81,510. That is, you canvassed the men?—Yes.

81,511. And obtained their names or promises?—Yes.

81,512. That was upon the understanding that they should be treated in the ordinary way?—That might be the understanding, but there never would be anything of that kind pass. We had gone on for several years together, and we understood one another; and I believe the fact was, that I set down a good many names without having asked them at all as to their promises.

81,513. When you did obtain a promise from any one of the men, it was understood between you and him that the ordinary course would follow?—They might understand it, but it would be taken as a matter of course.

81,514. For both sides?—Yes.

81,515. Supposing you did not intend to take that course, and did not intend to pay them, you would tell them so, would you not?—I do not know, for paying them, if they had not been intended to be paid, whether I should tell them or not.

Mr. J. Stubbing.

15th August 1853.

81,516. Would not that be the fair course, considering the understanding at Hedon?—I do not think it was understood they would be paid for their votes.

81,517. But that they would be paid a sum of money?—I do not know that that was the understanding; I am not certain; but it strikes me, that there have been elections where they have had nothing.

81,518. Were they not dissatisfied?—I cannot say that they were; I am now speaking only from memory.

81,519. You took no part in 1841 in the payment?—No.

81,520. How many voters do you think voted for the blue party upon that occasion at Hedon?—I cannot say; there were a good many more than now.

81,521. How many, as far as you can give us?—I should think near thirty, and I should not be surprised if it was more than thirty.

81,522. And you understood at the time that they were treated in the ordinary way?—Yes.

81,523. And paid something afterwards?—Yes; I suppose they would be.

81,524. Who were the parties that took the arrangement out of your hands?—Mr. Hammond came from Hull.

81,525. Mr. Charles Hammond?—No; Mr. Thomas Hammond.

81,526. Who else?—I do not recollect anybody else. It was not exactly taken out of my hands, but he ordered the supper and took the arrangements, and sent for me, and I did not go.

81,527. Do you know what they did get?—I believe they got a sovereign each, but that I only know from what I have heard from them.

81,528. You have heard some of the men say that they have had it?—Yes, I have.

81,529. At the election of 1847, did you take part for Mr. Brown?—No; I did not take any part in the least.

81,530. Did you know that the men were treated in the ordinary way?—I have understood that they were, but I have never taken the least part in it.

81,531. On looking at that list, can you recognize it as a list of the Hedon voters (handing a list to the witness)?—Yes.

81,532. Do you know at all who did make the arrangement in 1847?—Mr. Iveson and Mr. Park.

81,533. Did you take no part in it?—Not the slightest.

81,534. I understand that you took no part in the election of 1847 at all?—Not the least.

81,535. At the last election did you take any part?—I did.

81,536. What arrangement did you make with them upon that occasion?—I did not make any arrangement with the burgesses upon that occasion. I was not the principal in the arrangement upon that occasion.

81,537. Who was?—Mr. Iveson.

81,538. What was the course pursued this time?—They were treated as usual.

81,539. Was any communication made to them that they would not be paid?—No; I think not. I am not aware that there was.

81,540. Do you know whether they were paid?—I believe not.

81,541. Have you heard them express disappointment at not being paid?—I have heard something said. They sometimes asked me when they were going to be paid, and expressions of that kind.

81,542. From what you heard in Hedon, have you any doubt that they did expect to be paid when they came here?—I think it was doubtful at the time. I think it was generally understood at the time that economy would be more the order of the day than had been. I think it was understood among them that the pay would be very doubtful.

81,543. You say that economy would be the order of the day; you do not say purity?—I do not know. I think I could not improve upon it.

81,544. Have you not heard in Hedon the men expressing disappointment at not being paid?—I have not heard any expression of disappointment exactly.

81,545. Do you know whether any of them have not actually asked for payment since?—I think not, in any direct way. I think several of them have asked me when they would be getting anything, and expressions of that kind.

81,546. Is it any part of the system at Hedon to feed these men, and treat them at other times than at elections; for instance at Christmas?—No; not at all.

81,547. Have you ever given them a supper at Christmas?—No.

81,548. A little beer?—No.

81,549. Have you never given them refreshments at Christmas, and at the same time made a payment of 10*s.* each, for the purpose of keeping them together?—No. There was a payment of 10*s.* each to them upon one occasion. I cannot recollect what it was about, but it was either the Queen's marriage day or birth day, or something of that kind.

81,550. What year was that?—I do not recollect what year it was.

81,551. Was it since 1841?—I am not sure about that; but that is the only time that there has been anything of that kind.

81,552. The Queen's birth day was a sufficient excuse, but it was for the purpose of an election, was it not?—I do not know that it was for the purpose of the election, but it was given to those men who usually voted for the blues.

Mr. J. Stubbing.

15th August 1853.

81,553. Do you know who gave it to them?—Yes.
81,554. Who was it?—I paid it myself to them.
81,555. Cannot you recollect what year it was?—No, I cannot.
81,556. Was it close before, or after any election?—No, I do not think it was. I remember the circumstance perfectly well, and I have tried and asked a great many people to refresh my memory, but I cannot recollect when it was.
81,557. You cannot recollect whether it was about the time of the 1841 election, or not?—No, I cannot; all I recollect about the affair is, that there was something of a public nature going on at Hedon at the time. I know there was a service at the church, and I was called out of church to have the money given to me.
81,558. Who gave it you then?—Mr. Wilkinson.
81,559. Which Mr. Wilkinson?—Mr. Charles Wilkinson.
81,560. It was not your own money?—No.
81,561. It came from the party?—I suppose so.
81,562. How far is Hedon from Hull?—About five miles and a half.
81,563. I suppose the expense of getting to and fro is not above 18*d.* or 2*s.*?—18*d.* or 2*s.* each way. There are conveyances that would come for less, but that is the coach fare.
81,564. 10*s.* a man you have spoken of; that would leave a good surplus over the actual expenses?—Yes.

Mr. G. R. Park.

Mr. Godfrey Richard Park sworn, and examined.

81,565. Are you a householder, living at Hedon?—Yes.
81,566. How long have you lived there?—I have been in practice there about ten years.
81,567. Are you a voter for this borough?—No.
81,568. You took no part in the election of 1841?—None whatever.
81,569. You were not there?—No, I was not there.
81,570. In the election of 1847, did you take a part?—Yes, I did.
81,571. Was that on behalf of Mr. Brown?—No; on behalf of Mr. Baines.
81,572. Were you retained?—I was retained by one or two of his committee.
81,573. Was that to make the arrangements for the Hedon voters?—It was.
81,574. And did you make the arrangements?—I did.
81,575. On behalf of Mr. Baines' committee?—Yes.
81,576. Who were the persons who retained you?—I cannot say exactly who. I believe Mr. Wilkinson and Mr. Bright and Mr. Carrick were present, and some more. I cannot say which of them instructed me to make the canvass.
81,577. Where was it?—I believe at the George Inn.
81,578. In Hull?—Yes.
81,579. What instructions did they give you?—They wished me to make a canvass of the voters, and if they would vote for Mr. Baines, to make an agreement for bringing them to the poll.
81,580. What else?—That was pretty nearly all.
81,581. Did they tell you if the men wanted money they were to have it?—I gave them to understand there would be certain expenses.
81,582. You mean by that, certain expenses in paying the men?—In getting them to the poll.
81,583. What did you say?—I cannot recollect what I said.
81,584. What did they say to you in answer?—They said they should pay all reasonable expenses.
81,585. Did you understand at all that you were shut off from influencing the men by payment?—I made no payment before the election.
81,586. Never mind before or after; I am asking you as to their instructions?—No; there was nothing of that sort in my instructions.
81,587. You were not forbidden to use money as a means of influencing the voters?—No; that never was mentioned at all. I do not suppose that that was thought of.
81,588. Did you then proceed to canvass the Hedon voters?—Yes.
81,589. Would that be the list of the persons who voted on that occasion (handing a list to the witness)?—Yes; I suppose it would.
81,590. What arrangement did you make?—I made an arrangement that the actual expenses of conveying the voters to the poll, should be paid half by Mr. Baines and half by Mr. Brown; and that agreement was carried out.
81,591. Did you make the arrangement that these parties should have refreshments?—Yes.
81,592. At Hedon and at Hull?—Yes.
81,593. That they should be brought here free of expense to themselves?—Yes.
81,594. And that they should be paid afterwards?—I did not make any arrangement with them about paying them afterwards.
81,595. You said nothing about it?—No.
81,596. Is that so?—To the best of my recollection it is so.
81,597. Did you see anybody on behalf of Mr. Brown's committee, to make arrangements

Mr. G. R. Park
15th August 1853.

with them?—What arrangements I made, I made with Mr. Iveson, who was acting for Mr. Brown.

81,598. And Mr. Brown was to pay half of the expenses?—Yes.

81,599. Did you and Mr. Iveson arrange that you were each of you to pay the men a guinea apiece?—We arranged to pay them a pound each; that is to say, 10*s.* from each candidate.

81,600. That was for each vote?—Yes.

81,601. Then the men who voted for Mr. Baines, according to that, were to get from Mr. Baines refreshments and their carriage?—Yes.

81,602. And how much money?—10*s.*

81,603. Did you understand that that was the ordinary course of proceeding with the Hedon voters?—I had never had anything to do with an election before, but I believe it was.

81,604. The men had the refreshments and were brought to Hull?—Yes; they had a breakfast and were brought to Hull.

81,605. Where they afterwards paid?—They were afterwards paid.

81,606. Who paid them?—I paid them the 10*s.*

81,607. For Mr. Baines?—Yes.

81,608. Where?—At Hedon.

81,609. How long after the election?—I do not know; it would be some few weeks after, perhaps.

81,610. Did they come to you to be paid?—I let them understand that I had this money for them, and they very soon came for it, in the course of a day or two.

81,611. They did not seem to express any surprise at it?—No, I am not aware that they did.

81,612. Was it not treated as the ordinary course, both by them and by you, that they should be paid?—They had no understanding from me of what they should get.

81,613. Nothing was said?—No.

81,614. Did it not seem to you that it was the understanding at Hedon, that they always should have something?—I was under the impression that they always had had something, and they possibly looked for it again.

81,615. Did they not seem to expect it?—I cannot say that.

81,616. Did they express any surprise when you gave them the money?—I cannot say that they did.

81,617. You paid them 10*s.* each?—Yes; such as voted for Mr. Baines.

81,618. Was Mr. Iveson present when you paid your 10*s.*?—No.

81,619. Where was his paid?—I do not know where his was paid. I paid mine at my office.

81,620. Then you do not know that his were paid?—No.

81,621. Have you heard from the men that they were paid?—I do not know that I have; but I have no doubt that they have been paid.

81,622. Would this, in your judgment, be the list of men who were paid (list marked F.)?—Yes; I should say so.

81,623. Were there any men who plumped for Mr. Baines?—No, I believe not.

81,624. Have you a list of the persons that you paid?—Yes, I have a list of the persons that I paid.

81,625. Are there none that voted only for Mr. Baines?—I believe not; there is one that I believe voted only for Mr. Brown.

81,626. There was one, you think, plumped for Brown?—Yes. I think you will find him in that list.

81,627. He was paid the whole pound for Mr. Brown, was he not?—I suppose he would be; he got nothing from me.

81,628. At the last election of 1852, did you take part again?—No, not the slightest.

81,629. Had you nothing to do with it?—Nothing to do with it.

81,630. And knew nothing of it?—And knew nothing of it.

81,631. The only election in which you have been engaged, is the one in 1847?—Yes; the only one.

Mr. A. Iveson.

Mr. Arthur Iveson sworn, and examined.

81,632. What is your profession?—An attorney at law.

81,633. At Hedon?—Yes.

81,634. How long have you lived there?—I was born there, and have been there ever since.

81,635. Are you a voter for this borough?—No.

81,636. Have you ever been?—No.

81,637. Did you take any part in the election of 1841?—Yes.

81,638. What part did you take in the election of 1841?—The part I took in the election of 1841, was to canvass as many as I could for the blues.

81,639. Were you engaged to make the arrangement?—No, I was not an agent at all.

81,640. Did you, in point of fact, make any arrangement with the voters?—I never made any arrangement with the voters in 1841 at all.

81,641. You knew nothing of the money part of the business?—No.

81,642. In 1847, did you take any part?—Yes; I was engaged for Mr. Brown.

81,643. Who engaged you?—Mr. Wells.

81,644. Mr. Robert Wells, the solicitor?—Yes.

81,645. What were your instructions?—My instructions were to canvass the Hedon voters, and obtain as many votes as I could for Mr. Brown, which I did.

81,646. Were there any further instructions?—No.

81,647. Had you before that heard of the ordinary system of securing the Hedon voters?—I knew of the system.

81,648. Do you agree with the last witness that that was to give them refreshments, bearing them free of expense, and to pay them after the election was over a sum of money?—Yes.

81,649. And that was understood by the voters as well as by you?—Yes.

81,650. It was the ordinary course?—Yes.

81,651. You had no instructions restricting you from that ordinary course in 1847?—No.

81,652. Did you proceed to act upon your understanding of that system?—In 1847 the voters were met at a public house in Hedon, the Sir Charles Saunders. I went there, and engaged as many as I could to vote plumpers for Mr. Brown.

81,653. Did they seem to act as if they were a party?—How do you mean as a party?

81,654. You had not to act with each man separately, but they all acted upon the same agreement?—No; I acted with each man separately. I called each man out into the yard to canvass him.

81,655. Did they seem to you to have met at that public house for the purpose of making their electioneering arrangements?—I believe they met there at that public house that night from some person calling them on behalf of Mr. Baines, but who it was I do not know as a fact.

81,656. But they were met for that purpose?—Yes; met at that house; and as soon as I received my instructions I went there.

81,657. How many did you secure to vote plumpers for Mr. Brown?—I think twenty-five, with this understanding, that after I made use of them for Mr. Brown, that they should be at liberty, if I said so, to vote for Mr. Baines.

81,658. If you gave them leave?—Yes; my scheme was to get plumpers; to come over to Hull and get those plumpers to split with plumpers of Mr. Baines, so as to secure Mr. Brown's election.

81,659. That agreement they entered into?—Yes.

81,660. Twenty-five of them?—Yes; I think that was the number.

81,661. What were they to be paid?—I did not agree with them for any payment at all.

81,662. Was nothing said about it?—No.

81,663. Did those men afterwards vote for Brown and Baines?—No; they did not.

81,664. Who did they vote for?—Five of them voted plumpers for Brown, and the rest split with Baines.

81,665. Was that by your express leave or instructions?—Yes.

81,666. Did you make an arrangement with Mr. Park or Mr. Stubbing, or anybody for Mr. Baines?—No; I made no arrangement?—No.

81,667. You made no arrangement at all?—No.

81,668. Is that a list of persons that voted upon that occasion (handing list F. to the witness)?—Yes.

81,669. Were those persons treated and brought here free of expense, and did they not afterwards receive a payment on behalf of Mr. Brown?—Yes.

81,670. Who paid them?—I did not, all of them.

81,671. Where?—At Hedon.

81,672. How much did you pay them?—Ten shillings apiece for the single vote, and 1*l.* for a plumper; I only paid one plumper. These four plumpers were paid by some other person, not by me.

81,673. Are they Hedon voters?—They are Hedon voters, resident at Paul.

81,674. They were paid by somebody else?—Yes; they were paid by Mr. Stephenson.

81,675. Did you obtain the money from Mr. Brown's committee?—I have tried to charge my memory with who I received the money from, but I cannot.

81,676. You rendered an account, and was paid?—Yes; I got 27*l.* 8*s.*

81,677. That was paid on behalf of Mr. Brown?—Yes; but I do not know how.

81,678. And no objection was made as to the mode in which you had expended it?—No; I suppose that was the account I rendered.

81,679. Those payments would be within your instructions, as far as you understood them?—There were no instructions as to the payment of the voters at all before the election.

81,680. But you understood it so?—It is a regular understood thing that they do receive a pound a burgess.

81,681. Those payments would be within your understanding of the instructions that you received?—Yes.

Mr. A. Iveson.

15th August 1853.

81,682. And no objection was taken afterwards?—No.
81,683. At the last election did you take any part?—Yes.
81,684. Was that for the blue candidates?—Yes.
81,685. Who instructed you upon that occasion?—Mr. Wells.
81,686. Did he give you any particular instructions?—He did.
81,687. What were they?—He gave me instructions to canvass for Moore and Butler, and he gave me particular instructions as to any bribery or treating.
81,688. What did he say about that?—That there was neither to be any bribery or treating at all.
81,689. Was that all he said?—Yes.
81,690. Did you ask him for any explanation of that; how far you were to go?— No.
81,691. You were to act on your own judgment as to what bribery and treating was?—Yes; just so.
81,692. Did he furnish you clauses of the Bribery Act?—I do not recollect whether he did or not.
81,693. They seem to have been current at the time?—They were.
81,694. How did you proceed to act on your instructions?—I canvassed the burgesses, and never promised them anything.
81,695. Did you tell them the ordinary system at Hedon was to be departed from upon this occasion?—I told them I would have nothing to do with any treating or head money.
81,696. What did they say to that?—I do not know; they seemed all agreeable that it should be so.
81,697. I suppose they thought it would come in another shape?—I do not know what they thought.
81,698. You told them that was so?—Yes.
81,699. Did they promise to vote for you?—Yes.
81,700. How many?—That I cannot tell.
81,701. Did you give them a breakfast?—No.
81,702. Did they not have any refreshment at Hedon?—Yes; they had.
81,703. Was that paid for by the party?—Not by me.
81,704. You know that it was paid for by the party?—I do not know that it was paid for at all.
81,705. Do you know that the voters themselves did not pay for it?—I believe not; I do not know that they did not.
81,706. What did you do to carry out your instructions; only canvass them and leave them?—I merely canvassed them.
81,707. And then left them?—And then left them.
81,708. Do you know at all who took the after arrangements?—I think Mr. Stubbing interfered with them, but I do not know from whence he received his instructions.
81,709. Then they had a breakfast or refreshment at Hedon?—Yes.
81,710. And were brought to Hull free of expense?—Yes.
81,711. And they had more refreshment in Hull?—For anything I know.
81,712. Do you believe that they had?—I do not know anything about it; I never heard it.
81,713. Did they have anything upon the road?—That I do not know; I came here early in the morning, being the agent for the Lowgate booth.
81,714. Have they been paid anything since?—Not by me.
81,715. Any head money?—No.
81,716. Have you ever heard that they have?—No; I believe that they have not.
81,717. Not even their expenses of coming?—No; I think there was a carriage sent for them, and they came in and went back again.
81,718. Have you heard them complaining at all?—No.
81,719. None of them have ever complained to you that they have not been paid?—No.

Robert Kyme.

ROBERT KYME sworn, and examined.

81,720. Where do you live?—At Hedon.
81,721. What business are you?—A cordwainer.
81,722. And a voter for this borough?—Yes.
81,723. Are you a freeman?—Yes.
81,724. How long have you been a freeman?—Ever since 1816.
81,725. What rent do you pay?—No rent; I am in an hospital.
81,726. Did you live at Hedon since the year 1841?—I did.
81,727. Who did yote for?—I am sure I cannot say, but I always voted for the blues.
81,728. Then that would be for Hanmer and James?—Yes; I never voted any other colour.
81,729. Were you paid any money yourself at that election?—I am sure I cannot say exactly, but I think I got a sovereign.
81,730. Who do you think you got it from?—I am sure I cannot say.

Robert Kyme.

15th August 1853.

81,731. Where do you think it was paid?—It would be paid in Hedon.

81,732. Did you at all assist in getting other people to vote at Hedon?—No; I did not.

81,733. Did you assist in paying other people?—No, I did not; I was not of that quality.

81,734. Were you ever employed by Mr. Stubbing?—No.

81,735. Did you assist him at all?—No.

81,736. Not in paying the Hedon voters?—No; I never had any money pass through my hands.

81,737. What was your sovereign for that you got?—For my expenses from Hedon to Hull, and from Hull to Hedon again.

81,738. Did you walk here?—No; it was not likely that a man with a wooden leg could walk here.

81,739. Did they bring you here?—I came here with a conveyance the election day morning.

81,740. And you did not pay for it?—No; I paid nothing.

81,741. Did they give you some breakfast, dinner, and luncheon?—There was a breakfast, I believe, but no dinner.

81,742. In the year 1847, who did you vote for?—The blues still.

81,743. Who was that, Mr. Brown; did you vote for Brown and Baines?—Yes; I think I should.

81,744. You were brought here upon that occasion, were you not?—Yes.

81,745. And had your refreshments?—Yes.

81,746. And were you paid 10*s.* for Mr. Baines and 10*s.* for Mr. Brown?—Yes.

81,747. Did you take any part in paying the others?—No; I never took any part of that kind.

81,748. At the last election who did you vote for; did you vote for the blues again?—Yes; I never voted for anybody else.

81,749. Did you come from Hedon upon this occasion?—Yes.

81,750. Who canvassed you?—Mr. Iveson and Mr. Park, I believe.

81,751. Did they at all tell you that there was to be a different system this time?—There was nothing mentioned of the system.

81,752. When you came did you expect to get your money, as you always had done?—No; I never looked for it.

81,753. Why not?—Things began to be worse in that department.

81,754. It has been getting worse and worse?—It has been getting worse and worse, and it is getting worse still.

81,755. Did you think it was so bad then that you would get nothing?—I did think so.

81,756. Have you never asked for anything since?—The last election I have got nothing, but the middle one I got 10*s.* from Mr. Arthur Iveson, and 10*s.* from Mr. Park.

81,757. I am asking as to the last election; did you, after the election was over, go to anybody to get any money?—No.

81,758. And never asked for it?—Never asked for it.

George Batty.

GEORGE BATTY sworn, and examined.

81,759. Do you live at Hedon?—Yes.

81,760. What business are you?—A tailor.

81,761. What rent do you pay?—I vote as a freeman, or else I pay 10*l.*

81,762. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1818, I believe.

81,763. In 1841, who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.

81,764. Were you brought to Hull free of expense?—Yes.

81,765. And had refreshments?—Yes, I had at Hedon; but I think not at Hull

81,766. Were you paid a sum of money after the election?—Yes; I was paid 10*s.* for each party for my expenses.

81,767. You were paid 1*l.*?—Yes.

81,768. You say it was for your expenses?—I expected so; there was nothing more that ever I got.

81,769. All your expenses had been paid for you, had they not?—No; I believe I had my dinner to get that day, and that is rather uncommon, and ought to be, for the election day.

81,770. Did you pay a guinea for it?—No, certainly not.

81,771. In 1847, did you vote for Baines and Brown?—Yes.

81,772. You were then brought to Hull free of expense?—Yes.

81,773. And were paid 10*s.* for each candidate?—I have made a mistake: in James and Hanmer's time, to the best of my recollection, I never got a farthing. I was running on the 1847 election. I got 10*s.* each in 1847.

81,774. Not in 1841?—Not in 1841. I may be mistaken, but I have no memorandum or anything that can bring it to my recollection.

George Batty.

15th August 1853.

81,775. Will you venture to say you got nothing in 1841?—In 1841 I do not recollect that I got a farthing.

81,776. Do you recollect that you got nothing?—Nothing at all.

81,777. You are sure of that?—I am sure of that as far as my recollection goes.

81,778. At the last election, did you get any money?—No.

81,779. Did you vote for Moore and Butler?—Yes.

81,780. Were you brought here free of expense?—Yes.

81,781. And you had refreshments?—I had, at Hedon.

Archer Brown.

ARCHER BROWN sworn, and examined.

81,782. Do you live at Hedon?—Thorngreenbald at present.

81,788. Was your freedom taken up for you?—Yes.

81,789. By which party?—The blues.

81,790. Did you vote in consequence in 1841?—Yes.

81,791. For Hanmer and James?—Yes.

81,792. Were you paid any money?—I got a sovereign after the election.

81,793. Was that as for your travelling expenses from Hedon?—Yes.

81,794. You were brought here free of expense?—I was.

81,795. And paid?—Yes.

81,796. Was that all you got?—All I got.

81,797. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

81,798. Were you brought to Hull free of expense?—Yes.

81,799. Were you fed?—No.

81,800. Did you have no refreshment?—A little.

81,801. And were you paid 10*s.* for each of the candidates?—I got 10*s.*

81,802. From each of them?—From one party.

81,803. Did you get 10*s.* from the other?—No.

81,804. Why not?—I do not know.

81,805. Did you not ask for it?—I never asked for a penny yet.

81,806. You got 10*s.* from Mr. Brown then?—I do not know from which party it was.

81,807. Are you quite sure you only got 10*s.*?—Yes.

81,808. Have you said that the lawyer kept your money?—I do not know who kept it; I never got it.

81,809. Have you never said so?—No; I have no occasion. I do not know that he had.

81,810. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

81,811. Were you brought to Hull this time?—Yes.

81,812. Did you have refreshments?—Yes.

81,813. Did you get any money?—No.

81,814. Did you expect any when you voted?—No; I do not know that I did.

81,815. You seem to hesitate; tell me the truth, did you expect any?—I expected our expenses the same as before.

81,816. You expected to have the same as you always had?—Yes.

81,817. Did they tell you at any time you were to have it?—No; and they did not tell me I was to have them.

81,818. They never did tell you that at any election?—No.

George Brown.

GEORGE BROWN sworn, and examined.

81,819. Do you live at Hedon?—Yes.

81,820. What business are you?—I look after a coal trade.

81,821. What rent do you pay?—I do not pay any rent; it is my own house.

81,822. What is it rated at?—£10.

81,823. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

81,824. How long have you been a freeman?—I think in 1820 or 1821 I took up my freedom.

81,825. In 1841, who did you vote for?—James and Hanmer.

81,826. Were you brought to Hull free of expense?—I was.

81,827. Did you have refreshments?—I did.

81,828. Were you paid any money after the election?—Yes.

81,829. How much?—A sovereign.

81,830. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Baines and Brown.

81,831. Were you brought to Hull free of expense?—Yes.

George Brown.

15th August 1853.

81,832. And had refreshments?—Yes.
81,833. And were paid 10*s.* for each of the candidates?—Yes.
81,834. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
84,835. Were you brought to Hull free of expense?—Yes.
81,836. And had refreshments?—Yes.
81,837. Were you paid any money?—No.
81,838. At the time you voted, did you expect to have any?—No; I did not know whether they would pay for the loss of time or not. I never got any.
81,839. Did you think they would?—I rather expected they would pay me for the loss of time.
81,840. Was it according to the usual custom?—No; there was no custom at all about it. It was their own payment.

David Brown.

DAVID BROWN sworn, and examined.

81,841. Do you live at Hedon?—I do.
81,842. What business are you?—A plumber and glazier.
81,843. What rent do you pay?—Eight guineas.

81,845. How long have you been a freeman?—Since 1820.
81,846. In 1841, who did you vote for?—I was out of the district at the time.
81,847. In 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay, singly.
81,848. Were you then living at Hedon?—At Hull.
81,849. Were you then paid any money?—None.
81,850. Did you get nothing from the party?—No; nothing whatever.
81,851. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
81,852. Then you were living at Hedon?—I was at Hedon.
81,853. Were you brought here free of expense?—I believe so.
81,854. You must know it?—Yes.
81,855. You had refreshments, and you were with a party of Hedon voters?—I had a small share of refreshments.
81,856. Did you have any money?—No; none whatever.
81,857. Did you understand before you came here that you were to have money?—No, I did not expect any.

William Brown.

81,875. And had refreshments?—Yes.
81,876. And no money?—Not a farthing.
81,877. Were you disappointed at that?—Rather.
81,878. You expected it?—We always had got something.
81,879. And they told you nothing to the contrary?—Yes; they gave us to understand there was a different system.
81,880. How came you to expect it?—Because we thought somebody would pay it.

Isaac Burnham.

15th August 1853.

ISAAC BURNHAM sworn, and examined.

81,881. Where do you live?—At Preston.
81,882. Is that near Hedon?—A mile off.
81,883. What business are you?—I am no business at present.
81,884. What business were you?—A farmer.
81,885. What rent do you pay now?—It is not my rentage; I am free born.
81,886. What rent do you pay for your house, or whatever you have?—About 6*l.* or 7*l.* and taxes, I suppose.
81,887. How long have you been a freeman?—Ever since 1815, I think.
81,888. In the year 1841, who did you vote for?—Hanmer and James.
81,889. Were you then living at Preston?—Yes; I lived at Preston all my time.
81,890. Were you brought here free of expense?—I do not know; I rode in a coach.
81,891. You did not pay for it?—No, I never paid for it. There was a coach or something to come in. I did not know there was anything amiss, or I would have come another way.
81,892. Did they give you something to eat and drink?—No, I got nothing to eat. I think I got a glass of ale after the election time. There was a place I resorted to; I went in accidentally, and they said I was to have refreshment.
81,893. After the election, were you paid any money?—I never received anything.
81,894. Did you not receive 1*l.*?—No. I did not. With Mr. Baines and Mr. Brown. I received 10*s.* for each.

82,263. Did you understand that everybody set down in Saville Street would be paid something after the election?—I understood they would have to work for it.

82,264. Why did you not go to work?—Because I could not. They sent for me to be a messenger; I went and they set my name down, but I did not go the next day.

82,265. Why not?—Because I could not get leave.

82,266. You had your own business to attend to?—Yes.

82,267. When you voted you did not expect to have any money?—No, not at all. The first time I was canvassed I promised Clay and Goderich.

82,268. At the time you had your name set down, did you not expect some money?—Not without I worked.

82,269. You knew they would not give you work unless you promised to vote for them?—I never applied for any work.

82,270. What did you go to apply for?—They sent for me to be a messenger.

82,271. And you agreed your name should be set down?—Yes, if I could get to the booth.

82,272. You knew they would not give you work or money unless you voted for them; did you not know that?—That did not influence my vote.

82,273. Answer my question. Did you not know, when they asked you to have your name set down, that they would neither give you employment nor money unless you voted for them?—Decidedly.

82,274. And you let them set your name down?—I let them set my name down.

82,275. That was at Wilde's, in Saville Street?—Mr. Beeton set my name down.

82,276. Did he tell you it was at Saville Street?—A man called at our house and said I was to go there; they wanted some messengers for the polling day.

82,277. Was that the day before the election?—Yes. I had promised my vote a fortnight before that. It did not balance my vote.

82,278. They came and said they wanted some clerks?—They wanted some messengers, and I did not go to work, therefore, I did not go for the money.

82,279. Did you not know they got money without doing much for it?—I am aware some parties did, but I do not agree with that; nobody would influence my vote opposite to my opinions.

82,410. Was your name set down?—I do not know that it was. Mr. Willows said he would set it down.
82,411. Did you agree that he should?—I did not say anything to the contrary.
82,412. Was that in order that you might get some money after the election?—I do not know what it was for. He asked me to assist him at the committee room for two days, and I attended there.

John Gray.

15th August 1853.

82,413. Did you expect to be paid for it?—Yes.

82,414. And were you paid?—No.

82,415. And you did expect to be paid after the election?—Yes.

82,416. You knew he would not employ you unless he expected you to vote for them?—Yes; I gave my promise before I attended at the committee room.

82,417. At the same interview?—No.

82,418. How long before had you promised to vote?—Perhaps three weeks.

82,419. Did he ask you to do anything particular or whether you would have your name set down?—He asked me to interest myself in favour of Lord Goderich and Mr. Clay.

82,420. You say he asked you about the employment?—Yes.

82,421. What did he say?—He said he would like me to assist him at the committee room, as I knew the neighbourhood well, and knew several of the freemen, and could be of service to him.

82,422. Was that to assist him as a canvasser?—Yes.

82,423. You could not do it for nothing?—I did do it for nothing.

82,424. You intended to be paid for it?—Yes; I expected he would pay me.

J. N. Pickering.

JOHN NOBLE PICKERING sworn, and examined.

82,425. Where do you live?—In Cotton Street, at present. I have removed from where I was before.

82,426. Where did you live at the last election?—York Street.

82,427. What rent do you pay now?—I am only a lodger now

82,428. How long have you been a freeman?—Ever since O'Neill's election in 1826.

82,429. In the year 1841, who did you vote for?—I was at Gainsborough that time. I came down from Gainsborough, and polled for Clay and Thompson.

82,430. Did you get any money?—I only got my expenses. I was to have six days at 5*s.* a day; but through the men, that was, a tollkeeper and a drunken lawyer, they robbed me of the other. It was hard to get that.

82,431. They told you you should have 5*s.* a day?—Yes; I agreed for that.

82,432. For six days?—Yes.

82,433. And they cheated you?—Yes; many were cheated that way.

82,434. In the year 1847, who did you vote for?—Clay and Brown. I got 10*s.* from Mr. Brown's party, but nothing from Mr Clay's. I was to have had it this time when they were paying the money, but the other party stopped it.

82,435. The last election who did you vote for?—Clay and Goderich.

82,436. You had your name set down?—Yes; at Mr. Wilde's.

82,437. That was in order that you might get something?—I got two days' pay there at 3*s.* 6*d.* a day, and then I was drafted to Mr. Richardson's committee at the top of the street, and I got paid for four days at 3*s.* 6*d.* a day as a runner.

82,438. They were both orange committees.?—Yes.

82,439. Was that all you got?—That was all I got.

John Barton.

JOHN BARTON sworn, and examined.

82,440. Where do you live?—In English Street.

82,441. What is your business?—An accountant.

82,442. What rent do you pay?—£10.

82,443. Are you a freeman?—No.

82,444. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Since the Reform Bill passed.

82,445. In 1841, who did you vote for?—Clay and Thompson.

82,446. Did you get any money that election?—I was employed as a check clerk and received 1*l.* I do not remember exactly.

82,447. Did you apply for employment?—Yes.

82,448. What did you apply for?—As a clerk at the election day.

82,449. You applied to be employed as a check clerk?—Yes.

82,450. In the year 1847, who did you vote for?—I was not entitled to vote then. I was employed by Mr. Brown's party.

82,451. You did not vote?—I was not on the register.

82,452. Did you persuade other people to vote?—No.

82,453. How were you employed?—In the central committee room.

82,454. In what capacity?—In making up the books.

82,455. As clerk?—Yes; as clerk.

82,456. For Mr. Brown?—Yes.

82,457. Did you set people's names down there?—They were set down, but not in the room I was in.

John Barton.

15th August 1853.

82,458. Did you pay any one?—No.

82,459. You had nothing to do with paying?—Nothing to do with any money.

82,460. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.

82,461. Did you get any money this time?—I was employed as a committee clerk there three weeks.

82,462. Which committee?—Osborne Street.

82,463. Were you employed as clerk to Mr. Hodgson?—No; for Moore and Butler, the blue party.

82,464. Who was the chairman?—Mr. Preston and Mr. Charles Wells.

82,465. Did you set names down there?—They were set down.

82,466. Did you help?—No; I did not. The chairmen set them down themselves. I made a memorandum and they came in the evening.

82,467. You were not present when the arrangement was made that they should be set down?—I had no authority to set them down myself.

82,468. Did you help to pay?—No

82,469. You were paid yourself as clerk?—Yes.

RICHARD COOPER sworn, and examined.

Richard Cooper.

82,470. Where do you live?—Osborne Street.

82,471. What rent do you pay?—I live in my own house.

82,472. What are you rated at?—£16, I believe.

82,473. What is your business?—A grocer.

82,474. Are you a freeman?—No.

82,475. How long have you been entitled to vote?—I think fifteen years, perhaps, in Hull.

82,476. Did you vote in the year 1841?—I think I did.

82,477. Who did you vote for?—The orange party.

82,478. Was that for Clay and Thompson?—Yes, I believe so.

82,479. Did you get any money on any account at the election of 1841?—No.

82,480. Did you take any part in the election?—No.

82,481. In the year 1847, who did you vote for?—For the orange party.

82,482. Who was that?—I think it would be Mr. Clay and Baines.

82,483. Were you paid any money at that election?—No.

82,484. Not on any account?—No.

82,485. At the last election who did you vote for?—I voted for Moore and Goderich.

82,486. Did you get any money from either party at this election?—No, not for voting.

82,487. I ask whether you got any money from any party?—I had a committee room let.

82,488. To which party?—To the blues.

82,489. Was that at your house?—Yes.

82,490. How much were you paid for it?—£10.

82,491. Did you get more than 10*l.*?—I only had some windows broken.

82,492. Did you give one vote for the blues, because they took your room?—No; I told them when they came that I had been a voter for so many years, and I was never bought or sold and would not be; whether they took my room or not, my vote should be quite independent.

82,493. What did they say to that?—They argued with me a good while, and they took the room at last on these conditions.

82,494. On the conditions that you should vote as you liked?—Yes; I would not let it otherwise.

82,495. You are quite sure of that; that they took it on the understanding that you were to vote as you liked?—I am quite sure; I never spoke more positive in my life than I did on that point to them and to the other people too.

82,496. You had always voted orange before?—I had always voted orange; I did in the East Riding for a number of years; I should think thirty years.

82,497. And this time you gave the blues one vote?—Yes; I told them that I would not be tied in my vote; but I did think I should vote for Bramley Moore for one and Lord Goderich for the other, but I would go free; I would not let my room to be tied to the voting; I would go to the poll free; that is what I told them.

82,498. It was one of their regular district committee rooms?—Yes; I think they had it nearly a month.

ISAAC LILL sworn, and examined.

Isaac Lill.

82,499. Where do you live?—In Sculcoates.

82,500. What business are you?—A cowkeeper.

82,501. What rent do you pay?—£14 for a house.

82,502. Are you a freeman?—No.

Isaac Lill.

15th August 1853.

82,503. How long have you been entitled to vote?—Ten years.
82,504. Was 1847 the first election at which you voted?—Yes.
82,505. Who did you vote for?—Mr. Brown.
82,506. Did you get any money?—Yes; half a sovereign after the election.
82,507. Was that all you got?—Yes.
82,508. At the last election who did you vote for?—Moore and Butler.
82,509. Were you paid for that?—No.
82,510. Were you paid no money?—Nothing.
82,511. Was your name set down?—No.
82,512. We are told you got 30*s.*?—No, nor 30*d.* neither; I never got a farthing.
82,513. Not on any account at the last election?—On no account at all.

Mr. JOHN PEEK sworn, and examined.

Mr. John Peek.

82,514. Did you, at the election in 1841, pay the Barton voters?—I cannot distinctly recollect that I paid them myself, but I can recollect that they were paid, and, doubtless, the parties that had the Barton voters in their care afterwards got the money from me to pay the expenses with, because we did pay all that we thought were travelling, legal expenses.

82,515. You gave the money to some person to pay the Barton voters?—Doubtless, I should.

82,516. Knowing the purpose to which that money was to be applied?—Knowing that it was to be applied for their travelling expenses, and no other purpose.

82,517. Do you recollect how much you paid them each?—I cannot say at this distance of time.

82,518. Were they not paid as much as 1*l.* each?—I really could not positively say, but I think that would be about the sum, to the best of my recollection.

82,519. I am told in a list you handed in yourself, they were paid 30*s.* apiece; do you believe you paid as much as that?—If it is down in the list I handed in, I paid it.

82,520. You perfectly well knew at the time the men could come from Barton for the sum of 1*s.*?—Yes; certainly they could come by the packet for 1*s.*

82,521. And did you not know at the time that the Barton voters would not vote unless paid the sum of 1*l.* or 30*s.*?—I cannot say that they distinctly came before me. It would be simply the amount that would be required for the payment of the Barton voters; and some other parties, whose names I do not recollect, would have them in charge; I never saw them.

82,522. I ask you whether, at the time, you did not know, from your knowledge of elections in Hull, that the Barton voters would not vote unless paid 1*l.* or 30*s.*?—Yes; certainly I knew they were always paid a considerable sum, but I do not know what amount.

82,523. At the next election, Mr. Brown's, did you pay the Hedon voters?—No; I had never anything to do with the financial matters.

82,524. Did you make the arrangement?—No.

82,525. Did you have anything to do with it?—Not to my knowledge; I never spoke to any of them.

82,526. Were any of the other out-voters paid besides the Barton, for Colonel Thompson?—Yes; I have a distinct recollection of paying the expenses of any one properly accredited, or half the expense, as it might be, when they voted for Clay and Thompson. If the expense was 2*l.* or 3*l.* it was divided between us.

82,527. These were the voters in the town within the seven mile limit?—We had to fetch them from Lincoln and Gainsborough.

82,528. I ask such as Hedon: did you pay any besides the Barton?—No doubt we should.

82,529. Did you pay the Hedon voters?—I have no doubt we did.

82,530. And the Cottingham voters?—I believe we did.

82,531. And did you pay them all on the same scale as the Barton?—That I could not undertake to say. I could not undertake to say whether the Barton voters had more or less, or the others had more or less.

82,532. Was the matter of the payment of the out-voters known to Colonel Thompson?—I am sure, at this distance of time, I could not say. I should almost think not. He knew well we paid the travelling expenses of all parties, but whether he knew we paid 30*s.* or not for coming from Barton, I could not undertake to say.

82,533. Did he not know that was part of the arrangement at the coalition that he was to pay half the expenses of the persons who were out-voters?—I do not think it amounted to that. I handed in a paper; it was of what was called the legal expenses.

82,534. Was this matter ever discussed with Colonel Thompson?—Yes; undoubtedly it would be, because Mr. Lawson Johnson would bring it before the Colonel, he having the legal business.

8,2535. Do you perfectly recollect that he did do so?—I cannot distinctly recollect.

82,536. Have you any doubt about it?—I have not much doubt about it, but I cannot recollect so as to speak pointedly to particulars.

Mr. John Peek.

15th August 1853.

82,537. Did he enter into any arrangement as to the scale of payments they were to receive?—Not that I recollect.

82,538. Will you undertake to say it was not so?—I cannot say, because it might be, and my memory fail me.

82,539. Have you any doubt it was?—I cannot say.

82,540. The scale of payments?—I could not say positively, but it might be mentioned.

82,541. I ask you whether you recollect that it was?—I do not recollect that it was.

82,542. Will you undertake to say it was not?—No; that I could not undertake to say.

82,543. What is your belief about it?—My belief is that it would be mentioned.

82,544. Would you venture to make such a payment as that without the knowledge of Colonel Thompson?—Certainly I should. If Mr. Lawson Johnson said this was a legal expense, I should be guided by him. Those were my instructions from the Colonel: "Whenever you have a doubt, fall back on Mr. Johnson." I did not trouble him with the affair. He said, "Pay everything that is legal."

82,545. You knew these men would not vote without payment, did you not?—That is the impression. I knew that they would expect to be paid more than their travelling expenses, but it was put down as travelling expenses.

82,546. Under which head of legal expenses do you think it falls to pay a man 1*l.* where he spends 2*s.*?—My answer would be, it is not simply the 2*s.* that would take him there and back, but he must have his refreshments, and he ought to be paid for his day's wage.

82,547. When you say travelling expenses, the word "travelling" has a sense beyond that in which we understand it?—Yes, truly; the concomitant expenses attending travelling.

82,548. I could not understand what you meant by travelling expenses when you say a man spends 2*s.* and you give 1*l.*: it has a larger sense?—Yes.

82,549. It includes his loss of time?—Yes; and refreshments.

82,550. And his day's wage?—Yes.

82,551. That is the acceptation of the words "travelling expenses"?—That is the acceptation of the words travelling expenses, as I understand it.

82,552. Do you suppose the Colonel understood it in that sense in Hull?—I had no talk with him on the subject at all.

Thomas Wilde.

THOMAS WILDE recalled, and examined.

82,553. Do you hand in a list?—I hand in a list which I was requested, to the best of my knowledge, to make out, and I have done so.

82,554. Is this a list of the persons whose freedoms were taken up on the part of the orange party in 1839?—On the part of the orange and the blues. You will see the letter O attached to the orange, and B to the blues.

82,555. Is this, as far as you recollect, a correct list of all the persons whose freedoms were taken up on that occasion?—It is, to the best of my knowledge. It may not be exactly correct, but I believe it is.

FIFTY-SEVENTH DAY.—August 16th, 1853.

J. Brown, Esq.

JAMES BROWN, Esq., sworn, and examined.

16th August 1853.

82,556. You were late a candidate for the representation of this borough?—Yes.

82,557. In the year 1847?—Yes.

82,558. I believe you live at Rossington, near Bawtry, in this county?—Yes.

82,559. Previous to your becoming a candidate for this borough, had you any communication in any way with the borough?—No.

82,560. You had no local influence?—No.

82,561. Or acquaintance in the borough?—Yes; I had acquaintance.

82,562. But no local influence or property?—None whatever.

82,563. We understand at the time that you consented to become a candidate for the borough, Mr. Clay and Mr. Baines were already candidates?—Yes.

82,564. Previously to your consenting to become a candidate had there been some overtures with respect to your becoming a candidate before Mr. Baines had made up his mind?—Yes, certainly.

82,565. Mr. Baines, I believe, was not quite determined in the early part whether he would be a candidate or not?—I believe not. I believe that Mr. Baines was at York, employed following his avocations at the assizes, and I believe that after he received a message from the electors of Hull, there was some hesitation upon his part, and I believe that he partly refused; and during that time they applied to me, during the time of his having refused, or not made up his mind, if he did not refuse. I cannot say; there was some hesitation, and then they applied to me in the first instance.

82,566. About what time was it the first communication was made to yourself?—I do not remember.

82,567. The election took place the 29th of July which we are alluding to?—I should say the beginning of July.

82,568. Early in July?—Yes; early in July.

82,569. Quite the early part of July, do you think?—I should say quite the early part of July.

82,570. From whom did that first communication with yourself originate?—To the best of my recollection the first intimation I had that it would be at all acceptable to the people of Hull that I should stand for the borough, came through my solicitor, Mr. Tottie, of Leeds, and I think it was through a communication from his brother, Mr. Tottie, of Hull, an old gentleman. I think the first communication that I had was through my friend at Leeds, from his brother.

82,571. I believe that ultimately that gentleman, Mr. Tottie, was the chairman of Mr. Baines?—Yes; I would not say he was acting chairman.

82,572. But nominally chairman?—Yes; nominally he was the chairman.

82,573. I suppose that negotiation had not arrived at maturity when, some further communication having taken place with Mr. Baines, he consented to become a candidate?—Just so.

82,574. You had not at that time fully consented to become a candidate?—No.

82,575. Upon the ascertaining that Mr. Baines had become a candidate, from that time did the communication with yourself cease?—Yes.

82,576. You would be aware that Mr. Clay was in the field at that time?—Yes.

82,577. The persons in the field would be Mr. Clay and Mr. Baines?—Yes; Mr. Clay and Mr. Baines certainly 82,578. After the first communications with yourself had ceased, and Mr. Baines had consented to become a candidate, did it appear to you and was it generally considered, that there would be a contest?—After the communications with me had ceased, and Mr. Baines had consented to become a candidate, and Mr. Clay was also in the field.

82,579. Was the impression upon your mind that there would not be a contest?—I felt sure there would be a contest if I came.

82,580. I mean before?—I did not think of it.

82,581. It was not until the Sunday previous to the election that the next communication with yourself took place?—Yes.

82,582. That would bring it very close to the election?—Yes, it would.

82,583. I would ask you this question: whether, in case you had received no further communication from the borough, had you any intention of offering yourself?—Not the slightest in the world.

82,584 As far as you are aware, until the further communication was made with yourself, there would not have been a contest that election?—Certainly not.

82,585. Things being in that state on the Sunday preceding the election, a deputation from this borough waited upon you at your house?—Yes.

82,586. Consisting, among others, of Mr. Peek, Mr. Digby, Mr. Lockwood, and some others?—I do not recollect who came.

82,587. I think Mr. Digby was one?—Mr. Digby, I think, came; I feel sure that he did, and others, many others certainly.

82,588. I believe they found you at home upon that Sunday?—Yes; they found me at home.

82,589. We understand that Mr. Digby preceded the rest of the deputation and came first to your house?—Yes.

82,590. Upon his coming to your house will you state, as shortly as you can, to the best of your remembrance, what proposition he made to you with regard to your becoming a candidate, and with regard to the interests that you were to represent, and so on, and the state of things in the borough at that time. He would probably inform you that Mr. Clay and Mr. Baines were in the field, and the election was handy?—Yes, and soforth, and inquired my opinions.

82,591. They came as a deputation from a section of the constituency?—From two sections, I think.

82,592. I want you to tell me that; I wish to draw that to your attention?—They inquired my opinions, and they considered my opinions would suit a vast number of people in Hull, so they said.

82,593. Of any particular colour, or a mixed constituency?—A mixed constituency rather, I believe. I forget the colours. The blue was one colour; but my colour was pink; that was to distinguish me. I was to be a third man.

82,594. Mr. Clay and Mr. Baines were in the field; which of those gentlemen was it understood that you were principally to oppose, or entirely?—I stood upon my own foundation, I think.

82,595. Was not Mr. Baines a personal friend of yours?—No; I had never seen him before. I knew his family well, and his brother. I knew him by name.

82,596. And his position here as recorder might be known to you?—I knew him by character, by reputation; and I knew him to be a most excellent man.

82,597. At that time when this interview took place, and Mr. Digby waited upon you, had you any more than a general knowledge, such as any person might have living in the same county, of the particular mode of conducting a Hull election?—No; I certainly had not. I knew it was a place that was generally supposed to be an expensive place to be returned for; and I learnt those particulars from Sir John Hanmer and others.

82,598. Are you acquainted with Sir John Hanmer?—Slightly.

82,599. He had been elected at the former election?—Yes; he represented this place for one or two sessions.

82,600. And he had given you generally to understand that Hull was an expensive place as regarded elections?—Yes.

82,601. Did he inform you at all of any of the heads of expenses that were usual?—No.

82,602. He merely gave you general information?—Yes; that it was likely to cost so much.

82,603. Do you remember any sum that he stated?—Yes; he told me what it cost him in some instances. I think he said he had been returned at as small an expense as 400*l.* or 500*l.*, but that it had cost him as much as 5,000*l.*

82,604. Who is that?—Sir John Hanmer; I only think that is so.

82,605. You think that he said that the expenses might have varied between 400*l.* and 5,000*l.*?—Yes.

82,606. Not that it had cost him; but that a member might be returned for that?—Yes; that I might be returned. I should not like it to be put down that I said that he said that as to himself.

82,607. Do not you remember whether he mentioned at that time, when he was stating the wide gap, if I may say so, the large amount in the difference of expense,—whether he referred in any way to the mode in which such a difference might be accounted for?—No; I do not think he referred to the mode in which such a difference might be accounted for; but it would result either from there being a contest, or from there being no contest.

82,608. In both cases there were contests: in the 400*l.* case there was a contest, and it was a very severe contest?—I was not aware of that.

82,609. You do not remember that he drew your attention to any particular heads?—No.

82,610. Did he say that the printers were expensive people?—No; I do not remember that he did.

82,611. Did he name any particular items?—No particular items.

82,612. At this interview with Mr. Digby, when you saw him, did you enter into some details of the probable expenses for the then coming election?—Not that I recollect.

82,613. Something would naturally pass about the probable expenses?—Yes; about 1,500*l.* I think they said it would cost.

82,614. Was anything said at all as to that being the sum, or that any guarantee would be found for any money beyond it?—No; I did not ask for it.

82,615. Did you mention any sum that you would not go beyond, that you recollect?—No; I think I did not.

J. Brown, Esq.

16th August 1853.

82,616. When Mr. Digby was with you, did he state some of the modes of ordinary payment of money in the nature of expenses at elections?—None whatever.

82,617. Did he allude to printers and items of that kind, messengers, runners, and committee rooms?—Not that I recollect.

82,618. You do not remember?—I do not at all remember.

82,619. Do you remember if you inquired of him any specific head of expense at that time?—No; I have no recollection of having done so.

82,620. The sum of 1,500*l.*, which seems to have been one mentioned, was not objected to by you as a sum that you would not be inclined to spend?—No.

82,621. Do you recollect during this interview before the other gentlemen came,—I believe they came up and took luncheon at your house afterwards?—Yes.

82,622. Do you recollect whether he alluded in any way to the mode of employment in Hull by running?—No; I do not think we entered at all into the details of the matter; it was some time before I gave them an answer in the affirmative, respecting my standing for Hull.

82,623. You received such information as you wished from Mr. Digby, and then retired for half an hour?—Yes.

82,624. Had you any friend to consult with about it, staying with you at the time?—No, no one. I was alone.

82,625. You made your mind up yourself at the time?—Yes.

82,626. If I understand you, the matter of conversation between you and Mr. Digby was rather more of a general kind as to election matters in Hull, than as to any matters of detail?—Yes; certainly so. There was hardly time to enter into matters of detail; because, if I remember right, they called on Sunday afternoon, after the morning church, and they went away probably before three o'clock, and during that time I had to make up my mind, and they had to get their luncheon.

82,627. Do you recollect if Mr. Digby also said that Hull was an expensive place; you said that Sir John Hanmer mentioned that?—I do not remember that he ever said so.

82,628. Did he draw your attention to the maximum and the minimum of expenses?—No, I think not.

82,629. You did not inquire of him?—No, I did not.

82,630. I suppose the conversation partly would turn upon your political views?—In some degree it would.

82,631. And the gentlemen were satisfied in that respect?—Yes, they were.

82,632. There were several parties represented by the deputation?—Probably so.

82,633. And they were all satisfied?—I presume they were.

82,634. When the gentlemen came to you, and were assembled at luncheon, did you think that they appeared to have a relish that there should be a contest?—No; that did not strike me.

82,635. What was the reason that was put forward for having a third candidate at this late hour?—I cannot say that I can give any account of that. The deputation came to wait upon me.

82,636. It was close upon the election?—They said, that having heard I was once coming forward, they were sorry I refused, and that my return would be certain.

82,637. Was any dissatisfaction expressed with the views of Mr. Clay or Mr. Baines, which induced them to wish for a third candidate?—I do not remember.

82,638. Or do you think it was the love of a contest?—I am not able to say. If you ask me my opinion I will give it you.

82,639. The opinion. as conveyed to your mind by what passed, we should be glad to have?—The opinion, I have now, in consequence of what has happened, is surely this: that they wanted a contest; not Mr. Digby, I do not say that, but that a third man was required.

82,640. Could you collect, from what passed, any definite reason for looking for a person at this last hour?—No; not from what passed at that time.

82,641. You wished to get into the House probably?—Yes; I wished for a seat for my own county, and this one seemed to offer.

82,642. Do you recollect whether any allusion was made to these gentlemen having communicated in London with Sir Robert Inglis and others, with reference to another candidate?—None to me.

82,643. They did not communicate anything of that sort?—No; nothing of the sort.

82,644. It was not stated to you that any other gentleman besides yourself had been looked to as a third man?—It was certainly not stated to me.

82,645. These gentlemen waited and took some refreshment at your house?—Yes.

82,646. And then, I believe, they returned to Hull?—Yes.

82,647. Did you draw up any kind of an address before they left you, or how was that to be?—Not before they left me. I was prepared to come the next day, with the heads of an address.

82,648. The time was so pressing that I thought they would have taken something back in the shape of an address?—I asked them, if they wished it, I would explain my political views; and they said the next day would do very well; and I had the address ready the next day.

82,649. And you consented to come to Hull the next morning?—Yes; and I think the next morning I came.

82,650. Before the gentlemen left, and while they were with you, do you recollect whether the conversation turned more on the details of the coming election, as to the matter of expenses?—No; certainly not.

82,651. You came to Hull the next morning, I believe?—Yes.

82,652. Where did you take up your quarters; did you come to one of the hotels?—To the Royal Hotel,

82,653. Probably after you came, from that time until the election was over, there was a considerable bustle and confusion?—Yes.

82,654. What time did you come into Hull on the Monday morning?—I think I must have arrived about the middle of the day; I think so.

82,655. Did you find that handbills had been put out; did you circulate an address upon your arrival; or how was that?—I cannot remember. I think there were handbills announcing my intentions.

82,656. Did you prepare your own address?—Yes, certainly; I prepared my own address.

82,657. And how was it got into circulation?—It was sent to the printer, I think, when I arrived here.

82,658. I believe committees were formed immediately?—Yes; I should say directly.

82,659. Was Mr. Digby the chairman of one?—He was my principal chairman.

82,660. There were other chairmen acting in various places?—I dare say. I do not know; but no doubt there were.

82,661. Did you commence an active personal canvass upon your arrival?—No; the time was too short for that. I called on a few people, but I did not canvass personally throughout the borough.

82,662. Did you find in the course of that day committees were organized?—I did not find it in the course of that day; but during my stay here, three or four times during the day, I went to different places to speak, and I presume these were places which were held and paid for, for people to assemble in as committee rooms. I knew of no other committee rooms, except the one or two that I happened to go to. I am unable to say whether these were called committee rooms where I saw the inhabitants and spoke to them.

82,663. You continued in Hull then up to the election?—Yes, I did; and I think I never left it.

82,664. You did not make a strictly personal cauvass?—Certainly not.

82,665. Did you go about at all making applications for votes?—Yes; I called upon a few people.

82,666. Who accompanied you, do you remember, upon your canvass?—I do not know; I am not able to say.

82,667. Was Mr. Digby with you?—No; I do not think that he ever went with me.

82,668. Was Mr. Stephenson?—I really cannot tell you; but some would go with me.

82,669. You hardly knew the localities of Hull?—I hardly knew them, but a messenger would be sent with me. I canvassed very slightly. My plan was to speak to the people out of the windows, and speak to them in the rooms.

82,670. You received from time to time from the chairmen of the committees, or others, some account of the progress that they were making in their canvass?—Yes; I received certain accounts.

82,671. Did you receive them in the evening, or at particular times, or at the Royal Hotel?—I received them from time to time. When I asked how matters were going on, I was told, pretty well.

82,672. You had a general account?—Yes.

82,673. Were you more in communication with any particular person,—Mr. Digby or Mr. Bannister?—Yes; Mr. Bannister was the name, and Mr. Digby and Mr. Burstall also I saw.

82,674. And Mr. Mitchell, a gentleman who is now dead?—I do not remember him. Then I called upon gentlemen out of the town, Mr. Sykes and others, or I saw him at all events.

82,675. I believe Mr. Digby was the treasurer, if I may so call him?—Yes.

82,676. And made advances of money, upon your account, from time to time?—I do not know about his making advances; I paid the money to him.

82,677. You did not know whether it had been paid or not?—No.

82,678. Did you ascertain in the course of the canvass, from personal applications to yourself or otherwise, that it was the custom to employ a good many people as messengers and runners?—No, I did not.

82,679. Did you not hear of that being a mode of employing voters at this and other elections?—I knew it was a mode of employing voters at other elections, but I did not hear that it was particularly the case here; I knew that it was, but I was not told so.

82,680. Did it not occur to you, when making your canvass, that the persons would apply to you sometimes for employment as messengers?—They never applied to me personally.

82,681. Did you hear that such applications were being made?—I did not hear it; but I saw in one of the committee rooms the persons came, and I think they had "messenger"

J. Brown, Esq.

16th August 1853.

upon their hats. I recollect that sort of thing, as there was a messengers' place for them to be engaged at. I could not tell you for certain, but I felt certain that they were being employed.

82,682. Do you remember at which committee room it was that you saw them?—No; I do not remember it. I am not acquainted with Hull much; I do not know the localities.

82,683. I believe the course was, that they made applications at the rooms, and got their names set down?—I feel no doubt that was the course, but I am not able to tell you.

82,684. Did you attend the committee room, do you remember, from time to time?—Not much.

82,685. What did you understand the nature of that engagement to be, when persons came and made an application of that sort?—I am really not able to tell you.

82,686 Did you inquire at all?—No.

82,687. You said you had been aware there was a good deal of employment?—I saw people applying for employment.

82,688. Do you remember what the nature of the application was?—No; not at all.

82,689. But they would do it in the committee room?—Yes; to carry messages, and placards, and flags, and aid in the noise.

82,690. Were such applications numerous?—I think so. I did not pay much attention to it at the time. I thought of it since I received your notice.

82,691. Probably you would understand that they were voters?—No; I did not know that; certainly not.

82,692. Did you make any inquiry whether they were voters or not?—No.

82,693. Did you see many people about the doors of the committee room?—At times I did.

82,694. Did you say that you observed some with "messenger" pasted on their hats?—I cannot remember whether it was "messenger" on their hats, or whether a place where the messengers were supposed to go to, to obtain their ticket or employment. I cannot remember. There was something to do with messengers, I remember perfectly well, but I cannot remember what it was.

82,695. You do not know whether that was conveyed to your mind from anything you saw about the persons of the men, or what you collected?—I do not remember. I could not speak positively upon that point.

82,696. Do you not remember that applications to be set down as runners for employment would be made to Mr. Bannister or Mr. Burstall in the canvass?—They were not made to them before me; certainly not. I do not remember such an application, and I had no such application personally made to myself.

82,697. You do not remember it. I merely wish to see if it can be brought to your mind at all by the fact, if any such applications were made, that they would be directed to go to the committee room in the district?—I should certainly send them to the committee room.

82,698. Do you recollect whether any such applications were made to Mr. Bannister or Mr. Burstall, and any such directions given?—I do not remember such an instance. There was an old man whom I knew to be a voter and freeman of Hull, who attended me at the hotel, who was sitting in a chair in the passage next to my sitting room, ready to carry messages or do anything that I required; that man was a freeman, that I know.

82,699. Where was that?—At the Royal Hotel.

82,700. You do not know his name?—No.

82,701. And you would not know his name if you heard it?—No.

82,702. Was it Steeple; do you know if that was the name?—I think not.

82,703. In the course of your canvass, and while you were about with these gentlemen, did you hear that there were lots of people who clubbed together, as voters, who wanted to be employed and get money?—No; I did not hear it during the canvass.

82,704. Not any lots of voters who met at different places?—No; I did not.

82,705. Or making parties?—No.

82,706. Wishing to be employed?—No; I did not hear of that.

82,707. To get money for their votes?—No; not during the canvass.

82,708. Did you hear of it before the election day?—No; I heard of it upon the election day, when I resigned.

82,709. Did you hear, in the course of your canvass, applications made for rooms to be engaged as committee rooms?—No.

82,710. Had you heard, before you came to Hull, from information that you had received from Sir John Hanmer or otherwise, that it had been the custom to engage committee rooms at elections, other than those that were actually wanted?—I understand what you mean. I do not think that Sir John Hanmer mentioned that at all. He did not enter into details; he mentioned the general sort of expenses, and the nature of the constituency. I put general questions, and I received general answers.

82,711. Do you recollect whether he mentioned that prior to the Reform Bill there had been a customary payment, something in the nature of head money, two guineas for a split vote, and four guineas for a plumper?—Not that I recollect.

82,712. Do you recollect whether he drew your attention at all to what had prevailed since, as contrasting it with the custom which had prevailed before?—I do not recollect that he did.

82,713. Did you become acquainted with a man named John Walker in the course of your canvass?—I cannot remember the name at all.

82,714. You have mentioned Mr. Burstall?—Yes, I remember Mr. Burstall perfectly; and Mr. Digby I know well.

82,715. Walker was a very active man?—I do not remember his name; I should probably know him if I saw him.

82,716. Did you hear at any time of any tickets being given to voters?—No, none whatever. I never heard of such a thing.

82,717. A ticket that would be a voucher for a sum of money?—I never heard of such a thing.

82,718. Never at any time?—I heard of it this morning.

82,719. Not until then?—No.

82,720. I infer from you that you have not directed your attention to the evidence before this Commission?—No, I have not read any part of it.

82,721. You have not read it?—No, I have not been in this country, and I have not read a word.

82,722. Then, if I understand you, this morning was the first time that you heard of the issue of any tickets as vouchers for money?—Most assuredly.

82,723. You have not heard of 500 or 1,000 being issued by Walker?—No; I heard of it this morning, and not before.

82,724. Do you recollect seeing anything of that character (handing a card to the witness)?—No, this is the first time that I ever saw it.

82,725. The name is on the back?—Yes.

82,726. You never saw anything of the kind?—No, this is the first time that I have seen it.

82,727. It is in evidence that 1,000 of these were issued on your behalf?—I never heard of it.

82,728. The finance department, I understand, was principally under the management of Mr. Digby?—I feel sure that it was. I paid the money to him when the election was over.

82,729. Did you at all, in the course of the election, during the days that you were in Hull, have any conversation with Mr. Digby upon the matter of expense?—No, no particular conversation.

82,730. Did you ask him how the money was going, or a general remark of that sort?—No.

82,731. As well as you remember, will you state anything that passed between you?—There was no particular conversation between Mr. Digby and myself at all. He was very busy, and very much employed in the matter of the election, and had other affairs to attend to. We were in a sort of bustle and fuss the whole time. I do not think that I felt so particularly, but other people were, and I do not remember that we had any particular conversation about the matter. In fact, I am sure we did not.

82,732. You found the thing in a great bustle, and the time was short; did you then when in Hull put any limit at all upon the money that you would spend?—No, I understood it was likely to cost from 1,500*l.* to 2,000*l.*, and I had no reason to presume it would cost more, and I decided and declared, and positively gave orders that there should be no bribery whatever, and I relied upon the orders that I had given.

82,733. Did you ever say that you would not go beyond 2,000*l.* in the expenses?—I do not recollect that I did.

82,734. Or any sum?—I do not recollect that I ever did.

82,735. Mr. Digby has told us that before the Thursday, the day of the election, he had made use of about as much as 1,200*l.* Do you remember, during the progress of the matter, before the day of the election, he mentioned to you having disbursed either that or any other sum, or any amount that he mentioned as having disbursed prior to that time?—I think it likely he would, but I could not distinctly say I remember it.

82,736. Do you remember at all?—Yes, I recollect something of the sort.

82,737. I merely mention that for this reason, you were then getting pretty close on to 1,500*l.*, and I have no doubt Mr. Digby was a man in whom you had perfect confidence?—Entire confidence.

88,738. Bearing that matter in mind, that you had mentioned the sum of 1,500*l.*, and he said he had advanced 1,200*l.* before the day of election?—I do not think he could have said he advanced 1,200*l.* before the day of election.

82,739. He did not state it to you, but he stated to us that he had?—I do not think he told me.

82,740. He did not go so far as that. It was on that I put the question to you whether he did not state it in the course of the hurry?—I do not think he ever did, that he had spent as much as 1,200*l.* before the election.

82,741. Did he say he had spent any sum?—I do not recollect he did. I think it is most probable. I could not call to mind that occasion or any particular period.

82,742. I think you stated just now that you said you would not spend any money in bribery, or anything of that kind?—Certainly.

82,743. When was it, do you remember, that you first made that statement?—I think I must have said it to the deputation when they called upon me, but I am perfectly

J. Brown, Esq.

16th August 1853.

sure that I said it as soon as I got to Hull, the first opportunity I had, in the committee room or to any members of my committee.

82,744. Allow me to say, having on my mind the letter you addressed to us, and the phrase in that letter, which is, you would be no party to "direct bribery"?—Would that be the phrase in the letter?

82,745. I have the letter; I was merely going to draw your attention to it, "have no reason to suppose direct bribery was resorted to"?—I have no reason to suppose it now.

82,746. Merely adverting to the words "direct bribery," do you remember, when that was said, there was not any open and direct bribery in Hull, but that there had been means of employing persons in the way I have alluded to?—No, I do not think it was stated at the time; I think you misapplied my letter. I mean to state that I have no reason now, in 1853, to suppose that direct bribery was resorted to then.

82,747. You have not read the evidence?—No; I only returned from Norway the other day.

82,748. I only ask whether at your house, in the course of the statement, it was intimated to you, although there was no direct bribery in Hull, that there were the means of giving employment to runners, messengers, and persons of that kind that I have been adverting to?—That was not stated to me, but I was very sure there were modes of spending money in Hull, and other places where freemen are concerned in an election, which is not usual in places where there are no freemen to be found. I was not aware whether it was open bribery given for the vote, or whether they were employed in carrying flags, blowing trumpets, or anything of that sort.

82,749. Probably you think blowing a trumpet or carrying a flag to some extent would be colourable?—I should have thought so in Hull.

82,750. You thought so at that time?—Yes; I think so.

82,751. And you would not have objected to that mode of employing persons?—I think had it been stated to me at the time a man was carrying a message, and was to receive 1*l.* for it, I should not have objected to it.

82,752. Without much regard to the length of the message or the distance he had to go?—I think at that time I should not have objected to it.

82,753. And probably you would not have inquired at that time very scrupulously into the number of trumpet blowers or flag carriers?—No; I saw a good many of them, and I did not inquire how much they were paid.

82,754. Probably you could judge for yourself they were not very necessary?—Yes; undoubtedly.

82,755. Did you not become aware to this extent that there were means employed of giving some colourable employment to voters during the time of the election?—Yes; I feel sure of it now. And on thinking the matter over, when the election was past and gone, I thought so then.

82,756. During the election?—No; I do not think it entered into my head.

82,757. You observed a good many of these people?—A good many.

82,758. And you did not make inquiry particularly who they were or what they were doing?—No.

82,759. Did they wear colours that denoted they were in your interest?—Yes; I think so.

82,760. There is evidence of all the pink colours being got?—Yes; so much so that they sent to Leeds for more. I heard that during the election.

82,761. Mr. Digby stated to us that the whole of that 1,200*l.* was spent in the purchase of voters; he did not say at all he communicated that to you?—Certainly not.

82,762. Do you remember whether he made any communication at all to you with respect to this kind of employment?—Certainly not.

82,763. Of flagmen, runners, colourmen, or messengers?—I recollect no intimation of it from him of any sort.

82,764. Did you make any inquiry of him who would make the payments temporarily, or how was that arranged?—No.

82,765. Who was to make the current payments?—I made no such inquiry.

82,766. And you had at that time not paid any money to his bank?—I think none whatever.

82,767. I understand from him and yourself, the payments were made afterwards?—Quite so.

82,768. His evidence entirely agrees with yours in that respect?—Quite so.

82,769. Did you not collect at all by whom the money was being disbursed during the progress of the election?—No, I did not.

82,770. When you saw these colourmen and blowers, and so on, you did not restrict any payment being made to them?—No; not at all.

82,771. And you would have no doubt probably they were voters in your interest?—That I did not know.

82,772. Merely by the colours?—Yes.

82,773. And probably they would be occasionally?—Yes; I should have been glad to find them so at the time, I think, but I am not sure that I noticed much.

82,774. Did you pay any money at all yourself during the election?—Nothing whatever, that I am aware of.

82,775. Any sum of any kind to anybody?—Not to anybody that I remember.

82,776. I think there are one or two instances that have been before us of persons who said they received some money directly from you, some small sums?—I do not think it is at all likely; I do not recollect any such thing.

82,777. Do you think you could pledge yourself at this distance of time that you never made any payments?—Yes; I think I could venture to state that I made no payments whatever.

82,778. Do you remember whether it was a matter of agreement or arrangement that you should not pay any money at the time; that the amount should be sent in to you, and you should make the payment afterwards; otherwise it would seem to me of course these gentlemen had a thorough confidence in your honour, but there would be something pass as to the mode the payments should be made?—It was understood the election expenses should be paid after the election was over.

82,779. And these gentlemen should find in the meantime what money was wanted?—I suppose it was understood, but there was no arrangement of that sort.

82,780. You have alluded to the day of polling. On that day did you become acquainted with the fact while the poll was going on that there were lots of voters in different parts who were waiting for money?—I heard it just before I retired; I remember it distinctly.

82,781. Was any application or communication made to you respecting any such persons on the day before the nomination day?—I think not. I do not recollect that there was.

82,782. Some persons who had gone across to New Holland or Barton, to the amount of 250, and sent a message across that they were to be treated with. Do you remember anything of that on the nomination day?—I do not recollect; and I do not think that message was ever conveyed to me. I have no recollection of ever having received it; none whatever.

82,783. During the progress of the election, while in Hull, had you any communication with Mr. Baines prior to the last day?—No.

82,784. You had not?—Certainly not.

82,785. Your committees were not working together?—Not that I am aware of; not the least.

82,786. On the day of the election, you did hear of some lots of voters, or one lot?—On the day of the polling, I did.

82,787. On the polling day do you remember hearing of any lots of voters?—Yes; I do distinctly remember hearing of it.

82,788. Did they make any application personally directly or indirectly to you?—No; it was told me in my committee room, that there were certain voters in numbers to be bought.

82,789. Who brought you that communication?—That I cannot remember. It was told me in the committee room. I do not think it was told me by one individual, "Why will you give up, there are numbers of people not polled?"

82,790. Was that at the time you gave up?—That determined me. I said I had no chance, and I should at once go to my opponents and say I did not wish to make any more disturbance in the town, and should retire.

82,791. And then it was stated there were a certain number of voters?—Yes; and I might possibly win the game by those means.

82,792. What was the statement made to you with regard to those persons?—I think simply this, that there were a number of voters who had not polled, but who were to be bought; they were to be found in public houses. I do not think the names were mentioned to me; but they were to be paid.

82,793. Was the number mentioned?—I think it was; but I do not recollect the number.

82,794. 150?—Something of that sort I suppose, or I think more. "Waiting to be bought," I think was the expression at this moment.

82,795. That was very plain language; what did you reply to them?—That I would not buy them.

82,796. You declined to have anything to do with them?—That was my answer.

82,797. And did you then determine to relinquish the contest?—Instantly.

82,798. You were not successful at that election?—No.

82,799. Did you upon that go to Mr. Baines' committee room?—Yes.

82,800. That was I think at the George?—I do not recollect the inn.

82,801. But you saw Mr. Baines, I think?—Yes; at his committee room.

82,802. Did you state to him this overture that had been made to you?—I have no recollection of stating that to him distinctly, as a statement; but I think it likely I mentioned it. My object in going was simply to wish him joy of his election, and say I retired and left the field clear for him.

82,803. I believe a great many persons, after you retired, continued to poll for you?—That is very likely. I was told of that this morning.

82,804. Did you leave the town that afternoon?—I left the town and went to my friend Mr. Tottie.

82,805. The same afternoon?—Yes.

82,806. At some little distance?—Yes; some two miles from here.

J. Brown, Esq.

16th August 1853.

82,807. After the announcement you made to Mr. Baines, did you yourself take any further interest?—None whatever; I went away the next day, I think.

82,808. Did you hear at the time that these persons were continuing to go to poll?—No.

82,809. Probably you have heard since that they did?—This morning.

82,810. For the first time?—Yes.

82,811. Probably the object of that was that they should endeavour to get some of your money if they could?—I suppose there could be no other object.

82,812. The expense to you was 3,000*l.*?—I think so, as nearly as possible.

82,813. Did you, if you remember, furnish the money to Mr. Digby in two cheques, for 1,500*l.* each?—I think so; and I have been looking over some old memorandum books of that date, and I find I paid 1,500*l.* to him the 24th of August. I think that would be the last payment. I think I must have left 1,500*l.* with him here, or sent it immediately after I left Hull.

82,814. Do you think you left one 1,500*l.* before you left the next morning?—I cannot distinctly recollect. I have lost the book in which it would be, but I paid the other, that would be the case I have no doubt, but I cannot charge my memory to it.

82,815. Did you understand when you made the first payment of 1,500*l.* to Mr. Digby, that it was merely a payment on account?—Yes, I should understand that. I do not recollect saying that.

82,816. You did not understand it was an ultimate payment?—No; I should distinctly ask him that.

82,817. Do you recollect whether at the time Mr. Digby acquainted you at all with what in his judgment would be the full expenses?—Yes.

82,818. What sum did he mention?—He said over 2,000*l.*, I think; but he did not expect it would amount to 3,000*l.* I have a note from him to me, which is the only document I have which is forthcoming now, or that I can find, but which will corroborate that in which he mentions there was not so much surplus as he supposed there would be out of my second 1,500*l.*

82,819. I believe it dwindled into nothing?—I never received anything.

82,820. When you made the first payment of the 1,500*l.* on the day after the election, do you remember if you adverted to the fact, on that same being asked, how so much money could be spent?—No, I do not recollect that.

82,821. Did not Mr. Digby on that occasion draw your attention to the number of persons employed in the committee rooms, and so on?—I cannot charge my memory. I do not recollect it.

82,822. He was telling you, if I understand, he thought the sum would exceed 2,000*l.*, which was the sum you did not expect to go beyond?—Yes.

82,823. Did not that statement naturally lead you to inquire how so much could be spent?—Not at the time. I left them in the heat of the thing. I trusted entirely to Mr. Digby. I had every reason to do so, and I went away.

82,824. Did you at that time put any restriction at all upon him as to the character of the payments he might make at the time?—No, I think not.

82,825. Nor at any time subsequently?—Nor at any time subsequently.

82,826. You advanced the second 1,500*l.* somewhere about the 24th of August?—My memorandum says the 24th of August a cheque was sent to him.

82,827. Do you remember if prior to that Mr. Digby had furnished you with a detailed account of the expenses?—I think he did. I feel pretty sure that he did, and that he sent me vouchers for them, but I believe I have destroyed them. I cannot find them. I have searched for them.

82,828. Do you remember whether those items of expenditure, or that account, were rendered before you paid the second 1,500*l.*, or cotemporaneously?—I think it would be rendered afterwards; after the whole thing was disposed of, he sent me the heads of the expenditure, to the best of my recollection, and I think he sent me a parcel of vouchers, but those I cannot find.

82,829. Do you remember if, on your forwarding the second 1,500*l.*, you made any inquiry how so much money would be wanted, or to what purpose it was applied?—I made no inquiry, the thing was done with.

82,830. You understood the second 1,500*l.* was all you would be called upon for?—Yes, certainly; and I paid no more.

82,831. Probably when the accounts came to you, you had some curiosity to see how 3,000*l.* could be spent in a Hull election?—No; I do not think I ever opened the parcel; I put them away.

82,832. You did not examine them?—No; I did not examine them minutely. I have no recollection. I thought I should have been able to find them for you, but I cannot.

82,833. Mr. Burstall was with you?—Yes.

82,834. Do you remember if he said he was making payments, disbursing money to the chairmen of the different districts?—No.

82,835. Or that he was paying any money at all away?—No.

82,836. Or his alluding to any payment?—He never alluded to making any payment that I recollect.

82,837. We understand Mr. Stephenson was not one of the deputation that waited on you, but one of your active supporters?—I remember the name, but I do not recollect the person.

82,838. Do you remember whether he stated to you at any time he was securing some of the voters by employment or anything of that character during the progress?—No; I do not remember that; he might have done so, but I do not recollect any one making a statement to me.

82,839. Did you not receive rather a specific warning before you came to Hull not to come here?—Yes.

82,840. From Mr. Beckett Denison?—Yes.

82,841. Will you tell me what it was he said to you?—I do not remember. I cannot remember. It was an off-hand sort of thing.

82,842. Was it not to the effect that it was an exceedingly expensive place, and that the expenditure would not be in legal methods?—I think I can perhaps recollect it. I think he said: "Hang those fellows. I know them well."

82,843. Was that all?—I think that would be something like it; he warned me, but I do not recollect exactly.

82,844. He wanted you not to come?—Surely; and when I had been defeated, he said: "I told you how it would be."

82,845. Did not his warning convey to your mind that it would cost a great deal of money?—Yes; and probably be beaten into the bargain.

82,846. And not a sort of expenditure that could be strictly looked into?—He did not enter into the details.

82,847. I wish to know what he conveyed to your mind?—I cannot exactly tell you that; he conveyed to my mind that I should be obliged to buy voters, but they were a curious lot to come among.

82,848. That you would be obliged to spend money, if you wanted to be popular among them?—Yes, surely.

82,849. And that it was not much use to come to Hull without spending money among them?—Surely. He did not enter into the details.

82,850. I ask what were your thoughts at the time?—I should think he would mean that, but I was partly aware of that before.

82,851. Were you also aware of that at the time, that in general where there are freemen money must be expended, in a way in which it would not be expended where there were not freemen?—Surely, it is notorious.

82,852. You were aware of that?—Yes.

82,853. You were aware there were freemen in Hull, and a large number?—I was not aware how many there were.

82,854. Was it called to your attention, when these gentlemen waited upon you, that they were the representatives of two different parties?—I do not think they informed me that they were the representatives of two distinct parties; they might be the representatives of moderate Whigs.

82,855. Extreme Radicals?—I do not know.

82,856. Were they not so far distinct, that one were the high Tories, and the others extreme Radicals?—I was not aware there were any high Tories.

82,857. It was not so far called to your attention?—Certainly not. I was not acquainted with any of them before.

82,858. Was it at all called to your attention that there was such a difference in politics in your supporters, that made you inquire why they should be joined on that occasion?—No, I should say not; I do not recollect anything of the sort. The notion was, that the party who would support Mr. Baines would support me; I think the deputation to Mr. Baines was also a joint deputation,—two parties were connected in that matter, and it was supposed that same party would join in supporting me; that was the impression on my mind at the time.

82,859. Was not this called to your attention, that the object of the union in effect with Mr. Baines was, to prevent a contest, and the object of the union in your case was to create one?—That was not stated to me.

82,860. Tell me this, whether by observation, or conversation, or any other means, it did pass into your mind during the election, that money was being expended for the purpose of influencing voters?—No, I do not think that occurred to me; I think not. I do not think it ever occurred to me that there was money given for bribery, certainly not. It occurred to me, as I said before, that there were numbers of people employed, and numbers of people—the bands, seem to have been larger than there need to have been; but I do not think they were larger than other elections.

82,861. Did it occur to you that the employment was made for the purpose of paying people money in some other way?—No, I do not think it occurred to me; I cannot distinctly say it did.

82,862. You say it occurred to you that the expenditure was exceedingly lavish?—After the election was over, and I had to pay the bills.

82,863. But during the election?—I did not know what was going on.

82,864. Did it come to your mind that the expenditure was lavish?—No.

J. Brown, Esq.

16th August 1853.

82,865. Did it seem to you to be an ordinary and necessary expenditure?—Certainly not necessary; but it did not seem extraordinary for such a large place as Hull.

82,866. You thought it unnecessary?—Yes, all bands are unnecessary.

82,867. And all the persons you saw employed?—I dare say they were.

82,868. Did it not at all strike you why they should be employed unnecessarily?—No, I do not think it struck me particularly; certainly not.

82,869. You say you gave instructions that there should be no bribery?—Yes.

82,870. To whom did you give those instructions?—To my committee generally; to Mr. Digby specially.

82,871. You said so to Mr. Digby?—I feel no doubt about that.

82,872. Did you say so when the committee were all present?—I do not recollect that I assembled the committee and said that to them; but I distinctly said so, many times, to members of the committee, when the opportunity occurred, when I thought it necessary.

82,873. Did you know Mr. Wells was the professional gentleman managing the election on your behalf?—Not in the least; certainly not.

82,874. You do not recollect whether you instructed him?—I do not recollect Mr. Wells at all; I do not recollect any one of the name; he might probably have been there.

82,875. You feel quite certain you instructed Mr. Digby to that effect?—I feel pretty sure I did; I certainly instructed the committee generally.

82,876. I understood you to say, that you did not know of these little lots until the last day?—Certainly not.

82,877. Then you did not know that a party of eighty of them were bought on your behalf at the Baltic?—No; not at all.

82,878. Did you ever hear of that?—No; till this morning.

82,879. And another lot of 25, at Hedon, the out-voters?—I was not at all aware of that.

82,880. Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Burstall, on your part, managed that little arrangement?—I did not hear of that.

Mr. Markham, the secretary, was then directed to adjourn the Court sine die.
